chi-tin (kīt'n) n. A tough, protective, semitransparent substance, primarily a nitrogen-containing polysaccharide, forming the principal component of arthropod exoskeletons and the cell walls of certain fungi. [French chitine, from New Latin chitōn, mollusk, from Greek khitōn, chiton. See CHITON.] — chi'tin-ous adj.

chit-lin circuit or chit-lin' circuit (chĭt'lin sūr'kīt) n. Informal. A circuit of nightclubs and theaters that feature Black performers and cater especially to Black audiences: "I was traveling up and down... with these little groups on what they call the chitlin' circuit" (Carter Jefferson).

chit-lins or chit-lings (chĭt'linz) pl.n. Variants of chitterlings.

chi-ton (kīt'n, kī'tōn') n. 1. Any of various marine mollusks of the class Polyplacophora that live on rocks and have shells consisting of eight overlapping calcareous plates. Also called sea cradle 2. A tunic worn by men and women in ancient Greece. [Greek khitōn, tunic, of Semitic origin; akin to Hebrew kuttōnet, garment.]

Chit-ta-gong (chĭt'ə-gōng', -gōng') A city of southeast Bangladesh near the Bay of Bengal. It is a major port and industrial center. Population, 980,000.

chit-ter (chĭt'ər) v. intr. chit-tered, chit-ter-ing, chit-ters. To twitter or chatter, as a bird. [Middle English chiteren, of imitative origin.]

chit·ter·lings also chit·lins or chit·lings (chĭt'ĭnz) pl.n. The small intestines of pigs, especially when cooked and eaten as food. [From Middle English chiterling, probably diminutive of Old English cieter*, intestines.]

chivalric (shĭ-vāl'rĭk, shĭv'əl-) adj. Of or relating to chivalry.

chivalrous (shĭv'əl-rəs) adj. 1. Having the qualities of gallantry and honor attributed to an ideal knight. 2. Of or relating to chivalry. 3. Characterized by consideration and courtesy, especially toward women. —chivalrously adv. —chivalrousness n.

chivalry (shĭv'əl-rē) n. pl. chivalries. 1. The medieval system, principles, and customs of knighthood. 2. a. The qualities idealized by knighthood, such as bravery, courtesy, honor, and gallantry toward women. b. A manifestation of any of these qualities. 3. A group of knights or gallant gentlemen. [Middle English chivalrie, from Old French chevalerie, from chevalier, knight. See CHEVALIER.]

WORD HISTORY: The Age of Chivalry was also the age of the horse. Bedecked in elaborate armor and other trappings, horses were certainly well dressed although they might have wished for lighter loads. That the horse should be featured so prominently during the Age of Chivalry is etymologically appropriate, because chivalry goes back to the Latin word caballus, “horse, especially a riding horse or packhorse.” Borrowed from French, as were so many other important words having to do with medieval English culture, the English word chivalry is first recorded in works composed around the beginning of the 14th century and is found in several senses, including “a body of armored mounted warriors serving a lord” and “knighthood as a ceremonially conferred rank in the social system.” Our modern sense, “the medieval system of knighthood,” could not exist until the passage of several centuries had allowed the perspective for such a conceptualization, with this sense being recorded first in 1765.

chive (chĭv) n. A Eurasian bulbous herb (Allium schoenoprasum) in the lily family, having clusters of usually pink to rose-violet flowers and cultivated for its long, slender, hollow leaves used as a mild onion-flavored seasoning. Often used in the plural. [Middle English chive, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin cēpa, onion.]

chivvy or chiv-y (chĭv'ē) v. chivvied or chiv-ied, chiv-vy-ing or chiv-y-ing, chiv-vies or chiv-ies. — v. tr. 1. To vex or harass with petty attacks: political opponents who chivvied the senator. 2. To maneuver or secure gradually: “had spent two weeks chivvying this division toward combat readiness” (Tom Clancy). — v. intr. To scurry. — n. pl. chiv-vies or chiv-ies. 1. A hunt or chase. 2. A hunting cry. [Variant of chevy, a hunt, hunting cry, from Chevy Chase, title of a ballad about a border skirmish, from Cheviot Chase, a large unenclosed hunting tract in the Cheviot Hills.]

Chka-lov (chə-kä'läf, chkä'-) See Orenburg.

chl. abbr. Chloroform.

chlam-y-date (kläm'ī-dāt') adj. Having a mantle. Used of mollusks. [Latin chlamydātus, cloaked, from chlamys, chlamyd-, mantle. See CHLAMYS.]

chla-myd-e-ous (klə-mīd'ē-əs) adj. Botany. Having a perianth. [Latin chlamys, chlamyd-, mantle; see CHLAMYS + -EOUS.]

chlam-y-des (kläm'ī-dēz') n. A plural of chlamys.

chla-myd-i-a (klə-mīd'ē-ə) n. pl. chla-myd-i-ae (-ē-ē'). Microbiology. 1. Any of various gram-negative, coccoid microorganisms of the genus Chlamydia, especially C. psittaci and C. trachomatis, that are pathogenic to human beings and animals, causing diseases such as conjunctivitis in cattle and sheep and trachoma, nonspecific urethritis, and proctitis in human beings. 2. Any of several common, often asymptomatic, sexually transmitted diseases caused by the microorganism Chlamydia trachomatis, including nonspecific urethritis in men. [New Latin, genus name, from Latin chlamys, chlamyd-, mantle. See CHLAMYS.]

—chla-myd/i-al adj.

chla-myd-o-spore (klə-mīd'ə-spôr', -spôr') n. A thick-walled, asexual fungal spore that is derived from a hyphal cell and can function as a resting spore.

[Latin chlamys, chlamyd-, mantle; see CHLAMYS + SPORE.]

chlam-ys (kläm'is, klä'mīs) n. pl. chlam-ys-es or chlam-y-des (kläm'ī-dēz'). A short mantle fastened at the shoulder, worn by men in ancient Greece. [Latin, from Greek khlamus.]

chlo-as-ma (klō-äz'mə) n. pl. chlo-as-ma-ta (-mə-tə). A patchy brown or dark brown skin discoloration that usually occurs on a woman's face and may result from hormonal changes, as in pregnancy. [New Latin, from Greek khloasma, greenness, from khloazein, to be green, from khloos, greenish color. See ghel² in Appendix.]

chlor- pref. Variant of chloro-.

chlor-ac-ne (klôr-äk'nē, klôr-) n. An acnelike skin disorder caused by prolonged exposure to chlorinated hydrocarbons.

chlo-ral (klôr'əl, klôr'-) n. A colorless, mobile, oily aldehyde, CCl₃CHO, a penetrating lung irritant, used to manufacture DDT and chloral hydrate.

[CHLOR(INE) + AL(COHOL).]

chloral hydrate (klôr'əl hī'drāt') n. A colorless crystalline compound, CCl₃CH(OH)₂, used medicinally as a sedative and hypnotic.

chlo-ra-mine (klôr'ə-mēn', klôr'-) n. Any of several compounds containing nitrogen and chlorine, especially an unstable colorless liquid, NH₂Cl, used to make hydrazine.

chlo-ram-phen-i-col (klôr'am-fēn'ī-kôl', -kôl', -kôl', klôr'-) n. An antibiotic, C₁₁H₁₂Cl₂N₂O₅, derived from the soil bacterium Streptomyces venezuelae or produced synthetically and effective against a broad spectrum of microorganisms. [CHLOR(O)- + AM(IDE) + PHE(NO)- + NI(TRO)- + (GLY)COL.]

chlo-rate (klôr'ât', klôr'-) n. The inorganic group ClO_3 or a compound containing it.

chlor-dane (klôr'dân', klôr'-) also chlor-dan (-dăn') n. A colorless, odorless, viscous liquid, $\text{C}_{10}\text{H}_6\text{Cl}_8$, used as an insecticide. It may be toxic to human beings and wildlife as a result of its effect on the nervous system. [CHLOR(O)- + (IN)D(ENE) + -ANE.]

chlor-di-az-e-pox-ide (klôr'dī-áz'ə-pök'sīd', klôr'-) n. A benzodiazepine drug, $\text{C}_{16}\text{H}_{14}\text{ClN}_3\text{O}$, whose hydrochloride is used as an antianxiety drug and in the treatment of chronic alcoholism and alcohol withdrawal. [CHLOR(O)- + DI-¹ + AZ(O) + EP(I)- + OXIDE.]

chlo-rel-la (klə-rĕl'ə) n. Any of various unicellular green algae of the genus Chlorella, easily cultured and often used in studies of photosynthesis and other experiments. [New Latin Chlorella, genus name, from Greek khlōros, green. See CHLORO-.]

chlo-ren-chy-ma (klə-rĕng'kə-mə) n. Plant tissue consisting of parenchyma cells that contain chloroplasts. [CHLOR(OPHYLL) + -ENCHYMA.]

chlo-ric (klôr'īk, klôr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or containing chlorine.

chloric acid (klôr'īk əs'īd) n. A strongly oxidizing unstable acid, $\text{HClO}_3 \cdot 7\text{H}_2\text{O}$.

chlo-ride (klôr'īd', klôr'-) n. A binary compound of chlorine. —chlo-rid'ic (klə-rīd'īk) adj.

chloride of lime (klôr'īd' ūv līm) n. See bleaching powder.

chlo-ri-nate (klôr'ə-nāt', klôr'-) v. tr. chlo-ri-nat-ed, chlo-ri-nat-ing, chlo-ri-nates. To treat or combine with chlorine or a chlorine compound.

—chlo'ri-na'tion n. —chlo'ri-na'tor n.

chlo-ri-nat-ed lime (klôr'ə-nā'tīd līm, klôr'-) n. See bleaching powder.

chlo-rine (klôr'ĕn', -ĭn, klôr'-) n. Symbol Cl A highly irritating, greenish-yellow gaseous halogen, capable of combining with nearly all other elements, produced principally by electrolysis of sodium chloride and used widely to purify water, as a disinfectant and bleaching agent, and in the manufacture of many important compounds including chloroform and carbon tetrachloride. Atomic number 17; atomic weight 35.45; freezing point -100.98°C ; boiling point -34.6°C ; specific gravity 1.56 (-33.6°C); valence 1, 3, 5, 7.

chlo-rite¹ (klôr'īt', klôr'-) n. A generally green or black secondary mineral, $(\text{Mg,Fe,Al})_6(\text{Si,Al})_4\text{O}_{10}(\text{OH})_8$, often formed by metamorphic alteration of primary dark rock minerals, that appears as a spot of green and resembles mica. [Latin chlōrītis, a green precious stone, from Greek khlōrītis, from khlōros, green. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

chlo-rite² (klôr'īt', klôr'-) n. The inorganic group ClO_2 or a salt containing it.

chloro- or chlor- pref. 1. Green: chlorosis. 2. Chlorine: chloroform. [From Greek chlōros, green. See ghel-2 in Appendix.]

chlo-ro-ben-zene (klôr'ō-bĕn'zĕn', -bĕn-zĕn', klôr'-) n. A colorless, volatile flammable liquid, C_6H_5Cl , used to prepare phenol, DDT, and aniline and as a general solvent.

chlo-ro-car-bon (klôr'ō-kär'bən, klôr'-) n. A compound that consists of chlorine and halocarbon.

chlo-ro-fluor-o-car-bon (klôr'ō-flōōr'ō-kär'bən, -flôr'-, -flōr'-, klôr'-) n. Abbr. CFC Any of various halocarbon compounds consisting of carbon, hydrogen, chlorine, and fluorine, once used widely as aerosol propellants and refrigerants. Chlorofluorocarbons are believed to cause depletion of the atmospheric ozone layer.

chlo-ro-form (klôr'ə-fōrm', klôr'-) n. Abbr. chl. A clear, colorless, heavy, sweet-smelling liquid, $CHCl_3$, used in refrigerants, propellants, and resins, as a solvent, and sometimes as an anesthetic. Chloroform, once widely used in human and veterinary surgery, has generally been replaced by less toxic, more easily controlled agents. — v. tr. chlo-ro-formed, chlo-ro-form-ing, chlo-ro-forms.

1. To treat with chloroform to anesthetize, render unconscious, or kill. 2. To apply chloroform to. [CHLORO- + FORM(YL).]

chlo-ro-hy-drin (klôr'ō-hī'drĭn, klôr'-) n. An aliphatic organic chemical compound that is both an alkyl chloride and an alcohol, frequently containing a single chlorine atom and a single hydroxyl group on adjacent carbon atoms.

Chlo-ro-my-ce-tin (klôr'ō-mī-sĕt'n, klôr'-) A trademark used for an antibiotic preparation of chloramphenicol.

chlo-ro-phyll also chlo-ro-phyll (klôr'ə-fĭl, klôr'-) n. Any of a group of related green pigments found in photosynthetic organisms, especially: a. A waxy blue-black microcrystalline green-plant pigment, $C_{55}H_{72}MgN_4O_5$, with a characteristic blue-green alcohol solution. Also called chlorophyll a b. A similar green-plant pigment, $C_{55}H_{70}MgN_4O_6$, having a brilliant green alcohol solution. Also called chlorophyll b chlo-ro-pic-rin (klôr'ə-pĭk'rĭn, klôr'-) n. An oily, colorless liquid, CCl_3NO_2 , used as a lung irritant in poison gas and in dyestuffs, disinfectants, insecticides, and soil fumigants. Also called nitrochloroform [CHLORO- + PICR(O)- + -IN.]

chlo-ro-plast (klôr'ə-plăst', klôr'-) also chlo-ro-plas-tid (klôr'ə-plăs'tĭd, klôr'-) n. Botany. A chlorophyll-containing plastid found in algal and green plant cells. [CHLORO- + PLAST(ID).]

chlo-ro-prene (klôr'ə-prĕn', klôr'-) n. A colorless liquid, C_4H_5Cl , that polymerizes to neoprene. [CHLORO- + (ISO)PRENE.]

chlo-ro-quine (klôr'ə-kwĭn', -kwĕn', klôr'-) n. A drug, $C_{18}H_{26}ClN_3$, used mainly in the treatment and prevention of malaria. [CHLORO- + QUIN(OLIN)E.]

chlo-ro-sis (klə-rō'sīs) n. 1. Botany. The yellowing or whitening of normally green plant tissue because of a decreased amount of chlorophyll, often as a result of disease or nutrient deficiency. 2. Pathology. An iron-deficiency anemia, primarily of young women, characterized by a greenish-yellow discoloration of the skin. In this sense, also called greensickness — chlo-rot'ic (-rōt'ik) adj.

— chlo-rot'i-cal·ly adv.

chlo-ro-thi-a-zide (klôr'ə-thī'ə-zīd', klôr'-) n. A thiazide diuretic used in the treatment of hypertension, heart failure, and edema to promote the excretion of excess salt and water from the body.

chlor-prom-a-zine (klôr-prōm'ə-zēn', -prō'mə-, klôr-) n. A drug, C₁₇H₁₉ClN₂S, derived from phenothiazine and used to suppress vomiting and as a sedative and a tranquilizer, especially in the treatment of schizophrenia and other psychotic states. [CHLOR(O)- + PRO(PYL) + M(ETHYL) + AZINE.]

chlor-tet-ra-cy-cline (klôr'tēt-rə-sī'klēn', -klīn, klôr'-) n. A broad-spectrum antibiotic, C₂₂H₂₃ClN₂O₈, obtained from the soil bacterium Streptomyces aureofaciens and used in the treatment of a variety of infections.

chm. abbr. 1. Chairman. 2. Checkmate.

Chmn abbr. Chairman.

cho-an-o-cyte (kō-ăn'ə-sīt') n. One of a layer of flagellated cells lining the body cavity of a sponge and characterized by a collar of cytoplasm surrounding the flagellum. Also called collar cell [Greek khoanē, funnel (from khein, to pour); see gheu- in Appendix + -CYTE.]

Choate (chōt), Rufus. 1799-1859. American politician who served as a U.S. representative (1831-1834) and senator (1841-1845) from Massachusetts. His son Joseph Hodges Choate (1832-1917) was ambassador to Great Britain (1899-1905).

chock (chōk) n. 1. A block or wedge placed under something else, such as a wheel, to keep it from moving. 2. Nautical. A heavy fitting of metal or wood with two jaws curving inward, through which a rope or cable may be run. — v. tr.

chocked, chock-ing, chocks. 1. To fit with or secure by a chock: The plane's wheels were chocked and chained down. 2. Nautical. To place (a boat) on chocks. — adv. 1. As completely as possible: a report chock full of errors. 2. As close as possible: had to stand chock up against the railing. [Possibly from Old North French choque, log, from Gaulish tsukka*, stump, of Germanic origin.]

chock-a-block or chock-a-block (chōk'ə-blōk') adj. 1. Squeezed together; jammed: The cheering fans were chock-a-block in the stands. 2. Completely filled; stuffed: "I recommend the north shore chowder, chockablock with pieces of seasonal fish" (Charles Monaghan). 3. Nautical. Drawn so close as to have the blocks touching. Used of a ship's hoisting tackle. — adv. Chock: a hall that was chock-a-block full. [Alteration (influenced by CHOCK), of block-a-block : BLOCK + A⁻² + BLOCK.]

choc·o·hol·ic (chôk'ə-hô'lîk, -hôl'îk, chök'-) n. A person who craves chocolate. [CHOC(OLATE) + (ALC)OHOLIC.]

choc·o·late (chô'kə-lît, chôk'lît, chök'-) n. 1. Fermented, roasted, shelled, and ground cacao seeds, often combined with a sweetener or flavoring agent. 2. A beverage made by mixing water or milk with chocolate. 3. A small, chocolate-covered candy with a hard or soft center. 4. Color. A grayish to deep reddish brown to deep grayish brown. — adj. 1. Made or flavored with chocolate: chocolate pudding. 2. Color. Of a grayish to deep reddish brown to deep grayish brown. [Spanish, from Nahuatl xocolatl: xococ, bitter + atl, water.]

chocolate tree (chô'kə-lît trē) n. See cacao (n., sense 1).

Choc·taw (chök'tô) n. pl. Choctaw or Choc·taws. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting central and southern Mississippi and southwest Alabama, with present-day populations in Mississippi and southeast Oklahoma. The Choctaw were removed to Indian Territory in the 1830's. b. A member of this people. 2. The Muskogean language of the Choctaw. [Choctaw Chahta.]

Choc·taw·hatch·ee (chök'tə-häch'ē) A river rising in southern Alabama and flowing about 225 km (140 mi) south into northwest Florida, where it empties into Choctawhatchee Bay, an inlet of the Gulf of Mexico.

choice (chois) n. 1. The act of choosing; selection. 2. The power, right, or liberty to choose; option. 3. One that is chosen. 4. A number or variety from which to choose: a wide choice of styles and colors. 5. The best or most preferable part. 6. Care in choosing. 7. An alternative. — adj. choic·er, choic·est.

1. a. Of very fine quality. b. Appealing to refined taste. 2. Selected with care. 3. Of the U.S. Government grade of meat higher than good and lower than prime. — idiom. of choice. Preferred above others of the same kind or set: “the much used leveraged buyout as the weapon of choice” (Alison Leigh Cowan). [Middle English chois, from Old French, from choisir, to choose, from Vulgar Latin causīre*, of Germanic origin. See geus- in Appendix.] — choice/ly adv. — choice/ness n.

SYNONYMS: choice, alternative, option, preference, selection, election. Each of these nouns denotes the act, power, or right of choosing. Choice implies broadly the freedom to choose from a set, as of persons or things: The store offers a wide choice of fruits and vegetables. I had no choice—their decision was final. Alternative emphasizes a choosing between only two possibilities or courses of action: “An unhappy alternative is before you, Elizabeth.... Your mother will never see you again if you do not marry Mr. Collins, and I will never see you again if you do” (Jane Austen). Option often stresses a power or liberty to choose that has been granted, as by an authority: The option lies between accepting the candidate the administration proposes and reconstituting the search committee. Preference indicates choice based on one's values, bias, or predilections: We were offered our preference of wines. Selection suggests a variety of things or persons to choose from: Parents should exercise care in their selection of the movies their young children see. Election especially emphasizes the use of judgment in choosing: The university recommends the election of courses in composition and literature. See also Synonyms at delicate choir (kwīr) n. 1. An organized company of singers, especially one performing church music or singing in a church. 2. a. The part of a church used by such a company of singers. b. The part of the chancel in a cruciform church that is occupied by this company of singers. 3. Music. a. A group of instruments of the same kind: a string choir. b. A division of some pipe organs, containing pipes suitable for accompanying a choir. 4. An organized group: a choir of dancers. 5. One of the orders of angels. — v. intr. choired, choir-ing, choirs. Music. To sing in chorus. [Middle English quer, quire, from Old French cuer, from Medieval Latin chorus, from Latin, choral dance. See CHORUS.]

choir-boy (kwīr'boi') n. 1. Music. A boy member of a choir. 2. Informal. A young man who is considered to be of the highest character: "They're... choir-boys—clean, scrubbed nothings—so there's no dramatic or psychological preparation for the explosion of killing" (Pauline Kael).

choir-girl (kwīr'gûrl') n. Music. A girl member of a choir.

choir loft (kwīr lôft) n. A gallery for a group of church singers.

choir-mas-ter (kwīr'mās'tər) n. The director of a group of church singers.

Choi-seul (shwä-zœl') One of the Solomon Islands in the southwest Pacific Ocean southeast of Bougainville Island. It was under German control from 1886 to 1899.

choke (chōk) v. choked, chok-ing, chokes. — v. tr. 1. To interfere with the respiration of by compression or obstruction of the larynx or trachea. 2. a. To check or slow down the movement, growth, or action of: a garden that was choked by weeds. b. To block up or obstruct by filling or clogging: Mud choked the drainpipe. c. To fill up completely; jam: Major commuter arteries were choked with stalled traffic. 3. To reduce the air intake of (a carburetor), thereby enriching the fuel mixture. 4. Sports. To grip (a bat or racket, for example) at a point nearer the hitting surface. — v. intr. 1. To have difficulty in breathing, swallowing, or speaking. 2. To become blocked up or obstructed. 3. Sports. To shorten one's grip on the handle of a bat or racket. 4. To fail to perform effectively because of nervous agitation or tension: "The only top official to choke up was the Secretary of State.... he created a problem by insisting on solving a problem that was not acute" (William Safire). — n. 1. The act or sound of choking.

2. a. Something that constricts or chokes. b. A narrow part, such as the choke-bore of a firearm. 3. A device used in an internal-combustion engine to enrich the fuel mixture by reducing the flow of air to the carburetor. — phrasal verbs. choke back. To hold back; suppress: choked back his tears. choke off.

To bring to an end as if by choking: “Treasury borrowing of existing savings would drive up the interest rate and choke off economic activity” (Paul Craig Roberts).

choke up. To be unable to speak because of strong emotion. [Middle English choken, short for achoken, from Old English ācēōcian : ā-, intensive pref. + cēoce, cēace, jaw, cheek.]

choke-ber-ry (chōk'běr'ē) n. 1. Any of various deciduous shrubs of the genus Aronia in the rose family, native to eastern North America and having clusters of small white or pinkish flowers and tiny red to black applelike fruit. 2. The fruit of any of these plants. [From its bitter fruit.]

choke-bore (chōk'bōr', -bōr') n. 1. A shotgun bore that narrows toward the muzzle to prevent wide scattering of the shot. 2. A gun with a narrowed bore near the muzzle.

choke chain (chōk chān) n. See choke collar.

choke-cher-ry (chōk'chěr'ē) n. 1. A deciduous North American shrub or small tree (Prunus virginiana) in the rose family, having elongate clusters of small white flowers and astringent, dark red to nearly black fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant. [From its bitter fruit.]

choke coil (chōk kōil) n. Electronics. A circuit element used to suppress or limit the flow of alternating current without affecting the flow of direct current.

choke collar (chōk kōl'ər) n. A chain collar that tightens like a noose when the leash is pulled, used in canine obedience training or to control untrained animals. Also called choke chain choke-damp (chōk'dāmp') n. See blackdamp. [So called because it causes suffocation in mines.]

choke-hold (chōk'hōld') n. A restraining move in which one person seizes another around the neck in a tight grip, typically from behind.

choke-point or choke point (chōk'point') n. 1. A narrow passage, such as a strait, through which shipping must pass. 2. A point of congestion or obstruction.

chok-er (chō'kər) n. 1. One that chokes or suffocates another. 2. Something that fits closely around the neck or throat, as: a. A tight-fitting necklace. b. A high, tight collar. c. A narrow neckpiece of fur.

chok-ing (chō'kɪŋ) adj. 1. Causing a feeling of being choked or suffocated: The hall was filled with choking clouds of smoke. 2. Having a strained or husky sound: spoke in a choking voice. —chok'ing-ly adv.

chok-y (chō'kē) adj. chok-i-er, chok-i-est. 1. Likely to cause choking. 2. Tending to become choked.

chol- pref. Variant of chole-.

cho-lan-gi-og-ra-phy (kō-lān'jē-ōg'rə-fē) n. X-ray examination of the bile ducts following administration of a radiopaque contrast medium. [CHOL(E)- + ANGIOGRAPHY.] —cho-lan'gi-o-graph'ic (-ə-grāf'ɪk) adj.

chole- or chol- pref. Bile: cholesterol. [From Greek kholē, bile. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

cho·le·cal·cif·er·ol (kō'li-kāl-sīf'ə-rōl', -rōl', -rōl') n. See vitamin D ₃.

cho·le·cyst (kō'li-sīst') n. The gallbladder.

cho·le·cys·tec·to·my (kō'li-sī-stĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. cho·le·cys·tec·to·mies.
Surgical removal of the gallbladder.

cho·le·cys·ti·tis (kō'li-sī-stī'tis) n. Inflammation of the gallbladder.

cho·le·cys·to·ki·nin (kō'li-sīs'tə-kī'nin) n. Abbr. CCK A hormone produced principally by the small intestine in response to the presence of fats, causing contraction of the gallbladder, release of bile, and secretion of pancreatic digestive enzymes. Also called pancreozymin cho·le·li·thi·a·sis (kō'lə-lī-thī'ə-sīs) n. The presence or formation of gallstones in the gallbladder or bile ducts.

chol·er (kōl'ər, kō'lər) n. 1. Anger; irritability. 2. a. Archaic. One of the four humors of the body thought in the Middle Ages to cause anger and bad temper when present in excess; yellow bile. b. Obsolete. The quality or condition of being bilious. [Middle English colre, from Old French, from Latin cholera, cholera, jaundice, from Greek kholera, from kholē, bile. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

chol·er·a (kōl'ər-ə) n. 1. An acute infectious disease of the small intestine, caused by the bacterium Vibrio cholerae and characterized by profuse watery diarrhea, vomiting, muscle cramps, severe dehydration, and depletion of electrolytes. Also called Asiatic cholera 2. Any of various diseases of domesticated animals, such as chickens, turkeys, or hogs, marked by severe gastroenteritis. [Latin, cholera, jaundice. See CHOLER.] —chol'e·ra'ic (-ə-rā'ik) adj. —chol'e·roid' (-ə-roid') adj.

cholera mor·bus (kōl'ər-ə mōr'bəs) n. Acute gastroenteritis occurring in summer and autumn and marked by severe cramps, diarrhea, and vomiting. No longer in scientific use. [New Latin : Latin cholera, jaundice + Latin morbus, disease.]

chol·er·ic (kōl'ə-rĭk, kə-lĕr'ik) adj. 1. Easily angered; bad-tempered. 2. Showing or expressing anger. —chol'er·i·cal·ly, chol'er·ic·ly adv.

cho·le·sta·sis (kō'li-stā'sīs) n. Suppression of biliary flow.

cho·les·ter·in (kə-lĕs'tər-ĭn) n. Cholesterol.

cho·les·ter·ol (kə-lĕs'tə-rōl', -rōl') n. A white, crystalline substance, C₂₇H₄₅OH, found in animal tissues and various foods, that is normally synthesized by the liver and is important as a constituent of cell membranes and a precursor to steroid hormones. Its level in the bloodstream can influence the pathogenesis of certain conditions, such as the development of atherosclerotic plaque and coronary artery disease. [CHOLE- + Greek stereos, solid; see ster-¹ in Appendix + -OL¹ (so called because it was first found in gallstones).]

cho·le·styr·a·mine (kō'li-stîr'ə-mēn', kō-lēs'tə-rām'ēn) n. A drug used to lower serum cholesterol levels and treat itching associated with jaundice through its ability to bind intestinal bile acids and promote their excretion. [CHOLE- + styr- possibly alteration of STER(OL) + AMINE.]

Cho·let (shō-lā') A city of western France east-southeast of Nantes. It is an industrial center. Population, 55,524.

cho·lic acid (kō'lik äs'īd) n. An abundant crystalline bile acid, C₂₄H₄₀O₅ derived from cholesterol. [Greek kholikos, bilious, from kholē, bile. See CHOLE-.]

cho·line (kō'lēn') n. A natural amine, C₅H₁₅NO₂, often classed in the vitamin B complex and a constituent of many other biologically important molecules, such as acetylcholine and lecithin.

cho·lin·er·gic (kō'lə-nûr'jĭk) adj. 1. Activated by or capable of liberating acetylcholine, especially as related to nerve fibers of the parasympathetic nervous system. 2. Having physiological effects similar to acetylcholine: a cholinergic agent or drug. [(ACETYL)CHOLIN(E) + Greek ergon, work; see werg- in Appendix.]

cho·lin·es·ter·ase (kō'lə-nēs'tə-rās', -rāz') n. An enzyme found chiefly at nerve terminals that inactivates acetylcholine by hydrolyzing it to form acetic acid and choline. [CHOLIN(E) + ESTERASE.]

chol·la (choi'ə) n. Any of several spiny, shrubby, or treelike cacti of the genus Opuntia having cylindrical stem segments. [American Spanish, from obsolete Spanish, upper part of the head, possibly from Old French cholle, round lump, head, of Germanic origin.]

Cho·lu·la (chə-lōō'lə, chō-lōō'lä) A town of east-central Mexico west of Puebla. Site of an ancient Toltec center and a city sacred to the Aztecs, it was destroyed by Hernando Cortés in 1519. Population, 26,748.

Cho·mo Lha·ri (chō'mō lār'ē) A peak, 7,318.8 m (23,996 ft) high, of the southeast Himalaya Mountains on the Bhutan-China border.

chomp (chŏmp) v. chomped, chomp·ing, chomps. — v. tr. To chew or bite on noisily: a horse chomping oats. — v. intr. To chew or bite on something repeatedly: chomping on a cigar. — n. The act or an instance of vigorous biting: "He finished the last of his sandwich with a single chomp" (Anne Tyler). [Variant of CHAMP¹.]

Chom·sky (chŏm'skē), Noam. Born 1928. American linguist who revolutionized the study of language with his theory of generative grammar, set forth in Syntactic Structures (1957).

chon (chŏn) n. pl. chon. A unit of currency in North Korea and South Korea. See Table at currency. [Korean.]

chondr- or chondri- pref. Variants of chondro-.

chon·dri·fy (kŏn'drə-fī') v. chon·dri·fied, chon·dri·fy·ing, chon·dri·fies. — v. tr. To change (a tissue) into cartilage. — v. intr. To develop into cartilage or become cartilaginous. — chon'dri·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

chon·dri·o·some (kǒn'drē-ə-sōm') n. See mitochondrion.

chon·drite (kǒn'drīt') n. A stone of meteoric origin characterized by chondrules. — chon·drit'ic (-drīt'ik) adj.

chondro- or chondri- or chondr- pref. 1. Cartilage: chondrocranium.

2. Granule: chondrite. [From Greek khondros, granule, cartilage. See ghrendh- in Appendix.]

chon·dro·cra·ni·um (kǒn'drō-krā'nē-əm) n. pl. chon·dro·cra·ni·ums or chon·dro·cra·ni·a (-nē-ə). 1. The cartilaginous cranium of an embryo before ossification. 2. A portion of the embryonic cranium forming the bones of the base of the skull and eventually undergoing ossification.

chon·dro·i·tin sulfate (kǒn-drō'ī-tīn sŭl'fāt') n. One of several classes of sulfated glycosaminoglycans that is a major constituent in various connective tissues, especially in the ground substance of blood vessels, bone, and cartilage. [From chondroitin acid, an acid occurring in cartilage.]

chon·dro·ma (kǒn-drō'mə) n. pl. chon·dro·mas or chon·dro·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A cartilaginous growth or tumor.

chon·dro·ma·la·cia (kǒn'drō-mə-lā'shə) n. Abnormal softening or degeneration of cartilage of the joints, especially of the knee. [CHONDRO- + Greek malakia, softness (from malakos, soft); see mel-¹ in Appendix.]

chon·dro·ma·ta (kǒn-drō'mə-tə) n. A plural of chondroma.

chon·drule (kǒn'drōl) n. A small round granule of extraterrestrial origin found embedded in some meteorites.

Chong·jin (chông'jīn', chœng'-) A city of northeast North Korea on the Sea of Japan. It is a port and an industrial center. Population, 490,000.

Chong·qing (chông'chǐng', chōng'-) also Chung·king (chōng'kǐng', jōng'gǐng') A city of south-central China on the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang). It was the capital of China from 1937 to 1946. Population 2,080,000.

Chon·ju (chôn'jō', chœn'-) A city of southwest South Korea south of Seoul. It is a marketing center in a rice-growing region. Population, 305,000.

choose (chōoz) v. chose (chōz), cho·sen (chō'zæn), choos·ing, choos·es.

— v. tr. 1. To select from a number of possible alternatives; decide on and pick out. 2. a. To prefer above others: chooses the supermarket over the neighborhood grocery store. b. To determine or decide: chose to fly rather than drive. — v. intr. To make a choice; make a selection: was used to doing as she chose.

— phrasal verb. choose up. To choose players and form sides or teams for a game, such as baseball or softball. [Middle English chesen, from Old English cēosan. See geus- in Appendix.] — choos'er n.

SYNONYMS: choose, select, elect, pick. These verbs mean to make a choice from a number of possibilities. Choose implies the use of judgment in taking one of several persons, things, or courses of action: “We do not choose survival as a value;

it chooses us” (B.F. Skinner). Select stresses fastidiousness in choosing from a wide variety: Four skiers will be selected to represent each country. Elect strongly suggests deliberation in making a selection, usually between alternatives: I elected not to go. Pick, like select, indicates care in choosing: “Not only do I knock ’em out, I pick the round” (Muhammad Ali).

choos·y also choos·ey (chōō’zē) adj. choos·i·er, choos·i·est. Very careful in choosing; highly selective. —choos’i·ness n.

Cho O·yu (chō’ō-yōō’) A peak, 8,158.8 m (26,750 ft) high, of the central Himalaya Mountains on the Nepal-China border.

chop¹ (chǒp) v. chopped, chop·ping, chops. — v. tr. 1. a. To cut by striking with a heavy, sharp tool, such as an ax: chop wood. b. To shape or form by chopping: chop a hole in the ice. c. To cut into small pieces: chop onions; chop up meat. d. To curtail as if by chopping: chopped off his sentence midway; are going to chop expenses. 2. Sports. To hit or hit at with a short, swift downward stroke. — v. intr. 1. To make heavy, cutting strokes. 2. Archaic. To move roughly or suddenly. — n. 1. The act of chopping. 2. a. A swift, short, cutting blow or stroke. b. Sports. A short, downward stroke. 3. A piece that has been chopped off, especially a cut of meat, usually taken from the rib, shoulder, or loin and containing a bone. 4. a. A short, irregular motion of waves. b. An area of choppy water, as on an ocean. [Middle English choppen, probably variant of chappen, to split. See CHAP¹.]

chop² (chǒp) v. intr. chopped, chop·ping, chops. To change direction suddenly, as a ship in the wind. [Obsolete, to exchange, from Middle English choppen, to barter, bargain, variant of chapen, from Old English ceāpian, from cēap, bargain, trade. See CHEAP.]

chop³ (chǒp) n. 1. An official stamp or permit in the Far East. 2. a. A mark stamped on goods or coins to indicate their identity or quality. b. Quality; class: first chop. [Hindi chāp, seal.]

chop·chop (chǒp’chǒp’) adv. Informal. Right away; quickly. [Pidgin English, reduplication of chop, quick. See CHOPSTICK.]

chop·fall·en (chǒp’fô’lən) adj. Variant of chapfallen.

chop·house (chǒp’hous’) n. A restaurant that specializes in serving steaks and chops.

Cho·pin (shō-păn’, -păn’), Frédéric François. 1810-1849. Polish-born French composer and pianist of the romantic era. His music, written chiefly for the piano, is noted for its expressiveness.

Cho·pin (shō’păn’), Kate O’Flaherty. 1851-1904. American writer whose works, such as The Awakening (1899), portray Creole life in Louisiana.

cho·pine (chō-pēn', chō-, chōp'in) n. A woman's shoe worn in the 16th and 17th centuries that featured a very high, thick sole. [Obsolete French chapin, from Old Spanish, from chapa, plate, covering, from Old French. See CHAPE.]

chop·log·ic (chōp'lōj'ik) n. Complicated, often illogical or spurious argumentation. [From to chop logic, to bandy logic, from chop, to bandy, exchange. See CHOP².] —chop'log'ic adj.

chop·per (chōp'ər) n. 1. One that chops: a vegetable chopper. 2. A device that interrupts an electric current or a beam of radiation. 3. Informal. A helicopter.

4. choppers. Slang. Teeth, especially a set of false teeth. 5. Informal. A motorcycle, especially one that is customized. — v. intr. tr. chop·pered, chop·per·ing, chop·pers. Informal. To travel by helicopter or transport (someone or something) by helicopter.

chop·ping block (chōp'ing blōk) n. A wooden block on which food or wood is chopped.

chop·py¹ (chōp'ē) adj. chop·pi·er, chop·pi·est. 1. Having many small waves: choppy seas. 2. Marked by abrupt transitions; jerky: choppy prose. —chop'pi·ly adv. —chop'pi·ness n.

chop·py² (chōp'ē) adj. chop·pi·er, chop·pi·est. Abruptly shifting; variable. Used of the wind.

chops (chōps) pl.n. 1. The jaws. 2. a. The mouth. b. The lower cheeks or jowls. 3. Slang. The technical skill with which a jazz or rock musician performs. —idiom. slap (someone's) chops (or bust (someone's) chops). New England. 1. a. To scold or insult. b. To disappoint or defeat. 2. To hold (a building contractor) to the letter of an agreement. [; akin to Possibly akin to CHOP¹.]

chop shop (chōp shōp) n. Slang. A place where stolen cars are disassembled for parts that are then sold.

chop·stick (chōp'stik') n. One of a pair of slender sticks made especially of wood or ivory, held between the thumb and fingers and used as an eating utensil in Asian countries and in restaurants serving Asian food. Often used in the plural. [Pidgin English chop, quick (probably from Chinese (Cantonese) kuai) + STICK.]

chop su·ey (chōp sōō'ē) n. 1. A Chinese-American dish consisting of small pieces of meat or chicken cooked with bean sprouts and other vegetables and served with rice. 2. Informal. A miscellany: "His coterie of execs were up to their pin stripes in a chop suey of deals" (TV Guide). [Chinese (Cantonese) tsapsui, mixed pieces : Chinese (Mandarin) zá, mixed + Chinese (Mandarin) suì, to break up, pieces.]

cho·ra·gus (kə-rā'gəs) n. pl. cho·ra·gi (-jī'). 1. One who undertook the expense of providing the chorus in ancient Greek drama. 2. The leader of a group or movement. [Latin, from Greek choragos : choros, chorus; see gher¹ in Appendix + agein, to lead; see ag- in Appendix.] —cho·rag'ic (-rāj'ik) adj.

cho·ral (kôr'əl, kōr'-) adj. Music. 1. Of or relating to a chorus or choir.

2. Performed or written for performance by a chorus. [Medieval Latin chorālis, from chorus, choral dance, from Latin. See CHORUS.] —cho'ral·ly adv.

cho·rale also cho·ral (kə-räl', -räl') n. Music. 1. A Protestant hymn melody.

2. A harmonized hymn, especially one for organ. 3. A chorus or choir. [German, short for Choralgesang, choral song, translation of Medieval Latin cantus chorālis. See CHORAL.]

chorale prelude (kə-räl' prēl'yōōd') n. Music. A composition usually for organ, chiefly in baroque style and characterized by an elaborate contrapuntal structure based on the melody of a hymn or chorale.

choral speaking (kôr'əl spē'king) n. Recitation of poetry or prose by a chorus.

chord¹ (kôrd, kōrd) n. 1. Music. A combination of three or more usually concordant tones sounded simultaneously. 2. Harmony, as of color. — v.

chord·ed, chord·ing, chords. — v. intr. 1. To be in accord; agree. 2. Music. To play chords on an instrument. — v. tr. 1. Music. To play chords on. 2. To harmonize. [Alteration (influenced by chord, musical instrument string); see CHORD², of Middle English cord, from accord, agreement, from Old French acorde, from acorder, to agree. See ACCORD.]

chord² (kôrd, kōrd) n. 1. A line segment that joins two points on a curve. 2. A straight line connecting the leading and trailing edges of an airfoil. 3. Anatomy. Variant of cord (n., sense 5). 4. An emotional feeling or response: Her words struck a sympathetic chord in her audience. 5. Archaic. The string of a musical instrument. [Alteration of CORD.]

chord·al (kôr'dl) adj. Music. 1. Of or relating to the strings of an instrument. 2. Relating to or consisting of a harmonic chord. 3. Giving prominence to harmonic rather than contrapuntal structure: chordal music.

chor·date (kôr'dāt', -dīt) n. Any of numerous animals belonging to the phylum Chordata, having at some stage of development a dorsal nerve cord, a notochord, and gill slits and including all vertebrates and certain marine animals, such as the lancelets. [From New Latin Chordāta, phylum name, from Latin chorda, cord. See CORD.]

chord organ (kôrd ôr'gən) n. Music. An electronic or reed organ equipped with buttons for producing chords.

chore (chôr, chōr) n. 1. A routine or minor duty. See Synonyms at task.

2. chores. a. Daily or routine domestic tasks. b. The routine morning and evening tasks of a farmer, such as the feeding of livestock. 3. An unpleasant or burdensome task. [Variant of CHAR³.]

-chore suff. A plant distributed by a specified agency: zoochore. [From Greek khōrein, to spread about. See ghē- in Appendix.]

cho·re·a (kô-rē'ə, kō-) n. Any of various disorders of the nervous system marked by uncontrollable and irregular muscle movements, especially of the arms, legs, and face. [New Latin chorea (Sancti Viti), (St. Vitus') dance, from Latin chorēa, from Greek khoreia, choral dance, from khoros. See CHORUS.]

cho·re·o·graph (kôr'ē-ə-grăf', kōr'-) v. cho·re·o·graphed, cho·re·o·graph·ing, cho·re·o·graphs. — v. tr. 1. To create the choreography of: choreograph a ballet. 2. To plan out or oversee the movement, development, or details of; orchestrate: advance people who choreographed the candidate's whistle-stop tour. — v. intr. To specialize in choreography. — cho're-og'ra-pher (-ög'rə-fər) n.

cho·re·og·ra·phy (kôr'ē-ög'rə-fē, kōr'-) n. pl. cho·re·og·ra·phies.

1. a. The art of creating and arranging dances or ballets. b. A work created by this art. 2. Something, such as a situation or series of situations or a plan or series of plans, likened to dance arrangements: "There are times when the choreography of frustration and violence seems rather too rich" (John Simon). [French chorégraphie: Greek khoreia, choral dance; see CHOREA + -graphie, writing (from Latin -graphia, -graphy).] — cho're-o-graph'ic (-ə-grăf'ik) adj.

— cho're-o-graph'i-cal·ly adv.

cho·ri·amb (kôr'ē-ămb', -ăm', kōr'-) n. 1. A metrical foot consisting of a trochee followed by an iamb, much used in Greek and Latin poetry. 2. A foot of verse used in lyric poetry having two unstressed syllables flanked by the two rhythmic stresses marking the first and last syllables of the foot. [Late Latin choriambus, from Greek khoriambos: khoreios, of a chorus (from khoros, chorus); see CHORUS + iambos, iamb.] — cho'ri-am'bic (-ăm'bik) adj.

cho·ric (kôr'ik, kōr'-, kōr'-) adj. Of or relating to a chorus. [Late Latin choricus, from Greek khorikos, from khoros, choral dance. See gher-¹ in Appendix.]

cho·rine (kôr'ēn', kōr'-) n. A chorus girl. [CHOR(US) + -INE¹.]

cho·ri·o·al·lan·to·is (kôr'ē-ō'ə-lăn'tō-ïs, kōr'-) n. Embryology. The highly vascular fetal membrane that consists of the fused chorion and allantois, found adjacent to the eggshell in reptiles and birds and constituting the placenta in most mammals. — cho'ri-o-al'lan-to'ic (-ō-ăl'an-tō'ik) adj.

cho·ri·oid (kôr'ē-oid', kōr'-) n. & adj. Variant of choroid. [Greek khorioeidēs, like an afterbirth: khorion, afterbirth + -oeidēs, -oid.]

cho·ri·on (kôr'ē-ōn', kōr'-) n. Embryology. The outer membrane enclosing the embryo in reptiles, birds, and mammals. In placental mammals it contributes to the development of the placenta. [Greek khorion. See gherə- in Appendix.]

— cho'ri-on'ic (-ōn'ik) adj.

chorionic villus (kôr'ē-ōn'ik vīl'əs) n. One of the minute vascular projections of the fetal chorion that combines with maternal uterine tissue to form the placenta.

chorionic villus sampling (kôr'ē-ôn'ik vîl'əs sām'plîng) n. A prenatal test to detect birth defects that is performed at an early stage of pregnancy and involves retrieval and examination of tissue from the chorionic villi. Also called chorionic villus biopsy cho-ri-pet-al-ous (kôr'ə-pět'l-əs, kôr'-) adj. Having separate petals; polypetalous. [Greek khôri, khôris, apart; see ghē- in Appendix + PETALOUS.]

cho-ris-ter (kôr'î-stər, kôr'-, kôr'-) n. Music. 1. A singer in a choir, especially a choirboy or choirgirl. 2. A leader of a choir. [Middle English queristre, from Anglo-Norman cueristre*, from Medieval Latin chorista, from chorus, chorus, from Latin, choral dance. See CHORUS.]

cho-ri-zo (chə-rē'zō, -sō) n. pl. cho-ri-zos. A very spicy pork sausage seasoned especially with garlic. [Spanish.]

C-ho-ri-zon (sē'hə-rî'zən) n. The third-deepest soil zone in ABC soil, unaltered by weathering and made up of the parent rock from which the two uppermost layers derive as well as other mineral materials.

Chor-ley (chôr'lē) A municipal borough of northwest England west-northwest of Manchester. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 54,700.

cho-rog-ra-phy (kə-rŏg'rə-fē) n. 1. The technique of mapping a region or district. 2. A description or map of a region. [Latin chōrographia, from Greek khōrographia : khōros, place; see ghē- in Appendix + -graphia, -graphy.]

—cho-rog'ra-pher n. —cho'ro-graph'ic (kôr'ə-grăf'ik, kôr'-), cho'ro-graph'i-cal adj. —cho'ro-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

cho-roid (kôr'oid', kôr'-) or cho-ri-oid (kôr'ē-oid', kôr'-) n. The dark-brown vascular coat of the eye between the sclera and the retina. Also called choroid coat, choroid membrane. — adj. 1. Resembling the chorion; membranous. 2. Of or relating to the choroid. [From Greek khoroieidēs, like an afterbirth, alteration of khorioeidēs : khorion, afterbirth; see CHORION + -oeidēs, -oid.]

Chor-ri-l-los (chô-rē'lōs) A city of west-central Peru, a residential suburb of Lima. Population, 141,881.

chor-tle (chôr'tl) n. A snorting, joyful laugh or chuckle. — v. intr. tr.

chor-tled, chor-ting, chor-tles. To utter a chortle or express with a chortle.

[Blend of CHUCKLE, and SNORT.] —chor'tler n.

WORD HISTORY: “‘O frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!’ He chortled in his joy.” Perhaps Lewis Carroll would chortle a bit himself to find that people are still using the word chortle, which he coined in Through the Looking-Glass, published in 1872. In any case, Carroll had constructed his word well, combining the words chuckle and snort to create it. This type of word is called a blend or a portmanteau word. In Through the Looking-Glass Humpty Dumpty uses portmanteau to describe the word slithy, saying, “It’s like a portmanteau—there are two meanings packed up into one word” (the meanings being “lithe” and “slimy”).

cho·rus (kôr'əs, kōr'-) n. pl. cho·rus·es. 1. Music. a. A composition in four or more parts written for a large number of singers. b. A refrain in which an audience joins a soloist in a song. c. A repeat of the opening statement of a popular song played by the whole group. d. A solo section based on the main melody of a popular song and played by a member of the group. e. A body of singers who perform choral compositions. f. A body of vocalists and dancers who support the soloists and leading performers in operas, musical comedies, and revues. 2. a. A group of persons who speak or sing in unison a given part or composition in drama or poetry recitation. b. An actor in Elizabethan drama who recites the prologue and epilogue to a play and sometimes comments on the action. 3. a. A group of masked dancers who performed ceremonial songs at religious festivals in early Greek times. b. The group in a classical Greek drama whose songs and dances present an exposition of or, in later tradition, a disengaged commentary on the action. c. The portion of a classical Greek drama consisting of choric dance and song. 4. A group or performer in a modern drama serving a purpose similar to the Greek chorus. 5. The performers of a choral ode, especially a Pindaric ode. 6. a. A speech, song, or other utterance made in concert by many people. b. A simultaneous utterance by a number of people: a chorus of jeers from the bystanders. c. The sounds so made. — v. tr. intr. cho·rused or cho·rused, cho·rus·ing or cho·rus·sing, cho·rus·es or cho·rus·ses. To sing or utter in or as if in chorus. — idiom. in chorus. All together; in unison.

[Latin, choral dance, from Greek choros. See gher¹ in Appendix.]

chorus girl (kôr'əs gûrl) n. A young woman who dances in a theatrical chorus. -chory suff. Plant dispersal by a specified agency: zoochory.

Cho·rów (hō'zhōwf) A city of southern Poland northwest of Katowice. It is a mining center. Population, 144,200.

chose¹ (chōz) v. Past tense of choose.

chose² (shōz) n. Law. An item of personal property; a chattel. [French, from Latin causa, thing, case, reason.]

cho·sen (chō'zən) v. Past participle of choose. — adj. 1. Selected from or preferred above others: the chosen few. 2. Having been selected by God; elect. — n. pl. chosen. 1. One of the elect. 2. The elect considered as a group.

Cho·sen (chō'sĕn') A name used for Korea since the second millennium B.C.

chott also shott (shōt) n. 1. The depression surrounding a salt marsh or lake, especially in North Africa. 2. The bed of a dried salt marsh. [French, from Arabic ṣaṭṭ.]

Chou (jō) See Zhou.

chou·croute (shōō·krōōt') n. An Alsatian dish of sauerkraut with wine, sausages, pork, and juniper berries. [French choucroute (garnie), (garnished)] sauerkraut, alteration (influenced by chou, cabbage, from Latin caulis), of German dialectal sûrkrût: Old High German sûr, sour + Old High German krût, cabbage, kraut.]

Chou En-lai (jō' ěn-lī') See Zhou Enlai.

chough (chŭf) n. A crowlike Old World bird of the genus Pyrhocorax, especially P. pyrrhocorax, having black plumage and red legs. [Middle English.]

chow¹ (chou) n. Any of a breed of heavy-set dog originating in China, having a long, dense, reddish-brown or black coat and a blue-black tongue. Also called chow chow [Possibly from Chinese (Cantonese) gōu, dog.]

chow² (chou) Slang. n. Food; victuals. — v. intr. chowed, chow-ing, chows. To eat: chowed down on the meat and potatoes. [Possibly from Chinese (Cantonese) zab, food, miscellany, from Chinese (Mandarin) zá, mixed.]

Chow (jō) See Zhou.

chow chow (chou chou) n. See chow¹.

chow-chow (chou'chou') n. 1. A Chinese preserve of fruits, peels, and ginger.

2. A relish consisting of chopped vegetables pickled in mustard. [Pidgin English, possibly reduplication of Chinese (Cantonese) zab, food, mixture. See CHOW².]

chow-der (chou'dər) n. 1. A thick soup containing fish or shellfish, especially clams, and vegetables, such as potatoes and onions, in a milk or tomato base.

2. A soup similar to this seafood dish: corn chowder. [French chaudière, stew pot, from Old French, from Late Latin caldāria. See CALDRON.]

chow-hound (chou'hound') n. Slang. A person who enjoys eating.

chow line (chou līn) n. Slang. A line of people waiting for food, as in a cafeteria.

chow mein (chou' mān') n. A Chinese-American dish consisting of a combination of stewed vegetables and meat served over fried noodles. [Chinese (Mandarin) chǎo miàn: chǎo, to stir-fry + miàn, noodles.]

Chr abbr. Bible. Chronicles.

Chr. abbr. Christ; Christian.

chres-ard (krēs'ərd) n. Water present in the soil and available for plant absorption. [Greek khṛēsis, use (from khṛēsthai, to use); see gher-² in Appendix + Greek ardein, to water.]

Chrés-tien de Troyes also Chrét-tien de Troyes (krā-tyān' də trwä'), fl.

1170. French trouvère who wrote the earliest surviving Arthurian romances, including Perseval, the first work to incorporate the quest for the Holy Grail into an Arthurian tale.

chres-tom-a-thy (krě-stōm'ə-thē) n. pl. chres-tom-a-thies. 1. A selection of literary passages, usually by one author. 2. An anthology used in studying a language. [Greek khṛēstomatheia: khṛēstos, useful (from khṛēsthai, to use); see gher-² in Appendix + -matheia, body of learning (from manthanein, math-, to learn); see mendh- in Appendix.] —chres'to-math'ic (krēs'tə-măth'ik) adj.

Chrétien (krā-tyǎN'), Jean. Born 1934. Canadian politician who was elected prime minister in 1993.

Chrétien de Troyes (krā-tyǎN' də trwä') See Chrétien de Troyes.

chrism (krīz'əm) n. Ecclesiastical. 1. A consecrated mixture of oil and balsam, used for anointing in church sacraments such as baptism and confirmation. Also called holy oil. 2. A sacramental anointing, especially upon confirmation into the Eastern Orthodox Church. [Middle English crisme, chrism, chrisom, from Old English crisma, from Latin chrīisma, from Greek khrisma, an anointing, from khriein, to anoint. See ghrēi- in Appendix.] —chris'mal (krīz'məl) adj.

chris-om (krīz'əm) n. 1. A white cloth or robe worn by an infant at baptism. 2. Archaic. An infant wearing a baptismal robe; a baby. [Middle English crisom, variant of crisme, chrisom, chrism. See CHRISM.]

chrisom child (krīz'əm child) n. Archaic. An infant that dies before one month of age.

Christ (krīst) n. Abbr. Chr. 1. The Messiah, as foretold by the prophets of the Old Testament. 2. Jesus. 3. Christian Science. “The divine manifestation of God, which comes to the flesh to destroy incarnate error” (Mary Baker Eddy). [Middle English Crist, from Old English Crīst, from Latin Chrīstus, from Greek Khristos, from khristos, anointed, from khriein, to anoint. See ghrēi- in Appendix.]

—Christ'like' adj. —Christ'like'ness n. —Christ'li-ness n. —Christ'ly adj.

Christ-church (krīst'chûrch') A city of eastern South Island, New Zealand, near the Pacific coast. It is an important manufacturing center. Population, 161,700.

chris-ten (krīs'ən) v. tr. chris-tened, chris-ten-ing, chris-tens. 1. a. To baptize into a Christian church. b. To give a name to at baptism. 2. a. To name: christened the kitten “Snowball.” b. To name and dedicate ceremonially: christen a ship. 3. To use for the first time: christened the new car by going for a drive. [Middle English cristnen, from Old English cristnian, from cristen, Christian. See CHRISTIAN.]

Chris-ten-dom (krīs'ən-dəm) n. 1. Christians considered as a group. 2. The Christian world. [Middle English Cristendom, from Old English cristendōm: cristen, Christian; see CHRISTIAN + -dom, -dom.]

chris-ten-ing (krīs'ə-nīŋ) n. The Christian sacrament of baptizing and naming an infant.

Chris-tian (krīs'chən) adj. 1. Professing belief in Jesus as Christ or following the religion based on the life and teachings of Jesus. 2. Relating to or derived from Jesus or Jesus's teachings. 3. Manifesting the qualities or spirit of Jesus; Christlike. 4. Relating to or characteristic of Christianity or its adherents. 5. Showing a loving concern for others; humane. — n. Abbr. Chr. 1. One who professes belief in Jesus as Christ or follows the religion based on the life and teachings of Jesus. 2. One who lives according to the teachings of Jesus. [Middle English Cristen, from Old English cristen, from Latin Christiānus, from Greek Khristianos, from Khristos, Christ. See CHRIST.] —Chris'tian-ly adj. & adv.

Chris-tian X (krɪs'chən), 1870-1947. King of Denmark (1912-1947) noted for his passive resistance to the Nazi occupation of Denmark in World War II.

Christian Brother (krɪs'chən brʊθ'ər) n. Roman Catholic Church. A member of the order of Brothers of the Christian Schools that was founded in France in 1684 by Saint Jean Baptiste de la Salle (1651-1719) and is dedicated primarily to education.

Christian era (krɪs'chən îr'ə) n. The period beginning with the birth of Jesus.

chris-ti-an-i-a (krɪs'tē-än'ē-ə, -ä'nē-ə, krɪs'chē-) n. Sports. A christie. [Norwegian, after Christiania (Oslo), Norway.]

Chris-ti-a-ni-a (krɪs'tē-än'ē-ə, -ä'nē-ə, krɪs'chē-) See Oslo.

Chris-ti-an-i-ty (krɪs'chē-än'ī-tē, krɪs'tē-) n. pl. Chris-ti-an-i-ties. 1. The Christian religion, founded on the life and teachings of Jesus. 2. Christians as a group; Christendom. 3. The state or fact of being a Christian.

Chris-tian-ize (krɪs'chə-nīz') v. tr. Chris-tian-ized, chris-tian-iz-ing, Chris-tian-iz-es. To convert (another) to Christianity; make Christian.

—Chris'tian-i-za'tion (-chə-nī-zā'shən) n. —Chris'tian-iz'er n.

Christian name (krɪs'chən nām) n. 1. A name given at baptism or confirmation. 2. A name that precedes a person's family name, especially the first name.

Christian Science (krɪs'chən sī'əns) n. Abbr. CS The church and the religious system founded by Mary Baker Eddy, emphasizing healing through spiritual means as an important element of Christianity and teaching pure divine goodness as underlying the scientific reality of existence. Also called Church of Christ, Scientist —Christian Scientist n.

Chris-tian-sted (krɪs'chən-stəd') The chief city of St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands. Tourism is the leading industry. Population, 2,846.

chris-tie or chris-ty (krɪs'tē) n. pl. chris-ties. Sports. A usually high-speed ski turn used for changing the direction of descent or stopping, performed by shifting the weight forward and turning with the skis kept parallel. [Short for CHRISTIANIA.]

Chris-tie (krɪs'tē), Dame Agatha Mary Clarissa. 1890-1976. British writer of more than 70 detective novels, including The Murder of Roger Ackroyd (1926), And Then There Were None (1940), and The Pale Horse (1961).

Chris-ti-na (krɪ-stē'nə), 1626-1689. Queen of Sweden (1632-1654). A patron of learning and the arts, she unexpectedly abdicated her throne, embraced Roman Catholicism, and spent much of the rest of her life in Rome.

Christ-mas (krɪs'məs) n. 1. A Christian feast commemorating the birth of Jesus. 2. December 25, the day on which this feast is celebrated.

3. Christmastide. [Middle English Cristemas, from Old English Cristes mæsse, Christ's festival : Crīst, Christ; see CHRIST + mæsse, festival; see MASS.] —Christ/-mas-sy, Christ/mas-y adj.

Christmas berry (krīś'məs bĕr'ē) n. See toyon.

Christmas berry tree (krīś'məs bĕr'ē trē) n. See Brazilian pepper tree.

Christmas cactus (krīś'məs kăk'təs) n. An epiphytic cactus (Schlumbergera × bridgesii) of Brazilian ancestry, widely cultivated as a houseplant and having jointed flat segments with crenate margins and showy, often magenta or rose-purple flowers that bloom in winter.

Christmas card (krīś'məs kărd) n. A greeting card sent at Christmas to express good will.

Christmas club (krīś'məs klŭb) n. A savings account, as in a bank, requiring periodic deposits to ensure money for shopping at Christmas.

Christmas disease (krīś'məs dī-zēz') n. A type of hemophilia that is caused by a deficiency of factor IX. [After Stephen Christmas, a 20th-century British boy who was first diagnosed with it.]

Christmas Eve (krīś'məs ēv) n. 1. The evening before Christmas. 2. The day before Christmas.

Christmas fern (krīś'məs fŭrn) n. A North American evergreen fern (Polystichum acrostichoides) having pinnate leaves and dense clusters of lance-shaped fronds. Also called canker brake, dagger fern.

Christmas Island (krīś'məs ī'lənd) 1. An Australian-administered island in the eastern Indian Ocean south of Java. It was annexed by Great Britain in 1888 and came under Australian sovereignty in 1958. 2. The largest of the Line Islands in the central Pacific Ocean near the equator. Discovered by James Cook in 1777, the island is now part of Kiribati.

Christmas rose (krīś'məs rōz) n. A European perennial evergreen herb (Helleborus niger) cultivated for its white or pinkish flowers that bloom in winter.

Christ-mas-tide (krīś'məs-tīd') n. A Christian festival observed from December 24, Christmas Eve, to January 5, the eve of Epiphany.

Christ-mas-time (krīś'məs-tīm') n. The season of Christmas.

Christmas tree (krīś'məs trē) n. An evergreen or artificial tree decorated, as with lights and ornaments, during the Christmas season.

Chris-to-gram (krīś'tə-grăm') n. See Chi-Rho.

Chris-tol-o-gy (krī-stōl'ə-jē) n. pl. Chris-tol-o-gies. 1. The theological study of the person and deeds of Jesus. 2. A doctrine or theory based on Jesus or Jesus's teachings. —Chris'to-log'i-cal (krīś'tə-lŏj'ī-kəl) adj.

Chris-tophe (krē-stōf'), Henri. 1767-1820. King of Haiti (1811-1820) who before proclaiming himself monarch had been instrumental in the liberation of Haiti from France (1804).

Chris-to-pher (krīś'tə-fēr), Saint. fl. third century A.D. Christian martyr often depicted as a giant who converted to Christianity and thereafter devoted himself to carrying travelers across a river. His feast, July 25, was dropped from the Catholic liturgical calendar in 1969.

Christ's thorn (krīsts thôrn) also Christ-thorn (krīst'thôrn') n. 1. Either of two similar and related Old World spiny shrubs (Ziziphus spina-christi or Paliurus spina-christi) popularly believed to have been used for Jesus's crown of thorns.

2. Any of several other plants, such as the crown-of-thorns.

chris-ty (krīs'tē) n. Sports. Variant of christie.

Chris-ty (krīs'tē), Edwin Pearce. 1815-1862. American showman whose troupe, Christy's Minstrels, developed the standard minstrel show format.

Chris-ty (krīs'tē), Howard Chandler. 1873-1952. American artist noted for his portraits of political figures, including Calvin Coolidge and Benito Mussolini.

chrom- pref. Variant of chromo-.

chro-ma (krō'mə) n. The aspect of color in the Munsell color system by which a sample appears to differ from a gray of the same lightness or brightness and that corresponds to saturation of the perceived color. [Greek chrōma, color.]

chro-ma-f-fin (krō'mə-fīn) adj. Readily stained with chromium salts: chromaffin cells of the adrenal medulla. [German : Chrom, chromium (from French chrome); see CHROME + Latin affīnis, related; see AFFINED.]

chromat- pref. Variant of chromato-.

chro-mate (krō'māt') n. A salt or ester of chromic acid.

chro-mat-ic (krō-măt'ik) adj. 1. a. Relating to colors or color. b. Relating to color perceived to have a saturation greater than zero. 2. Music. a. Of, relating to, or based on the chromatic scale. b. Relating to chords or harmonies based on nonharmonic tones. [Greek chrōmatikos, from chrōma, khromāt-, color.]

—chro-mat'i-cal-ly adv. —chro-mat'i-cism (-sīz'əm) n.

chromatic aberration (krō-măt'ik äb'ə-rā'shən) n. Color distortion in an image produced by a lens, caused by the inability of the lens to bring the various colors of light to focus at a single point.

chro-ma-tic-i-ty (krō'mə-tīs'i-tē) n. The aspect of color that includes consideration of its dominant wavelength and purity.

chro-mat-ics (krō-măt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The scientific study of color. —chro'ma-tist (-mə-tīst) n.

chromatic scale (krō-măt'ik skāl) n. Music. A scale consisting of 12 semitones.

chro-ma-tid (krō'mə-tīd) n. Either of the two daughter strands of a duplicated chromosome that are joined by a single centromere and separate during cell division to become individual chromosomes.

chro-ma-tin (krō'mə-tīn) n. A complex of nucleic acids and proteins in the cell nucleus that stains readily with basic dyes and condenses to form chromosomes during cell division. —chro'ma-tin'ic adj.

chromato- or chromat- pref. 1. Color: chromatophore. 2. Chromatin: chromatolysis. [Greek khṛōma, khṛōmat-, color.]

chromatogram (krō-măt'ə-grām') n. The pattern of separated substances obtained by chromatography.

chromatograph (krō-măt'ə-grăf') n. An instrument that produces a chromatogram. — v. tr. chromatographed, chromatographing, chromatographs. To separate and analyze by chromatography.

—chromat'ographic adj. —chromat'ographic'ly adv.

chromatography (krō'mə-tŏg'rə-fē) n. Any of various techniques for the separation of complex mixtures that rely on the differential affinities of substances for a gas or liquid mobile medium and for a stationary adsorbing medium through which they pass, such as paper, gelatin, or magnesia.

—chromatog'rapher n.

chromatolysis (krō'mə-tŏl'ī-sīs) n. Biology. The dissolution or disintegration of chromophil material, such as chromatin, within a cell.

—chromat'olytic (-măt'l-īt'ik) adj.

chromatophilic (krō-măt'ə-fil'ik) adj. Staining readily. Used of a cell or cell structure.

chromatophore (krō-măt'ə-fŏr', -fŏr') n. Biology. 1. A pigment-containing or pigment-producing cell, especially in certain lizards, that by expansion or contraction can change the color of the skin. Also called pigment cell 2. A specialized pigment-bearing organelle in certain photosynthetic bacteria and cyanobacteria. —chromat'ophoric (-fŏr'ik, -fŏr'-) adj.

chrome (krŏm) n. 1. a. Chromium or a chromium alloy. b. Something plated with a chromium alloy. 2. A pigment containing chromium. — v. tr.

chromed, chroming, chromes. 1. To plate with chromium. 2. To tan or dye with a chromium compound. [French, from Greek khṛōma, color (from the brilliant colors of chromium compounds).]

-chrome suff. 1. Colored: polychrome. 2. Color; pigment: urochrome. [From Greek khṛōma, color.]

chrome alum (krŏm ăl'əm) n. A violet-red crystalline compound, $\text{CrK}(\text{SO}_4)_2 \cdot 12\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in tanning, as a mordant, and in photography.

chrome green (krŏm grĕn) n. 1. Any of a class of green pigments consisting of chrome yellow and iron blue in various proportions. 2. Color. A very dark yellowish green to moderate or strong green.

chrome red (krŏm rĕd) n. A light orange to red pigment consisting of basic lead chromate, PbCrO_4 , with varying amounts of lead oxide, PbO .

chrome yellow (krŏm yĕl'ŏ) n. Lead chromate, PbCrO_4 , a yellow pigment often combined with lead sulfate, PbSO_4 , for lighter hues.

chromic (krŏ'mik) adj. Of, relating to, or containing chromium, especially with valence 3.

chromic acid (krō'mīk äs'īd) n. 1. A corrosive, oxidizing acid, H_2CrO_4 , occurring only as salts or in solution. 2. The anhydride of chromic acid, CrO_3 , a purplish crystalline material that reacts explosively with reducing agents and is used in chromium plating, as an oxidizing agent, and to color glass and rubber.

chromic oxide (krō'mīk òk'sīd') n. A bright-green crystalline powder, Cr_2O_3 , used in metallurgy and as a paint pigment.

chromite (krō'mīt') n. A widely distributed black to brownish-black chromium ore, $FeCr_2O_4$.

chromium (krō'mē-əm) n. Symbol Cr A lustrous, hard, steel-gray metallic element, resistant to tarnish and corrosion and found primarily in chromite. It is used as a catalyst, to harden steel alloys and produce stainless steels, in corrosion-resistant decorative platings, and as a pigment in glass. Atomic number 24; atomic weight 51.996; melting point $1,890^\circ C$; boiling point $2,482^\circ C$; specific gravity 7.18; valence 2, 3, 6. [From French chrome. See CHROME.]

chromo- or chrom- pref. 1. Color: chromoplast. 2. Chromium: chromous. [From Greek khrōma, color.]

chromodynamics (krō'mō-dī-nām'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The physics of the relationship between color-carrying quarks, especially the nature of their strong interaction, which is characterized by the exchange of gluons.

chromogen (krō'mə-jən) n. 1. Chemistry. A substance capable of conversion into a pigment or dye. 2. Biology. A strongly pigmented or pigment-generating organelle, organ, or microorganism. —chromogenic (-jən'īk) adj.

chromolithograph (krō'mə-līth'ə-gräf') n. A colored print produced by chromolithography.

chromolithography (krō'mə-lī-thŏg'rə-fē) n. The art or process of printing color pictures from a series of stone or zinc plates by lithography. —chromolithographer n. —chromolithographic (-līth'ə-gräf'īk) adj.

chromomere (krō'mə-mīr') n. One of the serially aligned beadlike granules of concentrated chromatin that constitutes a chromosome during the early phases of cell division. —chromomeric (-mēr'īk, -mīr'-) adj.

chromonema (krō'mə-nē'mə) n. pl. chromonemata (-mə-tə). The spirally coiled central filament of a chromatid along which the chromomeres are aligned. [CHROMO(SOME) + Greek nēma, thread; see (s)nē- in Appendix.] —chromomal (-nē'məl), chromomat'al (-nē-mät'l), chromomat'ic (-nə-mät'īk), chromomic (-nē'mīk) adj.

chromophil (krō'mə-fīl') adj. Readily stained with dyes: chromophil cells.

chromophore (krō'mə-fôr', -fōr') n. A chemical group capable of selective light absorption resulting in the coloration of certain organic compounds. —chromophoric (-fôr'īk, -fōr'-) adj.

chro·mo·plast (krō'mə-pläst') n. Botany. A plastid that contains pigments other than chlorophyll, usually yellow or orange carotenoids.

chro·mo·pro·tein (krō'mə-prō'tēn, -tē-ĭn) n. A conjugated protein, such as hemoglobin, that contains a colored, metal-containing prosthetic group, such as heme.

chro·mo·some (krō'mə-sōm') n. 1. A threadlike linear strand of DNA and associated proteins in the nucleus of animal and plant cells that carries the genes and functions in the transmission of hereditary information. 2. A circular strand of DNA in bacteria and cyanobacteria that contains the hereditary information necessary for cell life. —chro'mo·so'mal (-sō'məl), chro'mo·so'mic (-sō'mĭk) adj. —chro'mo·so'mal·ly adv.

chro·mo·sphere (krō'mə-sfĭr') n. 1. An incandescent, transparent layer of gas, primarily hydrogen, several thousand miles in depth, lying above and surrounding the photosphere of a star, such as the sun, but distinctly separate from the corona. 2. A gaseous layer similar to a chromosphere around a star.

—chro'mo·spher'ic (-sfĭr'ĭk, -sfēr'-) adj.

chro·mous (krō'məs) adj. Of, relating to, or containing chromium, especially with valence 2.

chron. abbr. 1. Chronicle. 2. Chronological. 3. Chronology.

Chron. abbr. Bible. Chronicles.

chron- pref. Variant of chrono-.

chro·nax·ie also chro·nax·y (krō'năk'sē, krŏn'ăk'-) n. pl. chro·nax·ies. The minimum interval of time necessary to electrically stimulate a muscle or nerve fiber, using twice the minimum current needed to elicit a threshold response. [French : Greek khronos, time + Greek axia, value (from axios, worthy); see ag- in Appendix.]

chron·ic (krŏn'ĭk) adj. 1. Of long duration; continuing: chronic money problems. 2. Lasting for a long period of time or marked by frequent recurrence, as certain diseases: chronic colitis. 3. Subject to a habit or pattern of behavior for a long time: a chronic liar. [French chronique, from Latin chronicus, from Greek khronikos, of time, from khronos, time.] —chron'i·cal·ly adv. —chro·nic'i·ty (krŏ-nĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

SYNONYMS: chronic, confirmed, habitual, inveterate. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having long had a habit or a disease”: a chronic complainer; a confirmed bachelor; a habitual cheat; an inveterate smoker.

chron·i·cle (krŏn'ĭ-kəl) n. 1. Abbr. chron. An extended account in prose or verse of historical events, sometimes including legendary material, presented in chronological order and without authorial interpretation or comment. 2. A detailed narrative record or report. 3. Chronicles. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr.

Chron., Chr A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. — v. tr. chron-i-cled, chron-i-cling, chron-i-cles. To record in or in the form of a historical record.

[Middle English cronicle, from Anglo-Norman, alteration of Old French cronique, from Latin chronica, from Greek khronika (biblia), chronological (books), annals, from khronikos, of time. See CHRONIC.] — chron'i-cler (-klər) n.

chronicle play (krɔ̃n'ī-kəl plā) n. A dramatization of historical material, especially any of the Elizabethan dramas based on the chronicle histories of England.

chrono- or chron- pref. Time: chronometer. [From Greek khronos, time.]

chron·o·bi·ol·o·gy (krɔ̃n'ō-bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. The study of the effects of time and rhythmical phenomena on life processes.

chron·o·gram (krɔ̃n'ə-grām', krō'nə-) n. 1. The record produced by a chronograph. 2. An inscribed phrase in which certain letters can be read as Roman numerals indicating a specific date. — chron'·o·gram·mat'ic (-grə-măt'ik)

adj. — chron'·o·gram·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

chron·o·graph (krɔ̃n'ə-grăf', krō'nə-) n. An instrument that registers or graphically records time intervals such as the duration of an event.

— chron'·o·graph'ic adj. — chron'·o·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

chronol. abbr. 1. Chronological. 2. Chronology.

chron·o·log·i·cal (krɔ̃n'ə-lɔ̃j'ī-kəl, krō'nə-) also chron·o·log·ic (-lɔ̃j'ik) adj.

Abbr. chron., chronol. 1. Arranged in order of time of occurrence. 2. Relating to or in accordance with chronology. — chron'·o·log'i·cal·ly adv.

chronological age (krɔ̃n'ə-lɔ̃j'ī-kəl āj) n. Abbr. CA, C.A. The number of years a person has lived, used especially in psychometrics as a standard against which certain variables, such as behavior and intelligence, are measured.

chro·nol·o·gy (krə-nɔ̃l'ə-jē) n. pl. chro·nol·o·gies. Abbr. chron., chronol.

1. The science that deals with the determination of dates and the sequence of events. 2. The arrangement of events in time. 3. A chronological list or table.

— chro·nol'·o·gist n.

chro·nom·e·ter (krə-nɔ̃m'ī-tər) n. An exceptionally precise timepiece.

— chron'·o·met'ric (krɔ̃n'ə-mět'rīk, krō'nə-), chron'·o·met'ri·cal adj.

— chron'·o·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

chro·nom·e·try (krə-nɔ̃m'ī-trē) n. The scientific measurement of time.

chron·o·scope (krɔ̃n'ə-sköp', krō'nə-) n. An optical instrument for the precise measurement of very small time intervals. — chron'·o·scop'ic (-sköp'ik)

adj.

chrys- pref. Variant of chryso-.

chrys·a·lid (krīs'ə-līd) n. A chrysalis. — adj. Relating to or resembling a chrysalis.

chrys·a·lis (krīs'ə-līs) n. pl. chrys·a·lis·es or chry·sal·i·des (krī-säl'ī-dēz'). A pupa, especially of a moth or butterfly, enclosed in a firm case or cocoon. [Latin chrȳsallis, from Greek khrusallis, khrusallid-, gold-colored pupa of a butterfly, from khrus-, chryso-.]

WORD HISTORY: “All that is gold does not glitter” we may say when confronted with khrus- or khruso-, the combining form of the Greek word khrusos, “gold.” We find this form, for example, in the Greek word khrusallis, “chrysalis,” which refers specifically to a gold-colored pupa. This Greek word gave us our chrysalis, first recorded in English in the 17th century. As Modern English chrys- or chryso- the Greek form khrus- or khruso- has also been used to make words that did not exist in Greek. Among the more interesting of these are chrysocracy, “rule of the wealthy,” and chrysotherapy, “the treatment of disease with gold compounds.”

chry·san·the·mum (krī-săn'thə-məm, -zăn'-) n. 1. Any of numerous, mostly Eurasian plants of the genus Chrysanthemum in the composite family, many of which are cultivated as ornamentals for their showy, radiate flower heads. 2. A flower head of one of these plants. [Latin chrȳsanthemum, from Greek khrusanthemon, gold flower : khrus-, chryso- + anthemon, flower (from anthos).]

chrys·el·e·phan·tine (krī-sěl'ə-făn'tēn', -tīn') adj. Made of gold and ivory, as certain pieces of sculpture or artwork in ancient Greece. [Greek khruselephantinos : khrus-, chryso- + elephas, elephant-, ivory; see ELEPHANT.]

Chrys·ler (krīs'lər), Walter Percy. 1875-1940. American automobile manufacturer who founded the Chrysler Corporation (1925).

chryso- or chrys- pref. Gold; golden: chrysotherapy. [Greek khrus-, khruso-, from khrusos, gold, of Semitic origin; akin to Hebrew ḥārûš.]

chrys·o·ber·yl (krīs'ə-bēr'əl) n. A gray, green to yellow, or brown vitreous mineral, BeAl_2O_4 , relatively rare and used as a gemstone. [Latin chrȳsobēryllus, from Greek khrusobērullos : khruso-, chryso- + bērullos, beryl; see BERYL.]

chrys·o·lite (krīs'ə-līt') n. See olivine. [Middle English crisolite, from Old French, from Medieval Latin crīsolitus, from Latin chrȳsolithus, from Greek khrusolithos, topaz : khruso-, chryso- + lithos, stone.]

chrys·o·mel·id (krīs'ə-měl'īd, -mē'līd) n. Any of various beetles of the family Chrysomelidae, which includes the Colorado potato beetle. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Chrysomelidae. [From New Latin Chrysomela, type genus, from Greek khrusomēlon, quince : khruso-, chryso- + mēlon, apple.]

chrys·o·prase (krīs'ə-prāz') n. An apple-green chalcedony used as a gemstone. [Middle English crisopase, from Old French crisopras, from Latin chrȳsoprasus, from Greek khrusoprasos : khruso-, chryso- + prason, leek; see PRASEODYMIUM.]

Chry·sos·tom (krīs'əs-təm, krī-sös'-), Saint John. A.D. 347?-407. Antioch-born Greek prelate. Made patriarch of Constantinople (398), he elegantly criticized the wealthy and powerful, earning himself the name Chrysostom, “golden-mouthed.”

chrysotherapy (krĭs'ō-thēr'ə-pē) n. The treatment of certain diseases, especially rheumatoid arthritis, with gold compounds.

chryso-tile (krĭs'ə-tĭl') n. A fibrous mineral variety of serpentine forming part of commercial asbestos. [German Chrysotil: Greek khruso-, chryso- + Greek tilos, something plucked (from tillein, to pluck).]

chthonic (thŏn'ĭk) also chthonian (thŏ'nĕ-ən) adj. Greek Mythology. Of or relating to the gods and spirits of the underworld. [From Greek khthonios, of the earth, from khthōn, earth. See dhghem- in Appendix.]

Chu (chōō) A river of southern Kazakhstan flowing about 1,126 km (700 mi) eastward into Issyk-Kul.

chub (chŭb) n. pl. chub or chubs. 1. Any of various freshwater fishes of the family Cyprinidae related to the carps and minnows, especially a Eurasian species, Leuciscus cephalus. 2. Any of various North American fishes, such as a freshwater whitefish of the genus Coregonus or a marine fish of the genus Kyphosus. [Middle English chubbe.]

chubby (chŭb'ē) adj. chubby-er, chubby-est. Rounded and plump. See Synonyms at fat. [Probably from CHUB (from the plumpness of the fish).] —chubby-ly adv. —chubby-ness n.

Chu-but (chə-bōōt', chōō-) A river rising in the Andes of southwest Argentina and flowing about 805 km (500 mi) eastward to the Atlantic Ocean.

chuck¹ (chŭk) v. tr. chucked, chuck-ing, chucks. 1. To pat or squeeze fondly or playfully, especially under the chin. 2. a. To throw or toss: chucked stones into the water. b. Informal. To throw out; discard: chucked my old sweater. c. Informal. To force out; eject: chucking out the troublemakers. 3. Informal. To give up; quit: chucked her job. — n. 1. An affectionate pat or squeeze under the chin. 2. A throw, toss, or pitch. [Variant of chock, possibly from French choc, knock, blow. See SHOCK¹.]

chuck² (chŭk) n. 1. A cut of beef extending from the neck to the ribs and including the shoulder blade. 2. a. A clamp that holds a tool or the material being worked in a machine such as a lathe. b. A clamping device for holding a drill bit. [Dialectal chuck, lump, perhaps variant of CHOCK.]

chuck³ (chŭk) v. intr. chucked, chuck-ing, chucks. To make a clucking sound. — n. A clucking sound. [Middle English chucken, of imitative origin.]

chuck-a-luck (chŭk'ə-lŭk') n. Games. A gambling game in which players bet on the possible combinations of three thrown dice. [Probably CHUCK¹ + LUCK.]

chuck-hole (chŭk'hŏl') n. See pothole (n., sense 1). [Probably from CHUCK¹.]

chuckle (chŭk'əl) v. intr. chuck-led, chuck-ling, chuck-les. 1. To laugh quietly or to oneself. 2. To cluck or chuck, as a hen. — n. A quiet laugh of mild amusement or satisfaction. [Probably frequentative of CHUCK³.] —chuck'ler n.

—chuck'le-some adj. —chuck'ling-ly (-lɪŋ-lē) adv.

chuck·le·head (chŭk'əl-hĕd') n. Informal. A stupid, gauche person; a block-head. [Possibly from CHUCK².] —chuck'le-head'ed adj.

chuck wagon (chŭk wăg'ən) n. A wagon equipped with food and cooking utensils, as on a ranch or in a lumber camp.

chuck·wal·la (chŭk'wəl'ə) n. A large herbaceous lizard (Sauromalus obesus) of the southwest United States and Mexico, related to the iguana. [American Spanish chacahuala, from Cahuilla tcáxxwal.]

chuck-will's-wid·ow (chŭk'wīlz-wīd'ō) n. A bird (Caprimulgus carolinensis) of the southern and central United States, resembling but larger than the whippoorwill. [Imitative of its call.]

chud·dar (chŭd'ər) n. 1. A chador. 2. A cotton shawl traditionally worn in India by men and women. [Urdu chaddar, cloth, from Sanskrit chattram, screen, parasol, from chadati, he covers, protects.]

chu·fa (chōō'fə) n. An Old World sedge (Cyperus esculentus var. sativus) having edible, nutlike tubers. [From Spanish chufar, to make fun of, alteration of chufar, to whistle, ridicule, from Vulgar Latin sufilāre*, alteration of Latin sibilāre, sīfilāre, to hiss, whistle at. See SIBILANT.]

chuff¹ (chŭf) n. A rude, insensitive person; a boor. [Middle English chuffe.]

chuff² (chŭf) v. intr. chuffed, chuf·fing, chuffs. To produce or move with noisy puffing or explosive sounds: “Switch engines chuffed impatiently in busy rail yards” (Robert Paul Jordan). — n. A noisy puffing or explosive sound, such as one made by a locomotive. [Imitative.]

chug (chŭg) n. A dull explosive sound, usually short and repeated, made by or as if by a laboring engine. — v. intr. chugged, chug·ging, chugs. 1. To make dull, explosive sounds. 2. To move or travel while making dull, explosive sounds. [Imitative.] —chug'ger n.

Chu·gach Mountains (chōō'gäch' moun'tənz, -găsh') A range of southern Alaska extending eastward from Cook Inlet to the Canadian border. Mount Marcus Baker, 4,018.7 m (13,176 ft), is the highest elevation.

chug·a·lug (chŭg'ə-lŭg') Slang. v. chug·a·lugged, chug·a·lug·ging, chug·a·lugs. — v. tr. To swallow the contents of (a container of beer, for example) without pausing. — v. intr. To swallow liquid, such as beer, without pausing. — adv. In continuous gulps: drank the beer chugalug. [Imitative.]

chu·kar (chə-kär') n. A Eurasian partridge (Alectoris graeca) with grayish-brown plumage and red legs and bill, introduced into western North America as a game bird. [Hindi cakor, from Sanskrit cakoraḥ.]

Chuk·chi also Chuk·chee (chōōk'chē) n. pl. Chukchi or Chuk·chis also Chukchee or Chuk·chees. 1. A member of a people of northeast Siberia.

2. The language of the Chukchi, noted for being pronounced differently by men and women. [Russian, pl. of chukcha, from Chukchi chawchaw.]

Chukchi Peninsula (chōōk'chē pə-nīn'syā-lə) A peninsula of extreme northeast Russia across the Bering Strait from northwest Alaska. It borders on the Chukchi Sea, a section of the Arctic Ocean.

Chu Kiang (chōō' kyäng', jōō' gyäng') See Zhu Jiang.

chuk·ka (chŭk'ə) n. A short, ankle-length boot, usually made of suede, having two or three pairs of eyelets. [Alteration of CHUKKER (so called because polo players wear a similar boot).]

chuk·ker also chuk·kar (chŭk'ər) n. Sports. One of the periods of play, lasting 72 minutes, in a polo match. [Hindi cakkar, circle, turn, from Sanskrit cakram. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.]

Chu-la Vis-ta (chōō'lə vīs'tə) A city of southern California south of San Diego. It is an industrial center. Population, 135,163.

Chu-lym also Chu-lim (chə-līm', chōō-) A river of south-central Russia flowing about 1,730 km (1,075 mi) north and west to the Ob River.

chum¹ (chŭm) n. An intimate friend or companion. — v. intr. chummed, chum·ming, chums. 1. a. To be an intimate friend. b. To display good-natured friendliness: chummed around with the other teammates. 2. To share the same room, as in a dormitory. [Perhaps short for chamber fellow, roommate.]

chum² (chŭm) n. Bait usually consisting of oily fish ground up and scattered on the water. — v. chummed, chum·ming, chums. — v. intr. To fish with such bait. — v. tr. To lure (fish) with such bait. [Origin unknown.]

chum³ (chŭm) n. A chum salmon.

Chu-mash (chōō'māsh) n. pl. Chumash or Chu-mash-es. 1. A group of Hokan-speaking Native American peoples formerly inhabiting the southern California coastal region around and the channel islands off Santa Barbara, with a small present-day population near Santa Barbara. 2. A member of any of these peoples.

chum·my (chŭm'ē) adj. chum·mi·er, chum·mi·est. Intimate; friendly. See Synonyms at familiar. — chum'·mi·ly adv. — chum'·mi·ness n.

chump¹ (chŭmp) n. A stupid or foolish person; a dolt. [Perhaps blend of CHUNK, and LUMP¹ or STUMP.]

chump² (chŭmp) v. tr. intr. chumped, chump·ing, chumps. To chew or make a chewing movement. [Variant of CHAMP¹.]

chum salmon (chŭm sām'ən) n. A Pacific salmon (Oncorhynchus keta) with minute specks on its back that is fished for food and sport. [Chinook Jargon cam, spotted, striped, from Lower Chinook c'áam(·), variegated.]

Chung-king (chōōng'kīng', jōōng'gīng') See Chongqing.

chunk (chŭngk) n. 1. A thick mass or piece: a chunk of ice. 2. Informal. A substantial amount: won quite a chunk of money. 3. A strong, stocky horse. — v.

chunked, chunk-ing, chunks. — v. tr. To form into chunks. — v. intr. To make a dull clacking sound: listened to the electronic printer chunk along. [Perhaps variant of CHUCK².]

chunk-y (chŭng/'kē) adj. chunk-i-er, chunk-i-est. 1. Short and thick; stocky.

2. Containing small, thick pieces: chunky peanut butter; chunky soup.

—chunk'i-ly adv. —chunk'i-ness n.

chun-nel (chŭn'əl) n. An underwater tunnel for the passage of motor vehicles, especially one under the English Channel. [CH(ANNEL)¹ + (T)UNNEL.]

church (chŭrch) n. Abbr. c., C., ch., Ch. 1. A building for public, especially Christian worship. 2. Often Church. a. The company of all Christians regarded as a mystic spiritual body. b. A specified Christian denomination: the Presbyterian Church. c. A congregation. 3. Public divine worship in a church; a religious service: goes to church at Christmas and Easter. 4. The clerical profession; clergy. 5. Ecclesiastical power as distinguished from the secular: the separation of church and state. 6. Christian Science. “The structure of Truth and Love” (Mary Baker Eddy). — v. tr. churched, church-ing, church-es. To conduct a church service for, especially to perform a religious service for (a woman after childbirth). — adj. Of or relating to the church; ecclesiastical. [Middle English chirche, from Old English cirice, ultimately from Medieval Greek kurikon, from Late Greek kuriakon (dōma), the Lord’s (house), from Greek kuriakos, of the lord, from kurios, lord. See keuə- in Appendix.]

Church (chŭrch), Frederick Edwin. 1826-1900. American painter and leader of the Hudson River School. His works include Heart of the Andes (1859).

church father or Church Father (chŭrch fä/'thər) n. Any of the authoritative early writers in the Christian church who formulated doctrines and codified religious observances.

church-go-er (chŭrch/'gō'ər) n. One who attends church. —church/go'ing adj. & n.

Chur-chill (chŭrch'chil', chŭrch'hil'), John First Duke of Marlborough. 1650-1722. English general and statesman during the reigns of James II, Anne, and George I. He is considered among history’s greatest military commanders.

Churchill, Mount. A peak, 4,769.6 m (15,638 ft) high, in the Wrangell Mountains of southern Alaska.

Chur-chill (chŭrch'chil', chŭrch'hil'), Randolph Henry Spencer. 1849-1895. British politician who led the so-called Fourth Party, a group of Conservative members of Parliament who advocated social and constitutional reform.

Chur-chill (chŭrch'chil', chŭrch'hil'), Winston. 1871-1947. American writer known for his popular historical romance novels, such as Richard Carvel (1899).

Chur-chill (chŭrch'chil', chŭrch'hil'), Sir Winston Leonard Spenser. 1874-1965. British politician and writer. As prime minister (1940-1945 and 1951-1955) he led Great Britain through World War II. Churchill published several works, including The Second World War (1948-1953), and won the 1953 Nobel Prize for literature. —Chur·chill/i·an (chûr-chîl'ē-ən) adj.

Churchill Falls (chûr'chîl' fôlz) Formerly Grand Falls (gränd). A waterfall, 74.7 m (245 ft) high, of the upper Churchill River in southwest Labrador, Canada. There is an enormous hydroelectric power plant at the falls.

Churchill River (chûr'chîl' rîv'ər) 1. A river of eastern Canada flowing about 965 km (600 mi) across Labrador to the Atlantic Ocean. 2. A river rising in northwest Saskatchewan, Canada, and flowing about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) eastward across Saskatchewan and northern Manitoba then northeast to Hudson Bay. It was once an important fur-trading route.

church key (chûrch kē) n. A can or bottle opener having a usually triangular head.

church·ly (chûrch'lē) adj. 1. Of or relating to a church. 2. Appropriate for or suggestive of a church: “aspires to the pure fragrance of churchly incense” (Martin Bernheimer). —church/li·ness n.

church·man (chûrch'mən) n. 1. A man who is a cleric. 2. A man who is a member of a church. —church/man·ly adj. —church/man·ship' n.

Church of Christ, Scientist (chûrch ÷v krîst sî'ən-tîst) n. See Christian Science.

Church of England (chûrch ÷v ïng'glənd) n. Abbr. C. of E. The episcopal and liturgical national church of England, which has its see in Canterbury.

Church of Jesus Christ of Lat-ter-day Saints (chûrch ÷v jē'zəs krîst ÷v lat'ər-dā' sānts) n. See Mormon Church.

Church of Rome (chûrch ÷v rōm) n. The Roman Catholic Church.

Church Slavonic (chûrch slə-vŏn'îk) n. See Old Church Slavonic.

church·war·den (chûrch'wôr'dn) n. 1. A lay officer in the Anglican Church chosen annually by the vicar or the congregation to handle the secular and legal affairs of the parish. 2. One of two elected chief lay officers of the vestry in the Episcopal Church.

church·wom·an (chûrch'wŏm'ən) n. 1. A woman who is a cleric. 2. A woman who is a member of a church.

church·y (chûr'chē) adj. church·i·er, church·i·est. 1. Conforming or adhering rigorously to the practices or creeds of a church. 2. Of, suitable for, or suggesting a church: “two... ladies in churchy hats sipping pale pink drinks” (Anne Tyler).

church·yard (chûrch'yärd') n. 1. A yard adjacent to a church, especially a cemetery. 2. The ground on which a church stands.

churl (chûrl) n. 1. A rude, boorish person. See Synonyms at boor. 2. A miserly person. 3. a. A ceorl. b. A medieval English peasant. [Middle English, from Old English ceorl, peasant.]

churl-ish (chûr'lish) adj. 1. Of, like, or befitting a churl; boorish or vulgar.

2. Having a bad disposition; surly: “as valiant as the lion, churlish as the bear” (Shakespeare). 3. Difficult to work with, such as soil; intractable.

—churl/ish-ly adv. —churl/ish-ness n.

churn (chûrn) n. A vessel or device in which cream or milk is agitated to separate the oily globules from the caseous and serous parts, used to make butter. —

v. churned, churn-ing, churns. — v. tr. 1. a. To agitate or stir (milk or cream) in order to make butter. b. To make by the agitation of milk or cream: churn butter. 2. To shake or agitate vigorously: wind churning up the piles of leaves. See Synonyms at agitate. 3. To buy and sell (a client's securities) frequently, especially in order to generate commissions. — v. intr. 1. To make butter by operating a device that agitates cream or milk. 2. To move with or produce great agitation: waves churning in the storm; so angry it made my stomach churn.

—phrasal verb. churn out. To produce in an abundant and automatic manner: churns out four novels a year. [Middle English chirne, from Old English cyrn, cyrin.] —churn'er n.

churr (chûr) n. The sharp whirring or trilling sound made by some insects and birds, such as the grasshopper and partridge. — v. intr. churred, churr-ing, churrs. To make a sharp whirring sound. [Imitative.]

Chur-ri-gue-resque (chöör'ÿ-gə-rěsk') adj. Of or relating to a style of baroque architecture of Spain and its Latin-American colonies, characterized by elaborate and extravagant decoration. [Spanish churrigueresco, after José Benito Churriguera (1665-1725), Spanish architect.]

chur-ro (chöör'ō) n. pl. chur-ros. A thick, coiled fritter of fried dough. [Spanish, perhaps from dialectal xurro, dirty, Valencian.]

chute (shōot) n. 1. An inclined trough, passage, or channel through or down which things may pass. 2. A waterfall or rapid. 3. A parachute, such as one for pilots or skydivers. — v. chut-ed, chut-ing, chutes. — v. tr. To convey or deposit by a chute. — v. intr. To go or descend by a chute. [French, a fall, alteration (influenced by chu, from Vulgar Latin cadūtum*, from cadēre*, to fall), of Old French cheoite, feminine past participle of cheoir, to fall, from Vulgar Latin cadēre*, from Latin cadere; see kad- in Appendix. Sense 3, short for PARACHUTE.]

Chu Teh (jōō' də') See Zhu De.

chute-the-chute (shōot'thə-shōot') n. Variant of shoot-the-chute.

chutist (shōō'tĭst) n. One who parachutes from an aircraft; a parachutist. [Short for PARACHUTIST.]

chut-ney (chüt'nē) n. A pungent relish made of fruits, spices, and herbs. [Hindi caṭnī.]

chutz-pah also hutz-pah (KHōōt'spə, hōōt'-) n. Utter nerve; effrontery: “has the chutzpah to claim a lock on God and morality” (New York Times). [Yiddish khutspe, from Late Hebrew ḥuṣpā.]

Chu·vash¹ (chōō-vāsh') n. pl. Chuvash or Chu·vash·es. 1. A member of a people located in the middle Volga River valley, chiefly in the Chuvash region.

2. The Turkic language spoken by the Chuvash. [Russian, from Chuvash čăvasă.]

Chu·vash² (chōō'vāsh', chyōō-vāsh') A region of western Russia in the Volga River valley. Conquered by the Mongols in the 13th and 14th centuries, it came under Russian rule in 1552.

chyle (kīl) n. A milky fluid consisting of lymph and emulsified fat extracted from chyme by the lacteals during digestion and passed to the bloodstream through the thoracic duct. [French, from Late Latin chylus, from Greek khulos, juice. See gheu- in Appendix.] —chy·la'ceous (kī-lā'ləs), chy'lous (kī'əs) adj.

chy·lo·mi·cron (kī'lō-mī'krōn') n. One of the microscopic particles of emulsified fat found in the blood and lymph and formed during the digestion of fats. [CHYL(E) + Greek mikron, small thing, from neuter of mikros, small.]

chyme (kīm) n. The thick semifluid mass of partly digested food that is passed from the stomach to the duodenum. [Middle English chime, humors, body fluids, from Old French, from Late Latin chymus, from Greek khumos, juice. See gheu- in Appendix.] —chy'mous (kī'məs) adj.

chy·mo·pa·pa·in (kī'mō-pə-pā'in, -pī'in) n. A proteolytic enzyme obtained from the fruit of the tropical tree Carica papaya that resembles papain and is used in the treatment of herniated intervertebral disks. [CHYM(E) + PAPAIN.]

chy·mo·sin (kī'mə-sīn) n. See rennin. [CHYM(E) + -OS(E)² + -IN.]

chy·mo·tryp·sin (kī'mə-trīp'sīn) n. A pancreatic digestive enzyme that catalyzes the hydrolysis of certain proteins in the small intestine into polypeptides and amino acids. [CHYM(E) + TRYPSIN.] —chy'mo·tryp'tic (-tīk) adj.

Ci abbr. 1. Cirrus. 2. Curie.

CI abbr. 1. Certificate of insurance. 2. Cost and insurance.

CIA abbr. Central Intelligence Agency.

CIAA abbr. Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Cia·no (chä'nō), Conte Galeazzo. 1903-1944. Italian fascist politician. Married (1930) to the daughter of Benito Mussolini, he urged Italy to join the Axis powers in World War II but later favored a separate peace with the Allies. Among those who called for Mussolini's resignation, he was tried for treason and executed on Mussolini's orders.

ciao (chou) interj. Used to express greeting or farewell. [Italian, from dialectal ciau, alteration of Italian (sono vostro) schiaivo, (I am your) slave, from Medieval Latin sclavus. See SLAVE.]

Ciar·di (chär'dē), John Anthony. 1916-1986. American poet and critic noted for his clear, ironic poetry, works of literary criticism, such as How Does a Poem Mean? (1960), and a translation of Dante's Divine Comedy (1954-1970).

Cib-ber (sĭb'ər), Colley. 1671-1757. English playwright and theatrical manager who wrote comedies such as The Careless Husband (1704) and was appointed poet laureate in 1730.

Ci-bo-la (sē'bə-lə) A vaguely defined historical region generally thought to be in present-day northern New Mexico. It included seven pueblos, the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola, which were sought by the earliest Spanish explorers for their supposed riches.

ci-bo-ri-um (sĭ-bôr'ē-əm, -bôr'-) n. pl. ci-bo-ri-a (-bôr'ē-ə, -bôr'-). 1. A vaulted canopy permanently placed over an altar. 2. A covered receptacle for holding the consecrated wafers of the Eucharist. [Medieval Latin cibōrium, from Latin, a drinking cup, from Greek kibōrion, probably of Egyptian origin.]

ci-ca-da (sĭ-kā'də, -kă'-) n. pl. ci-ca-das or ci-ca-dae (-dē'). Any of various insects of the family Cicadidae, having a broad head, membranous wings, and in the male a pair of resonating organs that produce a characteristic high-pitched, droning sound. Also called cicala [Middle English, from Latin cicāda.]

cicada killer (sĭ-kā'də kĭl'ər) n. A large wasp (Sphecius speciosus) that preys on cicadas.

ci-ca-la (sĭ-kă'lə) n. See cicada. [Italian, from Latin cicāda. See CICADA.]

cic-a-trix (sĭk'ə-trĭks', sĭ-kă'trĭks) *n. pl. cic-a-tri-ces (sĭk'ə-trĭ'sēz, sĭ-kă'trĭ-sēz'). A scar left by the formation of new connective tissue over a healing sore or wound. [Middle English cicatrice, from Latin cicātrix, cicātrĭc-.] —cic'a-tri'cial (sĭk'ə-trĭsh'əl), ci-cat'ri-cose' (sĭ-kăt'rĭ-kōs') *adj.

cic-a-trize (sĭk'ə-trĭz') *v. tr. intr. cic-a-trized, cic-a-triz-ing, cic-a-triz-es. To heal or become healed by the formation of scar tissue. [Middle English cicatrizen, from Old French cicatriser, from Medieval Latin cicātrizāre, from Late Latin cicātrĭcārĭ, to scar over, from Latin cicātrĭx, cicātrĭc-, cicatrix.] —cic'a-tri-za'-tion (-trĭ-zā'shən) *n.

Cic-e-ro (sĭs'ə-rō') A town of northeast Illinois, an industrial and residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 67,436.

Cic-e-ro (sĭs'ə-rō'), Marcus Tullius. 106-43 B.C. Roman statesman, orator, and philosopher. A major figure in the last years of the Republic, he is best known for his orations against Catiline and for his mastery of Latin prose.

—Cic'e-ro'ni-an adj.

cic-e-ro-ne (sĭs'ə-rō'nē, chĭch'ə-, chē'chĕ-rô'nē) n. pl. cic-e-ro-nes or cic-e-ro-ni (nē). A guide for sightseers. [Italian, from Latin Cicerō Cicerōn-, Marcus Tullius Cicero.]

cich·lid (sĭk'lĭd) n. Any of various tropical and subtropical freshwater fishes of the family Cichlidae, many of which are popular as aquarium fish. [From New Latin Cichla, type genus, from Greek kikhlē, a kind of fish. See ghel-¹ in Appendix.] —cich'lid adj.

Cid (sĭd), the. Originally Rodrigo Díaz de Vivar. 1043?-1099. Spanish soldier and national hero whose military exploits, including the capture of Valencia (1094), are recounted in several literary works.

CID also C.I.D. abbr. Criminal Investigation Department.

-cide suff. 1. Killer: bactericide. 2. Act of killing: ecocide. [Middle English, from Old French (from Latin -cīda, killer), and from Latin -cīdium, killing both from caedere, to strike; kill. See kaə-id- in Appendix.]

ci·der (sī'dər) n. The juice pressed from fruits, especially apples, used as a beverage or to make other products, such as vinegar. [Middle English sidre, from Old French, from Late Latin sīcera, intoxicating drink, from Greek sikera, from Hebrew šēkār.]

cider vinegar (sī'dər vĭn'ĭ-gər) n. Vinegar made from fermented cider.

ci·de·vant (sē'də-vän') adj. Heretofore; former. [French : ci, here + devant, before.]

Cien·fue·gos (syĕn-fwā'gōs) A city of south-central Cuba on Cienfuegos Bay, a narrow-necked inlet of the Caribbean Sea. The city is a port and a trade and processing center. Population, 102,297.

c.i.f. or C.I.F. abbr. Cost, insurance, and freight.

ci·gar (sĭ-gär') n. A compact roll of tobacco leaves prepared for smoking. [Spanish cigarro, possibly from Maya sik'ar, from sik, tobacco.]

ci·gar·box cedar (sĭ-gär'bōks sē'dər) n. See Spanish cedar.

ci·g·a·rette also ci·g·a·ret (sĭg'ə-rĕt', sĭg'ə-rĕt') n. 1. A small roll of finely cut tobacco for smoking, enclosed in a wrapper of thin paper. 2. A similar roll of another substance, such as a tobacco substitute or marijuana. [French, diminutive of cigare, cigar, from Spanish cigarro. See CIGAR.]

Cig·a·rette (sĭg'ə-rĕt', sĭg'ə-rĕt') A trademark used for a long, slender, high-powered offshore racing boat. This trademark often occurs in print as cigarette boat: "The skipper hoisted a sailfish pennant and we steamed triumphantly back into the harbor past cigarette boats" (Advertising Age). "The Coast Guard... has let him pilot government cigarette boats off the Florida coast" (U.S. News & World Report).

cigar flower (sĭ-gär' flou'ər) n. A small bushy plant (Cuphea ignea), native to Mexico and Jamaica and widely cultivated as an ornamental and a houseplant for its red, tubular flowers that have white and dark tips that resemble lit cigars.

ci·g·a·ril·lo (sĭg'ə-rĭl'ō) n. pl. ci·g·a·ril·los. A small, narrow cigar. [Spanish cigarrillo, diminutive of cigarro, cigar. See CIGAR.]

ci·gar·store Indian (sĭ-gär'stōr' ĭn'dē-ən, -stōr') n. A wooden effigy of a Native American holding a cluster of cigars, formerly used as the emblem of a tobacconist.

ci·lan·tro (sĭ-län'trō) n. See coriander (n., sense 2). [Spanish, alteration of Late Latin coliandrum, from Latin coriandrum. See CORIANDER.]

cil·i·a (sĭl'ē-ə) n. Plural of cilium.

cil·i·ar·y (sĭl'ē-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling cilia. 2. Of or relating to the ciliary body and associated structures of the eye.

ciliary body (sĭl'ē-ēr'ē bōd'ē) n. A thickened portion of the vascular tunic of the eye located between the choroid and the iris.

cil·i·ate (sĭl'ē-īt, -āt') adj. Ciliated. — n. Any of various protozoans of the class Ciliata, characterized by numerous cilia. —cil'·i·ate·ly adv. —cil'·i·a'tion n.

cil·i·a·ted (sĭl'ē-ā'tĭd) adj. Having cilia.

cil·ice (sĭl'īs) n. A coarse cloth; haircloth. [French, from Latin cilicium, a covering made of Cilician goat's hair, from Cilicia.]

Ci·li·cia (sĭ-lĭsh'ə) An ancient region of southeast Asia Minor along the Mediterranean Sea south of the Taurus Mountains. The area was conquered by Alexander the Great and later became part of the Roman Empire. It was the site of an independent Armenian state from 1080 to 1375. —Ci·li'cian adj. & n.

Cilician Gates (sĭ-lĭsh'ən gāts) A mountain pass in the Taurus Mountains of southern Turkey. The pass has served for centuries as a natural highway linking Anatolia with the Mediterranean coast.

cil·i·o·late (sĭl'ē-ə-lāt') adj. Having minute cilia. [From New Latin ciliolum, diminutive of cilium, cilium, from Latin, eyelid. See CILIUM.]

cil·i·um (sĭl'ē-əm) n. pl. cil·i·a (-ē-ə). 1. A microscopic hairlike process extending from the surface of a cell or unicellular organism. Capable of rhythmical motion, it acts in unison with other such structures to bring about the movement of the cell or of the surrounding medium. 2. An eyelash. 3. Botany. One of the hairs along the margin or edge of a structure, such as a leaf, usually forming a fringe. [Latin, eyelid. See kel¹ in Appendix.]

Ci·ma·bu·e (chē'mā-bōō'ē), Giovanni. Originally Cenni di Pepo. 1240?-1302?. Italian painter trained in the Byzantine style and considered the first master of the Florentine school.

Cim·ar·ron (sĭm'ə-rŏn', -rŏn') A river rising in northeast New Mexico and flowing about 1,123 km (698 mi) eastward across southwest Kansas to the Arkansas River in northern Oklahoma.

ci·met·i·dine (sĭ-mĕt'ī-dĕn', -dĭn') n. A drug, C₁₀H₁₆N₆S, that inhibits acid secretion in the stomach and is used to treat gastrointestinal disorders, such as peptic ulcers. [ci- (alteration of CYANO-) + MET(HYL) + (GUAN)IDINE.]

ci·mex (sĭ'mĕks') n. pl. cim·i·ces (sĭm'ī-sĕz'). An insect of the genus Cimex, which includes the bedbugs. [Latin cĭmex, bedbug.]

Cim·me·ri·an (sĭ-mĭr'ē-ən) adj. Very dark or gloomy. — n. Greek Mythology. One of a mythical people described by Homer as inhabiting a land of perpetual darkness. [From Latin Cimmerii, the Cimmerians, from Greek Kimmerioi.]

Ci·mon (sī'mən, -mŏn'), 507?-449? B.C. Athenian military and political leader who was instrumental in the organization of the Delian League (478) and commanded the defeat of the Persian fleet (466).

CINC or C in C abbr. Commander in chief.

cinch (sĭnch) n. 1. A girth for a pack or saddle. 2. A firm grip. 3. Something easy to accomplish. See Synonyms at breeze¹. 4. A sure thing; a certainty. — v. cinched, cinch·ing, cinch·es. — v. tr. 1. To put a saddle girth on. 2. To get a tight grip on. 3. Informal. To make certain of: cinch a victory. — v. intr. To tighten a saddle girth. Often used with up. [Spanish cincha, feminine of cincho, belt, from Latin cinctus, from past participle of cingere, to gird. See kenk- in Appendix.]

cinch bug (sĭnch bŭg) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. & Chiefly Midland U.S. Variant of chinch bug.

cin·cho·na (sĭng-kŏ'nə, sĭn-chŏ'-) n. 1. Any of several trees and shrubs of the genus Cinchona, native chiefly to the Andes and cultivated for bark that yields the medicinal alkaloids quinine and quinidine, which are used to treat malaria. 2. The dried bark of any of these plants. In this sense, also called Jesuit's bark, Peruvian bark. [New Latin Cinchona, genus name, reputedly after Francisca Henríquez de Ribera (1576-1639), Countess of Chinchón.] — cin·chon'ic (sĭng-kŏn'ĭk, sĭn-chŏn'-) adj.

cin·cho·nine (sĭng'kə-nĕn', sĭn'chə-) n. An alkaloid, C₁₉H₂₂N₂O, derived from the bark of various cinchona trees and used as an antimalarial agent. [CINCHON(A) + -INE².]

cin·cho·nism (sĭng'kə-nĭz'əm, sĭn'chə-) n. A pathological condition resulting from an overdose of cinchona bark or its alkaloid derivatives and marked by headache, dizziness, hearing loss, and ringing in the ears.

Cin·cin·na·ti (sĭn'sə-năt'ē, -năt'ə) A city of extreme southwest Ohio on the Ohio River. Founded in 1788, it is a port of entry and an industrial, commercial, and cultural center for an extensive area in Ohio and Kentucky. Population, 364,040.

Cin·cin·na·tus (sĭn'sə-năt'əs, -nā'təs), Lucius Quinctius. 519?-438 B.C. Roman statesman who according to tradition was twice called away from his farm to assume the dictatorship of Rome (458 and 439).

Cin·co de Ma·yo (sĕng'kŏ də mǎ'yŏ, thĕ) n. May 5, observed by Mexican communities in Latin America and Mexican-American communities in the United States in commemoration of the 1862 defeat of French troops at the Battle of Puebla. [Spanish : cinco, five + de, of + Mayo, May.]

cinc·ture (sĭngk'chər) n. 1. The act of encircling or encompassing.

2. a. Something that encircles or surrounds. b. A belt or sash, especially one worn with an ecclesiastical vestment or the habit of a monk or nun. — v. tr.

cinc-tured, cinc-tur-ing, cinc-tures. To gird; encompass. [Latin cīnctūra, from cīnctus, past participle of cingere, to gird. See kenk- in Appendix.]

cin-der (sɪn'dəɹ) n. 1. a. A burned or partly burned substance, such as coal, that is not reduced to ashes but is incapable of further combustion. b. A partly charred substance that can burn further but without flame. 2. cinders. Ashes. 3. cinders. Geology. See scoria (n., sense 1). 4. Metallurgy. See scoria (n., sense 2). 5. Slag from a metal furnace. — v. tr. cin-dered, cin-der-ing, cin-ders. To burn or reduce to cinders. [Alteration (influenced by Old French endre, ashes, from Latin cinis), of Middle English sinder, from Old English, slag, dross.] —cin'der-y adj.

cinder block or cin-der-block (sɪn'dəɹ-blɔk) n. A usually hollow building block made with concrete and coal cinders.

Cin-der-el-la (sɪn'də-rɛl'ə) n. One that unexpectedly achieves recognition or success after a period of obscurity and neglect. [After Cinderella, the fairy-tale character who escapes from a life of drudgery and marries a prince, translation of French Cendrillon.]

cin-e-aste also cin-e-ast (sɪn'ē-äst) or cin-é-aste (sɪn'ā-äst') n. 1. A film or movie enthusiast. 2. A person involved in filmmaking. [French cinéaste, from ciné, cinema, short for cinéma. See CINEMA.]

cin-e-ma (sɪn'ə-mə) n. 1. a. A film or movie. b. A movie theater. 2. a. Films or movies considered as a group. b. The film or movie industry. 3. The art or technique of making films or movies; filmmaking. [French cinéma, short for cinématograph. See CINEMATOGRAPH.] —cin'e-mat'ic (sɪn'ə-mät'ik) adj. —cin'e-mat'i-cal-ly adv.

cin-e-ma-go-er (sɪn'ə-mə-gō'ər) n. A filmgoer.

cin-e-ma-theque (sɪn'ə-mə-tɛk') n. A small movie theater showing classic or avant-garde films. [French cinémathèque, blend of cinéma, cinema; see CINEMA, bibliothèque, library (from Latin bibliotheca); see BIBLIOTHECA.]

cin-e-ma-tize (sɪn'ə-mə-tīz') v. tr. cin-e-ma-tized, cin-e-ma-tiz-ing, cin-e-ma-tiz-es. To adapt (a novel or a play, for example) for film or movies. —cin'e-mat'i-za'tion (-mät'ī-zā'shən) n.

cin-e-mat-o-graph (sɪn'ə-mät'ə-gräf') n. Chiefly British. 1. A movie camera or projector. 2. The art or technique of making films or movies. [French cinématographe: Greek kinēma, kinēmat-, motion (from kinein, to move); see kei² in Appendix + -graphie, -graph.]

cin-e-ma-tog-ra-pher (sɪn'ə-mə-tɔg'rə-fər) n. 1. A movie photographer, especially one who is in charge of shooting a movie. 2. Chiefly British. A movie projectionist.

cin-e-ma-tog-ra-phy (sɪn'ə-mə-tɔg'rə-fē) n. The art or technique of film or movie photography. —cin'e-mat'o-graph'ic (-mät'ə-gräf'ik) adj.

—cin'e-mat'o-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

ci·né·ma vé·ri·té (sē'nā-mā' vā'rē-tā') n. A style of filmmaking that stresses unbiased realism. [French cinéma-vérité: cinéma, cinema + vérité, truth.]

cin·e·ole also cin·e·ol (sĭn'ē-ōl') n. See eucalyptol. [Alteration of New Latin cinae oleum: cinae, genitive of cina, wormseed + Latin oleum, oil; see OLEO-.]

cin·e·phile (sĭn'ə-fĭl') n. A film or movie enthusiast. [French cinéophile: ciné, cinema; see CINEASTE + -phile, -phile.]

cin·e·ra·di·og·ra·phy (sĭn'ō-rā'dē-ŏg'rə-fē) n. A diagnostic technique in which a movie camera is used to film the images, as of internal body structures, produced through radiography or fluoroscopy. [CINE(MA) + RADIOGRAPHY.]

Cin·er·am·a (sĭn'ə-rām'ə, -rāmə) A trademark used for a motion-picture process designed to produce wide-screen, realistic images.

cin·e·rar·i·a¹ (sĭn'ə-rār'ē-ə) n. Plural of cinerarium.

cin·e·rar·i·a² (sĭn'ə-rār'ē-ə) n. Any of several hybrid ornamental plants (Senecio × hybridus) in the composite family, derived from species native to the Canary Islands and widely grown as indoor or bedding plants for their showy, variously colored radiate flower heads and attractive silvery foliage. [New Latin Cineraria, genus name, from Latin cinerārius, of ashes (from the ash-colored down on its leaves). See CINERARIUM.]

cin·e·rar·i·um (sĭn'ə-rār'ē-əm) n. pl. cin·e·rar·i·a (-ē-ə). A place for keeping the ashes of a cremated body. [Latin cinerārium, from neuter of cinerārius, of ashes, from cinis, ciner-, ashes.] —cin'er-ar'y (sĭn'ə-rēr'ē) adj.

ci·ne·re·ous (sĭ-nĭr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Consisting of or resembling ashes. 2. Of a gray color tinged with black. [From Latin cinereus, from cinis, ciner-, ashes.]

cin·er·in (sĭn'ər-ĭn) n. Either of two compounds, C₂₀H₂₈O₃ or C₂₁H₂₈O₅, used in insecticides. [Latin cinis, ciner-, ashes + -IN.]

cin·gu·lum (sĭng'gyə-ləm) n. pl. cin·gu·la (-lə). Biology. A girdlelike marking or structure, such as a band or ridge, on an animal. [Latin, girdle, from cingere, to gird. See kenk- in Appendix.] —cin'gu·late (-lĭt), cin'gu·la'ted (-lā'tĭd) adj.

Ci·ni·sel·lo Bal·sa·mo (chē'nĭ-zĕl'ō bōl'sə-mō', chē'nē-zĕl'lō bāl'sä-mō') A city of northern Italy, a suburb of Milan. Population, 80,323.

cin·na·bar (sĭn'ə-bār') n. 1. A heavy reddish mercuric sulfide, HgS, that is the principal ore of mercury. 2. Red mercuric sulfide used as a pigment. 3. Color. See vermilion (n., sense 2). [Middle English cinabare, from Latin cinnabaris, from Greek kinnabari.]

cinnamic acid (sə-nām'ĭk əs'ĭd) n. A white crystalline acid, C₆H₅CH₂COOH, obtained from cinnamon or from balsams such as storax or made synthetically and used chiefly to manufacture perfumery compounds. [CINNAM(ON) + -IC.]

Cin·na·min·son (sĭn'ə-mĭn'sən) A community of southwest New Jersey near the Delaware River northeast of Camden. The destructive Japanese beetle was first discovered here in 1916. Population, 16,072.

cin·na·mon (sɪn'ə-mən) n. 1. a. The dried aromatic inner bark of certain tropical Asian trees in the genus Cinnamomum, especially C. verum and C. loureirii, often ground and used as a spice. b. A plant yielding this bark.

2. Color. A light reddish brown. — adj. Color. Of a light reddish brown. [Middle English cinamome, from Old French, from Latin cinnamōmum, from Greek kinnamōmon, of Semitic origin; akin to Hebrew qinnāmôn.] — cin·nam'ic (sə-nām'ik) adj.

cinnamon bear (sɪn'ə-mən bâr) n. A variety of the North American black bear (Ursus americanus) that has a reddish-brown coat.

cinnamon fern (sɪn'ə-mən fûrn) n. A New World fern (Osmunda cinnamomea) having narrow, spore-bearing, cinnamon-colored leaves in early spring, which are later encircled by wider, sterile green leaves.

cinnamon stone (sɪn'ə-mən stōn) n. See essonite.

cin·quain (sɪŋg'kân', sǎŋg'-) n. A five-line stanza. [French cinq, five (from Latin quīnque); see penk^we in Appendix + (QUATR)AIN.]

cinque (sɪŋk, sǎŋk) n. Games. The number five in cards or dice. [Middle English cink, from Old French, from Latin quīnque, five. See penk^we in Appendix.]

cin·que·cen·tist (chɪŋg'kwɪ-chɛn'tɪst) n. An Italian, especially a poet or an artist, of the 16th century.

cin·que·cen·to (chɪŋg'kwɪ-chɛn'tō) n. The 16th century, especially in Italian art and literature. [Italian, from (mil) cinquecento, (one thousand) five hundred : cinque, five (from Latin quīnque); see penk^we in Appendix + cento, hundred (from Latin centum); see dek^m in Appendix.]

cinque-foil (sɪŋk'foil', sǎŋk'-) n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Potentilla in the rose family, native chiefly to temperate and cold regions and having yellow or sometimes white or red flowers and compound leaves that in some species bear five leaflets. 2. Architecture. A design having five sides composed of converging arcs, usually used as a frame for glass or a panel. [Middle English cinkfoil : cink, five; see CINQUE + foil, leaf (translation of Old French quintefeuille, from Latin quīnquefolium, translation of Greek pentaphullon); see FOIL².]

Cinque Ports (sɪŋk' pōrts) A group of seaports of southeast England (originally Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, and Sandwich) that formed a maritime and defensive association in the 11th century. They reached the height of their significance in the Anglo-French conflicts of the 14th century.

CIO also C.I.O. abbr. Congress of Industrial Organizations.

ci·on (sɪ'ən) n. Variant of scion (n., sense 2).

Ci·pan·go (sɪ-pǎŋg'gō) A poetic name for Japan, used by Marco Polo.

ci·pher also cy·pher (sɪ'fər) n. 1. The mathematical symbol (0) denoting absence of quantity; zero. 2. An Arabic numeral or figure; a number. 3. The Arabic system of numerical notation. 4. One having no influence or value; a nonentity. 5. a. A cryptographic system in which units of plain text of regular length, usually letters, are arbitrarily transposed or substituted according to a predetermined code. b. The key to such a system. c. A message written or transmitted in such a system. 6. A design combining or interweaving letters or initials; a monogram. — v. ci-phered, ci-pher-ing, ci-phers. — v. intr. To solve problems in arithmetic; calculate. See Synonyms at calculate. — v. tr. 1. To put in secret writing; encode. 2. To solve by means of arithmetic. [Middle English cifre, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cifra, from Arabic ṣifr, from ṣafira, to be empty (translation of Sanskrit śūnyam, cipher, dot).] cir abbr. 1. Circle. 2. Circuit. 3. Circular 4. Circumference.

circ. abbr. 1. Circle. 2. Circuit. 3. Circular. 4. Circulation. 5. Circumference.

cir-ca (sûr'kə) prep. Abbr. ca, c., C. In approximately; about: born circa 1900.

[Latin circā, from circum, around, from circus, circle. See CIRCLE.]

cir-ca-di-an (sər-kā'dē-ən, -kād'ē-, sûr'kə-dī'ən, -dē'-) adj. Biology. Relating to or exhibiting approximately 24-hour periodicity. [Latin circā, around; see CIRCA + Latin diēs, day; see deiw- in Appendix.] — cir-ca/di-an-ly adv.

circadian rhythm (sər-kā'dē-ən rĭth'əm) n. A daily rhythmic activity cycle, based on 24-hour intervals, that is exhibited by many organisms.

Cir-cas-sia (sər-kăsh'ə, -ē-ə) A historical region of southwest Russia on the northeast coast of the Black Sea north of the Caucasus Mountains. It was ceded to Russia by the Ottoman Turks in 1829.

Cir-cas-sian (sər-kăsh'ən, -kăsh'ē-ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Circassia. 2. The non-Indo-European language of the Circassians. — adj. Of or relating to Circassia or its people, language, or culture.

Circassian walnut (sər-kăsh'ən wôl'nüt') n. A type of English walnut, patterned with swirls and curves in shades of brown or with occasional black streaks, used for veneer and cabinetwork.

Cir-ce (sûr'sē) n. Greek Mythology. A goddess who turned Odysseus's men temporarily into swine but later gave him directions for their journey home. — Cir-'ce-an (sûr'sē-ən, sər-sē'ən) adj.

cir-ci-nate (sûr'sə-nāt') adj. 1. Ring-shaped. 2. Botany. Rolled up in the form of a coil with the tip in the center, as an unexpanded fern frond. [Latin circinātus, past participle of circināre, to make circular, from circinus, pair of compasses. See CIRCINUS.] — cir/'ci-nate'ly adv.

Cir-ci-nus (sûr'sə-nəs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Musca and Triangulum Australe. [Latin circinus, pair of compasses, from circus, circle. See CIRCLE.] cir-cle (sûr'kəl) n. Abbr. cir, circ. 1. A plane curve everywhere equidistant from a given fixed point, the center. 2. A planar region bounded by a circle.

3. Something, such as a ring, shaped like such a plane curve. 4. A circular course, circuit, or orbit: a satellite's circle around the earth. 5. A curved section or tier of seats in a theater. 6. A series or process that finishes at its starting point or continuously repeats itself; a cycle. 7. A group of people sharing an interest, activity, or achievement. 8. A territorial or administrative division, especially of a province, in some European countries. 9. A sphere of influence or interest; domain: well-known in artistic circles. 10. Logic. A vicious circle. — v. cir-cled, cir-cling, cir-cles. — v. tr. 1. To make or form a circle around; enclose. 2. To move in a circle around. — v. intr. To move in a circle. [Middle English cercle, from Old French, from Latin circulus, diminutive of circus, circle, from Greek kir-kos, krikos. See sker-² in Appendix.] — cir'cler (-klər) n.

SYNONYMS: circle, coterie, set, clique. These nouns denote a group of people sharing an interest or activity. Circle connotes gravitation around a central point or element: my circle of friends; prominent in financial circles. “For the most of us, if we do not talk of ourselves, or at any rate of the individual circles of which we are the centers, we can talk of nothing” (Anthony Trollope). Coterie applies to a small, select group of congenial persons: “a coterie of Wall Street bankers and their friends” (Robert B. Reich). Set suggests a large, loosely bound group, especially of persons of the same social status who have similar interests and tastes: “These men constituted the best set in the College.... All were reading men, and all good men” (Walter Besant). A clique is an exclusive group, usually social and often participating in activities from which outsiders are barred: “the narrow, often self-perpetuating cliques which control our lives, living standards and leisure” (John Lloyd). See also Synonyms at surround turn circle graph (sûr'kəl grăf) n. See pie chart.

cir-clet (sûr'klīt) n. A small circle, especially a circular ornament. [Middle English cerclet, from Old French, diminutive of cercle, circle. See CIRCLE.]

cir-cuit (sûr'kīt) n. Abbr. cir, circ. 1. a. A closed, usually circular line that goes around an object or area. b. The region enclosed by such a line. See Synonyms at circumference. 2. a. A path or route the complete traversal of which without local change of direction requires returning to the starting point. b. The act of following such a path or route. c. A journey made on such a path or route. 3. Electronics. a. A closed path followed or capable of being followed by an electric current. b. A configuration of electrically or electromagnetically connected components or devices. 4. a. A regular or accustomed course from place to place; a round: a salesperson on the Detroit-Minneapolis-Chicago circuit; a popular speaker on the lecture circuit. b. The area or district thus covered, especially a territory under the jurisdiction of a judge in which periodic court sessions are held. 5. a. An association of theaters in which plays, acts, or films move from theater to theater for presentation. b. A group of nightclubs, show halls, or resorts at which entertainers appear in turn. c. An association of teams, clubs, or arenas of competition: the downhill ski circuit. — v. intr. tr. cir-cuit-ed, cir-cuit-ing, cir-cuits. To make a circuit or circuit of. [Middle English, circumference, from Old French, from Latin circuitus, a going around, from past participle of circumire, to go around : circum-, circum- + ire, to go; see ei- in Appendix.]

circuit board (sûr'kīt bôrd) n. Computer Science. An insulated board on which interconnected circuits and components such as microchips are mounted or etched.

circuit breaker (sûr'kīt brā'kər) n. An automatic switch that stops the flow of electric current in a suddenly overloaded or otherwise abnormally stressed electric circuit.

circuit court (sûr'kīt kôrt) n. Law. A state court that holds sessions at several different places within a judicial district.

cir-cu-i-tous (sər-kyōō'ī-təs) adj. Being or taking a roundabout, lengthy course. See Synonyms at indirect. [From Medieval Latin circuitōsus, from Latin circuitus, a going around. See CIRCUIT.] — cir-cu'i-tous-ly adv. — cir-cu'i-ty, cir-cu'i-tous-ness n.

circuit rider (sûr'kīt rī'dər) n. A cleric who travels from church to church, especially in a rural district.

cir-cuit-ry (sûr'kī-trē) n. pl. cir-cuit-ries. 1. The design of or a detailed plan for an electric circuit. 2. Electric circuits considered as a group.

cir-cu-lar (sûr'kyə-lər) adj. Abbr. cir, circ. 1. Of or relating to a circle. 2. a. Shaped like or nearly like a circle; round. b. Moving in or forming a circle. 3. Circuitous; roundabout: took a circular route to the office. 4. Marked by reasoning in a circle: a circular theory. 5. Addressed or distributed to a large number of persons. — n. A printed advertisement, directive, or notice intended for mass distribution. [Middle English circuler, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin circulāris, from circulus, circle. See CIRCLE.] — cir'cu-lar'i-ty (-lăr'ī-tē) n. — cir'cu-lar-ly adv.

circular file (sûr'kyə-lər fīl) n. Slang. A wastebasket.

circular function (sûr'kyə-lər fŭngk'shən) n. See trigonometric function.

cir-cu-lar-ize (sûr'kyə-lə-rīz') v. tr. cir-cu-lar-ized, cir-cu-lar-iz-ing, cir-cu-lar-iz-es. 1. To publicize with circulars. 2. To canvass or poll using a questionnaire. — cir'cu-lar-i-za'tion (-lə-rī-zā'shən) n. — cir'cu-lar-iz'er n.

circular measure (sûr'kyə-lər mēzh'ər) n. The measure of an angle in radians.

circular saw (sûr'kyə-lər sô) n. A power saw for cutting wood or metal consisting of a toothed disk rotated at high speed. Also called buzz saw cir-cu-late (sûr'kyə-lāt') v. cir-cu-lat-ed, cir-cu-lat-ing, cir-cu-lates. — v. intr. 1. To move in or flow through a circle or circuit: blood circulating through the body. 2. To move around, as from person to person or place to place: a guest circulating at a party. 3. To move about or flow freely, as air. 4. To spread widely among persons or places; disseminate: Gossip tends to circulate quickly. — v. tr. To cause to move about or be distributed: Please circulate these fliers. [From Middle English circulat, continuously distilled, from circulātus, past participle of circulāre, to make circular, from circulus. See CIRCLE.] — cir'cu-la'tive (-lā'tiv) adj. — cir'cu-la'tor n.

cir-cu-lat-ing decimal (sûr'kyə-lā'ting dës'ə-məl) n. See repeating decimal.

circulating library (sûr'kyə-lā'ting lī'brēr'ē) n. See lending library.

cir-cu-la-tion (sûr'kyə-lā'shən) n. Abbr. circ. 1. Movement in a circle or circuit, especially the movement of blood through bodily vessels as a result of the heart's pumping action. 2. a. Movement or passage through a system of vessels, as of water through pipes; flow. b. Free movement or passage. 3. The passing of something, such as money or news, from place to place or person to person. 4. a. The condition of being passed about and widely known; distribution. b. Dissemination of printed material, especially copies of newspapers or magazines, among readers. c. The number of copies of a publication sold or distributed.

cir-cu-la-tor-y (sûr'kyə-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to circulation. 2. Of or relating to the circulatory system.

circulatory system (sûr'kyə-lə-tôr'ē sīs'təm) n. The system of structures, consisting of the heart, blood vessels, and lymphatics, by which blood and lymph are circulated throughout the body.

circum. abbr. Circumference.

circum- pref. Around; about: circumlunar. [Latin, from circum, around, accusative of circus, circle. See CIRCLE.]

cir-cum-am-bi-ent (sûr'kəm-ăm'bē-ənt) adj. Encompassing on all sides; surrounding. — cir'cum-am'bi-ence, cir'cum-am'bi-en-cy n. — cir'cum-am'bi-ent-ly adv.

cir-cum-am-bu-late (sûr'kəm-ăm'byə-lāt') v. tr. cir-cum-am-bu-lat-ed, cir-cum-am-bu-lat-ing, cir-cum-am-bu-lates. To walk around (something), especially as part of a ritual: "Circumambulate the city of a dreamy Sabbath afternoon" (Herman Melville). — cir'cum-am'bu-la'tion n.

cir-cum-bo-re-al (sûr'kəm-bôr'ē-əl, -bôr'-) adj. Distributed or occurring chiefly throughout the boreal regions of North America and Eurasia. Used especially of plants.

cir-cum-cise (sûr'kəm-sīz') v. tr. cir-cum-cised, cir-cum-cis-ing, cir-cum-cis-es. 1. To remove the prepuce of (a male). 2. To remove the prepuce or a part of the clitoris of (a female). [Middle English circumcisen, from Latin circumcīdere, circumcīs-, to cut around (translation of Greek peritemnein): circum-, circum- + caedere, to cut; see kaə-id- in Appendix.] — cir'cum-cis'er n.

circum-cision (sûr'kəm-sizh'ən) n. 1. The act of circumcising. 2. A religious ceremony, as in the Jewish or Muslim faith, in which someone is circumcised. 3. Circumcision. a. A Christian feast celebrating the circumcision of Jesus. Used with the. b. January 1, the day on which this feast is celebrated. Used with the.

circum-duc-tion (sûr'kəm-dük'shən) n. The circular movement of a limb such that the distal end of the limb delineates an arc. [Latin circumductiō, circumductiōn-, act of leading around, from circumductus, past participle of circumdūcere, to lead around : circum-, circum- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.]

circum-fer-ence (sər-kŭm'fər-əns) n. Abbr. cir, circ., circum. 1. The boundary line of a circle. 2. a. The boundary line of a figure, area, or object. b. The length of such a boundary. [Middle English, from Old French circonférence, from Latin circumferentia, from circumferēns, circumferent- present participle of circumferre, to carry around : circum-, circum- + ferre, to carry; see bher- in Appendix.] —circum'fer-en'tial (-fə-rĕn'shəl) adj.

SYNONYMS: circumference, circuit, compass, perimeter, periphery. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a line around a closed figure or area”: the circumference of the earth; a park five acres in circuit; stayed within the compass of the schoolyard; the perimeter of a rectangle; erected a fence around the periphery of the property.

circum-flex (sûr'kəm-flĕks') n. A mark (^) used over a vowel in certain languages or in phonetic keys to indicate quality of pronunciation. — adj.

1. Having this mark. 2. Curving around: a circumflex blood vessel. [From Latin circumflexus, bent around, circumflex, past participle of circumflectere, to bend around : circum-, circum- + flectere, to bend.]

circum-flu-ent (sər-kŭm'flōō-ənt) also circum-flu-ous (-əs) adj. Flowing around or surrounding.

circum-fuse (sûr'kəm-fyōōz') v. tr. circum-fused, circum-fus-ing, circum-fus-es. 1. To pour or diffuse around; spread. 2. To surround, as with liquid; suffuse. [Latin circumfundere, circumfūs- : circum-, circum- + fundere, to pour; see gheu- in Appendix.] —circum-fu'sion n.

circum-lo-cu-tion (sûr'kəm-lō-kyōō'shən) n. 1. The use of unnecessarily wordy and indirect language. 2. Evasion in speech or writing. 3. A roundabout expression. [Middle English circumlocutioun, from Latin circumlocutiō, circumlocutiōn-, from circumlocūtus, past participle of circumloquī : circum-, circum- + loquī, to speak; see tolk^w- in Appendix.] —circum-loc'u-to'ri-ly (-lŏk'yə-tŏr'ə-lĕ, -tŏr'-) adv. —circum-loc'u-to'ry (-tŏr'ĕ, -tŏr'ĕ) adj.

circum-lu-nar (sûr'kəm-lōō'nər) adj. Revolving about or surrounding the moon.

circum-nav-i-gate (sûr'kəm-näv'i-gāt') v. tr. circum-nav-i-gat-ed, circum-nav-i-gat-ing, circum-nav-i-gates. 1. To proceed completely around: circumnavigating the earth. 2. To go around; circumvent: circumnavigate the downtown traffic. —circum-nav'i-ga'tion n. —circum-nav'i-ga'tor n.

circum-po-lar (sûr'kəm-pō'lər) adj. 1. Located or found in one of the Polar Regions. 2. Astronomy. Denoting a star that from a given observer's latitude does not go below the horizon.

circum-ro-tate (sûr'kəm-rō'tāt') v. intr. circum-ro-tat-ed, circum-ro-tat-ing, circum-ro-tat-es. To turn like a wheel; revolve. —circum-ro-ta'tion n. —circum-ro'ta-to'ry (-tə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

circum-scis-sile (sûr'kəm-sis'īl, -īl') adj. Botany. Splitting or opening along a circumference, with the top coming off as a lid: a circumscissile seed capsule. [CIRCUM- + Latin scissilis, easily split, splitting; see SCISSILE.]

circum-scribe (sûr'kəm-skrīb') v. tr. circum-scribed, circum-scrib-ing, circum-scribes. 1. To draw a line around; encircle. 2. To limit narrowly; restrict. 3. To determine the limits of; define. See Synonyms at limit. 4. a. To enclose (a polygon or polyhedron) within a configuration of lines, curves, or surfaces so that every vertex of the enclosed object is incident on the enclosing configuration. b. To erect (such a configuration) around a polygon or polyhedron: circumscribe a circle around a square. [Middle English circumscriben, from Latin circumscribere: circum-, circum- + scribere, to write; see skribh- in Appendix.] —circum-scrib'a-ble adj. —circum-scrib'er n.

circum-scrip-tion (sûr'kəm-skrīp'shən) n. 1. The act of circumscribing or the state of being circumscribed. 2. Something, such as a limit or restriction, that circumscribes. 3. A circumscribed space or area. 4. A circular inscription, as on a medallion. [Latin circumscrip̄tiō, circumscrip̄tiōn-, from circumscrip̄tus, past participle of circumscribere, to circumscribe. See CIRCUMSCRIBE.] —circum-scrip'tive adj. —circum-scrip'tive-ly adv.

circum-so-lar (sûr'kəm-sō'lər) adj. Revolving around or surrounding the sun.

circum-spect (sûr'kəm-spēkt') adj. Heedful of circumstances and potential consequences; prudent. [Middle English, from Latin circumspectus, past participle of circumspicere, to take heed: circum-, circum- + specere, to look; see spek- in Appendix.] —circum-spect'ly adv.

circum-spec-tion (sûr'kəm-spēk'shən) n. The state or quality of being circumspect. See Synonyms at prudence.

circum-stance (sûr'kəm-stāns') n. 1. A condition or fact attending an event and having some bearing on it; a determining or modifying factor. 2. A condition or fact that determines or must be considered in the determining of a course of action. 3. Often circumstances. The sum of determining factors beyond willful control: a victim of circumstance; work that will begin on Monday if circumstances permit. 4. circumstances. Financial status or means: “Prior came of a good family, much reduced in circumstances” (George Sherburn). 5. Detail accompanying or surrounding an event, as in a narrative or series of events. 6. Formal display; ceremony: the pomp and circumstance of a coronation. 7. A particular incident or occurrence: Your arrival was a fortunate circumstance. See Synonyms at occurrence. — v. tr. circ-cum-stanced, circ-cum-stanc-ing, circ-cum-stanc-es. To place in particular circumstances or conditions; situate. — idioms. under no circumstances. In no case; never. under the circumstances (or in the circumstances). Given these conditions; such being the case. [Middle English, from Old French circonstance, from Latin circumstantia, from circumstāns, circumstant- present participle of circumstāre, to stand around : circum-, circum- + stāre, to stand; see stā- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Use of the idiom under the circumstances is justified by both logic and reputable precedent, and objections to it must be accounted at best overfussy if not also, as H.W. Fowler put it, “puerile.”

circ-cum-stan-tial (sûr'kəm-stăn'shəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or dependent on circumstances. 2. Of no primary significance; incidental. 3. Complete and particular; full of detail: a circumstantial report about the debate. See Synonyms at detailed. 4. Full of ceremonial display. — circ'cum-stan'tial-ly adv.

circumstantial evidence (sûr'kəm-stăn'shəl ěv'ĭ-dəns) n. Law. Evidence not bearing directly on the fact in dispute but on various attendant circumstances from which the judge or jury might infer the occurrence of the fact in dispute.

circ-cum-stan-ti-al-i-ty (sûr'kəm-stăn'shē-ăl'ĭ-tē) n. pl.

circ-cum-stan-ti-al-i-ties. 1. The quality of being fully or minutely detailed. 2. A particular detail or circumstance.

circ-cum-stan-ti-ate (sûr'kəm-stăn'shē-āt') v. tr. circ-cum-stan-ti-at-ed, circ-cum-stan-ti-at-ing, circ-cum-stan-ti-ates. To set forth or verify with circumstances; give detailed proof or description of. — circ'cum-stan'ti-a'tion n.

circ-cum-ter-res-tri-al (sûr'kəm-tə-rĕs'trĕ-əl) adj. Revolving around or surrounding the earth.

circ-cum-val-late (sûr'kəm-văl'āt') v. tr. circ-cum-val-lat-ed, circ-cum-val-lat-ing, circ-cum-val-lates. To surround with or as if with a rampart. — adj. 1. (also -ĭt) Surrounded with or as if with a rampart. 2. Anatomy. Surrounded by a ridge or raised, wall-like structure. [Latin circumvallāre, circumvallāt- : circum-, circum- + vallum, rampart with palisades from vallus, post, stake.] — circ'cum-val-la'tion n.

circ-cum-vent (sûr'kəm-vĕnt') v. tr. circ-cum-vent-ed, circ-cum-vent-ing, circ-cum-vents. 1. To surround (an enemy, for example); enclose or entrap.

2. To go around; bypass: circumvented the city. 3. To avoid or get around by artful maneuvering: She planned a way to circumvent all the bureaucratic red tape. [Middle English circumventen, from Latin circumvenīre, circumvent- : circum-, circum- + venīre, to go, come; see g^{wā}- in Appendix.] —cir'cum-vent'er, cir'cum-ven'tor n. —cir'cum-ven'tion n. —cir'cum-ven'tive adj.

cir-cum-vo-lu-tion (sər-kūm'və-lōo'shən, sūr'kəm-vō-) n. 1. An act of turning, coiling, or folding about a center, a core, or an axis. 2. A single turn, coil, or fold; a convolution. [Middle English circumvolucioun, from Medieval Latin circumvolūtiō, circumvolūtiōn-, from Latin circumvolūtus, past participle of circumvolvere, to roll around. See CIRCUMVOLVE.]

cir-cum-volve (sūr'kəm-vōlv') v. intr. tr. cir-cum-vo-lved, cir-cum-vo-lv-ing, cir-cum-vo-lves. To revolve or cause to revolve. [Latin circumvolvere : circum-, circum- + volvere, to roll; see wel-² in Appendix.]

cir-cus (sūr'kəs) n. 1. a. A public entertainment consisting typically of a variety of performances by acrobats, clowns, and trained animals. b. A traveling company that performs such entertainments. c. A circular arena, surrounded by tiers of seats and often covered by a tent, in which such shows are performed. 2. A roofless, oval enclosure surrounded by tiers of seats that was used in antiquity for public spectacles. 3. Chiefly British. An open circular place where several streets intersect. 4. Informal. Something suggestive of a circus, as in frenetic activity or noisy disorder: “The city is a circus of the senses” (William H. Gass). [Middle English, round arena, from Latin, circus, circle. See CIRCLE.] —cir'cus-y adj.

WORD HISTORY: The modern circus owes its name but fortunately not its regular program of events to the amusement of ancient times. The Latin word circus, which comes from the Greek word kirkos, “circle, ring,” referred to a circular or oval area enclosed by rows of seats for spectators. In the center ring, so to speak, was held a variety of events, including chariot races and gladiatorial combats, spectacles in which bloodshed and brutality were not uncommon. The first use of circus recorded in English, in a work by Chaucer written around 1380, probably refers to the Circus Maximus in Rome. Our modern circus, which dates to the end of the 18th century, was originally an equestrian spectacle as well, but the trick riders were soon joined in the ring by such performers as ropedancers, acrobats, and jugglers. Even though the circular shape of the arena and the equestrian nature of some of the performances are carried over from its Roman namesake, the modern circus, despite occasional accidental violence, has little connection with its brutal namesake of long ago.

ci-ré also cire (sī-rā') adj. Having a highly glazed finish, usually by the application of wax: a ciré shirt; a ciré jacket. — n. A fabric or garment with such a finish. [French, past participle of cirer, to wax, from Latin cērāre. See CERATED.]

Ci-re-bon (chîr'ə-bôn') A city of south-central Indonesia on the northern coast of Java east-northeast of Bandung. It is a port on the Java Sea. Population, 223,776.

cirque (sûrk) n. A steep hollow, often containing a small lake, occurring at the upper end of a mountain valley. Also called cwm [French, from Latin circus, circle. See CIRCLE.]

cir-rate (sîr'āt') adj. Biology. Having or resembling a cirrus or cirri. [Latin cirrātus, curled, from cirrus, curl of hair.]

cir-rho-sis (sî-rō'sîs) n. 1. A chronic disease of the liver characterized by the replacement of normal tissue with fibrous tissue and the loss of functional liver cells. It can result from alcohol abuse, nutritional deprivation, or infection especially by the hepatitis virus. 2. Chronic interstitial inflammation of any tissue or organ. [New Latin : Greek kirros, tawny (from the color of the diseased liver) + -OSIS.] —cir-rhot'ic (-rōt'îk) adj.

cir-ri (sîr'î') n. Plural of cirrus.

cirri- pref. Variant of cirro-.

cir-ri-ped (sîr'ə-pĕd') also cir-ri-pede (-pĕd') n. Any of various crustaceans of the subclass Cirripedia, which includes the barnacles and related organisms that attach themselves to objects or become parasitic in the adult stage. [From New Latin Cirripedia, order name : CIRR(US) + -PED.] —cir'ri-ped' adj.

cirro- or cirri- pref. Cirrus cloud: cirrostratus. [From CIRRUS.]

cir-ro-cu-mu-lus (sîr'ō-kyōm'γə-ləs) n. A high-altitude cloud composed of a series of small, regularly arranged cloudlets in the form of ripples or grains.

cir-ro-stratus (sîr'ō-strā'təs, -strāt'əs) n. A high-altitude, thin hazy cloud, usually covering the sky and often producing a halo effect.

cir-rus (sîr'əs) n. pl. cir-ri (sîr'î'). 1. A high-altitude cloud composed of narrow bands or patches of thin, generally white, fleecy parts. 2. Botany. A tendril or similar part. 3. Zoology. A slender, flexible appendage, such as the fused cilia of certain protozoans. [Latin, curl of hair.]

C.I.S. abbr. Commonwealth of Independent States cis- pref. 1. On this side: cisatlantic. 2. Having a pair of identical atoms or groups on the same side of a plane that passes through two carbon atoms linked by a double bond. Used of a geometric isomer: cis-butene. [Latin, from cis, on this side of. See ko- in Appendix.]

cis-al-pine (sîs-ăl'pîn') adj. Relating to, living on, or coming from the southern side of the Alps. [Latin Cisalpinus : cis-, cis- + alpinus, alpine; see ALPINE.]

Cis-al-pine Gaul (sîs-ăl'pîn' gôl') A section of ancient Gaul south and east of the Alps in present-day Italy.

cis-at-lan-tic (sîs'ət-lăn'tîk) adj. Situated on this side of the Atlantic Ocean.

Cis-cau-ca-sia (sîs'kô-kā'zhə, -shə) A steppeland of southwest Russia in the Caucasus north of the main range of the Caucasus Mountains.

cis·co (sĭs/'kō) n. pl. cis·coes or cis·cos. Any of several North American fresh-water fishes of the genus Coregonus or Leucichthys, related to and resembling the whitefish. [From Canadian French ciscoette, from Ojibwa bemidewiskawed, the (fish) with oily skin.]

Cis·kei (sĭs/'kī) A Black homeland of southeast South Africa. It was granted nominal independence in 1980. Zwelitsha is the capital. Population, 645,000.

cis·lu·nar (sĭs-lōō/'nər) adj. Situated between the earth and the moon.

cis·mon·tane (sĭs-mōn/'tān') adj. Situated on this side of the mountains, especially the Alps.

cist¹ (sĭst) n. A wicker receptacle used in ancient Rome for carrying sacred utensils in procession. [Latin cista, from Greek kistē.]

cist² (sĭst, kĭst) also kist (kĭst) n. A Neolithic stone coffin. [Welsh, chest, from Latin cista, basket. See CIST¹.]

Cis·ter·cian (sĭ-stūr/'shən) n. A member of a contemplative monastic order founded by reformist Benedictines in France in 1098. [French Cisterzien, from Medieval Latin Cistercium, Cîteaux, a village of eastern France, site of an abbey.]

—Cis·ter·cian adj.

cis·tern (sĭs/'tərn) n. 1. A receptacle for holding water or other liquid, especially a tank for catching and storing rainwater. 2. Anatomy. A cisterna. [Middle English cisterne, from Latin cisterna, from cista, box, from Greek kistē, basket.]

—cis·tern'al (sĭ-stūr/'nəl) adj.

cis·ter·na (sĭ-stūr/'nə) n. pl. cis·ter·nae (-nē). 1. Anatomy. A fluid-containing sac or cavity in the body of an organism. Also called reservoir. 2. Cytology. One of the saclike vesicles that comprise the endoplasmic reticulum. [Latin, cistern. See CISTERN.]

—cis·ter·nal adj.

cis·tron (sĭs/'trōn') n. A section of DNA that contains the genetic code for a single polypeptide and functions as a hereditary unit. [From cis-trans test, a genetic test (CIS- + TRANS-) + -ON¹.] —cis·tron'ic adj.

cit. abbr. 1. Citation. 2. Cited. 3. Citizen.

cit·a·del (sĭt'ə-dəl, -dĕl') n. 1. A fortress in a commanding position in or near a city. 2. A stronghold or fortified place; a bulwark. [French citadelle, from Italian cittadella, diminutive of città, city, from Latin cīvitās. See CITY.]

ci·ta·tion (sī-tā/'shən) n. Abbr. cit. 1. The act of citing. 2. a. A quoting of an authoritative source for substantiation. b. A source so cited; a quotation.

3. Law. A reference to previous court decisions or authoritative writings.

4. Enumeration or mention, as of facts, especially: a. An official commendation for meritorious action, especially in military service: a citation for bravery. b. A formal statement of the accomplishments of one being honored with an academic degree. 5. An official summons, especially one calling for appearance in court.

—ci·ta'tion-al adj. —ci'ta-to'ry (sī'tə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

cite (sīt) v. tr. cit-ed, cit-ing, cites. 1. To quote as an authority or example. 2. To mention or bring forward as support, illustration, or proof: cited several instances of insubordinate behavior. 3. a. To commend officially for meritorious action in military service. b. To honor formally. 4. To summon before a court of law. [Middle English citen, to summon, from Old French citer, from Latin citāre. See kei-2 in Appendix.] —cit'a-ble adj.

Ci-thae-ron (sī-thîr'ən) A mountain, 1,410 m (4,623 ft) high, of southeast Greece. It was considered sacred to Dionysus and the Muses.

cith-a-ra (sīth'ər-ə, kīth'-) n. Music. An ancient instrument resembling the lyre. [Latin, from Greek kithara.]

cith-er (sīth'ər, sīth'-) n. A cittern. [French cithare, kitair, from Latin cithara, cithara. See CITHARA.]

cith-ern (sīth'ərn, sīth'-) n. Variant of cittern.

cit-ied (sīt'ēd) adj. Having a city or cities.

cit-i-fied (sīt'ī-fīd') adj. Having or pretending to have the sophisticated style or manner associated with an urban way of life.

cit-i-fy (sīt'ī-fī') v. tr. cit-i-fied, cit-i-fy-ing, cit-i-fies. 1. To cause to become urban. 2. To impart the styles and manners of a city to: “Will the immigration of high-powered executives somehow citify the country?” (Wharton Magazine).

—cit'i-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

cit-i-zen (sīt'ī-zən) n. Abbr. cit. 1. A person owing loyalty to and entitled by birth or naturalization to the protection of a state or nation. 2. A resident of a city or town, especially one entitled to vote and enjoy other privileges there. 3. A civilian. 4. A native, inhabitant, or denizen of a particular place: “We have learned to be citizens of the world, members of the human community” (Franklin D. Roosevelt). [Middle English citisein, from Anglo-Norman citesein, probably alteration of Old French citeain, from cite, city. See CITY.] —cit'i-zen-ly adj.

SYNONYMS: citizen, national, subject. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a person owing allegiance to a nation or state and entitled to its protection”: an American citizen; a British national; a French subject.

cit-i-zen-ry (sīt'ī-zən-rē) n. pl. cit-i-zen-ries. Citizens considered as a group.

cit-i-zen's arrest (sīt'ī-zənz ə-rĕst') n. An arrest made by a citizen, for whom legal authority arises from the fact of citizenship, rather than by an officer of the law.

cit-i-zens band (sīt'ī-zənz bānd) n. Abbr. CB A radio-frequency band officially allocated for private radio communications.

cit-i-zen-ship (sīt'ī-zən-shīp') n. The status of a citizen with its attendant duties, rights, and privileges.

Ci-tlal-té-petl (sē'tlāl-tā'pēt-l) Also, Mount. O-ri-za-ba (ôr'î-zā'bə, ôr'-, ô'rē-sā'vā). An extinct volcanic peak, 5,702.6 m (18,697 ft) high, of southern Mexico between Mexico City and Veracruz. It is the highest elevation in the country.

cit-ral (sit'rāl) n. A mobile pale-yellow liquid, $C_9H_{15}COH$, derived from lemon-grass oil and used in perfume and as a flavoring. [CITR(US) + -AL³.]

cit-rate (sit'rāt') n. A salt or ester of citric acid.

cit-ric (sit'rik) adj. Of or relating to citric acid.

citric acid (sit'rik äs'id) n. A colorless translucent crystalline acid, $C_6H_8O_7 \cdot H_2O$, principally derived by fermentation of carbohydrates or from lemon, lime, and pineapple juices and used in preparing citrates and in flavorings and metal polishes.

citric acid cycle (sit'rik äs'id sī'kəl) n. See Krebs cycle.

cit-ri-cul-ture (sit'ri-kül'chər) n. The cultivation of citrus fruits. [CITR(US) + CULTURE.] —cit'ri-cul'tur-ist n.

ci-trine (si-trēn', sit'rēn') n. 1. A pale yellow variety of crystalline quartz resembling topaz. 2. Color. A light to moderate olive. [Middle English, reddish yellow, from Old French citrin, from Medieval Latin citrinus, from Latin citrus, citron tree.] —ci-trine' adj.

cit-ron (sit'rən) n. 1. a. A thorny evergreen shrub or small tree (Citrus medica) native to India and widely cultivated for its large, lemonlike fruits that have a thick, warty rind. b. The fruit of this plant, whose rind is often candied and used in confections and fruitcakes. 2. A globose watermelon (Citrullus lanatus var. citroides) having white flesh that is candied or pickled. 3. Color. A grayish green yellow. [Middle English, from Old French, alteration (influenced by limon, lemon); see LEMON, of Latin (mālum) citreum, citron (fruit), from citrus, citron tree.] —cit'ron adj.

cit-ro-nel-la (sit'rə-něl'ə) n. 1. A tropical Asian grass (Cymbopogon nardus) having bluish-green, lemon-scented leaves and an essential oil. 2. A pale yellow to brownish aromatic oil obtained from this plant, used chiefly in perfumery and also in some insect repellents and commercial flavorings. [New Latin, from French citronnelle, lemon oil, diminutive of citron, citron. See CITRON.]

cit-ro-nel-lal (sit'rə-něl'äl') n. A colorless aromatic liquid, $C_{10}H_{18}O$, obtained from citronella and certain other essential oils or produced synthetically and used in making perfumes and as a commercial flavoring. [CITRONELL(A) + -AL³.]

cit-ro-nel-lol (sit'rə-něl'ôl, -ôl, -ôl) n. A colorless liquid, $C_{10}H_{20}O$, with a rose-like odor, derived from any of several essential oils or made synthetically and used extensively in perfumery. [CITRONELL(A) + -OL¹.]

cit-rul-line (sit'rə-lēn') n. An amino acid, $C_6H_{13}N_3O_3$, originally isolated from watermelon, that is produced as an intermediate in the conversion of ornithine to arginine during urea formation in the liver. [New Latin Citrullus, watermelon genus (from Medieval Latin citrullus, watermelon, from Italian dialectal citrulo, from Late Latin citrium, from Latin citrus, citron) + -INE².]

cit-rus (sīt'ʀəs) n. pl. citrus or cit-rus-es. 1. Any of various evergreen, usually spiny shrubs or trees of the genus Citrus, such as the grapefruit, lemon, or orange, native to southern and southeast Asia, having leathery, aromatic, unifoliolate compound leaves and widely cultivated for their juicy, edible fruits that have a leathery, aromatic rind. 2. The fruit of any of these plants. — adj. Of or relating to any of the citrus plants or their fruits. [Latin, citron tree.]

citrus canker (sīt'ʀəs käng'kær) n. A destructive bacterial disease of citrus plants that attacks seedlings and mature plants and causes defoliation and death.

Cit-rus Heights (sīt'ʀəs hīts) A community of north-central California, a suburb of Sacramento. Population, 107,439.

citrus red mite (sīt'ʀəs rēd mīt) n. A large mite (Panonychus citri) that infests citrus plants and shrubs. Also called citrus red spider cit-tern (sīt'ərn) also cith-ern (sīth'ərn, sīth'-) n. Music. A 16th-century guitar with a flat, pear-shaped body. [Perhaps blend of Latin cithara, cithara; see CITH-ARA, obsolete English gittern (from Middle English, from Old French guiterne, from Latin cithara).]

cit-y (sīt'ē) n. pl. cit-ies. Abbr. C. 1. A center of population, commerce, and culture; a town of significant size and importance. 2. a. An incorporated municipality in the United States with definite boundaries and legal powers set forth in a charter granted by the state. b. A Canadian municipality of high rank, usually determined by population but varying by province. c. A large incorporated town in Great Britain, usually the seat of a bishop, with its title conferred by the Crown. 3. The inhabitants of a city considered as a group. 4. An ancient Greek city-state. 5. City. An area or complex specializing in a particular type of merchandise. Often used in combination: Car City on Route 1A; Bargain City. 6. Slang. Used in combination as an intensive: The playing field was mud city after the big rain. [Middle English cite, from Old French, from Latin cīvitās, from cīvis, citizen. See kei⁻¹ in Appendix.]

city council (sīt'ē koun'səl) n. The governing body of a city.

city desk (sīt'ē dēsk) n. The newspaper department that handles local news.

city editor (sīt'ē əd'ī-tər) n. 1. A newspaper editor responsible for handling local news and reporters' assignments. 2. Chiefly British. A newspaper editor who handles commercial and financial news.

city father (sīt'ē fä'thər) n. A municipal official, such as a council member.

city hall (sīt'ē hōl) n. 1. The building housing the administrative offices of a municipal government. 2. The municipal government, especially its officials considered as a group. 3. Slang. An entrenched and insensitive bureaucracy: still trying to fight city hall.

city manager (sīt'ē mǎn'ī-jər) n. An administrator appointed by a city council to manage the affairs of the municipality.

cit-y-scape (sīt'ē-skāp') n. 1. An artistic representation, such as a painting or photograph, of a city. 2. A city or section of a city regarded as a scene: “the vast cityscape of lower Manhattan” (New Yorker).

city slicker (sīt'ē slīk'ər) n. Informal. A person with the sophisticated manner and dress traditionally associated by rural people with city dwellers.

cit-y-state (sīt'ē-stāt') n. A sovereign state consisting of an independent city and its surrounding territory.

cit-y-wide (sīt'ē-wīd') adj. Including or occurring in all parts of a city: city-wide busing; a citywide strike.

Ci-u-dad Bo-lí-var (sē'ōō-dād' bə-lē'vär, syōō-thäth' bō-lē'vär) A city of east-central Venezuela on the Orinoco River southeast of Caracas. It was founded in 1764 on the narrows (or angosturas) of the river and was popularly known as Angostura. Population, 151,000.

Ciudad de Nau-cal-pan de Juárez (sē'ōō-dād' də nou-käl'pän də hwä'rës) A city of south-central Mexico, a suburb of Mexico City. Population, 723,723.

Ciudad Gua-ya-na (sē'ōō-dād' gwə-yä'nə, gwä-yä'nä) A city of eastern Venezuela on the Orinoco River. It was founded in 1961 as a planned community. Population, 212,000.

Ciudad Juárez (sē'ōō-dād' wär'ëz, hwä'rës) also Juárez A city of northern Mexico on the Rio Grande opposite El Paso, Texas. The two cities are connected by bridge. Population, 544,496.

Ciudad Ma-de-ro (sē'ōō-dād' mə-dër'ō, mā-thë'rô) A city of eastern Mexico on the Gulf of Mexico. It is a suburb of Tampico. Population, 132,444.

Ciudad O-bre-gón (sē'ōō-dād' ō'brë-gôn', ô-vrë-gôn') A city of northwest Mexico south-southeast of Hermosillo. It is a trade and processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 165,572.

Ciudad O-je-da (sē'ōō-dād' ô-hë'-də, -thä) A city of northwest Venezuela on the eastern shore of Lake Maracaibo. It is a petroleum-refining center. Population, 129,000.

Ciudad Re-al (sē'ōō-dād' rë-äl') A city of central Spain in a fertile area south of Madrid. It was founded by Alfonso X of Castile (1226?-1284). Population, 53,546.

Ciudad Tru-jil-lo (sē'ōō-dād' trōō-hë'yō) See Santo Domingo.

Ciudad Vic-to-ri-a (sē'ōō-dād' vīk-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-, vëk-tô'ryä) A city of east-central Mexico south-southeast of Monterrey. It was founded in 1750. Population, 140,161.

civ. abbr. Civil; civilian.

civ-et (siv'it) n. 1. Any of various carnivorous catlike mammals of the family Viverridae of Africa and Asia, having anal scent glands that secrete a fluid with a musky odor. Also called civet cat 2. The thick, yellowish, musky fluid secreted by one of these mammals, used in the manufacture of perfumes. 3. The fur of one of these mammals. [French civette, from Old French, from Catalan civetta, from Medieval Latin zibethus, from Arabic zabād, civet perfume.]

civ-ic (siv'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to a city, a citizen, or citizenship; municipal or civil. [Latin cīvicus, from cīvis, citizen. See kei-1 in Appendix.]

civ-ics (siv'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of political science that deals with civic affairs and the rights and duties of citizens.

civ-ies (siv'ēz) pl.n. Slang. Variant of civvies.

civ-il (siv'əl) adj. Abbr. civ. 1. Of, relating to, or befitting a citizen or citizens: civil duties. 2. Of or relating to citizens and their interrelations with one another or with the state: civil society; the civil branches of government. 3. Of ordinary citizens or ordinary community life as distinguished from the military or the ecclesiastical: civil authorities. 4. Of or in accordance with organized society; civilized. 5. Sufficiently observing or befitting accepted social usages; not rude: a civil reply. See Synonyms at polite. 6. Being in accordance with or denoting legally recognized divisions of time: a civil year. 7. Law. Relating to the rights of private individuals and legal proceedings concerning these rights as distinguished from criminal, military, or international regulations or proceedings. [Middle English, from Latin cīvilis, from cīvis, citizen. See kei-1 in Appendix.] —civ'il-ly adv.

civil death (siv'əl dəth) n. Law. Total deprivation of civil rights resulting from conviction for treason or other serious offense.

civil defense (siv'əl dī-fəns') n. Abbr. CD, C.D. A range of emergency measures to be taken by an organized body of civilian volunteers for the protection of life and property in the event of natural disaster or enemy attack.

civil disobedience (siv'əl dīs'ə-bē'dē-əns) n. Refusal to obey civil laws in an effort to induce change in governmental policy or legislation, characterized by the use of passive resistance or other nonviolent means.

civil engineer (siv'əl ɛn'jə-nîr') n. Abbr. C.E. An engineer trained in the design and construction of public works, such as bridges or dams, and other large facilities. —civil engineering n.

ci-vil-ian (sī-vīl'yən) n. Abbr. civ. 1. A person following the pursuits of civil life. 2. A specialist in Roman or civil law. — adj. Of or relating to civilians or civil life; nonmilitary: civilian clothes; a civilian career. [Middle English, civil law judge, from Old French civilien, from civil, civil, from Latin cīvilis. See CIVIL.]

ci-vil-ian-ize (sī-vīl'yə-nīz') v. tr. ci-vil-ian-ized, ci-vil-ian-iz-ing, ci-vil-ian-iz-es. To convert to civilian operation or control. —ci-vil'ian-i-za'-tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

ci-vil-i-ty (sĭ-vĭl'ĭ-tē) n. pl. ci-vil-i-ties. 1. Courteous behavior; politeness. 2. A courteous act or utterance.

civ-i-li-za-tion (sĭv'ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. 1. An advanced state of intellectual, cultural, and material development in human society, marked by progress in the arts and sciences, the extensive use of writing, and the appearance of complex political and social institutions. 2. The type of culture and society developed by a particular nation or region or in a particular epoch: Mayan civilization; the civilization of ancient Rome. 3. The act or process of civilizing or reaching a civilized state. 4. Cultural or intellectual refinement; good taste. 5. Modern society with its conveniences: returned to civilization after camping in the mountains.

civ-i-lize (sĭv'ə-lĭz') v. tr. civ-i-lized, civ-i-liz-ing, civ-i-liz-es. 1. To raise from barbarism to an enlightened stage of development; bring out of a primitive or savage state. 2. To educate in matters of culture and refinement; make more polished or sophisticated. —civ'i-liz'a-ble adj. —civ'i-liz'er n.

civ-i-lized (sĭv'ə-lĭzd') adj. 1. Having a highly developed society and culture. 2. Showing evidence of moral and intellectual advancement; humane, ethical, and reasonable: terrorist acts that shocked the civilized world. 3. Marked by refinement in taste and manners; cultured; polished.

civil law (sĭv'əl lô) n. Abbr. c.l., C.L. Law. 1. The body of laws of a state or nation dealing with the rights of private citizens. 2. The law of ancient Rome as embodied in the Justinian code, especially that which applied to private citizens. 3. A system of law having its origin in Roman law, as opposed to common law or canon law.

civil libertarian (sĭv'əl lĭb'ər-târ'ē-ən) n. One who is actively concerned with the protection of those rights guaranteed to the individual by law: "Civil libertarians tend to assume such tests must be an illegal invasion of privacy" (Larry Martz).

civil lib-er-ties (sĭv'əl lĭb'ər-tēz) pl.n. Fundamental individual rights, such as freedom of speech and religion, protected by law against unwarranted governmental or other interference.

civil marriage (sĭv'əl măr'ij) n. A marriage ceremony performed by a civil official.

civil rights (sĭv'əl rĭts) pl.n. The rights belonging to an individual by virtue of citizenship, especially the fundamental freedoms and privileges guaranteed by the 13th and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution and by subsequent acts of Congress, including civil liberties, due process, equal protection of the laws, and freedom from discrimination. — adj. or civ-il-rights (sĭv'əl-rĭts') 1. Of or relating to such rights or privileges: civil rights legislation. 2. Of or relating to a political movement, especially during the 1950's and 1960's, devoted to securing equal opportunity and treatment for members of minority groups. —civil righter n.

civil servant (sĭv'əl sūr'vənt) n. A person employed in the civil service.

civil service (siv'əl sūr'vīs) n. Abbr. CS 1. Those branches of public service that are not legislative, judicial, or military and in which employment is usually based on competitive examination. 2. The entire body of persons employed by the civil branches of a government.

civil war (siv'əl wôr) n. 1. A war between factions or regions of the same country. 2. A state of hostility or conflict between elements within an organization: "The broadcaster is in the midst of a civil war that has brought it to the brink of a complete management overhaul" (Bill Powell). 3. Civil War. The war in the United States between the Union and the Confederacy from 1861 to 1865. Also called War Between the States 4. Civil War. The war in England between the Parliamentarians and the Royalists from 1642 to 1648.

Ci-vi-ta-vec-chia (chē'vē-tä-věk'yä) A city of west-central Italy on the Tyrrhenian Sea west-northwest of Rome. Its harbor is the chief port of Rome. Population, 45,836.

civ·vies also civ·ies (siv'ēz) pl.n. Slang. Civilian clothes. [Shortening and alteration of CIVILIAN.]

C.J. abbr. Law. Chief Justice.

ck. abbr. 1. Cask. 2. Check.

cl abbr. Centiliter.

Cl The symbol for the element chlorine.

cl. abbr. 1. Class; classification. 2. Clause. 3. Clearance. 4. Closet. 5. Cloth.

c.l. abbr. 1. Carload. 2. Or C.L. Civil law. 3. Common law.

clab·ber (kläb'ər) n. Sour, curdled milk. Regional. Also called thick milk — v. tr. intr. clab·bered, clab·ber·ing, clab·bers. To curdle. [Short for BONNYCLABBER.]

clack (kläk) v. clacked, clack·ing, clacks. — v. intr. 1. To make an abrupt, sharp sound, as in the collision of two hard surfaces. 2. To chatter thoughtlessly or at length. 3. To cackle or cluck, as a hen. — v. tr. To cause to make an abrupt, sharp sound. — n. 1. A clacking sound: the clack of an old-fashioned typewriter. 2. Something that makes a clacking sound. 3. Thoughtless, prolonged talk; chatter. [Middle English clakken, from Old Norse klaka, of imitative origin.] — clack'er n.

clack valve (kläk vālv) n. A hinged valve that permits fluids to flow in only one direction and clacks when the valve closes.

Clac·ton (kläk'tən) also Clac·ton-on-Sea (-ön-sē', -ôn-) An urban district of southeast England on the North Sea. It is a resort situated on high cliffs overlooking the sea. Population, 44,000.

Clac·to·ni·an (kläk-tō'nē-ən) adj. Archaeology. Of or relating to a lower Paleolithic culture of northwest Europe. [After Clacton.]

Clac·ton-on-Sea (kläk'tən-ön-sē', -ôn-) See Clacton.

clad¹ (klād) v. tr. clad, clad-ding, clads. 1. To sheathe or cover (a metal) with a metal. 2. To cover with a protective or insulating layer of other material. [Back-formation from CLADDING.]

clad² (klād) v. A past tense and a past participle of clothe.

clad-ding (klād'ing) n. 1. A metal coating bonded onto another metal under high pressure and temperature. 2. A protective or insulating layer fixed to the outside of a building or another structure. [Earlier, clothing, possibly from CLAD².]

clade (klād) n. A group of organisms, such as a species, whose members share homologous features derived from a common ancestor. [From Greek klados, branch.]

cla-dist (klād'ist, klā'dist) n. One who classifies organisms according to the principles of cladistics.

cla-dis-tics (klə-dīs'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). A system of classification based on the phylogenetic relationships and evolutionary history of groups of organisms. —cla-dis'tic adj. —cla-dis'ti-cal-ly adv.

cla-doc-er-an (klə-dōs'ər-ən) n. Any of various small, mostly freshwater crustaceans of the order Cladocera, which includes the water fleas. — adj. Of or belonging to the order Cladocera. [From New Latin Cladocera, order name : Greek klados, branch + Greek keras, horn; see ker-1 in Appendix.]

clad-ode (klād'ōd') n. See cladophyll. [New Latin cladōdium, from Late Greek kladōdēs, many-branched, from Greek klados, branch.] —cla-do'di-al (klə-dō'dē-əl) adj.

clad-o-gen-e-sis (klād'ə-jěn'ī-sīs) n. The evolutionary change and diversification resulting from the branching off of new taxa from common ancestral lineages. [Greek klados, branch + -GENESIS.] —clad'o-ge-net'ic (-jə-nět'ik) adj. —clad'o-ge-net'i-cal-ly adv.

clad-o-gram (klād'ə-grām', klā'də-) n. A branching, treelike diagram in which the endpoints of the branches represent specific species of organisms. It is used to illustrate phylogenetic relationships and show points at which various species have diverged from common ancestral forms. [Greek klados, branch + -GRAM.]

clad-o-phyll (klād'ə-fīl') n. A branch or portion of a stem that resembles and functions as a leaf. Also called cladode [Greek klados, twig + -PHYLL.]

cla-fou-ti (klä-fōō-tē') n. A fruit and custard pastry made with a thick batter. [French clafoutis, from Old French : claufir, to attach with nails (from Latin clavō figere : clavō, ablative sing. of clavis, nail + figere, to fix) + foutis nominalized form of foudre, to stuff. See FOOTLE.]

claim (klām) v. tr. claimed, claim-ing, claims. 1. To demand or ask for as one's own or one's due; assert one's right to: claim a reward. 2. To take in a violent manner as if by right: a hurricane that claimed two lives. 3. To state to be true, especially when open to question; assert or maintain: claimed he had won the race; a candidate claiming many supporters. 4. To deserve or call for; require: problems that claim her attention. — n. 1. A demand for something as rightful or due. 2. A basis for demanding something; a title or right. 3. Something claimed in a formal or legal manner, especially a tract of public land staked out by a miner or homesteader. 4. a. A demand for payment in accordance with an insurance policy or other formal arrangement. b. The sum of money demanded. 5. A statement of something as a fact; an assertion of truth: makes no claim to be a cure. — idiom. lay claim to. To assert one's right to or ownership of. [Middle English claimen, from Old French clamer, claim-, from Latin clāmāre, to call. See kelə⁻² in Appendix.] — claim'a-ble adj. — claim'er n.

SYNONYMS: claim, pretense, pretension, title. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "a legitimate or asserted right to demand something as one's rightful due": had a strong legal claim to the property; makes no pretense to scholarliness; pretensions to the chairmanship unjustified in every particular; has no title to our thanks. See also Synonyms at demand claim-ant (klā'mənt) n. A party that makes a claim.

Clair (klâr), René. Originally René Chomette. 1898-1981. French filmmaker. An early exponent of productions with sound, he directed the classics Sous les Toits de Paris (1929) and Le Million (1931).

clair-au-di-ence (klâr-ô'dē-əns) n. The supposed power to hear things outside the range of normal perception. [CLAIR(VOYANCE) + AUDIENCE.]

—clair-au'di-ent adj. & n.

clair de lune (klâr' də lōon') n. 1. A pale, grayish-blue glaze applied to various kinds of Chinese porcelain. 2. The color of such a glaze. [French : clair, light + de, of + lune, moon.]

claire-ob-scure (klâr'əb-skyōōr') n. See chiaroscuro. [French clair-obscur, translation of Italian chiaroscuro.] clair-voy-ance (klâr-voi'əns) n. 1. The supposed power to see objects or events that cannot be perceived by the senses. 2. Acute intuitive insight or perceptiveness.

clair-voy-ant (klâr-voi'ənt) adj. 1. Of or relating to clairvoyance. 2. Having the supposed power to see objects or events that cannot be perceived by the senses. — n. A person, such as a medium, possessing the supposed power of clairvoyance. [French : clair, clear (from Latin clārus); see kelə⁻² in Appendix + voyant, present participle of voir, to see (from Latin vidēre); see weid- in Appendix.]

clam¹ (klām) n. 1. a. Any of various usually burrowing marine and freshwater bivalve mollusks of the class Pelecypoda, including members of the genera Venus and Mya, many of which are edible. b. The soft, edible body of such a mollusk.

2. Informal. A close-mouthed person, especially one who can keep a secret.

3. Slang. A dollar: set me back 75 clams. — v. intr. clammed, clamming, clams. To hunt for clams. — phrasal verb. clam up. Informal. To refuse to talk. [From obsolete clam-shell, shell that clamps, clam, from CLAM².]

—clam/mer n.

clam² (klām) n. A clamp or vise. [Middle English, from Old English clam, clamm, bond, fetter.]

cla·mant (klā'mənt, klām'ənt) adj. 1. Clamorous; loud. 2. Demanding attention; pressing: clamant needs. [Latin clāmāns, clāmant- present participle of clāmāre, to cry out. See kelə⁻² in Appendix.] —cla'mant·ly adv.

clam·bake (klām'bāk') n. 1. A seashore picnic where clams, fish, corn, and other foods are traditionally baked on heated stones covered with seaweed.

2. Informal. A party or gathering, especially a noisy and lively one.

clam·ber (klām'bər, klām'ər) v. intr. clam·bered, clam·ber·ing, clam·bers. To climb with difficulty, especially on all fours; scramble. — n. A difficult, awkward climb. [Middle English clambren, probably frequentative of climben, to climb. See CLIMB.] —clam'ber·er n.

clam·ber·ing (klām'bər-ɪŋ, klām'ər-) adj. Of or relating to a plant, often one without tendrils, that sprawls or climbs.

clam chowder (klām chou'dər) n. Any of various soups made with clams, salt pork, potatoes, onions, and milk or tomatoes.

clam dig·gers or clam·dig·gers (klām'dɪg'ərz) pl.n. Casual pants in a mid-calf length.

clam·flat (klām'flat') n. New England. A level stretch of soft tidal mud where clams burrow.

clam·my (klām'ē) adj. clam·mi·er, clam·mi·est. 1. Disagreeably moist, sticky, and cold to the touch: a clammy handshake. 2. Damp and unpleasant: clammy weather. 3. Uneasy; apprehensive: The ghost town gave us a clammy feeling.

[Middle English, sticky, probably from clam (from Old English, mud, clay), or from Middle Low German klam, stickiness.] —clam'mi·ly adv.

—clam'mi·ness n.

clam·or (klām'ər) n. 1. A loud outcry; a hubbub. 2. A vehement expression of discontent or protest: a clamor in the press for pollution control. 3. A loud, sustained noise. See Synonyms at noise. — v. clam·ored, clam·or·ing, clam·ors. — v. intr. 1. To make a loud, sustained noise or outcry. 2. To make insistent demands or complaints: clamored for tax reforms. — v. tr. 1. To exclaim insistently and noisily: The representatives clamored their disapproval.

2. To influence or force by clamoring: clamored the mayor into resigning. [Middle English clamour, from Old French, from Latin clāmōr, shout, from clāmāre, to cry out. See kelə⁻² in Appendix.] —clam/or·er n.

clam·or·ous (klām'ər-əs) adj. 1. Making or marked by loud outcry or sustained din. 2. Insistently demanding attention; importunate. See Synonyms at vociferous. —clam'or-ous-ly adv. —clam'or-ous-ness n.

clam·our (klām'ər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of clamor.

clamp (klämp) n. 1. Any of various devices used to join, grip, support, or compress mechanical or structural parts. 2. Any of various tools with opposing, often adjustable sides or parts for bracing objects or holding them together. — v. tr.

clamped, clamp-ing, clamps. 1. To fasten, grip, or support with or as if with a clamp. 2. To establish by authority; impose: clamped a tax on imports.

—phrasal verb. clamp down. To become more strict or repressive; impose controls: clamping down on environment polluters. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch klampe.]

clamp-down (klämp'doun') n. An imposing of restrictions or controls: "Advertisers and broadcasters would raise howls of protest against any strong clamp-down" (Wall Street Journal).

clamp·er (klämp'pər) n. One that clamps, especially a spiked plate attached to the sole of a shoe to prevent slipping on ice.

clam·shell (kläm'shəl') n. 1. The shell of a clam. 2. Any of various devices with two hinged jaws, used for dredging or digging.

clam·worm (kläm'wûrm') n. Any of various segmented burrowing marine worms of the genus Nereis, commonly used as bait for fishing. Also called nereis clan (klän) n. 1. A traditional social unit in the Scottish Highlands, consisting of a number of families claiming a common ancestor and following the same hereditary chieftain. 2. A division of a tribe tracing descent from a common ancestor.

3. A large group of relatives, friends, or associates. [Middle English, from Scottish Gaelic clann, family, from Old Irish cland, offspring, from Latin planta, plant, sprout. See plat- in Appendix.]

clan·des·tine (klän-dēs'tīn) adj. Kept or done in secret, often in order to conceal an illicit or improper purpose. See Synonyms at secret. [Latin clandestīnus, probably blend of clam-de*, secretly (from clam); see kel-¹ in Appendix, and intestīnus, internal; see INTESTINE.] —clan-des'tine-ly adv. —clan-des'tine-ness, clan'des-tin'i-ty n.

clang (kläng) n. 1. A loud, resonant, metallic sound. 2. The strident call of a crane or goose. — v. intr. tr. clanged, clang-ing, clangs. To make or cause to make a clang. [Probably from Latin clangere, to ring, clang.]

clang·er (kläng'ər) n. Chiefly British. A blunder; a faux pas.

clan·gor (kläng'ər, kläng'gər) n. 1. A clang or repeated clanging. 2. A loud racket; a din. — v. intr. clan-gored, clan-gor-ing, clan-gors. To make a clangor. [Latin, from clangere, to clang.] —clan'gor-ous adj.

—clan'gor-ous-ly adv.

clan·gour (kläng'ər, kläng'gər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of clangor.

clank (klǎngk) n. A metallic sound, sharp and hard but not resonant: the clank of chains. — v. intr. clanked, clank-ing, clanks. To make a sharp, hard, metallic sound. [Probably imitative.] — clank'y adj.

clan-nish (klǎn'ish) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a clan.

2. Inclined to cling together as a group and exclude outsiders. — clan'nish-ly adv. — clan'nish-ness n.

clans-man (klǎnz'mən) n. A man belonging to a clan.

clans-wom-an (klǎnz'wōm'ən) n. A woman belonging to a clan.

clap¹ (klǎp) v. clapped, clap-ping, claps. — v. intr. 1. To strike the palms of the hands together with a sudden explosive sound, as in applauding. 2. To come together suddenly with a sharp sound. — v. tr. 1. To strike together with a sharp sound, as one hard surface on another: clapped a book on the desk. 2. To strike (the hands) together with an abrupt, loud sound, usually repeatedly: clapped hands in time to the music. 3. To strike lightly but firmly with the open hand, as in greeting: clapped me on the shoulder. 4. To put or place quickly and firmly: clapped the purse snatcher in jail; clapped a lid on the box. 5. To arrange hastily: clapped together a plan. — n. 1. The act or sound of clapping the hands. 2. A sudden, loud, explosive sound: a clap of thunder. 3. A sharp blow with the open hand; a slap. 4. Obsolete. A sudden stroke of fortune, especially of bad luck. [Middle English clappen, from Old English clæppan, clappian, to throb, and from Old Norse klappa, to clap, pat.]

clap² (klǎp) n. Vulgar Slang. Gonorrhea. Often used with the. [Probably from obsolete French clapoir, bubo, from Old French clapier, brothel, from Old Provençal, rabbit warren, from clap, heap of stones, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

clap-board (klǎb'ərd, klǎp'bōrd', -bōrd') n. A long, narrow board with one edge thicker than the other, overlapped horizontally to cover the outer walls of frame structures. Also called weatherboard — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a clapboard house; a clapboard roof. — v. tr.

clap-board-ed, clap-board-ing, clap-boards. To cover with clapboards.

[Partial translation of Dutch klaphout : klappen, to split, crack + Middle Dutch holt, board.]

clap-per (klǎp'ər) n. 1. One who applauds. 2. The tongue of a bell. 3. Slang. The tongue of a garrulous person. 4. clappers. Two flat pieces of wood held between the fingers and struck together rhythmically.

clapper rail (klǎp'ər rāl) n. A North American bird (Rallus longirostris) of coastal marshes, characterized by a henlike appearance, brownish plumage, long bill, and clattering cry.

clap-trap (klǎp'trǎp') n. Pretentious, insincere, or empty language. See Synonyms at bombast. [Obsolete claptrap, a theatrical trick to win applause : CLAP¹ + TRAP¹.]

claque (klāk) n. 1. A group of persons hired to applaud at a performance. 2. A group of fawning admirers. [French, from cliquer, to clap, of imitative origin.]

Clare-mont (klâr'mönt') A city of southern California northeast of Pomona. It is mainly residential and the site of the associated Claremont Colleges. Population, 32,503.

clar-ence (klâr'əns) n. A four-wheeled closed carriage with seats for four passengers. [After the Duke of Clarence (1765-1837), later William IV of England.]

Clar-en-don (klâr'ən-dən), First Earl of Title of Edward Hyde. 1609-1674. English politician and historian who was falsely accused of treason and banished (1667). While in France he wrote his major work, The History of the Rebellion and Civil Wars in England (1702-1704).

Clare of As-si-si (klâr ūf ə-sē'zē, -sē, ə-sīs'ē), Saint. 1194-1253. Italian nun and religious leader who founded with Saint Francis of Assisi the first Franciscan order of nuns, the Poor Clares. She was canonized in 1255.

clar-et (klâr'īt) n. 1. a. A dry red wine produced in the Bordeaux region of France. b. A similar wine made elsewhere. 2. Color. A dark or grayish purplish red to dark purplish pink. [Middle English, light-colored wine, from Old French (vin) claret, diminutive of clair, clear : from Latin clārus; see CLEAR.]

claret cup (klâr'īt kŭp) n. A chilled drink made of claret mixed with soda, fruit juices, brandy, and sugar.

clar-i-fy (klâr'ə-fī') v. clar-i-fied, clar-i-fy-ing, clar-i-fies. — v. tr. 1. To make clear or easier to understand; elucidate: clarified her intentions. 2. To clear of confusion or uncertainty: clarify the mind. 3. To make clear by removing impurities or solid matter, as by heating gently: clarify butter. — v. intr. To become clear. [Middle English clarifien, from Old French clarifier, from Late Latin clārificāre : Latin clārus, clear; see CLEAR + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] — clar'i-fi-ca-tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. — clar'i-fi'er n.

clar-i-net (klâr'ə-nět') n. Music. A woodwind instrument having a straight, cylindrical tube with a flaring bell and a single-reed mouthpiece, played by means of finger holes and keys. [French clarinette, feminine diminutive of Old French clarin, clarion, clarion; see CLARION, or of Provençal clarin, oboe (from Old Provençal clar, clear, from Latin clārus); see CLEAR.] — clar'i-net/ist, clar'i-net/tist n.

clar-i-on (klâr'ē-ən) adj. Loud and clear: a clarion call to resistance. — n. Music. 1. A medieval trumpet with a shrill, clear tone. 2. The sound of this instrument or a sound resembling it. [Middle English clarioun, a clarion, from Old French clarion, from Medieval Latin clāriō, clāriōn-, from Latin clārus, clear. See CLEAR.]

clar-i-ty (klâr'ī-tē) n. 1. Clearness of appearance: the clarity of the mountain air. 2. Clearness of thought or style; lucidity: writes with clarity and perception.

[Middle English clarite, brightness, from Latin clāritās, clearness, from clārus, clear. See CLEAR.]

Clark (klärk) An unincorporated community of northeast New Jersey southwest of Elizabeth. It is mainly residential. Population, 16,699.

Clark (klärk), Alvan. 1804-1887. American astronomer and lens manufacturer who with his son Alvan Graham Clark (1832-1897) made the objective lenses of the world's two largest refracting telescopes, one at Lick Observatory in California (1888) and one at Yerkes Observatory in Wisconsin (1897).

Clark (klärk), Charles Joseph. Known as "Joe." Born 1939. Canadian politician who served as prime minister (1979-1980).

Clark (klärk), George Rogers. 1752-1818. American military leader and frontiersman who led numerous raids on British troops and Native Americans in the Northwest Territory during the Revolutionary War.

Clark (klärk), James Beauchamp. Known as "Champ." 1850-1921. American legislator who was speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives (1911-1919).

Clark (klärk), John Bates. 1847-1938. American economist known for his theory of marginal productivity. He wrote The Philosophy of Wealth (1885) and The Distribution of Wealth (1899).

Clark (klärk), Kenneth Bancroft. Born 1914. Panamanian-born American psychologist and author who demonstrated the psychological effects of racial segregation and ghetto life, influencing the Supreme Court ruling in Brown v. Board of Education (1954).

Clark (klärk), Sir Kenneth McKenzie. 1903-1983. British art historian whose works include The Nude (1955), Civilisation (1970), and Feminine Beauty (1980).

Clark (klärk), Mark Wayne. 1896-1984. American general who was Allied commander in North Africa and Italy in World War II and supreme commander of United Nations forces in Korea (1952-1953).

Clark (klärk), Tom Campbell. 1899-1977. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1949-1967).

Clark (klärk), William. 1770-1838. American explorer who joined Meriwether Lewis in an expedition to the Pacific Ocean (1804-1806). Clark was responsible for the careful mapmaking en route.

Clarke (klärk), Charles Cowden. 1787-1877. British Shakespearean scholar who collaborated with his wife Mary Victoria Clarke (1809-1898) on Recollections of Writers (1878) and The Shakespeare Key (1879).

Clarke (klärk), James Freeman. 1810-1888. American religious reformer, abolitionist, and advocate of woman suffrage.

Clarke (klärk), John Hessin. 1857-1945. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1916-1922).

Clark Fork (klärk fôrk) A river rising in southwest Montana near Butte and flowing about 579 km (360 mi) generally north then northwest to Pend Oreille Lake in the Idaho Panhandle.

clark·i·a (klär'kē-ə) n. Any of various annual, chiefly western North American plants of the genus Clarkia, several of which are cultivated for their showy red, purple, pink, or white flowers. [New Latin Clarkia, genus name, after William CLARK.]

Clarks-burg (klärks'bûrg') A city of northern West Virginia south-southeast of Wheeling. It was an important Union supply base during the Civil War. Population, 18,059.

Clarks-dale (klärks'däl') A city of northwest Mississippi near the Arkansas border. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 19,717.

Clarks-ville (klärks'vil') 1. A town of southern Indiana on the Ohio River opposite Louisville, Kentucky. It was founded in 1784 by the explorer George Rogers Clark. Population, 19,833. 2. A city of northwest Tennessee on the Cumberland and Red rivers northwest of Nashville. An important tobacco market, it is also a manufacturing center. Population, 75,494.

clar·y (klâr'ē) n. pl. clar·ies. A stout aromatic Mediterranean herb (Salvia sclarea) in the mint family, having showy violet, pink, or white flower clusters and yielding an essential oil used as a flavoring and in perfumery. Also called clary sage [Middle English clare, from Medieval Latin sclarea, and from Old English slaria.]

clash (klăsh) v. clashed, clash·ing, clash·es. — v. intr. 1. To collide with a loud, harsh, usually metallic noise: cymbals clashing. 2. To come into conflict; be in opposition: factions that clashed on a tax increase; an eyewitness account that clashed with published reports. 3. To create an unpleasant visual impression when placed together: colors that clash. — v. tr. To strike together with a loud, harsh, metallic noise. — n. 1. A loud, harsh noise, such as that made by two metal objects in collision. 2. A conflict, as between opposing or irreconcilable ideas. See Synonyms at discord. 3. An encounter between hostile forces; a battle or skirmish. [Imitative.]

clasp (klăsp) n. 1. A fastening, such as a hook or buckle, used to hold two or more objects or parts together. 2. a. An embrace or hug. b. A grip or grasp of the hand. 3. A small metal bar or other device attached to the ribbon of a military decoration to indicate the action or service for which it was awarded or an additional award of the same medal. — v. tr. clasped, clasp·ing, clasps. 1. To fasten with or as if with a clasp. 2. To hold in a tight embrace. 3. To grip firmly in or with the hand; grasp. [Middle English claspe, probably ultimately from Old English clyppan, to grasp, hold.]

clasp·er (klăs'pər) n. 1. One that clasps. 2. Any of the appendages of the male of certain insects and crustaceans that are used during copulation to hold the female. 3. A posterior extension on each of the pelvic fins of male elasmobranch fishes that aids in the transmission of sperm during copulation.

clasp-ing (kläs'pīng) adj. Botany. Denoting a leaf whose base partially or completely surrounds a stem.

clasp knife (kläsp nīf) n. A pocketknife with a folding blade.

class (kläs) n. Abbr. cl. 1. A set, collection, group, or configuration containing members regarded as having certain attributes or traits in common; a kind or category. 2. A division based on quality, rank, or grade, as: a. A grade of mail: a package sent third class. b. A quality of accommodation on public transport: tourist class. 3. a. A social stratum whose members share certain economic, social, or cultural characteristics: the lower-income classes. b. Social rank or caste, especially high rank. c. Informal. Elegance of style, taste, and manner: an actor with class. 4. a. A group of students or alumni who have the same year of graduation. b. A group of students who meet at a regularly scheduled time to study the same subject. c. The period during which such a group meets: had to stay after class. 5. Biology. A taxonomic category ranking below a phylum or division and above an order. See Table at taxonomy. 6. Statistics. An interval in a frequency distribution. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: class warfare; a class picnic. — v. tr. classed, class-ing, class-es. To arrange, group, or rate according to qualities or characteristics; assign to a class; classify. [French classe, from Latin classis, class of citizens. See kelə-² in Appendix.]

class. abbr. 1. Classic; classical. 2. Classification; classified.

class act (kläs äkt) n. Informal. One of distinctive and superior quality: “In this world of often tacky entertainment they have just witnessed the definition of a ‘class act’” (Linda Bird Francke).

class action (kläs äk'shən) n. Law. A lawsuit brought by one or more plaintiffs on behalf of a large group of others who have a common interest. — class'-ac-tion (kläs'äk'shən) adj.

class-con-scious (kläs'kōn'shəs) adj. 1. Aware of belonging to a particular socioeconomic class. 2. Supportive of class solidarity. — class'-con's-cious-ness n.

clas-ses (kläs'ēz) n. Plural of classis.

clas-sic (kläs'īk) adj. 1. a. Belonging to the highest rank or class. b. Serving as the established model or standard: a classic example of colonial architecture. c. Having lasting significance or worth; enduring. 2. a. Adhering or conforming to established standards and principles: a classic piece of research. b. Of a well-known type; typical: a classic mistake. 3. Abbr. class. Of or characteristic of the literature, art, and culture of ancient Greece and Rome; classical. 4. a. Formal, refined, and restrained in style. b. Simple and harmonious; elegant: the classic cut of a suit; the classic lines of a clipper ship. 5. Having historical or literary associations: classic battlefields of the Civil War. — n. 1. An artist, author, or work generally considered to be of the highest rank or excellence, especially one of enduring significance. 2. A work recognized as definitive in its field. 3. a. A literary work of ancient Greece or Rome. b. classics. The languages and literature of ancient Greece and Rome. Used with the. c. One that is of the highest rank or class: The car was a classic of automotive design. 4. A typical or traditional example. 5. Informal. A superior or unusual example of its kind: The reason he gave for being late was a classic. 6. A traditional event, especially a major sporting event that is held annually: a golf classic.

clas-si-cal (klās'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Abbr. class. a. Of or relating to the ancient Greeks and Romans, especially their art, architecture, and literature.

b. Conforming to the artistic and literary models of ancient Greece and Rome.

c. Versed in the classics: a classical scholar. 2. Of or relating to the most artistically developed stage of a civilization: Chinese classical poetry. 3. Abbr. class.

Music. a. Of or relating to European music during the latter half of the 18th and the early 19th centuries: a classical work by Mozart. b. Of or relating to music in the educated European tradition, such as symphony and opera, as opposed to popular or folk music. 4. Of, relating to, or being a variety of a language that is epitomized by a prestigious body of literature. 5. a. Standard and authoritative rather than new or experimental: classical methods of navigation. b. Well-known; classic: the classical argument between free trade and protectionism. 6. Of or relating to nonrelativistic or nonquantum physics: classical mechanics.

7. Relating to or consisting of studies in the humanities and general sciences: a classical curriculum. —clas'si-cal'i-ty (-kāl'ī-tē), clas'si-cal-ness n.

—clas'si-cal-ly adv.

classical conditioning (klās'ī-kəl kən-dīsh'ə-nīŋ) n. Psychology. A process of behavior modification by which a subject comes to respond in a desired manner to a previously neutral stimulus that has been repeatedly presented along with an unconditioned stimulus that elicits the desired response.

clas-si-cism (klās'ī-sīz'əm) also clas-si-cal-ism (-kə-līz'əm) n. 1. Aesthetic attitudes and principles manifested in the art, architecture, and literature of ancient Greece and Rome and characterized by emphasis on form, simplicity, proportion, and restraint. 2. Adherence to the aesthetic values embodied in ancient Greek and Roman art and literature. 3. Classical scholarship. 4. A Greek or Latin expression or idiom.

clas-si-cist (klās'ī-sīst) n. 1. One versed in the classics; a classical scholar. 2. An adherent of classicism. 3. An advocate of the study of ancient Greek and Latin.

clas-si-cize (klās'ī-sīz') v. clas-si-cized, clas-si-ciz-ing, clas-si-ciz-es. — v. tr. To make classic or classical. — v. intr. To conform to classic style.

clas-si-fi-ca-tion (klās'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. Abbr. cl., class. 1. The act or result of classifying. 2. A category or class. 3. Biology. The systematic grouping of organisms into categories on the basis of evolutionary or structural relationships between them; taxonomy. —clas'si-fi-ca-to'ri-ly (kläs'ə-fī-kə-tôr'ə-lē, -tôr'-, klə-sīf'ī-) adv. —clas'si-fi-ca-to'ry (kläs'ə-fī-kə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, klə-sīf'ī-, kläs'ə-fī-kā'tə-rē) adj.

clas-si-fied (kläs'ə-fīd') adj. Abbr. class. 1. Arranged in classes or categories.

2. Available to authorized persons only, as for reasons of national security: a classified document.

classified advertisement (kläs'ə-fīd' äd'vər-tīz'mənt) n. An advertisement, usually brief and in small type, printed in a newspaper or magazine under headings with others of the same category.

clas-si-fi-er (kläs'ə-fī'ər) n. Linguistics. A word or morpheme used in some languages in certain contexts, such as counting, that indicates the semantic class to which an item belongs. For example, hon is used in Japanese in counting long, slender objects such as sticks or pencils.

clas-si-fy (kläs'ə-fī') v. tr. clas-si-fied, clas-si-fy-ing, clas-si-fies. 1. To arrange or organize according to class or category. 2. To designate (a document, for example) as confidential, secret, or top secret. —clas'si-fi'a-ble adj.

clas-sis (kläs'is) n. pl. clas-ses (-ēz). Ecclesiastical. 1. A governing body of pastors and elders in certain Reformed churches, having jurisdiction over local churches. 2. The district or churches governed by such a body. [Latin, class of citizens. See CLASS.]

class-ism (kläs'iz'əm) n. Bias based on social or economic class. —class'ist adj. & n.

class-less (kläs'līs) adj. 1. Lacking social or economic distinctions of class: a classless society. 2. Belonging to no particular social or economic class.

class-mate (kläs'māt') n. A member of the same class at school.

clas-son (kläs'ŏn) n. Either of two massless bosons, the photon and the graviton, that are quanta of the two classical fields, electromagnetic and gravitational. [CLASS(ICAL) + (BOS)ON.]

class-room (kläs'rōōm', -rōōm') n. A room or place especially in a school in which classes are conducted: a second-floor classroom; an outdoor classroom. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: classroom teachers; classroom instruction.

class-y (kläs'ē) adj. class-i-er, class-i-est. Informal. Highly stylish; elegant. —class'i-ness n.

clast (kläst) n. A rock fragment or grain resulting from the breakdown of larger rocks. [From Greek klastos, broken, from klan, to break.]

clas-tic (kläs'tik) adj. 1. Separable into parts or having removable sections: a clastic anatomical model. 2. Geology. Made up of fragments of preexisting rock; fragmental. [From Greek klastos, broken. See CLAST.] —clas'tic n.

clath-rate (kläth'rāt') adj. 1. Biology. Having a latticelike structure or appearance: clathrate foliage. 2. Chemistry. Of or relating to inclusion complexes in which molecules of one substance are completely enclosed within the crystal structure of another. — n. Chemistry. A clathrate compound, such as urea. [Latin clāthrātus, past participle of clāthrāre, to furnish with a lattice, from clāthrī, clātra, lattice, from Greek klēithra, pl. of klēithron, door bar, from kleiein, to close.]

clat·ter (klăt'ṭər) v. clat·tered, clat·ter·ing, clat·ters. — v. intr. 1. To make a rattling sound. 2. To move with a rattling sound: clattering along on roller skates. 3. To talk rapidly and noisily; chatter. — v. tr. To cause to make a rattling sound. — n. 1. A rattling sound: the clatter of dishes in the kitchen. 2. A loud disturbance; a racket: the clatter of the subway train. 3. Noisy talk; chatter. [Middle English clateren, from Old English clatrian*. See gal- in Appendix.]

—clat'ter·er n.

Claude (klōd), Albert. 1899-1983. Luxembourg-born Belgian biologist. He shared a 1974 Nobel Prize for contributions to the understanding of living cells.

Clau·del (klō-dě'l'), Paul Louis Charles. 1868-1955. French diplomat and writer whose works include poetry and a number of plays, such as Tidings Brought to Mary (1912).

clau·di·ca·tion (klô'dī-kā'shən) n. A halt or lameness in a person's walk; a limp. [Middle English claudicacioun, from Latin claudicātiō, claudicātiōn-, from claudicātus, past participle of claudicāre, to limp, from claudus, lame.]

Clau·di·us I (klô'dē-əs), In full Tiberius Claudius Drusus Nero Germanicus. 10 B.C.-A.D. 54. Emperor of Rome (A.D. 41-54) who became ruler after Caligula was murdered. He was poisoned by his wife, Agrippina, after her son Nero was named as heir.

Clau·di·us II (klô'dē-əs), In full Marcus Aurelius Claudius Gothicus. A.D. 214-270. Emperor of Rome (268-270) who defeated the Goths in 269.

Clau·di·us¹ (klô'dē-əs), Appius. In full Appius Claudius Crassus. fl. fifth century B.C. Roman decemvir (451-449) whose actions provoked a plebian revolt and the overthrow of the decemvirs.

Clau·di·us² (klô'dē-əs), Appius. In full Appius Claudius Caecus. fl. fourth-third century B.C. Roman censor and consul who built the first Roman aqueduct and began construction of the Appian Way.

clause (klôz) n. Abbr. cl. 1. Grammar. A group of words containing a subject and a predicate and forming part of a compound or complex sentence. 2. A distinct article, stipulation, or provision in a document. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin clausa, close of a rhetorical period, from feminine of Latin clausus, past participle of claudere, to close.] —claus'al (klô'zəl) adj.

Clau·se·witz (klou'zə-vīts), Karl von. 1780-1831. Prussian army officer and military theorist who proposed the doctrines of total war and war as an instrument of policy. His treatise On War was published posthumously (1833).

claus·tral (klô'strəl) adj. Variant of cloistral.

claus·tro·pho·bi·a (klô'strə-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of being in narrow or enclosed spaces. [Latin claustrum, enclosed place; see CLOISTER + -PHOBIA.]

—claus'tro·phobe' n.

claus·tro·pho·bic (klô'strə-fō'bĭk) adj. 1. a. Relating to or suffering from claustrophobia. b. Uncomfortably closed or hemmed in. 2. Usage Problem. Tending to induce claustrophobia; uncomfortably confined or crowded: a claustrophobic little room. —claus'tro·pho'bi·cal·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Clinically speaking, claustrophobic denotes a pathological disposition to feel terror in closed spaces. But like other terms from clinical psychology (narcissism and schizophrenic, for example), the word has been applied more loosely in general usage: at first to refer to a temporary feeling of being closed in (as in I felt claustrophobic in that tiny room) and then to refer to a space that induces such sensations (as in The staff members are jammed into a nest of claustrophobic offices). This latter usage was unacceptable to 74 percent of the members of the Usage Panel, many of whom said that claustrophobic should be used only to describe a psychological state. In defense of this usage, however, it can be pointed out that it is well established and that it follows a general tendency to combine adjectives with nouns according to a progressively looser construal of the semantic connection between the two. Thus the phrase topless swimsuit came to be followed by topless dancers, which led in turn to topless bars, topless districts, and topless ordinances. By the same token, a room that induces a particular emotion may be described as sad or cheerful without objection, and there seems to be no principled basis for drawing the line at calling it claustrophobic.

cla·vate (klā'vāt') adj. Biology. Having one end thickened; club-shaped: clavate antennae. [From Latin clāva, club.] —cla'vate'ly adv.

clave¹ (klāv) v. Archaic. A past tense of cleave¹.

clave² (klāv) v. Archaic. A past tense of cleave².

cla·ver (klā'vər) Scots. v. intr. cla·vered, cla·ver·ing, cla·vers. To gossip or talk idly. — n. Gossip; idle talk. [Perhaps of Celtic origin.]

clav·i·chord (klāv'i-kôrd') n. Music. An early keyboard instrument with a soft sound produced by small brass wedges striking horizontal strings. [Middle English clavicord, from Medieval Latin clāvichordium: Latin clāvis, key + Latin chorda, string; see CORD.] —clav'i·chord'ist n.

clav·i·cle (klāv'i-kəl) n. 1. Either of two slender bones in human beings that extend from the manubrium of the sternum to the acromion of the scapula. Also called collarbone 2. One of the bones of the pectoral girdle in many vertebrates. [New Latin clāvīcula, from Latin, diminutive of clāvis, key (from its shape).]

—cla·vic'u·lar (klə-vĭk'yə-lər) adj. —cla·vic'u·late' (-lāt') adj.

clavier (klə-vîr', klā'vē-ər, kläv'ē-) n. Music. 1. A keyboard. 2. A stringed keyboard instrument, such as a harpsichord. [German Klavier, from French clavier, from Old French, key-bearer, from Latin clāvis, key.]

clavus (klā'vəs, klä'-) n. See corn². [Latin, nail, callus.]

claw (klô) n. 1. A sharp, curved nail on the toe of a mammal, reptile, or bird. 2. a. A chela or similar pincerlike structure on the end of a limb of a crustacean or other arthropod. b. A limb terminating in such a structure. 3. Something, such as the cleft end of a hammerhead, that resembles a claw. 4. Botany. The narrowed, stalklike basal part of certain petals or sepals. — v. tr. intr. clawed, clawing, claws. To scratch, dig, tear, or pull with or as if with claws. [Middle English clawe, from Old English clawu.] — clawed adj.

claw hammer (klô hăm'ər) n. 1. A hammer having a head with one end forked for removing nails. 2. Informal. A swallow-tailed coat.

claw hatchet (klô häch'it) n. A hatchet having one end of the head forked.

Claw-son (klô'sən) A city of southeast Michigan, an industrial suburb of Detroit. Population, 15,103.

clay (klā) n. 1. a. A fine-grained, firm earthy material that is plastic when wet and hardens when heated, consisting primarily of hydrated silicates of aluminum and widely used in making bricks, tiles, and pottery. b. A hardening or nonhardening material having a consistency similar to clay and used for modeling. 2. Geology. A sedimentary material with grains smaller than 0.002 millimeters in diameter. 3. Moist, sticky earth; mud. 4. The human body as opposed to the spirit. [Middle English clei, from Old English clæg.] — clay'ey (klā'ē), clay'ish adj.

Clay¹ (klā), Cassius Marcellus. 1810-1903. American abolitionist and public official who was minister to Russia (1861-1862 and 1863-1869).

Clay² (klā), Cassius Marcellus. See Muhammad Ali.

Clay (klā), Henry. Known as “the Great Compromiser.” 1777-1852. American politician who pushed the Missouri Compromise through the U.S. House of Representatives (1820) in an effort to reconcile free and slave states.

Clay (klā), Lucius DuBignon. 1897-1978. American army officer who commanded U.S. forces in Germany (1945-1949) and oversaw the Berlin airlift (1948).

Clay-ma-tion (klā-mā'shən) A service mark used for an animation process in which clay figurines are manipulated and filmed to produce an image of lifelike movement.

clay mineral (klā mĭn'ər-əl) n. Any of various hydrous silicates that have a fine crystalline structure and are components of clay.

clay-more (klā'môr', -môr') n. 1. A claymore mine. 2. A large, double-edged broadsword formerly used by Scottish Highlanders. [Scottish Gaelic claidheamh mōr, Celtic sword : Old Irish claideb, sword + mōr, great; see mē⁻³ in Appendix.]

claymore mine (klā'mô'r' mīn) n. A lens-shaped, ground-emplaced antipersonnel mine whose blast is focused in the direction of the oncoming enemy.

clay pigeon (klā pjī'ən) n. A clay disk thrown as a flying target for skeet and trapshooting. Also called bird

Clay·ton (klāt'n), John Middleton. 1796-1856. American public official who as secretary of state (1849-1850) negotiated the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty with Great Britain (1850), establishing the neutrality of a proposed canal across Central America.

cld. abbr. 1. Called. 2. Cleared.

clean (klēn) adj. clean·er, clean·est. 1. Free from dirt, stain, or impurities; unsoiled. 2. a. Free from foreign matter or pollution; unadulterated: clean air; clean drinking water. b. Not infected: a clean wound. 3. a. Producing relatively little pollution: a clean fuel; a cleaner, more efficient engine. b. Producing relatively little radioactive fallout or contamination: a clean nuclear bomb.

4. Having no imperfections or blemishes; regular: a clean, straight line. 5. Free from clumsiness; deft; adroit: a clean throw. 6. Devoid of restrictions or encumbrances: a clean bill of health. 7. Thorough; complete: a clean getaway.

8. Having few alterations or corrections; legible: clean manuscript. 9. Blank: a clean page. 10. a. Morally pure; virtuous: led a clean life. b. Having no marks of discredit or offense: a clean voting record. 11. Fit for all readers, listeners, or audiences; not ribald or obscene: a clean joke. 12. Honest or fair: a clean fighter; a clean competition. 13. Slang. a. Not carrying concealed weapons or drugs.

b. Free from narcotics addiction. c. Innocent of a suspected crime. — adv.

cleaner, cleanest. 1. So as to be unsoiled: wash the dishes clean. 2. In a fair manner: played the game clean. 3. In a clean or nonpolluting manner: a fuel that burns clean. 4. Informal. Entirely; wholly: clean forgot the appointment. — v.

cleaned, clean·ing, cleans. — v. tr. 1. To rid of dirt, rubbish, or impurities: clean a room; clean a suit. 2. To get rid of (impurities or dirt, for example); remove: cleaned up the trash; cleaned off the stains. 3. To prepare (fowl or other food) for cooking, as by removing the entrails or fat. 4. To remove the contents from; empty: cleaned my plate. — v. intr. To undergo or perform an act of cleaning. — phrasal verbs. clean out. 1. To rid of dirt, rubbish, or impurities. 2. To empty of contents or occupants. 3. Informal. To drive or force out: cleaned out the incompetent workers. 4. Slang. To deprive completely of money or material wealth: The robbery cleaned us out. clean up. 5. To make clean or orderly. 6. To make oneself clean, neat, or presentable. 7. To dispose of; settle: cleaned up the unpaid bills. 8. Slang. To make a large profit, often in a short period of time: cleaned up during the bull market. — idiom. clean house.

Slang. To eliminate or discard what is undesirable: The scandal forced the company to clean house. [Middle English clene, from Old English clæne.]

—clean'a·ble adj. —clean'ness n.

SYNONYMS: clean, antiseptic, cleanly, immaculate, spotless. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “free from dirt”: clean clothing; antiseptic surgical instruments; cats, cleanly animals; an immaculate tablecloth; spotless gloves.

ANTONYM: dirty

clean and jerk (klēn ənd jûrk) n. Sports. A lift in weightlifting in which a weight is raised to shoulder height, held there briefly, and then pushed overhead in a rapid motion of the arms, typically accompanied by a spring or lunge from the legs.

clean-cut (klēn/'küt') adj. 1. Clearly and sharply defined or outlined. 2. Neat and trim in appearance.

clean-er (klēn/'nər) n. 1. One whose work or business is cleaning. 2. A machine or substance used in cleaning. 3. Often cleaners. A dry-cleaning establishment.

clean-handed (klēn/'hän/'dīd) adj. Innocent; guiltless.

clean-limbed (klēn/'līmd') adj. Having well-formed limbs; well-proportioned.

clean-ly (klēn/'lē) adj. clean-li-er, clean-li-est. Habitually and carefully neat and clean. See Synonyms at clean. — adv. (klēn/'lē) In a clean manner.

—clean/li-ness (klēn/'lē-nīs) n.

clean room (klēn rōom) n. A room that is maintained virtually free of contaminants, such as dust or bacteria, used in laboratory work and in the production of precision parts for electronic or aerospace equipment. Also called white room cleanse (klēnz) v. tr. cleansed, cleans-ing, cleans-es. To free from dirt, defilement, or guilt; purge or clean. [Middle English clensen, from Old English clænsian, from clæne, pure, clean.]

cleans-er (klēn/'zər) n. 1. A detergent, powder, or other chemical agent that removes dirt, grease, or stains. 2. A skin lotion or cream that is used to clean the face.

clean-shav-en (klēn/'shā/'vən) adj. 1. Having the beard or hair shaved off. 2. Having recently shaved.

Cle-an-thes (klē-än/'thēz), 331?-232? B.C. Greek philosopher who succeeded Zeno as head of the Stoic school.

clean-up (klēn/'ŭp') n. 1. A thorough cleaning or ordering. 2. Informal. The final, often routine tasks that complete a project. 3. Slang. A very large profit; a killing. 4. Baseball. The fourth position on a team's batting order, usually reserved for a strong hitter who can drive in extra runs. —clean/up' adj.

clear (klîr) adj. clear-er, clear-est. 1. Free from clouds, mist, or haze: a clear day. 2. Free from what dims, obscures, or darkens; unclouded: clear water; bright, clear colors. 3. Free from flaw, blemish, or impurity: a clear, perfect diamond; a clear record with the police. 4. Free from impediment, obstruction, or hindrance; open: a clear view; a clear path to victory. 5. Plain or evident to the mind; unmistakable: a clear case of cheating. 6. Easily perceptible to the eye or ear; distinct. 7. Discerning or perceiving easily; keen: a clear mind. 8. Free from doubt or confusion; certain. 9. Free from qualification or limitation; absolute: a clear winner. 10. Free from guilt; untroubled: a clear conscience. 11. Having been freed from contact, proximity, or connection: At last we were clear of the danger. The ship was clear of the reef. 12. Free from charges or deductions; net: a clear profit. 13. Containing nothing. — adv. 1. Distinctly; clearly: spoke loud and clear. 2. Out of the way; completely away: stood clear of the doors. 3. Informal. All the way; completely: slept clear through the night; read the book clear to the end. — v. cleared, clear-ing, clears. — v. tr. 1. To make light, clear, or bright. 2. To rid of impurities, blemishes, muddiness, or foreign matter. 3. To free from confusion, doubt, or ambiguity; make plain or intelligible: cleared up the question of responsibility. 4. a. To rid of objects or obstructions: clear the table; clear the road of debris. b. To make (a way or clearing) by removing obstructions: clear a path through the jungle. c. To remove (objects or obstructions): clear the dishes; clear snow from the road. 5. a. To remove the occupants of: clear the theater. b. To remove (people): clear the children from the room. 6. Computer Science. a. To rid (a memory or buffer, for example) of instructions or data. b. To remove (instructions or data) from a memory. 7. To free from a legal charge or imputation of guilt; acquit: cleared the suspect of the murder charge. 8. To pass by, under, or over without contact: The boat cleared the dock. 9. To settle (a debt). 10. To gain (a given amount) as net profit or earnings. 11. To pass (a bill of exchange, such as a check) through a clearing-house. 12. a. To secure the approval of: The bill cleared the Senate. b. To authorize or approve: cleared the material for publication. 13. To free (a ship or cargo) from legal detention at a harbor by fulfilling customs and harbor requirements. 14. To give clearance or authorization to: cleared the plane to land. 15. To free (the throat) of phlegm by making a rasping sound. — v. intr. 1. To become clear: The sky cleared. 2. To go away; disappear: The fog cleared. 3. a. To exchange checks and bills or settle accounts through a clearing-house. b. To pass through the banking system and be debited and credited to the relevant accounts: The check cleared. 4. To comply with customs and harbor requirements in discharging a cargo or in leaving or entering a port. — n. A clear or open space. — phrasal verb. clear out. Informal. To leave a place, usually quickly. — idioms. clear the air. To dispel differences or emotional tensions. in the clear. 2. Free from burdens or dangers. 3. Not subject to suspicion or accusations of guilt: The evidence showed that the suspect was in the clear. [Middle English cler, from Old French, from Latin clārus, clear, bright. See kelə-² in Appendix.] — clear/a-ble adj. — clear'er n. — clear'ly adv. — clear'ness n.

SYNONYMS: clear, limpid, lucid, pellucid, transparent. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not opaque or clouded”: clear, sediment-free claret; limpid blue eyes; lucid air; a pellucid brook; transparent crystal. See also Synonyms at apparent clear-air turbulence (klîr'âr' tûr'byə-ləns) n. Abbr. CAT A severe atmospheric turbulence that occurs under otherwise tranquil conditions and subjects aircraft to strong updrafts and downdrafts.

ANTONYM: opaque

clear-ance (klîr'əns) n. 1. The act or process of clearing. 2. A space cleared; a clearing. 3. Abbr. cl. a. The amount of space or distance by which a moving object clears something. b. The height or width of a passage: an underpass with a 13-foot clearance. 4. An intervening space or distance allowing free play, as between machine parts. 5. Permission for an aircraft, ship, or other vehicle to proceed, as after an inspection of equipment or cargo or during certain traffic conditions. 6. Official certification of blamelessness, trustworthiness, or suitability. 7. A sale, generally at reduced prices, to dispose of old merchandise. 8. Abbr. cl. The passage of checks and other bills of exchange through a clearing-house. 9. Physiology. a. The removal by the kidneys of a substance from blood plasma. b. Renal clearance.

Cle-ar-chus (klē-är'kəs), fl. fifth century B.C. Spartan military leader and governor of Byzantium (408). His rule was so severe that the people surrendered the city to the Athenians in his absence.

clear-cut (klîr'küt') adj. 1. Distinctly and sharply defined or outlined. 2. Not ambiguous; clear and obvious. See Synonyms at apparent. See Synonyms at incisive. — v. clear-cut, clear-cut-ting, clear-cuts. — v. tr. To remove all of the trees in (a tract of timber) at one time. — v. intr. To log an area by removing all of the trees at one time. — n. A tract of timberland that has been clear-cut.

clear-eyed (klîr'īd') adj. 1. Having sharp, bright eyes; keen-sighted. 2. Mentally acute or perceptive.

Clear-field (klîr'fēld') A city of northern Utah south of Ogden. It is a trade center in an irrigated agricultural area. Population, 21,435.

clear-head-ed (klîr'hēd'īd') adj. Having a clear, orderly mind; sensible. — clear'-head'ed-ly adv. — clear'-head'ed-ness n.

clear-ing (klîr'īng) n. 1. The act or process of making or becoming clear. 2. A tract of land within a wood or other overgrown area from which trees and other obstructions have been removed. 3. An open space: a clearing in the fog. 4. a. The exchange among banks of checks, drafts, and notes and the settlement of consequent differences. b. clearings. The total of claims presented daily at a clearing-house.

clear-ing-house or clear-ing-house (klîr'ĩng-hous') n. Abbr. c.h., C.H. An office where banks exchange checks and drafts and settle accounts.

clear-sight-ed (klîr'sî'tid) adj. 1. Having sharp, clear vision. 2. Perceptive; discerning. —clear'-sight'ed-ly adv. —clear'-sight'ed-ness n.

clear-sto-ry (klîr'stôr'ē, -stōr'ē) n. Variant of clerestory.

Clear-wa-ter (klîr'wô'tər, -wöt'ər) A city of west-central Florida west of Tampa. It is a residential and resort community. Population, 98,784.

Clearwater Mountains (klîr'wô'tər moun'tənz) A range of north-central Idaho between the Salmon River and the Bitterroot Range. The highest point is about 2,745 m (9,000 ft).

Clearwater River (klîr'wô'tər rĭv'ər) 1. A river, about 209 km (130 mi) long, of northwest Saskatchewan and northeast Alberta, Canada. It joins the Athabasca River at Fort McMurray. 2. A river rising in the Bitterroot Range of northern Idaho and flowing about 306 km (190 mi) generally west to join the Snake River at Lewiston. Gold was discovered along the river in 1860.

clear-weed (klîr'wēd') n. Either of two eastern North American annual plants (Pilea pumila or P. fontana) having short, drooping clusters of tiny greenish-white flowers and translucent stems and leaves. Also called richweed clear-wing (klîr'wĩng') n. Any of various diurnal moths of the family Sesiidae, having scaleless, transparent wings and a wasplike appearance.

cleat (klēt) n. 1. A strip of wood or iron used to strengthen or support the surface to which it is attached. 2. a. A projecting piece of metal or hard rubber attached to the underside of a shoe to provide traction. b. cleats. A pair of shoes with such projections on the soles. 3. A piece of metal or wood having projecting arms or ends on which a rope can be wound or secured. 4. A wedge-shaped piece of material, such as wood, that is fastened onto something, such as a spar, to act as a support or prevent slippage. 5. A spurlike device used in gripping a tree or pole in climbing. — v. tr. cleat-ed, cleat-ing, cleats. To supply, support, secure, or strengthen with a cleat. [Middle English clēte, from Old English clēat*, lump, wedge.]

cleav-age (klē'vij) n. 1. The act of splitting or cleaving. 2. The state of being split or cleft; a fissure or division. 3. Mineralogy. The splitting or tendency to split of a crystallized substance along definite crystalline planes, yielding smooth surfaces. 4. Embryology. a. The series of mitotic cell divisions that produces a blastula from a fertilized ovum. It is the basis of the multicellularity of complex organisms. Also called segmentation b. Any single cell division in such a series. 5. Informal. The hollow between a woman's breasts, especially as revealed by a low neckline.

cleave¹ (klēv) v. cleft (klĕft) or cleaved or clove (klōv), cleft or cleaved or cloven (klō'vən), cleav-ing, cleaves. — v. tr. 1. To split with or as if with a sharp instrument. See Synonyms at tear¹. 2. To make or accomplish by or as if by cutting: cleave a path through the ice. 3. To pierce or penetrate. — v. intr. 1. Mineralogy. To split or separate, especially along a natural line of division. 2. To make one's way; penetrate. [Middle English cleven, from Old English clēo-fan. See gleubh- in Appendix.] — cleav'a-ble adj.

cleave² (klēv) v. intr. cleaved, cleav-ing, cleaves. 1. To adhere, cling, or stick fast. 2. To be faithful: cleave to one's principles. [Middle English cleven, from Old English cleofian.]

cleav-er (klē'vər) n. A heavy, broad-bladed knife or hatchet used especially by butchers.

cleav-ers (klē'vərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See bedstraw. [Middle English clivers, probably blend of clife, burdock (from Old English clife), clivres, claws (from Old English clifras, pl. of clifer).]

Cleburne (klē'bərn) A city of northeast Texas south of Fort Worth. It is a market center in an agricultural region. Population, 22,205.

cleek (klĕk) n. 1. Sports. A number one golf iron, having very little loft to the club face. 2. Scots. A large hook, such as one used to hang a pot over a fire. [Middle English cleike, large hook, from cleken, to grasp, variant of clechen, from Old English clācan*; probably akin to clyccan, to clutch.]

clef (klĕf) n. Music. A symbol indicating the pitch represented by one line of a staff, in relation to which the other pitches of the staff can be determined. [French, key, from Old French, from Latin clāvis.]

cleft (klĕft) v. A past tense and a past participle of cleave¹. — adj. 1. Divided; split. 2. Botany. Having indentations that extend about halfway to the center, as in certain leaves. — n. 1. A crack, crevice, or split. 2. A split or indentation between two parts, as of the chin. [Middle English, past participle of cleven, to split; see CLEAVE¹. N., from Middle English alteration (influenced by cleft), of clift, from Old English geclyft. See gleubh- in Appendix.]

cleft palate (klĕft pāl'īt) n. A congenital fissure in the roof of the mouth, resulting from incomplete fusion of the palate during embryonic development. It may involve only the uvula or extend through the entire palate.

Cleis-the-nes (klīs'thə-nēz') or Clis-the-nes (klīs'-), fl. sixth century B.C. Greek tyrant of Sicyon who led the Ionian population of the region in a revolt against the Dorians.

cleis-tog-a-mous (klī-stōg'ə-məs) also cleis-to-gam-ic (klī'stə-gām'ik) adj. Botany. Of or relating to a flower that does not open and is self-pollinated in the bud. [Greek kleistos, closed (from kleiein, to close) + -GAMOUS.]

—cleis-tog'a-mous-ly adv. —cleis-tog'a-my (-mē) n.

cleis-to-the-ci-um (klī'stə-thē'sē-əm) n. pl. cleis-to-the-ci-a (-sē-ə). Botany. A closed, spherical ascocarp. [New Latin : Greek kleistos, closed (from kleiein, to close) + Greek thēkion, small case, diminutive of thēkē, receptacle; see dhē- in Appendix.]

clem-a-tis (klēm'ə-tīs, klī-măt'is) n. Any of various ornamental, mostly climbing plants of the genus Clematis, native chiefly to northern temperate regions and having showy, variously colored flowers or decorative fruit clusters. [Latin clēmatis, a creeping plant, from Greek klēmatis, from klēma, klēmat-, twig.]

Cle-men-ceau (klēm'ən-sō', klě-män-), Georges. 1841-1929. French politician who served as premier (1906-1909 and 1917-1920) and played a key role in negotiating the Treaty of Versailles (1919).

clem-en-cy (klēm'ən-sē) n. pl. clem-en-cies. 1. A disposition to show mercy, especially toward an offender or enemy. See Synonyms at mercy. 2. A merciful, kind, or lenient act. 3. Mildness, especially of weather.

Clem-ens (klēm'ənz), Samuel Langhorne. Pen name Mark Twain. 1835-1910. American author and humorist who drew on his childhood along the Mississippi River to create masterpieces of humor and sarcasm, including Tom Sawyer (1876) and The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (1884).

clem-ent (klēm'ənt) adj. 1. Inclined to be lenient or merciful. 2. Mild: clement weather. [Middle English, from Latin clēmēns, clément-.] —clem'ent-ly adv.

Clem-ent I (klēm'ənt), Saint Known as "Clement of Rome." Died c. A.D. 97. Pope (88-97) who was one of the Apostolic Fathers and the author of the First Epistle to the Corinthians (c. 96).

Clem-ent V (klēm'ənt), Originally Bertrand de Got. 1264-1314. Pope (1305-1314) befriended by Philip IV of France, who arranged his election as pope and at whose request the papal residence was moved from Rome to Avignon (1309).

Clem-ent VII (klēm'ənt), Originally Giulio de' Medici. 1475?-1534. Pope (1523-1534) who refused to grant the divorce of Henry VIII from Catherine of Aragon and was unable to stop Henry's break with the Roman Catholic Church.

clem-en-tine (klēm'ən-tīn', -tēn') n. A deep red-orange, often seedless tangerinelike fruit. [French clémentine, perhaps after Père Clément (fl. 1902), French missionary in Africa.]

Clement of Al-ex-an-dri-a (klēm'ənt ũv əl'ig-zăn'drē-ə), Saint. A.D. 150?-220?. Greek Christian theologian who is considered the founder of the Alexandrian school of theology.

clench (klēnch) v. tr. clenched, clench-ing, clench-es. 1. To close tightly: clench one's teeth; clenched my fists in anger. 2. To grasp or grip tightly: clenched the steering wheel. 3. To clinch (a bolt, for example). 4. Nautical. To fasten with a clinch. — n. 1. A tight grip or grasp. 2. Something, such as a mechanical device, that clenches or holds fast. 3. Nautical. See clinch (n., sense 4). [Middle English clenchen, from Old English beclencan.]

cle·o·me (klē-ō'mē) n. Any of various often strong-smelling plants of the genus Cleome, native chiefly to warm regions and including several ornamentals. Also called spider flower [New Latin Cleome, genus name.]

Cle-on (klē'ōn), Died 422 B.C. Athenian political and military leader who led the democratic faction after the death of Pericles (429 B.C.).

Cle·o·pat·ra (klē'ə-păt'rə, -pă'trə, -pā'-), 69-30 B.C. Egyptian queen (51-49 and 48-30) noted for her beauty and charisma. Octavian defeated the forces led by Cleopatra and Mark Antony at Actium (31).

CLEP abbr. College Level Examination Program.

clepe (klēp) v. tr. cleped (klēpt, klēpt), cleped or clept (klēpt) or y-clept (ī-klēpt') or y-cleped (ī-klēpt', ī-klēpt'), clep-ing, clepes. Archaic. To call; name. [Middle English clepen, from Old English cleopian, to cry out.]

clep·sy·dra (klēp'sī-drə) n. pl. clep·sy·dras or clep·sy·drae (-drē'). An ancient device that measured time by marking the regulated flow of water through a small opening. Also called water glass [Latin, from Greek klepsudra : kleptein, kleps-, to steal + hudōr, water; see wed-¹ in Appendix.]

clept (klēpt) v. A past participle of clepe.

clere·sto·ry also clear·sto·ry (klîr'stôr'ē, -stôr'ē) n. pl. clere·sto·ries. 1. The upper part of the nave, transepts, and choir of a church, containing windows.

2. An upper portion of a wall containing windows for supplying natural light to a building. [Middle English clerestorie : perhaps cler, giving light, clear; see CLEAR + storie, tier; see STORY².]

cler·gy (klûr'jē) n. pl. cler·gies. The body of people ordained for religious service. See Usage Note at collective noun. [Middle English clergie, from Old French (from clerc, cleric, from Late Latin clēricus); see CLERK, and from Old French clergé, body of clerks (from Late Latin clēricātus, from clēricus, cleric, cleric).]

cler·gy·man (klûr'jē-mən) n. A man who is a member of the clergy.

cler·gy·wom·an (klûr'jē-wōm'ən) n. A woman who is a member of the clergy.

cler·ic (klër'ik) n. A member of the clergy. [Late Latin clēricus. See CLERK.]

cler·i·cal (klër'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to clerks or office workers or their work. 2. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the clergy. 3. Advocating clericalism. — n. 1. A member of the clergy. 2. clericals. Garments worn by the clergy. 3. An advocate of clericalism. — cler'·i·cal·ly adv.

clerical collar (klër'ī-kəl kōl'ər) n. A stiff white collar in the shape of a band fastened at the back of the neck, worn by certain members of the Christian clergy.

cler·i·cal·ism (klër'ī-kə-līz'əm) n. A policy of supporting the power and influence of the clergy in political or secular matters. — cler'·i·cal·ist n.

cler·i·hew (klĕr'ə-hyōō') n. A humorous verse, usually consisting of two unmatched rhyming couplets, about a person whose name generally serves as one of the rhymes. [After Edmund Clerihew Bentley (1875-1956), British writer.]

cler·i·sy (klĕr'ī-sē) n. Educated people considered as a group; the literati. [German Klerisei, clergy, from Medieval Latin clēricia, from Late Latin clēricus, priest. See CLERK.]

clerk (klûrk; British klärk) n. Abbr. clk. 1. A person who works in an office performing such tasks as keeping records, attending to correspondence, or filing.

2. a. A person who keeps the records and performs the regular business of a court or legislative body. b. Law. A law clerk, as for a judge. 3. A person who works at a sales counter or service desk, as at a store or hotel. 4. A cleric.

5. Archaic. A scholar. — v. intr. clerked, clerk-ing, clerks. To work or serve as a clerk: clerked in a store; clerks for a judge. [Middle English, clergyman, secretary, from Old English clerc, and Old French clerc, clergyman both from Late Latin clēricus, from Greek klērikos, belonging to the clergy, from klēros, inheritance, lot.] — clerk'dom n. — clerk'ship' n.

clerk·ly (klûrk'lē) adj. clerk·li·er, clerk·li·est. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a clerk. 2. Archaic. Scholarly. — clerk'li-ness n.

Cler·mont·Fer·rand (klĕr-mōn'fə-rän', -fĕ-) A city of central France west of Lyons. Clermont was founded in Roman times and merged with Montferrand, an 11th-century town, in 1731. Population, 147,361.

Cleve·land (klĕv'lænd) 1. A city of northeast Ohio on Lake Erie. A port of entry and industrial center, the city was laid out in 1796 by Moses Cleveland (1754-1806). Population, 505,616. 2. A city of southeast Tennessee east-northeast of Chattanooga. It is a trade center with varied industries. Population, 30,354.

Cleveland, Mount. A peak, 3,192.1 m (10,466 ft) high, of northwest Montana. It is the highest point in the Lewis Range of the Rocky Mountains.

Cleve·land (klĕv'lænd), (Stephen) Grover. 1837-1908. The 22nd and 24th President of the United States (1885-1889 and 1893-1897). He was known as an honest, independent President opposed to corruption and the spoils system.

Cleveland Heights (klĕv'lænd hīts) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 54,052.

clev·er (klĕv'ər) adj. clev·er·er, clev·er·est. 1. Mentally quick and original; bright. 2. Nimble with the hands or body; dexterous. 3. Exhibiting quick-wittedness: a clever story. 4. New England. Easily managed; docile: "Oxen must be pretty clever to be bossed around the way they are" (Dialect Notes). 5. New England. Affable but not especially smart. 6. Chiefly Southern U.S. Good-natured; amiable. See Regional note at ugly. [Middle English cliver; akin to East Frisian klifer, klüfer, perhaps from klüfen, to gnaw apart, work assiduously, of Low German origin; akin to Old Saxon klioban, to split, cleave. See gleubh- in Appendix.] —clev'er·ly adv. —clev'er·ness n.

SYNONYMS: clever, ingenious, shrewd. These adjectives are compared as they refer to mental adroitness or to practical ingenuity and skill. Clever, the most comprehensive, stresses mental quickness or adeptness: “If I ever felt inclined to be timid as I was going into a room full of people, I would say to myself, ‘You’re the cleverest member of one of the cleverest families in the cleverest class of the cleverest nation in the world, why should you be frightened?’” (Beatrice Webb). Ingenious implies originality and inventiveness: “an ingenious solution to the storage problem” (Linda Greider). Shrewd emphasizes mental astuteness and practical understanding: “a woman of shrewd intellect and masculine character” (Leslie Stephen).

REGIONAL NOTE: In the 17th and 18th centuries, in addition to its basic sense of “able to use the brain readily and effectively,” the word clever acquired a constellation of imprecise but generally positive senses in regional British speech: “clean-limbed and handsome,” “neat and convenient to use,” and “of an agreeable disposition.” Some of these British regional senses, brought over when America was colonized, are still found in American regional speech, as in the South, where clever can mean “good-natured, amiable,” in old-fashioned speech. The speech of New England extends the meaning “good-natured” to animals in the specific sense of “easily managed, docile.” Perhaps it was the association with animals that gave rise to another meaning, “affable but not especially smart,” applicable to people when used in old-fashioned New England dialects.

WORD HISTORY: Being too clever is thought to be unwise, and support for this popular notion may be afforded by the fact that the devil seems to have been the first “clever” one in English. The source of our word clever is probably the Middle English word cliver, recorded only once in a work written before 1250, in which it is said that the devil is “cliver on sinnes.” This means something like “skillful in respect to sins.” Cliver probably goes back to the Indo-European root gleubh-, “to cut, cleave.” Although the intermediate ancestry of cliver is unclear, the semantic connection has to do with penetration or incisiveness—that is, cutting through to the heart of the matter, just as a woodcarver cuts through material in order to realize a certain vision.

Cleves (klēvz) See Kleve.

clev·is (klēv'is) n. A U-shaped metal piece with holes in each end through which a pin or bolt is run, used as a fastening device. [From clevi, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse klofi, cleft. See gleubh- in Appendix.]

clew¹ (klō) n. 1. A ball of yarn or thread. 2. Greek Mythology. The ball of thread used by Theseus to find his way out of the labyrinth. 3. clews. The cords by which a hammock is suspended. 4. Also clue. Nautical. a. One of the two lower corners of a square sail. b. The lower aft corner of a fore-and-aft sail. c. A metal loop attached to the lower corner of a sail. — v. tr. clewed, clew-ing, clews. 1. To roll or coil into a ball. 2. Also clue. Nautical. To raise the lower corners of (a square sail) by means of clew lines. Used with up. [Middle English clewe, from Old English cliwen.]

clew² (klōō) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of clue¹.

clew line (klōō līn) n. Nautical. A rope used to raise the clew of a sail up to the yard or mast.

Cli·burn (klī'bərn), Van. Born 1934. American pianist who was the first American to win the Tchaikovsky Prize (1958).

cli·ché (klē-shā') n. A trite or overused expression or idea: “Even while the phrase was degenerating to cliché in ordinary public use... scholars were giving it increasing attention” (Anthony Brandt). [French, past participle of clicher, to stereotype (imitative of the sound made when the matrix is dropped into molten metal to make a stereotype plate).]

SYNONYMS: cliché, bromide, commonplace, platitude, truism. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “an expression or idea that has lost its originality or force through overuse”: a short story weakened by clichés; the old bromide that we are what we eat; uttered the commonplace “welcome aboard”; taking comfort in the platitude that all will end well; a once-original thought that has become a truism.

cli·chéd (klē-shād') adj. Having become stale or commonplace through overuse; hackneyed: “In the States, it might seem a little clichéd; in Paris, it seems fresh and original” (Nina Martin).

Cli·chy (klē-shē') A city of north-central France, a suburb of Paris. It was a residence of Merovingian royalty in the seventh century. Population, 46,895.

click (klik) n. 1. A brief, sharp, nonresonant sound: the click of a door latch. 2. A mechanical device, such as a pawl, that snaps into position. 3. Linguistics. An implosive stop found in some African languages and produced by raising the back of the tongue to make contact with the soft palate and simultaneously closing the lips or touching the teeth or alveolar ridge with the tip and sides of the tongue. In this sense, also called suction stop — v. clicked, click-ing, clicks.

— v. intr. 1. To produce a click or series of clicks. 2. Slang. a. To be a great success: The play clicked on Broadway. b. To function well together; hit it off. c. To become clear; fall into place. — v. tr. To cause to click, as by striking together: clicked his heels. [Imitative.] — click'er n.

click beetle (klik bēt'l) n. Any of various beetles of the family Elateridae, characterized by the ability to right themselves from an overturned position by flipping into the air with a clicking sound. Also called snapping beetle cli·ent (klī'ənt) n. 1. The party for which professional services are rendered, as by an attorney. 2. A customer or patron: clients of the hotel. 3. A person using the services of a social services agency. 4. One that depends on the protection of another. 5. A client state. 6. Computer Science. A computer or program that can download files for manipulation from a server. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cliēns, client-, dependent, follower. See klei- in Appendix.] —cli'ent-age (-ən-tij) n. —cli-en'tal (klī-ən'tl, klī'ən-) adj.

cli·en·tele (klī'ən-tēl', klē'an-) n. 1. The clients of a professional person or practice considered as a group. 2. A body of customers or patrons: a restaurant's clientele. [French clientèle, from Latin clientēla, clientship, from cliēns, client. See CLIENT.]

client state (klī'ənt stāt) n. A country that is dependent on the economic or military support of a larger, more powerful country: "Each superpower continues to arm its client states" (C.L. Sulzberger).

cliff (klif) n. A high, steep, or overhanging face of rock. [Middle English clif, from Old English.] —cliff'y adj.

cliff brake (klif brāk) n. Any of several ferns in the widely distributed genus Pellaea, typically growing in relatively dry, rocky areas or on cliffs and having pinnately compound, often leathery leaves.

cliff dweller (klif dwēl'ər) n. 1. A member of certain Anasazi groups of the southwest United States who built rock or adobe dwellings on sheltered ledges in the sides of cliffs. 2. Informal. A person who lives in a large apartment house, especially in a city. —cliff dwelling n.

cliff·hang·er (klif'häng'ər) n. 1. A melodramatic serial in which each episode ends in suspense. 2. A suspenseful situation occurring at the end of a chapter, a scene, or an episode. 3. A contest so closely matched that the outcome is uncertain until the end. —cliff/hang'ing adj.

Clif·ford (klif'ərd), Nathan. 1803-1881. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1858-1881).

Cliff·side Park (klif'sid' pārk) A borough of northeast New Jersey on the Palisades overlooking the Hudson River opposite New York City. It is mainly residential and has varied light industries. Population, 20,393.

cliff swallow (klif swōl'ō) n. A North American swallow (Petrochelidon pyr-rhonota) that builds a bottle-shaped nest of mud, grass, and twigs on the face of a cliff or bluff or under the eaves of a roof.

Clift (klift), Montgomery. 1920-1966. American actor known for his performances in Red River (1948), From Here to Eternity (1953), and Judgment at Nuremberg (1961).

Clif·ton (klif'tən) A city of northeast New Jersey near Paterson. It was formerly part of Passaic. Population, 71,742.

cli·mac·ter·ic (klī-māk'tər-ĭk, klī'māk-tĕr'ĭk) n. 1. a. A period of life characterized by physiological and psychic change that marks the end of the reproductive capacity of women and terminates with the completion of menopause. b. A corresponding period sometimes occurring in men that may be marked by a reduction in sexual activity, although fertility is retained. 2. A critical period or year in a person's life when major changes in health or fortune are thought to take place. 3. A critical stage, period, or year: "before the end of the millennium, whether [he] lives to see that ecclesiastical climacteric or not" (Conor Cruise O'Brien). — adj. 1. Of or relating to a climacteric. 2. Critical; crucial. [From Latin climactēricus, of a dangerous period in life, from Greek klimaktērikos, from klimaktēr, dangerous point, rung of a ladder, from klimax, ladder. See CLIMAX.]

cli·mac·tic (klī-māk'tĭk) also cli·mac·ti·cal (-tĭ-kəl) adj. Relating to or constituting a climax. — cli·mac'ti·cal·ly adv.

cli·mate (klī'mĭt) n. 1. The meteorological conditions, including temperature, precipitation, and wind, that characteristically prevail in a particular region. 2. A region of the earth having particular meteorological conditions: lives in a cold climate. 3. A prevailing condition or set of attitudes in human affairs: a climate of unrest. [Middle English climat, from Old French, from Late Latin clīma, clīmat-, from Greek klima, surface of the earth, region. See klei- in Appendix.]

cli·mat·ic (klī-măt'ĭk) adj. 1. Of or relating to climate. 2. Ecology. Influenced by or resulting from the prevailing climate. — cli·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

cli·ma·tol·o·gy (klī'mə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The meteorological study of climates and their phenomena. — cli'ma-to-log'ic (-mə-tl-ōj'ĭk), cli'ma-to-log'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. — cli'ma-to-log'i·cal·ly adv. — cli'ma-tol'o·gist n.

cli·max (klī'mäks') n. 1. The point of greatest intensity or force in an ascending series or progression; a culmination. See Synonyms at summit. 2. a. A series of statements or ideas in an ascending order of rhetorical force or intensity. b. The final statement in such a series. 3. a. A moment of great or culminating intensity in a narrative or drama, especially the conclusion of a crisis. b. The turning point in a plot or dramatic action. 4. See orgasm (n., sense 1). 5. A stage in ecological development in which a community of organisms, especially plants, is stable and capable of perpetuating itself. Also called climax community — v. tr. intr. cli·maxed, cli·max·ing, cli·max·es. To bring to or reach a climax. [Latin clīmax, rhetorical climax, from Greek klimax, ladder. See klei- in Appendix.]

climb (klĭm) v. climbed, climb·ing, climbs. — v. tr. 1. To move upward on or mount, especially by using the hands and feet or the feet alone; ascend: climb a mountain; climbed the stairs. 2. To grow in an upward direction on or over: ivy climbing the walls. — v. intr. 1. To move oneself upward, especially by using the hands and feet. 2. To rise slowly, steadily, or effortfully; ascend. See Synonyms at rise. 3. To move in a specified direction by using the hands and feet: climbed down the ladder; climbed out the window. 4. To slant or slope upward: The road climbs steeply to the top. 5. To engage in the activity or sport of mountain climbing. 6. To grow in an upward direction, as some plants do, often by means of twining stems or tendrils. — n. 1. An act of climbing; an ascent: a long, exhausting climb to the top. 2. A place to be climbed: The face of the cliff was a steep climb. [Middle English climben, from Old English climban.] — climb'able (klī'mə-bəl) adj.

climb-down or climb-down (klīm'doun') n. A retreat from an earlier position or opinion; a backing down: "Agreeing to give up their arms and to yield control of Tripoli represented a major climb-down" (Jim Muir).

climb·er (klī'mər) n. 1. One that climbs, especially a person who climbs mountains. 2. Sports. A device, such as a crampon, used in mountain climbing. 3. A plant that climbs. 4. A person who avidly seeks a higher social or professional position.

climb·ing fern (klī'mɪŋ fûrn) n. Any of various terrestrial ferns of the genus Lygodium, having a single pinnately compound leaf that climbs by twining, including L. palmatum of the eastern United States.

climbing iron (klī'mɪŋ ɪ'ərn) n. Sports. See crampon (n., sense 2).

climbing perch (klī'mɪŋ pûrch) n. A freshwater fish (Anabas testudineus) of tropical Asia, having modified gills allowing it to breathe air and pectoral fins adapted for traveling on land.

clime (klīm) n. Climate: in search of warmer climes. [Middle English, region of the earth, from Late Latin clīma, from Greek klima. See CLIMATE.]

clin- pref. Variant of clino-.

-clinal suff. Sloping: synclinal. [From Greek klinein, to lean. See klei- in Appendix.]

cli·nan·dri·um (klī-năn'drē-əm) n. pl. cli·nan·dri·a (-drē-ə). Botany. A hollow containing the anther in the upper part of the column of an orchid flower. [New Latin : Greek klinē, couch (from klinein, to recline); see klei- in Appendix + New Latin -andrium, stamen (from Greek anēr, andr-, man); see -ANDRY.] clinch (klɪnch) v. clinched, clinch·ing, clinch·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To fix or secure (a nail or bolt, for example) by bending down or flattening the pointed end that protrudes. b. To fasten together in this way. 2. To settle definitely and conclusively; make final: "The cocktail circuit is a constant and more contracts are clinched over pâté than over paper" (Ann L. Trebbe). 3. Nautical. To fasten with a clinch. — v. intr. 1. To be held together securely. 2. Sports. To hold a boxing opponent's body with one or both arms to prevent or hinder his punches. 3. Slang. To embrace amorously. — n. 1. Something, such as a clamp, that clinches. 2. The clinched part of a nail, bolt, or rivet. 3. Sports. An act or instance of clinching in boxing. 4. Nautical. A knot in a rope made by a half hitch with the end of the rope fastened back by seizing. Also called clench 5. Slang. An amorous embrace. [Variant of CLENCH.] clinch·er (klīn'chər) n. 1. One that clinches, as: a. A nail, screw, or bolt for clinching. b. A tool for clinching nails, screws, or bolts. 2. Informal. A point, fact, or remark that settles something conclusively; a decisive factor.

Clinch River (klīnch rīv'ər) A river rising in southwest Virginia and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) generally southwest across eastern Tennessee to the Tennessee River.

cline (klīn) n. Ecology. A gradual change in a character or feature across the distributional range of a species or population, usually correlated with an environmental or a geographic transition. [From Greek klīnein, to lean. See klei- in Appendix.] —clin'al (klī'nəl) adj.

-cline suff. Slope: anticline. [Back-formation from -CLINAL.]

cling (klīng) v. intr. clung (klŭng), cling·ing, clings. 1. To hold fast or adhere to something, as by grasping, sticking, embracing, or entwining: clung to the rope to keep from falling; fabrics that cling to the body. 2. To remain close; resist separation: We clung together in the storm. 3. To remain emotionally attached; hold on: clinging to outdated customs. — n. Botany. A clingstone. [Middle English clingen, from Old English clingan.] —cling'er n. —cling'y adj.

cling·fish (klīng'fīsh') n. pl. clingfish or cling·fish·es. Any of various small marine fishes of the family Gobiesocidae, having a large sucking disk under the front part of the body by which they fasten themselves to rocks and seaweed.

Cling-mans Dome (klīng'mənz dōm) A mountain, 2,026.1 m (6,643 ft) high, in the Great Smoky Mountains on the Tennessee-North Carolina border. It is the highest elevation of the range and the highest point in Tennessee.

cling·stone (klīng'stōn') adj. Of or relating to a fruit, especially a peach, having flesh that adheres closely to the stone. — n. A clingstone fruit, especially a peach.

clin·ic (klīn'īk) n. 1. A facility, often associated with a hospital or medical school, that is devoted to the diagnosis and care of outpatients. 2. A medical establishment run by several specialists working in cooperation and sharing the same facilities. 3. A group session offering counsel or instruction in a particular field or activity: a vocational clinic; a tennis clinic. 4. a. A seminar or meeting of physicians and medical students in which medical instruction is conducted in the presence of the patient, as at the bedside. b. A place where such instruction occurs. c. A class or lecture of medical instruction conducted in this manner. [French clinique, from Greek klinikē (tekhne), clinical (method), feminine of klinikos, from klinē, couch, bed. See klei- in Appendix.]

-clinic suff. 1. Sloping: isoclinic. 2. Having a specified number of oblique axial intersections: triclinic.

clin·i·cal (klīn'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or connected with a clinic.

2. Involving or based on direct observation of the patient: a clinical diagnosis.

3. Very objective and devoid of emotion; analytical: "He spoke in the clipped, clin- ical monotones typical of police testimony in court" (Connie Paige). 4. Suggestive of a medical clinic; austere and antiseptic: a clinical style of decor. —clin/i-cal-ly adv.

clinical thermometer (klīn'ī-kəl thər-mōm'ī-tər) n. A thermometer used to measure body temperature, especially a small glass thermometer designed with a narrowing above the bulb so that the mercury column stays in position when the instrument is removed from the body.

cli-ni-cian (klī-nīsh'ən) n. 1. A physician, psychologist, or psychiatrist specializing in clinical studies or practice. 2. One who conducts sessions or teaches at a clinic. [French clinicien, from clinique, clinic. See CLINIC.]

clink¹ (klīŋk) v. intr. tr. clicked, clink-ing, clicks. To make or cause to make a light, sharp ringing sound. — n. A light, sharp ringing sound, as of glass or metal. [Middle English clinken, probably from Middle Dutch klinken, of imitative origin.]

clink² (klīŋk) n. Slang. A prison or a prison cell; a jail: spent the night in the clink. [After Clink, a district of London famous for its prison.]

clink-er (klīŋ'kər) n. 1. The incombustible residue, fused into an irregular lump, that remains after the combustion of coal. 2. A partially vitrified brick or a mass of bricks fused together. 3. An extremely hard burned brick. 4. Vitrified matter expelled by a volcano. 5. Slang. a. A sour note in a musical performance: hit a clinker. b. A mistake; a blunder. c. Something of inferior quality; a conspicuous failure: a clinker of a show. 6. Chiefly British. Something admirable or first-rate. — v. intr. clink-ered, clink-er-ing, clink-ers. To form clinkers in burning. [Obsolete Dutch klinckaerd, from Middle Dutch klinken, to clink. See CLINK¹.]

clink-er-built (klīŋ'kər-bīlt') adj. Built with overlapping planks or boards, as a ship. [From obsolete clinker, clinch-nail, from Middle English clinken, probably variant of clenchen, to clench, from Old English beclencan.]

clino- or clin- pref. Slope; slant: clinometer. [New Latin, from Greek klinein, to slope. See klei- in Appendix.]

cli-nom-e-ter (klī-nōm'ī-tər) n. Any of various surveying instruments for measuring angles of elevation, slope, or incline, as of an embankment. Also called inclinometer —cli'no-met'ric (-nə-mēt'rik), cli'no-met'ri-cal adj. —cli-nom'e-try n.

clin-quant (klīŋ'kənt, klān-kān') adj. Glittering with gold or tinsel. — n. Imitation gold leaf; tinsel; glitter. [French, glistening, tinkling, present participle of obsolete clinquer, to clink, perhaps from Middle Dutch klinken. See CLINK¹.]

Clin-ton (klīn'tən) 1. An unincorporated community of west-central Maryland southeast of Washington, D.C. Andrews Air Force Base is nearby. Population, 19,987. 2. A city of east-central Iowa on the Mississippi River northeast of Davenport. It is a manufacturing and trade center in an agricultural region. Population, 32,828.

Clin·ton (klīn'tən), DeWitt. 1769-1828. American politician who as governor of New York (1817-1823 and 1825-1828) was a principal supporter of the Erie Canal (completed 1825).

Clin·ton¹ (klīn'tən), George. 1686?-1761. British naval officer and colonial administrator who served as governor of Newfoundland (1732-1741) and New York (1741-1753).

Clin·ton² (klīn'tən), George. 1739-1812. Vice President of the United States (1805-1812) under Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. As governor of New York (1777-1795) he was suspicious of centralized government and opposed New York's ratification of the U.S. Constitution.

Clin·ton (klīn'tən), Sir Henry. 1738-1795. British general in the American Revolution who was commander in chief of British forces in North America (1778-1781).

Clin·ton (klīn'tən), Hillary Rodham. Born 1947. First Lady of the United States (since 1993) as the wife of President Bill Clinton. She is an attorney and a noted spokesperson for children's rights.

Clin·ton (klīn'tən), James. 1733-1812. American military leader who fought in the French and Indian War (1755-1763) and served as a brigadier general during the American Revolution.

Clin·ton (klīn'tən), William Jefferson. Known as "Bill." Born 1946. The 42nd President of the United States (since 1993). He previously served as the governor of Arkansas (1979-1981 and 1983-1993).

clin-to-ni-a (klīn-tō'nē-ə) n. Any of various perennial herbs of the genus Clintonia in the lily family, native to North America and eastern Asia and having broad basal leaves, white, greenish-yellow, or purplish flowers, and blue or black berries. [New Latin Clintonia, genus name, after DeWitt CLINTON.]

Cli·o (klī'ō) n. 1. Greek Mythology. The Muse of history. 2. pl. Cli-os (klē'ō). A statuette awarded annually for outstanding achievement in radio and television advertising. [Latin, from Greek Kleiō, from kleiein, to tell. See kleu- in Appendix.]

cli·o·met·rics (klī'ə-mēt'riks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of history using economic models and advanced mathematical methods of data processing and analysis. [CLIO + -METRICS.] —cli'·o·met'ric adj. —cli'·o·me·tri'cian (-mī-trīsh'ən) n.

clip¹ (klīp) v. clipped, clip-ping, clips. — v. tr. 1. To cut, cut off, or cut out with or as if with shears: clip coupons; clipped three seconds off the record. 2. To make shorter by cutting; trim: clip a hedge. 3. To cut off the edge of: clip a coin. 4. To cut short; curtail. 5. a. To shorten (a word or words) by leaving out letters or syllables. b. To enunciate with clarity and precision: clip one's words.

6. Informal. To hit with a sharp blow: clipped me under the eye. 7. Slang. To cheat, swindle, or rob. — v. intr. 1. To cut something. 2. Informal. To move rapidly. — n. 1. The act of clipping. 2. Something clipped off, especially: a. The wool shorn at one shearing, as of sheep. b. A season's shearing. 3. A short extract from a film or videotape. 4. Informal. A quick, sharp blow: a clip on the ear. 5. Informal. A pace or rate: go at a fast clip. 6. A single occasion; a time: could write nine pages at a clip. 7. clips. A pair of shears or clippers. [Middle English clippen, from Old Norse klippa.]

clip² (klĭp) n. 1. Any of various devices for gripping or holding things together; a clasp or fastener. 2. A piece of jewelry that fastens with a clasp or clip; a brooch. 3. A cartridge clip. 4. Football. An act of clipping. — v. tr. clipped, clip-ping, clips. 1. To fasten with or as if with a clip; hold tightly. 2. Football. To block (an opponent who is not carrying the ball) illegally from the rear. 3. Archaic. To embrace or encompass. [Middle English, hook, from clippen, to clasp, embrace, from Old English clyppan.] clip-board (klĭp'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A small writing board with a spring clip at the top for holding papers or a writing pad.

clip joint (klĭp joint) n. Slang. A restaurant, nightclub, or other business where customers are regularly overcharged.

clip-on (klĭp'ôn', -ôn') adj. Designed to attach by means of a clip: clip-on earrings. — clip'-on' n.

clipped form (klĭpt fôrm) n. A word formed by dropping one or more syllables from a polysyllabic word, such as gas from gasoline or phone from telephone.

clip-per (klĭp'ər) n. 1. One that cuts, shears, or clips. 2. An instrument or tool for cutting, clipping, or shearing. Often used in the plural: nail clippers.

3. Nautical. A sharp-bowed sailing vessel of the mid-19th century, having tall masts and sharp lines and built for great speed. 4. One that moves very fast.

5. Electronics. See limiter (n., sense 2).

clip-ping (klĭp'ing) n. Something cut off or out, especially an item clipped from a newspaper or magazine.

clip-sheet (klĭp'shēt') n. A sheet of paper containing news items and other newspaper material, usually printed on only one side for convenience in clipping and reprinting.

clique (klĕk, klĭk) n. A small, exclusive group of friends or associates. See Synonyms at circle. — v. intr. cliqued, cliqu-ing, cliques. Informal. To form, associate in, or act as a clique. [French, from Old French, latch, or from obsolete French cliquer, to click, clink of imitative origin.] — cliqu'ey, cliqu'y, cliqu'ish adj. — cliqu'ish-ly adv. — cliqu'ish-ness n.

Clis-the-nes (klĭs'thə-nēz') See Cleisthenes.

cli-tel-lum (klĭ-tĕl'əm) n. pl. cli-tel-la (-tĕl'ə). A swollen, glandular, saddlelike region in the epidermis of certain annelid worms, such as the earthworm, that secretes a viscous fluid to form a cocoon for their eggs. [New Latin clitellum, sing. of Latin clitellae, packsaddle. See klei- in Appendix.]

clit·o·ris (klīt'ər-īs, klī'tər-) n. A small, elongated erectile organ at the anterior part of the vulva, homologous with the penis. [New Latin, from Greek kleitoris. See klei- in Appendix.] —clit'o·ral (-ər-əl) adj.

Clive (klīv), Robert Baron Clive of Plassey. 1725-1774. British soldier and statesman who was instrumental in securing Great Britain's interests in India.

clk. abbr. Clerk.

clm. abbr. Column.

clo·a·ca (klō-ā'kə) n. pl. clo·a·cae (-sē'). 1. A sewer or latrine. 2. Zoology.

a. The common cavity into which the intestinal, genital, and urinary tracts open in vertebrates such as fish, reptiles, birds, and some primitive mammals. b. The posterior part of the intestinal tract in various invertebrates. [Latin cloāca, sewer, canal.] —clo·a'cal (-kəl) adj.

cloak (klōk) n. 1. A loose outer garment, such as a cape. 2. Something that covers or conceals: a cloak of secrecy. — v. tr. cloaked, cloak·ing, cloaks. To cover or conceal with or as if with a cloak. See Synonyms at clothe. See Synonyms at disguise. See Synonyms at hide¹. [Middle English cloke, from Old North French cloque, cloak, bell (from its shape), from Medieval Latin clocca. See CLOCK¹.]

cloak-and-dag·ger (klōk'ən-däg'ər) adj. Marked by melodramatic intrigue and often espionage.

cloak fern (klōk fûrn) n. Any of various ferns in the genus Notholaena, native chiefly to the temperate and tropical Americas, having pinnately compound leaves, and often found in dry, rocky areas.

cloak·room (klōk'roōm', -rōōm') n. 1. A room where coats and other articles may be left temporarily, as in a theater or school. Also called coatroom 2. A private lounge adjacent to a legislative chamber.

clob·ber (klōb'ər) v. tr. clob·bered, clob·ber·ing, clob·bers. Slang. 1. To strike violently and repeatedly; batter or maul. 2. To defeat decisively. 3. To criticize harshly. [Origin unknown.]

clo·chard (klō-shär') n. pl. clo·chards (-shär'). A tramp; a vagrant. [French, from clocher, to limp, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin cloppicāre*, from clopus, lame person, alteration of Latin claudus.]

cloche (klōsh) n. 1. A close-fitting woman's hat with a bell-like shape. 2. A usually bell-shaped cover, used chiefly to protect plants from frost. [French, from Old French, bell, from Medieval Latin clocca. See CLOCK¹.]

clock¹ (klök) n. 1. An instrument other than a watch for measuring or indicating time, especially a mechanical or electronic device having a numbered dial and moving hands or a digital display. 2. A time clock. 3. A source of regularly occurring pulses used to measure the passage of time, as in a computer. 4. Any of various devices that indicate measurement, such as a speedometer or a taximeter.

5. Botany. The downy flower head of a dandelion that has gone to seed. — v.

clocked, clock-ing, clocks. — v. tr. 1. To time, as with a stopwatch: clock a runner. 2. To register or record with a mechanical device: clocked the winds at 60 miles per hour. — v. intr. To record working hours with a time clock: clocks in at 8 A.M. and out at 4 P.M. — idiom. clean (someone's) clock. Slang. To beat or defeat decisively: “Immense linemen declared their intentions to clean the clocks of opposing players” (Russell Baker). [Middle English clokke, from Old North French cloque, bell, or from Middle Dutch clocke, bell, clock both from Medieval Latin clocca, of imitative origin.] — clock'er n.

clock² (klök) n. An embroidered or woven decoration on the side of a stocking or sock. [Perhaps from CLOCK¹, bell (obsolete), from its original bell-shaped appearance.]

clock radio (klök rä'dē-ō) n. A radio having a built-in alarm clock that can be set to turn the radio on automatically.

clock-watch-er (klök'wôch'ər) n. A person who is eager for the time to pass, as at work or school. — clock'-watch'ing n.

clock-wise (klök'wîz') adv. & adj. Abbr. cw. In the same direction as the rotating hands of a clock.

clock-work (klök'wûrk') n. A mechanism of geared wheels driven by a wound spring, as in a mechanical clock. — idiom. like clockwork. With machinelike regularity and precision; perfectly: The project proceeded like clockwork.

clod (klöd) n. 1. A lump or chunk, especially of earth or clay. 2. Earth or soil. 3. A dull, stupid person; a dolt. [Middle English, variant of clot, lump. See CLOT.] — clod'dish adj. — clod'dish-ly adv. — clod'dish-ness n.

clod-hop-per (klöd'höp'ər) n. 1. A clumsy, coarse person; a bumpkin. 2. A big, heavy shoe.

clo-fi-brate (klō-fī'brāt, -fīb'rāt) n. A synthetic drug, C₁₂H₁₅ClO₃, used primarily to reduce abnormally elevated levels of plasma cholesterol and triglyceride. [clofibric acid (perhaps C(H)LO(RO)- + FIBR(O)- + -IC) + -ATE².]

clog (klôg, klög) n. 1. An obstruction or hindrance. 2. A weight, such as a block, attached to the leg of an animal to hinder movement. 3. A heavy, usually wooden-soled shoe. — v. clogged, clog-ging, clogs. — v. tr. 1. To obstruct movement on or in; block up: Heavy traffic clogged the freeways. 2. To hamper the function or activity of; impede: “attorneys clogging our courts with actions designed to harass state and local governments” (Roslyn L. Anderson and Patricia L. Irvin). — v. intr. 1. To become obstructed or choked up: The pipes had clogged with rust. 2. To thicken or stick together; clot. 3. To do a clog dance. [Middle English, block attached to an animal's leg.]

clog dance (klôg dāns) n. A dance performed while wearing clogs and characterized by heavy, stamping steps. — clog dancer n.

cloi-son·né (kloi'zə-nā', klə-wä'zə-) n. 1. Enamelware in which the surface decoration is formed by different colors of enamel separated by thin strips of metal. 2. The process or method of producing such enamelware. [French, past participle of cloisonner, to partition, from Old French cloison, partition, from Vulgar Latin clausiō*, clausiōn-, from Latin clausus, past participle of claudere, to close, lock.] —cloi-son·né' adj.

clois·ter (kloi'stər) n. 1. A covered walk with an open colonnade on one side, running along the walls of buildings that face a quadrangle. 2. a. A place, especially a monastery or convent, devoted to religious seclusion. b. Life in a monastery or convent. 3. A secluded, quiet place. — v. tr. clois·tered, clois·ter·ing, clois·ters. 1. To shut away from the world in or as if in a cloister; seclude. 2. To furnish (a building) with a cloister. [Middle English cloistre, from Old French, alteration (influenced by cloison, partition); see CLOISSONNÉ, of clostre, from Latin claustrum, enclosed place, from claudere, to close.]

clois·tral (kloi'strəl) also claus·tral (klô'strəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or suggesting a cloister; secluded. 2. Living in a cloister.

clomb (klōm) v. Archaic. A past tense and a past participle of climb.

clom·i·phene (klōm'ə-fēn, klō'mə-) n. A synthetic drug, C₂₆H₂₈ClNO, that is used in its citrate form to stimulate ovulation. [C(H)LO(RO)- + (A)MI(NE) + PHEN(YL).]

clomp (klōmp) v. intr. clomped, clomp·ing, clomps. To walk heavily and noisily. [Imitative.]

clone (klōn) n. 1. A group of genetically identical cells descended from a single common ancestor, such as a bacterial colony whose members arose from a single original cell as a result of binary fission. 2. An organism descended asexually from a single ancestor, such as a plant produced by layering or a polyp produced by budding. 3. A replica of a DNA sequence, such as a gene, produced by genetic engineering. 4. One that copies or closely resembles another, as in appearance or function: “filled with business-school clones in gray and blue suits” (Michael M. Thomas). — v. cloned, clon·ing, clones. — v. tr. 1. To make multiple identical copies of (a DNA sequence). 2. a. To establish and maintain pure lineages of (a cell) under laboratory conditions. b. To reproduce or propagate asexually: clone a frog; clone a plant variety. 3. To produce a copy of; imitate: “The look has been cloned into cliché” (Cathleen McGuigan). — v. intr. To grow as a clone. [Greek klōn, twig.] —clon'al (klō'nəl) adj. —clon'al·ly adv. —clon'er n.

clon·i·dine (klōn'ī-dēn', klō'nī-) n. A synthetic drug, C₉H₉Cl₂N₃, used in the treatment of hypertension and for the prevention of migraine headaches. [C(H)LO(RO)- + (A)NI(LINE) + (IMI)D(E) + -INE².]

clo·nus (klō'nəs) n. pl. clo·nus·es. An abnormality in neuromuscular activity characterized by rapidly alternating muscular contraction and relaxation. [New Latin, from Greek klonos, turmoil.] —clo'nic (klō'nīk, klōn'īk) adj.

—clo-nic'i-ty (klō-nīs'ī-tē, klō-), clo'nism (klō'nīz'əm, klōn'īz'əm) n.

clop (klɒp) n. A sharp, hollow sound, as of a horse's hoof striking pavement.

— v. intr. clopped, clop-ping, clops. To make or move with this sound. [Imitative.]

clo-que also clo-qué (klō-kā') n. A cotton, silk, or rayon fabric with a raised woven pattern and a puckered or quilted look. [French cloqué, past participle of cloquer, to become blistered, from dialectal cloque, blister, from Medieval Latin clocca, bell. See CLOCK¹.]

close (klōs) adj. close-r, close-st. 1. Being near in space or time. 2. Being near in relationship: close relatives. 3. Bound by mutual interests, loyalties, or affections; intimate: close friends. 4. Having little or no space between elements or parts; tight and compact: a close weave. 5. Being near the surface; short: a close haircut. 6. Being on the brink of: close to tears. 7. Decided by a narrow margin; almost even: a close election. 8. Faithful to the original: a close copy. 9. Rigorous; thorough: close attention; close supervision. 10. Shut; closed. 11. Shut in; enclosed. 12. Confining or narrow; crowded: close quarters. 13. Fitting tightly: close garments. 14. Lacking fresh air; stuffy: a close room. 15. Confined to specific persons or groups: a close secret. 16. Strictly confined or guarded: kept under close custody. 17. Hidden from view; secluded. 18. Secretive; reticent: was close about her personal life. 19. Giving or spending with reluctance; stingy. 20. Not easily acquired; scarce: Money was close. 21. Linguistics. Pronounced with the tongue near the palate, as the ee in meet. Used of vowels. 22. Marked by more rather than less punctuation, especially commas. — v. closed, clos-ing, clos-es (klōz). — v. tr. 1. To move (a door, for example) so that an opening or passage is covered or obstructed; shut. 2. To bar access to: closed the road for repairs. 3. To fill or stop up: closed the cracks with plaster. 4. To stop the operations of permanently or temporarily: closed down the factory. 5. To bring to an end; terminate: close a letter; close a bank account. 6. To bring together all the elements or parts of: Management closed ranks and ostracized the troublemaker. 7. To join or unite; bring into contact: close a circuit. 8. To draw or bind together the edges of: close a wound. 9. To complete the final details or negotiations on: close a deal. 10. Archaic. To enclose on all sides. — v. intr. 1. To become shut: The door closed quietly. 2. To come to an end; finish: The book closes on a hopeful note. 3. To reach an agreement; come to terms. 4. To cease operation: The shop closes at six. 5. a. To engage at close quarters: closed with the enemy. b. To draw near: The orbiter closed with the space station in preparation for docking. 6. To come together: My arms closed around the little child. — n. (klōz) 1. The act of closing. 2. A conclusion; a finish: The meeting came to a close. 3. Music. The concluding part of a phrase or theme; a cadence. 4. (klōs) An enclosed place, especially land surrounding or beside a cathedral or other building. 5. (klōs)

Chiefly British. A narrow way or alley. 6. Archaic. A fight at close quarters. — adv. closer, closest (klōs). In a close position or manner; closely: stayed close together. — phrasal verbs. close in. 1. To seem to be gathering in on all sides: The problems closed in. 2. To advance on a target so as to block escape: The police closed in on the sniper. 3. To surround so as to make unusable: The airport was closed in by fog. close out. 4. To dispose of (a line of merchandise) at reduced prices. 5. To terminate, as by selling: close out a business. — idioms. close to home. So as to affect one's feelings or interests: Her comment hit close to home. close to the wind. Nautical. At a close angle into the direction from which the wind is blowing: sailing close to the wind. [Middle English clos, closed, from Old French, from Latin clausus, past participle of claudere, to close. V., from Middle English clösen from Old French clore, clos-, from Latin claudere.] — close/ly adv. — close/ness n. — clos'er (klō'zər) n. — clos'ing (klō'zɪŋ) n.

SYNONYMS: close, immediate, near, nearby, nigh, proximate. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not far from another in space, time, or relationship”: an airport close to town; her immediate family; his nearest relative; a nearby library; our nighest neighbor; a proximate neighborhood. See also Synonyms at complete familiar stingy

ANTONYM: far

USAGE NOTE: Strictly speaking, the phrase close proximity says nothing that is not said by proximity itself. Like other common redundancies, however (old adage, mental telepathy), this usage is too widespread and too innocuous to be worth objecting to. See Usage Note at redundancy.

close call (klōs kōl) n. Informal. A narrow escape.

close corporation (klōs kōr'pə-rā'shən) n. See closed corporation.

closed (klōzd) adj. 1. Having boundaries; enclosed: a closed corridor between the two buildings. 2. Blocked or barred to passage or entry: a closed port. 3. Explicitly limited; restricted: closed membership. 4. Self-contained or self-sufficient: a closed relationship. 5. Barred to the public; conducted in secrecy: a closed session of the judiciary committee. 6. Mathematics. a. Of or relating to a curve, such as a circle, having no endpoints. b. Of or relating to a surface having no boundary curves. c. Of or relating to an interval containing both its endpoints. d. Characterized by or possessing the property by which an operation acting on an element in a set produces an element within the set. 7. Computer Science. a. Of or relating to a file that cannot be accessed. b. Of or relating to a switch that is on. 8. Linguistics. Ending in a consonant: a closed syllable.

closed book (klōzd bōok) n. A person or thing that cannot be known or understood; something unfathomable or puzzling.

closed-captioned (klōzd'kăp'shənd) adj. Broadcast with captions that can be seen only on a specially equipped receiver: closed-captioned television for the hearing-impaired.

closed chain (klōzd chān) n. Chemistry. See ring¹ (n., sense 14).

closed circuit (klōzd sūr'kīt) n. 1. An electric circuit providing an uninterrupted, endless path for the flow of current. 2. A television transmission circuit with a limited number of reception stations and no broadcast facilities.

—closed'-cir'cuit (klōzd'sūr'kīt) adj.

closed corporation (klōzd kōr'pə-rā'shən) n. A corporation in which the shares of stock are held by relatively few persons and are not publicly traded. Also called close corporation closed couplet (klōzd kŭp'līt) n. A rhymed couplet forming a complete thought or syntactic unit, for example, "True wit is nature to advantage dressed,/ What oft was thought, but ne'er so well expressed" (Alexander Pope).

closed-door (klōzd'dōr', -dōr') adj. Not open to the public; held in privacy: a series of closed-door meetings.

closed-end investment company (klōzd'ënd' in-vĕst'mənt kŭm'pə-nē) n. A company with fixed capitalization whose shares are bought and sold by investors and whose capital is invested in other companies.

closed interval (klōzd ĭn'tər-vəl) n. Mathematics. See interval (n., sense 4).

closed-mind·ed (klōzd'mĭn'dĭd) adj. Variant of close-minded.

close-down (klōz'doun') n. A suspension or termination of operations: a plant closedown.

closed shop (klōzd shōp) n. See union shop.

close-fist·ed (klōs'fis'tĭd) adj. Tightfisted; stingy. See Synonyms at stingy.

close-grained (klōs'grānd') adj. Dense or compact in structure or texture, as a wood composed of small-diameter cells.

close-hauled (klōs'hōld') adv. & adj. Nautical. With sails trimmed flat for sailing as close to the wind as possible.

close-knit (klōs'nĭt') adj. Held tightly together, as by social or cultural ties: a close-knit family.

close-mind·ed (klōs'mĭn'dĭd, klōz'-) or closed-mind·ed (klōzd'-) adj.

Intolerant of the beliefs and opinions of others; stubbornly unreceptive to new ideas. —close'-mind'ed-ness n.

close-mouthed (klōs'mouthd', -moutht') adj. Disposed not to talk; tight-lipped.

close-or·der drill (klōs'ôr'dər drĭl) n. A military drill in marching, maneuvering, and formal handling of arms in which the participants perform at close intervals.

close-out (klōz'out') n. A sale in which all remaining stock is disposed of, usually at greatly reduced prices.

close shave (klōs shāv) n. Informal. A narrow escape; a close call.

closet (klōz'it, klō'zit) n. 1. Abbr. cl. A cabinet or enclosed recess for linens, household supplies, or clothing. 2. A small private chamber, as for study or prayer. 3. A water closet; a toilet. 4. A state of secrecy or cautious privacy: Two days before the election, the candidate suddenly came out of the closet and denounced the proposed law. — v. tr. closet-ed, closet-ing, closets. To enclose or shut up in a private room, as for discussion: closeted themselves with their attorneys. — adj. 1. Private; confidential: closet information. 2. Being so or engaging only in private; secret: a closet proponent of a tax increase; a closet alcoholic. 3. Based on theory and speculation rather than practice. [Middle English, private room, from Old French, diminutive of clos, enclosure, from Latin clausum, from neuter of clausus, enclosed. See CLOSE.] — closet-ful' n.

closet drama (klōz'it drā'mə) n. A play to be read rather than performed.

closet queen (klōz'it kwēn) n. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for a gay or homosexual man who chooses not to reveal his sexual orientation.

close-up (klōs'ŭp') n. 1. A photograph or a film or television shot taken at close range. 2. An intimate view or description. — close-up' adj.

closing transaction (klō'zɪŋ trān-sāk'shən) n. 1. The last transaction for a security during a trading day. 2. An option order that will eliminate or decrease the size of an existing option position.

clostridium (klō-strīd'ē-əm) n. pl. clostridia (-ē-ə). Any of various rod-shaped, spore-forming, chiefly anaerobic bacteria of the genus Clostridium, such as the nitrogen-fixing bacteria found in soil and those causing botulism and tetanus. [New Latin Clōstridium, genus name, from Greek klōstēr, spindle, from klōthein, to spin.] — clostridium-al (-əl) adj.

closure (klō'zhər) n. 1. The act of closing or the state of being closed: closure of an incision. 2. Something that closes or shuts. 3. A bringing to an end; a conclusion: finally brought the project to closure. 4. See cloture. 5. The property of being mathematically closed. — v. tr. closed, closing, closes. To cloture (a debate). [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin clausūra, fortress, lock, from clausus, enclosed; see CLOSE. Sense 4, translation of French clôture. See CLOTURE.]

clot (klōt) n. 1. A thick, viscous, or coagulated mass or lump, as of blood. 2. A clump, mass, or lump, as of clay. 3. A compact group: a clot of automobiles blocking the tunnel's entrance. — v. clotted, clotting, clots. — v. intr. To form into a clot or clots; coagulate. — v. tr. 1. To cause to form into a clot or clots. See Synonyms at coagulate. 2. To fill or cover with or as if with clots. [Middle English, from Old English clott, lump.]

cloth (klōth, klōth) n. pl. cloths (klōths, klōthz, klōths, klōthz). Abbr. cl.

1. Fabric or material formed by weaving, knitting, pressing, or felting natural or synthetic fibers. 2. A piece of fabric or material used for a specific purpose, as a tablecloth. 3. Nautical. a. Canvas. b. A sail. 4. The characteristic attire of a profession, especially that of the clergy. 5. The clergy: a man of the cloth. [Middle English, from Old English clāth.]

cloth-bound (klôth'bound', klôth'-) adj. Having a cover of thick paper boards covered with cloth. Used of a book.

clothe (klôth) v. tr. clothed or clad (klăd), cloth-ing, clothes. 1. To put clothes on; dress. 2. To provide clothes for. 3. To cover as if with clothing. [Middle English clothen, from Old English clāthian, from clāth, cloth.]

SYNONYMS: clothe, cloak, drape, mantle, robe. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cover as if with clothes”: trees clothed in leafy splendor; mist that cloaks the mountains; a beam draped with cobwebs; a boulder mantled with moss; snow robing fields and gardens.

ANTONYM: unclothe

clothes (klôz, klôthz) pl.n. 1. Articles of dress; wearing apparel; garments.

2. Bedclothes. [Middle English, from Old English clāthas, pl. of clāth, cloth.]

clothes-horse (klôz'hôrs', klôthz'-) n. 1. A frame on which clothes are hung to dry or air. 2. A person excessively concerned with dress.

clothes-line (klôz'lin', klôthz'-) n. A cord, rope, or wire on which clothes may be hung to dry or air. — v. tr. clothes-lined, clothes-lin-ing, clothes-lines. Sports. To knock down (an opponent in an athletic contest) by hooking the neck with an outstretched arm.

clothes moth (klôz môth) n. Any of various moths of the family Tineidae, whose larvae feed on wool, hair, fur, and feathers.

clothes-pin (klôz'pĭn', klôthz'-) n. A clip of wood or plastic for fastening clothes to a clothesline.

clothes-press also clothes press (klôz'prĕs', klôthz'-) n. A chest, closet, or wardrobe in which clothes are kept.

clothes tree (klôz trĕ) n. An upright pole or stand with hooks or pegs on which to hang clothing. Also called coat tree cloth-ier (klôth'ĭər, klô'thĕ-ər) n. One that makes or sells clothing or cloth.

cloth-ing (klô'thĭŋ) n. 1. Clothes considered as a group; wearing apparel. 2. A covering.

Clo-tho (klô'thō) n. Greek Mythology. One of the three Fates, the spinner of the thread of destiny.

cloth yard (klôth yărd) n. The standard unit of cloth measurement, equal to 36 inches (0.914 meter).

clot-ted cream (klôt'ĭd krĕm) n. A thick cream made primarily in England by heating and cooling milk on which cream has already been allowed to rise, and then by skimming the cream from the top. Also called Devonshire cream clo·ture (klō'chər) n. A parliamentary procedure by which debate is ended and an immediate vote is taken on the matter under discussion. Also called closure — v. tr. clo·tured, clo·turing, clo·tures. To apply cloture to (a parliamentary debate). [French clôture, from Old French closture, probably alteration of closure, closure. See CLOSURE.]

cloud (klaud) n. 1. a. A visible body of very fine water droplets or ice particles suspended in the atmosphere at altitudes ranging up to several miles above sea level. b. A mass, as of dust, smoke, or steam, suspended in the atmosphere or in outer space. 2. A large moving body of things in the air or on the ground; a swarm: a cloud of locusts. 3. Something that darkens or fills with gloom. 4. A dark region or blemish, as on a polished stone. 5. Something that obscures. 6. Suspicion or a charge affecting a reputation. 7. A collection of charged particles: an electron cloud. — v. cloud·ed, cloud·ing, clouds. — v. tr. 1. To cover with or as if with clouds: Mist clouded the hills. 2. To make gloomy or troubled. 3. To obscure: cloud the issues. 4. To cast aspersions on; sully: Scandal clouded the officer's reputation. — v. intr. To become cloudy or overcast: The sky clouded over. — idiom. in the clouds. 1. Imaginary; unreal; fanciful. 2. Impractical. [Middle English, hill, cloud, from Old English clūd, rock, hill.] — cloud'less adj.

cloud·ber·ry (klaud'bēr'ē) n. A creeping perennial herb (Rubus chamaemorus) in the rose family, native to northern regions of North America and Eurasia and having white flowers and edible, yellowish fruit.

cloud·burst (klaud'būrst') n. A sudden, heavy rainstorm; a downpour.

cloud chamber (klaud chām'bər) n. A gas-filled device in which the path of charged subatomic particles can be detected by the formation of chains of droplets on ions generated by their passage. It is also used to infer the presence of neutral particles and to study certain nuclear reactions.

cloud forest (klaud fôr'ĭst) n. A tropical forest, often near peaks of coastal mountains, that usually has constant cloud cover throughout the year.

cloud grass (klaud grās) n. An annual grass (Agrostis nebulosa) native to Spain and Portugal, cultivated for its delicate, finely branched cluster of tiny spikelets and used in dried arrangements.

cloud·land (klaud'länd') n. A realm of imagination or fantasy.

cloud·let (klaud'lĭt) n. A small cloud or something resembling one.

cloud nine (klaud nĭn) n. Informal. A state of elation or great happiness: was on cloud nine after winning the marathon.

Cloud Peak (klaud pēk) A mountain, 4,018.4 m (13,175 ft) high, in the Big-horn Mountains of north-central Wyoming. It is the highest elevation in the range.

cloud-scape (kloud'skāp') n. 1. A work of art representing a view of clouds: an Impressionist painting that is a vast cloudscape of buoyant, floating forms. 2. A photograph showing a view of clouds, such as those surrounding a planet.

cloud seeding (kloud sē'džing) n. The technique of stimulating rainfall, especially by distributing dry ice crystals or silver iodide smoke through clouds.

cloud-y (klou'dē) adj. cloud-i-er, cloud-i-est. 1. Full of or covered with clouds; overcast. 2. Of or like a cloud or clouds. 3. Marked with indistinct masses or streaks: cloudy marble. 4. Not transparent, as certain liquids. 5. a. Open to more than one interpretation. b. Not clearly perceived or perceptible. 6. Troubled; gloomy. —cloud'i-ly adv. —cloud'i-ness n.

Clough (klūf), Arthur Hugh. 1819-1861. British poet who is the subject of Matthew Arnold's elegy "Thyrsis" (1866).

clout (klout) n. 1. A blow, especially with the fist. 2. a. Baseball. A long, powerful hit. b. Sports. An archery target. 3. Informal. a. Influence; pull: "All the evidence showed that Russia does not have that kind of clout in the Far East any more" (Joseph Kraft). b. Power; muscle. 4. Regional. A piece of cloth, especially a baby's diaper. — v. tr. clout-ed, clout-ing, clouts. To hit, especially with the fist. [Middle English, probably from Old English clūt, cloth patch.]

clove¹ (klōv) n. 1. An evergreen tree (Syzygium aromaticum) native to the Moluccas and widely cultivated in warm regions for its aromatic dried flower buds. 2. A flower bud of this plant, used whole or ground as a spice. Often used in the plural. [Middle English, from Old French clou (de girofle), nail (of the clove tree), from Latin clāvus, nail.]

clove² (klōv) n. One of the small sections of a separable bulb, as that of garlic. [Middle English, from Old English clufu. See gleubh- in Appendix.]

clove³ (klōv) v. 1. A past tense of cleave¹. 2. Archaic. A past participle of cleave¹.

clove⁴ (klōv) v. Archaic. A past tense of cleave².

clove hitch (klōv hīch) n. A knot used to secure a line to a spar, post, or other object, consisting of two half hitches made in opposite directions. [Middle English clove, split, past participle of cleven, to split. See CLEAVE¹.]

clo-ven (klō'vən) v. A past participle of cleave¹. — adj. Split; divided.

cloven foot (klō'vən fōöt) n. See cloven hoof (n., sense 1).

clo-ven-footed (klō'vən-fōöt'īd) adj. Cloven-hoofed.

cloven hoof (klō'vən hōōf) n. 1. A divided or cleft hoof, as in deer or cattle. Also called cloven foot 2. Evil or Satan, often depicted as a figure with cleft hoofs.

clo-ven-hoofed (klō'vən-hōōft', -hōōft', -hōōvd', -hōōvd') adj. 1. Having cloven hoofs, as deer or cattle do. 2. Satanic; devilish.

clove oil (klōv oil) n. An aromatic oil obtained from the buds, stems, or leaves of the clove tree, used in flavoring and perfumery, and as a temporary anesthetic for toothaches.

clove pink (klōv pīngk) n. See carnation (n., sense 1).

clo-ver (klō'vər) n. 1. Any of various herbs of the genus Trifolium in the pea family, having trifoliolate leaves and dense heads of small flowers and including species grown for forage, for erosion control, and as a source of nectar for honeybees. 2. Any of several other plants in the pea family, such as bush clover and sweet clover. 3. Any of several nonleguminous plants, such as owl's clover and water clover. — idiom. in clover. Living a carefree life of ease, comfort, or prosperity. [Middle English, from Old English clāfre.]

clo-ver-leaf (klō'vər-lēf') n. A highway interchange at which two highways, one crossing over the other, have a series of entrance and exit ramps resembling the outline of a four-leaf clover and enabling vehicles to proceed in either direction on either highway. — adj. Resembling or shaped like a leaf of the clover plant.

Clo-vis¹ (klō'vīs) 1. A city of central California in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada near Fresno. It is a processing center. Population, 50,323. 2. A city of eastern New Mexico near the Texas border. It is a trade center in a wheat and cattle area. Population, 30,954.

Clo-vis² (klō'vīs) adj. Of or relating to a prehistoric human culture widespread throughout North America from about 12,000 to 9,000 B.C., distinguished by sharp, fluted projectile points made of chalcedony or obsidian. [After Clovis¹, New Mexico.]

Clo-vis I (klō'vīs), A.D. 466?-511. King of the Franks (481-511) who unified Gaul as a single kingdom and established his capital at Paris. His name, Gallicized as "Louis," was given to 18 later French monarchs.

clown (kloun) n. 1. a. A buffoon or jester who entertains by jokes, antics, and tricks in a circus, play, or other presentation. b. One who jokes and plays tricks. 2. A coarse, rude, vulgar person; a boor. 3. A peasant; a rustic. — v. intr.

clowned, clown-ing, clowns. 1. To behave like a buffoon or jester. 2. To perform as a buffoon or jester. [Of Scandinavian origin (; akin to Icelandic klunni, clumsy person), or of Low German origin.] — clown'ish adj. — clown'ish-ly adv. — clown'ish-ness n.

clown anemone (kloun ə-nēm'ə-nē) n. See anemone fish.

clown fish (kloun fīsh) n. See anemone fish.

clox-a-cil-lin (klök'sə-sīl'īn) n. A semisynthetic antibiotic of the penicillin group that is used primarily to treat infections caused by staphylococci, streptococci, or pneumococci. [C(H)L(ORO)- + OX(O)- + A(ZO)- + (PENI)CILLIN.]

cloy (kloi) v. cloyed, cloy-ing, cloys. — v. tr. To cause distaste or disgust by supplying with too much of something originally pleasant, especially something rich or sweet; surfeit. — v. intr. To cause to feel surfeited. See Synonyms at satiate. [Short for obsolete accloy, to clog, from Middle English acloien, from Old French encloer, to drive a nail into, from Medieval Latin inclāvāre: Latin in-, in; see IN-² + Latin clāvāre, to nail (from clāvus, nail).] —cloy'ing-ly adv.

—cloy'ing-ness n.

cloze (klōz) adj. Based on or being a test of reading comprehension in which the test taker is asked to supply words that have been systematically deleted from a text. [Alteration of CLOSURE.]

CLU abbr. Chartered life underwriter.

club (klüb) n. 1. A stout, heavy stick, usually thicker at one end, suitable for use as a weapon; a cudgel. 2. Sports. An implement used in some games to drive a ball, especially a stick with a protruding head used in golf. 3. Games. a. A black figure shaped like a trefoil or clover leaf on certain playing cards. b. A playing card with this figure. c. clubs. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The suit of cards represented by this figure. 4. A group of people organized for a common purpose, especially a group that meets regularly: a garden club. 5. The building, room, or other facility used for the meetings of an organized group. 6. Sports. An athletic team or organization. 7. A nightclub. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a club meeting; club regulations. — v. clubbed, club-bing, clubs. — v. tr. 1. To strike or beat with or as if with a club. 2. To use (a firearm) as a club by holding the barrel and hitting with the butt end. 3. To gather or combine (hair, for example) into a clublike mass. 4. To contribute to a joint or common purpose. — v. intr. To join or combine for a common purpose; form a club. [Middle English, from Old Norse klubba.]

club-ba-ble also club-a-ble (klüb'ə-bəl) adj. Informal. Suited to membership in a social club; sociable.

clubbed (klübd) adj. Shaped like a club.

club-ber (klüb'ər) n. 1. One that wields a club. 2. One who is active in a club.

club-by (klüb'ē) adj. club-bi-er, club-bi-est. 1. Typical of a club or club members. 2. Friendly; sociable. 3. Clannish; exclusive. —club'bi-ness n.

club car (klüb kär) n. A railroad passenger car equipped with lounge chairs, tables, a buffet or bar, and other comforts. Also called lounge car club chair (klüb châr) n. A heavily upholstered easy chair with arms and a low back.

club-face (klüb'fās') n. Sports. The surface on the head of a golf club used to strike the ball directly.

club-foot (klüb'fōot') n. 1. A congenital deformity of the foot, usually marked by a curled shape or twisted position of the ankle, heel, and toes. Also called talipes 2. A foot so deformed. —club'foot'ed adj.

club-house (klüb'hous') n. 1. A building occupied by a club. 2. Sports. The locker room of an athletic team.

club-man (klüb'mən, -männ') n. A man who is a member of a club or clubs, especially one who is active in club life.

club moss or club-moss (klüb'môs', -mö's') n. Any of various mostly small vascular plants of the genus Lycopodium, often resembling mosses and reproducing by spores. [From the club-shaped strobiles on some species of this plant.]

club-room (klüb'rōm', rōm') n. A room used for meetings or activities of a club.

club root (klüb rōt) n. A disease of cabbage and related plants, caused by a fungus (Plasmiodiophora brassicae) and characterized by knobby or club-shaped swellings on the roots and wilting, yellowing, and stunted growth of aboveground parts.

club sandwich (klüb sänd'wich) n. A sandwich composed of two or three slices of bread with a filling of various meats, tomato, lettuce, and dressing.

club soda (klüb sō'də) n. See soda water (n., sense 1a).

club steak (klüb stāk) n. See Delmonico steak.

club-woman (klüb'wōm'ən) n. A woman who is a member of a club or clubs, especially one who is active in club life.

cluck (klük) n. 1. a. The characteristic sound made by a hen when brooding or calling its chicks. b. A sound similar to this. 2. Informal. A stupid or foolish person. — v. clucked, cluck-ing, clucks. — v. intr. 1. To utter the characteristic sound of a hen. 2. To make a sound similar to that of a hen, as in coaxing a horse. — v. tr. 1. To call by making the characteristic sound of a hen or a similar sound. 2. To express by clucking: He clucked disapproval. [Middle English clokken, from Old English cloccian.]

clue¹ (klō) n. Something that serves to guide or direct in the solution of a problem or mystery. — v. tr. clued, clue-ing or clu-ing, clues. To give (someone) guiding information: Clue me in on what's happening. [Variant of CLEW¹ (from Theseus's use of a ball of thread as a guide through the Cretan labyrinth).]

clue² (klō) Nautical. n. Variant of clew¹ (n., sense 4). — v. Variant of clew¹ (v. tr., sense 2).

Cluj-Na-po-ca (klōzh'nä-pō'kä) A city of west-central Romania northwest of Bucharest. It was founded by German colonists in the 12th century and became part of Romania in 1920. Population, 301,244.

Clumber spaniel also clumber spaniel (klüm'bər spän'yəl) n. A dog of a breed developed in England, having short legs, a stocky body, and a silky, predominantly white coat. [After Clumber Park, an estate in Nottinghamshire, a county of central England.]

clump (klämp) n. 1. A clustered mass; a lump: clumps of soil. 2. A thick grouping, as of trees or bushes. 3. A heavy, dull sound; a thud. — v. clumped, clump-ing, clumps. — v. intr. 1. To form lumps or thick groupings. 2. To walk or move so as to make a heavy, dull sound. — v. tr. To gather into or form lumps or thick groupings of. [Probably Low German klump, from Middle Low German klumpe, cluster of trees.] — clump'y adj.

clum·sy (klŭm'zē) adj. clum·si·er, clum·si·est. 1. Lacking physical coordination, skill, or grace; awkward. 2. Awkwardly constructed; unwieldy: clumsy wooden shoes; a clumsy sentence. 3. Gauche; inept: a clumsy excuse. See Synonyms at awkward. [From obsolete clumse, to be numb with cold, from Middle English clomsen, of Scandinavian origin.] —clum'si·ly adv. —clum'si·ness n.

clung (klŭng) v. Past tense and past participle of cling.

clunk (klŭngk) n. 1. A dull sound; a thump. 2. A blow that produces a dull sound. 3. Informal. A stupid, dull person. — v. clunked, clunk·ing, clunks. — v. intr. 1. To make or move with a clunk. 2. To strike something so as to make a dull sound. — v. tr. To strike so as to make a dull sound: "Icy weather affected the clock's mechanism and for several hours Big Ben clunked instead of bonged the time changes" (Christian Science Monitor). [Imitative.]

clunk·er (klŭng'kər) n. Informal. 1. A decrepit machine, especially an old car; a rattletrap. 2. A failure; a flop.

clunk·y (klŭng'kē) adj. clunk·i·er, clunk·i·est. Clumsy in form or manner; awkward: clunky high-heel shoes.

Clu·ny (klōō'nē, klōō-nē', klü-) A town of east-central France north-northwest of Lyons. Its abbey, the center of an influential religious order, was founded in 910. Population, 4,335.

clu·pe·id (klōō'pē-īd) n. Any of various widely distributed soft-finned fishes of the family Clupeidae, which includes the herrings, menhadens, and sardines. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the family Clupeidae. [From New Latin Clupeidae, family name, from Latin clupea, a kind of small fish.]

Clur·man (klŭr'mən), Harold. 1901-1980. American theatrical director and critic who directed a number of Broadway productions, including Awake and Sing (1935) and Tiger at the Gates (1955).

clus·ter (klŭs'tər) n. 1. A group of the same or similar elements gathered or occurring closely together; a bunch: "She held out her hand, a small tight cluster of fingers" (Anne Tyler). 2. Linguistics. Two or more successive consonants in a word, as cl and st in the word cluster. — v. clus·tered, clus·ter·ing, clus·ters. — v. intr. To gather or grow into bunches. — v. tr. To cause to grow or form into bunches. [Middle English, from Old English clyster.] cluster bean (klŭs'tər bēn) n. See guar.

cluster bomb (klŭs'tər bŏm) n. A projectile that, when dropped from an aircraft or fired through the air, releases explosive fragments over a wide area.

cluster headache (klŭs'tər hēd'āk') n. A severe recurring headache that is associated with the release of histamine and is characterized by sudden sharp pain, watering of the eye, and runny nose on one side of the head.

cluster pine (klŭs'tər pīn) n. A Mediterranean pine tree (Pinus pinaster) having long needles in clusters of two, and large ovoid seed-bearing cones.

clutch¹ (klŭch) v. clutched, clutch-ing, clutch-es. — v. tr. 1. To grasp and hold tightly. 2. To seize; snatch. — v. intr. 1. To attempt to grasp or seize: clutch at a life raft. 2. To engage or disengage a motor vehicle's clutch. — n. 1. A hand, claw, talon, or paw in the act of grasping. 2. A tight grasp. 3. Often clutches. Control or power: caught in the clutches of sin. 4. A device for gripping and holding. 5. a. Any of various devices for engaging and disengaging two working parts of a shaft or of a shaft and a driving mechanism. b. The apparatus, such as a lever or pedal, that activates one of these devices. 6. A tense, critical situation: came through in the clutch. 7. A clutch bag. — adj. Informal. 1. Being or occurring in a tense or critical situation: won the championship by sinking a clutch putt. 2. Tending to be successful in tense or critical situations: The coach relied on her clutch pitcher. [Middle English clucchen, from Old English clyccan.]

clutch² (klŭch) n. 1. The complete set of eggs produced or incubated at one time. 2. A brood of chickens. 3. A group; a bunch. — v. tr. clutched, clutch-ing, clutch-es. To hatch (chicks). [Variant of dialectal cletch, to hatch, from Middle English clekken, from Old Norse klekja.]

clutch bag (klŭch bāg) n. A woman's purse that is usually strapless.

clut-ter (klŭt'ər) n. 1. A confused or disordered state or collection; a jumble: clutter in the attic. 2. A confused noise; a clatter. — v. clut-tered, clut-ter-ing, clut-ters. — v. tr. To litter or pile in a disordered manner: Tools and boxes cluttered the garage. I cluttered up my files with clippings. — v. intr. 1. To run or move with bustle and confusion. 2. To make a clatter. [Probably from Middle English cloteren, to clot, from clot, lump, from Old English clott.]

Clyde (klīd) A river of southwest Scotland flowing about 171 km (106 mi) northwest to the Firth of Clyde, an estuary of the North Channel. The river is navigable to Glasgow for oceangoing vessels.

Clyde-bank (klīd'bāngk') A burgh of west-central Scotland on the north bank of the Clyde River. Many large ocean liners, including the Queen Mary, were built in its shipyards. Population, 52,385.

Clydes-dale (klīdz'dāl') n. A large, powerful draft horse of a breed developed in the Clyde valley of Scotland, having white, feathered hair on its fetlocks.

clyp-e-ate (klīp'ē-īt) also clyp-e-at-ed (-ā'tīd) adj. 1. Shaped like a round shield. 2. Zoology. Having a clypeus: clypeate insects.

clyp-e-us (klīp'ē-əs) n. pl. clyp-e-i (-ē-ī'). Zoology. A shieldlike plate on the front of the head of an insect. [New Latin, from Latin clipeus, round shield.] — clyp'e-al (-ē-əl) adj.

clys-ter (klīs'tər) n. An enema. [Middle English clister, from Old French clistere, from Latin clyster, from Greek klustēr, clyster pipe, from kluzein, to wash out.]

Cly-tem-nes-tra also Cly-taem-nes-tra (klī'təm-nēs'trə) n. Greek Mythology. The wife of Agamemnon who, with the assistance of her lover Aegisthus, murdered him on his return from the Trojan War and was later murdered by her son Orestes.

cm abbr. Centimeter.

Cm The symbol for the element curium.

CM abbr. Common market.

c.m. abbr. 1. Center of mass. 2. Circular mil. 3. Court-martial.

CMA also C.M.A. abbr. Certified medical assistant.

cmd. abbr. 1. Command. 2. Cmd. Commander.

cmdg. abbr. Commanding.

Cmdr abbr. Commander.

cml. abbr. Commercial.

MSGT abbr. Chief master sergeant.

CMV abbr. Cytomegalovirus.

C/N abbr. Credit note.

cni-do-blast (nī'də-blāst') n. A cell in the epidermis of coelenterates in which a nematocyst is developed. [New Latin cnīdā, nematocyst (from Latin cnīdē, nettle, from Greek knidē) + -BLAST.]

Cni-dus also Cni-dos (nī'dəs) An ancient Greek city of Asia Minor in present-day southwest Asiatic Turkey. It was noted for its wealth and its magnificent buildings and statuary.

Cnos-sos or Cnos-sus (nös'əs) See Knossos.

CNS abbr. Central nervous system.

Cnut (kə-nōöt', -nyōöt') See Canute.

Co¹ The symbol for the element cobalt.

Co² abbr. Bible. Corinthians.

CO abbr. 1. Colorado. 2. Or C.O. Commanding officer. 3. Also C.O. Conscientious objector.

co. abbr. 1. Or co. also Co. Company 2. County.

c.o. abbr. 1. Accounting. Carried over. 2. Cash order.

c/o also c.o. abbr. Care of.

co- pref. 1. Together; joint; jointly; mutually: coeducation. 2. a. Partner or associate in an activity: coauthor; cofounder. b. Subordinate or assistant: copilot.

3. To the same extent or degree: coextensive. 4. Complement of an angle: cotangent. [Middle English, from Latin, variant of com-, com-.]

CoA abbr. Coenzyme A.

co-ac-er-vate (kō-ăs'ər-vāt') n. A cluster of droplets separated out of a lyophilic colloid. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a cluster of droplets. 2. Biology.

Growing in clusters. — v. tr. co-ac-er-vated, co-ac-er-vat-ing, co-ac-er-vates. To cause to form a coacervate. [From Latin coacervātus, past participle of coacervāre, to heap together : co-, co- + acervāre, to heap (from acervus, a heap).] — co-ac'er-vate adj. — co-ac'er-va'tion n.

coach (kōch) n. 1. a. A motorbus. b. A railroad passenger car. c. A closed automobile, usually with two doors. d. A large, closed, four-wheeled carriage with an elevated exterior seat for the driver; a stagecoach. 2. An economical class of passenger accommodations on a commercial airplane or a train. 3. Sports. A person who trains or directs athletes or athletic teams. 4. a. A person who gives instruction, as in singing or acting. b. A private tutor employed to prepare a student for an examination. — v. tr. intr. coached, coach-ing, coach-es. 1. To train or tutor or to act as a trainer or tutor. 2. To transport by or ride in a coach. [French coche, from obsolete German Kutsche, from Hungarian kocsi, after Kocs, a town of northwest Hungary (where such carriages were first made).]

—coach/a-ble adj. —coach'er n.

coach dog (kōch dôg) n. See Dalmatian (n., sense 2). [So called because it was trained to run behind a coach.]

coach-man (kōch'mən) n. 1. A man who drives a coach or carriage. 2. An artificial fly used in angling.

co-ac-tion (kō-ăk'shən) n. 1. An impelling or restraining force; a compulsion. 2. Joint action. 3. Ecology. Any of the reciprocal actions or effects, such as symbiosis, that can occur in a community. [Middle English coaccioun, from Latin coăctiō, coăctiōn-, a collecting, from coăctus, past participle of cōgere, to collect, condense; see COAGULUM. Senses 2 and 3 CO- + ACTION.] —co-ac'tive adj.

—co-ac'tive-ly adv.

co-a-dapt-ed (kō'ə-dăp'tid) adj. Ecology. Of or relating to characteristics that have become established through mutually beneficial interaction between organisms in a community. —co'ad-ap-ta'tion (-ăd-ăp-tă'shən) n.

co-ad-ju-tant (kō-ăj'ə-tənt) n. A helper; an assistant. See Synonyms at assis-tant.

co-ad-ju-tor (kō'ə-jōō'tər, kō-ăj'ə-tər) n. 1. A coworker; an assistant. See Synonyms at assistant. 2. An assistant to a bishop, especially one designated to succeed the bishop. [Middle English coadjutour, assistant, from Latin coadiutor : co-, co- + adiutor, assistant (from adiūtāre, to aid); see ADJUTANT.]

co-ad-u-nate (kō-ăj'ə-nīt, -nāt') adj. Closely joined; grown together; united. [Late Latin coadūnātus, past participle of coadūnāre, to combine : Latin co-, co- + Latin adūnāre, to unite (ad-, ad- + ūnus, one); see oi-no- in Appendix.]

—co-ad'u-na'tion (-nā'shən) n. —co-ad'u-na'tive adj.

co-ag-u-lant (kō-ăg'yə-lənt) n. An agent that causes a liquid or sol to coagulate. —co-ag'u-lant adj.

co-ag-u-lase (kō-ăg'yə-lās', -lāz') n. An enzyme, such as rennin or thrombin, that induces coagulation. [COAGUL(ATE) + -ASE.]

co-ag-u-late (kō-ăg'yə-lāt') v. co-ag-u-lat-ed, co-ag-u-lat-ing, co-ag-u-lates. — v. tr. To cause transformation of (a liquid or sol, for example) into or as if into a soft, semisolid, or solid mass. — v. intr. To become coagulated. [Middle English coagulaten, from Latin coāgulāre, coāgulāt-, from coāgulum, coagulator. See COAGULUM.] —co-ag'u-la-bil'i-ty n.

—co-ag'u-la-ble adj. —co-ag'u-la'tion n. —co-ag'u-la'tor n.

SYNONYMS: coagulate, clot, congeal, curdle, jell, jelly, set. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to change or be changed from a liquid into a thickened mass”: egg white coagulating when heated; gravy clotting as it cools; water congealing into ice; milk that had curdled; used pectin to jell the jam; jellied consommé; allowed the aspic to set.

co-ag-u-lum (kō-ăg'yə-ləm) n. pl. co-ag-u-la (-lə). A coagulated mass, as of blood; a clot. [Latin, coagulator, rennet, from cōgere, to condense : co-, co- + agere, to drive; see ag- in Appendix.]

coal (kōl) n. 1. a. A natural dark brown to black graphitelike material used as a fuel, formed from fossilized plants and consisting of amorphous carbon with various organic and some inorganic compounds. b. A piece of this substance.

2. A glowing or charred piece of solid fuel. 3. Charcoal. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: coal miners; coal seams; coal haulers. — v.

coaled, coal-ing, coals. — v. tr. 1. To burn (a combustible solid) to a charcoal residue. 2. To provide with coal. — v. intr. To take on coal. [Middle English col, from Old English.]

coal-er (kō'lər) n. Something, such as a ship or train, used for carrying or supplying coal.

co-a-lesce (kō'ə-lēs') v. intr. co-a-lesced, co-a-lesc-ing, co-a-lesc-es. 1. To grow together; fuse. 2. To come together so as to form one whole; unite: The rebel units coalesced into one army to fight the invaders. See Synonyms at mix.

[Latin coalēscere : co-, co- + alēscere, to grow, inchoative of alere, to nourish; see al-² in Appendix.] —co'a-les'cence n. —co'a-les'cent adj.

coal-field (kōl'fēld') n. An area in which deposits of coal are found.

coal-fish (kōl'fish') n. Any of several black or dark-colored fishes, especially the pollock or sablefish.

coal gas (kōl gās) n. 1. A gaseous mixture produced by the destructive distillation of bituminous coal and used as a commercial fuel. 2. The gaseous mixture released by burning coal.

coal-fi-ca-tion (kō'lə-fī-kā'shən) n. Compression and hardening over long periods of time, the processes by which coal is formed from plant materials.

co-a-li-tion (kō'ə-līsh'ən) n. 1. An alliance, especially a temporary one, of people, factions, parties, or nations. 2. A combination into one body; a union.

[French, from Medieval Latin coalitiō, coalitiōn-, from Latin coalitus, past participle of coalēscere, to grow together. See COALESCE.] —co'a-li'tion-ist n.

coal measures (kōl mēzh'ərz) pl.n. Geology. 1. Coal Measures. A stratigraphic unit equivalent to the Pennsylvanian or Upper Carboniferous periods.

2. Strata of the Carboniferous period containing coal deposits.

coal oil (kōl oil) n. See kerosene.

Coal-sack (kōl'sāk') n. 1. A dark nebula, one of the nearest to Earth, that appears in the southern Milky Way. 2. A similar dark nebula in the Northern Hemisphere near the constellation Cygnus.

coal tar (kōl tär) n. A viscous black liquid containing numerous organic compounds that is obtained by the destructive distillation of coal and used as a roofing, waterproofing, and insulating compound and as a raw material for many dyes, drugs, and paints.

coam-ing (kō'ming) n. Nautical. A raised rim or border around an opening, as in a ship's deck, designed to keep out water. [Origin unknown.]

co-an-chor or co-an-chor (kō-äng'kər) n. Either of two news commentators jointly narrating or coordinating a newscast. — v. co-an-cho-red, co-an-chor-ing, co-an-chor-s. — v. intr. To narrate or coordinate a newscast with another person. — v. tr. To narrate or coordinate (a newscast) with another person.

co-arc-tate (kō-ärk'tät') adj. Zoology. 1. Enclosed in an oval, horny case. Used of an insect pupa. 2. Constricted, narrowed, or compressed, as a segment of a blood vessel. [Latin coarctātus, past participle of coarctāre, to compress, alteration of coartāre: co-, co- + artāre, to compress (from artus, tight, confined); see ar- in Appendix.]

co-arc-ta-tion (kō'ärk-tā'shən) n. 1. A narrowing or constricting, especially of the aorta or of a blood vessel. 2. The state of being enclosed in an oval, horny case. Used of an insect pupa.

coarse (kōrs, kōrs) adj. coars-er, coars-est. 1. Of low, common, or inferior quality. 2. a. Lacking in delicacy or refinement: coarse manners. b. Vulgar or indecent: coarse language. 3. Consisting of large particles; not fine in texture: coarse sand. 4. Rough, especially to the touch: a coarse tweed. [Middle English cors, probably from course, custom. See COURSE.] — coarse'ly adv. — coarse'-ness n.

SYNONYMS: coarse, gross, indelicate, vulgar, obscene, ribald. These adjectives apply to what is offensive to accepted standards of decency, propriety, morality, or good taste. Coarse implies roughness and crudeness: A stand-up comedian performed a coarse imitation of the President. Gross suggests a lack of refinement verging on brutishness: "It is futile to expect a hungry and squalid population to be anything but violent and gross" (Thomas H. Huxley). Indelicate implies a lack of delicacy, tact, or taste: She bridled at the indelicate suggestion. Vulgar emphasizes impropriety and suggests boorishness and poor breeding: The movie is full of lan- guage so vulgar it should have been edited. Obscene strongly stresses loathsome lewdness and indecency: The book is racy rather than obscene. Ribald implies vulgar, coarse, off-color language or behavior that provokes mirth: “Peals of laughter were mingled with loud ribald jokes” (Washington Irving).

coarse-grained (kôrs'gränd', kôrs'-) adj. 1. Having a rough, coarse texture. 2. Not refined; indelicate and crude.

coars-en (kôr'sən, kôr'-) v. tr. intr. coars-ened, coars-en-ing, coars-ens. To make or become coarse.

coast (kōst) n. 1. a. Land next to the sea; the seashore. b. Coast. The Pacific Coast of the United States. 2. A hill or other slope down which one may coast, as on a sled. 3. The act of sliding or coasting; slide. 4. Obsolete. The frontier or border of a country. — v. coast-ed, coast-ing, coasts. — v. intr. 1. a. To slide down an incline through the effect of gravity. b. To move effortlessly and smoothly. See Synonyms at slide. 2. To move without further use of propelling power. 3. To act or move aimlessly or with little effort: coasted for a few weeks before applying for a job. 4. Nautical. To sail near or along a coast. — v. tr. Nautical. To sail or move along the coast or border of. [Middle English coste, from Old French, from Latin costa, side. See kost- in Appendix.] — coast'al (kō'stəl) adj.

coast-er (kō'stər) n. 1. One that coasts, as: a. One who acts in an aimless manner. b. A sled or toboggan. c. One who rides a sled or toboggan. 2. Nautical. A vessel engaged in coastal trade: “dirty British coaster with a salt-caked smokestack” (John Masefield). 3. A roller coaster. 4. a. A disk, plate, or small mat placed under a bottle, pitcher, or drinking glass to protect a table top or other surface beneath. b. A small tray, often on wheels, for passing something, such as a wine decanter, around a table. 5. A resident of a coastal region.

coaster brake (kō'stər brāk) n. A brake and clutch on the rear wheel and drive mechanism of a bicycle operated through reverse pressure on the pedals.

coast guard also Coast Guard (kōst gärd) n. Abbr. C.G. 1. The branch of a nation's armed forces that is responsible for coastal defense, protection of life and property at sea, and enforcement of customs, immigration, and navigation laws. 2. A member of a coast guard.

coast-guards-man (kōst'gärdz'mən) n. A member of a coast guard.

coast-land (kōst'länd') n. The land along a coast.

coast-line (kōst'līn') n. The shape, outline, or boundary of a coast.

Coast Mountains (kōst moun'tənz) A range of western British Columbia, Canada, and southeast Alaska extending about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) parallel to the Pacific coast. The mountains slope precipitously to the Pacific Ocean, where the shoreline is deeply indented by fjords. Mount Waddington, 3,996.7 m (13,104 ft), is the highest elevation in the range.

Coast Ranges (kōst rān'jīz) A series of mountain ranges of extreme western North America extending from southeast Alaska to Baja California along the coastline of the Pacific Ocean.

Coast Salish (kōst sāl'lish) n. The Salish-speaking Native American peoples inhabiting the northwest Pacific coast from the Strait of Georgia to southwest Washington.

coast-to-coast (kōst'tə-kōst') adj. Reaching, airing, or traveling from one coast to another, especially across a nation or continent: a coast-to-coast flight; coast-to-coast sports coverage on TV.

coast-ward (kōst'wərd) adv. & adj. Toward or directed toward a coast: The schooner sailed coastward. We followed a coastward route. —coast'wards (-wərdz) adv.

coast-wise (kōst'wīz') adv. & adj. Along, by way of, or following a coast: The winds blew coastwise. Coastwise winds contributed to the storm.

coat (kōt) n. 1. a. A sleeved outer garment extending from the shoulders to the waist or below. b. A garment extending to just below the waist and usually forming the top part of a suit. 2. A natural outer covering, such as the fur of an animal; an integument. 3. A layer of material covering something else; a coating: a second coat of paint. — v. tr. coat-ed, coat-ing, coats. 1. To provide or cover with a coat. 2. To cover with a layer, as of paint. [Middle English cote, from Old French, of Germanic origin.] —coat'ed adj.

Coat-bridge (kōt'brīj') A burgh of south-central Scotland east of Glasgow. It is a manufacturing center with iron and steel industries. Population, 50,700.

coat-dress (kōt'drēs') n. A dress that buttons up the front and is tailored somewhat like a coat.

co-a-ti (kō-ä'tē) n. Any of four species of omnivorous mammals of the genera Nasua or Nasuella of South and Central America and the southwest United States, related to and resembling the raccoon but having a longer snout and tail. [Spanish, and Portuguese coati from Tupi : cua, belt + tim, nose.]

co-a-ti-mun-di also co-a-ti-mon-di (kō-ä'tē-mūn'dē) n. A coati. [Possibly Tupi coati + Tupi mundé, animal trap.]

coat-ing (kō'tīng) n. 1. A layer of a substance spread over a surface for protection or decoration; a covering layer. 2. Cloth for making coats.

coat of arms (kōt ūv ärmz) n. pl. coats of arms. Heraldry. 1. A tabard or surcoat blazoned with bearings. 2. a. An arrangement of bearings, usually depicted on and around a shield, that indicates ancestry and distinctions. b. A representation of bearings.

coat of mail (kōt ūv māl) n. pl. coats of mail. An armored coat made of chain mail, interlinked rings, or overlapping metal plates; a hauberk.

coat-room (kōt'rōom', -rōom') n. See cloakroom (n., sense 1).

Coats Land (kōts länd) A region of western Antarctica along the southeast shore of the Weddell Sea.

coat-tail (kōt'tāl') n. 1. The loose back part of a coat that hangs below the waist. 2. coattails. The skirts of a formal or dress coat. —idioms. on (some-one's) coattails. With the assistance of another: won the mayor's post on the senator's coattails. on the coattails of. 2. As a result of the success of another: elected to office on the coattails of a popular governor. 3. Immediately following or as a direct result of: resigned on the coattails of the scandal.

coat tree (kōt trē) n. See clothes tree.

Co-at-za-co-al-cos (kō-ät'sə-kō-äl'kəs, kō-ä'tsä-kō-äl'kōs) A city of eastern Mexico on the Gulf of Campeche at the mouth of the Coatzacoalcos River, about 282 km (175 mi) long. The city is an important commercial center. Population, 127,170.

co-au-thor or co-au-thor (kō-ô'thər) n. A collaborating or joint author. — v. tr. co-au-thored, co-au-thor-ing, co-au-thors. To be a collaborating or joint author of: "He and a colleague... co-authored a genetics text" (Roger W. Pease, Jr.). See Usage Note at author.

coax¹ (kōks) v. coaxed, coax-ing, coax-es. — v. tr. 1. To persuade or try to persuade by pleading or flattery; cajole. 2. To obtain by persistent persuasion: coaxed the secret out of the child. 3. Obsolete. To caress; fondle. — v. intr. To use persuasion or inducement. [Obsolete cokes, to fool, from cokes, fool.] —coax'er n. —coax'ing-ly adv.

co-ax² (kō'äks, kō-äks') n. Informal. A coaxial cable.

co-ax-i-al (kō-äk'sē-əl) adj. Having or mounted on a common axis.

coaxial cable (kō-äk'sē-əl kā'bəl) n. A cable consisting of a conducting outer metal tube enclosing and insulated from a central conducting core, used for high-frequency transmission of telephone, telegraph, and television signals. Also called coaxial line cob (kōb) n. 1. A corncob: corn on the cob. 2. A male swan. 3. A thickset, stocky, short-legged horse. 4. A small lump or mass, as of coal. 5. A mixture of clay and straw used as a building material. [Probably from obsolete cob, round object, head, testicle.]

co-bal-a-min (kō-bäl'ə-mĭn) also co-bal-a-mine (-mĕn') n. See vitamin B₁₂. [COBAL(T) + (VIT)AMIN.]

co-balt (kō'bōlt') n. Symbol Co A hard, brittle metallic element, found associated with nickel, silver, lead, copper, and iron ores and resembling nickel and iron in appearance. It is used chiefly for magnetic alloys, high-temperature alloys, and in the form of its salts for blue glass and ceramic pigments. Atomic number 27; atomic weight 58.9332; melting point 1,495°C; boiling point 2,900°C; specific gravity 8.9; valence 2, 3. [German Kobalt, from Middle High German kobolt, goblin (from the trouble it gave silver miners).]

cobalt 60 (kō'bôlt';) n. A radioactive isotope of cobalt with mass number 60 and exceptionally intense gamma-ray activity, used in radiotherapy, metallurgy, and materials testing.

cobalt blue (kō'bôlt' blō) n. 1. A blue to green pigment consisting of a variable mixture of cobalt oxide and alumina. 2. Color. A moderate to deep vivid blue or strong greenish blue.

co-balt-ic (kō-bôl'tik) adj. Of or containing cobalt, especially with a valence of 3.

co-balt-ite (kō'bôl-tīt') also co-balt-ine (-tēn') n. A rare silver-white to gray mineral, cobalt sulfarsenide, CoAsS, that is a cobalt ore and is used in ceramics.

co-balt-ous (kō-bôl'təs) adj. Of or containing cobalt, especially with a valence of 2.

Cobb (kōb), Irwin Shrewsbury. 1876-1944. American humorist known for his books and short-story collections, especially Old Judge Priest (1915).

Cobb (kōb), Tyrus Raymond. Known as "Ty." 1886-1961. American baseball player and manager who was the first player elected to the National Baseball Hall of Fame (1936). He set a number of major league records, including a lifetime batting average of .367.

cob-ber (kōb'ər) n. Australian. A pal; a buddy. [Possibly from dialectal cob, to take a liking to.]

Cob-bett (kōb'it), William. 1763?-1835. British journalist and social reformer noted for his Rural Rides (1830), a collection of essays showing the deterioration of rural life brought about by the Industrial Revolution.

cob-ble¹ (kōb'əl) n. 1. A cobblestone. 2. Geology. A rock fragment between 64 and 256 millimeters in diameter, especially one that has been naturally rounded. 3. cobbles. See cob coal. — v. tr. cob-bled, cob-bling, cob-bles. To pave with cobblestones. [Short for COBBLESTONE.]

cob-ble² (kōb'əl) v. tr. cob-bled, cob-bling, cob-bles. 1. To make or mend (boots or shoes). 2. To put together clumsily; bungle: cobbed a plan together at the last minute. [Probably back-formation from COBBLER¹.]

cob-bler¹ (kōb'lər) n. 1. One that mends or makes boots and shoes. 2. Archaic. One who is clumsy at work; a bungler. [Middle English cobeler.]

cob-bler² (kōb'lər) n. 1. A deep-dish fruit pie with a thick top crust. 2. An iced drink made of wine or liqueur, sugar, and citrus fruit. [Origin unknown.]

cob-ble-stone (kōb'əl-stōn') n. A naturally rounded paving stone. [Middle English cobelston : obsolete cobel, probably diminutive of cob, round object; see COB + Middle English ston, stone, stone; see STONE.]

cob coal (kōb kōl) n. Coal in rounded lumps of various sizes. Also called *cobbles*¹ Cob-den (kōb'dən), Richard. 1804-1865. British politician who was a leading supporter of free trade and an opponent of protectionism.

co-bel-lig-er-ent (kō'bə-līj'ər-ənt) n. One, such as a nation, that assists another or others in waging war, usually without entering a formal alliance.

Cobh (kōv) An urban district of southern Ireland on Cork Harbor. It is a popular seaside resort. Population, 6,587.

co-bi-a (kō'bē-ə) n. A large food and game fish (Rachycentron canadum) of tropical and subtropical seas. Also called sergeant fish [Origin unknown.]

co-ble (kō'bəl) n. 1. Nautical. A small, flat-bottomed fishing boat with a lugsail on a raking mast. 2. Scots. A kind of flat-bottomed rowboat. [Middle English cobel, perhaps ultimately from Latin caupulus, a kind of small ship.]

Co-blenz (kō'blěnts') See Koblentz.

cob-nut (kōb'nüt') n. 1. The large edible nut of a cultivated variety of hazel. 2. The plant bearing this fruit.

CO-BOL or Co-bol (kō'bōl') n. Computer Science. A language based on English words and phrases, used in programming digital computers for various business applications. [Co(mmon) B(usiness-)O(riented) L(anguage).] co-bra (kō'brə) n. 1. Any of several venomous snakes, especially of the genus Naja, that are native to Asia and Africa and are capable of expanding the skin of the neck to form a flattened hood. 2. Leather made from the skin of one of these snakes. [Short for Portuguese cobra (de capello), snake (with a hood), from Latin colubra, feminine of coluber.]

Co-burg (kō'bûrg') A city of central Germany north of Nuremberg. It was first mentioned in the 11th century. Population, 44,239.

cob-web (kōb'wěb') n. 1. a. The web spun by a spider to catch its prey. b. A single thread spun by a spider. 2. Something resembling the web of a spider in gauziness or flimsiness. 3. An intricate plot; a snare: caught in a cobweb of espionage and intrigue. 4. cobwebs. Confusion; disorder: cobwebs on the brain. — v. tr. cob-webbed, cob-web-bing, cob-webs. To cover with or as if with cobwebs. [Middle English coppeweb: coppe, spider (short for attercoppe, from Old English āttercoppe: ātor, poison + copp, head) + web, web (from Old English); see WEB.] — cob'web'by adj.

co-ca (kō'kə) n. 1. Any of certain Andean evergreen shrubs or small trees of the genus Erythroxylum, especially E. coca, whose leaves contain cocaine and other alkaloids. 2. The dried leaves of such a plant, chewed by people of the Andes for a stimulating effect and also used for extraction of cocaine and other alkaloids. [Spanish, from Quechua kúka.]

co-caine (kō-kān', kō'kān') n. Abbr. C A colorless or white crystalline alkaloid, C₁₇H₂₁NO₄, extracted from coca leaves, sometimes used in medicine as a local anesthetic especially for the eyes, nose, or throat and widely used as an illicit drug for its euphoric and stimulating effects. [French cocaïne, from coca, coca, from Spanish. See COCA.]

co-cain-ism (kō-kā'niz'əm) n. The habitual or excessive use of cocaine.

co-cain-ize (kō-kā'nīz') v. tr. co-cain-ized, co-cain-iz-ing, co-cain-iz-es. To anesthetize (a body part) with cocaine. — co-cain'i-za'tion (-kā'nī-zā'shən) n.

co-car-cin-o-gen (kō'kār-sīn'ə-jən, kō-kār'sīn-ə-jěn') n. A substance or factor that will not promote cancer by itself but can potentiate cancer when acting with carcinogenic agents. — co-car'cin-o-gen'ic (-sə-nə-jěn'ik) adj.

coc-ci (kۆk'sī, kۆk'ī) n. Plural of coccus.

coc-cid (kۆk'sīd) n. Any of various insects of the superfamily Coccoidea, including the scale insects and mealybugs. [From New Latin Coccidae, family name, from Coccus, type genus, from Greek kokkos, grain.]

coc-cid-i-oi-do-my-co-sis (kۆk-sīd'ē-oi'dō-mī-kō'sīs) n. An infectious respiratory disease of human beings and other animals caused by inhaling the fungus Coccidioides immitis. It is characterized by fever and various respiratory symptoms. Also called valley fever [New Latin Coccidioides, genus name (from Coccidium, coccidium; see coccidium + -oides from Greek -oeidēs, -oid) + MYCO-SIS.]

coc-cid-i-o-sis (kۆk-sīd'ē-ō'sīs) n. A parasitic disease of many animals, including cattle, swine, sheep, dogs, cats, and poultry, but rarely of human beings, resulting from infestation of the alimentary canal by protozoans of the order Coccidia. [New Latin Coccidia, order name, pl. of coccidium, coccidium; see COCCIDIUM + -OSIS.]

coc-cid-i-um (kۆk-sīd'ē-əm) n. pl. coc-cid-i-a (-ē-ə). Any of various parasitic protozoans belonging to the order Coccidia and responsible for a disease of the alimentary canal in livestock, fowl, and human beings. [New Latin Coccidium, originally a genus name : COCCUS + -idium, n. suff. (from Greek -idion, diminutive suff.).]

coc-co-ba-cil-lus (kۆk'ō-bə-sīl'əs) n. pl. coc-co-ba-cil-li (-sīl'ī). A bacillus that is short and oval in shape. [COCC(US) + BACILLUS.]

coc-coid (kۆk'oid) adj. Shaped like or resembling a coccus; spherical. — n. A coccoid microorganism.

coc-co-lith (kۆk'ə-līth') n. A microscopic skeletal plate made of calcite that protects certain marine phytoplankton and which, in a fossilized state, forms chalk and limestone deposits. [COCC(US) (from its shape) + -LITH.]

coc-cus (kۆk'əs) n. pl. coc-ci (kۆk'sī, kۆk'ī). 1. A bacterium having a spherical or spheroidal shape. 2. Botany. A division containing a single seed that splits apart from a many-lobed fruit. [New Latin, from Greek kokkos, grain, seed.]

-coccus suff. A microorganism of spherical or spheroidal shape: streptococcus. [From COCCUS.]

coc-cyg-e-al (kۆk-sij'ē-əl) adj. Of or relating to the coccyx: coccygeal vertebra. [From New Latin coccyx, coccyg-, coccyx. See COCCYX.]

coc-cyx (kۆk'sīks) n. pl. coc-cy-ges (kۆk-sī'jēz, kۆk'sī-jēz'). A small triangular bone at the base of the spinal column in human beings and tailless apes, consisting of several fused rudimentary vertebrae. Also called tailbone [New Latin, from Greek kokkux, cuckoo, coccyx (from its resemblance to a cuckoo's beak).]

Co·cha·bam·ba (kō'chə-bäm'bə, kō'chä-bäm'bä) A city of west-central Bolivia north-northwest of Sucre. Founded in 1574 as Orpeza, it was renamed in 1786. Population, 317,251.

Co·chin¹ (kō'chĭn) A region and former princely state of southwest India on the Malabar Coast of the Arabian Sea. The city of Cochin was visited by Vasco da Gama in 1502 and colonized by the Portuguese in the following year. It was taken by the Dutch in 1663 and occupied by the British in 1795. Population, 513,249.

Co·chin² (kō'chĭn, kōch'ĭn) n. See Cochin China².

Cochin Chi-na¹ (kō'chĭn chī'nə) A region of southern Indochina including the rich delta area of the Mekong River. Originally a part of the Khmer Empire, it fell to the Annamese in the 18th century and to the French in the 19th century. The region forms the southern part of present-day Vietnam.

Cochin Chi-na² (kō'chĭn chī'nə) n. A large domestic fowl of a breed developed in Asia, having thickly feathered legs. Also called *Cochin*², *Shanghai*². [After Cochin China¹.]

coch·i·neal (kōch'ə-nēl', kōch'ə-nēl', kō'chə-, kō'chə-) n. 1. A red dye made of the dried and pulverized bodies of female cochineal insects. It is used as a biological stain and as an indicator in acid-base titrations. 2. Color. A vivid red. [French cochenille, from Spanish cochinilla, cochineal insect, probably from Vulgar Latin coccinella*, from feminine diminutive of Latin coccinus, scarlet, from Greek kokkinos, from kokkos, kermes berry (from its use in making scarlet dye).] —coch'i·neal' adj.

cochineal insect (kōch'ə-nēl' ĭn'sĕkt') n. Any of several red scale insects of the family Dactylopiidae that feed on cacti, especially the prickly pear, and range from the southwest United States to Central America.

Co·chise (kō-chēs', -chēz'), 1812?-1874. Chiricahua Apache leader who directed Apache resistance to U.S. troops in Arizona (1861-1872).

coch·le·a (kōk'lē-ə, kō'klē-ə) n. pl. coch·le·ae (-lē-ē', -lē-ī') also coch·le·as. A spiral-shaped cavity of the inner ear that resembles a snail shell and contains nerve endings essential for hearing. [Latin, snail shell, from Greek kokhlias, snail, from kokhlos, land snail.] —coch'le·ar adj.

cochlear nerve (kōk'lē-ər nûrv) n. A division of the acoustic nerve that conducts auditory stimuli to the brain.

coch·le·ate (kōk'lē-ĭt, -āt', kō'klē-) also coch·le·at·ed (-ā'tĭd) adj. Shaped like a snail shell; spirally twisted. [Latin cochleātus, from cochlea, snail shell. See COCHLEA.]

Coch·ran (kōk'rən), Jacqueline. 1910-1980. American aviator who held numerous national and international speed records and headed the Women's Air Force Service Pilots during World War II.

cock¹ (kɒk) n. 1. a. An adult male chicken; a rooster. b. An adult male of various other birds. 2. A weathervane shaped like a rooster; a weathercock. 3. A leader or chief. 4. A faucet or valve by which the flow of a liquid or gas can be regulated. 5. a. The hammer of a firearm. b. The position of the hammer of a firearm when ready for firing. 6. A tilting or jaunty turn upward: the cock of a hat. 7. Vulgar Slang. The penis. 8. Archaic. The characteristic cry of a rooster early in the morning. — v. cocked, cock-ing, cocks. — v. tr. 1. To set the hammer of (a firearm) in a position ready for firing. 2. To set (a device, such as a camera shutter) in a position ready for use. 3. To tilt or turn up or to one side, usually in a jaunty or alert manner: cocked an eyebrow in response to a silly question. 4. To raise in preparation to throw or hit: cocked the bat before swinging at the pitch. — v. intr. 1. To set the hammer of a firearm in a position ready for firing. 2. To turn or stick up. 3. To strut; swagger. — idioms. cock a snoot (or cock a snook). Slang. To express scorn or derision by or as if by placing the thumb on the nose and wiggling the fingers; thumb one's nose: “[He] could cock a snoot at the rest of the... world and blithely go his own way” (Elie Kedourie). cock of the walk. An overbearing or domineering person. [Middle English cok, from Old English cocc, probably from Late Latin coccus, from coco, a cackling, of imitative origin.]

cock² (kɒk) n. A cone-shaped pile of straw or hay. — v. tr. cocked, cock-ing, cocks. To arrange (straw or hay) into piles shaped like cones. [Middle English cok.]

cock·ade (kɒ-kādʹ) n. An ornament, such as a rosette or knot of ribbon, usually worn on the hat as a badge. [Alteration of obsolete cockard, from French cocarde, from Old French coquarde, feminine of coquard, vain, cocky, from coq, cock. See COCK¹.] — cock-ad/ed adj.

cock-a-hoop (kɒkʹə-hōpʹ, -hōpʹ) adj. 1. Being in a state of boastful elation or exultation. 2. Being askew. [From the phrase to set cock on hoop, to drink festively.] — cock'-a-hoop' adv.

Cock·aigne (kɒ-kānʹ) n. An imaginary land of easy and luxurious living. [Middle English cokaigne, from Old French, from (pais de) cokaigne, (land of) plenty, from Middle Low German kōkenje, diminutive of kōke, cake.]

cock-a-leek·ie also cock·a-leek·ie (kɒkʹə-lēʹkē) n. A soup made with chicken broth and leeks. [Alteration of cockie, diminutive of COCK¹ + leekie, diminutive of LEEK.]

cock·a·lo·rum (kɒkʹə-lōrʹəm, -lōrʹ-) n. 1. A little man with an unduly high opinion of himself. 2. Boastful talk; braggadocio. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by Latin -ōrum, nominal ending), of obsolete Flemish kockeloeren, to crow, of imitative origin.]

cock·a·ma·mie also cock·a·ma·my (kɔk'ə-mā'mē) adj. Slang. 1. Trifling; nearly valueless. 2. Ludicrous; nonsensical: gave me a cockmamie reason for not going. [Probably alteration of DECALCOMANIA.]

cock-and-bull story (kɔk'ən-bōōl' stôr'ē) n. An absurd or highly improbable tale passed off as being true.

cock·a·tiel also cock·a·teel (kɔk'ə-tēl') n. A small crested Australian parrot (Nymphicus hollandicus) having gray and yellow plumage. [Dutch kaketielje, ultimately from Malay kakatua, cockatoo. See COCKATOO.]

cock·a·too (kɔk'ə-tōō') n. pl. cock·a·toos. Any of various large parrots, especially of the genus Kakatoe of Australia and adjacent areas, characterized by a long, erectile crest. [Dutch kaketoe, from Malay kakatua.]

cock·a·trice (kɔk'ə-trīs, -trīs') n. Mythology. A serpent hatched from a cock's egg and having the power to kill by its glance. [Middle English cocatrice, basilisk, from Old French cocatris, from Medieval Latin cocātrix, cocātric-, possibly alteration of calcātrix, from Latin calcāre, to track, from calx, calc-, heel (translation of Greek ikhneumōn, tracker). See ICHNEUMON.]

cock·boat (kɔk'bōt') n. Nautical. A small rowboat, especially one used to ferry supplies from ship to shore. Also called cockleboat [Middle English cokboot: cok, cockboat (from Anglo-Norman coque, probably ultimately from Latin caudica, from caudex, caudic-, tree trunk) + boot, boat; see BOAT.]

cock·chaf·er (kɔk'chā'fər) n. Any of various European beetles of the family Scarabaeidae, especially Melolontha melolontha, which is destructive to plants. [Possibly COCK¹ + CHAFER.]

Cock·croft (kɔk'krōft', -krōft'), Sir John Douglas. 1897-1967. British physicist who with Ernest Walton succeeded in splitting the atom (1931). They shared a 1951 Nobel Prize for their contributions to nuclear physics.

cock·crow (kɔk'krō') n. The very beginning of the day; dawn.

cocked hat (kɔkt hăt) n. A hat with the brim turned up in two or three places, especially a three-cornered hat; a tricorn.

cock·er¹ (kɔk'ər) n. 1. A cocker spaniel. 2. a. A person who keeps or trains gamecocks. b. A person who promotes or attends cockfights.

cock·er² (kɔk'ər) v. tr. cock·ered, cock·er·ing, cock·ers. To pamper, spoil, or coddle. [Middle English cokeren.]

cock·er·el (kɔk'ər-əl) n. A young rooster. [Middle English cokerel, diminutive of cock, cock. See COCK¹.]

cocker spaniel (kɔk'ər spän'yəl) n. A dog of a breed originally developed in England, having long, drooping ears and a variously colored silky coat. [From its original use in hunting woodcocks.]

cock·eye (kɔk'ī') n. A squinting eye. [Possibly alteration (influenced by COCK¹) of Irish Gaelic caoch, one-eyed, squinting (from Old Irish cáech) + EYE.]

cock-eyed (kɒk'ɪd') adj. Informal. 1. Foolish; ridiculous; absurd: a cockeyed idea. 2. Askew; crooked. 3. Intoxicated; drunk.

Cock-eyes-ville (kɒk'ēz-vɪl') A community of northern Maryland, a manufacturing suburb of Baltimore. Population, 18,668.

cock-fight (kɒk'fɪt') n. A fight between gamecocks, often having their legs fitted with metal spurs, that is arranged as a spectacle. — cock'fight'ing adj. & n.

cock-horse (kɒk'hɔrs') n. 1. Something used as a toy horse, such as the knee of an adult or a rocking horse. 2. A horse added to a team of horses to assist a wagon through high water or over difficult terrain. [Origin unknown.]

cock-le¹ (kɒk'əl) n. 1. Any of various bivalve mollusks of the family Cardiidae, having rounded or heart-shaped shells with radiating ribs. 2. The shell of a cockle. 3. A wrinkle; a pucker. 4. Nautical. A cockleshell. — v. intr. tr.

cock-led, cock-ling, cock-les. To become or cause to become wrinkled or puckered. — idiom. cockles of (one's) heart. One's innermost feelings: The valentine warmed the cockles of my heart. [Middle English cokel, from Old French coquille, shell, from Vulgar Latin cochillia*, from Latin conchyllium, from Greek konkhulion, diminutive of konkhē, mussel.]

cock-le² (kɒk'əl) n. Any of several weedy plants, especially the corn cockle. [Middle English cokkel, from Old English coccel, from Medieval Latin cocculus*, diminutive of Latin coccus, kermes berry, from Greek kokkos.]

cock-le-boat (kɒk'əl-bōt') n. Nautical. See cockboat.

cock-le-bur (kɒk'əl-bûr') n. 1. Any of several annual weeds of the genus Xanthium in the composite family, having small seedlike fruits enclosed within a prickly bur that clings readily to clothing or animal fur. 2. A bur of this plant.

cock-le-shell (kɒk'əl-shəl') n. 1. a. The shell of a cockle. b. A shell similar to that of a cockle. 2. Nautical. A small, light boat.

cock-loft (kɒk'lɔft', -lɔft') n. A small loft, garret, or attic. [Probably from its use as a roosting place.]

cock-ney (kɒk'nē) n. pl. cock-neys. 1. Often Cockney. A native of the East End of London. 2. The dialect or accent of the natives of the East End of London. — adj. Of or relating to cockneys or their dialect. [Middle English coke-nei, city dweller, pampered child, cock's egg : coken, cock (possibly blend of cok; see cock¹, and chiken, chicken); see CHICKEN + ei, egg (from Old English æg); see awi- in Appendix.]

cock-of-the-rock (kɒk'əv-thə-rɒk') n. pl. cocks-of-the-rock. Either of two South American birds (Rupicola rupicola or R. peruviana) having a distinctive crest and bright-orange or reddish plumage in the male. [From its habit of nesting on rocks.]

cock-pit (kɒk'pɪt') n. 1. a. The space in the fuselage of a small airplane containing seats for the pilot, copilot, and sometimes passengers. b. The space set apart for the pilot and crew, as in a helicopter, large airliner, or transport aircraft.

2. The driver's compartment in a racing car. 3. A pit or enclosed area for cock-fights. 4. A place where many battles have been fought. 5. Nautical. a. A compartment in an old warship below the water line, used as quarters for junior officers and as a station for the wounded during a battle. b. An area in a small decked vessel toward the stern, lower than the rest of the deck, from which the vessel is steered.

cock-roach (kök'röch') n. Any of numerous oval, flat-bodied insects of the family Blattidae, including several species that are common household pests. [By folk etymology from obsolete cacarootch, from Spanish cucaracha, from cuca, caterpillar.]

WORD HISTORY: The word for cockroach in Spanish is cucaracha, which should certainly set anyone with an eye for etymology to thinking. Users of English did not simply borrow the Spanish word, however. Instead, they made it conform in appearance to other English words: cock, the word for rooster, and roach, the name of a fish. We do not know exactly why these words were chosen other than their resemblance to the two parts of the original Spanish word. We do know that the first recorded use of the word comes from a 1624 work by the colonist John Smith. The form Smith used, cacarootch, is closer to the Spanish. A form more like our own, cockroche, is first recorded in 1657.

cocks-comb (köks'kōm') n. 1. The comb of a rooster. 2. The cap of a jester, decorated to resemble the comb of a rooster. 3. An annual plant (Celosia cristata) widely cultivated for its showy, fan-shaped or plumelike clusters of red or yellow flowers. Also called celosia. 4. Obsolete. Variant of coxcomb (n., sense 1). cocks-foot n. Chiefly British. Orchard grass.

cock-shy (kök'shī') n. pl. cock-shies. Chiefly British. 1. A mark aimed at in throwing contests. 2. The throw in a throwing contest. [From an old game in which sticks were shied at a cock.]

cock-spur hawthorn (kök'spûr' hô'thörn') n. A small, thorny North American tree (Crataegus crus-galli) having white flowers and small red fruit. [From the resemblance of its thorn to a cock's spur.]

cock-suck-er (kök'sük'ər) n. Obscene. 1. One who performs an act of fellatio. 2. A mean or despicable person.

cock-sure (kök'shōr') adj. 1. Completely sure; certain. 2. Too sure; overconfident. —cock/sure/ly adv. —cock/sure/ness n.

cock-tail (kök'tāl') n. 1. Any of various mixed alcoholic drinks consisting usually of brandy, whiskey, vodka, or gin combined with fruit juices or other liquors and often served chilled. 2. An appetizer, such as mixed fruit served with some juice or seafood served with a sharp sauce: fruit cocktail; shrimp cocktail. — adj.

1. Of or relating to cocktails: a cocktail glass; a cocktail party. 2. Suitable for wear on semiformal occasions: a cocktail dress. [Origin unknown.]

cocktail table (kɔk'tāl' tã'bəl) n. See coffee table.

cock-up (kɔk'ʊp') n. Chiefly British. A blunder; a mess.

cock·y (kɔk'ē) adj. cock·i·er, cock·i·est. Overly self-assertive or self-confident. —cock·i·ly adv. —cock·i·ness n.

Co·co (kō'kō) A river rising in northern Nicaragua and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) northeast along the Nicaragua-Honduras border to the Caribbean Sea.

co·coa (kō'kō) n. 1. a. A powder made from cacao seeds after they have been fermented, roasted, shelled, ground, and freed of most of their fat. b. A beverage made by mixing this powder with sugar in hot water or milk. 2. Color. A moderate brown to reddish brown. [Alteration (influenced by coco, coconut palm); see COCONUT, of CACAO.] —co'coa adj.

Co·coa (kō'kō) A city of east-central Florida east-southeast of Orlando. It is a tourist center in a citrus-growing region. Population, 17,722.

cocoa bean (kō'kō bēn) n. See cacao (n., sense 2).

cocoa butter (kō'kō bŭt'ər) n. A yellowish-white fatty solid obtained from cacao seeds and used as an ingredient in cosmetics, tanning oils, chocolate, and soap. Also called cacao butter co·coa·nut (kō'kə-nŭt', -nət) n. Variant of coconut.

co·co·bo·lo (kō'kə-bō'lō) n. pl. co·co·bo·los. 1. Any of certain trees of the genus Dahlbergia in the pea family, especially D. retusa of Central America and Mexico. 2. The hard, durable wood of such a tree, deep orange-red with black streaking or mottling, used for small specialty items such as knife handles.

[Spanish, from Arawak kakabali.]

co·co·de·mer (kō'kō-də-mâr') n. 1. A fan-leaved palm (Lodoicea maldivica) native to the Seychelles, bearing the largest seed of all plants, which is enclosed in a hard shell resembling a pair of coconuts joined in the middle. 2. The hard-shelled seed of this plant. Also called double coconut [French : coco, coconut + de, of + mer, sea.]

co·con·spir·a·tor (kō'kən-spîr'ə-tər) n. A joint conspirator.

co·co·nut also co·coa·nut (kō'kə-nŭt', -nət) n. 1. The fruit of the coconut palm, consisting of a fibrous husk surrounding a large seed. 2. The large, brown, hard-shelled seed of the coconut, containing white flesh surrounding a partially fluid-filled central cavity. 3. The edible white flesh of the coconut, often shredded and used in food and confections or for the extraction of coconut oil. 4. A coconut palm. [coco (from Portuguese côco, grinning skull, goblin, coconut, probably from Late Latin cocum, shell); see COCOON + NUT.] coconut crab (kō'kə-nŭt' krăb) n. A large terrestrial hermit crab (Birgus latro) that can climb trees and that feeds on carrion and vegetation.

coconut milk (kō'kə-nüt' mīlk) n. 1. A milky fluid extracted from the flesh of the coconut, used in foods or as a beverage. 2. The watery fluid in the central cavity of the coconut, used chiefly as a beverage.

coconut oil (kō'kə-nüt' oil) n. A pale yellow to colorless oil or a white semi-solid fat obtained from the flesh of the coconut, widely used in food products and in the production of cosmetics and soaps.

coconut palm (kō'kə-nüt' pām) n. A feather-leaved palm (Cocos nucifera) extensively cultivated in tropical regions for food, beverages, oil, thatching, fiber, utensils, or ornament.

co-coon (kə-kōon') n. 1. a. A protective case of silk or similar fibrous material spun by the larvae of moths and other insects that serves as a covering for their pupal stage. b. A similar natural protective covering or structure, such as the egg case of a spider. 2. A protective plastic coating that is placed over stored military or naval equipment. 3. Something suggestive of a cocoon in appearance or purpose: “a congressionally mandated process that will gradually strip these institutions of a cocoon of regulations” (Edward Meadows). — v. co-cooned, co-coon-ing, co-coons. — v. tr. To envelop in or as if in a cocoon, as for protection from a harsh or unfriendly environment. — v. intr. To retreat as if into a cocoon, as for security from a harsh or unfriendly environment. [French cocon, from Provençal coucoun, diminutive of coco, shell, from Late Latin coccum, from Latin, berry, oak gall, from Greek kokkos, seed, berry.]

co-coon-ing (kə-kōon'ning) n. Retreat into the privacy of one's own home during leisure time as a means of insulating oneself from what is perceived to be a harsh, unpredictable world: “The harassments of daily life—looming nuclear incineration, rude waiters—have driven people to cocooning. They have gone to ground in their dens... to keep at bay the modern world” (George F. Will).

coco plum or co-co-plum (kō'kō-plūm') n. An evergreen shrub or small tree (Chrysobalanus icaco) native to the American and African tropics, having plum-like fruit used to make jellies and preserves. [Alteration of Spanish icaco, from Arawak ikaku.]

Co-cos Islands (kō'kōs ī'ləndz) also Kee-ling Islands (kē'ling) An island group in the eastern Indian Ocean southwest of Sumatra. Discovered in 1609, the islands were settled by the British in 1826 and are today administered by Australia.

co-cotte (kô-kôt') n. A woman prostitute. [French, chicken, prostitute, feminine diminutive of coq, cock, from Old French. See COCK¹.]

co-co-yam (kō'kō-yām') n. See taro. [COCO(A) + YAM (from its being planted in coconut groves).]

Coc-teau (kōk-tō', kōk-) , Jean. 1889-1963. French author and filmmaker who worked in nearly every artistic medium but is best known for the novel Les Enfants Terrible (1929), the play The Infernal Machine (1934), and the film Beauty and the Beast (1945).

co-cur-ric-u-lar (kō'kə-rīk'yə-lər) adj. Complementing but not part of the regular curriculum: The civics class sponsored a voter registration drive as a cocurricular activity.

Co-cy-tus (kō-kī'təs, -sī'-) n. Greek Mythology. One of the five rivers of Hades.

cod¹ (kōd) n. pl. cod or cods. Any of various marine fishes of the family Gadidae, especially Gadus morhua, an important food fish of northern Atlantic waters. Also called codfish [Middle English.]

cod² (kōd) n. 1. A husk or pod. 2. Archaic. The scrotum. 3. Obsolete. A bag. [Middle English, from Old English codd.]

Cod (kōd), Cape. A hook-shaped peninsula of southeast Massachusetts extending east and north into the Atlantic Ocean. Fishing, whaling, and shipping were important here until the late 1800's; the economy today is based largely on tourism.

COD or C.O.D. abbr. 1. Cash on delivery. 2. Collect on delivery.

co-da (kō'də) n. Music. A passage at the end of a movement or composition that brings it to a formal close. [Italian, from Latin cauda, tail.]

cod-dle (kōd'l) v. tr. cod-dled, cod-dling, cod-dles. 1. To cook in water just below the boiling point: coddle eggs. 2. To treat indulgently; baby. See Synonyms at pamper. [Possibly alteration of CAUDLE.] —cod/dler n.

code (kōd) n. 1. A systematically arranged and comprehensive collection of laws. 2. A systematic collection of regulations and rules of procedure or conduct: a traffic code. 3. a. A system of signals used to represent letters or numbers in transmitting messages. b. A system of symbols, letters, or words given certain arbitrary meanings, used for transmitting messages requiring secrecy or brevity. 4. A system of symbols and rules used to represent instructions to a computer. 5. Genetics. The genetic code. 6. Slang. A patient whose heart has stopped beating, as in cardiac arrest. — v. cod-ed, cod-ing, codes. — v. tr. 1. To systematize and arrange (laws and regulations) into a code. 2. To convert (a message, for example) into code. — v. intr. 1. Genetics. To specify the genetic code for an amino acid or a polypeptide. 2. Slang. To go into cardiac arrest. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cōdex, book. See CODEX.]

code-book (kōd'bōok') n. A book that lists the symbols of a code and their meanings.

co-dec-li-na-tion (kō'děk-lə-nā'shən) n. Astronomy. The complement of the declination.

co-de-fen-dant (kō'dī-fě'n'dənt) n. Law. A joint defendant.

co-deine (kō'dēn', -dē-īn) n. An alkaloid narcotic, C₁₈H₂₁NO₃, derived from opium or morphine and used as a cough suppressant, analgesic, and hypnotic.

[French codéine : Greek kōdeia, poppy head (from kōos, cavity); see keuə- in Appendix + -ine, alkaloid; see -INE².]

code name (kōd nām) n. A name assigned to conceal the identity or existence of something or someone.

code-name (kōd'nām') v. tr. code--named, code--nam-ing, code--names. To assign a code name to.

co-de-ter-mi-na-tion (kō'dī-tūr'mə-nā'shən) n. Cooperation, especially between labor and management, in policymaking: "The codetermination of labor with management, compulsory in large firms here, was applied to universities as well, with governing committees forced to share representation more evenly between professors, junior staff, and students" (Elizabeth Pond).

code word (kōd wûrd) n. 1. A secret word or phrase used as a code name or password. 2. A euphemism: "The Democrats' 'populism' is a code word for bigger farm subsidies and protectionism" (New Republic).

co-dex (kō'děks') n. pl. co-di-ces (kō'dī-sēz', kōd'ī-). A manuscript volume, especially of a classic work or of the Scriptures. [Latin cōdex, cōdic-, tree trunk, wooden tablet, book, variant of caudex, stem, trunk.]

cod·fish (kōd'fish') n. pl. codfish or cod·fish-es. See cod¹.

codg·er (kōj'ər) n. Informal. A somewhat eccentric man, especially an old one. [Perhaps alteration of obsolete cadger, peddler. See CADGE.]

co-di-ces (kō'dī-sēz', kōd'ī-) n. Plural of codex.

cod-i-cil (kōd'ə-sīl) n. 1. Law. A supplement or appendix to a will. 2. A supplement or appendix. [Middle English, from Old French codicille, from Latin cōdicillus, diminutive of cōdex, cōdic-, codex. See CODEX.] —cod'i-cil'la-ry (kōd'ə-sīl'ə-rē) adj.

cod-i-fy (kōd'ī-fī', kō'də-) v. tr. cod-i-fied, cod-i-fy-ing, cod-i-fies. 1. To reduce to a code: codify laws. 2. To arrange or systematize. —cod'i-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —cod'i-fi'er n.

co-di-rect (kō'dī-rēkt') v. tr. co-di-rected, co-di-rect-ing, co-di-rects. To direct (a play, film, or other form of public entertainment) jointly with another or others. —co-di-rect'or n.

cod·ling¹ (kōd'līng) also cod·lin (-līn) n. 1. A greenish, elongated English apple used for cooking. 2. A small, unripe apple. [Alteration of Middle English querdlyng, possibly from Anglo-Norman querdelion*, lionheart : Old French cuier, heart; see COURAGE + de, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + Old French lion, lion; see LION.]

cod·ling² (kōd'līng) n. pl. cod·lings or codling. A young cod.

codling moth also codlin moth (kōd'līng môth) n. A small, grayish moth (Carpocapsa pomonella) whose larvae are destructive to various fruits, especially apples.

cod-liv-er oil (kɒd'liv'ər oil) n. An oil obtained from the liver of cod and related fishes and used as a dietary source of vitamins A and D.

co-dom-i-nance (kō-dŏm'ə-nəns) n. Genetics. A condition in which both alleles of a gene pair in a heterozygote are fully expressed, with neither one being dominant or recessive to the other.

co-dom-i-nant (kō-dŏm'ə-nənt) adj. 1. Genetics. Of or relating to two alleles of a gene pair in a heterozygote that are both fully expressed. 2. a. Ecology. Being one of two or more of the most characteristic species in a biotic community. b. Influencing the presence and type of other species in the community. — n. Ecology. One of the most characteristic species in a biotic community.

co-don (kō'dŏn') n. A sequence of three adjacent nucleotides constituting the genetic code that specifies the insertion of an amino acid in a specific structural position in a polypeptide chain during protein synthesis. [COD(E) + -ON¹.]

cod-piece (kɒd'pēs') n. A pouch at the crotch of the tight-fitting breeches worn by men in the 15th and 16th centuries. [Middle English codpece: cod, bag, scrotum (from Old English codd, bag) + pece, piece; see PIECE.]

cods-wal-lop (kɒdz'wɒl'əp) n. Chiefly British. Nonsense; rubbish. [Origin unknown.]

Co-dy (kɒ'dē), William Frederick. Known as "Buffalo Bill." 1846-1917. American frontier scout and showman who after 1883 toured the United States and Europe with his Wild West Show.

co-ed or co-ed (kō'ĕd') Informal. n. A woman who attends a coeducational college or university. — adj. 1. Of or relating to an education system in which both men and women attend the same institution or classes; coeducational: a coed university. 2. Open to both sexes: a coed dorm; a coed pool. [Short for coeducational.]

co-ed-it (kō-ĕd'it) v. tr. co-ed-it-ed, co-ed-it-ing, co-ed-its. To edit (a print publication or a film) jointly with another or others. — co-ed'i-tor n.

co-ed-u-ca-tion (kō-ĕj'ə-kā'shən) n. The system of education in which both men and women attend the same institution or classes. — co-ed'u-ca'tion-al adj. — co-ed'u-ca'tion-al-ly adv.

co-ef-fi-cient (kō'ə-fish'ənt) n. Abbr. coef. 1. Mathematics. A number or symbol multiplying a variable or an unknown quantity in an algebraic term, as 4 in the term $4x$, or x in the term $x(a+b)$. 2. A numerical measure of a physical or chemical property that is constant for a system under specified conditions such as the coefficient of friction.

coefficient of correlation (kō'ə-fish'ənt ÷v kôr'ə-lā'shən) n. pl. coefficients of correlation. See correlation coefficient.

coefficient of friction (kō'ə-fish'ənt ÷v frīk'shən) n. pl. coefficients of friction. The ratio of the weight of an object being moved along a surface and the force that maintains contact between the object and the surface.

coefficient of self-induction (kō'ə-fīsh'ənt ÷v sɛlf'ɪn-dŭk'shən) n. pl. coefficients of self-induction. Electricity. See self-inductance.

coefficient of viscosity (kō'ə-fīsh'ənt ÷v vī-skōs'ɪ-tē) n. pl. coefficients of viscosity. The degree to which a fluid resists flow under an applied force, measured by the tangential friction force per unit area divided by the velocity gradient under conditions of streamline flow.

-coel or -coele or -cele suff. Chamber; cavity: blastocoel. [New Latin -coela, from Greek koilos, hollow. See keuə- in Appendix.]

coe-la-canth (sē'lə-kānth') n. Any of various mostly extinct fishes of the order Coelacanthiformes, known only in fossil form until a single living species, Latimeria chalumnae of African marine waters, was identified in 1938. [New Latin Coelacanthus, former genus name : coel-, hollow (from Greek koilos); see -COEL + acanthus, -spined (from Greek akantha, spine).] —coe'la-can'thine' (-kān'thīn', -thīn) adj. —coe'la-can'thous (-thəs) adj.

-coele suff. Variant of -coel.

coe-len-te-ra (sī-lĕn'tər-ə) n. Plural of coelenteron.

coe-len-ter-ate (sī-lĕn'tə-rāt', -tər-īt) n. Any of various invertebrate animals of the phylum Coelenterata, characterized by a radially symmetrical body with a saclike internal cavity, and including the jellyfishes, hydras, sea anemones, and corals. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the phylum Coelenterata. [From New Latin Coelenterata, phylum name : coel-, hollow; see COELACANTH + ENTER(ON) + -ATE¹.] —coe-len-ter'ic (-tĕr'ik) adj.

coe-len-ter-on (sī-lĕn'tə-rŏn', -tər-ən) n. pl. coe-len-te-ra (-tər-ə). The sac-like cavity within the body of a coelenterate. [New Latin : coel-, hollow; see COELACANTH + ENTERON.]

coe-li-ac (sē'lē-āk') adj. Variant of celiac.

coe-lom also ce-lom or coe-lome (sē'ləm) n. The cavity within the body of all animals higher than the coelenterates and certain primitive worms, formed by the splitting of the embryonic mesoderm into two layers. In mammals it forms the peritoneal, pleural, and pericardial cavities. Also called body cavity [German Koelom, from Greek koilōma, cavity, from koilos, hollow. See keuə- in Appendix.] —coe-lom'ic (sī-lŏm'ik, -lŏ'mik) adj.

coe-lo-mate (sē'lə-māt') adj. Possessing a coelom: a coelomate animal. —coe'lo-mate n.

coeno- or ceno- pref. Common: coenocyte. [New Latin, from Greek koino-, from koinos. See kom in Appendix.]

coen-o-bite (sĕn'ə-bīt', sē'nə-) n. Variant of cenobite.

coe-no-cyte (sē'nə-sīt') n. A multinucleate cytoplasmic mass enclosed by a single cell wall, as in slime molds and certain fungi and algae. —coe'no-cyt'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

coe·nu·rus (sĭ-nōōr'əs, -nyōōr'-) n. pl. coe·nu·ri (-nōōr'ī', -nyōōr'ī'). The parasitic larval stage of the tapeworm Taenia multiceps that consists of a cyst in which the scolex develops and that infects the central nervous system of ruminants, especially sheep. [COEN(O)- + -UR(O)US.]

co·en·zyme (kō-ĕn'zīm') n. A nonproteinaceous organic substance that usually contains a vitamin or mineral and combines with a specific protein, the apoenzyme, to form an active enzyme system. —co'en·zy·mat'ic (-zə-măt'ĭk) adj. —co·en'zy·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

coenzyme A (kō-ĕn'zīm' ā) n. Abbr. CoA A coenzyme present in all living cells that functions as an acyl group carrier and is necessary for fatty acid synthesis and oxidation, pyruvate oxidation, and other acetylation reactions.

coenzyme Q (kō-ĕn'zīm' kyōō) n. Ubiquinone.

co·e·qual (kō-ē'kwəl) adj. Equal with one another, as in rank or size. — n. An equal. —co'e·qual'i·ty (-kwŏl'ĭ-tē) n. —co·e'qual·ly adv.

co·er·ce (kō-ûrs') v. tr. co·erced, co·er·cing, co·er·ces. 1. To force to act or think in a certain way by use of pressure, threats, or intimidation; compel. 2. To dominate, restrain, or control forcibly: coerced the strikers into compliance. See Synonyms at force. 3. To bring about by force or threat: efforts to coerce agreement. [Latin coercere, to control, restrain : co-, co- + arcere, to enclose, confine.] —co·er·cer n. —co·er·ci·ble adj.

co·er·cion (kō-ûr'zhən, -shən) n. 1. The act or practice of coercing. 2. Power or ability to coerce. —co·er'cion·ar'y (-zhə-nĕr'ē, -shə-) adj.

co·er·cive (kō-ûr'sĭv) adj. Characterized by or inclined to coercion. —co·er'cive·ly adv. —co·er'cive·ness n.

co·es·sen·tial (kō'ĭ-sĕn'shəl) adj. Having the same essence or nature. —co'es·sen'ti·al'i·ty (-shĕ-ăl'ĭ-tē), co'es·sen'tial·ness n. —co'es·sen'tial·ly adv.

co·e·ta·ne·ous (kō'ĭ-tā'nĕ-əs) adj. Of equal age, duration, or period; coeval. [From Late Latin coetāneus, a contemporary : Latin co-, co- + Latin aetās, age; see aiw- in Appendix.] —co'e·ta'ne·ous·ly adv. —co'e·ta'ne·ous·ness n.

co·e·ter·nal (kō'ĭ-tûr'nəl) adj. Equally or jointly eternal. —co'e·ter'nal·ly adv.

co·e·ter·ni·ty (kō'ĭ-tûr'nĭ-tē) n. Existence for eternity with another or others.

Coeur d'A·lene (kôr' də-lān', kôrd'l-ān', kûrd'-) A city of northern Idaho on Coeur D'Alene Lake in the Panhandle east of Spokane, Washington. The city is the gateway to a popular resort area. Population, 24,563.

Coeur de Li·on (kûr' də lĕ'ən, kœr də lyôN') See Richard I.

co·e·val (kō-ē'vəl) adj. Originating or existing during the same period; lasting through the same era. — n. One of the same era or period; a contemporary. [From Late Latin coevus : co-, co- + aevum, age; see aiw- in Appendix.]

—co·e'val·ly adv.

co-ev-o-lu-tion (kō'ĕv-ə-lōō'shən, -ē-və-) n. The evolution of two or more interdependent species, each adapting to changes in the other. It occurs, for example, between predators and prey and between insects and the flowers that they pollinate. —co'ev-o-lu'tion-ar-y adj. —co'e-volve' (-ĭ-vōlv') v.

co-ex-ist (kō'ĭg-zĭst') v. intr. co-ex-ist-ed, co-ex-ist-ing, co-ex-ists. 1. To exist together, at the same time, or in the same place. 2. To live in peace with another or others despite differences, especially as a matter of policy: “recognize and accept, as every President in the nuclear age has, that this means coexisting with the Soviet Union” (McGeorge Bundy). —co'ex-is'tence n. —co'ex-is'tent adj.

co-ex-tend (kō'ĭk-stĕnd') v. intr. tr. co-ex-tend-ed, co-ex-tend-ing, co-ex-tends. To extend or cause to extend through the same space or duration. —co'ex-ten'sion n.

co-ex-ten-sive (kō'ĭk-stĕn'sĭv) adj. Having the same limits, boundaries, or scope. —co'ex-ten'sive-ly adv.

co-fac-tor (kō'făk'tər) n. A substance, such as a metallic iron or coenzyme, that must be associated with an enzyme for the enzyme to function.

C. of C. abbr. Chamber of commerce.

C. of E. abbr. Church of England.

cof-fee (kô'fĕ, kŏf'ĕ) n. 1. a. Any of various tropical African shrubs or trees of the genus Coffea, especially C. arabica, widely cultivated in the tropics for their seeds that are dried, roasted, and ground to prepare a stimulating, aromatic drink. b. The beanlike seeds of this plant, enclosed within a pulpy fruit. c. The beverage prepared from the seeds of this plant. 2. Color. A moderate brown to dark brown or dark grayish brown. 3. An informal social gathering at which coffee and other refreshments are served. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a coffee cup; a coffee grinder. [Alteration (influenced by Italian caffè, from Turkish), of Ottoman Turkish qahveh, from Arabic qahwah.]

WORD HISTORY: Would one be as ready to drink chaoua, kauhi, or coffa as coffee? Most of these exotic early forms of our word reflect the fact that coffee, though a normal accompaniment to the life of many English speakers, was originally an exotic substance. Coffee came to Europe from the Middle East, where its name was qahveh, an Ottoman Turkish pronunciation of Arabic qahwah, the Turks having borrowed the word and the drink from the Arabs. The first three forms cited above show the influence of the Middle Eastern words for coffee. Our form coffee results from combining caffè, the Italian version of the Middle Eastern word, and the vowel of the Middle Eastern word, represented by o. Coffee is first recorded in English in 1601 with the spelling coffe.

coffee break (kô'fē brāk) n. A short break from work during which coffee or other refreshments may be consumed.

cof·fee·cake (kô'fē-kāk', kǒf'ē-) n. A cake or sweetened bread, often containing nuts or raisins.

cof·fee·house also coffee house (kô'fē-hous', kǒf'ē-) n. A restaurant where coffee and other refreshments are served, especially one where people gather for conversation, games, or musical entertainment.

coffee klatch or coffee klatsch (kô'fē kläch, kläch) also kaf·fee·klatsch (kǒf'ē-kläch', -kläch', kô'fē-) n. A casual social gathering for coffee and conversation. [Partial translation of German Kaffeeklatsch : Kaffee, coffee + Klatsch, gossip.]

cof·fee·mak·er also coffee maker (kô'fē-mā'kær, kǒf'ē-) n. An apparatus used to brew coffee.

coffee mill (kô'fē mīl) n. A device for grinding roasted coffee beans.

cof·fee·pot (kô'fē-pöt', kǒf'ē-) n. A pot for brewing or serving coffee.

coffee shop (kô'fē shöp) n. A small restaurant in which coffee and light meals are served.

coffee table (kô'fē tā'bəl) n. A long, low table, often placed before a sofa.

Also called cocktail table

cof·fee·ta·ble book (kô'fē-tā'bəl böök, kǒf'ē-) n. An oversize book of elaborate design that may be used for display, as on a coffee table.

cof·fer (kô'fær, kǒf'ær) n. 1. A strongbox. 2. Often coffers. a. Financial resources; funds. b. A treasury: stole money from the union coffers.

3. Architecture. A decorative sunken panel in a ceiling, dome, soffit, or vault.

4. The chamber formed by a canal lock. 5. A cofferdam. 6. A floating dock. —

v. tr. cof·fered, cof·fer·ing, cof·fers. 1. To put in a coffer. 2. Architecture. To supply (a ceiling, for example) with decorative sunken panels. [Middle English cofre, from Old French, alteration of cofne*, from Latin cophinus, basket. See COFFIN.]

cof·fer·dam (kô'fær-däm', kǒf'ær-) n. 1. A temporary watertight enclosure that is pumped dry to expose the bottom of a body of water so that construction, as of piers, may be undertaken. 2. A watertight chamber attached to the side of a ship to facilitate repairs below the water line.

Cof·fey·ville (kô'fē-vīl', kǒf'ē-) A city of southeast Kansas near the Oklahoma border. It was settled as a cattle-shipping point after the coming of the railroad in the 1870's. Population, 15,185.

cof·fin (kô'fīn, kǒf'īn) n. 1. An oblong box in which a corpse is buried. 2. The horny part of a horse's hoof. — v. tr. cof·fined, cof·fin·ing, cof·fins. To place in or as if in a coffin. [Middle English cofin, basket, from Old French, from Latin cophinus, from Greek kophinos.]

Cof-fin (kô'fîn, köf'in), Levi. 1789-1877. American abolitionist whose Quaker village in Indiana was a significant part of the Underground Railroad.

Cof-fin (kô'fîn, köf'in), Robert Peter Tristram. 1892-1955. American writer who won a Pulitzer Prize (1936) for Strange Holiness, a collection of poetry.

coffin bone (kô'fîn bôn) n. The bone enclosed inside a horse's hoof.

coffin corner (kô'fîn kôr'nər) n. Football. Either corner of the field formed by the sideline and the defending team's goal line. The ball may be deliberately punted out of bounds in this area, thus forcing the receiving team to play very close to its goal line.

coffin nail (kô'fîn nāl) n. Slang. A cigarette.

cof-fle (kô'fəl, köf'əl) n. A group of animals, prisoners, or slaves chained together in a line. — v. tr. cof-fled, cof-fling, cof-fles. To fasten together in a coffle. [Arabic qāfilah, caravan.]

co-found (kō-found') v. tr. co-found-ed, co-found-ing, co-founds. To establish or found in concert with another or others. — co-found'er n.

C. of S. abbr. Chief of staff.

co-func-tion (kō'funk'shən) n. The trigonometric function of the complement of an angle: Cotan θ is cofunction of tan θ .

cog¹ (kög, kôg) n. 1. One of a series of teeth, as on the rim of a wheel or gear, whose engagement transmits successive motive force to a corresponding wheel or gear. 2. A cogwheel. 3. A subordinate member of an organization who performs necessary but usually minor or routine functions. [Middle English cogge, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish kugg, kugge.] — cogged adj.

cog² (kög, kôg) v. cogged, cog-ging, cogs. — v. tr. To load or manipulate (dice) fraudulently. — v. intr. To cheat, especially at dice. — n. An instance of cheating; a swindle. [Origin unknown.]

cog³ (kög, kôg) n. A tenon projecting from a wooden beam designed to fit into an opening in another beam to form a joint. — v. tr. cogged, cog-ging, cogs. To join with tenons. [Alteration (influenced by COG¹), of cock, to join with tenons.]

cog. abbr. Cognate.

co-gen-er-a-tion (kō-jěn'ə-rā'shən) n. A process in which an industrial facility uses its waste energy to produce heat or electricity.

co-gent (kō'jənt) adj. Appealing to the intellect or powers of reasoning; convincing: a cogent argument. See Synonyms at valid. [Latin cōgēns, cōgent- present participle of cōgere, to force : co-, co- + agere, to drive; see ag- in Appendix.] — co'gen-cy (-jən-sē) n. — co'gent-ly adv.

cog-i-ta-ble (køj'i-tə-bəl) adj. Thinkable; conceivable: Since the discovery of the vaccine, annihilation of the disease is at last cogitable.

cog-i-tate (køj'i-tāt') v. intr. tr. cog-i-tat-ed, cog-i-tat-ing, cog-i-tates. To take careful thought or think carefully about; ponder. See Synonyms at think.

[Latin cōgitāre, cōgitāt- : co-, intensive pref.; see CO- + agitāre, to consider; see AGITATE.] —cog'i-ta'tor n.

cog·i-ta-tion (kɔj'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. Thoughtful consideration; meditation. 2. A serious thought; a carefully considered reflection.

cog·i-ta-tive (kɔj'ī-tā'tiv) adj. 1. Of or relating to cogitation. 2. Inclined to or capable of cogitation. —cog'i-ta-tive-ly adv. —cog'i-ta-tive-ness n.

co-gnac (kɔn'yāk', kɔn'-, kɔn'-) n. A brandy distilled from white wine and produced in the vicinity of Cognac.

Co-gnac (kɔn'yāk', kɔn-, kɔ-nyāk') A city of western France on the Charente River north-northeast of Bordeaux. It is famous for its distilleries, which have manufactured and exported cognac since the 18th century. Population, 20,660.

cog-nate (kɔg'nāt') adj. Abbr. cog. 1. Related by blood; having a common ancestor. 2. Related in origin, as certain words in genetically related languages descended from the same ancestral root; for example, English name and Latin nōmen from Indo-European nǝ-men-. 3. Related or analogous in nature, character, or function. — n. 1. One related by blood or origin with another, especially a person sharing an ancestor with another. 2. A word related to one in another language. [Latin cognātus : co-, co- + gnātus, born, past participle of nāscī, to be born; see genə- in Appendix.] —cog-na'tion n.

cog-ni-tion (kɔg-nish'ən) n. 1. The mental process or faculty of knowing, including aspects such as awareness, perception, reasoning, and judgment. 2. That which comes to be known, as through perception, reasoning, or intuition; knowledge. [Middle English cognicioun, from Latin cognitiō, cognitiōn-, from cognitus, past participle of cognōscere, to learn : co-, intensive pref.; see CO- + gnōscere, to know; see gnō- in Appendix.] —cog-ni'tion-al adj.

cog-ni-tive (kɔg'nī-tiv) adj. 1. Of, characterized by, involving, or relating to cognition: “Thinking in terms of dualisms is common in our cognitive culture” (Key Reporter). 2. Having a basis in or reducible to empirical factual knowledge. —cog'ni-tive-ly adv.

cognitive dissonance (kɔg'nī-tiv dīs'ə-nəns) n. Psychology. A condition of conflict or anxiety resulting from inconsistency between one's beliefs and one's actions, such as opposing the slaughter of animals and eating meat.

cognitive science (kɔg'nī-tiv sī'əns) n. The study of the nature of various mental tasks and the processes that enable them to be performed.

cog-ni-za-ble (kɔg'nī-zə-bəl, kɔg-nī'-) adj. 1. Knowable or perceivable. 2. Law. That can be tried before a particular court. —cog'ni-za-bly adv.

cog-ni-zance (kɔg'nī-zəns) n. 1. Conscious knowledge or recognition; awareness. 2. The range of what one can know or understand. 3. Observance; notice: We will take cognizance of your objections at the proper time. 4. Law. Acknowledgment, recognition, or jurisdiction; the assumption of jurisdiction in a case.

5. Heraldry. A crest or badge worn to distinguish the bearer. [Middle English connaissance, from Old French conoissance, from connoistre, to know, from Latin cognōscere, to learn. See COGNITION.]

cog-ni-zant (kɔg'nī-zənt) adj. Fully informed; conscious. See Synonyms at aware. [From COGNIZANCE.]

cog-no-men (kɔg-nō'mən) n. pl. cog-no-mens or cog-nom-i-na (-nɔm'ə-nə). 1. a. A family name; a surname. b. The third and usually last name of a citizen of ancient Rome, as Caesar in Gaius Julius Caesar. 2. A name, especially a descriptive nickname or epithet acquired through usage over a period of time. See Synonyms at name. [Latin : co-, co- + nōmen, name; see nō-men- in Appendix.] —cog-nom'i-nal (-nɔm'ə-nəl) adj.

cog-no-scen-te (kɔn'yə-shən'tē, kɔg'nə-) n. pl. cog-no-scen-ti (-tē). A person with superior, usually specialized knowledge or highly refined taste; a connoisseur. [Obsolete Italian, from Latin cognōscēns, cognōscēt- present participle of cognōscere, to know. See COGNITION.]

cog-gon (kō-gōn') n. An Old World perennial grass (Imperata cylindrica), widespread as a weed in warm regions and used for thatching. [Spanish cogón, from Tagalog kúgon.]

cog railway (kɔg rāl'wā') n. A railway designed to operate on steep slopes and having a locomotive with a center cogwheel that engages with a cogged center rail to provide traction. Also called rack railway cog-wheel (kɔg'hwēl', -wēl', kɔg'-) n. 1. A toothed wheel. 2. One of a set of cogged wheels within a mechanism.

Cogs-well chair (kɔgz'wēl' châr, -wəl) n. An upholstered easy chair, open under the armrests, with a sloping back and cabriole front legs. [Probably from the name Cogswell.]

co-hab-it (kō-hăb'it) v. intr. co-hab-it-ed, co-hab-it-ing, co-hab-its. 1. To live together as spouses. 2. To live together in a sexual relationship when not legally married. [Late Latin cohabitāre : Latin co-, co- + Latin habitāre, to dwell; see INHABIT.] —co-hab'i-tant, co-hab'it-er n. —co-hab'i-ta'tion n. —co-hab'i-ta'tion-al adj.

Co-han (kō'hăn'), George Michael. 1878-1942. American singer, songwriter, and playwright known for his flashy, patriotic Broadway productions. He wrote "Over There" and "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy."

co-heir (kō-âr') n. A joint heir, as to an estate.

co-heir-ess (kō-âr'is) n. A joint woman heir, as to an estate.

Co-hen (kō'ən), Morris Raphael. 1880-1947. Russian-born American educator and philosopher known for his work on the philosophy of law and for a number of writings, including Reason and Nature (1931).

Co-hen (kō'ən), Stanley. Born 1922. American biochemist. He shared a 1986 Nobel Prize for the discovery of epidermal growth factor.

cohere (kō-hîr') v. co-hered, co-her-ing, co-heres. — v. intr. 1. To stick or hold together in a mass that resists separation. 2. To have internal elements or parts logically connected so that aesthetic consistency results: “The movie as a whole failed to cohere” (Robert Brustein). — v. tr. To cause to form a united, orderly, and aesthetically consistent whole. [Latin cohaerere: co-, co- + haerere, to cling.]

coherence (kō-hîr'əns, -hēr'-) n. 1. The quality or state of cohering, especially a logical, orderly, and aesthetically consistent relationship of parts.

2. Physics. The property of being coherent, as of waves.

coherency (kō-hîr'ən-sē) n. pl. coherencies. Coherence.

coherent (kō-hîr'ənt, -hēr'-) adj. 1. Sticking together; cohering. 2. Marked by an orderly, logical, and aesthetically consistent relation of parts: a coherent essay. 3. Physics. Of, relating to, or having waves with similar direction, amplitude, and phase that are capable of exhibiting interference. 4. Of or relating to a system of units of measurement in which a small number of basic units are defined from which all others in the system are derived by multiplication or division only. 5. Botany. Sticking to but not fused with a part or an organ of the same kind. —coherent-ly adv.

cohesion (kō-hē'zhən) n. 1. The act, process, or condition of cohering: exhibited strong cohesion in the family unit. 2. Physics. The intermolecular attraction by which the elements of a body are held together. 3. Botany. The congenital union of parts of the same kind, such as a calyx of five united sepals. [From Latin cohaesus, past participle of cohaerere, to cling together. See COHERE.] —cohesive (-sīv, -zīv) adj. —cohesively adv. —cohesiveness n.

cohesionless (kō-hē'zhən-līs) adj. Composed of particles that do not cohere. Used of soil.

Cohn (kōn), Ferdinand Julius. 1828-1898. German botanist who is considered the founder of bacteriology. He was the first to recognize bacteria as plants.

Cohn (kōn), Roy Marcus. 1927-1986. American lawyer who gained notoriety as Joseph McCarthy's assistant during the Communist scare of the 1950's. Shortly before his death he was disbarred in New York for unethical practices.

coho (kō'hō) n. pl. cohos or coho. The coho salmon.

Co-hoes (kə-hōz') A city of east-central New York on the Hudson River north of Albany. It was settled by the Dutch in 1665. Population, 16,825.

cohort (kō'hôrt') n. 1. A group or band of people. 2. A companion or an associate. 3. A generational group as defined in demographics, statistics, or market research: “The cohort of people aged 30 to 39... were more conservative” (American Demographics). 4. a. One of the 10 divisions of a Roman legion, consisting of 300 to 600 men. b. A group of soldiers. [Middle English, from Old French cohorte, from Latin cohors, cohort-. See gher-¹ in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The use of cohort to refer to an individual rather than a group has gained considerable currency in recent years, and seems now to be the predominant usage. Seventy-one percent of the Usage Panel accepts the sentence The cashiered dictator and his cohorts have all written their memoirs, while only 43 percent accepts The gangster walked into the room surrounded by his cohort. • Perhaps because of its original military meaning, cohort usually implies a somewhat negative judgment. A phrase such as the President and his cohorts might therefore be better used by critics of the President than by defenders.

coho salmon (kō'hō sām'ən) n. A small silver food and game fish (Oncorhynchus kisutch) native to North Pacific waters and introduced in the Great Lakes. Also called silver salmon [Alteration of cohose, from Salish (Halkomelem) kʷəx-wəθ.]

co-hosh (kō'hōsh') n. Any of several North American plants, especially blue cohosh, black cohosh, and baneberry. [From Eastern Abenaki kkʷ•has.]

co-host or co-host (kō'hōst') n. A joint host, as of a social event. — v. tr. co-host-ed, co-host-ing, co-hosts. To serve as a joint host of: "In 1980, [he] co-hosted another event for large contributors" (New Yorker). See Usage Note at host¹.

co-hune (kō-hōon') n. A feather-leaved Central American palm (Orbignya cohune) having hard-shelled fruits that yield a useful oil. [New Latin, perhaps from American Spanish, from Mosquito ókhún.]

coif (koif) n. 1. (also kwäf) A coiffure. 2. A tight-fitting cap worn under a veil, as by nuns. 3. A white skullcap formerly worn by English lawyers. 4. A heavy skullcap of steel or leather, formerly worn under a helmet or mail hood. — v. tr. coifed, coif-ing, coifs. 1. (also kwäf) To arrange or dress (the hair). 2. To cover with or as if with a coif. [Middle English, from Old French coife, from Late Latin cofea, helmet, of Germanic origin.]

coif-feur (kwä-fûr') n. A male hairdresser. [French, from coiffer, to coif, from Old French coife, coif. See COIF.]

coif-feuse (kwä-fyōōz', -fœz') n. A woman hairdresser. [French, feminine of coiffeur, coiffeur. See COIFFEUR.]

coif-fure (kwä-fyōōr') n. A hairstyle. — v. tr. coif-fured, coif-fur-ing, coif-fures. To arrange or dress (hair). [French, from coiffer, to coif. See COIFFEUR.]

coign (koin, kwoin) n. & v. Variant of quoin.

coil¹ (koil) n. 1. a. A series of connected spirals or concentric rings formed by gathering or winding: a coil of rope; long coils of hair. b. An individual spiral or ring within such a series. 2. A spiral pipe or series of spiral pipes, as in a radiator. 3. Electricity. a. A wound spiral of two or more turns of insulated wire, used to introduce inductance into a circuit. b. Any of various devices of which such a spiral is the major component. 4. A roll of postage stamps prepared for use in a vending machine. — v. coiled, coil-ing, coils. — v. tr. 1. To wind in concentric rings or spirals. 2. To wind into a shape resembling a coil. — v. intr. 1. To form concentric rings or spirals. 2. To move in a spiral course: black smoke coiling up into the sky. [Probably from obsolete French coillir, to gather up, from Latin colligere. See COLLECT¹.] —coil'er n.

coil² (koil) n. A disturbance; a fuss. [Origin unknown.]

Coim-ba-tore (koim'bə-tōr', -tōr') A city of southern India south-southwest of Bangalore. It is a manufacturing center and an agricultural market. Population, 704,514.

Co-im-bra (kō-īm'brə, kwīm'-, kwēN'-) A city of central Portugal north-northeast of Lisbon. It is noted for its university, founded in Lisbon in the 1290's and transferred to Coimbra in 1540. Population, 74,616.

coin (koin) n. 1. A small piece of metal, usually flat and circular, authorized by a government for use as money. 2. Metal money considered as a whole. 3. A flat, circular piece or object felt to resemble metal money: a pizza topped with coins of pepperoni. 4. Architecture. A corner or cornerstone. 5. A mode of expression considered standard: Two-word verbs are valid linguistic coin in the 20th century. — v. tr. coined, coin-ing, coins. 1. To make (pieces of money) from metal; mint or strike: coined silver dollars. 2. To make pieces of money from (metal): coin gold. 3. To devise (a new word or phrase). — adj. Requiring one or more pieces of metal money for operation: a coin washing machine. —idiom. the other side of the coin. One of two differing or opposing views or sides. [Middle English, from Old French, die for stamping coins, wedge, from Latin cuneus, wedge.] —coin'a-ble adj. —coin'er n.

coin-age (koi'nij) n. 1. The right or process of making coins. 2. a. Metal currency. b. A system of metal currency. 3. a. A new word or phrase. b. The invention of new words. 4. Ancestry or social background: "Count Gengler was of common coinage, but in coming to America he took on a royal name" (Jimmy Breslin).

co-in-cide (kō-īn-sīd') v. intr. co-in-cid-ed, co-in-cid-ing, co-in-cides. 1. To occupy the same relative position or the same area in space. 2. To happen at the same time or during the same period. 3. To correspond exactly; be identical. 4. To agree exactly, as in opinion; concur. See Synonyms at agree. [Medieval Latin coincidere: Latin co-, co- + Latin incidere, to occur; see INCIDENT.]

co-in-ci-dence (kō-īn'sī-dəns, -dəns') n. 1. The state or fact of occupying the same relative position or area in space. 2. A sequence of events that although accidental seems to have been planned or arranged.

co-in-ci-dent (kō-īn'sī-dənt) adj. 1. Occupying the same area in space or happening at the same time: a series of coincident events. See Synonyms at contem- porary. 2. Being very similar to another, as in nature: testimony that was coincident with the actual facts. 3. Matching point for point; coinciding: coincident circles.

co·in·ci·den·tal (kō-ĭn'sĭ-dĕn'tl) adj. 1. Occurring as or resulting from coincidence. 2. Happening or existing at the same time. —co·in'ci·den'tal·ly adv.

co·in·sur·ance (kō'ĭn-shōōr'əns) n. 1. Insurance held jointly by two or more insurers. 2. A form of insurance in which a person insures property for less than its full value and agrees to be responsible for the difference.

co·in·sure (kō'ĭn-shōōr') v. tr. co·in·sured, co·in·sur·ing, co·in·sures. 1. To insure jointly. 2. To insure with coinsurance.

coir (koir) n. The fiber obtained from the husk of a coconut, used chiefly in making rope and matting. [Malayalam kayar, cord, from kayaru, to be twisted.]

co·i·tus (kō'ĭ-təs, kō-ē'-) n. Sexual union between a male and a female involving insertion of the penis into the vagina. [Latin, from past participle of coīre, to copulate : co-, co- + īre, to go, come; see ei- in Appendix.] —co'i·tal adj.

—co'i·tal·ly adv.

coitus in·ter·rup·tus (kō'ĭ-təs ĭn'tə-rŭp'təs) n. Sexual intercourse deliberately interrupted by withdrawal of the penis from the vagina prior to ejaculation. [New Latin : Latin coitus, coitus + Latin interruptus, interrupted.]

coke¹ (kōk) n. The solid residue of impure carbon obtained from bituminous coal and other carbonaceous materials after removal of volatile material by destructive distillation. It is used as a fuel and in making steel. — v. tr. intr.

coked, cok·ing, cokes. To convert or be converted into coke. [Perhaps from Middle English colk, core.]

coke² (kōk) n. Slang. Cocaine.

Coke (kōk) A trademark used for a soft drink. See Regional note at tonic.

Coke (kōok, kōk), Sir Edward. 1552-1634. English jurist who as chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas (1606-1616) ruled that the common law is supreme law, even when the Crown disagrees.

coke·head (kōk'hĕd') n. Slang. A heavy user of cocaine: "his fictional characters—the cokehead, wild-man producer, the celebrity exercise man" (Wall Street Journal).

col (kōl) n. A pass between two mountain peaks or a gap in a ridge. [French, from Old French, neck, from Latin collum. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

Col or Col. abbr. Bible. Colossians.

col. abbr. 1. Collect; collected; collector. 2. College; collegiate. 3. Colonial; colony. 4. Color. 5. Column.

Col. abbr. 1. Colombia. 2. Colonel. 3. Colorado.

col-¹ pref. Variant of com-.

col-² pref. Variant of colo-.

co-la¹ (kō'lə) n. A carbonated soft drink containing an extract of the cola nut and other flavorings. Regional. Also called dope co-la² (kō'lə) n. Plural of colon¹ (n., sense 2).

co-la³ (kō'lə) n. A plural of colon².

co-la⁴ also ko-la (kō'lə) n. Either of two tropical African evergreen plants (Cola acuminata or C. nitida) having reddish, fragrant, nutlike seeds yielding an extract that contains caffeine and theobromine and is used in carbonated beverages and pharmaceuticals. [Of West African origin; akin to Temne kōla, kola nut.]

COLA abbr. Cost-of-living adjustment.

col-an-der (kŭl'ən-dər, kŏl'-) n. A bowl-shaped kitchen utensil with perforations for draining off liquids and rinsing food. [Middle English colyndore, probably alteration of Old Provençal colador, strainer, from Vulgar Latin cōlātōrium, from Latin cōlātus, past participle of cōlāre, to strain, from cōlum, sieve.]

Col-bert (kŏl-bĕr', kŏl-) , Jean Baptiste. 1619-1683. French politician who served as an adviser to Louis XIV. Colbert reformed taxes, centralized the administration, and improved roads and canals in an effort to encourage trade.

col-can-non (kŏl-kăn'ən) n. An Irish dish of mashed potatoes and cabbage, seasoned with butter. [Irish Gaelic cāl ceannan : cāl, cabbage (from Old Irish cāl, from Latin caulis) + ceannan, white-headed (ceann, head from Old Irish cenn + fionn, white from Old Irish find); see weid- in Appendix.]

Col-ches-ter (kŏl'chĕs'tər, -chĭ-stər) A municipal borough of southeast England near the North Sea. It was an important pre-Roman city and the site of the first Roman colony in Britain. Population, 83,900.

col-chi-cine (kŏl'chĭ-sĕn', kŏl'kĭ-) n. A poisonous, pale-yellow alkaloid, C₂₂H₂₅NO₆, obtained from the autumn crocus and used in plant breeding to induce chromosome doubling and in medicine to treat gout. [COLCHIC(UM) + -INE².]

col-chi-cum (kŏl'chĭ-kəm, kŏl'kĭ-) n. 1. Any of various bulbous plants of the genus Colchicum, such as the autumn crocus. 2. The dried ripe seeds or corms of the autumn crocus, both of which yield colchicine. [Latin, a plant with a poisonous root, from Greek kolkhikon, meadow saffron, after Kolkhos, Colchis.]

Col-chis (kŏl'kĭs) An ancient region on the Black Sea south of the Caucasus Mountains. It was the site of Jason's legendary quest for the Golden Fleece.

col-co-thar (kŏl'kə-thər, -thär') n. A brownish-red ferric oxide obtained as a residue after heating ferrous sulfate, used in glass polishing and as a pigment. [Medieval Latin, from Spanish colcotar, from Arabic qulqutār, possibly from Greek khalkanthos, copper sulfate : khalkos, copper + anthos, flower.]

cold (kŏld) adj. cold-er, cold-est. 1. a. Having a low temperature. b. Having a temperature lower than normal body temperature. c. Feeling no warmth; uncomfortably chilled. 2. a. Marked by deficient heat: a cold room. b. Being at a temperature that is less than what is required: cold oatmeal. c. Chilled by refrigeration or ice: cold beer. 3. Lacking emotion; objective: cold logic.

4. Having no appeal to the senses or feelings: a cold decor. 5. a. Not affectionate or friendly; aloof: a cold person; a cold nod. b. Exhibiting or feeling no enthusiasm: a cold audience; a cold response to the new play; a concert that left me cold.

c. Devoid of sexual desire; frigid. 6. Color. Designating a tone or color, such as pale gray, that suggests little warmth. 7. Having lost all freshness or vividness through passage of time: dogs attempting to catch a cold scent. 8. a. Marked by or sustaining a loss of body heat: cold hands and feet. b. Appearing to be dead; unconscious. c. Dead: was cold in his grave. 9. Marked by unqualified certainty or sure familiarity. 10. So intense as to be almost uncontrollable: cold fury. —

adv. 1. To an unqualified degree; totally: was cold sober. 2. With complete finality: We turned him down cold. 3. Without advance preparation or introduction: took the exam cold and passed; walked in cold and got the new job. — n.

1. a. Relative lack of warmth. b. The sensation resulting from lack of warmth; chill. 2. A condition of low air temperature; cold weather: went out into the cold and got a chill. 3. A viral infection characterized by inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the upper respiratory passages and usually accompanied by malaise, fever, chills, coughing, and sneezing. In this sense, also called common cold, coryza. — idiom. out in the cold. Lacking benefits given to others; neglected. [Middle English, from Old English ceald. See gel- in Appendix.]

—cold'ly adv. —cold'ness n.

SYNONYMS: cold, arctic, chilly, cool, frigid, frosty, gelid, glacial, icy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “marked by a low or an extremely low temperature”: cold air; an arctic climate; a chilly day; cool water; a frigid room; a frosty morning; gelid seas; glacial winds; icy hands.

ANTONYM: hot

cold bath (kōld bāth) n. Informal. A chilly reaction or response.

cold-blood-ed (kōld'blūd'id) adj. 1. a. Lacking feeling or emotion: a cold-blooded killer. b. Executed without feeling or emotion: a cold-blooded crime; a cold-blooded performance of the concerto. 2. Ectothermic. —cold'-blood-'ed-ly adv. —cold'-blood'ed-ness n.

cold call (kōld kōl) n. A telephone call or visit made to someone who is not known or not expecting contact, often in order to sell something. —cold'-call' (kōld'kōl'), cold' call' v.

cold cash (kōld kăsh) n. Informal. Money readily at hand.

cold chisel (kōld chīz'əl) n. A chisel made of hardened, tempered steel and used for cutting cold metal.

cold-cock (kōld'kۆk') v. tr. cold-cocked, cold-cock-ing, cold-cocks. Slang. To knock (another) unconscious.

cold comfort (kōld kŭm'fərt) n. Extremely limited empathy, sympathy, or encouragement: "I told him that the years would pass with remarkable celerity, but that appeared to be cold comfort" (Nelson Bryant).

cold cream (kōld krēm) n. An emulsion for softening and cleansing the skin.

cold cut (kōld küt) n. A slice of cold, cooked meat. Often used in the plural.

cold drink (kōld drīŋk) n. 1. A drink, as of water, served or taken cold.

2. Chiefly Southern U.S. See soft drink. See Regional note at tonic.

cold duck (kōld dŭk) n. A beverage made of sparkling Burgundy and champagne. [Translation of German Kalte Ente, a drink made from a mixture of wines.]

Col-den (kōl'dən), Cadwallader. 1688-1776. Irish-born colonial administrator, scientist, and philosopher noted particularly for his History of Five Indian Nations (1727).

cold-eyed (kōld'id') adj. Cold-bloodedly dispassionate: a cold-eyed appraisal of the situation.

cold feet (kōld fēt) pl.n. Slang. Fearfulness or timidity preventing the completion of a course of action.

cold fish (kōld fīsh) n. Informal. An aloof person.

cold frame (kōld frām) n. An unheated outdoor structure consisting of a wooden or concrete frame and a top of glass or clear plastic, used for protecting and acclimatizing seedlings and plants.

cold front (kōld frŭnt) n. The leading portion of a cold atmospheric air mass moving against and eventually replacing a warm air mass.

Cold Harbor (kōld hār'bər) A locality in eastern Virginia east-northeast of Richmond. Confederate forces defeated Union troops here in two Civil War battles (1862 and 1864).

cold-heart-ed (kōld'här'tid) adj. Devoid of sympathy or feeling. —cold'-heart'/ed-ly adv. —cold'-heart'/ed-ness n.

cold light (kōld līt) n. 1. Light producing little or no heat. 2. Light emitted by a process other than incandescence.

cold pack (kōld pāk) n. 1. A compress of gauze, cloth, or plastic filled or moistened with a cold fluid and applied externally to swollen or injured body parts to relieve pain and swelling. 2. A canning process in which uncooked food is packed in jars or cans, then sterilized by heat.

cold rolling (kōld rō'ling) n. The rolling of steel or other metal at room temperature to preserve its original crystal structure.

cold rubber (kōld rŭb'ər) n. A durable, strong synthetic rubber polymerized at low temperatures.

cold-shoul-der (kōld'shōl'dər) v. tr. cold-shoul-dered, cold-shoul-der-ing, cold-shoul-ders. Informal. To slight or snub (someone).

cold shoulder (kōld shōl'dər) n. Informal. Deliberate coldness or disregard; a slight or a snub: received the cold shoulder from several members of the club.

cold shower (kōld shou'ər) n. Informal. A startlingly chilly, unenthusiastic reaction, response, or reception: "The elections, however, amounted to a cold shower for the... authorities" (Los Angeles Times).

cold sore (kōld sôr) n. A small blister occurring on the lips and face and caused by herpes simplex. Also called fever blister, herpes labialis.

cold storage (kōld stôr'ij) n. 1. Protective storage, as of foods or furs, in a refrigerated place. 2. Informal. A state of being held in abeyance.

cold sweat (kōld swět) n. A reaction to nervousness, fear, pain, or shock, characterized by simultaneous perspiration and chill and cold moist skin.

cold turkey (kōld tûr'kē) n. Slang. 1. Immediate, complete withdrawal from something on which one has become dependent, such as an addictive drug. 2. Blunt language or procedural method. 3. A cold fish.

cold type (kōld tīp) n. Typesetting, such as photocomposition, done without the casting of metal.

cold wall effect (kōld wōl ĭ-fěkt') n. The chilly discomfort experienced by a person in a building as his or her body radiates heat to the cold surface of an uninsulated wall.

cold war or Cold War (kōld wôr) n. 1. A state of political tension and military rivalry between nations that stops short of full-scale war. 2. A state of rivalry and tension between two factions, groups, or individuals that stops short of open, violent confrontation. —cold warrior n.

cold water (kōld wô'tər) n. Informal. Deprecation, as of a proposal or an idea deemed silly or ill-advised: "The President was careful not to throw cold water on the latest Soviet arms proposal" (Christian Science Monitor).

cold-wa-ter (kōld'wô'tər, -wõt'ər) adj. Lacking modern plumbing or heating facilities: a cold-water flat.

Cold-wa-ter River (kōld'wô'tər rĭv'ər, -wõt'ər) A river, 354 km (220 mi) long, of northwest Mississippi flowing generally south to the Tallahatchie River.

cold wave (kōld wāv) n. 1. An onset of unusually cold weather within a 24-hour period. 2. A form of permanent wave in which the hair is set by chemicals rather than by heat.

cold-weld (kōld'wæld') v. tr. cold--weld-ed, cold--weld-ing, cold--welds. To weld under high pressure or vacuum without heat.

cold weld-ing (kōld wěl'dĭng) n. The welding of two materials under high pressure or vacuum without the use of heat.

cole (kōl) n. See kale (n., sense 1). [Middle English col, from Old English cāl, from Latin caulis, cabbage.]

Cole (kōl), Nat "King". 1919-1965. American singer and pianist who recorded such popular ballads as "Unforgettable" and "Mona Lisa."

Cole (kōl), Thomas. 1801-1848. American painter acknowledged as the leader of the Hudson River School, America's first painting movement.

co-lec-to-my (kə-lĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. co-lec-to-mies. Surgical removal of part or all of the colon.

cole-man-ite (kōl'mə-nīt') n. A natural white or colorless hydrated calcium borate, $\text{Ca}_2\text{B}_6\text{O}_{11}\cdot 5\text{H}_2\text{O}$, a principal source of borax. [After William Tell Coleman (1824-1893), American merchant in California.]

co-le-op-ter-an (kō'lĕ-ŏp'tər-ən, kōl'ĕ-) also co-le-op-ter-on (-tə-rŏn') n. Any of numerous insects of the order Coleoptera, characterized by forewings modified to form tough, protective covers for the membranous hind wings and including the beetles, weevils, and fireflies. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the order Coleoptera. [From New Latin Coleoptera, order name, from Greek koleopteros, sheath-winged : koleon, sheath; see kel-¹ in Appendix + pteron, wing; see pet- in Appendix.] — co'le-op'ter-ous (-tər-əs) adj.

co-le-op-tile (kō'lĕ-ŏp'tīl, kōl'ĕ-) n. A protective sheath enclosing the shoot tip and embryonic leaves of grasses. [From New Latin coleoptilum : Greek koleon, sheath; see kel-¹ in Appendix + Greek ptilon, plume; see pet- in Appendix.]

co-le-o-rhi-za (kō'lĕ-ə-rī'zə, kōl'ĕ-) n. pl. co-le-o-rhi-zae (-zē). A protective sheath enclosing the embryonic root of grasses. [New Latin : Greek koleon, sheath; see kel-¹ in Appendix + Greek rhiza, root; see wrād- in Appendix.]

Cole-ridge (kōl'rīj, kō'lə-rīj), Samuel Taylor. 1772-1834. British poet and critic who was a leader of the romantic movement. With William Wordsworth he published Lyrical Ballads (1798), which contains "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," his best-known poem.

cole-slaw also cole slaw (kōl'slô') n. A salad of finely shredded raw cabbage and sometimes shredded carrots, dressed with mayonnaise. [Dutch koolsla : kool, cabbage (from Middle Dutch cōle, from Latin caulis) + sla, salad (short for salade, from French, from Old French); see SALAD.]

Col-et (kōl'ət), John. 1467?-1519. English scholar and theologian who founded Saint Paul's School in London (1509) to promote classical as well as scriptural learning.

Co-lette (kō-lĕt', kô-), (Sidonie Gabrielle Claudine). 1873-1954. French novelist known for her observations of women and nature. She wrote the Claudine series, as well as Chéri (1920) and Gigi (1945).

co-le-us (kō'lĕ-əs) n. Any of various Old World herbs of the genus Coleus in the mint family, widely cultivated for their multicolored decorative leaves. Also called flame nettle [New Latin Coleus, genus name, from Greek koleos, sheath (from the way its filaments are joined). See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

cole-wort (kōl'wŭrt', -wŏrt') n. See kale (n., sense 1).

Col-fax (kōl'făks), Schuyler. 1823-1885. Vice President of the United States (1869-1873) under Ulysses S. Grant.

Col-gate (kōl'gāt'), William. 1783-1857. American manufacturer who founded a successful soap-manufacturing business (1806) that grew into the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company.

coli- pref. Variant of colo-.

col-ic (kōl'ik) n. Severe abdominal pain caused by spasm, obstruction, or distention of any of the hollow viscera, such as the intestines. Often a condition of early infancy, colic is marked by chronic irritability and crying. — adj. (kō'līk) Of, relating to, or affecting the colon. [Middle English colik, affecting the colon, colic, from Old French colique, from Latin cōlica (passiō), (suffering) of the colon, feminine of cōlicus, from Greek kōlikos, from kolon, colon.] — col'ick-y (kōl'ī-kē) adj.

col-i-cin (kōl'ī-sin, kō'li-) n. Any of various antibacterial proteins produced by certain strains of the colon bacillus that are lethal to other closely related strains of bacteria. [COL(ON)² + -IC + -IN.]

col-ic-root (kōl'ik-rōōt', -rōōt') n. 1. Any of certain perennial herbs of the genus Aletris in the lily family, especially A. farinosa of eastern North America, having racemes of small white flowers and rootstocks formerly used in medicine to treat colic. Also called star grass 2. Any of various other plants thought to relieve colic.

co-li-form (kō'lə-fôrm', kōl'ə-) adj. Microbiology. Of or relating to the bacilli that commonly inhabit the intestines of human beings and other vertebrates, especially the colon bacillus. — co'li-form' n.

Co-li-gny or Co-li-gni (kô-lē-nyē'), Gaspard de. 1519-1572. French general and Huguenot leader who was one of the first victims in the massacre of Protestants that took place on Saint Bartholomew's Day, 1572.

co-lin-e-ar (kō-līn'ē-ər) adj. 1. Containing elements that correspond to one another and that are arranged in the same linear sequence. 2. Collinear. — co-lin'e-ar'i-ty (-ər'ī-tē) n.

col-i-se-um also col-os-se-um (kōl'ī-sē'əm) n. A large amphitheater for public sports events, entertainment, or assemblies. [Medieval Latin Colisēum, an amphitheater in Rome, Italy, variant of Latin Colossēum, from neuter of colossēus, gigantic, from colossus, huge statue. See COLOSSUS.]

co-lis-tin (kə-līs'tīn, kō-) n. Microbiology. An antibiotic produced by the bacterium Bacillus polymyxa or B. colistinus that is effective against a wide range of gram-negative bacteria and is used especially in the treatment of infections of the gastrointestinal tract. [From New Latin Colistīnus, species name, from COLI-.]

co-li-tis (kə-lī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the colon. Also called colonitis coll. abbr. 1. Collateral. 2. Collect; collection; collector. 3. College; collegiate. 4. Colloquial; colloquialism.

coll- pref. Variant of collo-.

col·lab·o·rate (kə-lăb'ə-rāt') v. intr. col·lab·o·rat·ed, col·lab·o·rat·ing, col·lab·o·rates. 1. To work together, especially in a joint intellectual effort. 2. To cooperate treasonably, as with an enemy occupation force in one's country. [Late Latin collabōrāre, collabōrāt- : Latin com-, com- + Latin labōrāre, to work (from labor, toil).] —col·lab'·o·ra'tion n. —col·lab'·o·ra'tive adj. —col·lab'·o·ra'tor n.

col·lab·o·ra·tion·ist (kə-lăb'ə-rā'shə-nĭst) n. One that collaborates with an enemy occupation force. —col·lab'·o·ra'tion·ism n.

col·lage (kō-lăzh', kə-) n. 1. a. An artistic composition of materials and objects pasted over a surface, often with unifying lines and color. b. The art of creating such compositions. 2. An assemblage of diverse elements: a collage of conflicting memories. — v. col·laged, col·lag·ing, col·lages. — v. tr. To paste (diverse materials) over a surface, thereby creating an artistic product. — v. intr. To create such an artistic product. [French, from coller, to glue, from colle, glue, from Vulgar Latin colla*, from Greek kolla.] —col·lag'ist n.

collage film (kō-lăzh' fĭlm) n. A film that has disparate scenes linked in series without transition.

col·la·gen (kŏl'ə-jən) n. The fibrous protein constituent of bone, cartilage, tendon, and other connective tissue. It is converted into gelatin by boiling. [Greek kolla, glue + -GEN.] —col'la·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), col·lag'e·nous (kə-lăj'ə-nəs) adj.

col·lag·e·nase (kə-lăj'ə-nās', -nāz', kŏl'ə-jə-) n. Any of various enzymes that catalyze the hydrolysis of collagen and gelatin.

col·lapse (kə-lăps') v. col·lapsed, col·laps·ing, col·laps·es. — v. intr. 1. To fall down or inward suddenly; cave in. 2. To break down suddenly in strength or health and thereby cease to function: a monarchy that collapsed. 3. To fold compactly: chairs that collapse for storage. — v. tr. To cause to fold, break down, or fall down or inward. — n. 1. The act of falling down or inward, as from loss of supports. 2. An abrupt failure of function, strength, or health; a breakdown. 3. An abrupt loss of perceived value or of effect: the collapse of popular respect for the integrity of world leaders. [Latin collābī, collāps-, to fall together : com-, com- + lābī, to fall.] —col·laps'i·bil'i·ty n. —col·laps'i·ble, col·laps'a·ble adj.

col·lar (kŏl'ər) n. 1. The part of a garment that encircles the neck. 2. A necklace. 3. a. A restraining or identifying band of leather, metal, or plastic put around the neck of an animal. b. The cushioned part of a harness that presses against the shoulders of a draft animal. 4. Biology. An encircling structure or bandlike marking, as around the neck of an animal, suggestive of a collar. 5. Any of various ringlike devices used to limit, guide, or secure a machine part. 6. Slang. An arrest, as of a criminal. — v. tr. col·lared, col·lar·ing, col·lars. 1. To furnish with a collar. 2. Slang. a. To seize or detain. b. To arrest (a criminal, for example). [Middle English coler, from Old French colier, from Latin collāre, from collum, neck. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.] —col'lared adj.

col·lar·bone (kōl'ər-bōn') n. See clavicle (n., sense 1).

collar cell (kōl'ər sĕl) n. See choanocyte.

col·lard (kōl'ərd) n. 1. See kale (n., sense 1). 2. collards. The leaves of kale, used as a vegetable. [Variant of COLEWORT.]

collared peccary (kōl'ərd pĕk'ə-rĕ) n. A small wild hog (Tayassu tajacu) with a range from the southwest United States to northern Argentina, having a gray and black coat with a white band from the back to the chest. Also called javelina collat. abbr. Collateral.

col·late (kə-lāt', kōl'āt', kō'lāt') v. tr. col·lat·ed, col·lat·ing, col·lates. 1. To examine and compare carefully in order to note points of disagreement. 2. To assemble in proper numerical or logical sequence. 3. Printing. a. To examine (gathered sheets) in order to arrange them in proper sequence before binding. b. To verify the order and completeness of (the pages of a volume).

4. Ecclesiastical. To admit (a cleric) to a benefice. [From Latin collātus, past participle of cōnferre, to bring together : com-, com- + lātus, brought; see telə- in Appendix.] —col·la'tor n.

col·lat·er·al (kə-lāt'ər-əl) adj. Abbr. collat., coll. 1. Situated or running side by side; parallel. 2. Coinciding in tendency or effect; concomitant or accompanying. 3. Serving to support or corroborate: collateral evidence. 4. Of a secondary nature; subordinate: collateral target damage from a bombing run. 5. Of, relating to, or guaranteed by a security pledged against the performance of an obligation: a collateral loan. 6. Having an ancestor in common but descended from a different line. — n. 1. Property acceptable as security for a loan or other obligation. 2. A collateral relative. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin collāterālis : Latin com-, com- + Latin lātus, lāter-, side.] —col·lat'er·al·ly adv.

col·lat·er·al·ize (kə-lāt'ər-əl-īz') v. tr. col·lat·er·al·ized, col·lat·er·al·iz·ing, col·lat·er·al·izes. 1. To secure (a loan) through use of collateral. 2. To pledge (property, for example) as collateral.

col·la·tion (kə-lā'shən, kō-, kō-) n. 1. The act or process of collating. 2. a. A light meal permitted on fast days. b. A light meal.

col·league (kōl'ĕg') n. A fellow member of a profession, a staff, or an academic faculty; an associate. See Synonyms at partner. [French collègue, from Latin collēga : com-, com- + lĕgāre, to depute; see leg- in Appendix.]

—col'league·ship' n.

col·lect¹ (kə-lĕkt') v. col·lect·ed, col·lect·ing, col·lects. — v. tr. 1. To bring together in a group or mass; gather. 2. To accumulate as a hobby or for study. 3. To call for and obtain payment of: collect taxes. 4. To recover control of: collect one's emotions. 5. To call for (someone); pick up: collected the children and drove home. — v. intr. 1. To come together in a group or mass; gather. See Synonyms at gather. 2. To take in payments or donations: collecting for charity.

— adv. & adj. Abbr. col., coll. With payment to be made by the receiver: called collect; a collect phone call. [Middle English collecten, from Latin colligere, collēct- : com-, com- + legere, to gather; see leg- in Appendix.]

col·lect² (kōl'ikt, -ēkt') n. Ecclesiastical. A brief formal prayer that is used in various Western liturgies before the epistle and that varies with the day. [Middle English collecte, from Old French, from Medieval Latin collēcta, short for (ōrātiō ad) collēctam, (prayer at the) gathering, from Latin collēctus, gathered, past participle of colligere, to gather. See COLLECT¹.]

col·lect·a·ble (kə-lĕk'tə-bəl) n. Variant of collectible.

col·lec·ta·ne·a (kōl'ĕk-tā'nē-ə) pl.n. A selection of passages from one or more authors; an anthology. [Latin, from neuter pl. of collēctāneus, collected, from collēctus. See COLLECT².]

col·lect·ed (kə-lĕk'tid) adj. 1. Self-possessed; composed. See Synonyms at cool. 2. Abbr. col. Brought or placed together from various sources: the collected poems of W.H. Auden. —col·lect'ed·ly adv. —col·lect'ed·ness n.

col·lect·i·ble also col·lect·a·ble (kə-lĕk'tə-bəl) n. One of a group or class of objects, such as period glass or domestic utensils, prized by fanciers.

—col·lect'i·ble, col·lect'a·ble adj.

col·lec·tion (kə-lĕk'shən) n. Abbr. col., coll. 1. The act or process of collecting. 2. A group of objects or works to be seen, studied, or kept together. 3. An accumulation; a deposit: a collection of dust on the piano. 4. a. A collecting of money, as in church. b. The sum so collected.

col·lec·tive (kə-lĕk'tiv) adj. 1. Assembled or accumulated into a whole. 2. Of, relating to, characteristic of, or made by a number of people acting as a group: a collective decision. — n. 1. An undertaking, such as a business operation, set up on the principle of ownership and control of the means of production and distribution by the workers involved, usually under the supervision of a government.

2. Grammar. A collective noun. —col·lec'tive·ly adv. —col·lec'tive·ness n.

collective bar·gain·ing (kə-lĕk'tiv bär'gə-nīng) n. Negotiation between the representatives of organized workers and their employer or employers to determine wages, hours, rules, and working conditions.

collective farm (kə-lĕk'tiv färm) n. A farm or a group of farms organized as a unit and managed and worked cooperatively by a group of laborers under state supervision.

collective mark (kə-lĕk'tiv märk) n. A trademark or service mark used by members of a cooperative, an association, or other collective group or organization, including marks used to indicate membership in a union, an association, or other organization.

collective noun (kə-lĕk'tiv noun) n. Grammar. A noun that denotes a collection of persons or things regarded as a unit.

USAGE NOTE: In American usage, a collective noun takes a singular verb when it refers to the collection considered as a whole, as in The family was united on this question. The enemy is suing for peace. It takes a plural verb when it refers to the members of the group considered as individuals, as in My family are always fighting among themselves. The enemy were showing up in groups of three or four to turn in their weapons. (In British usage, however, collective nouns are more often treated as plurals: The government have not announced a new policy. The team are playing in the test matches next week.) A collective noun should not be treated as both singular and plural in the same construction; thus The family is determined to press its (not their) claim. Among the common collective nouns are committee, clergy, company, enemy, group, family, flock, public, and team. See Usage Note at government. See Usage Note at group.

collective unconscious (kə-lĕk'tiv ũn-kŏn'shəs) n. In Jungian psychology, a part of the unconscious mind, shared by a society, a people, or all humankind. The product of ancestral experience, it contains concepts of science, religion, and morality, for example.

col·lec·tiv·ism (kə-lĕk'tə-vĭz'əm) n. The principles or system of ownership and control of the means of production and distribution by the people collectively. —col·lec'tiv·ist n. —col·lec'tiv·is'tic adj. —col·lec'tiv·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

col·lec·tiv·i·ty (kŏl'ĕk-tĭv'ĭ-tē, kə-lĕk'-) n. 1. The quality or condition of being collective. 2. The people as a whole.

col·lec·tiv·ize (kə-lĕk'tə-vĭz') v. tr. col·lec·tiv·ized, col·lec·tiv·iz·ing, col·lec·tiv·iz·es. To organize (an economy, industry, or enterprise) on the basis of collectivism. —col·lec'tiv·i·za'tion (-tə-vĭ-zā'shən) n.

col·lec·tor (kə-lĕk'tər) n. 1. One that collects: a solar energy collector; a dust collector. 2. Abbr. col., coll. A person employed to collect taxes, duties, or other payments. 3. A person who makes a collection, as of stamps. 4. Electronics. An electrode in an electron tube that collects electrons which have finished carrying current. —col·lec'tor·ship' n.

col·leen (kŏ-lĕn', kŏl'ĕn') n. An Irish girl. [Irish Gaelic cailín, diminutive of caile, girl, from Old Irish.]

col·lege (kŏl'ij) n. Abbr. col., coll. 1. a. An institution of higher learning that grants the bachelor's degree in liberal arts or science or both. b. An undergraduate division or school of a university offering courses and granting degrees in a particular field. c. A school, sometimes but not always a university, offering special instruction in professional or technical subjects. d. The students, faculty, and administration of such a school or institution. e. The building or buildings occupied by such a school or institution. f. Chiefly British. A self-governing society of scholars for study or instruction, incorporated within a university. g. An institution in France for secondary education that is not supported by the state.

2. a. A body of persons having a common purpose or shared duties: a college of surgeons. b. An electoral college. 3. A body of clerics living together on an endowment. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: college courses; college faculty. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin collēgium, association. See COLLEGIUM.]

Col·lege Board (kɒl'ij bɔrd) A service mark used for the administration of aptitude and achievement tests, used by some colleges and universities in admitting and placing students.

College of Cardinals (kɒl'ij ðv kɑr'dn-əlz) n. Roman Catholic Church. The body of all the cardinals that elect the pope, assist him in governing the church, and administer the Holy See when the papacy is vacant.

College Park (kɒl'ij pɑrk) 1. A city of northwest Georgia, a residential suburb of Atlanta. Population, 20,457. 2. A city of west-central Maryland north-northeast of Washington, D.C. It is the seat of the University of Maryland (established 1807). Population, 21,927.

College Station (kɒl'ij stɑ'shən) A city of east-central Texas northwest of Houston. Texas Agricultural and Mechanical University (opened 1876) is here. Population, 52,456.

college try (kɒl'ij trī) n. Informal. A serious effort to do or achieve.

col·le·gi·a (kə-lē'jē-ə, -lēg'ē-ə) n. A plural of collegium.

col·le·gi·al (kə-lē'jē-əl, -jəl) adj. 1. a. Characterized by or having power and authority vested equally among colleagues: "He... prefers a collegial harmony that will present him with a consensus on the issues" (Time). b. Roman Catholic Church. Characterized by the equal sharing of power among the bishops. 2. Of, relating to, characterized by, or likened to college life; collegiate: "Law-school faculties have traditionally been thought of as collegial—academic extensions of the courtroom civility that calls for the enemy to be spoken of as 'my learned opponent'" (Calvin Trillin). [Middle English, from Latin collēgiālis, of colleagues, from collēgium, association. See COLLEGIUM.] —col·le·gi·al·ly adv.

col·le·gi·al·i·ty (kə-lē'jē-əl'i-tē) n. 1. Shared power and authority vested among colleagues. 2. Roman Catholic Church. The doctrine that bishops collectively share collegiate power.

col·le·gian (kə-lē'jən, -jē-ən) n. A college student or recent college graduate. [Middle English, member of an endowed religious or scholarly body, from Medieval Latin collēgiānus, from Latin collēgium, association. See COLLEGIUM.]

col·le·giate (kə-lē'jīt, -jē-īt) adj. Abbr. col., coll. 1. Of, relating to, or held to resemble a college. 2. Of, for, or typical of college students. 3. Of or relating to a collegiate church. [Middle English collegiat, from Late Latin collēgiātus, from Latin collēgium, association. See COLLEGIUM.]

collegiate church (kə-lē'jīt chûrch) n. 1. A Roman Catholic or Anglican church other than a cathedral, having a chapter of canons and presided over by a dean or provost. 2. a. A church in the United States associated with others under a common body of pastors. b. An association of such churches. 3. A church in Scotland served by two or more ministers at the same time.

col·le·gi·um (kə-lē'jē-əm, -lēg'ē-) n. pl. col·le·gi·a (-lē'jē-ə, -lēg'ē-ə) or col·le·gi·ums. 1. An executive council or committee of equally empowered members, especially one supervising an industry, a commissariat, or another organization in the Soviet Union. 2. A group, the members of which pursue shared goals while working within a framework of mutual trust and respect: “This standing firm... enables the college to be a community, a collegium of students and faculty working at common problems and possibilities from the shared perspective of the liberal arts” (Robert A. Spivey). [Russian kollegiya, from Latin col·lēgium, association, from collēga, colleague. See COLLEAGUE.]

col·lem·bo·lan (kə-lēm'bə-lən) n. See springtail. [COLL(O)- + Greek embo·los, peg, stopper; see EMBOLUS.]

col·len·chy·ma (kə-lēng'kə-mə) n. A supportive tissue of plants, consisting of elongated, living cells with unevenly thickened walls. [COLL(O)- + -ENCHYMA.] —col'len·chym'a·tous (kōl'ən-kīm'ə-təs) adj.

col·len·chyme (kōl'ən-kīm') n. A gelatinous mesenchyme that constitutes a layer in the body wall of many coelenterates and ctenophores. [From COLLEN·CHYMA.]

col·let (kōl'īt) n. 1. A cone-shaped sleeve used for holding circular or rodlike pieces in a lathe or other machine. 2. A metal collar used in watchmaking to join one end of a balance spring to the balance staff. 3. A circular flange or rim, as in a ring, into which a gem is set. [French, diminutive of col, collar, from Latin col·lum, neck. See k^wel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

col·lide (kə-līd') *v. intr. col·lid·ed, col·lid·ing, col·lides. 1. To come together with violent, direct impact. 2. To meet in opposition; conflict: “When truths collide, compromise becomes the first casualty” (Henry A. Kissinger). [Latin collidere: com-, com- + laedere, to strike.]*

col·lie (kōl'ē) n. A large dog of a breed originating in Scotland as a sheepdog, having long hair and a long, narrow muzzle. [Scots, perhaps variant of colly, like coal, from Middle English col, coal. See COAL.]

col·lier (kōl'yər) n. 1. A coal miner. 2. Nautical. A coal ship. [Middle English colier, from col, coal, from Old English.]

Col·lier (kōl'yər, -ē-ər), Jeremy. 1650-1726. English clergyman who refused to take an oath of allegiance to William and Mary and was imprisoned for his Jacobite sympathies (1692). He was outlawed in 1696 for granting absolution to would-be assassins of William who were about to be executed.

Col-lier (köl'yər, -ē-ər), John. 1884-1968. American sociologist and public official who as commissioner of Indian affairs (1933-1945) worked to preserve Native American territories and cultures.

col-li-er-y (köl'yə-rē) n. pl. col-li-er-ies. A coal mine together with its physical plant and outbuildings.

col-li-gate (köl'ī-gāt') v. tr. col-li-gat-ed, col-li-gat-ing, col-li-gates. 1. To tie or group together. 2. Logic. To bring (isolated facts) together by an explanation or hypothesis that applies to them all. [Latin colligāre, colligāt- : com-, com- + ligāre, to tie, bind; see leig- in Appendix.] —col/li-ga'tion n.

col-li-ga-tive (köl'ī-gā'tiv) adj. Chemistry. Depending on the quantity of molecules but not on their chemical nature: colligative properties.

col-li-mate (köl'ə-māt') v. tr. col-li-mat-ed, col-li-mat-ing, col-li-mates.

1. To make parallel; line up. 2. To adjust the line of sight of (an optical device).

[New Latin collīmāre, collīmāt-, alteration of Latin collīnēāre, to aim : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + līnēāre, to make straight (from līnea, line); see *LINE*¹.]

—col/li-ma'tion n.

col-li-ma-tor (köl'ə-mā'tər) n. A device capable of collimating radiation, as a long narrow tube in which strongly absorbing or reflecting walls permit only radiation traveling parallel to the tube axis to traverse the entire length.

col-lin-e-ar (kə-līn'ē-ər, kō-) adj. 1. Passing through or lying on the same straight line. 2. Containing a common line; coaxial. —col-lin'e-ar/i-ty (-ər'ī-tē) n.

Col-lings-wood (köl'īngz-wōod') A borough of southwest New Jersey south-east of Camden. It was founded by Quakers in 1682. Population, 15,289.

col-lins (köl'ənz) n. A tall iced drink made with liquor, such as gin, and lemon or lime juice. [Probably from the name Collins.]

Col-lins¹ (köl'īnz), Michael. 1890-1922. Irish nationalist and Sinn Fein leader who helped negotiate the establishment of the Irish Free State (1921).

Col-lins² (köl'īnz), Michael. Born 1930. Italian-born American astronaut who as a crew member of Apollo 11 piloted the spacecraft during its historic mission to the moon (1969). He orbited the moon alone while Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin made the first manned lunar landing.

Col-lins (köl'īnz), William. 1721-1759. British poet best known for his melancholy Odes (1747).

Col-lins (köl'īnz), (William) Wilkie. 1824-1889. British writer noted for his pioneering detective novels, including The Woman in White (1860) and Moonstone (1868).

col-lin-si-a (kə-līn'zē-ə) n. Any of various North American plants of the genus Collinsia, which includes blue-eyed Mary and Chinese houses. [New Latin Collinsia, genus name, after Zaccheus Collins (1764-1831), American botanist.]

Col-lins-ville (köl'inz-vīl') A city of southwest Illinois east-northeast of East St. Louis. It was formerly a coal-mining center. Population, 22,446.

col-li-sion (kə-līzh'ən) n. 1. The act or process of colliding; a crash or conflict. 2. Physics. A brief dynamic event consisting of the close approach of two or more particles, such as atoms, resulting in an abrupt change of momentum or exchange of energy. [Middle English, from Late Latin collisiō, collisiōn-, from Latin collisus, past participle of collidere, to collide. See COLLIDE.] — col-li'sion-al adj.

SYNONYMS: collision, concussion, crash, impact, jar, jolt, shock. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “violent forcible contact between two or more things”: the midair collision of two light planes; the concussion caused by an explosion; the crash of a car into a tree; the impact of a sledgehammer on pilings; felt repeated jars as the train ground to a halt; a series of jolts as the baby carriage rolled down the steps; experienced the physical shock of a sudden fall to hard pavement.

collision course (kə-līzh'ən kōrs) n. A course, such as that of moving objects or opposing philosophies, that will end in impact or conflict if permitted to continue unchanged or unabated: two planes on a collision course; dissidents on a collision course with the dictatorial regime.

collision cross section (kə-līzh'ən krōs sĕk'shən) n. See cross section (n., sense 2).

collo- or coll- pref. 1. Glue: collenchyma. 2. Colloid: collytype. [New Latin, from Greek kolla, glue.]

col-lo-cate (köl'ə-kāt') v. tr. col-lo-cat-ed, col-lo-cat-ing, col-lo-cates. To place together or in proper order; arrange side by side. [Latin collocāre, collocāt- : com-, com- + locāre, to place; see LOCATE.]

col-lo-ca-tion (köl'ō-kā'shən) n. 1. The act of collocating or the state of being collocated. 2. An arrangement or juxtaposition, especially of linguistic elements, such as words. — col'lo-ca'tion-al adj.

col-lo-di-on (kə-lō'dē-ən) n. A highly flammable, colorless or yellowish syrupy solution of pyroxylin, ether, and alcohol, used as an adhesive to close small wounds and hold surgical dressings, in topical medications, and for making photographic plates. [From New Latin collodium, from Greek kollōdēs, glutinous, glue-like : from kolla, glue + -oidēs, -oid.]

col-logue (kə-lōg') v. intr. col-logued, col-logu-ing, col-logues. 1. To be on friendly or intimate terms with someone. 2. a. To consult or confer with someone. b. To chat. 3. Chiefly Upper Southern U.S. To conspire; intrigue: “I’m satisfied they’re colloquing to beat me out of my place” (Dialect Notes). [Perhaps alteration (influenced by Latin colloquī, to converse); see COLLOQUIUM, of col-league, to enter into an alliance, from Old French colleguer, from Latin colligāre, to collect (influenced by Old French collegue, colleague); see COLLEAGUE. See COLLI-GATE.]

col·loid (kɒl'oid') n. 1. Chemistry. a. A suspension of finely divided particles in a continuous medium in which the particles are approximately 5 to 5,000 angstroms in size, do not settle out of the substance rapidly, and are not readily filtered. b. The particulate matter so suspended. 2. Physiology. The gelatinous product of the thyroid gland, consisting mainly of thyroglobulin, which serves as the precursor and storage form of thyroid hormone. 3. Pathology. Gelatinous material resulting from colloid degeneration in diseased tissue. — adj. Of, relating to, containing, or having the nature of a colloid. — col·loi'dal (kə-loid'l, kō-) adj. — col·loi'dal·ly adv.

col·lop (kɒl'əp) n. 1. A small portion of food or a slice, especially of meat. 2. A roll of fat flesh. [Middle English.]

colloq. abbr. Colloquial; colloquialism.

col·lo·qui·a (kə-lō'kwē-ə) n. A plural of colloquium.

col·lo·qui·al (kə-lō'kwē-əl) adj. Abbr. coll., colloq. 1. Characteristic of or appropriate to the spoken language or to writing that seeks the effect of speech; informal. 2. Relating to conversation; conversational. [From COLLOQUY.]

— col·lo'qui·al n. — col·lo'qui·al·ly adv. — col·lo'qui·al·ness n.

col·lo·qui·al·ism (kə-lō'kwē-ə-lɪz'əm) n. Abbr. coll., colloq. 1. Colloquial style or quality. 2. A colloquial expression.

col·lo·qui·um (kə-lō'kwē-əm) n. pl. col·lo·qui·ums or col·lo·qui·a (-kwē-ə). 1. An informal meeting for the exchange of views. 2. An academic seminar on a broad field of study, usually led by a different lecturer at each meeting. [Latin, conversation, from colloquī, to talk together : com-, com- + loquī, to speak; see talk^w- in Appendix.]

col·lo·quy (kɒl'ə-kwē) n. pl. col·lo·quies. 1. A conversation, especially a formal one. 2. A written dialogue. [From Latin colloquium, conversation. See COLLOQUIUM.]

col·lo·type (kɒl'ə-tīp') n. 1. A printing process employing a glass plate with a gelatin surface that carries the image to be reproduced. Also called photogelatin process. 2. A print made by this process.

col·lude (kə-lōd') v. intr. col·lud·ed, col·lud·ing, col·ludes. To act together secretly to achieve a fraudulent, illegal, or deceitful purpose; conspire. [Latin collūdere : com-, com- + lūdere, to play; see leid- in Appendix.] — col·lud'er n.

col·lu·sion (kə-lō'zhən) n. A secret agreement between two or more parties for a fraudulent, illegal, or deceitful purpose. See Synonyms at conspiracy. [Middle English, from Latin collūsiō, collūsiōn-, from collūsus, past participle of collūdere, to collude. See COLLUDE.]

col·lu·sive (kə-lō'sīv, -zīv) adj. Acting in secret to achieve a fraudulent, illegal, or deceitful goal. — col·lu'sive·ly adv. — col·lu'sive·ness n.

col·lu·vi·um (kə-lōō'vē-əm) n. pl. col·lu·vi·ums or col·lu·vi·a (-vē-ə). A loose deposit of rock debris accumulated through the action of gravity at the base of a cliff or slope. [Latin, a collection of washings, dregs, from colluere, to wash thoroughly : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + -luere, to wash; see leu(ə)- in Appendix.] —col·lu·vi·al adj.

col·lyr·i·um (kə-lîr'ē-əm) n. pl. col·lyr·i·ums or col·lyr·i·a (-ē-ə). A medicinal lotion applied to the eye; eyewash. [Latin, from Greek kollurion, eye salve, poultice, diminutive of kollura, roll of bread.]

col·ly·wob·bles (kōl'ē-wōb'əlz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Informal. Pain in the stomach or bowels. [Probably alteration (influenced by COLIC, and WOBBLE), of CHOLERA MORBUS.]

Col·mar also Kol·mar (kōl'mär, kōl-mär') A city of eastern France between the Vosges Mountains and the Rhine River. It became a free imperial city in 1226. Population, 62,483.

Colo. abbr. Colorado.

colo- or coli- or col- pref. Colon: colostomy. [From *COLON*².]

col·o·bo·ma (kōl'ə-bō'ma) n. pl. col·o·bo·ma·ta (-mə-tə). An anomaly of the eye, usually a developmental defect, that often results in some loss of vision. [New Latin colobōma, from Greek kolobōma, part removed in mutilation, from koloboun, to mutilate, from kolobos, maimed.] —col·o·bo·ma·tous adj.

col·o·bus monkey (kōl'ə-bəs mūng'kē, kə-lō'-) n. Any of various large African monkeys of the genus Colobus having a long tail and vestigial thumbs. [New Latin Colobus, genus name, from Greek kolobos, maimed (from the appearance of its hands).]

col·o·cynth (kōl'ə-sīnth') n. 1. A tendril-bearing Old World vine (Citrullus colocynthis) bearing yellowish, green-mottled fruits the size of small lemons.

2. The fruit of this plant, whose dried, bitter, spongy pulp is a very strong laxative. Also called bitter apple [Latin colocynthis, from Greek kolokunthis, from kolokunthē, round gourd.]

co·logne (kə-lōn') n. A scented liquid made of alcohol and various fragrant oils. Also called eau de cologne [Short for cologne (water), translation of French (eau de) Cologne, after Cologne.]

WORD HISTORY: The word cologne, denoting toilet water, is from Cologne, the French name of the city in Germany that in German is called Köln, where cologne has been made since the beginning of the 18th century. The first use of cologne for toilet water is recorded in English in 1814, with the word being used in the compound cologne water, a translation of eau de cologne, the French name for this liquid. With a history dating back to the Roman Empire, a history reflected in its name, in fact, which comes from the Latin word Colōnia, meaning “colony,” Cologne is memorialized in English, though in a hidden way, as the name of a minor luxury.

Co·logne (kə-lōn') also Köln (kœln) A city of western Germany on the Rhine River north of Bonn. It was a Roman settlement called Colonia Agrippina after A.D. 50 and passed under Frankish control in the 5th century. During the 15th century it flourished as a member of the Hanseatic League. Population, 922,286.

Co·lombes (kə-lōm', kô-lônb') A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris on the Seine River. Population, 78,777.

Co·lom·bi·a (kə-lŭm'bě-ə) Abbr. Col. A country of northwest South America with coastlines on the Pacific Ocean and the Caribbean Sea. It was settled by the Spanish in 1510 and formed the nucleus of the viceroyalty of New Granada after 1740. Colombia gained its independence from Spain in 1819 under the leadership of Simón Bolívar. Bogotá is the capital and the largest city. Population, 26,525,670. —Co·lom'bi·an adj. & n.

Co·lom·bo (kə-lŭm'bō) The capital and largest city of Sri Lanka, on the western coast of the island on the Indian Ocean. The city was probably known to Greco-Roman, Arab, and Chinese traders more than 2,000 years ago. It became capital of the crown colony of Ceylon in 1802 and of independent Ceylon in 1948. Population, 587,647.

co·lon¹ (kō'lən) n. pl. co·lons. 1. a. A punctuation mark (:) used after a word introducing a quotation, an explanation, an example, or a series and often after the salutation of a business letter. b. The sign (:) used between numbers or groups of numbers in expressions of time (2:30 A.M.) and ratios (1:2). 2. pl.

co·la (-lə). A section of a metrical period in quantitative verse, consisting of two to six feet and in Latin verse having one principal accent. [Latin cōlon, part of a verse, from Greek kōlon, limb, member, metrical unit.]

co·lon² (kō'lən) n. pl. co·lons or co·la (-lə). The section of the large intestine extending from the cecum to the rectum. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek kolon, large intestine.] —co·lon'ic (kə-lŏn'ik) adj.

co·lon³ (kō-lŏn') n. pl. co·lons or co·lo·nes (-lŏ'nās'). A basic unit of currency in Costa Rica and El Salvador. See Table at currency. [Spanish colón, after Cristóbal Colón, Christopher Columbus.]

Co·lón (kə-lŏ', kô-lŏn') A city of northern Panama at the Caribbean entrance to the Panama Canal. The city was founded as Aspinwall in 1850 by Americans working on the Panama Railroad and was renamed in 1890. Population, 59,840.

co·lon bacillus (kō'lən bə-sil'əs) n. Microbiology. A rod-shaped bacterium, especially Escherichia coli, a normal, generally nonpathogenic commensal found in all vertebrate intestinal tracts, but which can be virulent, causing diarrhea and other dysenteric symptoms. Its presence in water is an indicator of fecal contamination.

colo-nel (kûr'nəl) n. Abbr. Col. 1. a. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above lieutenant colonel and below brigadier general. b. One who holds this rank or a similar rank in another military organization. 2. An honorary nonmilitary title awarded by some states of the United States. [Alteration of obsolete coronel, from French, from Old Italian colonello, from diminutive of colonna, column of soldiers, from Latin columna, column. See kel-² in Appendix.] —colo'nel-cy, colo'nel-ship' n.

Colonel Blimp (kûr'nəl blîmp) n. Chiefly British. A pompous, reactionary, ultranationalistic person. [After Colonel Blimp, a cartoon character created by Sir David Low.]

co-lo-nes (kō-lō'nās') n. A plural of colon³. co-lo-ni-al (kə-lō'nē-əl) adj. Abbr. col. 1. Of, relating to, possessing, or inhabiting a colony or colonies. 2. Often Colonial. a. Of or relating to the 13 British colonies that became the original United States of America. b. Of or relating to the colonial period in the United States. 3. Often Colonial. Of, relating to, or being a style of architecture and furniture prevalent in the American colonies just before and during the Revolution. 4. Living in, consisting of, or forming a colony: colonial organisms. — n. 1. An inhabitant of a colony. 2. A house designed in an architectural style reminiscent of the one prevalent in the American colonies just before and during the Revolution. —co-lo'ni-al-ly adv.

Colonial Heights (kə-lō'nē-əl hīts) A city of southeast Virginia south of Richmond. It was Robert E. Lee's headquarters during the Battle of Petersburg (1864). Population, 16,064.

co-lo-ni-al-ism (kə-lō'nē-ə-lîz'əm) n. A policy by which a nation maintains or extends its control over foreign dependencies. —co-lo'ni-al-ist n.

col-o-nist (kۆl'ə-nîst) n. 1. An original settler or founder of a colony. 2. An inhabitant of a colony.

co-lon-i-tis (kۆl'lə-nī'tîs) n. See colitis.

col-o-ni-za-tion (kۆl'ə-nî-zā'shən) n. The act or process of establishing a colony or colonies.

col-o-nize (kۆl'ə-nîz') v. col-o-nized, col-o-niz-ing, col-o-niz-es. — v. tr. 1. To form or establish a colony or colonies in. 2. To migrate to and settle in; occupy as a colony. 3. To establish in a new settlement; form a colony of. — v. intr. 1. To form or establish a colony. 2. To settle in a colony or colonies. —col'o-niz'er n.

col-on-nade (kۆl'ə-nād') n. Architecture. 1. A series of columns placed at regular intervals. 2. A structure composed of columns placed at regular intervals. [French, alteration of colonnate, from Italian colonnato, from colonna, column, from Latin columna. See kel-² in Appendix.] —col'on-nad'ed adj.

co-lon-o-scope (kō-lōn'ə-skōp', kə-) n. A long, flexible endoscope, often equipped with a device for obtaining tissue samples, that is used for visual examination of the colon. Also called coloscope co-lon-os-co-py (kō'lə-nōs'kə-pē) n. Examination of the colon by means of a colonoscope. Also called coloscopy col-o-ny (kōl'ə-nē) n. pl. col-o-nies. 1. a. A group of emigrants or their descendants who settle in a distant territory but remain subject to or closely associated with the parent country. b. A territory thus settled. 2. Abbr. col. A region politically controlled by a distant country; a dependency. 3. a. A group of people with the same interests or ethnic origin concentrated in a particular area: the American colony in Paris. b. The area occupied by such a group. 4. A group of people who have been institutionalized in a relatively remote area: an island penal colony. 5. Ecology. A group of the same kind of animals, plants, or one-celled organisms living or growing together. 6. Microbiology. A visible growth of microorganisms, usually in a solid or semisolid nutrient medium. [Middle English colonie, from Latin colōnia, from colōnus, settler, from colere, to cultivate. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.]

col-o-phon (kōl'ə-fōn', -fən) n. 1. An inscription placed usually at the end of a book, giving facts about its publication. 2. A publisher's emblem or trademark placed usually on the title page of a book. [Late Latin colophōn, from Greek kolophōn, summit, finishing touch. See kel-2 in Appendix.]

Col-o-phon (kōl'ə-fōn') An ancient Greek city of Asia Minor northwest of Ephesus. It was famous for its cavalry.

col-or (kūl'ər) n. Abbr. col. 1. That aspect of things that is caused by differing qualities of the light reflected or emitted by them, definable in terms of the observer or of the light, as: a. The appearance of objects or light sources described in terms of the individual's perception of them, involving hue, lightness, and saturation for objects and hue, brightness, and saturation for light sources. b. The characteristics of light by which the individual is made aware of objects or light sources through the receptors of the eye, described in terms of dominant wavelength, luminance, and purity. 2. A substance, such as a dye, pigment, or paint, that imparts a hue. 3. a. The general appearance of the skin; complexion. b. A ruddy complexion. c. A reddening of the face; a blush. 4. The skin pigmentation of a person not classed as white. 5. colors. A flag or banner, as of a country or military unit. 6. colors. The salute made during the ceremony of raising or lowering a flag. 7. colors. A distinguishing symbol, badge, ribbon, or mark: the colors of a college. 8. colors. One's opinion or position: Stick to your colors. 9. Often colors. Character or nature: revealed their true colors. 10. a. Outward appearance, often deceptive: a tale with only the slightest color of truth. b. Appearance of authenticity: testimony that lends color to an otherwise absurd notion. 11. a. Variety of expression. b. Vivid, picturesque detail: a story with a great deal of color in it. 12. Traits of personality or behavior that attract interest. 13. The use or effect of pigment in painting, as distinct from form. 14. Music. Tonal quality. 15. Law. A mere semblance of legal right. 16. A particle or bit of gold found in auriferous gravel or sand. 17. Physics. A quantum characteristic of quarks that determines their role in the strong interaction. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: color photography; color television. — v. col-ored, col-or-ing, col-ors. — v. tr. 1. To impart color to or change the color of. 2. a. To give a distinctive character or quality to; modify. See Synonyms at bias. b. To exert an influence on; affect: The war colored the lives of all of us. 3. a. To misrepresent, especially by distortion or exaggeration: color the facts. b. To gloss over; excuse: a parent who colored the children's lies. — v. intr. 1. a. To take on color. b. To change color. 2. To become red in the face; blush. [Middle English colour, from Old French, from Latin color. See kel-¹ in Appendix.] —col/or-er n.

USAGE NOTE: The terms person of color and people of color have been revived for use in formal contexts to refer to members or groups of non-European origin (e.g., Black people, Asians, Pacific Islanders, and Native Americans): “These are profound tendencies which strike at the middle class as well as the poor, at whites as well as people of color” (Jesse Jackson). Many people prefer people of color as a rough substitute for minorities because these groups are not in fact in the minority in many parts of America. See Usage Note at black.

col-or-a-ble (kŭl'ər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. Meant to deceive; not genuine. 2. Seemingly true or genuine; plausible. See Synonyms at plausible. —col/or-a-bil/i-ty, col/or-a-ble-ness n. —col/or-a-bly adv.

Col-o-ra-do (kŏl'ə-răd'ō, -ră'dō) Abbr. CO, Col., Colo. A state of the west-central United States. It was admitted as the 38th state in 1876. First explored by the Spanish in the 16th and 17th centuries, the region was added to the United States through the Louisiana Purchase (1803) and a cession by Mexico (1848). The Colorado Territory was organized in 1861. Denver is the capital and the largest city. Population, 3,307,912. —Col/o-ra/dan adj. & n.

Colorado blue spruce (kŏl'ə-răd'ō blōō sprōōs) n. See blue spruce.

Colorado Desert (kŏl'ə-răd'ō dəz'ərt) An arid region of southeast California west of the Colorado River.

Colorado potato beetle (kŏl'ə-răd'ō pə-tā'tō bēt'l) n. A small yellow-and-black striped beetle (Leptinotarsa decemlineata) that is a major agricultural pest.

Colorado River (kŏl'ə-răd'ō rĭv'ər) 1. A river of central Argentina rising in the Andes and flowing about 853 km (530 mi) southeast to the Atlantic Ocean. 2. A river of the southwest United States rising in the Rocky Mountains and flowing about 2,333 km (1,450 mi) southwest through the Colorado Plateau of western Colorado, southeast Utah, and western Arizona to the Gulf of California in northwest Mexico. In Arizona it flows along the borders of Nevada and California. The most spectacular of its many gorges is the Grand Canyon. 3. A river rising in northwest Texas and flowing about 1,438 km (894 mi) southeast to an inlet of the Gulf of Mexico.

Colorado Springs (kŏl'ə-răd'ō sprīngz) A city of central Colorado at the foot of Pikes Peak south of Denver. It is a popular tourist center near the site of the U.S. Air Force Academy (established here in 1958). Population, 281,140.

col·or·ant (kŭl'ər-ənt) n. Something, especially a dye, a pigment, an ink, or a paint, that colors or modifies the hue of something else. — adj. Color. Of or being a subtractive primary color.

col·or·a·tion (kŭl'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. Arrangement of colors. 2. The sum of the beliefs or principles of a person, a group, or an institution.

col·or·a·tu·ra (kŭl'ər-ə-tŏŏr'ə, -tyŏŏr'ə) n. Music. 1. Florid, ornamental vocal trills and runs. 2. Music characterized by florid, ornamental trills and runs. 3. A singer, especially a soprano, specializing in such trills and runs. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: coloratura compositions; a coloratura performer. [Obsolete Italian, from Late Latin colōrātūra, coloring, from Latin colōrātus, past participle of colōrāre, to color, from color, color. See COLOR.]

color bar (kŭl'ər bār) n. See color line.

col·or·blind or col·or·blind (kŭl'ər-blīnd') adj. 1. Partially or totally unable to distinguish certain colors. 2. a. Not subject to racial prejudices. b. Not recognizing racial or class distinctions: “Our Constitution is color-blind, and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens” (John M. Harlan). — col'or-blind'-ness n.

col·or·breed (kŭl'ər-brēd') v. tr. col·or·bred (-brēd'), col·or·breed·ing, col·or·breeds. To breed (plants or animals) selectively to produce new or desired colors.

col·or·cast (kŭl'ər-kăst') v. col·or·cast or col·or·cast·ed, col·or·cast·ing, col·or·casts. — v. tr. To broadcast (a television program) in color. — v. intr. To televise a program in color. — n. A television program broadcast in color. [COLOR + (BROAD)CAST.]

col·or·code (kŭl'ər-kŏd') v. tr. col·or·cod·ed, col·or·cod·ing, col·or·codes. To color, as wires or papers, according to a code for easy identification.

co·lo·rec·tal (kŏ'lŏ-rĕk'təl) adj. Associated with or involving both the colon and the rectum: colorectal cancer.

col·ored (kŭl'ərd) adj. 1. Having color: colored tissue paper. 2. Often Colored. Offensive. a. Of or belonging to a racial group not regarded as white: “the huge shift that occurred when we stopped thinking of ourselves as colored people” (Courtland Milloy). b. Of mixed racial strains. 3. Distorted or biased, as by irrelevant or incorrect information. — n. also Colored pl. colored or coloreds also Colored or Coloreds. Offensive. 1. A person of a racial group not regarded as white. 2. A person of mixed racial strains. See Usage Note at black.

col·or·fast (kŭl'ər-făst') adj. Having color that will not run or fade with washing or wear: a colorfast fabric. —col'or-fast'ness n.

color filter (kŭl'ər fĭl'tər) n. A photographic filter made of colored glass that modifies the light incident on a film by selectively absorbing colors. It is used when taking photographs through haze.

col·or·ful (kŭl'ər-fəl) adj. 1. Full of color; abounding in colors: colorful leaves in the fall. 2. Characterized by rich variety; vividly distinctive: colorful language. —col'or-ful-ly adv. —col'or-ful-ness n.

color guard (kŭl'ər gärd) n. The ceremonial escort for the flag, as of a country or an organization.

col·or·if·ic (kŭl'ə-rĭf'ĭk) adj. Producing or imparting color.

col·or·im·e·ter (kŭl'ə-rĭm'ĭ-tər) n. 1. Any of various instruments used to determine or specify colors, as by comparison with spectroscopic or visual standards. 2. An instrument that measures the concentration of a known constituent of a solution by comparison with colors of standard solutions of that constituent. —col'or-i-met'ric (-ər-ə-mĕt'rĭk) adj. —col'or-i-met'ri-cal-ly adv. —col'or-im'e-try n.

col·or·ing (kŭl'ər-ĭng) n. 1. The art, manner, or process of applying color. 2. A substance used to color something. 3. Appearance with regard to color. 4. Characteristic aspect, tone, or style. 5. False or misleading appearance.

col·or·ist (kŭl'ər-ĭst) n. 1. A painter skilled in achieving special effects with color: a forceful colorist whose idiom was reminiscent of Cézanne. 2. A hairdresser who specializes in dyeing hair. —col'or-is'tic adj.

col·or·i·za·tion (kŭl'ər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. A computer-assisted process by which color is imparted to previously black-and-white film. The original film is first transferred to videotape, to which numerically coded colors are assigned, frame by frame, area by area. A graphics computer then applies the assigned colors to the appropriate areas of the images on each frame within a scene. The process continues until the entire film has been tinted.

col·or·ize (kŭl'ə-rĭz') v. tr. col·or-ized, col·or-iz-ing, col·or-iz-es. To impart color to (black-and-white film) by means of a computer-assisted process: "Be prepared... for the... colorized version of Topper" (Vincent Canby). —col'or-iz-er n.

col·or·less (kŭl'ər-lĭs) adj. 1. Lacking color. 2. Weak in color; pallid. 3. Lacking animation, variety, or distinction; dull. See Synonyms at dull. —col'or-less-ly adv. —col'or-less-ness n.

color line (kŭl'ər lĭn) n. A barrier, created by custom, law, or economic differences, separating nonwhite persons from whites. Also called color bar co·lo·scope (kō'lə-skōp') n. See colonoscope.

co·los·co·py (kə-lōs'kə-pē) n. See colonoscopy.

Co·los·sae (kə-lōs'ē) An ancient city of central Asia Minor. It was the site of an early Christian church to which Saint Paul addressed his Epistle to the Colossians.

—Co·los'sian (-lōsh'ən) adj. & n.

co·los·sal (kə-lōs'əl) adj. Of a size, extent, or degree that elicits awe or taxes belief; immense. See Synonyms at enormous. [French, from Latin colossus, colossus. See COLOSSUS.] —co·los'sal·ly adv.

col·os·se·um (kōl'ī-sē'əm) n. Variant of coliseum.

co·los·si (kə-lōs'ī') n. A plural of colossus.

Co·los'sians (kə-lōsh'ənz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr. Col, Col. Bible.

A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Latin Colossēnses, inhabitants of Colossae, from Colossae, Colossae, from Greek Kolossai.]

co·los·sus (kə-lōs'əs) n. pl. co·los·si (-lōs'ī') or co·los·sus·es. 1. A huge statue. 2. Something likened to a huge statue, as in size or importance: a colossus of bureaucracy. [Latin, from Greek kolossos.]

Co·los·sus of Rhodes (kə-lōs'əs ūf rōdz) A huge statue of Apollo located at the entrance to the harbor of Rhodes. Built c. 280 B.C. and later destroyed by an earthquake, it was about 37 m (120 ft) high and was one of the Seven Wonders of the World.

co·los·to·my (kə-lōs'tə-mē) n. pl. co·los·to·mies. 1. Surgical construction of an artificial excretory opening from the colon. 2. The opening created by such a surgical procedure.

co·los·trum (kə-lōs'trəm) n. The thin, yellowish fluid secreted by the mammary glands at the time of parturition that is rich in antibodies and minerals, and precedes the production of true milk. Also called foremilk [Latin.] —co·los'tral (-trəl) adj.

col·our (kŭl'ər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of color.

-colous suff. Having a specified kind of habitat: arenicolous. [From Latin -cola, tiller, inhabitant. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.]

col·pi·tis (kōl-pī'tis) n. See vaginitis. [Greek kolpos, vagina + -ITIS.]

col·por·tage (kōl'pôr'tij, -pôr'-) n. The work of a colporteur.

col·por·teur (kōl'pôr'tər, -pôr'-) n. A peddler of devotional literature.

[French, alteration (influenced by col, neck, from the idea that peddlers carry their wares on trays suspended from straps around their necks), of Old French comporteur, from comporter, to conduct, peddle. See COMPORT.]

col·po·scope (kōl'pə-skōp') n. A magnifying and photographic device used as an aid in the diagnostic examination of the vaginal and cervical epithelia. [Greek kolpos, vagina, womb + -SCOPE.] —col'po·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj.

col·pos·co·py (kōl-pōs'kə-pē) n. pl. col·pos·co·pies. Examination of the vaginal and cervical epithelia by means of a colposcope. [Greek kolpos, vagina, womb + -SCOPY.]

colt (kōlt) n. 1. A young male horse. 2. A youthful or inexperienced person; a novice. [Middle English, from Old English.]

Colt (kōlt), Samuel. 1814-1862. American firearms inventor and manufacturer who developed the first revolver.

colt-ish (kōl'tīsh) adj. 1. Relating to or suggestive of a colt. 2. Lively and playful; frisky. —colt'ish-ly adv. —colt'ish-ness n.

Col-ton (kōl'tən) A city of southern California, a suburb of San Bernardino. Population, 40,213.

Col-trane (kōl'trān), John William. 1926-1967. American jazz saxophonist and composer whose musical innovations broke through formal thematic and harmonic restrictions in jazz improvisation.

colts-foot (kōlts'fōot') n. pl. colts-foots. 1. A low perennial Eurasian herb (Tussilago farfara) in the composite family, naturalized in parts of North America and having dandelionlike flower heads and large, hoof-shaped basal leaves.

2. The dried leaves or flower heads of this plant, long used in herbal medicine to treat coughs. 3. See galax. [From the shape of its leaves.]

col-u-brid (kōl'ə-brīd, kōl'yə-) n. Any of numerous, widely distributed, chiefly nonvenomous snakes of the family Colubridae, which includes the king snakes, garter snakes, and water snakes. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the Colubridae. [From New Latin Colubridae, family name, from Latin coluber, colubr-, snake.]

col-u-brine (kōl'ə-brīn', kōl'yə-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a snake. 2. Colubrid.

co-lu-go (kə-lōō'gō) n. pl. co-lu-gos. See flying lemur. [Of Malayan origin.]

Col-um (kūl'əm), Saint. See Saint. Columba.

Col-um (kōl'əm), Padraic. 1881-1972. Irish-American writer who was associated with the Irish Renaissance. His volumes of poetry include Wild Earth (1907) and Images of Departure (1968).

Co-lum-ba (kə-lūm'bə) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Caelum and Puppis. Also called Dove [Latin columba, dove.]

Columba also Col-um (kūl'əm), Saint. 521-597. Irish missionary who established a monastery on the island of Iona and subsequently Christianized northern Scotland.

col-um-bar-i-um (kōl'əm-bâr'ē-əm) also col-um-bar-y (kōl'əm-bēr'ē) n. pl. col-um-bar-i-a (-ē-ə) also col-um-bar-ies. 1. a. A vault with niches for urns containing ashes of the dead. b. One of the niches in such a vault. 2. a. A dovecote. b. A pigeonhole in a dovecote. [Latin columbārium, sepulchre for urns, dovecote, from columba, dove.]

Co-lum-bi-a¹ (kə-lūm'bē-ə) 1. A community of north-central Maryland west-southwest of Baltimore. It is mainly residential. Population, 75,883. 2. A city of central Missouri north-northwest of Jefferson City. The main campus of the University of Missouri (established 1839) is here. Population, 69,101. 3. The capital and largest city of South Carolina, in the central part of the state. It was chosen as the site of the new state's capital in 1786. Population, 98,052. 4. A city of west-central Tennessee south-southwest of Nashville. It was first settled in 1807. Population, 28,583.

Co·lum·bi·a² (kə-lŭm'bě-ə) n. The United States. [After Christopher COLUMBUS.]

Co·lum·bi·a (kə-lŭm'bě-ə), Cape. A cape on the northern coast of Ellesmere Island. It is the northernmost point of Canada.

Co·lum·bi·a (kə-lŭm'bě-ə), District of. See District of Columbia.

Co·lum·bi·a Heights (kə-lŭm'bě-ə hīts) A city of eastern Minnesota, a residential suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 18,910.

Co·lum·bi·an (kə-lŭm'bě-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to the United States. 2. Of or relating to Christopher Columbus.

Co·lum·bi·a River (kə-lŭm'bě-ə rĭv'ər) A river rising in southeast British Columbia, Canada, and flowing about 1,947 km (1,210 mi) south then west through the Columbia Plateau and along the Washington-Oregon border to its outlet on the Pacific Ocean. It was discovered and named by the American explorer Robert Gray in 1792.

col·um·bine (kŏl'əm-bĭn') n. Any of various perennial herbs of the genus Aquilegia native to north temperate regions, cultivated for their showy, variously colored flowers that have petals with long, hollow spurs. Also called aquilegia [Middle English, from Medieval Latin columbina, from feminine of Latin columbĭnus, dovelike (from the resemblance of the inverted flower to a cluster of doves), from columba, dove.]

co·lum·bite (kə-lŭm'bit') n. A black, red-brown, or colorless mineral, essentially (Fe, Mn)(Nb, Ta)₂O₆, the principal ore of niobium. [COLUMB(IUM) + -ITE¹.]

co·lum·bi·um (kə-lŭm'bě-əm) n. Symbol Cb Niobium. No longer in scientific use. [After COLUMBIA².]

Co·lum·bus (kə-lŭm'bəs) 1. A city of western Georgia on the Chattahoochee River south-southwest of Atlanta. Settled in 1828 on the site of a Creek village, it is a port of entry and major industrial center. Population, 179,278. 2. A city of south-central Indiana south-southeast of Indianapolis. It was a supply depot for Union troops during the Civil War. Population, 31,802. 3. A city of northeast Mississippi near the Alabama border. There are many antebellum houses in the area. Population, 23,799. 4. A city of east-central Nebraska at the confluence of the Loup and Platte rivers west of Omaha. It is a trade, processing, and manufacturing center. Population, 19,480. 5. The capital of Ohio, in the central part of the state. Laid out in 1812, it is a major industrial, commercial, and cultural center. Population, 632,910.

Co-lum-bus (kə-lŭm'bə̃s), Christopher. 1451-1506. Italian explorer in the service of Spain who determined that the earth was round and attempted to reach Asia by sailing west from Europe, thereby discovering America (1492). He made three subsequent voyages to the Caribbean in his quest for a sea route to China.

Columbus Day (kə-lŭm'bə̃s dā) n. October 12, observed in the United States in commemoration of the discovery in 1492 of the New World by Christopher Columbus. Columbus Day is now officially observed on the second Monday in October.

col·u·mel·la (kŏl'yə-mĕl'ə, kŏl'ə-) n. pl. col·u·mel·lae (-mĕl'ē). Any small columnlike structure in various plants and animals, often forming the central axis of development for the organism or an anatomical structure. [Latin, diminutive of columna, column. See COLUMN.] —col'u-mel'lar (-mĕl'ər) adj.

—col'u-mel'late' (-mĕl'āt') adj.

col·umn (kŏl'əm) n. Abbr. col., clm. 1. Architecture. A supporting pillar consisting of a base, a cylindrical shaft, and a capital. 2. Something resembling an architectural pillar in form or function: a column of mercury in a thermometer. 3. a. Printing. One of two or more vertical sections of typed lines lying side by side on a page and separated by a rule or a blank space. b. A feature article that appears regularly in a publication, such as a newspaper. 4. A formation, as of troops or vehicles, in which all elements follow one behind the other. 5. Botany. A columnlike structure, especially one formed by the union of a stamen and the style in an orchid flower, or one formed by the united staminal filaments in flowers such as those of the hibiscus or mallow. 6. Anatomy. Any of various tubular or pillarlike supporting structures in the body, each generally having a single tissue origin and function: the vertebral column. [Middle English columnne, from Latin columna. See kel⁻² in Appendix.] —col'umned (kŏl'əmd) adj.

co-lum·nar (kə-lŭm'nər) adj. 1. Having the shape of a column.

2. Constructed with or having columns.

columnar epithelium (kə-lŭm'nər ɛp'ə-thĕ'lĕ-əm) n. Epithelium consisting of one or more cell layers, the most superficial of which is composed of elongated and somewhat cylindrical cells projecting toward the surface.

co-lum·ne·a (kə-lŭm'nĕ-ə) n. Any of various bushy or trailing tropical American plants of the genus Columnea, grown indoors for their showy, colorful, tubular flowers. [New Latin Columnea, genus name, after Fabius Columna, Latin name of Fabio Colonna (1567-1650?), Italian botanist.]

co-lum·ni·a·tion (kə-lŭm'nĕ-ā'shən) n. Architecture. The use or arrangement of columns in a building.

col·um·nist (kŏl'əm-nĭst, -ə-mĭst) n. A writer of a column in a publication, such as a newspaper.

Col-ville (kōl'vīl', kōl'-) A river rising in the Brooks Range of northwest Alaska and flowing about 603 km (375 mi) east and north across the tundra to the Arctic Ocean.

col-za (kōl'zə, kōl'-) n. See rape². [French, from Dutch koolzaad : kool, cabbage (from Middle Dutch cōle, from Latin caulis) + zaad, seed (from Middle Dutch saet); see sē- in Appendix.]

COM abbr. Computer-output microfilm; computer-output microfilmer.

com. abbr. 1. Combining. 2. Combustion. 3. Comedy; comic. 4. Comma. 5. Commentary. 6. Commerce; commercial. 7. Or Com.. Commission; commissioner. 8. Or Com.. Committee. 9. Common. 10. Commune. 11. Communication. 12. Community.

Com. abbr. 1. Also com.. Commander. 2. Commodore. 3. Communist.

com- or col- or con- pref. Together; with; joint; jointly: commingle. [Middle English, from Latin, from Old Latin com. See kom in Appendix.]

co-ma¹ (kō'mə) n. pl. co-mas. A state of deep, often prolonged unconsciousness, usually the result of injury, disease, or poison, in which an individual is incapable of sensing or responding to external stimuli and internal needs. [Greek kōma, deep sleep.]

co-ma² (kō'mə) n. pl. co-mae (-mē). 1. Astronomy. The nebulous, luminescent cloud containing the nucleus and constituting the major portion of the head of a comet. 2. Botany. A usually terminal tuft or cluster, especially a tuft of hairs on a seed, as on a willow or milkseed. 3. Physics. A diffuse, pear-shaped image of a point source. [Latin, hair, from Greek komē.] —co'mal adj.

Co-ma Ber-e-ni-ces (kō'mə bër'ə-nī'sēz') n. A constellation in the northern sky near Boötes and Leo that contains a prominent cluster of galaxies and the north pole of the Milky Way. Also called Berenice's Hair [New Latin Coma Berenicēs, Berenice's hair : Latin coma, hair + Latin Berenicēs, genitive of Berenicē, Berenice (a queen of Egypt who promised her hair to Venus).]

co-mae (kō'mē) n. Plural of coma².

Co-man-che (kə-măn'chē) n. pl. Comanche or Co-man-ches. 1. a. A Native American people formerly ranging over the southern Great Plains from western Kansas to northern Texas and now located in Oklahoma. The Comanche became nomadic buffalo hunters after migrating south from Wyoming in the 18th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of the Comanche. [Spanish, from Ute kimmančī.] —Co-man'che adj.

co-mate¹ (kō'māt') adj. Comose. [Latin comātus, having long hair, from coma, hair. See COMA².]

co-mate² (kō-māt', kō'māt') n. A mate; a companion.

co-ma-tose (kō'mə-tōs', kōm'ə-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or affected with coma; unconscious. 2. Marked by lethargy; torpid. —co'ma-tose'ly adv.

co·mat·u·lid (kə-mäch'ə-līd) also co·mat·u·la (-lə) n. pl. co·mat·u·lids also co·mat·u·lae (-lē). Any of various marine invertebrates of the class Crinoidea, such as the sea lilies and feather stars, that are attached to a surface by a stalk when young but may be free-swimming as adults. [From New Latin Comatulidae, former family name, from Late Latin comātulus, having neatly curled hair, from Latin comātus, having long hair. See COMATE¹.]

comb (kōm) n. 1. a. A thin toothed strip, as of plastic, used to smooth, arrange, or fasten the hair. b. An implement, such as a card for dressing and cleansing wool or other fiber, that resembles a hair comb in shape or use. c. A currycomb. 2. a. The fleshy crest or ridge that grows on the crown of the head of domestic fowl and other birds and is most prominent in the male. b. Something suggesting a fowl's comb in appearance or position. 3. A honeycomb. — v. combed, comb-ing, combs. — v. tr. 1. To dress or arrange with or as if with a comb. 2. To card (wool or other fiber). 3. To search thoroughly; look through: combed the dresser drawers for a lost bracelet. — v. intr. To roll and break. Used of waves. [Middle English, from Old English. See gembh- in Appendix.]

comb. abbr. 1. Combination. 2. Combining. 3. Combustion.

Com·ba·hee (kūm-bē', kūm'bē') A river, about 225 km (140 mi) long, of southern South Carolina flowing southeast to the Atlantic Ocean.

com·bat (kəm-băt', kōm'băt') v. com·bat·ed or com·bat·ted, com·bat·ing or com·bat·ting, com·bats or com·bats. — v. tr. 1. To oppose in battle; fight against. 2. To oppose vigorously; struggle against. See Synonyms at oppose. — v. intr. To engage in fighting; contend or struggle. — n. (kōm'băt') Fighting, especially armed battle; strife. See Synonyms at conflict. — adj. 1. Of or relating to combat: *flew 50 combat missions. 2. Intended for use or deployment in combat: combat boots; combat troops. [French combattre, from Old French, from Late Latin combattere: Latin com-, com- + Latin battere, to beat (alteration of battuere).]*

com·bat·ant (kəm-băt'nt, kōm'bə-tnt) n. One, such as a person or a combat vehicle, that takes part in armed strife. — adj. Engaging in armed strife.

combat fatigue (kəm-băt' fə-tēg') n. A nervous disorder, usually temporary but sometimes leading to a permanent neurosis, brought on by the exhaustion and stress of combat or similar situations and characterized by deep anxiety, depression, irritability, and other related symptoms. Also called battle fatigue com·bat·ive (kəm-băt'iv) adj. Eager or disposed to fight; belligerent. See Synonyms at argumentative. — com·bat·ive·ly adv. — com·bat·ive·ness n.

comb·er (kō'mər) n. 1. One, such as a machine or a worker, that combs wool, for example. 2. A long wave that has reached its peak or broken into foam; a breaker.

com·bi·na·tion (kōm'bə-nā'shən) n. Abbr. comb. 1. The act of combining or the state of being combined. 2. The result of combining. 3. An alliance of persons or parties for a common purpose; an association. 4. A sequence of numbers or letters used to open a combination lock. 5. Mathematics. One or more elements selected from a set without regard to the order of selection.

—com'bi-na'tion-al adj.

combination lock (kǒm'bə-nā'shən lǒk) n. A lock that will open only when its dial is turned through a predetermined sequence of positions identified on the dial face by numbers or letters.

com·bi·na·tive (kǒm'bə-nā'tiv, kəm-bī'nə-tiv) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resulting from combination. 2. Tending, serving, or able to combine.

com·bi·na·to·ri·al (kǒm'bə-nə-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-, kəm-bī'nə-) adj. 1. Relating to or involving combinations. 2. Relating to the arrangement and manipulation of mathematical elements in sets.

com·bi·na·tor·ics (kǒm'bə-nə-tôr'iks, -tôr'-, kəm-bī'nə-) n. (used with a sing. verb). Combinatorial mathematics.

com·bine (kəm-bīn') v. com·bined, com·bin·ing, com·bines. — v. tr.

1. To bring into a state of unity; merge. 2. To join (two or more substances) to make a single substance, such as a chemical compound; mix. 3. To possess or exhibit in combination: The choreography, which combines artistry and athletics, is extremely innovative. 4. (kǒm'bīn') To harvest (a grain crop) using a cutting, threshing, and cleaning machine. — v. intr. 1. To become united; coalesce.

2. To join forces for a common purpose. See Synonyms at join. 3. Chemistry. To form a compound. 4. (kǒm'bīn') To harvest a grain crop using a cutting, threshing, and cleaning machine: "Norwegian bachelor farmers combining in their antique McCormacks" (Garrison Keillor). — n. (kǒm'bīn') 1. A power-operated harvesting machine that cuts, threshes, and cleans grain. 2. An association of people or groups united for the furtherance of political or commercial interests. 3. A combination. [Middle English combinen, from Old French combiner, from Late Latin combīnāre: Latin com-, com- + bīnī, two by two; see dwo- in Appendix.] —com·bin'er n.

comb·ings (kō'mɪŋz) pl.n. Small loose pieces of material, such as hairs or wool, removed with a comb.

com·bin·ing (kəm-bī'nɪŋ) n. Abbr. com., comb. 1. The act or process of joining, merging, or mixing two or more things. 2. (kǒm'bī-nɪŋ) The act or process of operating a combine.

com·bin·ing form (kəm-bī'nɪŋ fɔrm) n. Grammar. A modified form of an independent word in English or in a language such as Greek or Latin from which English has borrowed that occurs only in combination with other forms. It combines with words, affixes, or other combining forms to form compounds or derivatives, as electro- (from electric) in electromagnet or geo- (from Greek gēo-, from gē- "earth") in geochemistry.

comb jelly (kōm jəl'ē) n. See ctenophore.

com-bo (kōm'bō) n. pl. com-bos. 1. Music. A small jazz band. 2. Informal.

The product or result of combining; a combination. [Short for COMBINATION.]

com-bus-ti-ble (kəm-büs'tə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of igniting and burning.

2. Easily aroused or excited. — n. A substance that ignites and burns readily.

—com-bus'ti-bil'i-ty n. —com-bus'ti-bly adv.

com-bus-tion (kəm-büs'tchən) n. Abbr. com., comb. 1. The process of burning. 2. A chemical change, especially oxidation, accompanied by the production of heat and light. 3. Violent anger or agitation: Combustion within the populace slowly built up to the point of revolution. [Middle English, from Late Latin combustiō, combustiōn-, from Latin combustus, past participle of combūrere, to burn up, blend of com-, intensive pref.; see COM-, and ambūrere, to burn around (ambi-, ambi- + ūrere, to burn).] —com-bus'tive (-tīv) adj.

combustion chamber (kəm-büs'tchən chām'bər) n. An enclosure in which combustion, especially of a fuel or propellant, is initiated and controlled.

com-bus-tor (kəm-büs'tər) n. A combustion chamber and its igniters, injectors, and other related apparatus in a jet engine or gas turbine.

comd. abbr. Command.

comdg. abbr. Commanding.

Comdr. abbr. Commander.

Comdt. abbr. Commandant.

come (kūm) v. intr. came (kām), come, com-ing, comes. 1. a. To advance toward the speaker or toward a specified place; approach: Come to me. b. To advance in a specified manner: The children came reluctantly when I insisted.

2. a. To make progress; advance: a former drug addict who has come a long way. b. To fare: How are things coming today? They're coming fine. 3. a. To reach a particular point in a series or as a result of orderly progression: At last we came to the chapter on ergonomics. b. To arrive, as in due course: Dawn comes at 5 A.M. in June. 4. To move into view; appear: The moon came over the horizon. 5. To occur in time; take place: "In the... saloon... the sawdust on the floor gets changed biweekly come fog, downpour or the occasional shard of sunlight" (Paul A. Wittman). 6. a. To arrive at a particular result or end: come to an understanding. b. To arrive at or reach a particular state or condition: Come to your senses! c. To move or be brought to a particular position: The convoy came to an abrupt halt. 7. To extend; reach: water that came to my waist. 8. To have priority; rank: My work comes first. 9. a. To reach a particular condition or to arrive at a specified viewpoint: I have come to view the issue in a different light. How did you come to know that? b. To happen as a result: This comes of your carelessness. 10. To fall to one: No good can come of this. 11. To occur in the mind: A good idea just came to me. 12. a. To issue forth: A cry came from the frightened child. b. To be derived; originate: Oaks come from acorns. c. To be descended: They come from a good family. d. To be within a given range or spectrum of reference or application: This stipulation comes within the terms of your contract. 13. To be a native or resident of: My friend comes from Chicago. 14. To add up to a certain amount: Expenses came to more than income. 15. a. To become: The knot came loose. This is a dream that has come true. b. To turn out to be: A good education doesn't come cheap. 16. To be available or obtainable: shoes that come in all sizes. 17. Vulgar Slang. To experience orgasm. — n. Vulgar Slang. Semen. — phrasal verbs.

come about. 1. To take place; happen. 2. To turn around. 3. Nautical. To change tack. come across. 4. To meet or find by chance: came across my old college roommate in town today. 5. Slang. a. To do what is wanted. b. To pay over money that is demanded: came across with the check. 6. To give an impression: "He comes across as a very sincere, religious individual" (William L. Clay). come along. 7. To make advances to a goal; progress: Things are coming along fine. 8. To go with someone else who takes the lead: I'll come along on the hike. 9. To show up; appear: Don't take the first offer that comes along. come around (or come round). 10. To recover, revive: fainted but soon came around. 11. To change one's opinion or position: You'll come around after you hear the whole story. come at. 12. To obtain; get: come at an education through study. 13. To rush at; attack. come back. 14. To return to or regain past success after a period of misfortune. 15. To retort; reply: came back with a sharp riposte. 16. To recur to the memory: When I saw the picture, happy memories came back. come by. 17. To gain possession of; acquire: Mortgages are hard to come by. 18. To pay a visit. come down. 19. To lose wealth or position: He has really come down in the world. 20. a. To pass or be handed down by tradition: customs that come down from colonial times. b. To be handed down from a higher authority: An indictment finally came down. 21. Slang. To happen; occur: What's coming down tonight? come in. 22. a. To arrive: Fall clothes will be coming in soon. b. To become available for use: New weather information just came in. c. To start producing. Used of an oil well. 23. To arrive among those who finish a contest or race: came in fifth. 24. To perform or function in a particular way: A food processor comes in handy. 25. To reply in a specified manner to a call or signal: The pilot's voice came in loud and clear. 26. To take on a specified role: When editorial review commences, that's where you come in. come into. To acquire, especially as an inheritance: She came into a fortune on her 21st birthday. come off. 28. To happen; occur: The trip came off on schedule. 29. To acquit oneself: She is sure to come off badly if challenged to explain. 30. To turn out to be successful: a party that came off. come on. 31. To convey a particular personal image: comes on as an old-fashioned reactionary. 32. Slang. To show sexual interest in someone: trying to come on to me during the party. 33. a. To progress or advance in increments: Darkness came on after seven. b. To begin in small increments or by degrees: Sleet came on after one o'clock. 34. To hurry up; move rapidly. Often used in the imperative: Would you please come on! We'll be late! 35. To stop an inappropriate behavior; abandon a position or an attitude; be obliging. Used chiefly in the imperative: You've used the same feeble excuse for weeks. Come on!

come out. 36. To become known: The whole story came out at the trial. 37. To be issued or brought out: The author's new book just came out. 38. To make a formal social debut: She came out at age 18 in New York City. 39. To end up; result: Everything came out wrong. 40. To declare oneself publicly: The governor came out in favor of tax breaks. 41. To reveal that one is gay or homosexual. come over. 42. To change sides, as in a controversy. 43. To pay a casual visit. come through. 44. To do what is required or anticipated: I asked for their help, and they came through. 45. a. To become manifest: The parents' tenderness comes through in their facial expressions. b. To be communicated in a specified manner: The pilot's voice came through loud and clear. come to. 46. To recover consciousness: The fainting victim came to. 47. Nautical. a. To bring the bow into the wind. b. To anchor. come up. 48. To manifest itself; arise: The question never came up. 49. To rise above the horizon: The sun came up. 50. To rise, as in status or rank: a general who came up from the ranks. 51. To draw near; approach: came up and said hello. come upon. To discover or meet by accident.

—idioms. come a cropper. To fail utterly. come clean. To confess all. come down on. To punish, oppose, or reprimand severely and often with force: a district attorney who came down hard on drug dealers. come down to. 4. To confront or deal with forthrightly: When you come right down to it, you have to admit I'm correct. 5. To amount to in essence: It comes down to this: the man is a cheat. come down with. To become sick with (an illness): came down with the flu. come in for. To receive; be subjected to: came in for harsh criticism. come into (one's) own. 8. To get possession of what belongs to one. 9. To obtain rightful recognition or prosperity: a concert pianist who has at last come into his own. come off it. Slang. To stop acting or speaking foolishly or pretentiously. Often used in the imperative. come out with. 11. To put into words; say: always comes out with the truth. 12. To reveal publicly: came out with a new tax package. come to blows. To begin a physical fight. come to grief. To meet with disaster; fail. come to grips with. To confront squarely and attempt to deal decisively with: "He had to come to grips with the proposition" (Louis Auchincloss). come to light (or come to hand). To be clearly revealed or disclosed: "A further problem... came to light last summer as a result of post-flight inspections" (John Noble Wilford). come to terms. 17. To confront squarely and come to understand fully and objectively: "He attempts to come to terms with his own early experiences... and with his father, a con man of extravagant dimensions" (Peter S. Prescott). 18. To reach mutual agreement: The warring factions have at last come to terms. come true. To happen as predicted: My fondest dreams have at last come true. come up against. To encounter, especially a difficulty or major problem. come up with. To bring forth or discover: came up with a cure for the disease. [Middle English comen, from Old English cuman. See g^wā- in Appendix.]

come-back (kŭm'bāk') n. 1. a. A return to formerly enjoyed status or prosperity: The film star made an unexpected comeback. b. A return to popularity: Wide ties are making a comeback this year. 2. The act of making up a deficit, as in a contest or game. 3. A reply, especially a quick, witty one; a retort.

co-me-di-an (kə-mē'dē-ən) n. 1. A professional entertainer who tells jokes or performs various other comic acts. 2. An actor in comedy. 3. A writer of comedy. 4. A person who amuses or tries to be amusing; a clown. [French comédien, player, comedian, from comédie, comedy, from Medieval Latin cōmēdia. See COMEDY.]

co-me-dic (kə-mē'dīk) adj. Of or relating to comedy. —co-me'di-cal-ly adv.

co-me-di-enne (kə-mē'dē-ĕn') n. A woman professional entertainer who tells jokes or performs various other comic acts. [French comédienne, feminine of comédien, comedian. See COMEDIAN.]

com-e-do (kŏm'ī-dō') n. pl. com-e-dos or com-e-do-nes (-dō'nēz). See blackhead (n., sense 1). [Latin comedō, glutton, from comedere, to eat up : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + edere, to eat; see ed- in Appendix.]

com-e-do-gen-ic (kŏm'ī-dō-jĕn'īk) adj. Tending to produce or aggravate acne. [COMEDO + -GENIC.]

come-down (kŭm'doun') n. 1. A decline to a lower status or level. 2. a. A feeling of disappointment or depression. b. A cause of disappointment or depression.

com-e-dy (kŏm'ī-dē) n. pl. com-e-dies. Abbr. com. 1. a. A dramatic work that is light and often humorous or satirical in tone and that usually contains a happy resolution of the thematic conflict. b. The genre made up of such works. 2. A literary or cinematic work of a comic nature or that uses the themes or methods of comedy. 3. Popular entertainment composed of jokes, satire, or humorous performance. 4. The art of composing or performing comedy. 5. A humorous element of life or literature: the human comedy of political campaigns. 6. A humorous occurrence. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a comedy writer; a comedy show. —idiom. comedy of errors. A ludicrous event or sequence of events: The candidate's campaign turned out to be a political comedy of errors. [Middle English comédie, from Medieval Latin cōmēdia, from Latin cōmoedia, from Greek kōmōidia, from kōmōidos, comic actor : kōmos, revel + aoidos, singer (from aeidein, to sing); see wed-² in Appendix.]

comedy of manners (kŏm'ī-dē ŭv măn'ərz) n. pl. comedies of manners. A comedy satirizing the attitudes and behavior of a particular social group, often of fashionable society.

come-hith-er (kŭm-hĭth'ər) adj. Seductive; alluring: a come-hither look.

come·ly (kŭm'lē) adj. come·li·er, come·li·est. 1. Pleasing and wholesome in appearance; attractive. See Synonyms at beautiful. 2. Suitable; seemly: comely behavior. [Middle English comli, alteration (probably influenced by bicomli, seemly, from bicomēn, to be suitable); see BECOME, of cumli, from Old English cŷmlic, lovely, delicate, from cŷme, beautiful.] —come'li·ness n.

Co·me·ni·us (kə-mē'nē-əs), John Amos. 1592-1670. Czechoslovakian theologian and educational reformer who held that science exalted divine majesty rather than threatened it.

come-on (kŭm'ŏn', -ŏn') n. 1. Something offered to allure or attract; an inducement, especially to buy. 2. Slang. A sexual or romantic approach or proposal.

com·er (kŭm'ər) n. 1. One that arrives or comes: free food for all comers. 2. One showing promise of attaining success: a political comer.

co·mes·ti·ble (kə-mēs'tə-bəl) adj. Fit to be eaten; edible. — n. Something that can be eaten as food: meat, cheese, and other comestibles. [French, from Old French, from Late Latin comēstibilis, from Latin comēstus, alteration (influenced by pōtus, drunk); see POTION, of comēsus, past participle of comedere, to eat up : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + edere, to eat; see ed- in Appendix.]

com·et (kŏm'īt) n. A celestial body, observed only in that part of its orbit that is relatively close to the sun, having a head consisting of a solid nucleus surrounded by a nebulous coma up to 2.4 million kilometers (1.5 million miles) in diameter and an elongated, curved vapor tail arising from the coma when sufficiently close to the sun. Comets are thought to consist chiefly of ammonia, methane, carbon dioxide, and water. [Middle English comete, from Old English comēta, from Latin, from Greek (astēr) komētēs, long-haired (star), from komē, hair.] —com'et·ar'y (-ĭ-tēr'ē), co·met'ic (kə-mēt'ik) adj.

WORD HISTORY: Comets have been feared throughout much of human history, and even in our own time their goings and comings receive great attention. Perhaps a comet might seem less awesome if we realized that our name for it is based on a figurative resemblance between it and human beings. This figurative name is recorded first in the works of Aristotle, in which he uses komē, the Greek word for “hair of the head,” to mean “luminous tail of a comet.” Aristotle then uses the derived word komētēs, “wearing long hair,” as a noun meaning “comet.” The Greek word was adopted into Latin as comētēs, which was refashioned in Late Latin and given the form comēta, furnishing Old English with comēta, the earliest English ancestor of our word comet.

come-up·pance (kŭm'ŭp'əns) n. A punishment or retribution that one deserves; one's just deserts: “It's a chance to strike back at the critical brotherhood and give each his comeuppance for evaluative sins of the past” (Judith Crist).

com·fit (kŭm'fĭt, kŏm'f-) n. A confection that consists of a piece of fruit, a seed, or a nut coated with sugar. [Middle English confit, from Old French, from Latin cōnfectum, thing prepared, neuter past participle of cōnficere, to prepare : com-, com- + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.]

com·fort (kŭm'fərt) v. tr. com·fort·ed, com·fort·ing, com·forts. 1. To soothe in time of affliction or distress. 2. To ease physically; relieve. — n. 1. A condition or feeling of pleasurable ease, well-being, and contentment. 2. Solace in time of grief or fear. 3. Help; assistance: gave comfort to the enemy. 4. One that brings or provides comfort. 5. The capacity to give physical ease and well-being: enjoying the comfort of my favorite chair. [Middle English comforten, from Old French conforter, to strengthen, from Late Latin cōnfortāre : Latin com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + Latin fortis, strong; see bhergh-² in Appendix.]
—com'fort·ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: comfort, console, solace. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to give hope or help to in time of grief or pain”: comforted the distressed child; consoling a woman on the death of her husband; solaced myself with a hot cup of coffee. See also Synonyms at amenity rest¹

com·fort·a·ble (kŭm'fər-tə-bəl, kŭmf'tə-bəl) adj. 1. Providing physical comfort: a comfortable chair. 2. Free from stress or anxiety; at ease: not comfortable about the interview. 3. Sufficient to provide financial security: comfortable earnings. —com'fort·a·ble·ness n. —com'fort·a·bly adv.

SYNONYMS: comfortable, cozy, snug, restful. These words mean affording ease of mind or body. Comfortable implies the absence of sources of pain or distress: sleeps in a comfortable bed; wears comfortable clothes. The word may also suggest peace of mind: felt comfortable with the decision; has a comfortable income. Cozy evokes the image of a warm room in winter and suggests homey and reassuring ease: sat in a cozy nook near the fire; had a cozy little chat. Snug brings to mind the image of a warm, secure, compact shelter: children snug in their beds. Restful suggests a quiet conducive to tranquillity: spent a restful hour reading; a room painted in restful colors.

com·fort·er (kŭm'fər-tər) n. 1. One that comforts: the nurse as comforter of the sick. 2. Comforter. The Holy Spirit. 3. A quilted bedcover. 4. A narrow, long, typically woolen neck scarf.

comfort food (kŭm'fərt fōd) n. Easily prepared plain food, such as macaroni and cheese, meat loaf, or puddings, sometimes prepackaged.

comfort station (kŭm'fərt stā'shən) n. A public restroom or toilet.

com·frey (kŭm'frē) n. pl. com·freys. Any of various hairy perennial Eurasian herbs of the genus Symphytum, especially S. officinale, having variously colored flowers in coiled cymes and long used in herbal medicine. Also called healing herb [Middle English comferi, from Old French cumfirie, from Vulgar Latin cōnfervia*, from Latin cōnferva, from cōnfervēre, to boil together : com-, com- + fer-vēre, to boil; see FERVENT.]

com-fy (kŭm'fē) adj. com-fi-er, com-fi-est. Informal. Comfortable.

com-ic (kŏm'ik) adj. Abbr. com. 1. Characteristic of or having to do with comedy. 2. Of or relating to comic strips. 3. Amusing; humorous: a comic situation involving the family's pets. — n. 1. a. A comedian. b. A person whose behavior elicits laughter. 2. a. comics. Comic strips. b. A comic book. 3. A source of humor in art or life. [Latin cōmicus, from Greek kōmikos, from kōmos, revel.]

com-i-cal (kŏm'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Provoking mirth or amusement; funny. 2. Of or relating to comedy. — com'i-cal'i-ty (-kəl'ī-tē), com'i-cal-ness n. — com'i-cal-ly adv.

comic book (kŏm'ik böök) n. A book of comic strips. Also called funny book comic opera (kŏm'ik ɔp'ər-ə) n. Music. An opera or operetta with a humorous plot, spoken dialogue, and usually a happy ending. Also called bouffe, opéra comique.

Co-mice (kō-mēs', kə-) n. A cultivated variety of pear having greenish-yellow skin blushed with russet-red and yellowish, juicy, fine-textured flesh. [From French (Doyenne du) Comice, (Dean of the) Show, from comice (agricole), (agricultural) show, from Old French, convention, from Latin comitia. See COMITIA.]

com-ic-op-er-a (kŏm'ik-ɔp'ər-ə, -ɔp'rə) adj. Not to be taken seriously: comic-opera politics; a comic-opera style of uniform.

comic relief (kŏm'ik rī-lēf') n. A humorous or farcical interlude in a serious literary work, especially a tragedy, intended to relieve the dramatic tension or heighten the emotional impact by means of contrast.

comic strip (kŏm'ik strīp) n. A narrative series of cartoons.

Co-mines also Com-mines or Com-mynes or Co-mynes (kô-mēn'), Philippe de. 1447?-1511. French diplomat, political adviser, and historian whose Mémoires (1524) are among the most perceptive historical documents of the Middle Ages.

com-ing (kŭm'ing) adj. 1. Approaching; forthcoming; next: the coming season; a coming report on arms limitation. 2. Showing promise of fame or success. — n. Arrival; advent: the coming of spring.

com-ing-out (kŭm'ing-out') n. A social debut.

Com-in-tern (kŏm'in-tŭrn') n. An association of Communist parties of the world, established in 1919 by Lenin and dissolved in 1943. [Russian komintern, abbreviation of Kommunisticheskiĭ Internatsional, Communist International.]

co-mi-ti-a (kə-mīsh'ē-ə, -mīsh'ə) n. pl. comitia. A popular assembly in ancient Rome having legislative or electoral duties. [Latin, from pl. of comitium, assembly place : com-, com- + itus, past participle of īre, to go; see ei- in Appendix.]

—co-mi'tial (-mīsh'əl) adj.

com-i-ty (kōm'ī-tē) n. pl. com-i-ties. 1. An atmosphere of social harmony. 2. See comity of nations (n., sense 2). 3. The principle by which the courts of one jurisdiction may accede or give effect to the laws or decisions of another. [Latin cōmitās, from cōmis, friendly. See smei- in Appendix.]

comity of nations (kōm'ī-tē ūv nā'shənz) n. 1. Courteous recognition accorded by one nation to the laws and institutions of another. 2. The nations observing international comity. In this sense, also called comity com-ix (kōm'iks) pl.n. Comic books and comic strips, especially of the underground press: “the countercultural... comix of the sixties and early seventies, with their explicit criticism of American society” (Lloyd Rose). [Alteration of comics, pl. of COMIC.]

coml. abbr. Commercial.

comm. abbr. 1. Commerce. 2. Commission; commissioner. 3. Also Comm. Committee. 4. Commonwealth. 5. Communication.

com-ma (kōm'ə) n. 1. Abbr. com. Grammar. A punctuation mark (,) used to indicate a separation of ideas or of elements within the structure of a sentence. 2. A pause or separation; a caesura. 3. Any of several butterflies of the genus Polygonia, having wings with brownish coloring and irregularly notched edges. [Latin, from Greek komma, piece cut off, short clause, from koptein, to cut.]

Com-mack (kō'māk, kōm'āk) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on central Long Island. It is chiefly residential. Population, 36,124.

comma fault (kōm'ə fōlt) n. Improper use of a comma to join two independent clauses. Also called comma splice

Com-ma-ger (kōm'ə-jər), Henry Steele. Born 1902. American historian whose works include Majority Rule and Minority Rights (1943) and The American Mind (1950).

com-mand (kə-mänd') v. com-mand-ed, com-mand-ing, com-mands.
— v. tr. 1. To direct with authority; give orders to. 2. To have control or authority over; rule: a general who commands an army. 3. To have at one's disposal: a person who commands seven languages. 4. To deserve and receive as due; exact: The troops' bravery commanded respect. 5. a. To exercise dominating, authoritative influence over: “He commands any room he enters” (Stephen Schiff). b. To dominate by physical position; overlook: a mountain commanding the valley below. — v. intr. 1. To give orders. 2. To exercise authority or control as or as if one is a commander. — n. 1. The act of commanding. 2. An order given with authority. 3. Computer Science. A signal that initiates an operation defined by an instruction. 4. a. The authority to command: an admiral in command. b. Possession and exercise of the authority to command: command of the seas. 5. Ability to control or use; mastery: command of four languages. 6. Dominance by location; extent of view. 7. Abbr. cmd. a. The jurisdiction of a commander. b. A military unit, post, district, or region under the control of one officer. c. A unit of the U.S. Air Force that is larger than an air force. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or constituting a command: command headquarters; a command decision. 2. Done or performed in response to a command: a command performance. [Middle English commanden, from Old French comander, from Late Latin commandāre: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + mandāre, to entrust; see man-² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: command, order, bid, enjoin, direct, instruct, charge. These verbs mean to issue an instruction that must be obeyed. Both command and order emphasize authority, but command often suggests the authority of an official (A general commands), while order can sometimes imply an autocratic or highhanded quality (The teacher ordered the child to leave the room). Bid suggests an oral command: I bid you be seated. Enjoin, direct, and instruct do not connote the authority of command or order, but they all imply compliance. Enjoin can apply both to demanding and to prohibiting a course of conduct or action: Orders to intelligence operatives often enjoin secrecy. Strikers were enjoined from picketing. Direct implies the giving of an order but less strongly than command: The governor directed the attorney general to investigate allegations of police corruption. Instruct often suggests a direction to do something in a specific way: Students were instructed to submit their essays before the end of the term. Charge implies the imposition of a duty: She was charged with the supervision of the proofreaders.

com-man-dant (kōm'ən-dānt', -dānt') n. Abbr. Comdt. The commanding officer of a military organization. [French, from present participle of commander, to command, from Old French comander. See COMMAND.]

com-man-deer (kōm'ən-dîr') v. tr. com-man-deered, com-man-deer-ing, com-man-deers. 1. To force into military service. 2. To seize for military use; confiscate. 3. To take arbitrarily or by force. See Synonyms at appropriate. [Afrikaans kommandeer, from French commander, to command, from Old French comander. See COMMAND.]

com-mand-er (kə-măn'dər) n. 1. A person who commands, especially a commanding officer. 2. Abbr. CDR, Cdr., Cmd., Cmdr, com., Com., Comdr. a. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above lieutenant commander and below captain. b. One who holds this rank. c. The chief commissioned officer of a military unit regardless of his or her rank. 3. An officer in some knightly or fraternal orders.

commander in chief (kə-măn'dər ɪn chēf) n. pl. commanders in chief. Abbr. CINC, C in C 1. Often Commander in Chief. The supreme commander of all the armed forces of a nation. 2. The officer commanding a major armed force.

com-mand-ing (kə-măn'dĩng) adj. 1. Abbr. cmdg., comdg. Having command; controlling. 2. Dominating, as by magnitude or position: took a commanding lead at the polls; a commanding view of the ocean. —com-mand'ing-ly adv. —com-mand'ing-ness n.

commanding officer (kə-măn'dĩng ô'fĩ-sər) n. Abbr. CO, C.O. A military officer in charge of a unit, post, camp, base, or station.

com-mand-ment (kə-mănd'mənt) n. 1. A command; an edict. 2. One of the Ten Commandments.

command module (kə-mănd' mۆj'ool) n. The portion of a spacecraft in which the astronauts live, communicate with a ground station, and operate controls during a flight.

com-man-do (kə-măn'dō) n. pl. com-man-dos or com-man-does. 1. a. A small fighting force specially trained for making quick, destructive raids against enemy-held areas. b. A member of such a force. 2. a. An organized force of Boer troops in South Africa. b. A raid made by such a force. [Afrikaans kommando, from Dutch commando, unit of troops, from Spanish comando, from comandar, to command, from Late Latin commandāre. See COMMAND.]

command post (kə-mănd' pōst) n. Abbr. CP, C.P. 1. The field headquarters used by the commander of a military unit. 2. A headquarters, as for communications, used by a team or an organization: a mobile news command post for election night coverage.

comma splice (kۆm'ə splĩs) n. See comma fault.

com-me-dia dell'ar-te (kə-mā'dē-ə dēl-är'tē, -tē, -mēd'ē-ə) n. A type of comedy developed in Italy in the 16th and 17th centuries and characterized by improvisation from a standard plot outline and the use of stock characters, often in traditional masks and costumes. [Italian : commedia, comedy + dell'arte, of the guild, professional (from arte, art, craft, guild).]

comme il faut (kۆm' ēl fō') adj. Being in accord with conventions or accepted standards; proper. [French : comme, as + il faut, it is necessary, proper.]

com-mem-o-rate (kə-mēm'ə-rāt') v. tr. com-mem-o-rat-ed, com-mem-o-rat-ing, com-mem-o-rates. 1. To honor the memory of with a ceremony. See Synonyms at observe. 2. To serve as a memorial to. [Latin commemorāre, commemorāt-, to remind : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + memorāre, to remind (from memor, mindful); see (s)mer-¹ in Appendix.]

—com-mem'o-ra'tor n.

com-mem-o-ra-tion (kə-mēm'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act of honoring the memory of or serving as a memorial to someone or something. 2. Something that honors or preserves the memory of another.

com-mem-o-ra-tive (kə-mēm'ər-ə-tīv, -ə-rā'-) adj. Honoring or preserving the memory of another. — n. Something that honors or preserves the memory of another.

com-mem-o-ra-to-ry (kə-mēm'ər-ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Commemorative.

com-mence (kə-měns') v. com-menced, com-menc-ing, com-menc-es. — v. tr. To begin; start. — v. intr. To enter upon or have a beginning; start. See Synonyms at begin. [Middle English commencen, from Old French comencier, from Vulgar Latin cominitiāre*: Latin com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + Late Latin initiāre, to begin (from Latin initium, beginning); see ei- in Appendix.]

—com-menc'er n.

com-mence-ment (kə-měns'mənt) n. 1. A beginning; a start. 2. a. A ceremony at which academic degrees or diplomas are conferred. b. The day on which such a ceremony occurs.

com-mend (kə-měnd') v. tr. com-mend-ed, com-mend-ing, com-mends.

1. To represent as worthy, qualified, or desirable; recommend. 2. To express approval of; praise. See Synonyms at praise. 3. To commit to the care of another; entrust. [Middle English commendēn, from Latin commendāre: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + mandāre, to entrust; see man-² in Appendix.]

—com-mend'a-ble adj. —com-mend'a-ble-ness n. —com-mend'a-bly adv.

com-men-da-tion (kōm'ən-dā'shən) n. 1. The act of commending.

2. Something, especially an official award or citation, that commends.

com-men-da-to-ry (kə-měn'də-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Serving to commend.

com-men-sal (kə-měn'səl) Biology. adj. Of, relating to, or characterized by a symbiotic relationship in which one species is benefited while the other is unaffected. — n. An organism participating in a symbiotic relationship in which one species derives some benefit while the other is unaffected. [Middle English, sharing a meal, from Medieval Latin commēnsālis: Latin com-, com- + Latin mēnsa, table.] —com-men'sal-ly adv.

com-men-sal-ism (kə-měn'sə-līz'əm) n. Biology. A symbiotic relationship between two organisms of different species in which one derives some benefit while the other is unaffected.

com-men-su-ra-ble (kə-měn'sər-ə-bəl, -shər-) adj. 1. Measurable by a common standard. 2. Commensurate; proportionate. 3. Mathematics. Exactly divisible by the same unit an integral number of times. Used of two quantities. [Late Latin commēnsūrābilis: Latin com-, com- + mēnsūrābilis, measurable (from mēsūrāre, to measure); see COMMENSURATE.] —com-men'su-ra-bil'i-ty n.

—com-men'su-ra-bly adv.

com-men-su-rate (kə-měn'sər-īt, -shər-) adj. 1. Of the same size, extent, or duration as another. 2. Corresponding in size or degree; proportionate: a salary commensurate with my performance. 3. Measurable by a common standard; com-measurable. [Late Latin commēnsūrātus: Latin com-, com- + mēnsūrātus, from past participle of mēnsūrāre, to measure (from Latin mēnsūra, measure); see MEASURE.] — com·men'su·rate·ly adv. — com·men'su·ra'tion n.

com·ment (kŏm'ĕnt) n. 1. a. A written note intended as an explanation, an illustration, or a criticism of a passage in a book or other writing; an annotation. b. A series of annotations or explanations. 2. a. A statement of fact or opinion, especially a remark that expresses a personal reaction or attitude. b. An implied conclusion or judgment: a novel that is a comment on contemporary lawlessness. 3. Talk; gossip: a divorce that caused much comment. 4. Computer Science. Text in a program that does not function in the program itself but is used by the programmer to explain instructions. — v. com·ment·ed, com·ment·ing, com·ments. — v. intr. 1. To make a comment; remark. 2. To serve as a judgmental commentary: "Her demise comments on [the Upper East Side's] entire way of life" (Mark Muro). — v. tr. To make comments on; annotate. [Middle English, from Late Latin commentum, interpretation, from Latin, contrivance, from neuter past participle of comminīscī, to devise. See men-¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: comment, observation, remark. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "an expression of fact, opinion, or explanation": made an unpleasant comment about my friend; a casual observation about the movie; an offensive personal remark.

com·men·tar·y (kŏm'ən-tĕr'ē) n. pl. com·men·tar·ies. Abbr. com. 1. A series of explanations or interpretations. 2. Often commentaries. An expository treatise or series of annotations; an exegesis. 3. An apt explanation or illustration: a scandal that is a sad commentary on national politics. 4. Often commentaries. A personal narrative; a memoir. — com'men·tar'i·al (-târ'ē-əl) adj.

com·men·tate (kŏm'ən-tāt') v. com·men·tat·ed, com·men·tat·ing, com·men·tates. — v. intr. To serve as commentator. — v. tr. Usage Problem. To make a running commentary on. [Back-formation from COMMENTATOR.]

USAGE NOTE: Commentate, in the sense "to make a running commentary on," as in she commentated the fashion show, was unacceptable to a majority of the Usage Panel in an earlier survey.

com·men·ta·tor (kŏm'ən-tā'tər) n. 1. A broadcaster or writer who reports and analyzes events in the news. 2. One who writes or delivers a commentary or commentaries.

com·merce (kŏm'ərs) n. 1. Abbr. com., comm. The buying and selling of goods, especially on a large scale, as between cities or nations. See Synonyms at business. 2. Intellectual exchange or social interaction. 3. Sexual intercourse.

[French, from Old French, from Latin commercium : com-, com- + merx, merc-, merchandise.]

Com·merce City (kɔ̃m'ərs sīt'ē) A city of north-central Colorado, an industrial suburb of Denver. Population, 16,466.

com·mer·cial (kə-mûr'shəl) adj. Abbr. com., coml., cml. 1. a. Of or relating to commerce: a commercial loan; a commercial attaché. b. Engaged in commerce: a commercial trucker. c. Involved in work that is intended for the mass market: a commercial artist. 2. Of, relating to, or being goods, often unrefined, produced and distributed in large quantities for use by industry. 3. Having profit as a chief aim: a commercial book, not a scholarly tome. 4. Sponsored by an advertiser or supported by advertising: commercial television. — n. An advertisement on television or radio. —com·mer'cial·ly adv.

commercial bank (kə-mûr'shəl bāŋk) n. A bank whose principal functions are to receive demand deposits and to make short-term loans.

com·mer·cial·ism (kə-mûr'shə-līz'əm) n. 1. The practices, methods, aims, and spirit of commerce or business. 2. An attitude that emphasizes tangible profit or success. —com·mer'cial·ist n. —com·mer'cial·is'tic adj.

com·mer·cial·ize (kə-mûr'shə-līz') v. tr. com·mer·cial·ized, com·mer·cial·iz·ing, com·mer·cial·iz·es. 1. To apply methods of business to for profit. 2. a. To do, exploit, or make chiefly for financial gain. b. To sacrifice the quality of for profit. —com·mer'cial·i·za'tion (-shə-lī-zā'shən) n.

commercial paper (kə-mûr'shəl pā'pər) n. Short-term, unsecured, discounted, and negotiable notes sold by one company to another in order to satisfy immediate cash needs.

commercial traveler (kə-mûr'shəl trāv'əl-ər) n. A traveling sales representative.

com·mie also Com·mie (kɔ̃m'ē) n. Informal. A Communist. [Short for COMMUNIST.]

com·mi·na·tion (kɔ̃m'ə-nā'shən) n. A formal denunciation. [Middle English comminacioun, from Latin comminātiō, comminātiōn-, from comminātus, past participle of commināri, to threaten : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + mināri, to threaten; see MENACE.] —com·min'a·to'ry (kə-mīn'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, kɔ̃m'ī-nə-) adj.

Com·mines (kô-mēn'), Philippe de. See Philippe de Comines.

com·min·gle (kə-mīŋg'gəl) v. com·min·gled, com·min·gling, com·min·gles. — v. intr. To become blended. — v. tr. To cause to blend together; mix.

com·mi·nute (kɔ̃m'ə-nōot', -nyōot') v. tr. com·mi·nut·ed, com·mi·nut·ing, com·mi·nutes. To reduce to powder; pulverize. [Latin comminuere, comminūt- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + minuere, to lessen; see mei-² in Appendix.] —com'mi·nu'tion n.

com-mis-er-ate (kə-mīz'ə-rāt') v. com-mis-er-at-ed, com-mis-er-at-ing, com-mis-er-ates. — v. tr. To feel or express sorrow or pity for; sympathize with. — v. intr. To feel or express sympathy: commiserated over their failure. [Latin commiserārī, commiserāt- : com-, com- + miserārī, to pity (from miser, wretched).] — com-mis'er-a'tive adj. — com-mis'er-a'tive-ly adv. — com-mis'er-a'tor n.

com-mis-er-a-tion (kə-mīz'ə-rā'shən) n. The feeling or expression of pity or sorrow. See Synonyms at pity.

com-mis-sar (kōm'i-sār') n. 1. a. An official of the Communist Party in charge of political indoctrination and the enforcement of party loyalty. b. The head of a commissariat in the Soviet Union until 1946. 2. A person who tries to control public opinion. [Russian komissar, from German Kommissar, deputy, from Medieval Latin commissārius, agent. See COMMISSARY.]

com-mis-sar-i-at (kōm'i-sâr'ē-īt) n. 1. A department of an army in charge of providing food and other supplies for the troops. 2. A food supply. 3. A major government department in the Soviet Union until 1946. [French, from Medieval Latin commissārius, agent; see COMMISSARY. Sense 3, from Russian komissariat from French commissariat.]

com-mis-sar-y (kōm'i-sēr'ē) n. pl. com-mis-sar-ies. 1. a. A supermarket for military personnel and their dependents, usually located on a military installation. b. A store where food and equipment are sold, as in a mining camp. 2. A lunchroom or cafeteria, especially one in a film or television studio. 3. A person to whom a special duty is given by a higher authority; a deputy. [Middle English commissarie, agent, from Medieval Latin commissārius, from Latin commissus, entrusted. See COMMISSION.]

com-mis-sion (kə-mīsh'ən) n. 1. a. The act of granting certain powers or the authority to carry out a particular task or duty. b. The authority so granted. c. The matter or task so authorized: Investigation of fraud was their commission. d. A document conferring such authorization. 2. a. Abbr. Com., com., comm. A group of people officially authorized to perform certain duties or functions: The Federal Trade Commission investigates false advertising. b. Often Commission. A ruling council within the Mafia that adjudicates family disputes and regulates family activities. 3. The act of committing or perpetrating: the commission of a crime. 4. A fee or percentage allowed to a sales representative or an agent for services rendered. 5. a. Abbr. Com., com., comm. An official document issued by a government, conferring on the recipient the rank of a commissioned officer in the armed forces. b. The rank and powers so conferred. — v. tr. com-mis-sioned, com-mis-sion-ing, com-mis-sions. 1. To grant a commission to. See Synonyms at authorize. 2. To place an order for: commissioned a new symphony for the festival. 3. To put (a ship) into active service. — idioms. in commission. 1. In active service. Used of a ship. 2. In use or in usable condition. on commission. With a sales commission serving as full or partial recompense for the work done: sells boats on commission. out of commission. 4. Not in active service. Used of a ship. 5. Not in use or in working condition. [Middle English commissioun, from Latin commissiō, commissiōn-, from commissus, past participle of committere, to entrust. See COMMIT.] —com-mis'sion-al adj.

com-mis-sion-aire (kə-mīsh'ə-nâr') n. Chiefly British. A uniformed attendant, such as a doorman. [French, from Medieval Latin commissiōnārius, from Latin commissiō, commissiōn-, commission. See COMMISSION.]

com-mis-sioned officer (kə-mīsh'ənd ô'fī-sər) n. An officer who holds a commission and ranks as a second lieutenant or above in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps, or as an ensign or above in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard.

com-mis-sion-er (kə-mīsh'ə-nər) n. Abbr. Com., com., Comr., comm. 1. A member of a commission. 2. A person authorized by a commission to perform certain duties. 3. A governmental official in charge of a department: a police commissioner. 4. Sports. An official selected by an athletic association or league to exercise administrative or regulatory powers over it: a baseball commissioner.

—com-mis'sion-er-ship' n.

commission merchant (kə-mīsh'ən mûr'chənt) n. One that buys and sells goods for others on a commission basis.

commission plan (kə-mīsh'ən plān) n. Municipal government in which legislative and administrative functions and powers are vested in an elected commission rather than in a mayor and city council.

com-mis-sure (kôm'ə-shōōr') n. 1. A line or place at which two things are joined. 2. Anatomy. a. A tract of nerve fibers passing from one side to the other of the spinal cord or brain. b. The point or surface where two parts, such as the eyelids, lips, or cardiac valves, join or form a connection. 3. Botany. The surface or place along which two structures, such as carpels, are joined. [Middle English, from Latin commissūra, from commissus, past participle of committere, to join. See COMMIT.] —com'mis-su'ral adj.

com-mis-sur-ot-o-my (kôm'ə-shōō-rôt'ə-mē) n. pl.

com-mis-sur-ot-o-mies. Surgical incision of a commissure in the body, as one made in the heart to relieve constriction of the mitral valve or one made in the brain to treat certain psychiatric disorders. [COMMISSUR(E) + -TOMY.]

com-mit (kə-mīt') v. com-mit-ted, com-mit-ting, com-mits. — v. tr. 1. To do, perform, or perpetrate: commit a murder. 2. To put in trust or charge; entrust. 3. To place officially in confinement or custody, as in a mental health facility. 4. To consign for future use or reference or for preservation: commit the verse to memory. 5. To put into a place to be kept safe or to be disposed of.

6. a. To make known the views of (oneself) on an issue: I never commit myself on such issues. b. To bind or obligate, as by a pledge: They were committed to follow orders. 7. To refer (a legislative bill, for example) to a committee. — v. intr. To pledge or obligate one's own self: felt that he was too young to commit fully to marriage. [Middle English committen, from Latin committere : com-, com- + mittere, to send.] —com·mit'ta·ble adj.

SYNONYMS: commit, consign, entrust, confide, relegate. These verbs mean to give over to another for a purpose such as care or safekeeping. Commit has the widest application and means to deliver to another to deal with: The general sent the troops committed to his charge into battle. The word can also refer to giving over for preservation or confinement: I committed the sonata to memory. The patient was committed to the hospital. To consign is to transfer to another's custody or charge: The owner consigned the paintings to a dealer for sale. Entrust and confide stress trust and confidence in another: The task was too important to be entrusted to a child. She confided her plans to her family. To relegate is to assign to a specific and especially an inferior category or position: Some scientists relegate parapsychology to the sphere of quackery.

com·mit·ment (kə-mīt'mənt) n. 1. The act or an instance of committing, especially: a. The act of referring a legislative bill to committee. b. Official consignment, as to a prison or mental health facility. c. A court order authorizing consignment to a prison. 2. a. A pledge to do. b. Something pledged, especially an engagement by contract involving financial obligation. 3. The state of being bound emotionally or intellectually to a course of action or to another person or persons: a deep commitment to liberal policies; a profound commitment to the family.

com·mit·tal (kə-mīt'tl) n. 1. The act of entrusting: committal of the property to an attorney. 2. The act or an instance of committing to confinement. 3. The act of pledging oneself to a particular view or position: articulated her strong committal to world peace.

com·mit·tee (kə-mīt'tē) n. Abbr. com., Com., comm., Comm. 1. A group of people officially delegated to perform a function, such as investigating, considering, reporting, or acting on a matter. See Usage Note at collective noun. 2. Archaic. A person to whom a trust or charge is committed. [From Middle English committe, trustee, from Anglo-Norman comité, past participle of cometre, to commit, from Latin committere. See COMMIT.]

com·mit·tee·man (kə-mīt'tē-mən, -männ') n. 1. A man who is a member of a committee. 2. A man who is a party leader of a ward or precinct.

committee of the whole (kə-mīt'tē ūv thē hōl) n. The whole membership of a legislative body sitting as a committee to consider the details of a proposal.

com·mit·tee·wom·an (kə-mīt'tē-wōm'ən) n. 1. A woman who is a member of a committee. 2. A woman who is a party leader of a ward or precinct.

com-mix (kə-mīks', kō-) v. com-mixed, com-mix-ing, com-mix-es. — v. intr. To be or become mixed. — v. tr. To cause to mix. [From Middle English commixt, mixed together, from Latin commixtus, past participle of commiscere, to mix together : com-, com- + miscere, to mix; see meik- in Appendix.]

com-mix-ure (kə-mīks'chər, kō-) n. 1. The act or process of mixing. 2. The result of mixing; a mixture.

com-mode (kə-mōd') n. 1. A low cabinet or chest of drawers, often elaborately decorated and usually standing on legs or short feet. 2. a. A movable stand or cupboard containing a washbowl. b. A chair enclosing a chamber pot. c. A toilet. 3. A woman's ornate headdress, fashionable around 1700. [French, from commode, convenient, from Latin commodus. See COMMODIOUS.]

com-mo-di-ous (kə-mō'dē-əs) adj. 1. Spacious; roomy. See Synonyms at spacious. 2. Archaic. Suitable; handy. [Middle English, convenient, from Medieval Latin commodiōsus, from Latin commodus : com-, com- + modus, measure; see med- in Appendix.] — com-mo'di-ous-ly adv. — com-mo'di-ous-ness n.

com-mod-i-ty (kə-mōd'i-tē) n. pl. com-mod-i-ties. 1. Something useful that can be turned to commercial or other advantage. 2. An article of trade or commerce, especially an agricultural or mining product, that can be transported. 3. Advantage; benefit. 4. Obsolete. A quantity; lot. [Middle English commodite, from Old French, convenience, from Latin commoditās, from commodus, convenient. See COMMODIOUS.]

com-mo-dore (kōm'ə-dōr', -dōr') n. Abbr. Com. 1. a. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy that is above captain and below rear admiral. This rank, abolished in 1899, was restored temporarily during World War II and is currently in use as the lowest grade of admiral. b. One who holds this rank. 2. Used as an unofficial designation for a captain in the British Navy temporarily in command of a fleet division or squadron. 3. a. The senior captain of a naval squadron or merchant fleet. b. The presiding officer of a yacht club. [Obsolete commandore, probably from Dutch komandeur, commander, from French commandeur, from Old French, from comander, to command. See COMMAND.]

Com-mo-dus (kōm'ə-dəs), Lucius Aelius Aurelius. A.D. 161-192. Emperor of Rome (180-192) who ruled in a cruel and violent manner. He was murdered in a conspiracy led by his mistress.

com-mon (kōm'ən) adj. com-mon-er, com-mon-est. Abbr. com.

1. a. Belonging equally to or shared equally by two or more; joint: common interests. b. Of or relating to the community as a whole; public: for the common good. See Usage Note at mutual. 2. Widespread; prevalent. 3. a. Occurring frequently or habitually; usual. b. Most widely known; ordinary: the common housefly. 4. Having no special designation, status, or rank: a common sailor. 5. a. Not distinguished by superior or noteworthy characteristics; average: the common spectator. b. Of no special quality; standard: common procedure. c. Of mediocre or inferior quality; second-rate: common cloth. 6. Unrefined or coarse in manner; vulgar: behavior that branded him as common. 7. Grammar. a. Either masculine or feminine in gender. b. Representing one or all of the members of a class; not designating a unique entity. — n. Abbr. com. 1. commons. The common people; commonalty. 2. commons. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). a. The political class composed of commoners. b. The parliamentary representatives of this class. 3. Often Commons. See House of Commons. 4. A tract of land, usually in a centrally located spot, belonging to or used by a community as a whole: a band concert on the village common. 5. The legal right of a person to use the lands or waters of another, as for fishing. 6. commons. (used with a sing. verb). A building or hall for dining, typically at a university or college. 7. Common stock. 8. Ecclesiastical. A service used for a particular class of festivals. — idiom. in common. Equally with or by all. [Middle English commune, from Old French, from Latin commūnis. See mei¹ in Appendix.] — com/-mon-ly adv. — com'mon-ness n.

SYNONYMS: common, ordinary, familiar, vulgar. These adjectives describe what is generally known or frequently encountered. Common applies to what is customary, takes place often, is widely used, or is well known: a common problem; a common thief; the common dandelion. The term also suggests lack of distinction and can imply coarseness or crudeness: drank wine of the commonest sort; had a very common look about him. Ordinary describes what is of the usual kind and is not distinguished in any way from others. In the latter sense it is sometimes derogatory: A ballpoint pen is adequate for most ordinary purposes. The violinist gave a very ordinary performance marked by an occasional memory lapse. Familiar applies to what is well known or quickly recognized through frequent occurrence or regular association: a nursery rhyme familiar to most children; sang all the old familiar songs. Vulgar describes what is associated with the great mass of people: “He [Shakespeare] was not something sacred and aloof from the vulgar herd of men” (William Hazlitt). The word usually connotes the lack of refinement of common: Slurping soup directly from the bowl is vulgar. See also Synonyms at general

com-mon-age (kŏm'ə-nij) n. 1. The right to pasture animals on common land. 2. The state of being held in common.

com-mon-al-i-ty (kŏm'ə-nəl'i-tē) n. pl. com-mon-al-i-ties. 1. The possession, along with another or others, of a certain attribute or set of attributes: “First there needs to be an acknowledgment of some degree of commonality, mutuality, responsibility and opportunity with respect to fellow blacks” (H. Naylor Fitzhugh). 2. See commonalty (n., sense 1).

com-mon-al-ty (kŏm'ə-nəl-tē) n. pl. com-mon-al-ties. 1. The common people as opposed to the upper classes. Also called commonality 2. A body corporate;

a corporation. 3. An entire group: the commonalty of laypeople. [Middle English communalte, from Old French comunalte, from Medieval Latin commūnālītās, from Late Latin commūnālis, of the community. See COMMUNAL.]

common bile duct (kŏm'ən bīl dükt) n. The duct formed by the union of the cystic duct and the hepatic duct that carries bile from the liver and the gall-bladder to the duodenum.

common carrier (kŏm'ən kār'ē-ər) n. 1. One that is in the business of transporting the public, goods, or messages for a fee. 2. A company that provides telecommunications services, as by telephone or satellite, to the public.

common cold (kŏm'ən kŏld) n. See cold (n., sense 3).

common denominator (kŏm'ən dī-nŏm'ə-nā'tər) n. 1. Mathematics. A quantity into which all the denominators of a set of fractions may be divided without a remainder. 2. A commonly shared theme or trait.

common divisor (kŏm'ən dī-vī'zər) n. Mathematics. A quantity that is a factor of two or more quantities. Also called common measure com-mon-er (kŏm'ə-nər) n. 1. One of the common people. 2. A person without noble rank or title.

Com-mon Era (kŏm'ən ĩr'ə) n. Abbr. C.E. The period coinciding with the Christian era.

common fraction (kŏm'ən frāk'shən) n. Mathematics. A fraction having an integer as a numerator and an integer as a denominator.

common gender (kŏm'ən jən'dər) n. 1. Grammar. In Modern English, the gender of those nouns that apply to either sex, as spouse, parent, or mouse.

2. Linguistics. In some languages, the gender of those nouns that may be either masculine or feminine but not neuter, as Latin parēns, “parent,” or bŏs, “ox, cow.”

3. Linguistics. In some languages, the gender of those nouns belonging to the single gender derived from the earlier masculine and feminine genders and separate from the neuter gender, as in Hittite or modern Danish.

common ground (kŏm'ən ground) n. A foundation for mutual understanding: “The leaders failed to find common ground on the defensive side of this possible bargain” (McGeorge Bundy).

common law (kŏm'ən lô) n. Abbr. c.l. Law. The system of laws originated and developed in England and based on court decisions, on the doctrines implicit in those decisions, and on customs and usages rather than on codified written laws.

com-mon-law marriage (kŏm'ən-lŏ' mār'ij) n. A marriage existing by mutual agreement between a man and a woman, or by the fact of their cohabitation, without a civil or religious ceremony.

common logarithm (kŏm'ən lô'gə-rĩth'əm) n. Mathematics. A logarithm to the base 10, especially as distinguished from a natural logarithm.

common market or Common Market (kɒm'ən mɑːr'kɪt) n. Abbr. CM An economic unit, typically formed of nations, intended to eliminate or markedly reduce trade barriers among its members.

Common Market (kɒm'ən mɑːr'kɪt) Officially Eu-ro-pe-an Economic Community (yʊər'ə-pē'ən). An economic union established in 1958 to reduce tariff barriers and promote trade and cooperation among the countries of western Europe. The original members—Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, France, Italy, and West Germany—were joined by Ireland, Great Britain, and Denmark in 1973, by Greece in 1981, and by Spain and Portugal in 1986.

common measure (kɒm'ən mɛzh'ɛr) n. 1. Music. See common time.

2. Mathematics. See common divisor. 3. A ballad stanza form in iambic meter, often rhyming in alternating pairs, that is typical of many church hymns. In this sense, also called hymnal stanza common multiple (kɒm'ən mʌl'tə-pəl) n. Mathematics. A quantity into which each of two or more other quantities may be divided with zero remainder: The quantities 6, 12, and 24 are common multiples of 2 and 3.

common noun (kɒm'ən noun) n. Grammar. A noun, such as book or dog, that can be preceded by the definite article and that represents one or all of the members of a class.

com-mon-place (kɒm'ən-plās') adj. Having no remarkable features, characteristics, or traits; ordinary. — n. 1. a. A trite or obvious remark; a platitude: “the solidified commonplaces of established wisdom” (John Simon). See Synonyms at cliché. b. Something that is ordinary or common. 2. Archaic. A passage marked for reference or entered in a commonplace book. [Translation of Latin locus commūnis, generally applicable literary passage, translation of Greek koinos topos.]

commonplace book (kɒm'ən-plās' bʊk) n. A personal journal in which quotable passages, literary excerpts, and comments are written.

common pleas (kɒm'ən plēz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Law. In some states of the United States, a court of common pleas.

common room (kɒm'ən rʊm) n. 1. A faculty lounge in a college or university. 2. A lounge for use by all members of a residential institution or community.

common salt (kɒm'ən sɔlt) n. 1. See salt (n., sense 1). 2. Sodium chloride.

common school (kɒm'ən skʊl) n. A public elementary school.

com-mon-sense (kɒm'ən-sɛns') adj. Having or exhibiting native good judgment: “commonsense scholarship on the foibles and oversights of a genius” (Times Literary Supplement). — com'mon-sen/si-ble adj. — com'mon-sen/si-bly adv.

common sense (kɒm'ən sɛns) n. Native good judgment. [Translation of Latin sēnsus commūnis, common feelings of humanity.]

com-mon-si-tus pick-et-ing (kǒm'ən-sī'təs pĭk'ĭ-tĭng) also com-mon-site picketing (kǒm'ən-sīt') n. Picketing by a labor union of an entire construction project as a result of a grievance held against a single subcontractor on the project, a tactic that can result in a shutdown of the project. [Latin situs, site. See SITE.]

common stock (kǒm'ən stǒk) n. Ordinary capital shares of a corporation that have exclusive residual claim on the net assets and net income of the corporation after all prior claims have been paid.

common time (kǒm'ən tĭm) n. Music. A meter with four quarter notes to the measure. Also called common measure common touch (kǒm'ən tŭch) n. The ability to appeal to the interests and sensibilities of the ordinary person: “an effective administrator and also an effective leader, with a common touch” (Christian Science Monitor).

com-mon-weal (kǒm'ən-wēl') n. 1. The public good or welfare. 2. Archaic. A commonwealth or republic.

com-mon-wealth (kǒm'ən-wēlth') n. 1. The people of a nation or state; the body politic. 2. Abbr. comm. A nation or state governed by the people; a republic. 3. Commonwealth. a. Used to refer to some U.S. states, namely, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. b. Used to refer to a self-governing, autonomous political unit voluntarily associated with the United States, namely, Puerto Rico and the Northern Mariana Islands. 4. Often Commonwealth. The Commonwealth of Nations. 5. The English state and government from the death of Charles I in 1649 to the restoration of the monarchy in 1660, including the Protectorate of 1653 to 1659. 6. Archaic. The public good; commonweal.

Commonwealth of Independent States (kǒm'ən-wēlth' ũv ĩn'dĭ-pĕn'dənt stāts) Abbr. C.I.S. A federation of self-governing states in eastern Europe, Asia Minor, and central Asia. Founded in 1991, it includes most of the constituent republics of the former Soviet Union.

Commonwealth of Na-tions (kǒm'ən-wēlth' ũv nā'shənz) also Brit-ish Commonwealth (brĭt'ĭsh) An association comprising the United Kingdom, its dependencies, and many former British colonies that are now sovereign states with a common allegiance to the British Crown. It was formally established by the Statute of Westminster in 1931.

common wormwood (kǒm'ən wŭrm'wŏd') n. See absinthe (n., sense 1).

com-mo-tion (kə-mŏ'shən) n. 1. A condition of turbulent motion. 2. a. An agitated disturbance; a hubbub: heard a commotion in the hall. b. Civil disturbance or insurrection; disorder. [Middle English commocioun, from Old French commotion, from Latin commōtiō, commōtiōn-, from commōtus, past participle of commovĕre, to disturb : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + movĕre, to move; see meu- in Appendix.]

com·move (kə-mōv'v) v. tr. com·moved, com·mov·ing, com·moves. To agitate; disturb. [Middle English commeven, from Old French commouvoir, com-mouv-, from Latin commovēre. See COMMOTION.]

com·mu·nal (kə-myōō'nəl, kōm'yə-) adj. 1. Of or relating to a commune. 2. Of or relating to a community. 3. a. Of, belonging to, or shared by the people of a community; public. b. Marked by collective ownership and control of goods and property. [French, from Late Latin commūnālis, from Latin commūnis, common. See COMMON.] —com'mu·nal/i·ty (kōm'yə-nāl'ī-tē) n.
—com·mu'nal·ly adv.

com·mu·nal·ism (kə-myōō'nə-līz'əm, kōm'yə-nə-) n. 1. Belief in or practice of communal ownership, as of goods and property. 2. Strong devotion to the interests of one's own minority or ethnic group rather than those of society as a whole.

com·mu·nal·ist (kə-myōō'nə-līst) n. 1. An advocate of communal living. 2. One who is more interested in one's own minority or ethnic group than in society as a whole. 3. One who is deeply concerned about the quality of community life. —com·mu'nal·is'tic adj.

com·mu·nal·ize (kə-myōō'nə-līz', kōm'yə-nə-) v. tr. com·mu·nal·ized, com·mu·nal·iz·ing, com·mu·nal·iz·es. To convert into communal property.

Com·mu·nard (kōm'yə-nārd') n. 1. A member or advocate of the Commune of Paris of 1871. 2. comunard. One who lives in a commune. [French, from commune, commune. See COMMUNE².]

com·mune¹ (kə-myōōn') v. intr. com·muned, com·mun·ing, com·munes. 1. To be in a state of intimate, heightened sensitivity and receptivity, as with one's surroundings: hikers communing with nature. 2. To receive the Eucharist. [Middle English communen, from Old French communier (from Latin commūnicāre); see COMMUNICATE, and from Old French communier, to share (from commun, common); see COMMON.]

com·mune² (kōm'yōōn', kə-myōōn') n. Abbr. com. 1. a. A relatively small, often rural community whose members share common interests, work, and income and often own property collectively. b. The people in such a community. 2. The smallest local political division of various European countries, governed by a mayor and municipal council. 3. a. A local community organized with a government for promoting local interests. b. A municipal corporation in the Middle Ages. [French, independent municipality, from Old French comugne, from Medieval Latin commūnia, community, from neuter of Latin commūnis, common. See mei¹ in Appendix.]

com·mu·ni·ca·ble (kə-myōō'nī-kə-bəl) adj. 1. Transmittable between persons or species; contagious: communicable diseases. 2. Readily communicated: communicable ideas. 3. Talkative. —com·mu'ni·ca·bil/i·ty, com·mu'ni·ca·ble·ness n. —com·mu'ni·ca·bly adv.

com·mu·ni·cant (kə-myōō'ni-kənt) n. 1. A person who receives or is entitled to receive Communion. 2. A person, especially an informant, who communicates something. —com·mu'ni·cant adj.

com·mu·ni·cate (kə-myōō'ni-kāt') v. com·mu·ni·cat·ed, com·mu·ni·cat·ing, com·mu·ni·cates. — v. tr. 1. a. To convey information about; make known; impart: communicated the new data to our office. b. To reveal clearly; manifest: "Music... can name the unnamable and communicate the unknowable" (Leonard Bernstein). 2. To spread (a disease, for example) to others; transmit: a carrier who communicated typhus. — v. intr. 1. To have an interchange, as of ideas. 2. To express oneself in such a way that one is readily and clearly understood: "That ability to communicate was strange in a man given to long, awkward silences" (Anthony Lewis). 3. To receive Communion. 4. To be connected, one with another: apartments that communicate. [Latin commūnicāre, commūnicāt-, from commūnis, common. See mei¹ in Appendix.]

—com·mu'ni·ca'tor n.

com·mu·ni·ca·tion (kə-myōō'ni-kā'shən) n. Abbr. com., comm. 1. The act of communicating; transmission. 2. a. The exchange of thoughts, messages, or information, as by speech, signals, writing, or behavior. b. Interpersonal rapport. c. communications. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The art and technique of using words effectively and with grace in imparting one's ideas. 3. Something communicated; a message. 4. communications. A means of communicating, especially: a. A system, such as mail, telephone, or television, for sending and receiving messages. b. A network of routes for sending messages and transporting troops and supplies. 5. communications. The technology employed in transmitting messages. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: communication systems; communication technology; communications equipment; communications interface. —com·mu'ni·ca'tion·al adj.

com·mu·ni·ca·tions satellite (kə-myōō'ni-kā'shənz sāt'l-īt') n. An artificial satellite used to aid telecommunications, as by reflecting or relaying a radio signal.

com·mu·ni·ca·tive (kə-myōō'ni-kā'tiv, -kə-tiv) adj. 1. Inclined to communicate readily; talkative. 2. Of or relating to communication. —com·mu'ni·ca'tive·ly adv. —com·mu'ni·ca'tive·ness n.

com·mun·ion (kə-myōōn'jən) n. 1. The act or an instance of sharing, as of thoughts or feelings. 2. Religious or spiritual fellowship. 3. A body of Christians with a common religious faith who practice the same rites; a denomination. 4. Communion. a. The sacrament of the Eucharist received by a congregation. b. The consecrated elements of the Eucharist. c. The part of the Mass or a liturgy in which the Eucharist is received. [Middle English communioun, Christian fellowship, Eucharist, from Old French communion, from Late Latin commūnio, commūniōn-, from Latin, mutual participation, from commūnis, common. See COMMON.]

com·mu·ni·qué (kə-myōō' nī-kā', -myōō' nī-kā') n. An official announcement. [French, past participle of communiquer, to announce, from Latin commūnicāre, to communicate. See COMMUNICATE.]

com·mu·nism (kōm'yə-nīz'əm) n. 1. A theoretical economic system characterized by the collective ownership of property and by the organization of labor for the common advantage of all members. 2. Communism. a. A system of government in which the state plans and controls the economy and a single, often authoritarian party holds power, claiming to make progress toward a higher social order in which all goods are equally shared by the people. b. The Marxist-Leninist version of Communist doctrine that advocates the overthrow of capitalism by the revolution of the proletariat. [French communisme, from commun, common, from Old French, from Latin commūnis. See COMMUNE².]

Communism Peak (kōm'yə-nīz'əm pēk) also, Mount. Communism.. A mountain, 7,500 m (24,590 ft) high, of the northeast Tadzhikistan in the Pamirs near the Chinese border. It is the highest elevation in the country.

Com·mu·nist (kōm'yə-nīst) n. Abbr. Com. 1. a. A member of a Marxist-Leninist party. b. A supporter of such a party or movement. 2. A Communist. 3. Often communist. A radical viewed as a subversive or revolutionary. — adj. Abbr. Com. 1. Often communist. Relating to, characteristic of, or held to resemble communism or Communists. 2. communist. Supporting, advocating, or serving to further communism: communist propaganda.

com·mu·nis·tic (kōm'yə-nīs'tīk) adj. Of, characteristic of, or inclined to communism. — com'mu·nis'ti·cal·ly adv.

com·mu·ni·tar·i·an (kə-myōō' nī-tār'ē-ən) n. A member or supporter of a small cooperative or a collectivist community.

com·mu·ni·ty (kə-myōō' nī-tē) n. pl. com·mu·ni·ties. Abbr. com. 1. a. A group of people living in the same locality and under the same government. b. The district or locality in which such a group lives. 2. A group of people having common interests: the scientific community; the international business community. 3. a. Similarity or identity: a community of interests. b. Sharing, participation, and fellowship. 4. Society as a whole; the public. 5. Ecology. a. A group of plants and animals living and interacting with one another in a specific region under relatively similar environmental conditions. b. The region occupied by a group of interacting organisms. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: community problems; community facilities. [Middle English communitē, citizenry, from Old French, from Latin commūnitās, fellowship, from commūnis, common. See COMMON.] community antenna television (kə-myōō' nī-tē ăn-tēn' ə tēl' ə-vīzh' ən) n. Abbr. CATV See cable television.

community center (kə-myōō'nĭ-tē sĕn'tər) n. A meeting place used by members of a community for social, cultural, or recreational purposes.

community chest (kə-myōō'nĭ-tē chĕst) n. A fund financed by private contributions for aiding various charitable organizations and welfare agencies.

community college (kə-myōō'nĭ-tē kŏl'ij) n. A junior college without residential facilities that is often funded by the government.

community medicine (kə-myōō'nĭ-tē mĕd'ĭ-sĭn) n. Public health services emphasizing preventive medicine and epidemiology for members of a given community or region.

community property (kə-myōō'nĭ-tē prŏp'ər-tē) n. Property owned jointly by spouses.

com·mu·nize (kŏm'yə-nĭz') v. tr. com·mu·nized, com·mu·niz·ing, com·mu·niz·es. 1. To subject to public ownership or control. 2. To convert to Communist principles or control. —com'mu·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

com·mut·a·ble (kə-myōō'tə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be substituted, interchanged, or revoked: a commutable prison sentence. 2. Accessible to commuters: "Seattle's next most commutable island is Vashon" (Islands).

—com·mut'a·bil'i·ty n.

com·mu·tate (kŏm'yə-tāt') v. tr. com·mu·tat·ed, com·mu·tat·ing, com·mu·tates. To reverse the direction of (an alternating electric current) each half-cycle to produce a unidirectional current. [Back-formation from COMMUTATOR.]

com·mu·ta·tion (kŏm'yə-tā'shən) n. 1. A substitution, an exchange, or an interchange. 2. a. The substitution of one kind of payment for another. b. The payment substituted. 3. The travel of a commuter. 4. Electricity. a. Conversion of alternating to unidirectional current. b. Reversal of current direction. 5. Law. Reduction of a penalty to a less severe one. [Middle English commutacioun, from Latin commūtātiō, commūtātiōn-, from commūtātus, past participle of commūtāre, to alter, exchange. See COMMUTE.]

commutation ticket (kŏm'yə-tā'shən tik'ĭt) n. A ticket issued at a reduced rate by a railroad or other transportation company for passage over a given route for a specified number of trips.

com·mu·ta·tive (kŏm'yə-tā'tĭv, kə-myōō'tə-tĭv) adj. 1. Relating to, involving, or characterized by substitution, interchange, or exchange. 2. Independent of order. Used of a logical or mathematical operation that combines objects or sets of objects two at a time. If $a \times b = b \times a$, the operation indicated by \times is commutative. —com·mu'ta·tiv'i·ty (kə-myōō'tə-tĭv'ĭ-tē) n.

commutative group (kŏm'yə-tā'tĭv grŏop) n. A mathematical group in which the result of multiplying one member by another is independent of the order of multiplication. Also called Abelian group

com-mu-ta-tor (kǒm'yə-tā'tər) n. A cylindrical arrangement of insulated metal bars connected to the coils of a direct-current electric motor or generator, providing a unidirectional current from the generator or a reversal of current into the coils of the motor.

com-mute (kə-myōōt') v. com-mut-ed, com-mut-ing, com-mutes. — v. intr. 1. To travel as a commuter. 2. a. To make substitution or exchange. b. To serve as a substitute. 3. To pay in gross, usually at a reduced rate, rather than in individual payments. 4. Logic & Mathematics. To satisfy or engage in a commutative operation. — v. tr. 1. To substitute (one thing for another); exchange. 2. To change (a penalty, debt, or payment) to a less severe one. — n. An act or instance of commuting, especially the trip made by a commuter: a 22-mile commute; an easy commute. [Middle English commuten, to transform, from Latin commūtāre: com-, com- + mūtāre, to change; see mei-¹ in Appendix.]

com-mut-er (kə-myōō'tər) n. One that travels regularly from one place to another, as from suburb to city and back.

Com-mynes (kô-mēn'), Philippe de. See Philippe de Comines.

Co-mo (kō'mō) A resort city of northern Italy near the Swiss border at the southwest end of Lake Como. The city was a Roman colony and became an independent commune in the 11th century. Population, 95,183.

co-mon-o-mer (kō-mŏn'ə-mər) n. Chemistry. One of the compounds that constitute a copolymer.

Com-o-rin (kǒm'ər-ĭn), Cape. A cape at the southernmost point of India projecting into the Indian Ocean.

Com-o-ros (kǒm'ə-rōz') A country comprising the three main islands and numerous islets of the Comoro Islands in the Indian Ocean off southeast Africa between Mozambique and Madagascar. The islands declared their independence from France in 1975, although Mayotte, the largest of the group, voted to retain its status as a French territory. Moroni, on Grande Comoro Island, is the capital of the country. Population, 346,992.

co-mose (kō'mōs') adj. Botany. Having a coma; comate.

comp¹ (kǒmp) v. intr. comped, comp-ing, comps. Music. To play a jazz accompaniment, as on a piano or guitar. [Short for ACCOMPANY.]

comp² (kǒmp) n. Informal. Something, such as a theater ticket or a book, given free of charge. [Short for COMPLIMENTARY.]

comp. abbr. 1. Companion. 2. Comparative. 3. Compensation.

4. a. Compilation; compiler. b. Compiled. 5. Complete. 6. Compose; composer. 7. Composite; composition; compositor. 8. Compound.

9. Comprehensive. 10. Comprising.

com-pact¹ (kəm-päkt', kǒm-, kǒm'päkt') adj. 1. Closely and firmly united or packed together; dense: compact clusters of flowers. 2. Occupying little space compared with others of its type: a compact camera; a compact car. 3. Brief and to the point; concise: a compact narration. 4. Marked by or having a short, solid physique: a wrestler of compact build. — v. com·pact·ed, com·pact·ing, com·pacts (kəm-päkt'). — v. tr. 1. To press or join firmly together: a kitchen device that compacted the trash. 2. a. To make by pressing or joining together; compose. b. To consolidate; combine. — v. intr. To be capable of being pressed tightly together or to become so pressed: garbage that compacts easily.

— n. (köm'päkt') 1. A small case containing a mirror, pressed powder, and a powder puff. 2. An automobile that is bigger in size than a subcompact but smaller than an intermediate. [Middle English, from Latin compāctus, past participle of compingere, to put together : com-, com- + pangere, to fasten; see pag- in Appendix.] — com·pact'ly adv. — com·pact'ness n.

com·pact² (köm'päkt') n. An agreement or a covenant. See Synonyms at bar·gain. [Latin compactum, neuter past participle of compacisci, to make an agreement : com-, com- + pacisci, to agree; see PACT.]

com·pact disk (köm'päkt' dīsk) or compact disc n. Abbr. CD A small optical disk on which matter such as data or music is encoded.

com·pact·er (kəm-päkt'tər, köm'päkt'-) n. Variant of compactor.

com·pac·tion (kəm-päkt'shən) n. The process of compacting or the state of being compacted.

com·pac·tor or com·pact·er (kəm-päkt'tər, köm'päkt'-) n. An apparatus that compresses refuse into relatively small packs for handy disposal.

com·pan·ion¹ (kəm-pän'yən) n. 1. A person who accompanies or associates with another; a comrade. 2. Abbr. C., comp. A person employed to assist, live with, or travel with another. 3. One of a pair or set of things; a mate. — v. tr. com·pan·ioned, com·pan·ion·ing, com·pan·ions. To be a companion to; accompany. [Middle English compaignyon, from Old French compaignon, from Vulgar Latin compāniō*, compāniōn- : Latin com-, com- + Latin pānis, bread; see pā- in Appendix.]

com·pan·ion² (kəm-pän'yən) n. Nautical. A companionway.

com·pan·ion·a·ble (kəm-pän'yə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Having the qualities of a good companion; friendly. See Synonyms at social. 2. Suggestive of companionship: reading together in companionable silence. — com·pan'ion·a·ble·ness n. — com·pan'ion·a·bly adv.

com·pan·ion·ate (kəm-pän'yə-nīt) adj. 1. Having the qualities of a companion. 2. Harmonious; suitable.

companionate marriage (kəm-pän'yə-nīt mār'ij) n. A marriage in which the partners agree not to have children and may divorce by mutual consent, with neither partner responsible for the financial welfare of the other.

companion cell (kəm-pän'yən səl) n. A specialized parenchyma cell, located in the phloem of flowering plants and closely associated in development and function with a sieve-tube element.

companion plant-ing (kəm-pän/'yən plän/'tɪŋ) n. The cultivation of certain kinds of plants together in the same area, especially if one species will benefit from another, as planting an insect-repellent plant in a vegetable garden.

com-pan-ion-ship (kəm-pän/'yən-shɪp') n. The relationship of companions; fellowship.

com-pan-ion-way (kəm-pän/'yən-wā') n. Nautical. A staircase leading from a deck to the cabins or area below. [From companion, framed windows above a hatchway, companionway, probably alteration of obsolete Dutch kompanje, from Old French compagne, steward's cabin, storeroom, from Old Italian (camera della) compagna, (cabin for) provisions, pantry, from Vulgar Latin compānia*, things eaten with bread : Latin com-, com- + Latin pānis, bread; see COMPANION¹.]

com-pa-ny (kŭm/'pə-nē) n. pl. com-pa-nies. 1. A group of persons. See Synonyms at band². 2. a. One's companions or associates: moved in fast company; is known by the company she keeps. b. A guest or guests: had company for the weekend. c. The state of friendly companionship; fellowship: was grateful for her company; friends who finally parted company. 3. a. A business enterprise; a firm. b. Abbr. co., co, Co. A partner or partners not specifically named in a firm's title: Lee Rogers and Company. 4. A troupe of dramatic or musical performers: a repertory company. 5. a. A subdivision of a military regiment or battalion that constitutes the lowest administrative unit. It is usually under the command of a captain and is made up of at least two platoons. b. A unit of firefighters. 6. A ship's crew and officers. See Usage Note at collective noun. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: company policy; a company newsletter. — v. tr. com-pa-nied, com-pa-ny-ing, com-pa-nies. To accompany or associate with. [Middle English compainie, from Old French compaignie, from Vulgar Latin compānia*, from compāniō*, companion. See COMPANION¹.]

com-pa-ny-grade officer (kŭm/'pə-nē-grād' ô/'fi-sər) n. A commissioned officer having the rank of second lieutenant, first lieutenant, or captain in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps. Also called company officer company town (kŭm/'pə-nē toun) n. A town whose residents are dependent on the economic support of a single firm for maintenance of retail stores, schools, hospitals, and housing.

compar. abbr. Comparative.

com-pa-ra-ble (kŏm/'pər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. Admitting of comparison with another or others: "The satellite revolution is comparable to Gutenberg's invention of movable type" (Irvin Molotsky). 2. Similar or equivalent: pianists of comparable ability. — com/'pa-ra-bil/'i-ty, com/'pa-ra-ble-ness n. — com/'pa-ra-bly adv.

comparable worth (kŏm/'pər-ə-bəl wŭrth) n. A theory holding that compensation for job classifications filled chiefly by women should be the same as for those classifications filled chiefly by men if the jobs, albeit dissimilar, are regarded as having equal value. According to this theory, workers' salaries should be calculated on a scale of socioeconomic value that transcends traditional supply and demand.

com·par·a·tist (kəm-pär'ə-tĭst) n. A person who employs the comparative method, as in studying literature. [French comparatiste, from comparative, comparative, from comparer, to compare. See COMPARE.]

com·par·a·tive (kəm-pär'ə-tĭv) adj. Abbr. comp., compar. 1. Relating to, based on, or involving comparison. 2. Estimated by comparison; relative: a comparative newcomer. 3. Grammar. Of, relating to, or being the intermediate degree of comparison of adjectives, as better, sweeter, or more wonderful, or adverbs, as more softly. 4. Linguistics. a. Of or relating to the synchronic typological comparison of languages. b. Of or relating to the comparison of languages descended from a common ancestor: comparative historical linguistics. — n. Grammar. 1. The comparative degree. 2. An adjective or adverb expressing the comparative degree. — com·par'ative·ly adv.

comparative method (kəm-pär'ə-tĭv mĕth'əd) n. Linguistics.

1. Comparison of languages with the goal of establishing their descent from a common ancestor. 2. Comparison of phonemes, morphemes, words, or syntactic constructions in genetically related languages with the goal of reconstructing the sound system, grammar, or lexicon of the protolanguage.

com·pa·ra·tor (kۆm'pə-rā'tər, kəm-pär'ə-) n. Any of various instruments for comparing a measured property of an object, such as its shape, color, or brightness, with a standard.

com·pare (kəm-pär') v. com·pared, com·par·ing, com·pares. — v. tr.

1. To consider or describe as similar, equal, or analogous; liken. 2. Abbr. cp. To examine in order to note the similarities or differences of. 3. Grammar. To form the positive, comparative, or superlative degree of (an adjective or adverb). — v. intr. 1. To be worthy of comparison; bear comparison: two concert halls that just do not compare. 2. To draw comparisons. — n. Comparison: a musician beyond compare. — idiom. compare notes. To exchange ideas, views, or opinions. [Middle English comparen, from Old French comparer, from Latin comparāre, from compār, equal : com-, com- + pār, equal; see perə⁻² in Appendix.] — com·par'er n.

USAGE NOTE: Compare usually takes the preposition to when it refers to the activity of describing the resemblances between unlike things: He compared her to a summer day. Scientists sometimes compare the human brain to a computer. It takes with when it refers to the act of examining two like things in order to discern their similarities or differences: The police compared the forged signature with the original. The committee will have to compare the Senate's version of the bill with the version that was passed by the House. When compare is used to mean “to liken (one) with another,” with is traditionally held to be the correct form: That little bauble is not to be compared with (not to) this enormous jewel. But to is frequently used in this context and is not incorrect.

com·par·i·son (kəm-pär'ī-sən) n. 1. a. The act of comparing or the process of being compared. b. A statement or estimate of similarities and differences. 2. The quality of being similar or equivalent; likeness: no comparison between the two books. 3. Grammar. The modification or inflection of an adjective or adverb to denote the positive, comparative, and superlative degrees. [Middle English comparisoun, from Old French comparaison, from Latin comparātiō, comparātiōn-, from comparātus, past participle of comparāre, to compare. See COMPARE.]

com·par·i·son·shop (kəm-pär'ī-sən-shöp') v. intr. com·par·i·son·shopped, com·par·i·son--shop·ping, com·par·i·son--shops. To shop for bargains by comparing the prices of competing brands or stores.

com·part (kəm-pärt') v. tr. com·part·ed, com·part·ing, com·parts. To divide into parts. [Obsolete French compartir, from Italian compartire, from Late Latin compartīrī, to share : Latin com-, com- + Latin partīrī, to divide (from pars, part-, a part); see perə⁻² in Appendix.]

com·part·ment (kəm-pärt'mənt) n. Abbr. compt. 1. One of the parts or spaces into which an area is subdivided. 2. A separate room, section, or chamber: a storage compartment. — v. tr. com·part·ment·ed, com·part·ment·ing, com·part·ments. To compartmentalize: “The information has not been compartmented” (John H. Cushman, Jr.). — com'part·ment'al (kəm'pärt-mən'tl) adj.

com·part·men·tal·ize (kəm'pärt-mən'tl-īz', kəm-pärt'-) v. tr. com·part·men·tal·ized, com·part·men·tal·iz·ing, com·part·men·tal·iz·es. To separate into distinct parts, categories, or compartments: “You learn... even the ability to compartmentalize ethics” (Ellen Goodman). — com'-part·men'tal-i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

com·pass (küm'pəs, kəm'-) n. 1. a. A device used to determine geographic direction, usually consisting of a magnetic needle or needles horizontally mounted or suspended and free to pivot until aligned with the magnetic field of Earth. b. Another device, such as a radio compass or a gyrocompass, used for determining geographic direction. 2. A V-shaped device for describing circles or circular arcs and for taking measurements, consisting of a pair of rigid, end-hinged legs, one of which is equipped with a pen, pencil, or other marker and the other with a sharp point providing a pivot about which the drawing leg is turned. Also called pair of compasses. 3. a. An enclosing line or boundary; a circumference: outside the compass of the fence. See Synonyms at circumference. b. A restricted space or area: four huge crates within the compass of the elevator. c. Range or scope, as of understanding, perception, or authority: “Lacking a coherent intellectual and moral commitment, [he] was forced to find his compass in personal experience” (Doris Kearns Goodwin). See Synonyms at range. — v. tr. com·passed, com·pass·ing, com·pass·es. 1. To make a circuit of; circle: The sailboat compassed the island. 2. To surround; encircle. See Synonyms at surround. 3. To understand; comprehend. 4. To succeed in carrying out; accomplish. See Synonyms at reach. 5. To scheme; plot. — adj. 1. Forming a curved configuration. 2. Semicircular. Used of bow windows. [Middle English compas, circle, compass, from Old French, from compasser, to measure, from Vulgar Latin compassāre*, to pace off : Latin com-, com- + Latin passus, step; see PACE¹.] —com’pass·a·ble adj.

compass card (kūm’pəs kărd) n. A freely pivoting circular disk carrying the magnetic needles of a compass and marked with the 32 points of the compass and the 360 degrees of the circle.

com·pas·sion (kəm-păsh’ən) n. Deep awareness of the suffering of another coupled with the wish to relieve it. See Synonyms at pity. [Middle English compassioun, from Late Latin compassiō, compassiōn-, from compassus, past participle of compatī, to sympathize : Latin com-, com- + Latin patī, to suffer; see pē(i)- in Appendix.] —com·pas’sion·less adj.

com·pas·sion·ate (kəm-păsh’ə-nīt) adj. Feeling or showing compassion; sympathetic. See Synonyms at humane. — v. tr. com·pas·sion·at·ed, com·pas·sion·at·ing, com·pas·sion·ates (-nāt’). To pity. —com·pas’sion·ate·ly adv. —com·pas’sion·ate·ness n.

compass plant (kūm’pəs plănt) n. A perennial herb (Silphium laciniatum) in the composite family, native to prairie regions of the Midwest United States and having radiate yellow flower heads and erect, basal, pinnately divided leaves.

com·pat·i·ble (kəm-păt’ə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of existing or performing in harmonious, agreeable, or congenial combination with another or others: compatible family relationships. 2. Capable of orderly, efficient integration and operation with other elements in a system with no modification or conversion required. 3. Capable of forming a chemically or biochemically stable system. 4. Of or relating to a television system in which color broadcasts can be received in black and white by sets incapable of color reception. 5. Medicine. Capable of being grafted, transfused, or transplanted from one individual to another without rejection: compatible blood. — n. A device, such as a computer or computer software, that can be integrated into or used with another device or system of its type. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin compatibilis, from Late Latin compatī, to sympathize. See COMPASSION.] —com·pat’i·bil’i·ty, com·pat’i·ble·ness n. —com·pat’i·bly adv.

com·pa·tri·ot (kəm-pā’trē-ət, -öt’) n. 1. A person from one’s own country. 2. A colleague. [French compatriote, from Late Latin compatriōta : Latin com-, com- + Late Latin patriōta, countryman; see PATRIOT.] —com·pa’tri·ot’ic (-öt’ik) adj.

compd. abbr. Compound.

com·peer (kôm'pîr', kəm-pîr') n. 1. A person of equal status or rank; a peer. 2. A comrade, companion, or associate. [Middle English comper, from Old French, from Latin compār, equal. See COMPARE.]

com·pel (kəm-pĕl') v. tr. com·pelled, com·pel·ling, com·pels. 1. To force, drive, or constrain: Duty compelled the soldiers to volunteer for the mission. 2. To necessitate or pressure by force; exact: An energy crisis compels fuel conservation. See Synonyms at force. 3. To exert a strong, irresistible force on; sway: "The land, in a certain, very real way, compels the minds of the people" (Barry Lopez). [Middle English compellen, from Latin compellere : com-, com- + pellere, to drive; see pel-⁵ in Appendix.] —com·pel'la·ble adj. —com·pel'la·bly adv.

—com·pel'ler n.

com·pel·la·tion (kôm'pə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act of addressing or designating someone by name. 2. A name; an appellation. [Latin compellātiō, compellātiōn-, from compellātus, past participle of compellāre, to address. See pel-⁵ in Appendix.]

com·pel·ling (kəm-pĕl'ŭŋ) adj. 1. Urgently requiring attention: a host of compelling socioeconomic problems. 2. Drivingly forceful: compelling ambition and egotism.

com·pend (kôm'pĕnd') n. A compendium.

com·pen·di·a (kəm-pĕn'dĕ-ə) n. A plural of compendium.

com·pen·di·ous (kəm-pĕn'dĕ-əs) adj. Containing or stating briefly and concisely all the essentials; succinct. [Middle English, from Late Latin compendiōsus, from Latin compendium, a shortening. See COMPENDIUM.] —com·pen'di·ous·ly adv. —com·pen'di·ous·ness n.

com·pen·di·um (kəm-pĕn'dĕ-əm) n. pl. com·pen·di·ums or com·pen·di·a (-dĕ-ə). 1. A short, complete summary; an abstract. 2. A list or collection of various items. [Latin, a shortening, from compendere, to weigh together : com-, com- + pendere, to weigh; see (s)pen- in Appendix.]

com·pen·sa·ble (kəm-pĕn'sə-bəl) adj. Being such as to entitle or warrant compensation: compensable injuries.

com·pen·sate (kôm'pən-sāt') v. com·pen·sat·ed, com·pen·sat·ing, com·pen·sates. — v. tr. 1. To offset; counterbalance. 2. To make satisfactory payment or reparation to; recompense or reimburse: Management compensated us for the time we worked. 3. To stabilize the purchasing power of (a monetary unit) by changing the gold content in order to counterbalance price variations. — v. intr. To serve as or provide a substitute or counterbalance. [Latin compĕnsāre, compĕnsāt- : com-, com- + pĕnsāre, to weigh; see (s)pen- in Appendix.] —com'pen·sa'tive (kôm'pən-sā'tiv, kəm-pĕn'sə-tiv) adj.

—com'pen·sa'tor n. —com·pen'sa·to'ry (kəm-pĕn'sə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

com·pen·sa·tion (kǒm'pən-sā'shən) n. Abbr. comp. 1. The act of compensating or the state of being compensated. 2. Something, such as money, given or received as payment or reparation, as for a service or loss. 3. Biology. The increase in size or activity of one part of an organism or organ that makes up for the loss or dysfunction of another. 4. Psychology. Behavior that develops either consciously or unconsciously to offset a real or imagined deficiency, as in personality or physical ability. —com'pen·sa'tion·al adj.

com·pere (kǒm'pâr') Chiefly British. n. The master of ceremonies, as of a television entertainment program or a variety show. — v. com·pered, com·per·ing, com·peres. — v. tr. To serve as master of ceremonies for. — v. intr. To serve as the master of ceremonies. [French compère, from Old French, godfather, companion, from Medieval Latin compater: Latin com-, com- + Latin pater, father; see PATER.]

com·pete (kəm-pēt') v. intr. com·pet·ed, com·pet·ing, com·petes. To strive with another or others to attain a goal, such as gaining an advantage or winning a victory. See Synonyms at rival. [Late Latin competere, to strive together, from Latin, to coincide, be suitable: com-, com- + Latin petere, to seek; see pet- in Appendix.]

com·pe·tence (kǒm'pī-təns) n. 1. a. The state or quality of being adequately or well qualified; ability. See Synonyms at ability. b. A specific range of skill, knowledge, or ability. 2. Law. The quality or condition of being legally qualified to perform an act. 3. Sufficient means for a comfortable existence. 4. Microbiology. The ability of bacteria to be genetically transformable. 5. Medicine. The ability to respond immunologically to bacteria, viruses, or other antigenic agents.

com·pe·ten·cy (kǒm'pī-tən-se) n. pl. com·pe·ten·cies. Competence.

com·pe·tent (kǒm'pī-tənt) adj. 1. Properly or sufficiently qualified; capable: a competent typist. 2. Adequate for the purpose: a competent performance.

3. Law. Legally qualified or fit to perform an act. [Middle English, adequate, from Old French, from Latin competēns, competent- present participle of competere, to be suitable. See COMPETE.] —com'pe·tent·ly adv.

com·pe·ti·tion (kǒm'pī-tīsh'ən) n. 1. The act of competing, as for profit or a prize; rivalry. 2. A test of skill or ability; a contest: a skating competition.

3. Rivalry between two or more businesses striving for the same customer or market. 4. A competitor: The competition has cornered the market. 5. Ecology. The simultaneous demand by two or more organisms for limited environmental resources, such as nutrients, living space, or light.

com·pet·i·tive (kəm-pēt'ī-tīv) adj. 1. Of, involving, or determined by competition: competitive games. 2. Liking competition or inclined to compete: a highly competitive sales representative. 3. Biochemistry. Relating to the inhibition of enzyme activity that results from the reversible combination of an enzyme with an alternate compound and prevents normal substrate binding.

—com·pet/i-tive-ly adv. —com·pet/i-tive-ness n.

com·pet-i-tor (kəm-pět'ī-tər) n. One that competes with another, as in sports or business; a rival.

Com·piégne (kōmp-yān', kōN-pyēn'yə) A city of northern France on the Oise River northeast of Paris. The armistice ending World War I was signed in a railroad car in a nearby forest on November 11, 1918. Adolf Hitler demanded that the same car be used for the formal surrender of France in World War II on June 22, 1940. Population, 40,384.

com·pi-la-tion (kōm'pə-lā'shən) n. Abbr. comp. 1. The act of compiling.

2. Something, such as a set of data, a report, or an anthology, that is compiled.

com·pile (kəm-pīl') v. tr. com·piled, com·pil-ing, com·piles. 1. To gather into a single book. 2. To put together or compose from materials gathered from several sources: compile an encyclopedia. 3. Computer Science. To translate (a program) into machine language. [Middle English compilen, from Old French compiler, probably from Latin compilāre, to plunder : com-, com- + pīla, heap (of stones), pillar.]

com·pil-er (kəm-pī'lər) n. Abbr. comp. 1. One that compiles: a compiler of anthologies. 2. Computer Science. A program that translates another program written in a high-level language into machine language so that it can be executed.

com·pla-cence (kəm-plā'səns) n. 1. Contented self-satisfaction. 2. Total lack of concern.

com·pla-cen-cy (kəm-plā'sən-sē) n. 1. A feeling of contentment or self-satisfaction, especially when coupled with an unawareness of danger or trouble.

2. An instance of contented self-satisfaction.

com·pla-cent (kəm-plā'sənt) adj. 1. Contented to a fault; self-satisfied and unconcerned: He had become complacent after years of success. 2. Eager to please; complaisant. [Latin complacēns, complacent- present participle of complacēre, to please : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + placēre, to please; see plāk-¹ in Appendix.] —com·pla'cent-ly adv.

com·plain (kəm-plān') v. intr. com·plained, com·plain-ing, com·plains.

1. To express feelings of pain, dissatisfaction, or resentment. 2. To make a formal accusation or bring a formal charge. [Middle English compleinen, from Old French complaindre, complain-, from Vulgar Latin complangere* : Latin com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + Latin plangere, to lament; see plāk-² in Appendix.]

—com·plain'er n.

com·plain-ant (kəm-plā'nənt) n. Law. A party that makes a complaint or files a formal charge, as in a court of law; a plaintiff.

com·plaint (kəm-plānt') n. 1. An expression of pain, dissatisfaction, or resentment. 2. A cause or reason for complaining; a grievance. 3. a. A bodily disorder or disease; a malady or an ailment. b. The symptom or distress about which a patient seeks medical assistance. 4. Law. a. The presentation by the plaintiff in a civil action, setting forth the claim on which relief is sought. b. A formal charge, made under oath, of the commission of a crime or other such offense. [Middle English compleinte, from Old French complainte, from feminine past participle of complaindre, to complain. See COMPLAIN.]

com·plai·sance (kəm-plā'səns, -zəns) n. The inclination to comply willingly with the wishes of others; amiability.

com·plai·sant (kəm-plā'sənt, -zənt) adj. Exhibiting a desire or willingness to please; cheerfully obliging. [French, from Old French, present participle of complaire, to please, from Latin complacēre. See COMPLACENT.] —com·plai'sant·ly adv.

com·pleat (kəm-plēt') adj. 1. Of or characterized by a highly developed or wide-ranging skill or proficiency: “The compleat speechwriter... comes to anonymity from Harvard Law” (Israel Shenker). 2. Being an outstanding example of a kind; quintessential: “Here was the compleat modern misfit: the very air appeared to poison him; his every step looked treacherous and hard won” (Stephen Schiff).

[Variant of COMPLETE.]

com·plect (kəm-plēkt') v. tr. com·plect·ed, com·plect·ing, com·plects. To join by weaving or twining together; interweave. [Latin complectī, to entwine : com-, com- + plectere, to plait; see plek- in Appendix.]

com·plect·ed (kəm-plēkt'ɪd) adj. Informal. Marked by or having a particular facial complexion. Often used in combination: “A white-haired and ruddy-complected priest stood on the deck of one of the trawlers” (New York Times). “Fewer still could fit the original job description of a raven-haired, smooth-complected, red-lipped innocent” (Los Angeles Times). [Back-formation from complexion, variant of COMPLEXION.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Complected has a long history in American folk speech, showing up, for example, in 1806 in the journals of the Lewis and Clark Expedition: “[The Indians] are... reather lighter complected... than the Indians of the Missouri” (Meriwether Lewis). Complected has long been treated as a dialectal term in dictionaries, but it actually should be regarded as informal Standard English, since its wide distribution (including New England, the Midwest, the South, and elsewhere) disqualifies it as a true regionalism. Its use by one western Texas informant quoted in DARE extends its semantic domain beyond skin color to general appearance: “a fat-complected man.”

com·ple·ment (kɒm'plə-mənt) n. 1. a. Something that completes, makes up a whole, or brings to perfection. b. The quantity or number needed to make up a whole: shelves with a full complement of books. c. Either of two parts that complete the whole or mutually complete each other. 2. An angle related to another so that the sum of their measures is 90° . 3. Grammar. A word or words used after a verb to complete a predicate construction; for example, the phrase to eat ice cream in We like to eat ice cream. 4. Music. An interval that completes an octave when added to a given interval. 5. The full crew of officers and enlisted personnel required to run a ship. 6. Biochemistry. A complex system of proteins found in normal blood serum that combines with antibodies to destroy pathogenic bacteria and other foreign cells. Also called alexin. 7. Logic & Mathematics. For a universal set, the set of all elements in the set that are not in a specified subset. — v. tr. com·ple·ment·ed, com·ple·ment·ing, com·ple·ments (-mənt'). To serve as a complement to: Roses in a silver bowl complement the handsome cherry table. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin complēmentum, from complēre, to fill out. See COMPLETE.]

USAGE NOTE: Complement and compliment, though quite distinct in meaning, are sometimes confused because they are pronounced the same. Complement means “something that completes or brings to perfection”: The antique silver was a complement to the beautifully set table. Compliment means “an expression or act of courtesy or praise”: They gave us a compliment on our beautifully set table.

com·ple·men·tal (kɔ̃m'plə-měnt'l) adj. Having to do with or being a complement. — com·ple·men·tal·ly adv.

com·ple·men·tar·i·ty (kɔ̃m'plə-měnt-tă'r'i-tē) n. The state or quality of being complementary: “This is where the complementarity of the masculine and the feminine so acutely emerges. They are the necessary poles of a dialectic process” (Therese Namemek).

com·ple·men·ta·ry (kɔ̃m'plə-měnt-tə-rē, -trē) adj. 1. Forming or serving as a complement; completing. 2. Supplying mutual needs or offsetting mutual lacks. 3. Genetics. Of or relating to a group of genes that act in concert to produce a specific phenotype. 4. Biochemistry. Of or relating to the specific pairing of the purines and pyrimidines between strands of a DNA or an RNA molecule.

— com·ple·men·ta·ri·ly (-tə-rə-lē, -trə-lē, -měnt-tă'r'ə-lē) adv. — com·ple·men·ta·ri·ness n.

complementary angles (kɔ̃m'plə-měnt-tə-rē äng'gəlz) pl.n. Mathematics. Two angles whose sum is 90° .

complementary color (kɔ̃m'plə-měnt-tə-rē kü'l'ər) n. Either one of two colors whose mixture in the right proportions produces white (in the case of light) or gray (in the case of pigment): Red and green are complementary colors.

complement fixation (kɔ̃m'plə-mənt fik-sā'shən) n. The binding of active serum complement to a specific antigen-antibody pair. It is used in various diagnostic tests, such as the Wasserman test, to detect the presence of a specific antigen or antibody.

complete (kəm-plēt') adj. com·plet·er, com·plet·est. Abbr. comp., cpl

1. Having all necessary or normal parts, components, or steps; entire: a complete meal. 2. Botany. Having all principal parts, namely, the sepals, petals, stamens, and pistil or pistils. Used of a flower. 3. Having come to an end; concluded.

4. Absolute; total: "In Cairo I have seen buildings which were falling down as they were being put up, buildings whose incompleteness was complete" (William H. Gass).

5. a. Skilled; accomplished: a complete musician. b. Thorough; consummate: a complete coward. — v. tr. com·plet·ed, com·plet·ing, com·pletes. 1. To bring to a finish or an end: She has completed her studies. 2. To make whole, with all necessary elements or parts: A second child would complete their family. [Middle English complet, from Latin complētus, past participle of complēre, to fill out : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + plēre, to fill; see pel-¹ in Appendix.]

—com·plete'ly adv. —com·plete'ness n. —com·ple'tive adj.

SYNONYMS: complete, close, end, finish, conclude, terminate. These verbs mean to bring or to come to a natural or proper stopping point. Complete suggests the final stage in bringing an undertaking to fruition: "Nothing worth doing is completed in our lifetime" (Reinhold Niebuhr). Close applies to the ending of something ongoing or continuing: The orchestra closed the concert with an encore. If there is a further falloff in ticket sales, the play will close. End emphasizes finality: We ended the meal with fruit and cheese. "Where laws end, tyranny begins" (William Pitt). Finish is sometimes interchangeable with complete: "Give us the tools, and we will finish the job" (Winston S. Churchill). Often, though, it suggests the addition of final details to what has already essentially been completed: I finished the pillowcase with a border of lace. Conclude adds to complete and close a sense of formality: Government representatives concluded tariff negotiations. The article concluded with a restatement of the major points presented. Terminate more specifically suggests reaching an established limit in time or space: The mayor terminated the press conference with a few words of thanks. The family lives on a dead-end street that terminates at a fence.

USAGE NOTE: Complete is sometimes held to be an absolute term like perfect or chief, which is not subject to comparison. Nonetheless, it can be qualified as more or less, for example. A majority of the Usage Panel accepts the example His book is the most complete treatment of the subject. See Usage Note at perfect.

complete blood count (kəm-plēt' blüd kount) n. Abbr. CBC The determination of the quantity of each type of blood cell in a given sample of blood, often including the amount of hemoglobin, the hematocrit, and the proportions of various white cells. Also called blood profile complete metamorphosis (kəm-plēt' mēt'ə-môr'fə-sīs) n. Zoology. The complete form of metamorphosis in which an insect passes through four separate stages of growth, as embryo, larva, pupa, and imago. Also called holometabolism com-ple-tion (kəm-plē'shən) n. The act of completing or the state of being completed.

com-plex (kəm-plēks', kōm'plēks') adj. 1. a. Consisting of interconnected or interwoven parts; composite. b. Composed of two or more units: a complex carbohydrate. 2. Involved or intricate, as in structure; complicated. 3. Grammar. a. Consisting of at least one bound form. Used of a word. b. Consisting of an independent clause and at least one other independent or dependent clause. Used of a sentence. — n. (kōm'plēks') 1. A whole composed of interconnected or interwoven parts: a complex of cities and suburbs; the military-industrial complex. 2. Psychiatry. A group of related, often repressed ideas and impulses that compel characteristic or habitual patterns of thought, feelings, and behavior. 3. An exaggerated or obsessive concern or fear. 4. Medicine. The combination of factors, symptoms, or signs of a disease or disorder that forms a syndrome. [Latin complexus, past participle of complectī, to entwine. See COMPECT.] —com-plex/ly adv. —com-plex/ness n.

SYNONYMS: complex, complicated, intricate, involved, tangled, knotty. These adjectives mean having parts so interconnected as to make the whole perplexing. Complex implies a combination of many associated parts: The composer transformed a simple folk tune into a complex set of variations. Complicated stresses elaborate relationship of parts: Middle Eastern politics is so complicated that even experts cannot agree on a cohesive policy. Intricate refers to a pattern of intertwining parts that is difficult to follow or analyze: “No one could soar into a more intricate labyrinth of refined phraseology” (Anthony Trollope). Involved stresses confusion arising from the commingling of parts and the consequent difficulty of separating them: The plot of the play has been criticized as being too involved. Tangled strongly suggests the random twisting of many parts: “Oh, what a tangled web we weave,/ When first we practice to deceive!” (Sir Walter Scott). Knotty stresses intellectual complexity leading to difficulty of solution or comprehension: Even the professor couldn't clarify the knotty point.

complex conjugate (kəm-plēks' kōn'jə-gāt') n. Mathematics. Either one of a pair of imaginary numbers whose real parts are identical, whose imaginary parts differ only in sign, and whose product is a real number; for example, $6 + 4i$ and $6 - 4i$ are complex conjugates whose product is 52.

complex fraction (kəm-plēks' frāk'shən) n. Mathematics. A fraction in which the numerator or the denominator or both contain fractions. Also called compound fraction com-plex-ion (kəm-plĕk'shən) n. 1. The natural color, texture, and appearance of the skin, especially of the face. 2. General character, aspect, or appearance: findings that will alter the complexion of the problem. 3. The combination of the four humors of cold, heat, moistness, and dryness in specific proportions, thought in ancient and medieval physiology to control the temperament and the constitution of the body. [Middle English complexioun, physical constitution, from Old French complexion, from Late Latin complexiō, complexiōn-, balance of the humors, from Latin, combination, from complexus, past participle of com-plectī, to entwine. See COMPLECT.] —com-plex-ion-al adj.

com-plex-ioned (kəm-plĕk'shənd) adj. Of or having a specified complexion. Often used in combination: fair-complexioned.

com-plex-i-ty (kəm-plĕk'sī-tē) n. pl. com-plex-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being complex. 2. Something complex: a maze of bureaucratic and legalistic complexities.

complex number (kəm-plĕks' nŭm'bər) n. Mathematics. Any number of the form $a + bi$, where a and b are real numbers and i is an imaginary number whose square equals -1 .

complex plane (kəm-plĕks' plān) n. Mathematics. A plane whose points have complex numbers as their coordinates.

complex variable (kəm-plĕks' vâv'ē-ə-bəl) n. Mathematics. An expression of the form $x + iy$, where x and y are real variables and $i^2 = -1$.

com-pli-ance (kəm-plī'əns) n. 1. a. The act of complying with a wish, request, or demand; acquiescence. b. Medicine. Willingness to follow a prescribed course of treatment. 2. A disposition or tendency to yield to the will of others.

3. a. Extension or displacement of a loaded structure per unit load.

b. Flexibility.

com-pli-an-cy (kəm-plī'ən-sē) n. Compliance.

com-pli-ant (kəm-plī'ənt) adj. Disposed or willing to comply; submissive. See Synonyms at obedient. —com-pli-ant-ly adv.

com-pli-ca-cy (kəm-plīk'ə-sē) n. pl. com-pli-ca-cies. 1. The state of being complicated. 2. A complication.

com-pli-cate (kŏm'plī-kāt') v. tr. intr. com-pli-cat-ed, com-pli-cat-ing, com-pli-cates. 1. To make or become complex or perplexing. 2. To twist or become twisted together. — adj. (-kīt) 1. Complex, intricate, and involved. 2. Biology. Folded longitudinally one or several times, as certain leaves or the wings of some insects. [Latin complicāre, complicāt-, to fold together : com-, com- + plicāre, to fold; see plek- in Appendix.]

com-pli-cat-ed (kŏm'plī-kāt'id) adj. 1. Containing intricately combined or involved parts. 2. Not easy to understand or analyze. See Synonyms at complex. See Usage Note at elaborate. —com'pli-cat'ed-ly adv. —com'-pli-cat'ed-ness n.

com·pli·ca·tion (kǒm'plī-kā'shən) n. 1. The act of complicating. 2. A confused or intricate relationship of parts. 3. A factor, a condition, or an element that complicates. 4. Medicine. A secondary disease, an accident, or a negative reaction occurring during the course of an illness and usually aggravating the illness.

com·plice (kǒm'plis) n. Archaic. An associate; an accomplice. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin complex, complic-, one closely connected with : Latin com-, com- + Latin plicāre, to fold; see plek- in Appendix.]

com·plic·it (kəm-plis'it) adj. Associated with or participating in a questionable act or a crime; having complicity: newspapers complicit with the propaganda arm of a dictatorship. [Back-formation from COMPLICITY.]

com·plic·i·ty (kəm-plis'ī-tē) n. pl. com·plic·i·ties. Involvement as an accomplice in a questionable act or a crime.

com·plier (kəm-plī'ər) n. One that complies: a ready complier with all rules and regulations.

com·pli·ment (kǒm'plə-mənt) n. 1. An expression of praise, admiration, or congratulation. 2. A formal act of civility, courtesy, or respect. 3. compliments. Good wishes; regards: Extend my compliments to your parents. See Usage Note at complement. — v. tr. com·pli·ment·ed, com·pli·ment·ing, com·pli·ments. 1. To pay a compliment to. 2. To show fondness, regard, or respect for by giving a gift or performing a favor. [French, from Italian complimento, from Spanish cumplimiento, from cumplir, to complete, from Latin complēre, to fill up : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + plēre, to fill; see pelə-¹ in Appendix.]

com·pli·men·ta·ry (kǒm'plə-měn'tə-rē, -trē) adj. 1. Expressing, using, or resembling a compliment: a concert that received complimentary reviews.

2. Given free to repay a favor or as an act of courtesy: complimentary copies of the new book. — com'pli·men'ta·ri·ly adv.

complimentary close (kǒm'plə-měn'tə-rē klōz) n. Words, such as Yours truly, that appear at the end of a letter and just before the writer's signature, used as a polite termination of the letter.

com·plin (kǒm'plīn) or com·pline (-plīn, -plīn') n. Abbr. cpl Ecclesiastical.

1. The last of the seven canonical hours recited or sung just before retiring. 2. The time of day appointed for this service. [Middle English, alteration (probably influenced by matines, matins); see MATINS, of compli, from Old French complie, from Medieval Latin (hōra) complēta, final (hour), from Latin complētus, past participle of complēre, to complete. See COMPLETE.]

com·ply (kəm-plī') v. intr. com·plied, com·ply·ing, com·plies. 1. To act in accordance with another's command, request, rule, or wish: The patient complied with the physician's orders. 2. Obsolete. To be courteous or obedient. [Middle

English complier, to carry out, fulfill, from Old French complir, from Latin complere. See COMPLETE.]

com-po (kɒm'pō) n. pl. com-pos. Any of various combined substances, such as mortar or plaster, formed by mixing ingredients. [Short for COMPOSITION.]

com-po-nent (kəm-pō'nənt) n. 1. A constituent element, as of a system. See Synonyms at element. 2. A part of a mechanical or electrical complex.

3. Mathematics. One of a set of two or more vectors having a sum equal to a given vector. 4. Any of the minimum number of substances required to specify completely the composition of all phases of a chemical system. — adj. Being or functioning as a constituent or an ingredient. [From Latin compōnēns, compō- present participle of compōnere, to put together : com-, com- + pōnere, to put; see apo- in Appendix.] — com'po-nen'tial (kɒm'pə-něn'shəl) adj.

com-port (kəm-pōrt', -pōrt') v. com-port-ed, com-port-ing, com-ports. — v. tr. To conduct or behave (oneself) in a particular manner: Comport yourself with dignity. — v. intr. To agree, correspond, or harmonize: a foreign policy that comports with the principles of democracy. [Middle English comporten, from Old French comporter, to conduct, from Latin comportāre, to bring together :

com-, com- + portāre, to carry; see per-² in Appendix.]

com-port-ment (kəm-pōrt'mənt, -pōrt'-) n. Bearing; deportment.

com-pos (kɒm'pəs) adj. Compos mentis; sane: "The well-being of the country, even the survival of the world, depends on the president's being compos" (Morton Kondracke). [Short for COMPOS MENTIS.]

com-pose (kəm-pōz') v. com-posed, com-pos-ing, com-pos-es. Abbr.

comp. — v. tr. 1. To make up the constituent parts of; constitute or form: an exhibit composed of French paintings; the many ethnic groups that compose our nation. See Usage Note at comprise. 2. To make or create by putting together parts or elements. 3. To create or produce (a literary or musical piece). 4. To make (oneself) calm or tranquil: Compose yourself and deal with the problems logically. 5. To settle or adjust; reconcile: They managed to compose their differences. 6. To arrange aesthetically or artistically. 7. Printing. To arrange or set (type or matter to be printed). — v. intr. 1. To create a literary or a musical piece.

2. Printing. To set type. [Middle English composen, from Old French composer, alteration (influenced by poser, to put, place); see POSE¹, of Latin compōnere. See COMPONENT.]

com-posed (kəm-pōzd') adj. Serenely self-possessed; calm. See Synonyms at cool. — com-pos'ed-ly (-pō'zɪd-lē) adv. — com-pos'ed-ness n.

com-pos-er (kəm-pō'zər) n. Abbr. comp. One that composes, especially a person who composes music.

com-pos-ing room (kəm-pō'zɪŋ rōm) n. Printing. A room where typesetting is done.

composing stick (kəm-pō'zɪŋ stɪk) n. Printing. A small, shallow tray, usually metal and with an adjustable end, in which type is set by hand. Also called job stick com·pos·ite (kəm-pōz'it) adj. Abbr. comp. 1. Made up of distinct components; compound. 2. Mathematics. Having factors; factorable. 3. Botany. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the composite family. 4. Composite. Architecture. Of, relating to, or being in the Composite order. — n. Abbr. comp. 1. A structure or an entity made up of distinct components. See Synonyms at mixture. 2. A complex material, such as wood or fiberglass, in which two or more distinct, structurally complementary substances, especially metals, ceramics, glasses, and polymers, combine to produce structural or functional properties not present in any individual component. 3. Botany. A composite plant. [French, from Old French, from Latin compositus, past participle of compōnere, to put together. See COMPONENT.] — com·pos'ite·ly adv. — com·pos'ite·ness n.

composite family (kəm-pōz'it fām'ə-lē) n. The largest family of flowering plants, the Compositae (Asteraceae), comprising about 1,100 genera and more than 20,000 species and characterized by many small flowers arranged in a head looking like a single flower and subtended by an involucre of bracts. A head may consist of both ray flowers and disk flowers, as in the sunflower, of disk flowers only, as in the burdock, or of ray flowers only, as in the dandelion.

composite number (kəm-pōz'it nŭm'bər) n. Mathematics. An integer exactly divisible by at least one number other than itself or 1.

Composite order (kəm-pōz'it ôr'dər) n. Architecture. A Roman capital formed by superimposing Ionic volutes on a Corinthian capital.

composite photograph (kəm-pōz'it fō'tə-gräf') n. A photograph made by combining two or more separate photographs.

com·po·si·tion (kōm'pə-zish'ən) n. Abbr. comp. 1. a. The combining of distinct parts or elements to form a whole. b. The manner in which such parts are combined or related. c. General makeup: the changing composition of the electorate. d. The result or product of composing; a mixture or compound.

2. Arrangement of artistic parts so as to form a unified whole. 3. a. The art or act of composing a musical or literary work. b. A work of music, literature, or art, or its structure or organization. 4. A short essay, especially one written as an academic exercise. 5. Law. A settlement whereby the creditors of a debtor about to enter bankruptcy agree, in return for some financial consideration, usually proffered immediately, to the discharge of their respective claims on receipt of payment which is in a lesser amount than that actually owed on the claim.

6. Linguistics. The formation of compounds from separate words. 7. Printing. Typesetting. [Middle English composicioun, from Old French composition, from Latin compositiō, compositiōn-, from compositus, past participle of compōnere, to put together. See COMPONENT.] —com'po-si'tion-al adj. —com'po-si'tion-al-ly adv.

com-pos-i-tive (kəm-pōz'ī-tīv) adj. Synthetic; compounded.

com-pos-i-tor (kəm-pōz'ī-tər) n. Abbr. comp. Printing. One that sets written material into type; a typesetter. [Middle English compositur, one who composes, settler of disputes, from Anglo-Norman compositour, from Latin, writer, compiler, from compōnere, composit-, to put together. See COMPONENT.]

—com-pos'i-to'ri-al (-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj.

compos men-tis (kōm'pəs mēn'tis) adj. Of sound mind; sane. [Latin : compos, having mastery of + mentis, genitive of mēns, mind.]

com-post (kōm'pōst') n. 1. A mixture of decaying organic matter, as from leaves and manure, used to improve soil structure and provide nutrients. 2. A composition; a mixture. — v. tr. com-post-ed, com-post-ing, com-posts. 1. To fertilize with a mixture of decaying organic matter. 2. To convert (vegetable matter) to compost. [Middle English compote, from Old French, mixture, compost, from Latin compositum, mixture, from neuter past participle of compōnere, to put together. See COMPONENT.]

com-po-sure (kəm-pō'zhər) n. A calm or tranquil state of mind; self-possession. See Synonyms at equanimity. [From COMPOSE.]

com-pote (kōm'pōt) n. 1. Fruit stewed or cooked in syrup. 2. A long-stemmed dish used for holding fruit, nuts, or candy. [French, from Old French composte, mixture, from Latin composita, feminine past participle of compōnere, to put together. See COMPONENT.]

com-pound¹ (kōm-pound', kəm-, kōm'pound') v. com-pound-ed, com-pound-ing, com-pounds. — v. tr. 1. To combine so as to form a whole; mix. 2. To produce or create by combining two or more ingredients or parts: pharmacists compounding prescriptions. 3. To settle (a debt, for example) by agreeing on an amount less than the claim; adjust. 4. To compute (interest) on the principal and accrued interest. 5. To add to; increase: High winds compounded the difficulties of the firefighters. — v. intr. 1. To combine in or form a compound. 2. To come to terms; agree. — adj. (kōm'pound', kōm-pound', kəm-) 1. Consisting of two or more substances, ingredients, elements, or parts. 2. Botany. Composed of more than one part. — n. (kōm'pound') Abbr.

comp., cpd. 1. A combination of two or more elements or parts. See Synonyms at mixture. 2. Linguistics. A word that consists either of two or more elements that are independent words, such as loudspeaker, baby-sit, or high school, or of specially modified combining forms of words, such as Greek philosophia, from philo-, “loving,” and sophia, “wisdom.” 3. Chemistry. A pure, macroscopically homogeneous substance consisting of atoms or ions of two or more different elements in definite proportions that cannot be separated by physical means. A compound usually has properties unlike those of its constituent elements.

4. Botany. a. A leaf whose blade is divided into two or more distinct leaflets. b. A pistil composed of two or more united carpels. [Alteration of Middle English compounen, from Old French componre, compondre, to put together, from Latin compōnere. See COMPONENT.] —com-pound/a·ble adj. —com-pound'er n.

com-pound² (kōm'pound') n. 1. A building or buildings, especially a residence or group of residences, set off and enclosed by a barrier. 2. An enclosed area used for confining prisoners of war. [Alteration of Malay kampong, village.]

com-pound-com-plex sentence (kōm'pound-kōm'plēks sən'təns) n. A sentence consisting of at least two coordinate independent clauses and one or more dependent clauses.

compound eye (kōm-pound' ī) n. The eye of most insects and some crustaceans, which is composed of many light-sensitive elements, each having its own refractive system and each forming a portion of an image.

compound fraction (kōm-pound' frāk'shən) n. Mathematics. See complex fraction.

compound fracture (kōm-pound' frāk'chər) n. A fracture in which broken bone fragments lacerate soft tissue and protrude through an open wound in the skin.

compound gland (kōm-pound' glānd) n. Anatomy. A gland composed of branching duct systems that combine, eventually to open into a secretory duct.

compound interest (kōm-pound' ĭn'trĭst) n. Interest computed on the accumulated unpaid interest as well as on the original principal.

compound lens (kōm-pound' lēnz) n. See lens (n., sense 2).

compound microscope (kōm-pound' mī'krə-skōp') n. A microscope consisting of an objective and an eyepiece at opposite ends of an adjustable tube.

compound number (kōm-pound' nŭm'bər) n. Mathematics. A quantity that is expressed in terms of two or more different units, such as 10 pounds 5 ounces or 3 feet 4 inches.

compound sentence (kōm-pound' sən'təns) n. A sentence of two or more coordinate independent clauses, often joined by a conjunction or conjunctions, as The problem was difficult, but I finally found the answer.

compound sugar (kōm-pound' shōög'ər) n. A sugar that yields two or more monosaccharides on hydrolysis.

com-pra-dor also com-pra-dore (kōm'prə-dōr') n. 1. A go-between; an intermediary. 2. A native-born agent in China and certain other Asian countries formerly employed by a foreign business to serve as a collaborator or an intermediary in commercial transactions. [Portuguese, from Late Latin comparātor, buyer, from Latin comparāre, to buy : com-, com- + parāre, to get; see perə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

com-pre-hend (kōm'pri-hēnd') v. tr. com-pre-hend-ed, com-pre-hend-ing, com-pre-hends. 1. To take in the meaning, nature, or importance of; grasp. See Synonyms at apprehend. 2. To take in as a part; include. See Synonyms at include. [Middle English comprehenden, from Latin comprehendere : com-, com- + prehendere, to grasp; see ghend- in Appendix.]

—com'pre-hend'i-ble adj. —com'pre-hend'ing-ly adv.

com-pre-hen-si-ble (kɒm'pri-hɛn'sə-bəl) adj. Readily comprehended or understood; intelligible. [Latin comprehēnsibilis, from comprehēnsus, past participle of comprehendere, to comprehend. See COMPREHEND.]

—com'pre-hen'si-bil/i-ty, com'pre-hen'si-ble-ness n.

—com'pre-hen'si-bly adv.

com-pre-hen-sion (kɒm'pri-hɛn'shən) n. 1. a. The act or fact of grasping the meaning, nature, or importance of; understanding. b. The knowledge that is acquired in this way. 2. Capacity to include. 3. Logic. The sum of meanings and corresponding implications inherent in a term. [Middle English comprehensioun, from Latin comprehēnsiō, comprehēnsiōn-, from comprehēnsus, past participle of comprehendere, to comprehend. See COMPREHEND.]

com-pre-hen-sive (kɒm'pri-hɛn'siv) adj. 1. So large in scope or content as to include much: a comprehensive history of the revolution. 2. Marked by or showing extensive understanding: comprehensive knowledge. — n. 1. Often com-pre-hensives. Examinations covering the entire field of major study, given in the final undergraduate or graduate year of college. 2. Abbr. comp. A preliminary layout showing all the elements planned for an advertisement. [Late Latin comprehēnsivus, conceivable, from comprehēnsus, past participle of comprehendere, to comprehend. See COMPREHEND.] —com'pre-hen'sive-ly adv.

—com'pre-hen'sive-ness n.

com-press (kəm-prɛs') v. tr. com-pressed, com-press-ing, com-press-es.

1. To press together: compressed her lips. 2. To make more compact by or as if by pressing. See Synonyms at contract. — n. (kɒm'prɛs') 1. Medicine. A soft pad of gauze or other material applied with pressure to a part of the body to control hemorrhage or to supply heat, cold, moisture, or medication to alleviate pain or reduce infection. 2. A machine for compressing material. [Middle English compressen, from Old French compresser, from Late Latin compressāre, frequentative of Latin comprimere : com-, com- + primere, to press; see per-⁴ in Appendix.]

com-pressed (kəm-prɛst') adj. 1. Pressed together or into less volume or space. 2. Biology. Flattened, especially laterally or lengthwise, as certain leafstalks or the bodies of many fishes.

compressed air (kəm-prɛst'âr) n. Air under greater than atmospheric pressure, especially when used to power a mechanical device or to provide a portable supply of oxygen.

com-press-i-ble (kəm-prɛs'ə-bəl) adj. That can be compressed: compressible packing materials; a compressible box. —com-press'i-bil/i-ty, com-press/i-ble-ness n.

com-pres-sion (kəm-prĕsh'ən) n. 1. a. The act or process of compressing. b. The state of being compressed. 2. a. The process by which the working substance in a heat engine, such as the vapor mixture in the cylinder of an internal-combustion engine, is compressed. b. The engine cycle during which this process occurs. —com-pres'sion-al adj.

compression wave (kəm-prĕsh'ən wāv) n. A wave propagated by means of the compression of a fluid, as a sound wave in air is.

com-pres-sive (kəm-prĕs'iv) adj. Serving to or able to compress.
—com-pres'sive-ly adv.

com-pres-sor (kəm-prĕs'ər) n. One that compresses, especially a machine used to compress gases.

com-prise (kəm-prīz') v. tr. com-prised, com-prise-ing, com-prise-es. 1. To consist of; be composed of: “The French got... French Equatorial Africa, comprising several territories” (Alex Shoumatoff). 2. To include; contain: “The word ‘politics’... comprises, in itself, a difficult study of no inconsiderable magnitude” (Charles Dickens). See Synonyms at include. 3. Usage Problem. To compose; constitute: “Put together the slaughterhouses, the steel mills, the freight yards... that comprised the city” (Saul Bellow). [Middle English comprisen, from Old French compris, past participle of comprendre, to include, from Latin comprehendere. See COMPRES-*HEND.] —com-prise'a-ble adj.

USAGE NOTE: The traditional rule states that the whole comprises the parts; the parts compose the whole. In strict usage: The Union comprises 50 states. Fifty states compose (or constitute or make up) the Union. While this distinction is still maintained by many writers, comprise is increasingly used, especially in the passive, in place of compose: The Union is comprised of 50 states. In an earlier survey, a majority of the Usage Panel found this use of comprise unacceptable. See Usage Note at include.

com-pro-mise (kŏm'prə-mīz') n. 1. a. A settlement of differences in which each side makes concessions. b. The result of such a settlement. 2. Something that combines qualities or elements of different things: The incongruous design is a compromise between high tech and early American. 3. A concession to something detrimental or pejorative: a compromise of morality. — v.

com-pro-mis-ed, com-pro-mis-ing, com-pro-mis-es. — v. tr. 1. To settle by concessions. 2. To expose or make liable to danger, suspicion, or disrepute: an embassy that was compromised by hidden listening devices. 3. Obsolete. To pledge mutually. — v. intr. To make a compromise. [Middle English compromis, from Old French, from Latin comprōmissum, mutual promise, from neuter past participle of comprōmittere, to promise mutually : com-, com- + prōmittere, to promise; see PROMISE.] —com'pro-mis'er n.

compt. abbr. Compartment.

Comp-ton (kɔmp'tən) A city of southern California, a residential and industrial suburb between Los Angeles and Long Beach. Population, 90,454.

Comp-ton (kɔmp'tən), Arthur Holly. 1892-1962. American physicist. He shared a 1927 Nobel Prize for his discovery of the Compton effect.

Comp-ton-Bur-nett (kɔmp'tən-bər-nɛt'), Ivy. 1892-1969. British novelist known for depicting life in Edwardian England. Her works include Brothers and Sisters (1929) and Mother and Son (1955).

Compton effect (kɔmp'tən ɪ-fɛkt') n. The increase in wavelength of electromagnetic radiation, especially of an x-ray or a gamma-ray photon, scattered by an electron. [After Arthur Holly COMPTON.]

comp-trol-ler (kən-trō'lər) n. Variant of controller (n., sense 2).

com-pul-sion (kəm-pʊl'shən) n. 1. a. The act of compelling. b. The state of being compelled. 2. a. An irresistible impulse to act, regardless of the rationality of the motivation: "The compulsion to protect the powerful from the discomfort of public disclosure feeds further abuse and neglect" (Boston Globe). b. An act or acts performed in response to such an impulse. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin compulsiō, compulsiōn-, from Latin compulsus, past participle of compellere, to compel. See COMPEL.]

com-pul-sive (kəm-pʊl'siv) adj. 1. Having the capacity to compel: a frightening, compulsive novel. 2. Psychology. Caused or conditioned by compulsion or obsession. — n. A person with behavior patterns governed by a compulsion. — com-pul'sive-ly adv. — com-pul'sive-ness n. — com-pul-siv'i-ty (kɔm'pʊl-siv'i-tē, kəm-) n.

com-pul-so-ry (kəm-pʊl'sə-rē) adj. 1. Obligatory; required: a compulsory examination. 2. Employing or exerting compulsion; coercive. — n. pl.

com-pul-so-ries. Sports. A school figure. Often used in the plural.

— com-pul'so-ri-ly adv. — com-pul'so-ri-ness n.

com-punc-tion (kəm-pʊŋk'shən) n. 1. A strong uneasiness caused by a sense of guilt. See Synonyms at penitence. 2. A sting of conscience or a pang of doubt aroused by wrongdoing or the prospect of wrongdoing. See Synonyms at qualm. [Middle English compunccioun, from Old French componction, from Late Latin compunctiō, compunctiōn-, sting of conscience, puncture, from compunctus, past participle of compungere, to sting : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + ungere, to prick; see peuk- in Appendix.] — com-punc'tious (-shəs) adj. — com-punc'tious-ly adv.

com-pur-ga-tion (kɔm'pər-gā'shən) n. Law. An ancient form of trial in which an accused person could call 11 people to swear to their belief in his innocence. [Late Latin compūrgātiō, compūrgātiōn-, complete purification, from Latin compūrgātus, past participle of compūrgāre, to purify completely : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + pūrgāre, to purify; see peuə- in Appendix.]

com-pu-ta-tion (kǒm'pyōō-tā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of computing. b. A method of computing. 2. The result of computing. 3. The act of operating a computer. —com'pu-ta'tion-al adj. —com'pu-ta'tion-al-ly adv.

com-pute (kəm-pyōōt') v. com-put-ed, com-put-ing, com-put-es. — v. tr. 1. To determine by mathematics, especially by numerical methods: computed the tax due. See Synonyms at calculate. 2. To determine by the use of a computer. — v. intr. 1. To determine an amount or number. 2. To use a computer. — n. Computation: amounts beyond compute. [Latin computāre: com-, com- + putāre, to reckon; see peu- in Appendix. N., from Late Latin computus from Latin computāre, to compute.] —com-put'a-bil/i-ty n. —com-put'a-ble adj.

com-put-er (kəm-pyōō'tər) n. 1. A device that computes, especially a programmable electronic machine that performs high-speed mathematical or logical operations or that assembles, stores, correlates, or otherwise processes information. 2. One who computes. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: computer programming; computer software.

computer crime (kəm-pyōō'tər krīm) n. Criminal activity directly related to the use of computers, specifically illegal trespass into the computer system or database of another, manipulation or theft of stored or on-line data, or sabotage of equipment and data. —computer criminal n.

com-put-er-dom (kəm-pyōō'tər-dəm) n. The world of computers and those who use them.

com-put-er-ese (kəm-pyōō'tə-rēz', -rēs') n. The technical language of those involved in computer technology.

com-put-er-ist (kəm-pyōō'tər-ĭst) n. One who uses or operates a computer.

com-put-er-ize (kəm-pyōō'tə-rīz') v. tr. com-put-er-ized, com-put-er-iz-ing, com-put-er-iz-es. Usage Problem. 1. To furnish with a computer or computer system. 2. To enter, process, or store (information) in a computer or system of computers. See Usage Note at -ize.

—com-put'er-iz'a-ble adj. —com-put'er-i-za'tion (-pyōō'tər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

com-put-er-ized (kəm-pyōō'tə-rīzd') adj. Of or relating to a computer or the use of a computer.

computerized axial tomography (kəm-pyōō'tə-rīzd' äk'sē-əl tō-mŏg'rə-fē) n. Abbr. CAT Tomography in which computer analysis of a series of cross-sectional scans made along a single axis of a bodily structure or tissue is used to construct a three-dimensional image of that structure. The technique is used in diagnostic studies of internal bodily structures, as in the detection of tumors or brain aneurysms.

computerized tomography (kəm-pyōō'tə-rīzd' tō-mŏg'rə-fē) n. Abbr. CT Computerized axial tomography.

computer literacy (kəm-pyōō'tər lit'ər-ə-sē) n. The ability to operate a computer and to understand the language used in working with a specific system or systems. —computer literate adj.

computer virus (kəm-pyōō'tər vī'rəs) n. A computer program that is designed to replicate itself by copying itself into the other programs stored in a computer. It may be benign or have a negative effect, such as causing a program to operate incorrectly or filling a computer's memory with unwanted codes.

Comr. abbr. Commissioner.

com-rade (kōm'rād', -rəd) n. 1. A person who shares one's interests or activities; a friend or companion. 2. Often Comrade. A fellow member of a group, especially a fellow member of the Communist Party. [French camarade, from Old French, roommate, from Old Spanish camarada, barracks company, roommate, from camara, room, from Late Latin camera. See CHAMBER.]

—com'rade-ship n.

WORD HISTORY: A comrade can be socially or politically close, a closeness that is found at the etymological heart of the word comrade. In Spanish the Latin word camara, with its Late Latin meaning “chamber, room,” was retained, and the derivative camarada, with the sense “roommates, especially barrack mates,” was formed. Camarada then came to have the general sense “companion.” English borrowed the word from Spanish and French, English comrade being first recorded in the 16th century. The political sense of comrade, now associated with Communism, had its origin in the late-19th-century use of the word as a title by socialists and communists in order to avoid such forms of address as mister. This usage, which originated during the French Revolution, is first recorded in English in 1884.

Com-sat (kōm'sāt') A trademark used for a communications satellite.

Com-stock (kōm'stōk', kŭm'-), Anthony. 1844-1915. American reformer. As organizer and secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, he became notorious for his moral crusades against literature and artwork that he considered obscene.

Com-stock-er-y (kōm'stōk'ə-rē, kŭm'-) n. Censorship of literature and other forms of expression and communication because of perceived immorality or obscenity. [After Anthony COMSTOCK.]

WORD HISTORY: Bowdlerism, named after Dr. Thomas Bowdler (1754-1825), has been around longer than Comstockery, named for Anthony Comstock (1844-1915). All Bowdler did to enter the world of common nouns was to expurgate Shakespeare, the Bible, and Gibbon's History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. On the other hand, Comstock, the organizer and secretary of the

New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, helped destroy 160 tons of literature and pictures that he deemed immoral. Comstockery, the word honoring his achievements, is first recorded in 1905 in a letter by George Bernard Shaw to the New York Times: “Comstockery is the world’s standing Joke at the expense of the United States.... It confirms the deep-seated conviction of the Old World that America is a provincial place, a second rate country-town civilization after all.”

Comstock Lode (kǒm'stök' lōd) A rich vein of gold and silver discovered in 1859 at Virginia City in western Nevada. Because of wasteful mining techniques, it was largely abandoned by 1898.

com-symp (kǒm'sĭmp') n. Slang. A Communist Party sympathizer.

[COM(MUNIST) + SYMP(ATHIZER).]

Comte (kônt), (Isidore) Auguste (Marie François). 1798-1857. French philosopher known as the founder of positivism. He also established sociology as a systematic study.

Com-tism (kǒm'tĭz'əm) n. The philosophy of Auguste Comte; positivism.

—Com'tist (kǒm'tĭst) n.

Co-mynes (kô-mĕn'), Philippe de. See Philippe de Comines.

con¹ (kǒn) adv. In opposition or disagreement; against: debated the issue pro and con. — n. 1. An argument or opinion against something. 2. One that holds an opposing opinion or view. [Middle English, short for contra, from Latin contrā, against. See CONTRA-.]

con² (kǒn) v. tr. conned, con-ning, cons. 1. To study, peruse, or examine carefully. 2. To learn or commit to memory. [Middle English connen, to know, from Old English cunnan. See gnō- in Appendix.] —con'ner n.

con³ or conn (kǒn) Nautical. v. tr. conned, con-ning, cons or conns. To direct the steering or course of (a vessel). — n. 1. The station or post of the person who steers a vessel. 2. The act or process of steering a vessel. [From cond, from Middle English conduen, from Old French conduire, from Latin condūcere, to lead together. See CONDUCE.]

con⁴ (kǒn) Slang. v. tr. conned, con-ning, cons. To swindle (a victim) by first winning his or her confidence; dupe. — n. A swindle. — adj. Of, relating to, or involving a swindle or a fraud: a con artist; a con job. [Short for CONFIDENCE.]

con⁵ (kǒn) n. Slang. A convict.

con. abbr. 1. Music. Concerto. 2. Law. Conclusion. 3. Latin. Conjunx (wife).

4. Connection. 5. Consolidate; consolidated. 6. Or Con.. Consul.

7. Continued.

con- pref. Variant of com-.

Con-a-kry (kǒn'ə-krē) The capital and largest city of Guinea, in the southwest part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. It is on an island connected with the mainland by causeway. Population, 600,000.

con a·mo·re (kŏn' ə-mô'r'ē, -môr'ē, kŏn' ä-mô'rā) adv. 1. Music. Lovingly; tenderly. Used chiefly as a direction. 2. With devotion or zeal. [Italian : con, with + amore, love.]

Co·nant (kŏ'nənt), James Bryant. 1893-1978. American educator who was president of Harvard University (1933-1953) and served as ambassador to West Germany (1955-1957).

co·na·tion (kŏ-nā'shən) n. Psychology. The aspect of mental processes or behavior directed toward action or change and including impulse, desire, volition, and striving. [Latin cōnātiō, cōnātiōn-, effort, from cōnātus, past participle of cōnārī, to try.] —co·na'tion·al adj. —co'na·tive (kŏ'nə-tiv, kŏn'ə-) adj.

con bri·o (kŏn brē'ō, kŏn) adv. Music. With great energy; vigorously. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : con, with + brio, vigor.]

conc. abbr. 1. Concentrate. 2. Concrete.

con·cat·e·nate (kŏn-kăt'n-āt', kən-) v. tr. con·cat·e·nat·ed, con·cat·e·nat·ing, con·cat·e·nates. 1. To connect or link in a series or chain.

2. Computer Science. To arrange (strings of characters) into a chained list. — adj. (-nīt, -nāt') Connected or linked in a series. [Late Latin concatēnāre, concatēnāt- : com-, com- + catēnāre, to bind (from Latin catēna, chain).]

—con·cat'e·na'tion n.

con·cave (kŏn-kāv', kŏn'kāv') adj. Curved like the inner surface of a sphere.

— n. A concave surface, structure, or line. — v. tr. con·caved, con·cav·ing, con·caves. To make concave. [Middle English, from Latin concauus : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + cavus, hollow; see keuə- in Appendix.]

—con·cave'ly adv. —con·cave'ness n.

con·cav·i·ty (kŏn-kāv'ī-tē) n. pl. con·cav·i·ties. 1. The state of being curved like the inner surface of a sphere. 2. A surface or structure configured in such a curve: “a perfect concavity of white sand lined with palm... trees” (Islands).

con·ca·vo·con·cave (kŏn-kā'vŏ-kŏn-kāv') adj. Concave on both surfaces; biconcave. Used of a lens.

con·ca·vo·con·vex (kŏn-kā'vŏ-kŏn-vĕks') adj. 1. Concave on one side and convex on the other. 2. Having greater curvature on the concave side than on the convex side. Used of a lens.

con·ceal (kən-sēl') v. tr. con·cealed, con·ceal·ing, con·ceals. To keep from being seen, found, observed, or discovered; hide. See Synonyms at hide¹. [Middle English concelen, from Old French conceler, from Latin concelāre : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + cēlāre, to hide; see *kel*¹ in Appendix.] —con·ceal'a·ble adj. —con·ceal'er n. —con·ceal'ment n.

con·cede (kən-sēd') v. con·ced·ed, con·ced·ing, con·cedes. — v. tr. 1. To acknowledge, often reluctantly, as being true, just, or proper; admit. See Synonyms at acknowledge. 2. To yield or grant (a privilege or right, for example). See Synonyms at grant. — v. intr. To make a concession: The losing can- didate conceded at midnight after the polls had closed. [French concéder, from Latin concēdere : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + cēdere, to yield; see ked- in Appendix.] — con-ced/ed-ly (-sē'dīd-lē) adv. — con-ced'er n.

con-ceit (kən-sēt') n. 1. A favorable and especially unduly high opinion of one's own abilities or worth. 2. An ingenious or witty turn of phrase or thought. 3. a. A fanciful poetic image, especially an elaborate or exaggerated comparison. b. A poem or passage consisting of such an image. 4. a. The result of intellectual activity; a thought or an opinion. b. A fanciful thought or idea. 5. a. A fancy article; a knickknack. b. An extravagant, fanciful, and elaborate construction or structure: "An eccentric addition to the lobby is a life-size wooden horse, a 19th century conceit" (Mimi Sheraton). — v. tr. con-ceit-ed, con-ceit-ing, con-ceits. 1. Chiefly British. To take a fancy to. 2. Obsolete. To understand; conceive. [Middle English, mind, conception, from Anglo-Norman conceite, from Late Latin conceptus. See CONCEPT.]

SYNONYMS: conceit, amour-propre, egoism, egotism, narcissism, vanity. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "a regarding of oneself with often excessive favor": constant boasting that reveals conceit; insulted her amour-propre; imperturbable egoism; arrogance and egotism betrayed by a glance; lack of consideration arising from narcissism; immoderate and incurable vanity.

ANTONYM: humility

con-ceit-ed (kən-sē'tīd) adj. Holding or characterized by an unduly high opinion of oneself; vain. — con-ceit/ed-ly adv. — con-ceit/ed-ness n.

con-ceive (kən-sēv') v. con-ceived, con-ceiving, con-ceives. — v. tr. 1. To become pregnant with (offspring). 2. To form or develop in the mind; devise: conceive a plan to increase profits. 3. To apprehend mentally; understand: couldn't conceive the meaning of that sentence. 4. To be of the opinion that; think: didn't conceive such a tragedy could occur. — v. intr. 1. To form or hold an idea: Ancient peoples conceived of the earth as flat. 2. To become pregnant. [Middle English conceiven, from Old French concevoir, conceiv-, from Latin concipere : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + capere, to take; see kap- in Appendix.]

— con-ceive/a-bil/i-ty, con-ceive/a-ble-ness n. — con-ceive/a-ble adj.

— con-ceive/a-bly adv. — con-ceive'er n.

con-cel-e-brate (kən-sěl'ə-brāt') v. con-cel-e-brat-ed, con-cel-e-brat-ing, con-cel-e-brates. — v. intr. To take part in a concelebration of the Eucharist.

— v. tr. To take part in (a Eucharist) as a joint celebrant. [Latin concelebrāre, concelebrāt- : com-, com- + celebrāre, to celebrate; see CELEBRATE.]

— con-cel/e-brant (-brənt) n.

con-cel-e-bration (kən-sěl'ə-brā'shən) n. Celebration of the Eucharist by two or more officiants.

con·cen·ter (kən-sĕn'tər, kŏn-) v. tr. intr. con·cen·tered, con·cen·ter·ing, con·cen·ters. To direct toward or come together at a common center. [Probably Italian concentrare, or French concentrer both from Latin com-, com- + Latin centrum, center; see CENTER.]

con·cen·trate (kŏn'sĕn-trāt') v. con·cen·trat·ed, con·cen·trat·ing, con·cen·trates. — v. tr. 1. a. To direct or draw toward a common center; focus. b. To bring into one main body: Authority was concentrated in the president. 2. To make (a solution or mixture) less dilute. — v. intr. 1. a. To converge toward or meet in a common center. b. To increase by degree; gather: “Dusk began to concentrate into full night” (Anthony Hyde). 2. To direct one’s thoughts or attention: We concentrated on the task before us. — n. Abbr. conc. A product that has been concentrated, especially a food that has been reduced in volume or bulk by the removal of liquid: pineapple juice concentrate. [From CON-CENTER.] —con'cen·tra'tive adj. —con'cen·tra'tive·ly adv.

—con'cen·tra'tor n.

con·cen·tra·tion (kŏn'sĕn-trā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of concentrating, especially the fixing of close, undivided attention. b. The condition of being concentrated. 2. Something that has been concentrated. 3. Chemistry. The amount of a specified substance in a unit amount of another substance.

concentration camp (kŏn'sĕn-trā'shən kămp) n. 1. A camp where prisoners of war, enemy aliens, and political prisoners are detained and confined, typically under harsh conditions. 2. A place or situation characterized by extremely harsh conditions.

concentration gradient (kŏn'sĕn-trā'shən grā'dē-ənt) n. The graduated difference in concentration of a solute per unit distance through a solution.

con·cen·tric (kən-sĕn'trĭk) also con·cen·tri·cal (-trĭ-kəl) adj. Having a common center. [Middle English concentrik, from Medieval Latin concentricus: Latin com-, com- + Latin centrum, center; see CENTER.] —con·cen'tri·cal·ly adv.

—con'cen·tric'i·ty (kŏn'sĕn-trĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

Con·cep·ción (kən-sĕp'sē-ōn', -sĕp'shən, kŏn'sĕp-syŏn') A city of west-central Chile near the Pacific coast south-southwest of Santiago. Founded in 1550, it has frequently suffered severe earthquake damage. Population, 267,891.

con·cept (kŏn'sĕpt') n. 1. A general idea derived or inferred from specific instances or occurrences. 2. Something formed in the mind; a thought or notion. See Synonyms at idea. 3. Usage Problem. A scheme; a plan: “began searching for an agency to handle a new restaurant concept” (ADWEEK). [Late Latin conceptus, from Latin, past participle of concipere, to conceive. See CONCEIVE.]

USAGE NOTE: In fields such as entertainment and advertising, concept is often used loosely to mean “a scheme, plan,” as in The studio liked the concept for the new game show and decided to put it into development. Perhaps this usage sounds most at home in these industries.

con·cep·ta·cle (kən-sĕp'tə-kəl) n. One of many specialized hollow chambers containing reproductive structures that appear as dark, dotlike bodies on the surface of receptacles in certain algae and fungi. [Latin conceptāculum, receptacle, from conceptus, past participle of concipere, to conceive. See CONCEIVE.]

concept art (kŏn'sĕpt' ärt) n. Conceptual art.

con·cep·tion (kən-sĕp'shən) n. 1. a. Formation of a viable zygote by the union of the male sperm and the female ovum; fertilization. b. The entity formed by the union of the male sperm and the female ovum; an embryo or a zygote. 2. a. The ability to form or understand mental concepts and abstractions. b. Something conceived in the mind; a concept, plan, design, idea, or thought. See Synonyms at idea. 3. Archaic. A beginning; a start. [Middle English concepcioun, from Old French conception, from Latin conceptiō, conceptiōn-, from conceptus. See CONCEPT.] —con·cep'tion·al adj. —con·cep'tive adj. —con·cep'tive·ly adv.

con·cep·tu·al (kən-sĕp'chōō-əl) adj. Of, consisting of, or relating to concepts or conception: conceptual discussions that antedated development of the new product. [Medieval Latin conceptuālis, from Late Latin conceptus, a thought. See CONCEPT.] —con·cep'tu·al·ly adv.

conceptual art (kən-sĕp'chōō-əl ärt) n. Art that is intended to convey an idea or a concept to the perceiver and need not involve the creation or appreciation of a traditional art object such as a painting or a sculpture. —conceptual artist n.

con·cep·tu·al·ism (kən-sĕp'chōō-ə-līz'əm) n. 1. Philosophy. The doctrine, intermediate between nominalism and realism, that universals exist only within the mind and have no external or substantial reality. 2. A school of abstract art or an artistic doctrine that is concerned with the intellectual engagement of the viewer through conveyance of an idea and negation of the importance of the art object itself. —con·cep'tu·al·ist n. —con·cep'tu·al·is'tic adj. —con·cep'tu·al·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

con·cep·tu·al·ize (kən-sĕp'chōō-ə-līz') v. con·cep·tu·al·ized, con·cep·tu·al·iz·ing, con·cep·tu·al·iz·es. — v. tr. To form a concept or concepts of, and especially to interpret in a conceptual way: "Efforts to conceptualize the history and structure of the universe were already running into trouble because... the universe was not as uniform as had been assumed" (John Noble Wilford). — v. intr. To form concepts. —con·cep'tu·al·i·za'tion (-sĕp'chōō-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. —con·cep'tu·al·iz'er n.

con·cep·tus (kən-sĕp'təs) n. The product of conception at any point between fertilization and birth. It includes the embryo or the fetus as well as the extraembryonic membranes. [Latin, something conceived. See CONCEPT.]

con·cern (kən-sûrn/) v. con·cerned, con·cern·ing, con·cerns. — v. tr.

1. To have to do with or relate to: an article that concerns the plight of homeless people. 2. To be of interest or importance to: This problem concerns all of us.

3. To engage the attention of; involve: We concerned ourselves with accomplishing the task at hand. 4. To cause anxiety or uneasiness in: The firm's weak financial posture is starting to concern its stockholders. — v. intr. Obsolete. To be of importance. — n.

1. A matter that relates to or affects one. See Synonyms at affair.

2. Regard for or interest in someone or something. 3. A troubled or anxious state of mind arising from solicitude or interest. See Synonyms at anxiety. 4. A business establishment or enterprise; a firm. 5. A contrivance; a gadget. [Middle English concernen, from Old French concerner, from Medieval Latin concernere, from Late Latin, to mingle together : com-, com- + cernere, to sift; see krei- in Appendix.]

con·cerned (kən-sûrnd/) adj. 1. Interested and involved: sent a memorandum to those concerned. 2. Anxious; troubled: the concerned parents of youthful offenders.

con·cern·ing (kən-sûr'nĭng) prep. In reference to. See Usage Note at participle.

con·cern·ment (kən-sûrn'mənt) n. 1. A matter that is of concern.

2. Reference, relation, or importance. 3. Anxiety; worry.

con·cert (kɔn'sûrt', -sərt) n. 1. Music. A performance given by one or more singers or instrumentalists or both. 2. a. Agreement in purpose, feeling, or action. b. Unity achieved by mutual communication of views, ideas, and opinions: acted in concert on the issue. c. Concerted action: "One feels between them an accumulation of gentleness and strength, a concert of energies" (Vanity Fair).

— v. con·cert·ed, con·cert·ing, con·certs (kən-sûrt/). — v. tr. 1. To plan or arrange by mutual agreement. 2. To adjust; settle. — v. intr. To act together in harmony. [French, from Italian concerto, from Old Italian, agreement, harmony, possibly from Late Latin concertus, past participle of concernere, to mingle together. See CONCERN.] con·cert·ed (kən-sûr'tĭd) adj. 1. Planned or accomplished together; combined: We made a concerted effort to solve the problem. 2. Music. Arranged in parts for voices or instruments. — con·cert'ed·ly adv.

con·cert·go·er (kɔn'sərt-gō'ər) n. One who attends a concert.

— con'cert-go'ing adj. & n.

concert grand (kɔn'sûrt' grænd) n. Music. The largest grand piano, being roughly 2.7 meters (9 feet) in length, and having the volume, tone, and timbre appropriate for use in concerts.

con·cer·ti·na (kɔn'sər-tē'nə) n. Music. A small, hexagonal accordion with bellows and with buttons for keys. [CONCERT + Italian -ina, feminine diminutive suff..]

con-cer-ti-no (kǒn'chĕr-tĕ'nō) n. pl. con-cer-ti-nos. Music. 1. A short concerto. 2. The solo instrument group in a concerto grosso. [Italian, diminutive of concerto, concert. See CONCERT.]

con-cer-tize (kǒn'sər-tīz') v. intr. con-cer-tized, con-cer-tiz-ing, con-cer-tiz-es. Music. To give concerts or perform in concerts: “has worked extensively on Broadway, has also made several movies, starred in a television series and concertized regularly throughout the country” (Jeremy Gerard).

con-cer-tas-ter (kǒn'sərt-mäs'tər) n. Music. The first violinist and assistant conductor in a symphony orchestra.

con-cer-tis-tress (kǒn'sərt-mīs'trīs) n. Music. A woman who is the first violinist and assistant conductor in a symphony orchestra.

con-cer-to (kən-chĕr'tō) n. pl. con-cer-tos or con-cer-ti (-tĕ). Abbr. con. Music. A composition for an orchestra and one or more solo instruments, typically in three movements. [Italian, concert. See CONCERT.]

concerto gros-so (kən-chĕr'tō grō'sō) n. pl. concerti grossi (grō'sē). Music. A composition for a small group of solo instruments and a full orchestra. [Italian : concerto, concerto + grosso, large.]

concert pitch (kǒn'sûrt' pīch) n. 1. Music. See international pitch. 2. The state of being ready and tensely alert: a diver whose mental and physical states were at concert pitch before executing the dive.

con-ces-sion (kən-sĕsh'ən) n. 1. The act of conceding. 2. a. Something, such as a point previously claimed in argument, that is later conceded. b. An acknowledgment or admission. 3. A grant of a tract of land made by a government or other controlling authority in return for stipulated services or a promise that the land will be used for a specific purpose. 4. a. The privilege of maintaining a subsidiary business within certain premises. b. The space allotted for such a business. c. The business itself: had an ice-cream concession in the subway station. [Middle English, from Latin concessiō, concessiōn-, from concessus, past participle of concedere, to concede. See CONCEDE.] —con-ces'sion-al adj. —con-ces'sion-ar'y (-sĕsh'ə-nĕr'ē) adj.

con-ces-sion-aire (kən-sĕsh'ə-nâr') n. The holder or operator of a concession. [French, from concession, concession, from Latin concessiō. See CONCESSION.]

con-ces-sion-er (kən-sĕsh'ə-nər) n. A concessionaire.

con-ces-sive (kən-sĕs'iv) adj. 1. Of the nature of or containing a concession. 2. Grammar. Expressing concession, as the conjunction though. [Late Latin concessivus, from Latin concessus, past participle of concedere, to concede. See CONCEDE.] —con-ces'sive-ly adv.

conch (kǒngk, kǒnch) n. pl. conchs (kǒngks) or conch-es (kǒn'chīz). 1. Any of various tropical marine gastropod mollusks, especially of the genera Strombus and Cassis, having large, often brightly colored spiral shells and edible flesh.

2. The shell of one of these gastropod mollusks, used as an ornament, in making cameos, or as a horn. 3. Anatomy. See concha (n., sense 1). [Middle English conche, from Old French, from Latin concha, mussel, from Greek konkhē.]

conch- pref. Variant of concho-.

con·cha (kɔŋg'kə) n. pl. con·chae (-kē'). 1. Anatomy. Any of various structures, such as the external ear, that resemble a shell in shape. Also called conch

2. Architecture. The half dome over an apse. [Late Latin, semidome, from Latin, mussel shell. See CONCH.] —con'chal (-kəl) adj.

conchi- pref. Variant of concho-.

con·chif·er·ous (kɔŋg-kɪf'ər-əs) adj. Having or forming a shell.

con·chi·o·lin (kɔŋg-kɪ'ə-lɪn, kɔn-) n. A protein substance that is the organic basis of mollusk shells. [CONCH + -OL¹ + -IN.] concho- or conchi- or conch- pref. Shell: conchology. [Greek konkho-, from konkhos, shell.]

Con·cho·bar (kɔn-küv'ər, -kōō'hōor, kɔn'ər) n. Mythology. The king of Ulster.

con·choi·dal (kɔŋg-koid'l) adj. Of, relating to, or being a surface characterized by smooth, shell-like convexities and concavities, as on fractured obsidian. [From Greek konkhoeidēs, mussel-like : konkho-, concho- + -eidēs, -oidēs, -oid.] —con·choi'dal·ly adv.

con·chol·o·gy (kɔŋg-kɔl'ə-jē) n. The branch of zoology that deals with the study of mollusks and shells. —con'cho·log'i·cal (-kə-lɔj'i-kəl) adj.

—con·chol'o·gist n.

Con·chos (kɔn'chōs, kɔn'chōs) A river of northwest Mexico flowing about 563 km (350 mi) northeast to the Rio Grande.

con·cierge (kɔn-syârzh') n. 1. A staff member of a hotel or apartment complex who assists guests or residents, as by handling the storage of luggage, taking and delivering messages, and making reservations for tours. 2. A person, especially in France, who lives in an apartment house, attends the entrance, and serves as a janitor. [French, from Old French cumcerges, from Vulgar Latin cōnservius*, alteration of Latin cōnservus, fellow slave : com-, com- + servus, slave.]

con·cil·i·ar (kən-sɪl'ē-ər) adj. Of, relating to, or generated by a council: a conciliar appointment made by the governor; conciliar edicts. [From Latin concilium, council. See COUNCIL.] con·cil·i·ate (kən-sɪl'ē-āt') v. con·cil·i·at·ed, con·cil·i·at·ing, con·cil·i·ates. — v. tr. 1. To overcome the distrust or animosity of; appease. 2. To regain or try to regain (friendship or goodwill) by pleasant behavior. 3. To make or attempt to make compatible; reconcile. — v. intr. To gain or try to gain someone's friendship or goodwill. See Synonyms at pacify. [Latin conciliāre, conciliāt-, from concilium, meeting. See kelə⁻² in Appendix.] —con·cil'i·a·ble (-ə-bəl) adj.

—con-cil'i-a'tion n. —con-cil'i-a'tor n. —con-cil'i-a-to'ry (-ə-tôr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

con-cin-ni-ty (kən-sin'ĩ-tē) n. pl. con-cin-ni-ties. 1. Harmony in the arrangement or interarrangement of parts with respect to a whole. 2. Studied elegance and facility in style of expression: “He has what one character calls ‘the gifts of concinnity and concision,’ that deft swipe with a phrase that can be so devastating in children” (Elizabeth Ward). 3. An instance of harmonious arrangement or studied elegance and facility. [From Latin concinnitās, from concinnāre, to put in order, from concinnus, deftly joined.]

con-cise (kən-sīs') adj. Expressing much in few words; clear and succinct. [Latin concīsus, past participle of concīdere, to cut up : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + caedere, to cut; see kaə-id- in Appendix.] —con-cise'ly adv.

—con-cise'ness n.

con-ci-sion (kən-sīzh'ən) n. 1. The state or quality of being concise: “a role made... dramatically accessible by the concision of the form” (George Steiner).

2. Archaic. A cutting apart or off.

con-clave (kɒn'klāv', kɔŋg'-) n. 1. A secret or confidential meeting. 2. Roman Catholic Church. a. The private rooms in which the cardinals meet to elect a new pope. b. The meeting held to elect a new pope. 3. A meeting of family members or associates. [Middle English, private chamber, conclave of cardinals, from Latin conclāve, lockable room : com-, com- + clāvis, key.]

con-clude (kən-klōd') v. con-clud-ed, con-clud-ing, con-cludes. — v. tr. 1. To bring to an end; close: concluded the rally with the national anthem. See Synonyms at complete. 2. To bring about (a final agreement or settlement): conclude a peace treaty. 3. To reach a decision or form an opinion about. See Synonyms at decide. 4. To arrive at (a logical conclusion or end) by the process of reasoning; infer on the basis of convincing evidence: The jury concluded that the defendant was innocent. 5. Obsolete. To confine; enclose. — v. intr. 1. To come to an end; close. 2. To come to a decision or an agreement. [Middle English concluden, from Latin conclūdere : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + claudere, to close.] —con-clud'er n.

con-clu-sion (kən-klō'zhən) n. 1. The close or last part; the end or finish. 2. The result or outcome of an act or process. 3. A judgment or decision reached after deliberation. See Synonyms at decision. 4. A final arrangement or settlement, as of a treaty. 5. Abbr. con. Law. The close of a plea or deed. 6. Logic. a. The proposition that must follow from the major and minor premises in a syllogism. b. The proposition concluded from one or more premises; a deduction. [Middle English conclusioun, from Old French conclusion, from Latin conclūsio, conclūsio-, from conclūsus, past participle of conclūdere, to end. See CONCLUDE.] con·clu·sive (kən-klōō'siv) adj. Serving to put an end to doubt, question, or uncertainty; decisive. See Synonyms at decisive. —con·clu'sive·ly adv.

—con·clu'sive·ness n.

con·clu·so·ry (kən-klōō'sə-rē) adj. 1. Conclusive. 2. Law. Convincing, but not so much so that contradiction is impossible; not justified or supported by all the facts: "Perfunctory and conclusory findings of the magistrate... did not comport with requirements of Federal Rules of Civil Procedure" (National Law Journal).

con·coct (kən-kōkt') v. tr. con·coct·ed, con·coct·ing, con·cocts. 1. To prepare by mixing ingredients, as in cooking. 2. To devise, using skill and intelligence; contrive: concoct a mystery story. [Latin concoquere, concoct-, to boil together : com-, com- + coquere, to cook; see pek^w- in Appendix.]

—con·coct'er, con·coc'tor n. —con·coc'tion n.

con·com·i·tance (kən-kōm'i-təns) n. 1. Occurrence or existence together or in connection with one another. 2. A concomitant.

con·com·i·tant (kən-kōm'i-tənt) adj. Occurring or existing concurrently; attendant. See Synonyms at contemporary. — n. One that occurs or exists concurrently with another. [Late Latin concomitāns, concomitant- present participle of concomitārī, to accompany : Latin com-, com- + Latin comitārī, to accompany (from comes, comit-, companion); see ei- in Appendix.]

—con·com'i·tant·ly adv.

con·cord (kōn'kōrd', kōng'-) n. 1. Harmony or agreement of interests or feelings; accord. 2. A treaty establishing peaceful relations. 3. Grammar. Agreement between words in person, number, gender, and case. [Middle English concorde, from Old French, from Latin concordia, from concors, concord-, agreeing : com-, com- + cor, heart; see kerd- in Appendix.]

Con·cord (kōng'kərd) 1. A city of west-central California northeast of Oakland. It is a residential and manufacturing community. Population, 111,348. 2. A town of eastern Massachusetts on the Concord River west-northwest of Boston. An early battle of the Revolutionary War was fought here on April 19, 1775. In the 19th century the town was noted as an intellectual and literary center. Population, 17,076. 3. A community of east-central Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis. Population, 19,859. 4. The capital of New Hampshire, in the south-central part of the state on the Merrimack River. It became the capital in 1808. Population, 36,006. 5. (kōn'kōrd') A city of south-central North Carolina northeast of Charlotte. Gold was discovered in the area in 1799. Population, 27,347.

con·cor·dance (kən-kōr'dns) n. 1. Agreement; concord. 2. An alphabetical index of all the words in a text or corpus of texts, showing every contextual occurrence of a word: a concordance of Shakespeare's works. 3. Genetics. The presence of a given trait in both members of a pair of twins.

concordance rate (kən-kōr'dns rāt) n. A quantitative statistical expression for the concordance of a given genetic trait.

con·cor·dant (kən-kôr'dnt) adj. Harmonious; agreeing. [Middle English concordaunt, from Old French concordant, from Latin concordāns, concordant- present participle of concordāre, to agree, from *concor*s, concord-, agreeing. See CONCORD.] —con·cor'dant·ly adv.

con·cor·dat (kən-kôr'dăt') n. 1. A formal agreement; a compact. 2. Roman Catholic Church. An agreement between the pope and a government for the regulation of church affairs. [French, from Medieval Latin concordātum, from neuter past participle of Latin concordāre, to agree. See CONCORDANT.]

Con·cord grape (kɔŋg'kərd grāp) n. A cultivated variety of the fox grape having dark blue to purple-black skin, used for making jelly, juice, and wine. [After Concord, Massachusetts.]

con·course (kɔn'kôrs', -kôrs', kɔŋg'-) n. 1. A large open space for the gathering or passage of crowds, as in an airport. 2. A broad thoroughfare. 3. A great crowd; a throng. 4. The act of coming, moving, or flowing together. [Middle English concoars, assembly, throng, from Old French, from Latin concursum, from past participle of concurrere, to assemble : com-, com- + currere, to run; see kers- in Appendix.]

con·cres·cence (kən-krēs'əns) n. 1. Biology. The growing together of related parts, tissues, or cells. 2. The amassing of physical particles. [Latin concrēscēntia, from concrēscēns, concrēscēnt- present participle of concrēscere, to grow together. See CONCRETE.] —con·cres'cent adj.

con·crete (kɔn-krēt', kɔŋg-, kɔn'krēt', kɔŋg'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to an actual, specific thing or instance; particular: had the concrete evidence needed to convict. 2. Existing in reality or in real experience; perceptible by the senses; real: concrete objects such as trees. 3. Of or relating to a material thing or group of things as opposed to an abstraction. 4. Formed by the coalescence of separate particles or parts into one mass; solid. 5. Made of hard, strong, conglomerate construction material. — n. (kɔn'krēt', kɔŋg'-, kɔn-krēt', kɔŋg-) 1. Abbr.

conc. A hard, strong construction material consisting of sand, conglomerate gravel, pebbles, broken stone, or slag in a mortar or cement matrix. 2. A mass formed by the coalescence of particles. — v. con·cret·ed, con·cret·ing, con·cret·es (kɔn'krēt', kɔŋg'-, kɔn-krēt', kɔŋg-). — v. tr. 1. To build, treat, or cover with hard, strong conglomerate construction material. 2. To form into a mass by coalescence or cohesion of particles or parts. — v. intr. To harden; solidify. [Middle English concret, from Latin concrētus, past participle of concrēscere, to grow together, harden : com-, com- + crēscere, to grow; see ker-² in Appendix.] —con·crete'ly adv. —con·crete'ness n.

concrete music (kɔn-krēt' myōō'zɪk) n. Musique concrète.

concrete poetry (kɔn-krēt' pō'ī-trē) n. Poetry that visually conveys the poet's meaning through the graphic arrangement of letters, words, or symbols on the page.

con·cre·tion (kən-krē'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of concreting into a mass; coalescence. b. The state of having been concreted: a concretion of seminal ideas in her treatise. 2. A solid, hard mass. 3. Geology. A rounded mass of mineral matter found in sedimentary rock. 4. Pathology. A solid mass, usually composed of inorganic material, formed in a cavity or tissue of the body; a calculus. —con·cre·tion·ar'y (-shə-nēr'ē) adj.

con·cret·ism (kɒn-krē'tiz'əm, kɒŋg-) n. The practice of representing abstract concepts or qualities in concrete form, as in concrete poetry. —con·cret'ist n.

con·cre·tize (kɒn'krī-tīz', kɒŋg'-) v. tr. con·cre·tized, con·cre·tiz·ing, con·cre·tiz·es. To make real or specific: "The need to simplify and concretize... was hardly acceptable to a mind fascinated by the... suggestiveness of ideas" (Arthur A. Cohen). —con·cre·ti·za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

con·cu·bi·nage (kɒn-kyōō'bə-nīj, kən-) n. 1. Law. Cohabitation without legal marriage. 2. The state of being a concubine.

con·cu·bine (kɒŋg'kyə-bīn', kɒn'-) n. 1. Law. A woman who cohabits with a man. 2. In certain societies, such as imperial China, a woman contracted to a man as a secondary wife, often having few legal rights and low social status. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin concupīna : com-, com- + cubāre, to lie down.]

con·cu·pis·cence (kɒn-kyōō'pī-səns) n. A strong desire, especially sexual desire; lust. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin concupīscientia, from Latin concupīscēns, concupīscēt- present participle of concupīscere inchoative of concupere, to desire strongly : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + cupere, to desire.] —con·cu·pis·cent adj.

con·cur (kən-kûr') v. intr. con·curred, con·cur·ring, con·curs. 1. To be of the same opinion; agree. See Synonyms at assent. 2. To act together; cooperate. 3. To occur at the same time; coincide. 4. Obsolete. To converge; meet. [Middle English concurrēn, from Latin concurrere, to meet, coincide : com-, com- + currere, to run; see kers- in Appendix.]

con·cur·rence (kən-kûr'əns, -kûr'-) n. 1. Agreement in opinion. 2. Cooperation, as of agents, circumstances, or events. 3. Simultaneous occurrence; coincidence.

con·cur·ren·cy (kən-kûr'ən-sē, -kûr'-) n. pl. con·cur·ren·cies. Concurrence: "Concurrency of development with deployment... has almost always proven counterproductive" (Harold Brown).

con·cur·rent (kən-kûr'ənt, -kûr'-) adj. 1. Happening at the same time as something else. See Synonyms at contemporary. 2. Operating or acting in conjunction with another. 3. Meeting or tending to meet at the same point; convergent. 4. Being in accord; harmonious. [Middle English, from Latin concurrēns, concurrent- present participle of concurrere, to coincide. See CONCUR.]

—con·cur'rent n. —con·cur'rent·ly adv.

concurrent resolution (kən-kûr'ənt rĕz'ə-lōō'shən) n. A resolution adopted by both houses of a bicameral legislature that does not have the force of law and does not require the signature of the chief executive.

con·cuss (kən-kÿs') v. tr. con·cussed, con·cuss·ing, con·cuss·es. To injure by concussion: “a middle-aged woman concussed by a blow on the head” (Manchester Guardian Weekly). [Latin concutere, concuss-, to strike together : com-, com- + quaterē, to strike; see kwēt- in Appendix.]

con·cus·sion (kən-kÿsh'ən) n. 1. A violent jarring; a shock. See Synonyms at collision. 2. An injury to an organ, especially the brain, produced by a violent blow and followed by a temporary or prolonged loss of function. [Middle English concuſsioun, bruise, contusion, from Latin concuſsiō, concuſsiōn-, concuſ-, from concuſsus, past participle of concutere, to strike together. See CONCUSS.] —con·cus'sive (-kÿs'iv) adj. —con·cus'sive·ly adv.

cond. abbr. 1. Condition. 2. Conductivity. 3. Conductor.

Con·dé (kōN-dā'), Prince de Title of Louis II de Bourbon. Known as “the Great Condé.” 1621-1686. French general who won major victories in the Thirty Years' War.

con·demn (kən-dĕm') v. tr. con·demned, con·demn·ing, con·demns.

1. To express strong disapproval of: condemned the needless waste of food. 2. To pronounce judgment against; sentence. 3. To judge or declare to be unfit for use or consumption, usually by official order: condemn an old building. 4. Law. To appropriate (property) for public use. [Middle English condemnen, from Old French condemner, from Latin condemnāre : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + damnāre, to sentence (from damnum, penalty).] —con·dem'na·ble (-dĕm'nə-bəl) adj. —con·dem'na·to'ry (-nə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. —con·demn'er n.

SYNONYMS: condemn, damn, doom, sentence. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to fix the punishment or destiny of one found to be guilty or undeserving”: condemned the dissident to hard labor; damned to everlasting uncertainty; an attempt that was doomed to failure; sentenced the murderer to life in prison. See also Synonyms at criticize con·dem·na·tion (kōn'dĕm-nā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of condemning.

b. The state of being condemned. 2. Severe reproof; strong censure. 3. A reason or occasion for condemning.

con·den·sate (kōn'dən-sāt', -dĕn-, kən-dĕn'sāt') n. A product of condensation. [From condensate, condensed, from Latin condēnsātus, past participle of condēnsāre, to condense. See CONDENSE.] con·den·sa·tion (kōn'dĕn-sā'shən, -dĕn-) n. 1. The act of condensing.

2. The state of being condensed. 3. A condensate. 4. Physics. a. The process by which a gas or vapor changes to a liquid. b. The liquid so formed. 5. Chemistry.

A chemical reaction in which water or another simple substance is released by the combination of two or more molecules. 6. Psychology. The process by which a single symbol or word is associated with the emotional content of a group of ideas, feelings, memories, or impulses, especially as expressed in dreams.

—con·den·sa'tion·al adj.

con·dense (kən-děns') v. con·densed, con·dens·ing, con·dens·es. — v. tr. 1. To reduce the volume or compass of. See Synonyms at contract. 2. To make more concise; abridge or shorten. 3. Physics. a. To cause (a gas or vapor) to change to a liquid. b. To remove water from (milk, for example). — v. intr.

1. To become more compact. 2. To undergo condensation. [Middle English condensen, from Old French condenser, from Latin condēnsāre: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + dēnsāre, to thicken (from dēnsus, thick).] —con·dens'a·bil'i·ty n.

—con·dens'a·ble, con·dens'i·ble adj.

con·densed milk (kən-děnst' mīlk) n. Cow's milk with sugar added, reduced by evaporation to a thick consistency.

con·dens·er (kən-děn'sər) n. 1. One that condenses, especially an apparatus used to condense vapor. 2. See capacitor. 3. A mirror, lens, or combination of lenses used to gather light and direct it upon an object or through a projection lens.

con·de·scend (kɔn'dī-sěnd') v. intr. con·de·scend·ed, con·de·scend·ing, con·de·scends. 1. To descend to the level of one considered inferior; lower oneself. See Synonyms at stoop¹. 2. To deal with people in a patronizingly superior manner. [Middle English condescenden, from Old French condescendre, from Late Latin condēscendere: Latin com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + dēscendere, to descend; see DESCEND.] —con'de·scend'er n.

con·de·scen·dence (kɔn'dī-sěn'dəns) n. Condescension.

con·de·scend·ing (kɔn'dī-sěn'dīng) adj. Displaying a patronizingly superior attitude. —con'de·scend'ing·ly adv.

con·de·scen·sion (kɔn'dī-sěn'shən) n. 1. The act of condescending or an instance of it. 2. Patronizingly superior behavior or attitude. [Late Latin condēscēnsiō, condēscēnsiōn-, from condēscēnsus, past participle of condēscendere, to condescend. See CONDESCEND.]

con·dign (kən-dīn') adj. Deserved; adequate: condign censure. [Middle English condigne, from Old French, from Latin condignus: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + dignus, worthy; see dek- in Appendix.] —con·dign'ly adv.

con·di·ment (kɔn'də-mənt) n. A sauce, relish, or spice used to season food. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin condīmentum, from condīre, to season. See dhē- in Appendix.] —con'di·men'tal (-mĕn'tl) adj.

con·di·tion (kən-dīsh'ən) n. Abbr. cond. 1. A mode or state of being: "The Organization Man survives as a modern classic because it captures a permanent part of our social condition" (Robert J. Samuelson). 2. a. A state of health. b. A state of readiness or physical fitness. See Synonyms at state. 3. A disease or physical ailment: a heart condition. 4. Social position; rank. 5. One that is indispensable to the appearance or occurrence of another; prerequisite: Compatibility is a condition of a successful marriage. 6. One that restricts or modifies another; a qualification. 7. conditions. Existing circumstances: Conditions in the office made concentration impossible. 8. Grammar. The dependent clause of a conditional sentence. 9. Logic. A proposition on which another proposition depends; the antecedent of a conditional proposition. 10. Law. a. A provision making the effect of a legal instrument contingent on the occurrence of an uncertain future event. b. The event itself. 11. An unsatisfactory grade given to a student, serving notice that deficiencies can be made up by the completion of additional work. 12. Obsolete. Disposition; temperament. — v. tr. con-di-tioned, con-di-tion-ing, con-di-tions. 1. To make dependent on a condition or conditions. 2. To stipulate as a condition. 3. To render fit for work or use. 4. To accustom (oneself or another) to; adapt: had to condition herself to long hours of hard work; conditioned the troops to marches at high altitudes. 5. To air-condition. 6. To give the unsatisfactory grade of condition to. 7. Psychology. To cause an organism to respond in a specific manner to a conditioned stimulus in the absence of an unconditioned stimulus. 8. To replace moisture or oils in (hair, for example) by use of a therapeutic product. [Middle English condicioun, from Old French condicion, from Latin conditiō, conditiōn-, from condīcere, to agree : com-, com- + dīcere, to talk; see deik- in Appendix.]

con-di-tion-al (kən-dīsh'ə-nəl) adj. 1. Imposing, depending on, or containing a condition. See Synonyms at dependent. 2. Grammar. Stating, containing, or implying a condition. 3. Psychology. Brought about by conditioning. — n. Grammar. A mood, tense, clause, or word expressing a condition. — con-di'-tion-al'i-ty (-dīsh'ə-nāl'ī-tē) n. — con-di'tion-al-ly adv.

conditional probability (kən-dīsh'ə-nəl prɒb'ə-bīl'ī-tē) n. The probability that an event will occur, given that one or more other events have occurred.

con-di-tioned (kən-dīsh'ənd) adj. 1. Subject to or dependent on a condition or conditions. 2. Physically fit. 3. Prepared for a specific action or process. 4. Psychology. Exhibiting or trained to exhibit a conditioned response.

conditioned response (kən-dīsh'ənd rī-spɒns') n. Abbr. CR Psychology. A new or modified response elicited by a stimulus after conditioning. Also called conditioned reflex conditioned stimulus (kən-dīsh'ənd stīm'yə-ləs) n. Abbr. CS Psychology. A previously neutral stimulus that, after repeated association with an unconditioned stimulus, elicits the response effected by the unconditioned stimulus itself.

con-di-tion-er (kən-dīsh'ə-nər) n. One that conditions, especially an additive or application that improves the quality or usability of a substance: a soil conditioner; a hair conditioner.

con·di·tion·ing (kən-dīsh'ə-nīng) n. Psychology. A process of behavior modification by which a subject comes to associate a desired behavior with a previously unrelated stimulus.

con·do (kɒn'dō') n. pl. con·dos. Informal. A condominium. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: condo sales; condo advertisements.

con·dole (kən-dōl') v. intr. con·doled, con·dol·ing, con·doles. To express sympathy or sorrow: I condoled with him in his loss. [Late Latin condolēre, to feel another's pain : Latin com-, com- + Latin dolēre, to grieve.] — con·do'la-to'ry (-dō'lə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. — con·dol'er n.

con·do·lence (kən-dō'ləns) n. 1. Sympathy with a person who has experienced pain, grief, or misfortune. See Synonyms at pity. 2. A formal declaration of condolence. — con·do'lent adj.

con·dom (kɒn'dəm, kʌn'-'-) n. A flexible sheath, usually made of thin rubber or latex, designed to cover the penis during sexual intercourse for contraceptive purposes or as a means of preventing sexually transmitted diseases. [Origin unknown.]

con·do·min·i·um (kɒn'də-mīn'ē-əm) n. pl. con·do·min·i·ums also con·do·min·i·a (-mīn'ē-ə). 1. a. Real estate, such as a unit in an apartment complex or a parking space in a garage, that combines fee simple title to the unit and joint ownership in the common elements shared with other unit owners. b. A unit in such a complex. 2. a. Joint sovereignty, especially joint rule of territory by two or more nations, or a plan to achieve it: "The allies would fear that they were pawns in a superpower condominium" (New Republic). b. A politically dependent territory. — con'do·min'i·al (-ē-əl) adj.

Con·don (kɒn'dən), Edward Uhler. 1902-1974. American physicist who participated in the Manhattan Engineering District atomic bomb project (1943-1945). During the 1950's he directed Air Force investigations of unidentified flying objects.

con·do·na·tion (kɒn'də-nā'shən, -dō-) n. The act of condoning, especially the implied forgiveness of an offense by ignoring it.

con·done (kən-dōn') v. tr. con·doned, con·don·ing, con·dones. To overlook, forgive, or disregard (an offense) without protest or censure. See Synonyms at forgive. [Latin condōnāre : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + dōnāre, to give (from dōnum, gift); see dō- in Appendix.] — con·don'er n.

con·dor (kɒn'dɔr', -dər) n. 1. Either of two New World vultures, Vultur gryphus of the Andes or Gymnogyps californianus, a nearly extinct vulture of the mountains of California, having a bare head and neck and dull black plumage containing variable amounts of white. With a wingspan of about three meters (ten feet), they are the largest birds in the Western Hemisphere. 2. A gold coin of some South American countries bearing the figure of one of these vultures. [Spanish cóndor, from Quechua cuntur.]

Con-dor-cet (kôn-dôr-sě'), Marquis de Title of Marie Jean Antoine Nicolas Caritat. 1743-1794. French mathematician and philosopher known for his work on the mathematical theory of probability and for his philosophical study Sketch for a Historical Picture of the Progress of the Human Mind (1795).

con-dot-tie-re (kõn'də-tyâr'ē, -tyâr'ā) n. pl. con-dot-tie-ri (-tyâr'ē). A leader of mercenary soldiers between the 14th and 16th centuries. [Italian, from condotta, troop of mercenaries, from feminine past participle of condurre, to conduct, from Latin condūcere, to lead together. See CONDUCE.]

con-duce (kən-dōōs', -dyōōs') v. intr. con-duced, con-duc-ing, con-duc-es. To contribute or lead to a specific result: "The quiet conduces to thinking about the darkening future" (George F. Will). [Latin condūcere: com-, com- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.] —con-duc'er n. —con-duc'ing-ly adv.

con-du-cive (kən-dōō'siv, -dyōō'-) adj. Tending to cause or bring about; contributive: working conditions not conducive to productivity. See Synonyms at favorable. —con-du'cive-ness n.

con-duct (kən-dūkt') v. con-duct-ed, con-duct-ing, con-ducts. — v. tr.
1. To direct the course of; manage or control. 2. To lead or guide. 3. Music. To lead (an orchestra, for example). 4. To serve as a medium for conveying; transmit: Some metals conduct heat. 5. To comport (oneself) in a specified way: She conducted herself stoically in her time of grief. — v. intr. 1. To act as a conductor. 2. To lead. — n. (kõn'dūkt') 1. The way a person acts, especially from the standpoint of morality and ethics. 2. The act of directing or controlling; management. 3. Obsolete. A guide; an escort. [Middle English conducten, from Latin condūcere, conduct-, to lead together. See CONDUCE.] —con-duct'i-bil'i-ty n. —con-duct'i-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: conduct, direct, manage, control, steer. All of these verbs mean to exercise direction over the course of an activity or over the activities of a person or persons. Conduct can apply to the guidance, authority, and responsibility of a single person: The chairperson conducted the hearing. It can also refer to the coordinated actions of a group: A neutral team from the United Nations will observe the elections to be sure that they are conducted fairly. Direct stresses the regulation of activities to assure that they are properly planned and carried out: direct a political campaign. Manage suggests the manipulation or handling of a person, a group of persons, or, often, a complex organization: knows how to manage a staff; managing a large resort. Control implies the exercise of authoritative direction; it stresses regulation in the form of restraint or keeping in check and connotes command or domination: police controlling a crowd; controls the firm's personnel policies. Steer suggests guidance as if by means of a device such as a rudder that controls direction or course: steered the conversation away from politics. See also con·duc·tance (kən-dŭk'təns) n. Symbol G A measure of a material's ability to conduct electric charge; the reciprocal of the resistance.

con·duc·tim·e·try (kɔn'dŭk-tīm'ī-trē) n. The scientific measurement of solution conductance.

con·duc·tion (kən-dŭk'shən) n. The transmission or conveying of something through a medium or passage, especially the transmission of electric charge or heat through a conducting medium without perceptible motion of the medium itself.

con·duc·tive (kən-dŭk'tiv) adj. Exhibiting conductivity.

con·duc·tiv·i·ty (kɔn'dŭk-tiv'ī-tē) n. pl. con·duc·tiv·i·ties. Abbr. cond.

1. The ability or power to conduct or transmit heat, electricity, or sound. 2. The conductance of a material. 3. Physiology. The conductivity of a structure, especially the ability of a nerve to transmit a wave of excitation.

con·duc·to·met·ric titration (kən-dŭk'tə-mět'rik tī-trā'shən) n. Titration based on changes in the electrical conductance of a solution.

con·duc·tor (kən-dŭk'tər) n. Abbr. cond. 1. One who conducts, especially:
a. One who is in charge of a railroad train, bus, or streetcar. b. Music. One who directs an orchestra or other such group. 2. Physics. A substance or medium that conducts heat, light, sound, or especially an electric charge. 3. A lightning rod, as on a house or barn. —con'duc-to'ri-al (kɔn'dŭk-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj.

—con·duc'tor·ship' n.

con·duit (kɔn'dō-īt, -dīt) n. 1. A pipe or channel for conveying fluids, such as water. 2. A tube or duct for enclosing electric wires or cable. 3. A means by which something is transmitted: an arms dealer who served as a conduit for intelligence data. 4. Archaic. A fountain. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin conductus, from Latin, past participle of conducere, to lead together. See CONDUCE.]

con·du·pli·cate (kɔn-dō'plī-kīt, -dyō'-) adj. Folded together lengthwise, as certain leaves or certain petals in a bud. [Latin conduplicatus, past participle of conduplicāre, to double : com-, com- + duplicāre, to double (from duplex, duplic-, double); see dwo- in Appendix.] —con'du·pli·ca'tion (-kā'shən) n.

con·dyle (kɔn'dīl', -dl) n. A rounded prominence at the end of a bone, most often for articulation with another bone. [Latin condylus, knuckle, from Greek kondulos.] —con'dy·lar (-də-lər) adj. —con'dy·loid' (-dl-oid') adj.

con·dy·lo·ma (kɔn'dl-ō'mə) n. pl. con·dy·lo·mas or con·dy·lo·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A wartlike growth on the skin or mucous membrane, usually in the area of the anus or external genitalia. [Greek kondulōma, from kondulos, knuckle.]

—con'dy·lo'ma·tous (-mə-təs) adj.

condyloma a·cu·mi·na·tum (kɔ̃n'dl-ō'mə ə-kyōō'mə-nā'təm) n. pl.
condylomata a·cu·mi·na·ta (-nā'tə). See genital wart. [Latin acūminātum, pointed, neuter of acūminātus. See ACUMINATE.]

con·dy·lo·ma·ta (kɔ̃n'dl-ō'mə-tə) n. A plural of condyloma.

cone (kōn) n. 1. Mathematics. a. The surface generated by a straight line, the generator, passing through a fixed point, the vertex, and moving along a fixed curve, the directrix. b. A right circular cone. 2. a. The figure formed by a cone, bound or regarded as bound by its vertex and a plane section taken anywhere above or below the vertex. b. Something having the shape of this figure: “the cone of illuminated drops spilling beneath a street lamp” (Anne Tyler). 3. Botany. a. A unisexual reproductive structure of gymnospermous plants such as conifers and cycads, typically consisting of a central axis around which there are scaly, overlapping, spirally arranged sporophylls that develop pollen-bearing sacs or naked ovules or seeds. b. A similar structure that produces spores on club mosses, horsetails, and spike mosses. c. Any reproductive structure resembling a cone, such as a cluster of hop or alder fruits. 4. Physiology. One of the photoreceptors in the retina of the eye that is responsible for daylight and color vision. These photoreceptors are most densely concentrated in the fovea centralis, creating the area of greatest visual acuity. 5. Any of various gastropod mollusks of the family Conidae of tropical and subtropical seas, having a conical, often vividly marked shell and the ability to inflict a poisonous, sometimes fatal sting. — v. tr. coned, con-ing, cones. To shape (something) like a cone or a segment of one. [French cône, and Middle English, angle of a quadrant both from Latin cōnus, from Greek kōnos. See kō- in Appendix.]

cone·flow·er (kōn'flou'ər) n. Any of various North American plants of the genera Rudbeckia, Ratibida, and Echinacea in the composite family, having disk flowers on a cone-shaped central receptacle surrounded by colorful ray flowers.

cone·nose (kōn'nōz') n. Any of various bloodsucking hemipterous insects of the family Reduviidae, especially Triatoma sanguisuga of Mexico and the southern and western United States, having sucking mouthparts and capable of inflicting a painful, toxic bite. Although they usually prey on insects, some suck the blood of mammals. Also called cone-nosed bug, kissing bug.

cone-nosed bug (kōn'nōzd' bŭg) n. See conenose.

Con·es·to·ga (kɔ̃n'ī-stō'gə) n. pl. Conestoga or Con-es-to-gas. See Susquehannock (n., sense 1).

Conestoga wagon (kɔ̃n'ī-stō'gə wăg'ən) n. A heavy covered wagon with broad wheels, used by American pioneers for westward travel. [After Conestoga, a village of southeast Pennsylvania.]

co·ney¹ also co·ny (kō'nē, kŭn'ē) n. pl. co·neys also co·nies. 1. A rabbit, especially the European rabbit (Oryctolagus cuniculus). 2. The fur of a rabbit. 3. See pika. 4. See hyrax. 5. a. A grouper (Epinephelus fulvus) of the tropical

Atlantic, having dark brown or sharply bicolored skin and a few blue and black spots. b. Chiefly Florida Keys & Chiefly West Indies. Either of two related fish, the red hind or the graysby. 6. Archaic. A dupe; a simpleton. [Middle English coni, from Old French conis, pl. of conil, from Latin cunīculus, possibly from cunnus, cunus, female pudenda.]

co·ney² (kō'nē) n. Informal. A Coney Island.

Co·ney Island¹ (kō'nē ī'lənd) A resort district of Brooklyn, New York, on the Atlantic Ocean, famous for its boardwalk and amusement park featuring souvenir stands, thrilling rides, and numerous eating places.

Co·ney Island² (kō'nē ī'lənd) n. Informal. A frankfurter served in a bun with condiments; a hot dog.

conf. abbr. 1. Conference. 2. Confidential.

con·fab (kɔn'fəb') Informal. n. A casual talk; confabulation. — v. intr.

con·fabled, con·fab·bing, con·fabs (kən-fəb', kɔn'fəb'). To engage in casual talk.

con·fab·u·late (kən-fəb'yə-lāt') v. intr. con·fab·u·lat·ed, con·fab·u·lat·ing, con·fab·u·lates. 1. To talk casually; chat. 2. Psychology. To replace fact with fantasy unconsciously in memory. [Latin confābulārī, confābulāt- : com-, com- + fābulārī, to talk (from fābula, conversation); see FABLE.] — con·fab'u·la'tion n. — con·fab'u·la'tor n. — con·fab'u·la'to'ry

(-lə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

con·fect (kən-fēkt') v. tr. con·fect·ed, con·fect·ing, con·fects. 1. To make into a confection or preserve. 2. To put together by combining materials: a group of writers who confected a television series. — n. (kɔn'fēkt')

A sweet confection, such as candy. [Middle English confecten, to prepare, from Latin cōnfigere, cōnfect- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.]

con·fec·tion (kən-fēk'shən) n. 1. The act or process of confecting or the result of it: "These sentiments are not the confection of a consummate courtroom actor" (Ron Rosenbaum). 2. A sweet preparation, such as candy. 3. A sweetened medicinal compound; an electuary. 4. A piece displaying splendid craft, skill, and work: The gown was a confection of satin and appliqué. — v. tr.

con·fec·tioned, con·fec·tion·ing, con·fec·tions. To make into a confection.

con·fec·tion·ar·y (kən-fēk'shə-nēr'ē) n. pl. con·fec·tion·ar·ies. 1. A confectioner's shop; a confectionery. 2. Sweet preparations; confections.

3. Obsolete. A confectioner. — con·fec'tion·ar'y adj.

con·fec·tion·er (kən-fēk'shə-nər) n. One that makes or sells confections.

con·fec·tion·ers' sugar (kən-fēk'shə-nərz shōög'ər) n. Finely pulverized sugar with cornstarch added.

con·fec·tion·er·y (kən-fēk'shə-nēr'ē) n. pl. con·fec·tion·er·ies. 1. Candies and other confections considered as a group. 2. The skill or occupation of a confectioner. 3. A confectioner's shop.

confed. abbr. Confederation.

con·fed·er·a·cy (kən-fěd'ər-ə-sē) n. pl. con·fed·er·a·cies. 1. a. A union of persons, parties, or states; a league. b. The persons, parties, or states joined in such a union. c. Confederacy. The 11 Southern states that seceded from the United States in 1860 and 1861. 2. A group of people who have united for unlawful practices; a conspiracy. [Middle English confederacie, from Anglo-Norman, from Late Latin cōnfoederātiō, cōnfoederātiōn-, agreement, from cōnfoederātus, past participle of confōederāre, to unite. See CONFEDERATE.]

con·fed·er·al (kən-fěd'ər-əl, -fěd'rəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to confederation or a specific confederation. 2. Of, relating to, or involving the activities of two or more nations: "Can federal or confederal solutions be negotiated to limit ethnic strife?" (Lincoln P. Bloomfield). —con·fed'er·al·ist n.

con·fed·er·ate (kən-fěd'ər-īt) n. 1. A member of a confederacy; an ally. 2. One who assists in a plot; an accomplice. See Synonyms at partner. 3. Confederate. A supporter of the American Confederacy. — adj. 1. United in a confederacy; allied. 2. Confederate. Of or having to do with the American Confederacy. — v. tr. intr. con·fed·er·at·ed, con·fed·er·at·ing, con·fed·er·ates (-ə-rāt'). To form into or become part of a confederacy. [From Middle English confederat, allied, from Late Latin cōnfoederātus, past participle of cōnfoederāre, to unite : Latin com-, com- + Latin foederāre, to unite (from foedus, foeder-, league); see bheidh- in Appendix.] —con·fed'er·a'tive adj.

con·fed·er·a·tion (kən-fěd'ə-rā'shən) n. Abbr. confed. 1. a. The act of forming into or becoming part of a confederacy. b. The state of being confederated. 2. A group of confederates, especially of states or nations, united for a common purpose; a league. —con·fed'er·a'tion·ism n.
—con·fed'er·a'tion·ist n.

con·fer (kən-fūr') v. con·ferred, con·fer·ring, con·fers. — v. tr. 1. To bestow (an honor, for example): conferred a medal on the hero; conferred an honorary degree on her. 2. To invest with (a characteristic, for example): a carefully worded statement that conferred an aura of credibility onto the administration's actions. — v. intr. To meet in order to deliberate together or compare views. [Latin cōnferre : com-, com- + ferre, to bring; see bher¹ in Appendix.]

—con·fer'ment n. —con·fer'ra·ble adj. —con·fer'ral n. —con·fer'rer n.

SYNONYMS: confer, advise, consult, parley, treat. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to exchange views in order to reach a decision or resolve differences": a doctor conferring with a patient; a board chairperson advising with the members; has to consult with an attorney; parleyed with enemy representatives during the cease-fire; delegates treating for the recognition of their union.

con·fer·ee also con·fer·ree (kɒn'fə-rē') n. 1. A participant in a conference.

2. One upon whom something, such as an honor, is conferred.

con·fer·ence (kɒn'fər-əns, -frəns) n. Abbr. conf. 1. a. A meeting for consultation or discussion. b. An exchange of views. c. A meeting of committees to settle differences between two legislative bodies. 2. An assembly of clerical or of clerical and lay members from a particular district in various Protestant churches. 3. Sports. An association of teams. 4. The act of conferring, as of an academic degree. [Medieval Latin cōnferentia, from Latin cōnferēns, cōnferent- present participle of cōnferre, to bring together. See CONFER.] —con'fer·en'tial (-fə-rən'shəl) adj.

conference call (kɒn'fər-əns kɔl) n. A conference by telephone in which three or more persons in different locations participate by means of a central switching unit.

con·fer·ree (kɒn'fə-rē') n. Variant of conferee.

con·fess (kən-fɛs') v. con·fessed, con·fess·ing, con·fess·es. — v. tr. 1. To disclose (something damaging or inconvenient to oneself); admit. See Synonyms at acknowledge. 2. To acknowledge belief or faith in; profess. 3. a. To make known (one's sins) to God or to a priest. b. To hear the confession of (a penitent). — v. intr. 1. To admit or acknowledge something damaging or inconvenient to oneself: The suspect confessed to the crime. 2. a. To disclose one's sins to a priest. b. To listen to a confession. [Middle English confessen, from Old French confesser, from Vulgar Latin cōnfessāre*, from Latin cōnfitērī, cōnfess- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + fatērī, to admit; see bhā-² in Appendix.]

—con·fess'a·ble adj. —con·fess'ed·ly (-ɪd-lē) adv.

con·fes·sion (kən-fɛsh'ən) n. 1. The act or process of confessing.

2. Something confessed, especially disclosure of one's sins to a priest for absolution. 3. A written or an oral statement acknowledging guilt, made by one who has been accused or charged with an offense. 4. An avowal of belief in the doctrines of a particular faith; a creed. 5. A church or group of worshipers adhering to a specific creed.

con·fes·sion·al (kən-fɛsh'ə-nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling confession. — n. A small enclosed stall in which a priest hears confessions.

con·fes·sor (kən-fɛs'ər) n. 1. One who confesses. 2. One who confesses faith in Christianity in the face of persecution but does not suffer martyrdom. 3. a. A priest who hears confession and gives absolution. b. A priest who is one's spiritual mentor.

con·fet·ti (kən-fɛt'ē) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Small pieces or streamers of colored paper that are scattered around during the course of festive occasions: Confetti covers the floor every year on January 1. [Italian, pl. of confetto, candy, from Medieval Latin cōnfectum, neuter of Latin cōnfectus, past participle of cōnficere, to prepare. See CONFECT.]

con-fi-dant (kɒn'fɪ-dənt', -dənt', kɒn'fɪ-dənt', -dənt') n. 1. One to whom secrets or private matters are disclosed. 2. A character in a drama or fiction, such as a trusted friend or servant, who serves as a device for revealing the inner thoughts or intentions of a main character. [French confident, from Italian confidente, from Latin cōnfidēns, cōnfident- present participle of cōnfidere, to rely on. See CONFIDE.]

con-fi-dante (kɒn'fɪ-dənt', -dənt', kɒn'fɪ-dənt', -dənt') n. 1. A woman to whom secrets or private matters are disclosed. 2. A woman character in a drama or fiction, such as a trusted friend or servant, who serves as a device for revealing the inner thoughts or intentions of a main character. [French confidente, feminine of confident, confidant. See CONFIDANT.]

con-fide (kən'fɪd') v. con-fid-ed, con-fid-ing, con-fides. — v. tr. 1. To tell (something) in confidence. 2. To put into another's keeping. — v. intr. To disclose private matters in confidence. See Synonyms at commit. [Middle English confide, to rely on, from Old French confider, from Latin cōnfidere: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + fīdere, to trust; see bheidh- in Appendix.] — con-fid'er n.

con-fi-dence (kɒn'fɪ-dəns) n. 1. Trust or faith in a person or thing. 2. A trusting relationship: I took them into my confidence. 3. a. That which is confided; a secret: A friend does not betray confidences. b. A feeling of assurance that a confidant will keep a secret: I am telling you this in strict confidence. 4. A feeling of assurance, especially of self-assurance. 5. The state or quality of being certain: I have every confidence in your ability to succeed. — adj. Of, relating to, or involving a swindle or fraud: a confidence scheme; a confidence trickster.

SYNONYMS: confidence, assurance, aplomb, self-confidence, self-possession. These nouns denote a feeling of emotional security resulting from faith in oneself. Confidence is a firm belief in one's powers, abilities, or capacities: "You gain strength, courage and confidence by every experience in which you really stop to look fear in the face" (Eleanor Roosevelt). Assurance even more strongly stresses certainty and can suggest arrogance: How can a nonscientist explain an abstruse theory with such assurance? Aplomb implies calm poise: "It is native personality, and that alone, that endows a man to stand before presidents or generals, or in any distinguished collection, with aplomb" (Walt Whitman). Self-confidence stresses trust in one's own self-sufficiency: "The most vital quality a soldier can possess is self-confidence, utter, complete and bumptious" (George S. Patton). Self-possession implies composure arising from control over one's own reactions: "In life courtesy and self-possession... are the sensible impressions of the free mind, for both arise... from never being swept away, whatever the emotion, into confusion or dullness" (William Butler Yeats). See also Synonyms at trust confidence game (kɒn'fɪ-dəns gām) n. A swindle in which the victim is defrauded after his or her confidence has been won.

confidence interval (kɒn'fɪ-dəns ɪn'tər-vəl) n. A statistical range with a specified probability that a given parameter lies within the range.

confidence limit (kɒn'fɪ-dəns lɪm'ɪt) n. Either of the two numbers that specify the endpoints of a confidence interval.

confidence man (kɒn'fɪ-dəns mæn) n. A man who swindles his victims by using a confidence game.

con-fi-dent (kɒn'fɪ-dənt) adj. 1. Marked by assurance, as of success.

2. Marked by confidence in oneself; self-assured. See Synonyms at sure. 3. Very bold; presumptuous. 4. Obsolete. Confiding; trustful. [Latin cōnfīdēns, cōnfīdent- present participle of cōnfīdere, to rely on. See CONFIDE.] —con'fi-dent-ly adv.

con-fi-den-tial (kɒn'fɪ-dən'shəl) adj. Abbr. conf. 1. Done or communicated in confidence; secret. 2. Entrusted with the confidence of another: a confidential secretary. 3. Denoting confidence or intimacy: a confidential tone of voice. See Synonyms at familiar. 4. Containing secret information, the unauthorized disclosure of which poses a threat to national security. —con'fi-den'ti-al'i-ty (-shē-əl'ɪ-tē), con'fi-den'tial-ness n. —con'fi-den'tial-ly adv.

confidential communication (kɒn'fɪ-dən'shəl kə-myōō'nɪ-kā'shən) n. Law. A statement made to someone, such as one's physician, attorney, priest, or spouse, who cannot be compelled to divulge the information.

con-fid-ing (kən-fɪ'dɪŋ) adj. Having a tendency to confide; trusting.

—con-fid'ing-ly adv. —con-fid'ing-ness n.

con-fig-u-ra-tion (kən-fɪg'yə-rā'shən) n. 1. a. Arrangement of parts or elements. b. The form, as of a figure, determined by the arrangement of its parts or elements. See Synonyms at form. 2. Psychology. Gestalt. 3. Chemistry. The structural arrangement of atoms in a compound or molecule. —con-fig'u-ra-tion-al-ly adv. —con-fig'u-ra'tive, con-fig'u-ra'tion-al adj.

con-fig-u-ra-tion-ism (kən-fɪg'yə-rā'shə-nɪz'əm) n. Gestalt psychology.

con-fig-ure (kən-fɪg'yər) v. tr. con-fig-ured, con-fig-ur-ing, con-fig-ures.

To design, arrange, set up, or shape with a view to specific applications or uses: an internal security vehicle that was configured for rough terrain. [Middle English configuren, from Old French configureur, from Latin cōnfigūrāre: com-, com- + figūrāre, to form (from figūra, shape); see dheigh- in Appendix.]

con-fine (kən-fɪn') v. con-fined, con-fin-ing, con-fines. — v. tr. 1. To keep within bounds; restrict: Please confine your remarks to the issues at hand. See Synonyms at limit. 2. To shut or keep in, especially to imprison. 3. To restrict in movement: The sick child was confined to bed. — v. intr. Archaic. To border. — n. (kɒn'fɪn') 1. confines. a. The limits of a space or an area; the borders: within the confines of one county. b. Restraining elements: wanted to escape the confines of corporate politics and bureaucracy. c. Purview; scope: children who learned to work within the confines of the curriculum; a theory that has transcended the confines of science. 2. a. Archaic. A restriction. b. Obsolete. A prison.

[French confiner, from Old French, from confins, boundaries, ultimately from Latin cōnfīne, from neuter of cōnfīnis, adjoining : com-, com- + fīnis, border.]

—con·fin'·a·ble, con·fine'a·ble adj. —con·fin'er n.

con·fine·ment (kən·fīn'mənt) n. 1. The act of confining or the state of being confined. 2. Lying-in.

con·firm (kən·fīrm') v. tr. con·firmed, con·firm·ing, con·firms. 1. To support or establish the certainty or validity of; verify. 2. To make firmer; strengthen: The recent airplane crash confirms my belief that stronger safety regulations are needed. 3. To make valid or binding by a formal or legal act; ratify. 4. To administer the religious rite of confirmation to. [Middle English confirmen, from Old French confermer, from Latin cōnfirmāre : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + firmāre, to strengthen (from firmus, strong); see dher- in Appendix.]

—con·firm'a·bil'i·ty n. —con·firm'a·ble adj. —con·firm'a·to'ry (-fūr'mə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. —con·firm'er n.

SYNONYMS: confirm, corroborate, substantiate, authenticate, validate, verify. These verbs all mean to affirm the truth, accuracy, or genuineness of something. Confirm generally implies removal of all doubt about something considered uncertain or tentative: “We must never make experiments to confirm our ideas, but simply to control them” (Claude Bernard). Corroborate refers to strengthening or supporting something, such as a statement, by means of the evidence of another: The witness is expected to corroborate the plaintiff's testimony. To substantiate is to establish something by presenting substantial or tangible evidence: “one of the most fully substantiated of historical facts” (James Harvey Robinson). Authenticate implies the removal of doubt about the genuineness of something by the act of an authority or the testimony of an expert: The museum made the mistake of accepting the painting before it had been authenticated. Validate usually implies formal action taken to give legal force to something (validate a deed of sale) but can also refer to establishing the validity of something, such as a theory, claim, or judgment (The divorce validated my parents' original objection to the marriage). Verify implies proving by comparison with an original or with established fact: The bank refused to cash the check until the signature was verified.

con·fir·ma·tion (kōn'fər-mā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of confirming. b. Something that confirms; verification. 2. a. A Christian rite admitting a baptized person to full membership in a church. b. A ceremony in Judaism that marks the completion of a young person's religious training.

- con·firmed (kən-fûrmd') adj. 1. Being firmly settled in habit; inveterate. See Synonyms at chronic. 2. Having been ratified; verified. 3. Having received the rite of confirmation. —con·firm'ed·ly (-fûr'mîd-lē) adv.
- con·fis·ca·ble (kən-fîs'kə-bəl) adj. Subject to confiscation: confiscable goods.
- con·fis·cate (kɔn'fî-skāt') v. tr. con·fis·cat·ed, con·fis·cat·ing, con·fis·cates. 1. To seize (private property) for the public treasury. 2. To seize by or as if by authority. See Synonyms at appropriate. — adj. (kɔn'fî-skāt', kən-fîs'kət) 1. Seized by a government; appropriated. 2. Having lost property through confiscation. [Latin cōnfirmāre, cōnfirmā- : com-, com- + fiscus, treasury.] —con'fis·ca'tion n. —con'fis·ca'tor n. —con·fis'ca·to'ry (kən-fîs'kə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.
- Con·fi·te·or (kən-fē'tē-ər, -ôr') n. A prayer in which confession of sins is made. [Latin Cōnfiteor, I confess, the first word of the prayer, first person sing. present tense of confitēri, to acknowledge. See CONFESS.]
- con·fi·ture (kɔn'fî-chōor') n. A confection, preserve, or other sweetmeat. [French, from Old French, from confit, confection. See CONFIT.]
- con·fla·grant (kən-flā'grənt) adj. Burning intensely; blazing. [Latin cōnflagrāns, cōnflagrānt- present participle of cōnflagrāre, to burn up : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + flagrāre, to burn; see bhel-¹ in Appendix.]
- con·fla·gra·tion (kɔn'flə-grā'shən) n. A large, destructive fire. [Latin cōnflagrātiō, cōnflagrātiōn-, from cōnflagrātus, past participle of cōnflagrāre, to burn up. See CONFLAGRANT.]
- con·flate (kən-flāt') v. tr. con·flat·ed, con·flat·ing, con·flates. 1. To bring together; meld or fuse: “They ingeniously conflated other characters and incidents to provide an opéra-comique setting” (Andrew Porter). 2. To combine (two variant texts, for example) into one whole. [Latin cōnflāre, cōnflāt- : com-, com- + flāre, to blow; see bhlē- in Appendix.] —con·fla'tion n.
- con·flict (kɔn'flîkt') n. 1. A state of open, often prolonged fighting; a battle or war. 2. A state of disharmony between incompatible or antithetical persons, ideas, or interests; a clash. 3. Psychology. A psychic struggle, often unconscious, resulting from the opposition or simultaneous functioning of mutually exclusive impulses, desires, or tendencies. 4. Opposition between characters or forces in a work of drama or fiction, especially opposition that motivates or shapes the action of the plot. — v. intr. con·flict·ed, con·flict·ing, con·flicts (kən-flîkt'). 1. To be in or come into opposition; differ. 2. Archaic. To engage in warfare. [Middle English, from Latin cōnflîctus, collision, from past participle of cōnflîgere, to strike together : com-, com- + flîgere, to strike.] —con·flic'tion n. —con·flic'tive adj. —con·flic'tu·al (kən-flîkt'chōō-əl) adj.

SYNONYMS: conflict, contest, combat, fight, affray. These nouns denote struggle between opposing forces for victory or supremacy. Conflict applies both to open fighting between hostile groups and to a struggle, often an inner struggle, between antithetical forces: “The kind of victory MacArthur had in mind—victory by the bombing of Chinese cities, victory by expanding the conflict to all of China—would have been the wrong kind of victory” (Harry S Truman). “Fortunately analysis is not the only way to resolve inner conflicts. Life itself still remains a very effective therapist” (Karen Horney). Contest can refer either to friendly competition or to a hostile struggle to achieve an objective: an archery contest; a spelling contest; the gubernatorial contest. Combat most commonly implies an encounter between two armed persons or groups: “Alexander had appeared to him, armed for combat” (Connop Thirlwall). Fight usually refers to a clash, physical or figurative, involving individual adversaries: A fight was scheduled between the world boxing champion and the challenger. “There is nothing I love as much as a good fight” (Franklin D. Roosevelt). Affray suggests a public fight or brawl: “Yet still the poachers came... for affrays in woods and on moors with liveried armies of keepers” (Patricia Morison). See also Synonyms at discord con·flict·ed (kən-flɪk'tɪd) adj. Usage Problem. Made uneasy by conflicting impulses.

USAGE NOTE: The adjective conflicted is associated with the jargon of New Age psychology: 92 percent of the Usage Panel rejected its use in the sentence Caught between loyalty to old employees and a recognition of the need to cut costs, many managers are conflicted about the reorganization plan.

conflict of interest (kɒn'flikt' ÷v ÷n'trɪst) n. pl. conflicts of interest. A conflict between the private interests and the public obligations of a person in an official position.

con·flu·ence (kɒn'flʊ-əns) n. 1. a. A flowing together of two or more streams. b. The point of juncture of such streams. c. The combined stream formed by this juncture. 2. A gathering, flowing, or meeting together at one juncture or point: a confluence of artistry, superb choreography, and stage design.

con·flu·ent (kɒn'flʊ-ənt) adj. 1. Flowing together; blended into one. 2. Pathology. Merging or running together so as to form a mass, as sores in a rash. — n. 1. One of two or more confluent streams. 2. A tributary. [Middle English, from Latin cōnfluēns, cōnfluent- present participle of cōnfluere, to flow together : com-, com- + fluere, to flow; see bhleu- in Appendix.]

con·flux (kɒn'flʊks') n. A confluence. [From Latin cōnfluxus, past participle of cōnfluere, to flow together. See CONFLUENT.]

con·fo·cal (kɒn-fō'kəl) adj. Having the same focus or foci. Used of a lens. —con·fo·cal·ly adv.

con·form (kən-fôrm') v. con·formed, con·form·ing, con·forms. — v. intr. 1. To correspond in form or character; be similar. 2. To act or be in accord or agreement; comply. See Synonyms at agree. 3. To act in accordance with current customs or modes. See Synonyms at adapt. — v. tr. To bring into agreement or correspondence; make similar. [Middle English conformen, from Old French conformer, from Latin cōnformāre, to shape after : com-, com- + formāre, to shape (from forma, shape).] —con·form'er n.

con·form·a·ble (kən-fôr'mə-bəl) adj. 1. Corresponding; similar: plans that are conformable to your wishes. 2. Quick to comply; submissive. 3. Geology. Of, relating to, or being strata that are parallel to each other without interruption. —con·form'a·bil'i·ty, con·form'a·ble·ness n. —con·form'a·bly adv.

con·for·mal (kən-fôr'məl) adj. 1. Mathematics. Designating or specifying a mapping of a surface or region upon another surface so that all angles between intersecting curves remain unchanged. 2. Of or relating to a map projection in which small areas are rendered with true shape. [Late Latin cōnformālis, similar : Latin com-, com- + Latin forma, shape.]

con·for·mance (kən-fôr'məns) n. Conformity.

con·for·ma·tion (kɒn'fər-mā'shən) n. 1. The act of conforming or the state of being conformed. 2. The structure or outline of an item or entity, determined by the arrangement of its parts. 3. A symmetrical arrangement of the parts of a thing. 4. One of the spatial arrangements of atoms in a molecule that can come about through free rotation of the atoms about a single chemical bond. —con'for·ma'tion·al adj. —con'for·ma'tion·al·ly adv.

con·form·ist (kən-fôr'mɪst) n. A person who uncritically or habitually conforms to the customs, rules, or styles of a group. — adj. Marked by conformity or convention: “Underneath the image, teenagers today are surprisingly conformist” (Selina S. Guber).

con·form·i·ty (kən-fôr'mɪ-tē) n. pl. con·form·i·ties. 1. Similarity in form or character; agreement: I acted in conformity with my principles. 2. Action or behavior in correspondence with current customs, rules, or styles: conformity to university regulations.

con·found (kən-found', kɒn-) v. tr. con·found·ed, con·found·ing, con·founds. 1. To cause to become confused or perplexed. See Synonyms at puzzle. 2. To fail to distinguish; mix up: confound fiction and fact. 3. To make (something bad) worse: Do not confound the problem by losing your temper. 4. To cause to be ashamed; abash: an invention that confounded the skeptics. 5. To damn. 6. a. To frustrate: picayune demands that all but confounded the peace talks. b. Archaic. To bring to ruination. [Middle English confunden, from Anglo-Norman confundre, from Latin cōnfundere, to mix together, confuse : com-, com- + fundere, to pour; see gheu- in Appendix.] —con·found'er n.

con-found-ed (kən-foun'dɪd, kɒn-) adj. 1. Confused; befuddled: A crowd of confounded bystanders stared at the appalling wreckage. 2. Used as an intensive: a confounded fool. —con-found'ed-ly adv. —con-found'ed-ness n.

con-fra-ter-ni-ty (kɒn'frə-tûr'nĭ-tē) n. pl. con-fra-ter-ni-ties. An association of persons united in a common purpose or profession. [Middle English confraternite, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cōfrāternitās, from cōfrāter, colleague. See CONFRERE.]

con-frere (kɒn'frâr') n. A fellow member of a fraternity or profession; a colleague. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cōfrāter: Latin com-, com- + Latin frāter, brother; see bhrāter- in Appendix.]

con-front (kən-frunt') v. con-front-ed, con-front-ing, con-fronts. — v. tr. 1. To come face to face with, especially with defiance or hostility: I wish to confront my accuser in a court of law. 2. To bring face to face with: The defendant was confronted with incontrovertible evidence of guilt. 3. To come up against; encounter: confronted danger at every turn. — v. intr. To engage in confrontation: "She got no child support. [She] didn't argue or confront" (Gail Sheehy). [French confronter, from Old French, to adjoin, from Medieval Latin cōnfrōntāre: Latin com-, com- + Latin frōns, front-, front.] —con-front'er n. —con-front'-ment n.

con-fron-ta-tion (kɒn'frūn-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of confronting or the state of being confronted, especially a meeting face to face. 2. a. A conflict involving armed forces: a nuclear confrontation. b. Discord or a clash of opinions and ideas: an age of ideological confrontation. 3. A focused comparison: an essay that brought elements of biography, autobiography, and general European history into powerful, meaningful confrontation. —con'fron-ta'tion-al adj. —con'-fron-ta'tion-ist n. —con'fron-ta'tive adj.

Con-fu-cian (kən-fyōō'shən) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Confucius, his teachings, or his followers. — n. An adherent of the teachings of Confucius. —Con-fu'cian-ism n. —Con-fu'cian-ist n.

Con-fu-cius (kən-fyōō'shəs), c. 551-479 B.C. Chinese philosopher whose Analects contain a collection of his sayings and dialogues compiled by disciples after his death.

con-fuse (kən-fyōōz') v. con-fused, con-fus-ing, con-fus-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause to be unable to think with clarity or act with intelligence or understanding; throw off. b. To cause to feel embarrassment. 2. a. To mistake (one thing for another): confused effusiveness with affection. b. To make opaque; blur: "The old labels... confuse debate instead of clarifying it" (Christopher Lasch). c. To assemble without order or sense; jumble. 3. Archaic. To bring to ruination. — v. intr. To make something unclear or incomprehensible: a new tax code that only further confuses. [Middle English confusen, from Old French confus, perplexed, from Latin cōnfūsus, past participle of cōnfundere, to mix together. See CONFOUND.] —con·fus'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: confuse, addle, befuddle, discombobulate, fuddle, muddle, throw. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cause to be unclear in mind or intent”: heavy traffic that confused the novice driver; problems that addle my brain; a question that befuddled even the professor; was discombobulated by the staggering number of possibilities; a plot so complex that it fuddles one’s comprehension; a head that was muddled by endless facts and figures; behavior that really threw me.

con·fused (kən-fyōzd') adj. 1. Being unable to think with clarity or act with understanding and intelligence. 2. a. Lacking logical order or sense: a confused set of instructions. b. Chaotic; jumbled: a confused mass of papers on the floor. —con-fus'ed·ly (-fyōō'zīd-lē) adv. —con-fus'ed·ness n.

con·fu·sion (kən-fyōō'zhən) n. 1. a. The act of confusing or the state of being confused: “To insist... that the plight of two, or six, or 52 individuals outweighs policies in which the credibility of the United States and the security of the Middle East are deeply involved, represents the worst kind of moral confusion” (Moorhead Kennedy). b. An instance of being confused: “Both John Cheever and James Michener... clarify some of the confusions of our times” (Clifton Fadiman). 2. Psychology. Impaired orientation with respect to time, place, or person; a disturbed mental state. —con-fu'sion·al adj.

con·fu·ta·tion (kōn'fyōō-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of confuting. 2. Something that confutes. —con-fu'ta·tive (kən-fyōō'tā-tīv) adj.

con·fute (kən-fyōōt') v. tr. con-fut·ed, con-fut·ing, con-futes. 1. To prove to be wrong or in error; refute decisively. 2. Obsolete. To confound. [Latin cōnfūtāre. See bhau- in Appendix.] —con-fut'a·ble adj. —con-fut'er n.

cong. abbr. Pharmacology. Congius (gallon).

Cong. abbr. 1. Congregational. 2. Congress. 3. Congressional.

con·ga (kōng'gə) n. 1. A dance of Latin-American origin in which the dancers form a long, winding line. 2. Music for this dance. 3. A conga drum. — v. intr. con-gaed, con-ga·ing, con-gas. To perform this dance. [American Spanish (danza) Conga, Congo (dance), from Spanish Congo, of the Congo, from Kongo -kongo, Kongo language and people.]

conga drum (kōng'gə drŭm) n. A tall, usually tapering single-headed drum typically played by beating with the hands.

con game (kōn gām) n. Slang. A confidence game.

con·gé (kōn'zhā', -jā', kōN-zhā') also con-gee (kōn'jē) n. 1. Formal or authoritative permission to depart. 2. An abrupt dismissal. 3. A leave-taking. 4. A formal bow. 5. Architecture. A concave molding. [Middle English conge, and French congé both from Old French congie, from Latin commeātus, from past participle of commeāre, to come and go : com-, com- + meāre, to go; see mei-¹ in Appendix.]

con·geal (kən-jēl') v. con-gealed, con-geal-ing, con-geals. — v. intr.

1. To solidify by or as if by freezing: “My aim... was to take the Hill by storm before... opposition to spending cuts congealed” (David A. Stockman). 2. To coagulate; jell. — v. tr. To cause to solidify or coagulate or to undergo a process likened to solidification or coagulation. See Synonyms at coagulate. [Middle English congelen, from Old French congeler, from Latin congelāre : com-, com- + gelāre, to freeze; see gel- in Appendix.] — con-geal/a-ble adj. — con-geal'er n. — con-geal'ment n.

con-gealed salad (kən-jēld' sāl'əd) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. A molded salad made of flavored gelatin, chopped fruits or vegetables, and sometimes cottage cheese, sour cream, shredded coconut, marshmallows, or chopped nuts.

con·gee (kɔn'jē) n. Variant of congé.

con-ge-la-tion (kɔn'jə-lā'shən) n. The process of congealing or the state of being congealed.

con-ge-ner (kɔn'jə-nər) n. 1. A member of the same kind, class, or group.

2. An organism belonging to the same taxonomic genus as another organism.

[From Latin, of the same race : com-, com- + genus, gener-, race; see genə- in Appendix.] — con'ge-ner'ic (-nēr'ik), con-gen'er-ous (kən-jən'ər-əs, kɔn-)

adj.

con·gen-ial (kən-jēn'yəl) adj. 1. Having the same tastes, habits, or temperament; sympathetic. 2. Of a pleasant disposition; friendly and sociable: a congenial host and hostess. 3. Suited to one's needs or nature; agreeable: congenial surroundings. [Probably from CON- + Latin genius, the personification of one's natural inclinations; see GENIUS.] — con-ge'ni-al/i-ty (-jē'nē-äl'ī-tē), con-gen'ial-ness n. — con-gen'ial-ly adv.

con-gen-i-tal (kən-jən'i-tl) adj. 1. a. Existing at or before birth. b. Acquired at birth or during uterine development, as a result of either hereditary or environmental influences. See Synonyms at innate. 2. Being an essential characteristic as if by nature; inherent: “the congenital American optimism that denies conflicts and imagines all stories having happy endings” (Robert J. Samuelson). [From Latin congenitus : com-, com- + genitus, born, past participle of gignere, to bear; see genə- in Appendix.] — con-gen'i-tal-ly adv.

congenital anomaly (kən-jən'i-tl ə-nōm'ə-lē) n. See birth defect.

congenital myxedema (kən-jən'i-tl mīk'sī-dē'mə) n. See cretinism.

con·ger (kɔng'gər) n. Any of various large, scaleless marine eels of the family Congridae, especially Conger oceanicus, native to Atlantic waters. [Middle English congre, from Old French, probably from Late Latin congrus, from Latin conger, from Greek gongros.]

con·ge·ries (kən-jîr'ēz', kŏn'jə-rēz') n. (used with a sing. verb). A collection; an aggregation: "Our city, it should be explained, is two cities, or more—an urban mass or congeries divided by the river" (John Updike). [Latin congeriēs, from congerere, to heap up. See CONGEST.]

con·gest (kən-jĕst') v. con·gest·ed, con·gest·ing, con·gests. — v. tr.

1. To overfill or overcrowd: Trucks congested the tunnel. 2. Pathology. To cause the accumulation of excessive blood or tissue fluid in (a vessel or an organ). — v. intr. To become congested. [Latin congerere, congest-, to heap up, crowd together : com-, com- + gerere, to carry.] — con·ges'tion n. — con·ges'tive adj.

congestive heart failure (kən-jĕs'tiv härt fāl'yər) n. A condition marked by weakness, edema, and shortness of breath that is caused by the inability of the heart to maintain adequate blood circulation in the peripheral tissues and the lungs.

con·gi·us (kŏn'jĕ-əs) n. pl. con·gi·i (-jĕ-ī'). 1. Abbr. cong. Pharmacology. A gallon. 2. An ancient Roman measure for liquids, equal to about seven eighths of a U.S. gallon (3.3 liters). [Middle English, a liquid measure, from Latin, from Greek konkhion, diminutive of konkhē, konkhos, shellful.]

con·glo·bate (kŏn-glŏ'bāt', kŏng'glŏ-) v. tr. con·glo·bat·ed, con·glo·bat·ing, con·glo·bates. To form into a globe or ball. [Latin conglobāre, conglobāt- : com-, com- + globus, ball.] — con·glo'bate adj. — con'glo·ba'tion n.

con·globe (kən-glŏb') v. tr. con·globed, con·glob·ing, con·globes. To conglobate.

con·glom·er·ate (kən-glŏm'ə-rāt') v. intr. tr. con·glom·er·at·ed, con·glom·er·at·ing, con·glom·er·ates. To form or cause to form into an adhering or rounded mass. — n. (-ər-ĭt) 1. A corporation made up of a number of different companies that operate in diversified fields. 2. A collected heterogeneous mass; a cluster: a city-suburban conglomerate; a conglomerate of color, passion, and artistry. 3. Geology. A rock consisting of pebbles and gravel embedded in cement. — adj. (-ər-ĭt) 1. Gathered into a mass; clustered. 2. Geology. Made up of loosely cemented heterogeneous material. [Latin conglomerāre, conglomerāt- : com-, com- + glomerāre, to wind into a ball (from glomus, ball).] — con·glom'er·at'ic (-ə-rāt'ĭk), con·glom'er·it'ic (-ə-rĭt'ĭk) adj. — con·glom'er·a'tor n.

con·glom·er·a·tion (kən-glŏm'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of conglomerating. b. The state of being conglomerated. 2. An accumulation of miscellaneous things.

con·glu·ti·nate (kən-glŏt'n-āt', kŏn-) v. intr. tr. con·glu·ti·nat·ed, con·glu·ti·nat·ing, con·glu·ti·nates. 1. To become or cause to become stuck or glued together. 2. Medicine. To become or cause to become reunited, as bones or tissues. — adj. Relating to the abnormal adhering of tissues to one another. [Middle English conglutinaten, from Latin conglutināre, conglutināt- : com-, com- + glutināre, to glue (from glūten, glue).] — con·glu·ti·na·tion n.

Con·go (kɔŋg'gō) 1. A country of west-central Africa with a short coastline on the Atlantic Ocean. It was part of French Equatorial Africa before becoming independent in 1960. Brazzaville is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,912,429. 2. See Zaire. — Con'go·lese' (-lēz', -lēś') adj. & n.

con·go dye (kɔŋg'gō dī) n. A nitrogen-containing dye that is usually derived from benzidine.

Congo eel (kɔŋg'gō ēl) n. An eellike amphibian (Amphiuma means) of the southeast United States, having two pairs of tiny, nonfunctioning legs. Although it is almost completely aquatic, it can move overland. Also called Congo snake Congo Free State (kɔŋg'gō frē stāt) See Zaire.

Congo red (kɔŋg'gō rēd) n. A brownish-red powder, $C_{32}H_{22}N_6Na_2O_6S_2$, used in medicine and as a dye, an indicator, and a biological stain.

Congo River (kɔŋg'gō rīv'ər) also Zaire River (zī'îr rīv'ər, zä-îr') A river of central Africa flowing about 4,666 km (2,900 mi) north, west, and southwest through Zaire to the Atlantic Ocean. Its remotest tributaries rise in northern Zambia. For much of its latter course the river forms the border between Zaire and Congo.

Congo snake (kɔŋg'gō snāk) n. See Congo eel.

con·gou (kɔŋg'gō, -gō) n. A grade of Chinese black tea, obtained from the fifth and largest leaf gathered from a shoot tip of a tea plant. [Chinese (Amoy) kong hu (te), elaborately prepared (tea).]

con·grat·u·late (kən-gräch'ə-lāt', -gräj'-, kəŋg-) v. tr. con·grat·u·lat·ed, con·grat·u·lat·ing, con·grat·u·lates. To express joy or acknowledgment, as for the achievement or good fortune of (another). [Latin congrātulārī, congrātulāt- : com-, com- + grātulārī, to rejoice (from grātus, pleasing); see g^werə-² in Appendix.] — con·grat'u·la'tor n. — con·grat'u·la·to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

con·grat·u·la·tion (kən-gräch'ə-lā'shən, -gräj'-, kəŋg-) n. 1. The act of expressing joy or acknowledgment, as for the achievement or good fortune of another. 2. Often congratulations. An expression of such joy or acknowledgment.

con·gre·gant (kɔŋg'grī-gənt) n. One who congregates, especially a member of a group of people gathered for religious worship.

con·gre·gate (kɔŋg'grī-gāt') v. tr. intr. con·gre·gat·ed, con·gre·gat·ing, con·gre·gates. To bring or come together in a group, crowd, or assembly. See Synonyms at gather. — adj. (-gīt) 1. Gathered; assembled. 2. Involving a group: congregate living facilities for senior citizens. [Middle English congregaten, from Latin congregāre, congregāt- : com-, com- + gregāre, to assemble (from grex, greg-, herd); see ger- in Appendix.] —con'gre-ga'tive adj. —con'gre-ga'tive-ness n. —con'gre-ga'tor n.

con·gre·ga·tion (kɔŋg'grī-gā'shən) n. 1. The act of assembling. 2. A body of assembled people or things; a gathering. 3. a. A group of people gathered for religious worship. b. The members of a specific religious group who regularly worship at a church or synagogue. 4. Roman Catholic Church. a. A religious institute in which only simple vows, not solemn vows, are taken. b. A division of the Curia.

con·gre·ga·tion·al (kɔŋg'grī-gā'shə-nəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a congregation. 2. Congregational. Abbr. Cong. Of or relating to Congregationalism or Congregationalists.

con·gre·ga·tion·al·ism (kɔŋg'grī-gā'shə-nə-līz'əm) n. 1. A type of church government in which each local congregation is self-governing.

2. Congregationalism. The system of government and religious beliefs of a Protestant denomination in which each member church is self-governing.

—con'gre-ga'tion-al-ist n.

con·gress (kɔŋg'grīs) n. 1. A formal assembly of representatives, as of various nations, to discuss problems. 2. The national legislative body of a nation, especially a republic. 3. Congress. Abbr. Cong., C. a. The national legislative body of the United States, consisting of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

b. The two-year session of this legislature between elections of the House of Representatives. 4. a. The act of coming together or meeting. b. A single meeting, as of a political party or other group. 5. Sexual intercourse. [Middle English congresse, body of attendants, from Latin congressus, meeting, from past participle of congregāre, to meet : com-, com- + gradī, to go; see ghredh- in Appendix.]

—con·gres'sion·al (kən-grēsh'ə-nəl, kəŋg-) adj. —con·gres'sion·al·ly adv.

Congress boot (kɔŋg'grīs bōot) n. An ankle-high shoe with elastic material in the sides. Also called Congress gaiter [From its former popularity among members of the U.S. Congress.]

Congressional Medal of Honor (kən-grēsh'ə-nəl mēd'l ūv ɔn'ər) n.

The highest U.S. military decoration, awarded in the name of Congress to members of the armed forces for gallantry and bravery beyond the call of duty in action against an enemy.

con·gress·man (kɔŋg'grīs-mən) n. A man who is a member of the U.S. Congress, especially of the House of Representatives.

con·gress·peo·ple (kɔŋg'grīs-pē'pəl) pl.n. The members of the U.S. Congress considered as a group.

con·gress·per·son (kɔŋg'grīs-pûr'sən) n. A congressman or congresswoman.

con·gress·wom·an (kɔŋg'grīs-wōm'ən) n. A woman member of the U.S. Congress, especially of the House of Representatives.

Con·greve (kɔ̃n'grēv', kɔ̃ng'-), William. 1670-1729. English playwright known for his comedies, including Love for Love (1695) and The Way of the World (1700).

con·gru·ence (kɔ̃ng'grōō-əns, kən-grōō'-) n. pl. con·gru·enc·es.

1. Agreement, harmony, conformity, or correspondence: “What an extraordinary congruence of genius and era” (Rita Rack). 2. Mathematics. a. The state of being congruent. b. A statement that two quantities are congruent.

con·gru·en·cy (kɔ̃ng'grōō-ən-sē, kən-grōō'-) n. pl. con·gru·en·cies. Congruence.

con·gru·ent (kɔ̃ng'grōō-ənt, kən-grōō'-) adj. 1. Corresponding; congruous.

2. Mathematics. a. Coinciding exactly when superimposed: congruent triangles.

b. Having a difference divisible by a modulus: congruent numbers. [Middle English, from Latin congruēns, congruent- present participle of congruere, to agree.] —con'gru·ent·ly adv.

con·gru·i·ty (kən-grōō'ī-tē, kɔ̃n-) n. pl. con·gru·i·ties. 1. The quality or fact of being congruous. 2. The quality or fact of being congruent. 3. A point of agreement.

con·gru·ous (kɔ̃ng'grōō-əs) adj. 1. Corresponding in character or kind; appropriate or harmonious. 2. Mathematics. Congruent. [From Latin congruus, from congruere, to agree.] —con'gru·ous·ly adv. —con'gru·ous·ness n.

co·ni ar·te·ri·o·si (kō'nī ār-tīr'ē-ō'sī, kō'nē ār-tīr'ē-ō'sē) n. Plural of conus arteriosus.

con·ic (kɔ̃n'ik) adj. Conical. — n. A conic section. [New Latin cōnicus, from Greek kōnikos, from kōnos, cone. See kō- in Appendix.]

con·i·cal (kɔ̃n'ī-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or shaped like a cone.

conic projection or conical projection (kɔ̃n'ik prə-jèk'shən) n. A method of projecting maps of parts of the earth's spherical surface on a surrounding cone, which is then flattened to a plane surface having concentric circles as parallels of latitude and radiating lines from the apex as meridians.

conic section (kɔ̃n'ik sèk'shən) n. a. The intersection of a right circular cone and a plane, which generates one of a group of plane curves, including the circle, ellipse, hyperbola, and parabola. b. A graph of the general quadratic equation in two variables.

co·nid·i·a (kə-nīd'ē-ə) n. Plural of conidium.

co·nid·i·o·phore (kə-nīd'ē-ə-fôr', -fôr') n. A specialized fungal hypha that produces conidia. [CONIDI(UM) + -PHORE.] —co·nid'·i·oph'or·ous (kə-nīd'ē-ōf'ər-əs) adj.

co·nid·i·um (kə-nīd'ē-əm) n. pl. co·nid·i·a (-ē-ə). An asexually produced fungal spore, formed on a conidiophore. [New Latin, from Greek konis, dust.]

—co·nid'·i·al (-əl) adj.

con·i·fer (kɒn'ə-fər, kō'nə-) n. Any of various mostly needle-leaved or scale-leaved, chiefly evergreen, cone-bearing gymnospermous trees or shrubs such as pines, spruces, and firs. [From New Latin Cōniferae, family name, from Latin, feminine pl. of cōnifer, cone-bearing : cōnus, cone (from Greek kōnos); see kō- in Appendix + -fer, -fer.] —co·nif'er·ous (kō-nīf'ər-əs, kə-) adj.

co·ni·ine (kō'nī-ēn') also co·nin (kō'nīn) or co·nine (-nēn') n. A poisonous, colorless liquid alkaloid, C₅H₁₀NC₃H₇, found in the poison hemlock. [Late Latin cōnium, conium; see CONIUM + *-INE*².]

co·ni·um (kō'nī-əm) n. The poison hemlock. [Late Latin cōnium, from Greek kōneion, probably from kōna, liquid pitch.]

conj. abbr. 1. Conjugation. 2. Conjunction. 3. Conjunctive.

con·jec·tur·al (kən-jĕk'chər-əl) adj. 1. Based on or involving conjecture. See Synonyms at supposed. 2. Tending to conjecture. —con·jec'tur·al·ly adv.

con·jec·ture (kən-jĕk'chər) n. 1. Inference or judgment based on inconclusive or incomplete evidence; guesswork. 2. A statement, an opinion, or a conclusion based on guesswork: The commentators made various conjectures about the outcome of the next election. — v. con·jec·tured, con·jec·tur·ing, con·jec·tures. — v. tr. To infer from inconclusive evidence; guess. — v. intr. To make a conjecture. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin coniectūra, from coniectus, past participle of conicere, to infer : com-, com- + iacere, to throw; see yē- in Appendix.] —con·jec'tur·a·ble adj. —con·jec'tur·a·bly adv.

—con·jec'tur·er n.

SYNONYMS: conjecture, surmise, guess, speculate, infer. These verbs mean to reach a conclusion or judgment on the basis of uncertain evidence. Conjecture implies the formation of a conclusion without sufficient evidence: It was impossible to conjecture from the expression on his face what his reaction was. Surmise suggests a conclusion reached by intuition or by interpretation of slender evidence: He was afraid she might surmise the truth. Guess implies an inference drawn in a haphazard manner and suggests substantial grounds for doubt: We can only guess what will happen next. Speculate stresses a process of reasoning based on inconclusive evidence: Scientists speculate on the origin of the universe. Infer involves reasoning from evidence about which some doubt may be but is not necessarily suggested: She quickly inferred from what I said that I had not heard the news.

con·join (kən-join') v. tr. intr. con·joined, con·join·ing, con·joins. To join or become joined together; unite. [Middle English conjoinen, from Old French conjoindre, conjoign-, from Latin coniungere : com-, com- + iungere, to join; see yeg- in Appendix.] —con·join'er n.

con·joint (kən-joint') adj. 1. Joined together; combined: “social order and prosperity, the conjoint aims of government” (John K. Fairbank). 2. Of, consisting of, or involving two or more combined or associated entities; joint. [Middle English, from Old French, past participle of conjoindre, to conjoin. See CONJOIN.]

—con-joint/ly adv.

con-ju-gal (kɔ̃n'jə-gəl, kən-jōō'-) adj. Of or relating to marriage or the relationship of spouses. [Latin coniugālis, from coniunx, coniug-, spouse, from coniungere, to join in marriage. See CONJOIN.] —con'ju-gal/i-ty (-gəl'i-tē) n.

—con'ju-gal-ly adv.

conjugal rights (kɔ̃n'jə-gəl rīts) pl.n. The rights and privileges arising from the marriage relationship, especially the mutual rights of companionship, aid, and sexual relations.

con-ju-gant (kɔ̃n'jə-gənt) n. Either of a pair of organisms, cells, or gametes undergoing conjugation. [From Latin coniugāns, coniugant- present participle of coniugāre, to unite. See CONJUGATE.]

con-ju-gate (kɔ̃n'jə-gāt') v. con-ju-gat-ed, con-ju-gat-ing, con-ju-gates.

— v. tr. 1. Grammar. To inflect (a verb) in its forms for distinctions such as number, person, voice, mood, and tense. 2. To join together. — v. intr.

1. Biology. To undergo conjugation. 2. Grammar. To be inflected. — adj. (-gīt, -gāt') 1. Joined together, especially in a pair or pairs; coupled. 2. Mathematics & Physics. Inversely or oppositely related with respect to one of a group of otherwise identical properties, especially designating either or both of a pair of complex numbers differing only in the sign of the imaginary term. 3. Chemistry. Pertaining to an acid and a base that are related by the difference of a proton. — n. (-gīt, -gāt') Mathematics & Physics. Either of a pair of conjugate quantities. [Latin coniugāre, coniugāt-, to join together : com-, com- + iugāre, to join (from iugum, yoke); see yeug- in Appendix.] —con'ju-gate/ly adv. —con'ju-ga'tive adj.

—con'ju-ga'tor n.

con-ju-gat-ed protein (kɔ̃n'jə-gā'tid prō'tēn') n. A compound, such as hemoglobin, made up of a protein molecule and a nonprotein prosthetic group.

con-ju-ga-tion (kɔ̃n'jə-gā'shən) n. Abbr. conj. 1. a. The act of conjugating. b. The state of being conjugated. 2. Grammar. a. The inflection of a particular verb. b. A presentation of the complete set of inflected forms of a verb. c. A class of verbs having similar inflected forms. 3. Biology. a. The temporary union of two bacterial cells during which one cell transfers part or all of its genome to the other. b. A process of sexual reproduction in which ciliate protozoans of the same species temporarily couple and exchange genetic material. c. A process of sexual reproduction in certain algae and fungi in which temporary or permanent fusion occurs, resulting in the union of the male and female gametes.

—con'ju-ga'tion-al adj. —con'ju-ga'tion-al-ly adv.

conjugation tube (kɔ̃n'jə-gā'shən tōōb) n. A slender tube in certain bacteria and algae that connects two individuals during conjugation and through which the transfer of genetic material occurs.

con-junct (kən-jŭngkt', kŏn'jŭngkt') adj. 1. Joined together; united. 2. Acting in association; combined: "the conjunct... influences of fire and strong drink" (Thomas Love Peacock). 3. Music. Of or relating to successive tones of the scale. — n. (kŏn'jŭngkt') 1. One that is in conjunction or association with another. 2. Logic. One of the components of a conjunction. [Middle English, from Latin coniunctus, past participle of coniungere, to join together. See CONJOIN.] —con-junct'ly adv.

con-junc-tion (kən-jŭngk'shən) n. 1. a. The act of joining. b. The state of being joined. 2. A joint or simultaneous occurrence; concurrence: the conjunction of historical and economic forces that created a depression. 3. One resulting from or embodying a union; a combination: "He is, in fact, a remarkable conjunction of talents" (Jerry Adler). 4. Abbr. conj. Grammar. A part of speech such as and, but, as, and because that serves to connect words, phrases, clauses, or sentences. 5. Abbr. conj. Astronomy. The position of two celestial bodies on the celestial sphere when they have the same celestial longitude. 6. Logic. a. Abbr. conj. A compound proposition that has components joined by the word and or its symbol and is true only if both or all the components are true. b. The relationship between the components of a conjunction. —con-junc'tion-al adj. —con-junc'tion-al-ly adv.

con-junc-ti-va (kŏn'jŭngk-tī'və) n. pl. con-junc-ti-vas or con-junc-ti-vae (-vē). The mucous membrane that lines the inner surface of the eyelid and the exposed surface of the eyeball. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin (membrāna) coniunctīva, connective (membrane), feminine of Late Latin coniunctīvus, connective, from Latin coniunctus, past participle of coniungere, to join together. See CONJOIN.] —con'junc-ti'val (-vəl) adj.

con-junc-tive (kən-jŭngk'tiv) adj. 1. Joining; connective. 2. Joined together; combined: the conjunctive focus of political opposition. 3. Grammar. a. Of, relating to, or being a conjunction. b. Serving to connect elements of meaning and construction within sentences, as and and since, or between sentences, as therefore. — n. Abbr. conj. Grammar. A connective word, especially a conjunction or conjunctive adverb. —con-junc'tive-ly adv.

conjunctive adverb (kən-jŭngk'tiv əd'vûrb) n. Grammar. A function word that connects two sentences and provides adverbial emphasis, as therefore in This intersection is dangerous; therefore motorists should approach it slowly.

con-junc-ti-vi-tis (kən-jŭngk'tə-vī'tis) n. Pathology. Inflammation of the conjunctiva, characterized by redness and often accompanied by a discharge.

con-junc-ture (kən-jŭngk'chər) n. 1. A combination, as of events or circumstances: "the power that lies in the conjuncture of faith and fatherland" (Conor Cruise O'Brien). 2. A critical set of circumstances; a crisis: "reports on the deteriorating world conjuncture and the disappointment of earlier hopes" (Financial Times).

con·jun·to (kɔ̃n-hōōn'tō) n. pl. con·jun·tos. Music. A dance band, especially in Latin America, featuring brass, percussion, and rhythm instruments. [Spanish, from Latin coniūctus, past participle of coniungere, to join together. See CON·JOIN.] con·ju·ra·tion (kɔ̃n'jə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act or art of conjuring. 2. A magic spell or incantation. 3. A magic trick or magical effect: “a theatrical magician who knows how to make a dance program an evening of fantastic conjurations” (New York Times). 4. Archaic. A solemn appeal; an entreaty.

con·jure (kɔ̃n'jər, kən-jōōr') v. con·jured, con·jur·ing, con·jures. — v. tr. 1. a. To summon (a devil or spirit) by magical or supernatural power. b. To influence or effect by or as if by magic: tried to conjure away the doubts that beset her. 2. a. To call or bring to mind; evoke: “Arizona conjures up an image of stark deserts for most Americans” (American Demographics). b. To imagine; picture: “a sight to store away, then conjure up someday when they were no longer together” (Nelson DeMille). 3. Obsolete. To call on or entreat solemnly, especially by an oath. — v. intr. 1. To perform magic tricks, especially by sleight of hand. 2. a. To summon a devil by magic or supernatural power. b. To practice black magic. 3. Obsolete. To conspire. [Middle English conjuren, from Old French conjurer, to use a spell, from Late Latin coniūrāre, to pray by something holy, from Latin, to swear together : com-, com- + iūrāre, to swear; see yewes- in Appendix.]

con·jur·er also con·jur·or (kɔ̃n'jər-ər, kŭn'-'-) n. 1. One that performs magic tricks; a magician. 2. A sorcerer or sorceress.

conjure woman (kɔ̃n'jər wōōm'ən) n. Lower Southern U.S. A Black woman who practices voodoo.

con·jur·or (kɔ̃n'jər-ər, kŭn'-'-) n. Variant of conjurer.

conk¹ (kɔ̃ŋk) n. 1. Slang. a. The head. b. A blow, especially on the head. 2. Chiefly British. The human nose. — v. conked, conk·ing, conks. Slang. — v. tr. To hit, especially on the head. — v. intr. 1. To stop functioning; fail: The engine conked out on the final lap. 2. To fall asleep, especially suddenly or heavily: conked out on the couch watching television. 3. To pass out; faint. 4. To die. [Origin unknown.]

conk² (kɔ̃ŋk) n. A hard, shelflike, spore-bearing structure of certain wood-decaying fungi, found on stumps, logs, or trees. [Perhaps alteration of CONCH.] conk³ (kɔ̃ŋk) n. A hairstyle in which the hair is straightened, usually by chemical means. Also called *process*¹ — v. tr. conked, conk·ing, conks. To straighten (tightly curled hair) usually by chemical means. [Perhaps alteration of congolene, substance for straightening hair.]

Conk·ling (kɔ̃ŋk'lɪŋ), Roscoe. 1829-1888. American politician who resigned from the U.S. Senate (1881) as a protest against President James A. Garfield's interference in New York patronage politics.

con man (kɒn mæn) n. Slang. A confidence man.

conn (kɒn) v. & n. Nautical. Variant of con³.

Conn. abbr. Connecticut.

Con-nacht (kɒn'ət, -əʔt) also Con-naught (-ô't') A historical region of west-central Ireland. An ancient native kingdom, it was dominated by the O'Connor family in the 11th and 12th centuries.

con-nate (kɒn'āt', kɒ-nāt') adj. 1. Existing at birth or from the beginning; inborn or inherent. 2. Originating at the same time; related. 3. Being in close accord or sympathy; congenial: "In the wilderness, I find something more dear and connate than in streets and villages" (Ralph Waldo Emerson). 4. Biology. United to a structure of the same kind, as one petal to another: a connate tomato flower. [Late Latin connātus, past participle of connāscī, to be born with : Latin com-, com- + Latin nāscī, to be born; see genə- in Appendix.] —con'nate'ly adv. —con'nate'ness n.

con-nat·u·ral (kə-näch'ər-əl, kɒ-) adj. 1. Innate; inborn. 2. Related or similar in nature; cognate. [Medieval Latin connātūrālis : Latin com-, com- + Latin nātūrālis, by birth; see NATURAL.] —con-nat'u·ral'i·ty (-ə-rāl'ī-tē) n. —con-nat'u·ral·ly adv. —con-nat'u·ral·ness n.

Con-naught (kɒn'ô't') See Connacht.

con-nect (kə-někt') v. con-nect·ed, con-nect·ing, con-nects. — v. tr. 1. To join or fasten together. 2. To associate or consider as related: no reason to connect the two events. See Synonyms at join. 3. To join to or by means of a communications circuit: Please connect me to the number in San Diego. 4. To plug in (an electrical cord or device) to an outlet. — v. intr. 1. To become joined or united: two streams connecting to form a river. 2. To be scheduled so as to provide continuing service, as between airplanes or buses. 3. To establish a rapport or relationship; relate: The candidate failed to connect with the voters. 4. Sports. To hit or play a ball successfully: The batter connected for a home run. [Middle English connecten, from Latin cōnectere : cō-, co- + nectere, to bind; see ned- in Appendix.] —con-nect'i·ble, con-nect'a·ble adj. —con-nec'tor, con-nect'er n.

con-nect·ed (kə-něk'tid) adj. 1. Joined or fastened together. 2. Mathematics. Having a continuous path between any two points. Used of a curve, set, or surface. 3. Related; associated. 4. Logically or intelligibly ordered or presented; coherent: a stroke that left him incapable of connected speech. 5. Associated with or related to persons of influence or position: a young photographer who was well connected in the fashion world. —con-nect'ed·ly adv. —con-nect'ed·ness n.

Con-nect·i·cut (kə-nět'ī-kət) Abbr. CT, Conn., Ct. A state of the northeast United States. It was admitted as one of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1788. Connecticut's coastline was first explored by Dutch navigators after 1614, and in 1635 colonists from Massachusetts Bay began to settle in the Connecticut River valley. The Fundamental Orders, a constitution based on the consent of the governed, was adopted by the colony in 1639. Hartford is the capital and Bridgeport the largest city. Population, 3,295,669.

Connecticut River (kə-nĕt'ī-kət rĭv'ər) A river of the northeast United States flowing about 655 km (407 mi) from northern New Hampshire southward along the Vermont-New Hampshire border and through central Massachusetts and Connecticut to its outlet on Long Island Sound.

con·nect·ing rod (kə-nĕk'tĭŋ rŏd) n. A rod that transmits motion or power from one moving part to another, especially the rod connecting the crankshaft of an automobile to a piston. Also called pitman con·nec·tion (kə-nĕk'shən) n. Abbr. con. 1. a. The act of connecting. b. The state of being connected. 2. One that connects; a link: a faulty connection in the circuit. 3. An association or a relationship: There appeared to be no connection between the two crimes. 4. The logical or intelligible ordering of words or ideas; coherence. 5. Reference or relation to something else; context: In this connection, the agreement can be seen as a step toward peace. 6. A person, especially one of influence or position, with whom one is associated, as by kinship, interests in common, or marriage: used her connections to land a job. 7. A conveyance or scheduled run providing continuing service between means of transportation: missed my connection in Atlanta. 8. A line of communication between two points in a telephone or similar wired system. 9. Slang. a. A drug dealer. b. A purchase of illegal drugs. —con·nec'tion·al adj.

con·nec·tive (kə-nĕk'tĭv) adj. Serving or tending to connect. — n. 1. One that connects. 2. Grammar. A word, such as a conjunction, that connects words, phrases, clauses, and sentences. 3. Botany. The portion of a stamen that connects the halves of an anther. —con·nec'tive·ly adv. —con'nec'tiv'i·ty (kŏn'ĕk-tĭv'ī-tē) n.

connective tissue (kə-nĕk'tĭv tĭsh'ōō) n. Tissue arising chiefly from the embryonic mesoderm that is characterized by a highly vascular matrix and includes collagenous, elastic, and reticular fibers, adipose tissue, cartilage, and bone. It forms the supporting and connecting structures of the body.

connect time (kə-nĕkt' tĭm) n. Computer Science. The elapsed time during which a user of a remote terminal is connected with a time-sharing system.

Con·nel·ly (kŏn'ə-lē), Marcus Cook. Known as “Marc.” 1890-1980. American playwright, producer, and director who won a Pulitzer Prize for The Green Pastures (1930), a play based on Southern Black interpretations of biblical stories.

Con·ne·ma·ra (kŏn'ə-mär'ə) A region of western Ireland on the coast of the Atlantic Ocean. The area is noted for its peat bogs and mountainous terrain.

Con·ners·ville (kŏn'ərz-vĭl') A city of east-central Indiana east of Indianapolis. It was founded in 1813. Population, 15,550.

con·nex·ion (kə-nĕk'shən) n. Chiefly British. Variant of connection.

con·ning tower (kɔ̃n'ɪŋ tou'ər) n. 1. A raised, enclosed observation post in a submarine, often used as a means of entrance and exit. 2. The armored pilot-house of a warship. [From CON³.]

con·nip·tion (kə-nɪp'shən) n. Informal. A fit of violent emotion, such as anger or panic. Also called conniption fit [Origin unknown.]

con·niv·ance also con·niv·ence (kə-nī'vəns) n. 1. The act of conniving. 2. Law. Knowledge of and tacit consent to the commission of an illegal act by another.

con·nive (kə-nīv') v. intr. con·nived, con·niv·ing, con·nives. 1. To cooperate secretly in an illegal or wrongful action; collude: The dealers connived with customs officials to bring in narcotics. 2. To scheme; plot. 3. To feign ignorance of or fail to take measures against a wrong, thus implying tacit encouragement or consent: The guards were suspected of conniving at the prisoner's escape. [Latin cōnīvēre, connīvēre, to close the eyes.] —con·niv'er n. —con·niv'er·y n.

con·niv·ence (kə-nī'vəns) n. Variant of connivance.

con·ni·vent (kə-nī'vənt) adj. Biology. Converging and touching but not fused, as stamens or an insect's wings. [Latin connīvēns, connīvent- present participle of connīvēre, to be tightly closed.]

con·nois·seur (kɔ̃n'ə-sûr', -sōr') n. 1. A person with expert knowledge or training, especially in the fine arts. 2. A person of informed and discriminating taste: a connoisseur of fine wines. [Obsolete French, from Old French connoisseur, from connoistre, to know, from Latin cognōscere, to learn, know. See COGNITION.] —con'nois·seur'ship' n.

Con·nol·ly (kɔ̃n'ə-lē), Maureen Catherine. Known as "Little Mo." 1934–1969. American tennis player who was the first to win the grand slam of U.S., British, French, and Australian women's championships (1953).

Con·nors (kɔ̃n'ərz), James Scott. Known as "Jimmy." Born 1952. American tennis player who twice won both the U.S. and Wimbledon men's singles titles (1974 and 1982) and also won the U.S. title in 1976, 1978, and 1983.

con·no·ta·tion (kɔ̃n'ə-tā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of connoting. 2. a. An idea or meaning suggested by or associated with a word or thing: Hollywood holds connotations of romance and glittering success. b. The set of associative implications constituting the general sense of a word in addition to its literal sense. 3. Logic. The set of attributes constituting the meaning of a term; intension. —con'no·ta'tive adj. —con'no·ta'tive·ly adv.

con·note (kə-nōt') v. tr. con·not·ed, con·not·ing, con·notes. 1. To suggest or imply in addition to literal meaning: "The term 'liberal arts' connotes a certain elevation above utilitarian concerns" (George F. Will). See Usage Note at denote. 2. To have as a related or attendant condition: For a political leader, hesitation is apt to connote weakness. [Medieval Latin connotāre, to mark along with : Latin com-, com- + Latin notāre, to mark (from nota, mark); see gnō- in Appendix.]

con·nu·bi·al (kə-nōō'bē-əl, -nyōō'-) adj. Relating to marriage or the married state; conjugal. [Latin cōnūbiālis, from cōnūbium, marriage : com-, com- + nūbere, to marry.] —con·nu'bi·al·ism n. —con·nu'bi·al'ity (-əl'ī-tē) n. —con·nu'bi·al·ly adv.

co·no·dont (kō'nə-dōnt', kōn'ə-) n. Paleontology. A Paleozoic microfossil usually having a toothlike shape and considered to be the remains of an extinct marine organism. [Greek kōnos, cone; see kō- in Appendix + -ODONT.]

co·noid (kō'noid') also co·noi·dal (kō-noid'/l) adj. Shaped like a cone. —co'noid n.

con·quer (kɔŋg'kær) v. con·quered, con·quer·ing, con·quers. — v. tr.

1. To defeat or subdue by force, especially by force of arms. 2. To gain or secure control of by or as if by force of arms: scientists battling to conquer disease; a singer who conquered the operatic world. 3. To overcome or surmount by physical, mental, or moral force: I finally conquered my fear of heights. See Synonyms at defeat. — v. intr. To be victorious; win. [Middle English conqueren, from Old French conquerre, from Vulgar Latin conquaerere*, from Latin conquīrere, to procure : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + quaerere, to seek.] —con'quer·a·ble adj. —con'quer·or, con'quer·er n.

con·quest (kɔŋ'kwɛst', kɔŋg'-) n. 1. The act or process of conquering. See Synonyms at victory. 2. Something, such as territory, acquired by conquering. 3. One that has been captivated or overcome: The pianist made a conquest of every audience for which she played. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin conquaesita*, feminine past participle of conquaerere*. See CONQUER.] con·qui·an (kɔŋg'kē-ən) n. Games. Variant of cooncan.

con·quis·ta·dor (kɔŋ-kwɪs'tə-dôr', kɔŋg-kē'stə-) *n. pl. con·quis·ta·dors or con·quis·ta·dor·es (-dôr'ās, -ēz). A conqueror, especially one of the 16th-century Spanish soldiers who defeated the Indian civilizations of Mexico, Central America, or Peru. [Spanish, from conquistar, to conquer, from Vulgar Latin conquīsītāre*, frequentative of Latin conquīrere. See CONQUER.]*

Con·rad (kɔŋ'rād'), Joseph. 1857-1924. Polish-born British novelist noted as a master of atmosphere and narrative technique. His works include Lord Jim (1900), Heart of Darkness (1902), and Nostromo (1904).

Con·roe (kɔŋ'rō) A city of southeast Texas north of Houston. Oil was discovered in the area in 1932. Population, 27,610.

cons. abbr. 1. a. Consigned. b. Consignment. 2. Consonant. 3. Also Cons.. Constable. 4. Constitution; constitutional. 5. Construction. 6. Also Cons.. Consul.

con·san·guin·e·ous (kɔŋ'sän-gwɪn'ē-əs, -säng-) also con·san·guine (kɔŋ-säng'gwɪn, kən-) adj. Of the same lineage or origin; having a common ancestor. [From Latin cōnsanguineus : com-, com- + sanguineus, of blood; see SANGUINE.] —con'san·guin'e·ous·ly adv.

con·san·guin·i·ty (kɒn'sǎn-gwɪn'ĩ-tē, -sǎng-) n. pl. con·san·guin·i·ties.

1. Relationship by blood or by a common ancestor. 2. A close affinity or connection.

con·science (kɒn'shəns) n. 1. a. The awareness of a moral or ethical aspect to one's conduct together with the urge to prefer right over wrong: Let your conscience be your guide. b. A source of moral or ethical judgment or pronouncement: a document that serves as the nation's conscience. c. Conformity to one's own sense of right conduct: a person of unflagging conscience. 2. The part of the superego in psychoanalysis that judges the ethical nature of one's actions and thoughts and then transmits such determinations to the ego for consideration.

3. Obsolete. Consciousness. —idiom. in (all good) conscience. In all truth or fairness. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cōnscientia, from cōnsciēns, cōnscient- present participle of cōnscīre, to be conscious of : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + scīre, to know; see skei- in Appendix.] —con'science·less adj.

conscience clause (kɒn'shəns klōz) n. A clause in a law that relieves persons whose conscientious or religious scruples forbid compliance.

conscience money (kɒn'shəns mʌn'ē) n. Money paid in compensation or atonement, as for a dishonest or morally objectionable act.

con·sci·en·tious (kɒn'shē-ēn'shəs) adj. 1. Guided by or in accordance with the dictates of conscience; principled: a conscientious decision to speak out about injustice. 2. Thorough and assiduous: a conscientious worker; a conscientious effort to comply with the regulations. [Obsolete French conscientieux, from Medieval Latin cōnscientiōsus, from Latin cōnscientia, conscience. See CONSCIENCE.]

—con'sci·en'tious·ly adv. —con'sci·en'tious·ness n.

conscientious objector (kɒn'shē-ēn'shəs ɒb-ʃɪk'tər) n. Abbr. CO, C.O.

One who on the basis of religious or moral principles refuses to bear arms or participate in military service.

con·scio·na·ble (kɒn'shə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Acceptable or permissible according to conscience: "Ignoring [disadvantaged minorities] is no more conscionable today than it was in the riot-scorched America of 20 years ago" (Christian Science Monitor). 2. Conscientious; principled. [Obsolete consciōns (variant of CONSCIENCE) + -ABLE.]

con·scious (kɒn'shəs) adj. 1. a. Having an awareness of one's environment and one's own existence, sensations, and thoughts. See Synonyms at aware. b. Mentally perceptive or alert; awake: The patient remained fully conscious after the local anesthetic was administered. 2. Capable of thought, will, or perception: The development of conscious life on the planet. 3. Subjectively known or felt: conscious remorse. 4. Intentionally conceived or done; deliberate: a conscious insult; made a conscious effort to speak more clearly. 5. Inwardly attentive or sensible; mindful: was increasingly conscious of being stared at on the street.

6. Especially aware of or preoccupied with. Often used in combination: a cost- conscious approach to further development; a health-conscious diet. — n. In psychoanalysis, the component of waking awareness perceptible by a person at any given instant; consciousness. [From Latin cōnsciūs : com-, com- + scīre, to know; see skei- in Appendix.] — con/scious·ly adv.

con·scious·ness (kɒn/'shəs-nɪs) n. 1. The state or condition of being conscious. 2. A sense of one's personal or collective identity, especially the complex of attitudes, beliefs, and sensitivities held by or considered characteristic of an individual or a group: Love of freedom runs deep in the national consciousness. 3. a. Special awareness or sensitivity: class consciousness; race consciousness. b. Alertness to or concern for a particular issue or situation: a movement aimed at raising the general public's consciousness of social injustice. 4. In psychoanalysis, the conscious.

con·scious·ness·rais·ing (kɒn/'shəs-nɪs-rā'zɪŋ) n. 1. A process, as by group therapy, of achieving greater awareness of one's needs in order to fulfill one's potential as a person. 2. A method for making people aware of a political or social issue, especially discrimination or injustice. — con/scious·ness·rais'er n. — con/scious·ness·rais'ing adj.

con·script (kɒn/'skrɪpt') n. One compulsorily enrolled for service, especially in the armed forces; a draftee. — adj. Enrolled compulsorily; drafted. — v. tr.

con·script·ed, con·script·ing, con·scripts (kən-skrɪpt'). To enroll compulsorily into service; draft. [Latin cōnscriptus, past participle of cōnscrībere, to enroll : com-, com- + scrībere, to write; see skribh- in Appendix.]

con·scrip·tion (kən-skrɪp'shən) n. 1. Compulsory enrollment, especially for the armed forces; draft. 2. A monetary payment exacted by a government in wartime.

con·se·crate (kɒn/'sɪ-krāt') v. tr. con·se·crat·ed, con·se·crat·ing, con·se·crates. 1. To declare or set apart as sacred: consecrate a church. 2. a. To produce the ritual transformation of (the elements of the Eucharist) into the body and blood of Jesus. b. To sanctify (bread and wine) for use in Communion. c. To initiate (a priest) into the order of bishops. 3. To dedicate solemnly to a service or goal. See Synonyms at devote. 4. To make venerable; hallow: a tradition consecrated by time. — adj. Dedicated to a sacred purpose; sanctified. [Middle English consecraten, from Latin cōnsecrāre, cōnsecrāt- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sacrāre, to make sacred (from sacer, sacr-, sacred); see sak- in Appendix.] — con/se·cra'tive adj. — con/se·cra'tor n. — con/se·cra-to'ry (-krə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

con·se·cra·tion (kɒn/'sɪ-krā'shən) n. 1. The act, process, or ceremony of consecrating. 2. The state of being consecrated.

con·se·cu·tion (kɒn/'sɪ-kyōō'shən) n. 1. A sequence or succession. 2. Logic. The relation of consequent to antecedent; deduction. [Middle English consecu- cioun, attainment, from Latin cōnsecūtiō, cōnsecūtiōn-, orderly sequence, from cōnsecūtus, past participle of cōnsequī, to follow closely. See CONSEQUENT.]

con·sec·u·tive (kən-sĕk'yə-tĭv) adj. 1. Following one after another without interruption; successive: was absent on three consecutive days; won five consecutive games on the road. 2. Marked by logical sequence. 3. Grammar. Expressing consequence or result: a consecutive clause. [French consécutif, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cōnsecūtīvus, from cōnsecūtus, past participle of Latin cōnsequī, to follow closely. See CONSEQUENT.] —con·sec'u·tive·ly adv.

—con·sec'u·tive·ness n.

con·sen·su·al (kən-sĕn'shōō-əl) adj. 1. Of or expressing a consensus: a consensual decision. 2. a. Law. Existing or entered into by mutual consent without formalization by document or ceremony: a consensual marriage; a consensual contract. b. Involving the willing participation of both or all parties, especially in an illegal transaction or practice: the consensual crimes of prostitution, drug abuse, and illegal gambling. 3. Physiology. a. Of or relating to a reflexive response of one body structure following stimulation of another, such as the concurrent constriction of one pupil in response to light shined in the other. b. Of or relating to involuntary movement of a body part accompanying voluntary movement of another. —con·sen'su·al·ly adv.

con·sen·sus (kən-sĕn'səs) n. 1. An opinion or position reached by a group as a whole or by majority will: The voters' consensus was that the measure should be adopted. 2. General agreement or accord: government by consensus. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: consensus politics; consensus management. [Latin, from past participle of cōnseñtīre, to agree. See CONSENT.]

USAGE NOTE: Many grammarians have maintained that the expression consensus of opinion is redundant, inasmuch as consensus itself denotes a judgment about which there is general agreement. Consensus of opinion has often been used by reputable writers, however, and has sometimes been defended on the grounds that a consensus may involve attitudes other than opinions; thus, one may speak of a consensus of beliefs, or a consensus of usage. Nonetheless, the qualifying phrase can usually be omitted with no loss of clarity. The sentence It was the consensus of opinion among the sportswriters that the game should not have been played says nothing that is not said by It was the consensus of the sportswriters that the game should not have been played. • Expressions such as overall consensus and general consensus are harder to defend against the charge of redundancy. In the most recent survey, overall consensus was judged redundant by 95 percent of the members of the Usage Panel. See Usage Note at redundancy.

con·sent (kən-sĕnt) v. intr. con·sent·ed, con·sent·ing, con·sents. 1. To give assent, as to the proposal of another; agree. See Synonyms at assent.

2. Archaic. To be of the same mind or opinion. — n. 1. Acceptance or approval of what is planned or done by another; acquiescence. See Synonyms at permission. 2. Agreement as to opinion or a course of action: She was chosen by common consent to speak for the group. [Middle English consenten, from Old French consentir, from Latin cōsentīre: com-, com- + sentīre, to feel; see sent- in Appendix.] — con-sent'er n.

con-sen-ta-ne-ous (kɒn'sɛn-tā'nē-əs) adj. 1. Manifesting agreement; accordant. 2. Unanimous. [From Latin cōsentāneus, from cōsentīre, to agree. See CONSENT.] — con-sen'ta-ne'i-ty (kən-sɛn'tə-nē'ī-tē), con'sen-ta'ne-ous-ness n. — con'sen-ta'ne-ous-ly adv.

consent decree (kən-sɛnt' dī-krē') n. Law. A judicial decree expressing a voluntary agreement between parties to a suit, especially an agreement by a defendant to cease activities alleged by the government to be illegal in return for an end to the charges.

con-se-quence (kɒn'si-kwɛns', -kwəns) n. 1. Something that logically or naturally follows from an action or condition. See Synonyms at effect. 2. The relation of a result to its cause. 3. A logical conclusion or inference. 4. Importance in rank or position: scientists of consequence. 5. Significance; importance: an issue of consequence. See Synonyms at importance. — idiom. in consequence. As a result; consequently.

con-se-quent (kɒn'si-kwɛnt', -kwənt) adj. 1. a. Following as a natural effect, result, or conclusion: tried to prevent an oil spill and the consequent damage to wildlife. b. Following as a logical conclusion. 2. Logically correct or consistent. 3. Geology. Having a position or direction determined by the original form or slope of the earth's surface: a consequent river; a consequent valley. — n. 1. Logic. The conclusion, as of a syllogism or a conditional sentence. 2. The second term of a ratio. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cōsequēns, cōsequent- present participle of cōsequī, to follow closely : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sequī, to follow; see sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

con-se-quen-tial (kɒn'si-kwɛn'shəl) adj. 1. Following as an effect, result, or conclusion; consequent. 2. Having important consequences; significant: "The year's only really consequential legislation was the reform of Social Security" (New York Times). 3. a. Important; influential: a consequential figure in the academic community. b. Pompous; self-important. — con'se-quen'ti-al/i-ty (-shē-äl'ī-tē), con'se-quen'tial-ness n. — con'se-quen'tial-ly adv.

con-se-quent-ly (kɒn'si-kwɛnt'lē, -kwənt-lē) adv. As a result; therefore.

con-ser-van-cy (kən-sûr'vən-sē) n. pl. con-ser-van-cies. 1. Conservation, especially of natural resources. 2. a. An organization dedicated to the conservation of wildlife and wildlife habitats in the United States. b. Chiefly British. A commission supervising fisheries and navigation.

con·ser·va·tion (kɔ̃n'sûr-vā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of conserving. 2. a. Preservation from loss, damage, or neglect: Valuable manuscripts were saved from deterioration under the program of library conservation. b. The controlled use and systematic protection of natural resources, such as forests, soil, and water systems. 3. The maintenance of a physical quantity, such as energy or mass, during a physical or chemical change. —con'ser·va'tion-al adj.

con·ser·va·tion·ist (kɔ̃n'sûr-vā'shə-nĭst) n. One that practices or advocates conservation, especially of natural resources.

conservation of charge (kɔ̃n'sûr-vā'shən ÷v çhärj) n. A principle stating that the total electric charge of an isolated system remains constant regardless of changes within the system.

conservation of energy (kɔ̃n'sûr-vā'shən ÷v ěn'ər-jē) n. A principle stating that the total energy of an isolated system remains constant regardless of changes within the system.

conservation of mass (kɔ̃n'sûr-vā'shən ÷v mäs) n. A principle in classical physics stating that the total mass of an isolated system is unchanged by interaction of its parts.

conservation of momentum (kɔ̃n'sûr-vā'shən ÷v mō-mĕn'təm) n. A principle stating that the total linear momentum of an isolated system remains constant regardless of changes within the system.

con·ser·va·tism (kən-sûr'və-tĭz'əm) n. 1. The inclination, especially in politics, to maintain the existing or traditional order. 2. A political philosophy or attitude emphasizing respect for traditional institutions, distrust of government activism, and opposition to sudden change in the established order.

3. Conservatism. The principles and policies of the Conservative Party in the United Kingdom or of the Progressive Conservative Party in Canada. 4. Caution or moderation, as in behavior or outlook.

con·ser·va·tive (kən-sûr'və-tĭv) adj. 1. Favoring traditional views and values; tending to oppose change. 2. Traditional or restrained in style: a conservative dark suit. 3. Moderate; cautious: a conservative estimate. 4. a. Of or relating to the political philosophy of conservatism. b. Belonging to a conservative party, group, or movement. 5. Conservative. Of or belonging to the Conservative Party in the United Kingdom or the Progressive Conservative Party in Canada. 6. Conservative. Of or adhering to Conservative Judaism. 7. Tending to conserve; preservative: the conservative use of natural resources. — n. 1. One favoring traditional views and values. 2. A supporter of political conservatism.

3. Conservative. Abbr. C. A member or supporter of the Conservative Party in the United Kingdom or the Progressive Conservative Party in Canada. 4. Archaic. A preservative agent or principle. —con·ser'va-tive-ly adv.

—con·ser'va-tive-ness n.

Conservative Judaism (kən-sûr'və-tiv jōō'dē-iz'əm) n. The branch of Judaism that allows for modifications in Jewish law when authorized by the Conservative rabbinate.

Conservative Party (kən-sûr'və-tiv pär'tē) n. A major political party of the United Kingdom, characterized by moderate progressivism.

con-ser-va-tize (kən-sûr'və-tīz') v. tr. con-ser-va-tized, con-ser-va-tiz-ing, con-ser-va-tizes. To make conservative or more conservative: "He has prepared himself by... conservatizing his politics" (Peter Goldman).

[CONSERVATIVE + -IZE.]

con-ser-va-tor (kən-sûr'və-tər, kǒn'sər-vā'tər) n. 1. A person in charge of maintaining or restoring valuable items, as in a museum or library. 2. One that conserves or preserves from injury, violation, or infraction; a protector. 3. Law. One that is responsible for the person and property of an incompetent.

—con-ser'va-to'ri-al (-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj. —con-ser'va-tor-ship' n.

con-ser-va-to-ry (kən-sûr'və-tôr'ē, -tōr'ē) n. pl. con-ser-va-to-ries. 1. A greenhouse, especially one in which plants are arranged aesthetically for display, as at a botanical garden. 2. A school of music or dramatic art.

con-serve (kən-sûrv') v. con-served, con-serv-ing, con-serves. — v. tr. 1. a. To protect from loss or harm; preserve: calls to conserve our national heritage in the face of bewildering change. b. To use carefully or sparingly, avoiding waste: kept the thermostat lower to conserve energy. 2. To keep (a quantity) constant through physical or chemical reactions or evolutionary changes. 3. To preserve (fruits) with sugar. — v. intr. To economize: tried to conserve on fuel during the long winter. — n. (kǒn'sûrv') A jam made of fruits stewed in sugar. [Middle English conserven, from Old French conserver, from Latin cōservāre: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + servāre, to preserve; see ser⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—con-serv'a-ble adj. —con-serv'er n.

con-sid-er (kən-sīd'ər) v. con-sid-ered, con-sid-er-ing, con-sid-ers. — v. tr. 1. To think carefully about. 2. To think or deem to be; regard as. See Usage Note at as¹. 3. To form an opinion about; judge: considers waste to be criminal. 4. To take into account; bear in mind: Her success is not surprising if you consider her excellent training. 5. To show consideration for: failed to consider the feelings of others. 6. To esteem; regard. 7. To look at thoughtfully. — v. intr. To think carefully; reflect: Give me time to consider. [Middle English consideren, from Old French, from Latin cōnsiderāre: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sīdus, sīder-, star.] —con-sid'er-er n.

SYNONYMS: consider, deem, regard, account, reckon. These verbs refer to holding opinions or views that are based on evaluation. Consider suggests objective reflection and reasoning: She is considered an intelligent woman. He considers success of little importance. Deem is more subjective through its emphasis on judgment as distinguished from contemplation: The faculty deems the essay to be by far the best one submitted. Regard often implies a personal attitude: I regard your apology as the end of the matter. Account and reckon in this sense are rather literary in flavor and imply calculated judgment: “I account no man to be a philosopher who attempts to do more” (John Henry Newman). “I cannot reckon you as an admirer” (Nathaniel Hawthorne).

con·sid·er·a·ble (kən-sīd'ər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. Large in amount, extent, or degree: a writer of considerable influence. 2. Worthy of consideration; significant: The economy was a considerable issue in the campaign. — n. Informal. A considerable amount, extent, or degree. —con·sid'er·a·bly adv.

con·sid·er·ate (kən-sīd'ər-īt) adj. 1. Having or marked by regard for the needs or feelings of others. See Synonyms at thoughtful. 2. Characterized by careful thought; deliberate. [Middle English, observed, from Latin cōnsiderātus, past participle of cōnsiderāre, to consider. See CONSIDER.] —con·sid'er·ate·ly adv. —con·sid'er·ate·ness n.

con·sid·er·a·tion (kən-sīd'ər-rā'shən) n. 1. a. Careful thought; deliberation: We will give your proposal consideration. b. A result of considering; an opinion or a judgment: Is it your consideration that I should apply? 2. A factor to be considered in forming a judgment or decision: Safety is the most important consideration in choosing a car. 3. A treatment or account: The essay begins with a brief consideration of the history of the problem. 4. Thoughtful concern for others; solicitude. 5. High regard; esteem. 6. Payment given in exchange for a service rendered; recompense: agreed to do it for a small consideration. 7. Law. Something promised, given, or done that has the effect of making an agreement a legally enforceable contract. —idiom. in consideration of. 1. In view of; on account of: turned back in consideration of the worsening weather. 2. In return for: an honorarium given in consideration of her contributions to the project.

con·sid·ered (kən-sīd'ərd) adj. 1. Reached after or carried out with careful thought; deliberate: my considered opinion; a considered policy involving a measured response to provocations. 2. Highly regarded; esteemed.

con·sid·er·ing (kən-sīd'ər-ɪŋ) prep. In view of; taking into consideration: You managed the project well, considering your inexperience. See Usage Note at participle. — adv. Informal. All things considered: We had a good trip, considering.

con·si·glie·re (kōn'sē-lyě'rè) n. pl. con·si·glie·ri (-rè). An adviser or counselor, especially to a capo or leader of an organized crime syndicate. [Italian, from Latin cōnsiliārius, from cōnsilium, advice.]

con·sign (kən-sīn') v. con·signed, con·sign·ing, con·signs. — v. tr. 1. To give over to the care of another; entrust. 2. To turn over permanently to another's charge or to a lasting condition; commit irrevocably: “Their desponding imagination had already consigned him to a watery grave" (William Hickling Prescott). 3. To deliver (merchandise, for example) for custody or sale. 4. To set apart, as for a special use or purpose; assign. See Synonyms at commit. — v. intr. Obsolete. To submit; consent. [Middle English consignen, to certify by seal, from Old French consigner, from Latin cōnsignāre: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + signāre, to mark (from signum, mark); see sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

—con·sign/a·ble adj. —con'sig-na'tion (kɒn'sī-nā'shən, -sɪŋ-) n.

—con-sig'nor, con-sig'ner n.

con·sign·ee (kɒn'sī-nē', kən-sī'nē') n. The one to whom something, such as goods or merchandise, is consigned.

con·sign·ment (kən-sīn'mənt) n. Abbr. cons. 1. The act of consigning.

2. Something consigned. —idiom. on consignment. With the provision that payment is expected only on completed sales and that unsold items may be returned to the one consigning: The retailer accepted the shipment on consignment.

consignment store (kən-sīn'mənt stôr) n. A retail store that stocks and sells merchandise on consignment.

con·sist (kən-sɪst') *v. intr. con-sist-ed, con-sist-ing, con-sists. 1. To be made up or composed: New York City consists of five boroughs. See Usage Note at include.*

2. To have a basis; reside or lie: The beauty of the artist's style consists in its simplicity. 3. To be compatible; accord: The information consists with her account. [Latin cōnsistere, to stand still, to be composed of: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sistere, to cause to stand; see stā- in Appendix.]

con·sis·tence (kən-sɪs'təns) n. Consistency.

con·sis·ten·cy (kən-sɪs'tən-sē) *n. pl. con-sis-ten-cies. 1. a. Agreement or logical coherence among things or parts: a rambling argument that lacked any consistency. b. Correspondence among related aspects; compatibility: questioned the consistency of the administration's actions with its stated policy. 2. Reliability or uniformity of successive results or events: pitched with remarkable consistency throughout the season. 3. Degree or texture of density, firmness, or viscosity: *beat the mixture to the consistency of soft butter.

con·sis·tent (kən-sɪs'tənt) adj. 1. In agreement; compatible: The testimony was consistent with the known facts. 2. Being in agreement with itself; coherent and uniform: a consistent pattern of behavior. 3. Reliable; steady: demonstrated a consistent ability to impress the critics. 4. Mathematics. Having at least one common solution, as of two or more equations or inequalities. [Latin cōnsistēns, cōnsistent- present participle of cōnsistere, to stand still. See CONSIST.] con·sis·to·ry (kən-sɪs'tə-rē) n. pl. con-sis-to-ries. 1. a. Roman Catholic Church. An assembly of cardinals presided over by the pope for the solemn promulgation of papal acts, such as the canonization of a saint. b. A governing body of a local congregation in certain Reformed churches. c. A court appointed to regulate ecclesiastical affairs in Lutheran state churches. d. An Anglican diocesan court presided over by a bishop's chancellor or commissary. 2. The meeting of a consistory. 3. A council; a tribunal. [Middle English consistorie, from Old French, from Latin cōnsistōrium, place of assembly, from cōnsistere, to stand together. See CONSIST.] —con'sis-to'ri-al (kɒn'si-stôr'ē-əl, -stôr'-) adj.

—con-sis'tent-ly adv.

con-so-ci-ate (kən-sō'shē-āt') v. tr. intr. con-so-ci-at-ed, con-so-ci-at-ing, con-so-ci-ates. To bring or come into friendly or cooperative association. — adj. (-īt) Associated; united. — n. (-īt) An associate or partner. [Latin cōnsociāre, cōnsociāt-, to associate : com-, com- + sociāre, to associate (from socius, companion); see sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

con-so-ci-a-tion (kən-sō'shē-ā'shən) n. 1. Friendly or cooperative association, as between groups or organizations. 2. Ecology. A subdivision of an association having one dominant species of plant. 3. A political arrangement in which various groups, such as ethnic or racial populations within a country or region, share power according to an agreed formula or mechanism.

—con-so'ci-a'tion-al adj.

con-sol (kɒn'sɒl, kən-sɒl') n. Chiefly British. A government bond in Great Britain, originally issued in 1751, that pays perpetual interest and has no date of maturity. Often used in the plural. Also called bank annuity [Short for Consolidated Annuity.] consol. abbr. Consolidated.

con-so-la-tion (kɒn'sə-lā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of consoling. b. The state of being consoled. 2. One that consoles; a comfort: Your kindness was a consolation to me in my grief.

consolation prize (kɒn'sə-lā'shən prīz) n. A prize given to a competitor who loses or does not win the first prize.

con-sole¹ (kən-sōl') v. tr. con-soled, con-sol-ing, con-soles. To allay the sorrow or grief of. See Synonyms at comfort. [French consoler, from Old French, from Latin cōnsōlārī : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sōlārī, to comfort.]

—con-sol'a-ble adj. —con-so'la-to'ry (-sō'lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, -sōl'ə-) adj.

—con-sol'er n. —con-sol'ing-ly adv.

con-sole² (kɒn'sōl') n. 1. a. A cabinet for a radio, television set, or phonograph, designed to stand on the floor. b. A small, freestanding storage cabinet. 2. Music. The desklike part of an organ that contains the keyboard, stops, and pedals. 3. a. A central control panel for a mechanical, electrical, or electronic system. b. An instrument panel. 4. The portion of a computer or peripheral that houses the apparatus used to operate the machine manually and provides a means of communication between the computer operator and the central processing unit, often in the form of a keyboard. 5. A small storage compartment mounted between bucket seats in an automobile. 6. An often scroll-shaped bracket used for decoration or for supporting a projecting member, such as a cornice or shelf. 7. A console table. [French, perhaps short for consolider, to strengthen, from Latin cōsolidāre. See CONSOLIDATE.]

con·sole table (kɒn'sōl' tã'bəl) n. 1. A table supported by decorative consoles fixed to a wall. 2. A small table, often with curved legs resembling consoles, designed to be set against a wall.

con·sol·i·date (kən-sōl'i-dāt') v. con·sol·i·dat·ed, con·sol·i·dat·ing, con·sol·i·dates. — v. tr. 1. To unite into one system or whole; combine: consolidated five separate agencies into a single department. 2. To make strong or secure; strengthen: She consolidated her power during her first year in office. 3. To make firm or coherent; form into a compact mass. — v. intr. 1. To become solidified or united. 2. To join in a merger or union: The two firms consolidated under a new name. [Latin cōsolidāre, cōsolidāt- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + solidāre, to make firm (from solidus, firm); see sol- in Appendix.]

—con·sol'i·da'tor n.

con·sol·i·dat·ed school (kən-sōl'i-dã'tid skōōl) n. A public school serving pupils from several adjacent, often rural districts.

con·sol·i·da·tion (kən-sōl'i-dã'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of consolidating. b. The state of being consolidated. 2. The merger of two or more commercial interests or corporations.

con·so·lute (kɒn'sə-lōōt') adj. Of or relating to liquid substances that are capable of being mixed in all proportions. [Late Latin cōsolūtus, dissolved together : Latin com-, com- + Latin solūtus, past participle of solvere, to loosen, dissolve; see leu- in Appendix.]

con·som·mé (kɒn'sə-mã', kɒn'sə-mã') n. A clear soup made of strained meat or vegetable stock, served hot or as a cold jelly. [French, from past participle of consommer, to use up, from Latin cōsummāre, to finish. See CONSUMMATE.]

con·so·nance (kɒn'sə-nəns) n. 1. Agreement; harmony; accord. 2. a. Close correspondence of sounds. b. The repetition of consonants or of a consonant pattern, especially at the ends of words, as in blank and think or strong and string. 3. Music. A simultaneous combination of sounds conventionally regarded as pleasing and final in effect.

con·so·nant (kɒn'sə-nənt) adj. 1. Being in agreement or accord: remarks consonant with our own beliefs. 2. Corresponding or alike in sound, as words or syllables. 3. Harmonious in sound or tone. 4. Consonantal. — n. Abbr. cons.

1. A speech sound produced by a partial or complete obstruction of the air stream by any of various constrictions of the speech organs. 2. A letter or character representing such a speech sound. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cōsonāns, cōsonant- present participle of cōsonāre, to agree : com-, com- + sonāre, to sound; see swen- in Appendix.] —con'so·nant·ly adv.

con·so·nan·tal (kɒn'sə-nən'tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the nature of a consonant. 2. Containing a consonant or consonants. — con'so·nan'tal·ly adv.

con·sort (kɒn'sɔrt') n. 1. A husband or wife, especially the spouse of a monarch. 2. A companion or partner. 3. A ship accompanying another in travel. 4. Partnership; association: governed in consort with her advisers. 5. A group; a company: a consort of fellow diplomats. 6. Music. a. An ensemble of players. b. A group of instruments of the same family. — v. con·sort·ed, con·sort·ing, con·sorts (kən-sɔrt'). — v. intr. 1. To keep company; associate: a politician known to consort with gangsters. 2. To be in accord or agreement. — v. tr. 1. To unite in company; associate. 2. Obsolete. a. To escort; accompany. b. To espouse. [Middle English, colleague, from Old French, from Latin cōnsors, cōnsort-: com-, com- + sors, fate; see ser-² in Appendix.]

con·sor·ti·um (kən-sɔr'ti-əm, -shē-əm) n. pl. con·sor·ti·a (-tē-ə, -shē-ə). 1. a. An association or a combination, as of businesses, financial institutions, or investors, for the purpose of engaging in a joint venture. b. A cooperative arrangement among groups or institutions: a library consortium. 2. An association or a society. 3. Law. The right of a spouse to the company of, help of, affection of, and sexual relations with his or her mate. [Latin, fellowship, from cōnsors, cōnsort-, partner. See CONSORT.] — con·sor'ti·al adj.

con·spe·cif·ic (kɒn'spɪ-sɪf'ɪk) adj. Of or belonging to the same species. — n. An organism belonging to the same species as another.

con·spec·tus (kən-spɛk'tʌs) n. pl. con·spec·tus·es. 1. A general survey of a subject. 2. A synopsis. [Latin, from past participle of cōnspicere, to observe. See CONSPICUOUS.] con·spic·u·ous (kən-spɪk'yʊ-əs) adj. 1. Easy to notice; obvious. 2. Attracting attention, as by being unusual or remarkable; noticeable. See Synonyms at noticeable. [From Latin cōnspiciuus, from cōnspicere, to observe: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + specere, to look; see spek- in Appendix.] — con·spic'u·ous·ly adv. — con·spic'u·ous·ness n.

con·spir·a·cist (kən-spɪr'ə-sɪst) n. One holding a conspiracy theory.

con·spir·a·cy (kən-spɪr'ə-sē) n. pl. con·spir·a·cies. 1. An agreement to perform together an illegal, wrongful, or subversive act. 2. A group of conspirators. 3. Law. An agreement between two or more persons to commit a crime or accomplish a legal purpose through illegal action. 4. A joining or acting together, as if by sinister design: a conspiracy of wind and tide that devastated coastal areas. [Middle English conspiracie, from Anglo-Norman conspiracie, probably alteration of Old French conspiration, from Latin cōnspīrātiō, cōnspīrātiōn-, from cōnspīrātus, past participle of cōnspīrāre, to conspire. See CONSPIRE.]

SYNONYMS: conspiracy, plot, machination, collusion, intrigue, cabal. Each of these nouns denotes a secret plan to achieve an evil or illegal end. Conspiracy refers to such a plan by a group intent usually on a treacherous purpose: Several generals formed a conspiracy to overthrow the government. Plot stresses sinister means and motives but may be small or large in number of participants and scope: Several financiers joined the plot to take over the profitable company. Machination, usually in the plural, strongly implies crafty, underhand dealing: “the devious machinations of CIA operatives” (Christian Science Monitor). Collusion is secret agreement for a fraudulent purpose: If it had not been for collusion between criminals and a few corrupt police officers, the drug ring would have been exposed long ago. Intrigue denotes a complex clandestine scheme; usually it implies selfish, petty actions rather than criminal ends: Political intrigue prevented her from becoming her party’s candidate. Cabal refers to a conspiratorial group whose actions usually are directed against a government or political leader: “The cabal against Washington found supporters exclusively in the north” (George Bancroft).

conspiracy theory (kən-spîr'ə-sē thē'ə-rē) n. A theory seeking to explain a disputed case or matter as a plot by a secret group or alliance rather than an individual or isolated act. —conspiracy theorist n.

conspirator (kən-spîr'ə-tər) n. One that engages in a conspiracy.

conspiratorial (kən-spîr'ə-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of conspirators or a conspiracy: a conspiratorial act; a conspiratorial smile. —conspiratorially adv.

conspiratorialist (kən-spîr'ə-tôr'ē-ə-lĭst, -tôr'-) n. A conspiracist.

conspire (kən-spîr') v. conspired, conspiring, conspires. — v. intr.

1. To plan together secretly to commit an illegal or wrongful act or accomplish a legal purpose through illegal action. 2. To join or act together; combine: factors that conspired to delay the project. — v. tr. To plan or plot secretly. [Middle English conspiren, from Old French, from Latin cōspīrāre: com-, com- + spīrāre, to breathe.] —conspirer n. —conspiringly adv.

con spirito (kɔn spîr'i-tō', kɔn) adv. Music. With spirit and vigor. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian: con, with + spirito, spirit, soul.]

const. abbr. 1. Also Const.. Constable. 2. Constant. 3. Also Const.. Constitution. 4. Construction.

constable (kɔn'stə-bəl, kɔn'-) n. Abbr. cons., Cons., const., Const. 1. A peace officer with less authority and smaller jurisdiction than a sheriff, empowered to serve writs and warrants and make arrests. 2. A medieval officer of high rank, usually serving as military commander in the absence of a monarch. 3. The governor of a royal castle. 4. Chiefly British. A police officer. [Middle English, from Old French conestable, from Late Latin comes stabulī, officer of the stable: Latin comes, officer, companion; see ei- in Appendix + Latin stabulī, genitive of stabulum, stable; see stā- in Appendix.] —constableship n.

Con·sta·ble (kŭn'stə-bəl, kŏn'-), John. 1776-1837. British landscape painter whose use of broken color influenced later French painters. The Hay Wain (1821) is his best-known work.

con·stab·u·lar (kən-stäb'yə-lər) adj. Constabulary.

con·stab·u·lar·y (kən-stäb'yə-lēr'ē) n. pl. con·stab·u·lar·ies. 1. The body of constables of a district or city. 2. The district under the jurisdiction of a constable. 3. An armed police force organized like a military unit. — adj. Of or relating to constables, constabularies, or their jurisdictions.

Con·stance (kŏn'stəns) See Konstanz.

Constance, Lake of. Also Bo·den·see (böd'n-zä'). An Alpine lake bordering on southern Germany, northern Switzerland, and western Austria.

con·stan·cy (kŏn'stən-sē) n. 1. Steadfastness, as in purpose or affection; faithfulness. 2. The condition or quality of being constant; changelessness.

con·stant (kŏn'stənt) adj. 1. Continually occurring; persistent. 2. Unchanging in nature, value, or extent; invariable. See Synonyms at continual. 3. Steadfast in purpose, loyalty, or affection; faithful. See Synonyms at faithful. See Synonyms at steady. — n. 1. Something that is unchanging or invariable. 2. Abbr. c, C, const. a. A quantity assumed to have a fixed value in a specified mathematical context. b. An experimental or theoretical condition, factor, or quantity that does not vary or that is regarded as invariant in specified circumstances. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cōnstāns, cōnstant- present participle of cōnstāre, to stand firm : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + stāre, to stand; see stā- in Appendix.] — con·stant·ly adv.

Con·stan·ța (kən-stän'sə, kŏn-stän'tsä) A city of southeast Romania on the Black Sea east of Bucharest. Founded in the seventh century B.C. as a Greek colony, it is the country's main seaport. Population, 315,662.

con·stan·tan (kŏn'stən-tän') n. An alloy of 45 percent nickel and 55 percent copper, used chiefly in electrical instruments because of its constant resistance. [From CONSTANT.]

Con·stant de Re·becque (kŏn-stän' də rə-bĕk'), Benjamin. 1767-1830. French writer and politician who was exiled in 1802 for denouncing Napoleon's machinations. He is best known for the novel Adolphe (1816), inspired by his affair with Madame de Staël.

constant dollars (kŏn'stənt dŏl'ərz) pl.n. Dollars reported in terms of the value they had on a previous date: The dividend of $5 per share that was paid in 1986 was worth only $2.50 in constant dollars of 1976, when the stock was purchased.

Con·stan·tine (kŏn'stən-tĕn', kŏn-stän-tĕn') A city of northeast Algeria east of Algiers. It was founded by Carthaginians and was the capital and commercial center of Numidia. Destroyed in warfare in A.D. 311, it was rebuilt by Constantine I and named in his honor. Population, 344,454.

Con·stan·tine I¹ (kɒn'stən-tēn', -tīn'), Known as "Constantine the Great." A.D. 285?-337. Emperor of Rome (306-337) who adopted the Christian faith and suspended the persecution of Christians. He rebuilt Constantinople (now Istanbul) as the new Rome (330).

Con·stan·tine I² (kɒn'stən-tēn', -tīn'), 1868-1923. King of Greece (1913-1917) who opposed the Allies in World War I and was forced to abdicate. He returned to the throne in 1920 but abdicated again (1922) after a military rebellion.

Con·stan·tine II (kɒn'stən-tēn', -tīn'), Born 1940. King of Greece (1964-1967) who went into exile after a coup d'état by army officers. The Greek monarchy was officially abolished in 1974.

Con·stan·tine XI (kɒn'stən-tēn', -tīn'), 1404?-1453. Last emperor of the Eastern Roman Empire (1448-1453). He was killed when Constantinople (now Istanbul) was taken by Mohammed II.

Con·stan·ti·no·ple (kɒn'stän-tə-nō'pəl) See Istanbul.

con·stel·late (kɒn'stə-lāt') v. intr. tr. con·stel·lat·ed, con·stel·lat·ing, con·stel·lates. To form or cause to form a group or cluster. [Back-formation from CONSTELLATION.]

con·stel·la·tion (kɒn'stə-lā'shən) n. 1. Astronomy. a. An arbitrary formation of stars perceived as a figure or design, especially one of 88 recognized groups named after characters from classical mythology and various common animals and objects. b. An area of the celestial sphere occupied by one of the 88 recognized constellations. 2. The configuration of planets at the time of one's birth, regarded by astrologers as determining one's character or fate. 3. A gathering or an assemblage, especially of prominent persons or things: The symposium was attended by a constellation of artists and writers. 4. A set or configuration, as of related items, properties, ideas, or individuals: a constellation of demands ranging from better food to improved health care; a constellation of feelings about the divorce. [Middle English constellacioun, from Old French constellation, from Late Latin cōstellātiō, cōstellātiōn- : com-, com- + stēlla, star; see ster⁻³ in Appendix.] —con·stel·la'tion·al adj. —con·stel·la·to'ry (-stəl'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

con·ster·nate (kɒn'stər-nāt') v. tr. con·ster·nat·ed, con·ster·nat·ing, con·ster·nates. To cause consternation in. [Latin cōsternāre, cōsternāt- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sternere, to throw down; see ster⁻² in Appendix.]

con·ster·na·tion (kɒn'stər-nā'shən) n. A state of paralyzing dismay. See Synonyms at fear.

con·sti·pate (kɒn'stə-pāt') v. tr. con·sti·pat·ed, con·sti·pat·ing, con·sti·pates. 1. To cause constipation in. 2. To clog or make sluggish; obstruct. [Latin cōnstīpāre, cōnstīpāt-, to crowd together : com-, com- + stīpāre, to cram.]

con·sti·pa·tion (kɒn'stə-pā'shən) n. 1. Difficult, incomplete, or infrequent evacuation of dry, hardened feces from the bowels. 2. Obstruction; stultification.

con·stit·u·en·cy (kən-stɪch'ō-ən-sē) n. pl. con·stit·u·en·cies. 1. a. The body of voters represented by an elected legislator or official. b. The district so represented. c. The residents of an electoral district. 2. a. A group of supporters or patrons. b. A group served by an organization or institution; a clientele: The magazine changed its format to appeal to a broader constituency.

con·stit·u·ent (kən-stɪch'ō-ənt) adj. 1. Serving as part of a whole; component: a constituent element. 2. Empowered to elect or designate. 3. Authorized to make or amend a constitution: a constituent assembly. — n. 1. A constituent part; a component. See Synonyms at element. 2. A resident of a district or member of a group represented by an elected official. 3. One that authorizes another to act as a representative; a client. 4. Grammar. One of two or more elements into which a construction or compound may be divided by analysis, being either immediate, as He/ works on the railroad, or ultimate, as He/ work/s/ on/ the/ rail/road. [Latin cōstituēns, cōstituent- present participle of cōstituere, to set up; see CONSTITUTE. N., from French from Latin cōstituēns.]

—con·stit·u·ent·ly adv.

constituent structure (kən-stɪch'ō-ənt strʊk'tʃər) n. Grammar. An analysis, often in the form of a schematic representation, of the constituents of a construction, such as a sentence.

con·sti·tute (kɒn'stī-tōt', -tyōt') v. tr. con·sti·tut·ed, con·sti·tut·ing, con·sti·tutes. 1. a. To be the elements or parts of; compose: Correct grammar and sentence structure do not in themselves constitute good writing. b. To amount to; equal: an infraction that constitutes a punishable offense. 2. a. To set up or establish according to law or provision: a body that is duly constituted under the charter. b. To found (an institution, for example). c. To enact (a law or regulation). 3. To appoint to an office, dignity, function, or task; designate. [Latin cōstituere, cōstitūt-, to set up : com-, com- + statuere, to set up; see stā- in Appendix.] —con'sti·tut'er, con'sti·tu'tor n.

con·sti·tu·tion (kɒn'stī-tō'shən, -tyō-') n. 1. The act or process of composing, setting up, or establishing. 2. a. The composition or structure of something; makeup. b. The physical makeup of a person: She was born with a strong constitution. See Synonyms at physique. 3. Abbr. cons., const., Const.

a. The system of fundamental laws and principles that prescribes the nature, functions, and limits of a government or another institution. b. The document on which such a system is recorded.

con·sti·tu·tion·al (kɒn'stī-tō'shə-nəl, -tyō-') adj. Abbr. cons. 1. Of or relating to a constitution: a constitutional amendment. 2. Consistent with, sanctioned by, or permissible according to a constitution: a law that was declared con- stitutional by the court; the constitutional right of free speech. 3. Established by or operating under a constitution: a constitutional government. 4. Of or proceeding from the basic structure or nature of a person or thing; inherent: a constitutional inability to tell the truth. 5. Of or relating to one's physical makeup. — n. A walk taken regularly for one's health. — con'sti-tu'tion-al-ly adv.

con-sti-tu-tion-al-ism (kɒn'stī-tōō'shə-nə-līz'əm, -tyōō'-) n.

1. Government in which power is distributed and limited by a system of laws that must be obeyed by the rulers. 2. a. A constitutional system of government.

b. Advocacy of such a system. — con'sti-tu'tion-al-ist n.

con-sti-tu-tion-al-i-ty (kɒn'stī-tōō'shə-nəl'ī-tē, -tyōō'-) n. Accordance with the provisions or principles of a constitution: The high court will rule on the constitutionality of the new law.

con-sti-tu-tion-al-ize (kɒn'stī-tōō'shə-nə-līz', -tyōō'-) v. tr.

con-sti-tu-tion-al-ized, con-sti-tu-tion-al-iz-ing, con-sti-tu-tion-al-iz-es.

1. To provide with or make subject to a constitution. 2. To incorporate into or sanction under a constitution: "Today a like kind of wisdom might caution against constitutionalizing every grievance that might (or might not) appear tomorrow" (Potter Stewart). — con'sti-tu'tion-al-i-za'tion (-shə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

constitutional monarchy (kɒn'stī-tōō'shə-nəl mɒn'ər-kē) n. A monarchy in which the powers of the ruler are restricted to those granted under the constitution and laws of the nation.

con-sti-tu-tive (kɒn'stī-tōō'tiv, -tyōō'-) adj. 1. Making a thing what it is; essential. 2. Having power to institute, establish, or enact. 3. Of or relating to the synthesis of a protein or an enzyme at a constant rate regardless of physiological demand or the concentration of a substrate. — con'sti-tu'tive-ly adv.

constr. abbr. Construction.

con-strain (kən-strān') v. tr. con-strained, con-strain-ing, con-strains.

1. To compel by physical, moral, or circumstantial force; oblige: felt constrained to object. See Synonyms at force. 2. To keep within close bounds; confine: a life that had been constrained by habit to the same few activities and friends. 3. To inhibit or restrain; hold back: "Failing to control the growth of international debt will also constrain living standards" (Ronald Brownstein). 4. To produce in a forced or inhibited manner. [Middle English constreinen, from Old French constraindre, constraign-, from Latin cōnstringere, to restrain, compress : com-, com- + stringere, to bind, press together; see streig- in Appendix.]

— con-strain'a-ble adj. — con-strain'ed-ly (-strā'nīd-lē) adv.

— con-strain'er n.

con-straint (kən-strānt') n. 1. The threat or use of force to prevent, restrict, or dictate the action or thought of others. 2. The state of being restricted or confined within prescribed bounds: soon tired of the constraint of military life.

3. One that restricts, limits, or regulates; a check: ignored all moral constraints in his pursuit of success. 4. Embarrassed reserve or reticence; awkwardness: “All constraint had vanished between the two, and they began to talk” (Edith Wharton). [Middle English constreinte, from Old French, from feminine past participle of constraindre. See CONSTRAIN.]

constrict (kən-strīkt′) v. constrict-ed, constrict-ing, constricts. — v. tr. 1. To make smaller or narrower by binding or squeezing. 2. To squeeze or compress. See Synonyms at contract. 3. To restrict the scope or freedom of; cramp: lives constricted by poverty. — v. intr. To become constricted. [Latin cōnstringere, cōnstrict-, to compress. See CONSTRAIN.] — constrictive adj. — constrictively adv.

constriction (kən-strīk′shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of constricting. b. The condition or result of being constricted. c. Something that constricts. 2. A feeling of tightness or pressure: Fear caused a sudden constriction in my chest. 3. A constricted or narrow part.

constrictor (kən-strīk′tər) n. 1. One that constricts, as a muscle that contracts or compresses a part or organ of the body. 2. Any of various snakes, such as the python or boa, that tightly coil around and asphyxiate their prey.

constringe (kən-strīnj′) v. tr. constringed, constring-ing, constring-es. To cause to contract; constrict. [Latin cōnstringere, to compress. See CONSTRAIN.] — constringency n. — constringent adj.

construct (kən-strūkt′) v. tr. construct-ed, construct-ing, constructs.

1. To form by assembling or combining parts; build. 2. To create (an argument or a sentence, for example) by systematically arranging ideas or terms. 3. Mathematics. To draw (a geometric figure) that meets specific requirements, usually with instruments limited to a straightedge and compass. — n.

(kɒn′strūkt′) 1. Something formed or constructed from parts. 2. a. A concept, model, or schematic idea: a theoretical construct of the atom. b. A concrete image or idea: “[He] began to shift focus from the haunted constructs of terror in his early work” (Stephen Koch). [Latin cōnstruere, cōnstrūct- : com-, com- + struere, to pile up; see ster⁻² in Appendix.] — constructible adj. — conductor, constructor n.

construction (kən-strūkt′shən) n. Abbr. cons., const., constr. 1. a. The act or process of constructing. b. The art, trade, or work of building: an engineer trained in highway construction; worked in construction for seven years. 2. a. A structure, such as a building, framework, or model. b. Something fashioned or devised systematically: a nation that was glorious in its historical construction. c. An artistic composition using various materials; an assemblage or a collage. 3. The way in which something is built or put together: a shelter of simple construction. 4. The interpretation or explanation given to an expression or a statement: I was inclined to put a favorable construction on his reply. 5. Grammar. a. The arrangement of words to form a meaningful phrase, clause, or sentence.

b. A group of words so arranged. —con·struc'tion-al adj. —con·struc'tion-al-ly adv.

con·struc·tion·ist (kən-strūk'shə-nĭst) n. A person who construes a legal text or document in a specified way: a strict constructionist.

construction paper (kən-strūk'shən pā'pər) n. A heavy paper produced in a variety of colors and used in artwork especially for making folded or cutout designs.

con·struc·tive (kən-strūk'tĭv) adj. 1. Serving to improve or advance; helpful: constructive criticism. 2. Of or relating to construction; structural. 3. Law. Based on an interpretation; not directly expressed. —con·struc'tive-ly adv.

—con·struc'tive-ness n.

con·struc·tiv·ism (kən-strūk'tə-vĭz'əm) n. A movement in modern art originating in Moscow in 1920 and characterized by the use of industrial materials such as glass, sheet metal, and plastic to create nonrepresentational, often geometric objects. —con·struc'tiv-ist n.

con·strue (kən-strōō') v. con·strued, con·stru-ing, con·strues. — v. tr. 1. To adduce or explain the meaning of; interpret: construed my smile as assent. See Synonyms at explain. 2. Grammar. a. To analyze the structure of (a clause or sentence). b. To use syntactically: The noun fish can be construed as singular or plural. 3. To translate, especially aloud. — v. intr. 1. To analyze grammatical structure. 2. To be subject to grammatical analysis. — n. (kōn'strōō') An interpretation or translation. [Middle English construen, from Late Latin cōnstruere, from Latin, to build. See CONSTRUCT.] con·sub·stan·tial (kōn'səb-stān'shəl) adj. Of the same substance, nature, or essence. [Middle English consustancial, from Late Latin cōnsubstantiālis: Latin com-, com- + Late Latin substantiālis, substantial; see SUBSTANTIAL.] con·sub·stan·ti·ate (kōn'səb-stān'shē-āt') v. tr. intr.

con·sub·stan·ti·at·ed, con·sub·stan·ti·at·ing, con·sub·stan·ti·ates. To unite or become united in one common substance, nature, or essence.

con·sub·stan·ti·a·tion (kōn'səb-stān'shē-ā'shən) n. Theology. The doctrine that the substance of the body and blood of Jesus coexists with the substance of the bread and wine in the Eucharist.

con·sue·tude (kōn'swĭ-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. Custom; usage. [Middle English, from Latin cōnsuetūdō. See CUSTOM.] —con'sue-tu'di-nar'y (-tōōd'n-ēr'ē, -tyōōd'-) adj.

con·sul (kōn'səl) n. Abbr. c., C., cons., Cons. 1. An official appointed by a government to reside in a foreign country and represent his or her government's commercial interests and assist its citizens there. See Usage Note at council.

2. Either of the two chief magistrates of the Roman Republic, elected for a term of one year. 3. Any of the three chief magistrates of the French Republic from con-su-late (kɒn'sə-līt) n. 1. The residence or official premises of a consul.

1799 to 1804. [Middle English, Roman consul, from Latin cōnsul; possibly akin to cōnsulere, to take counsel.] — con/su-lar (-sə-lər) adj. — con/sul-ship' n.

2. The office, term of office, or jurisdiction of a consul. 3. Government by consuls. [Middle English consulat, consulship, from Latin cōnsulātus, from cōnsul, consul. See CONSUL.]

consulate general (kɒn'sə-līt jən'ər-əl) n. pl. consulates general. The consulate occupied by a consul general.

consul general (kɒn'səl jən'ər-əl) n. pl. consuls general. Abbr. c.g., C.G.

A consul of the highest rank serving at a principal location and usually responsible for other consular offices within a country.

con-sult (kən-sült') v. con-sult-ed, con-sult-ing, con-sults. — v. tr.

1. a. To seek advice or information of: consult an attorney. b. To refer to: consulted a telephone directory for the number. 2. To take into account; consider: consult one's checkbook before making a major purchase. — v. intr. 1. To exchange views; confer. See Synonyms at confer. 2. To work or serve as a consultant: a retired executive who consults for several large companies. — n. (kən-sült', kɒn'sült') A consultation, especially one involving physicians. [French consulter, from Latin cōnsultāre, frequentative of cōnsulere, to take counsel.]

— con-sult'er n.

con-sul-tan-cy (kən-sül'tn-sē) n. pl. con-sul-tan-cies. 1. The act or an instance of consulting. 2. A business or agency offering expert or professional advice in a field: opened a financial consultancy. 3. A position as a consultant: accepted a three-year consultancy abroad.

con-sult-ant (kən-sül'tənt) n. 1. One that gives expert or professional advice.

2. One that consults another. — con-sult'ant-ship' n.

con-sul-ta-tion (kɒn'səl-tā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of consulting.

2. a. A conference at which advice is given or views are exchanged. b. A meeting between physicians to discuss the diagnosis or treatment of a case.

con-sul-ta-tive (kən-sül'tə-tiv) also con-sul-tive (-sül'-tiv) or con-sul-ta-to-ry (-tôr'ē, -tör'ē) adj. Of or relating to consultation; advisory.

con-sul-tor (kən-sül'tər) n. Roman Catholic Church. 1. A priest or religious appointed to assist and advise a bishop. 2. An adviser to a congregation of the Curia.

con-sum-a-ble (kən-sōō'mə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be consumed: consumable energy. 2. That may be depleted or worn out by use: consumable paper products.

— n. A consumable good or service: supplies of food, fuel, spare parts, and other consumables.

con-sume (kən-sōōm') v. con-sumed, con-sum-ing, con-sumes. — v. tr.

1. To eat or drink up; ingest. See Synonyms at eat. 2. a. To expend; use up: engines that consume less fuel; a project that consumed most of my time and energy.

b. To purchase (goods or services) for direct use or ownership. 3. To waste; squander. See Synonyms at waste. 4. To destroy totally; ravage: flames that consumed the house; a body consumed by cancer. 5. To absorb; engross: consumed with jealousy. See Synonyms at monopolize. — v. intr. 1. To be destroyed, expended, or wasted. 2. To purchase economic goods and services: a society that consumes as fast as it produces. [Middle English consumen, from Latin cōnsūmere: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + sūmere, to take; see em- in Appendix.]

con·sum·ed·ly (kən-sōō'mīd-lē) adv. To an excessive degree.

con·sum·er (kən-sōō'mər) n. 1. One that consumes, especially one that acquires goods or services for direct use or ownership rather than for resale or use in production and manufacturing. 2. A heterotrophic organism that ingests other organisms or organic matter in a food chain. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: consumer questionnaires; consumer products.

—con·sum'er·ship' n.

consumer credit (kən-sōō'mər krēd'īt) n. Credit granted to a consumer permitting the use or ownership of goods or services during a term of payment.

consumer goods (kən-sōō'mər gōōdz) pl.n. Goods, such as food and clothing, that satisfy human wants through their direct consumption or use.

con·sum·er·ism (kən-sōō'mə-rīz'əm) n. 1. The movement seeking to protect and inform consumers by requiring such practices as honest packaging and advertising, product guarantees, and improved safety standards. 2. The theory that a progressively greater consumption of goods is economically beneficial.

3. Attachment to materialistic values or possessions: deplored the rampant consumerism of contemporary society. —con·sum'er·ist n. —con·sum'er·is'tic adj.

consumer price index (kən-sōō'mər prīs ĩn'dēks') n. Abbr. CPI An index of prices used to measure the change in the cost of basic goods and services in comparison with a fixed base period. Also called cost-of-living index con·sum·mate (kōn'sə-māt') v. tr. con·sum·mat·ed, con·sum·mat·ing, con·sum·mates. 1. a. To bring to completion or fruition; conclude: consummate a business transaction. b. To realize or achieve; fulfill: a dream that was finally consummated with the publication of her first book. 2. a. To complete (a marriage) with the first act of sexual intercourse after the ceremony. b. To fulfill (a sexual desire or attraction) especially by intercourse. — adj. (kən-sūm'īt, kōn'sə-mət) 1. Complete or perfect in every respect: consummate happiness. See Synonyms at perfect. 2. Supremely accomplished or skilled: "Sargent was now a consummate master of brushwork" (Roberta Smith). 3. Complete; utter: a consummate bore. [Middle English consummaten, from Latin cōnsummāre, cōnsummāt-: com-, com- + summa, sum; see SUM.] —con·sum'mate·ly (kən-sūm'īt-lē) adv. —con'sum·ma'tive, con·sum'ma-to'ry (-sūm'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. —con'sum·ma'tor n.

con·sum·ma·tion (kɒn'sə-mā'shən) n. 1. The act of consummating; a fulfillment. 2. An ultimate goal or end.

con·sump·tion (kən-sŭmp'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of consuming. b. The state of being consumed. c. An amount consumed. 2. Economics. The using up of goods and services by consumer purchasing or in the production of other goods. 3. Pathology. a. A progressive wasting of body tissue. b. Pulmonary tuberculosis. No longer in scientific use. [Middle English consumpcioun, from Latin cōnsūptiō, cōnsūptiōn-, a consuming, from cōnsūptus, past participle of cōnsūmere, to consume. See CONSUME.]

con·sump·tive (kən-sŭmp'tiv) adj. 1. Consuming or tending to consume. 2. Of, relating to, or afflicted with consumption. — n. A person afflicted with consumption. — con·sump'tive·ly adv.

cont. abbr. 1. Containing. 2. Contents. 3. Continent. 4. a. Continue. b. Continued. 5. Contract. 6. Contraction. 7. Control.

con·tact (kɒn'tækt') n. 1. a. A coming together or touching, as of objects or surfaces. b. The state or condition of touching or of immediate proximity: Litmus paper turns red on contact with an acid. 2. a. Connection or interaction; communication: in contact with the right people. b. Visual observation: The pilot made contact with the ship. c. Association; relationship: came into contact with new ideas at college. 3. A person who might be of use; a connection.

4. Electricity. a. A connection between two conductors that permits a flow of current. b. A part or device that makes or breaks such a connection. 5. Medicine. A person recently exposed to a contagious disease, usually through close association with an infected individual. 6. A contact lens. — v. con·tact·ed, con·tact·ing, con·tacts (kɒn'tækt', kən-tækt'). — v. tr. 1. To bring or put in contact. 2. To get in touch with; communicate with: “This past January I was contacted by a lawyer who said he needed my help” (Elizabeth Loftus). — v. intr. To be in or come into contact. — adj. 1. Of, sustaining, or making contact.

2. Caused or transmitted by touching: a contact skin rash. [Latin contāctus, from past participle of contingere, to touch : com-, com- + tangere, to touch; see tag- in Appendix.] — con·tac'tu·al (kən-tækt'chō-əl) adj. — con·tac'tu·al·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: In 1966 Wilson Follett wrote that “Persons old enough to have been repelled by the verb contact... may as well make up their minds that there is no way to arrest or reverse the tide of its popularity.” His prophecy is proving correct: In 1969 only 34 percent of the Usage Panel accepted the use of contact as a verb, but in our most recent survey 65 percent of the Panel accepted the sentence She immediately called an officer at the Naval Intelligence Service, who in turn contacted the FBI. See Usage Note at impact.

contact dermatitis (kɒn'tækt' dʊr'mə-tī'tis) n. An acute or chronic skin inflammation resulting from contact with an irritating substance or allergen.

contact flight (kɒn'tækt' flīt) n. Aircraft navigation by visual observation of the horizon or of landmarks. Also called contact flying contact inhibition (kɒn'tækt' ɪn'hə-bɪʃ'ən) n. The cessation of cellular growth and division due to physical contact with other cells.

contact lens (kɒn'tækt' lɛnz) n. A thin plastic or glass lens that is fitted over the cornea of the eye to correct various vision defects.

con-tac-tor (kɒn'tæk'tər, kən-tæk'-) n. An electrical relay used to control the flow of power in a circuit.

contact print (kɒn'tækt' prɪnt) n. A print made by exposing a photosensitive surface in direct contact with a photographic negative.

contact sport (kɒn'tækt' spɔrt) n. Sports. A sport, such as football, hockey, or boxing, that involves physical contact between players as part of normal play.

con-ta-gia (kən-tā'jə) n. Plural of contagium.

con-ta-gion (kən-tā'jən) n. 1. a. Disease transmission by direct or indirect contact. b. A disease that is or may be transmitted by direct or indirect contact; a contagious disease. c. See contagium. 2. A harmful, corrupting influence: feared that violence on television was a contagion affecting young viewers. 3. The tendency to spread, as of a doctrine, influence, or emotional state. [Middle English contagioun, from Latin contāgiō, contāgiōn-, from contingere, contāct-, to touch. See CONTACT.]

con-ta-gious (kən-tā'jəs) adj. 1. Of or relating to contagion. 2. Transmissible by direct or indirect contact; communicable: a contagious disease. 3. Capable of transmitting disease; carrying a disease: stayed at home until he was no longer contagious. 4. Spreading or tending to spread from one to another; infectious: a contagious smile. —con-ta'gious-ly adv. —con-ta'gious-ness n.

contagious abortion (kən-tā'jəs ə-bôr'shən) n. Veterinary Medicine. Brucellosis, especially in cattle.

con-ta-gium (kən-tā'jəm) n. pl. con-ta-gia (-jə). The direct cause, such as a bacterium or virus, of a communicable disease. Also called contagion [Latin contāgium, contagion, contamination, from contāgiō. See CONTAGION.]

con-tain (kən-tān') v. tr. con-tained, con-tain-ing, con-tains. 1. a. To have within; hold. b. To be capable of holding. 2. To have as component parts; include or comprise: The album contains many memorable songs. 3. a. To hold or keep within limits; restrain: I could hardly contain my curiosity. b. To halt the spread or development of; check: Science sought an effective method of containing the disease. 4. To check the expansion or influence of (a hostile power or ideology) by containment. 5. Mathematics. To be exactly divisible by. [Middle English containen, from Old French contenir, from Latin continēre : com-, com- + tenēre, to hold; see ten- in Appendix.] —con-tain'a-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: contain, hold, accommodate. These verbs mean to have within or have the capacity for having within. Contain means to have within or have as a part or constituent: This drawer contains all the cutlery we own. The book contains some amusing passages. Polluted water contains contaminants. Hold can be used in that sense but primarily stresses capacity for containing: The pitcher holds two pints but contains only one. Accommodate refers to capacity for holding comfortably: The restaurant accommodates 50 customers. Four hundred inmates were crowded into a prison intended to accommodate 200.

con·tain·er (kən-tā'nər) n. 1. A receptacle, such as a carton, can, or jar, in which material is held or carried. 2. A large reusable receptacle that can accommodate smaller cartons or cases in a single shipment, designed for efficient handling of cargo.

con·tain·er·board (kən-tā'nər-bôrd', -bôrd') n. A corrugated or solid cardboard used to make containers.

con·tain·er·ize (kən-tā'nə-rīz') v. tr. con·tain·er·ized, con·tain·er·iz·ing, con·tain·er·iz·es. 1. To package (cargo) in large standardized containers for efficient shipping and handling. 2. To adapt (an industry or shipping operation) to the use of such containers. — v. intr. To convert to the use of containerized cargo. — con·tain'er·i·za'tion (-tā'nər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

con·tain·er·port (kən-tā'nər-pôrt', -pôrt') n. A port equipped to handle containerized cargo.

container ship (kən-tā'nər shĭp) n. Nautical. A ship fitted for transporting containerized cargo.

con·tain·ment (kən-tān'mənt) n. 1. The act or condition of containing. 2. A policy of checking the expansion or influence of a hostile power or ideology, as by the creation of strategic alliances or support of client states in areas of conflict or unrest. 3. A structure or system designed to prevent the accidental release of radioactive materials from a reactor.

con·tam·i·nant (kən-tām'ə-nənt) n. One that contaminates.

con·tam·i·nate (kən-tām'ə-nāt') v. tr. con·tam·i·nated, con·tam·i·nat·ing, con·tam·i·nates. 1. To make impure or unclean by contact or mixture. 2. To expose to or permeate with radioactivity. — adj. (-nĭt) Archaic. Contaminated. [Middle English contaminaten, from Latin contāmināre, contāmināt-. See tag- in Appendix.] — con·tam'i·na'tive adj.
— con·tam'i·na'tor n.

SYNONYMS: contaminate, befoul, foul, poison, pollute, taint. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to make dirty or impure”: a contaminated reservoir; shoes that were befouled with mud; noxious fumes that foul the air; chemicals poi- soning the lake; polluted streams; food that had been tainted through improper storage.

con·tam·i·na·tion (kən-tām'ə-nā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of contaminating. b. The state of being contaminated. 2. One that contaminates.

contd. abbr. Continued.

conte (kônt) n. pl. contes (kônt). 1. A short story or novella. 2. A medieval narrative tale. [French, from Old French conter, to relate, recount. See COUNT¹.]

con·temn (kən-tēm') v. tr. con·temned, con·temn·ing, con·temns. To view with contempt; despise. See Synonyms at despise. [Middle English contempnen, to slight, from Latin contemnere : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + temnere, to despise.] —con·temn'er (-tēm'ər, -tēm'nər) n.

contemp. abbr. Contemporary.

con·tem·plate (kɒn'təm-plāt') v. con·tem·plat·ed, con·tem·plat·ing, con·tem·plates. — v. tr. 1. To look at attentively and thoughtfully. See Synonyms at see¹. 2. To consider carefully and at length; meditate on or ponder: contemplated the problem from all sides; contemplated the mystery of God. 3. To have in mind as an intention or possibility: contemplate marriage; forced by the accident to contemplate retirement. — v. intr. To ponder; meditate. [Latin contemplārī, contemplāt- : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + templum, space for observing auguries; see tem- in Appendix.] —con'tem·pla'tor n.

con·tem·pla·tion (kɒn'təm-plā'shən) n. 1. The act or state of contemplating. 2. Thoughtful observation or study. 3. Meditation on spiritual matters, especially as a form of devotion. 4. Intention or expectation: sought further information in contemplation of a career change.

con·tem·pla·tive (kən-tēm'plə-tīv, kɒn'təm-plā'-) adj. Disposed to or characterized by contemplation. See Synonyms at pensive. — n. 1. A person given to contemplation. 2. A member of a religious order that emphasizes meditation. —con·tem'pla·tive·ly adv. —con·tem'pla·tive·ness n.

con·tem·po·ra·ne·ous (kən-tēm'pə-rā'nē-əs) adj. Originating, existing, or happening during the same period of time: the contemporaneous reigns of two monarchs. See Synonyms at contemporary. [Latin contemporāneus : com-, com- + tempus, tempor-, time + -aneus, adj. suff..] —con·tem'po·ra·ne'i·ty (-pər-ə-nē'ī-tē, -nā'-), con·tem'po·ra·ne·ous·ness n.

—con·tem'po·ra·ne'ous·ly adv.

con·tem·po·rar·y (kən-tēm'pə-rēr'ē) adj. Abbr. contemp. 1. Belonging to the same period of time: a fact documented by two contemporary sources. 2. Of about the same age. 3. Current; modern: contemporary trends in design. — n. pl. con·tem·po·rar·ies. Abbr. contemp. 1. One of the same time or age: Shelley and Keats were contemporaries. 2. A person of the present age. [Medieval Latin contemporārius : Latin com-, com- + Latin tempus, tempor-, time + Latin -ārius, -ary.] —con·tem'po·rar'i·ly (-tēm'pə-râr'ə-lē) adv.

SYNONYMS: contemporary, contemporaneous, simultaneous, synchronous, concurrent, coincident, concomitant. These adjectives mean existing or occurring at the same time. Contemporary is used more often of persons, contemporaneous of events and facts: The composer Salieri had the misfortune of being contemporary with Mozart. A rise in interest rates is often contemporaneous with an increase in inflation. Only contemporary has the sense “modern” or “present-day”: I heard a concert of contemporary music. Simultaneous more narrowly specifies occurrence of events at the same time: Opponents of nuclear power tried to organize simultaneous demonstrations in all the major cities. Synchronous refers to correspondence of events in time over a generally short period: The animal uttered a series of low cries that seemed synchronous with its heartbeat. Concurrent implies parallelism in character or length of time: The mass murderer was given three concurrent life sentences. Coincident applies to events occurring at the same time without implying a relationship between them: “The resistance to the Pope’s authority... is pretty nearly coincident with the rise of the Ottomans” (John Henry Newman). Concomitant refers to coincidence in time of events so clearly related that one seems attendant on the other: He is an adherent of the theories of Sigmund Freud and had a concomitant belief in the efficacy of psychoanalysis.

USAGE NOTE: When contemporary is used in reference to something in the past, its meaning is not always clear. Contemporary critics of Shakespeare may mean critics in his time or critics in our time. When the context does not make the meaning clear, misunderstanding can be avoided by using phrases such as critics in Shakespeare’s time or modern critics.

con·tem·po·rize (kən-tēm'pə-rīz') v. con·tem·po·rized, con·tem·po·riz·ing, con·tem·po·riz·es. — v. tr. 1. To regard or place in the same time period; synchronize. 2. To make modern or contemporary, as in style or décor. — v. intr. To be contemporary. [From CONTEMPORARY.]

—con·tem'po·ri·za'tion (-tēm'pər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

con·tempt (kən-tĕmpt') n. 1. Disparaging or haughty disdain, as for something base or unworthy; scorn. 2. The state of being despised or dishonored; disgrace. 3. Open disrespect or willful disobedience of the authority of a court of law or legislative body. [Middle English, from Latin contemptus, past participle of contemnere, to despise. See CONTEMN.]

con·tempt·i·ble (kən-tĕmp'tə-bəl) adj. 1. Deserving of contempt; despicable. 2. Obsolete. Contemptuous. —con·tempt'i·bil'i·ty, con·tempt'i·ble·ness n. —con·tempt'i·bly adv.

con·temp·tu·ous (kən-těmp'thō-əs) adj. Manifesting or feeling contempt; scornful. — con·temp'tu·ous·ly adv. — con·temp'tu·ous·ness n.

con·tend (kən-těnd') v. con·tend·ed, con·tend·ing, contends. — v. intr.

1. To strive in opposition or against difficulties; struggle: armies contending for control of strategic territory; had to contend with long lines at the airport. 2. To compete, as in a race; vie. 3. To strive in controversy or debate; dispute. See Synonyms at discuss. — v. tr. To maintain or assert: The defense contended that the evidence was inadmissible. [Middle English contenden, from Latin contendere: com-, com- + tendere, to stretch, strive; see ten- in Appendix.] — con·tend'er n.

con·tent¹ (kŏn'těnt') n. 1. Often contents. Something contained, as in a receptacle: the contents of my desk drawer; the contents of an aerosol can. 2. Often contents. The subject matter of a written work, such as a book or magazine. 3. a. The substantive or meaningful part: "The brain is hungry not for method but for content, especially content which contains generalizations that are powerful, precise, and explicit" (Frederick Turner). b. The meaning or significance of a literary or artistic work. 4. The proportion of a specified substance: Eggs have a high protein content. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin contentum, neuter past participle of Latin continēre, to contain. See CONTAIN.]

con·tent² (kən-těnt') adj. 1. Desiring no more than what one has; satisfied. 2. Ready to accept or acquiesce; willing: She was content to step down after four years as chief executive. — v. tr. con·tent·ed, con·tent·ing, con·tents. To make content or satisfied: contented himself with one piece of cake. — n. Contentment; satisfaction. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin contentus, past participle of continēre, to restrain. See CONTAIN.]

con·tent analysis (kŏn'těnt' ə-năl'ī-sis) n. A systematic analysis of the content rather than the structure of a communication, such as a written work, speech, or film, including the study of thematic and symbolic elements to determine the objective or meaning of the communication.

con·tent·ed (kən-těnt'ĭd) adj. Satisfied with things as they are; content: a contented expression on the child's face. — con·tent'ed·ly adv. — con·tent'ed·ness n.

con·ten·tion (kən-těn'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of striving in controversy or debate. See Synonyms at discord. 2. A striving to win in competition; rivalry: The teams met in fierce contention for first place. 3. An assertion put forward in argument. [Middle English contencioun, from Old French contention, from Latin contentiō, contentiōn-, from contentus, past participle of contendere, to contend. See CONTEND.]

con·ten·tious (kən-těn'shəs) adj. 1. Given to contention; quarrelsome. See Synonyms at argumentative. See Synonyms at belligerent. 2. Involving or likely to cause contention; controversial: "a central and contentious element of the book" (Tim W. Ferguson). — con·ten'tious·ly adv. — con·ten'tious·ness n.

con·tent·ment (kən-těnt'mənt) n. 1. The state of being contented; satisfaction. 2. A source of satisfaction: the contentments of a comfortable retirement.

con·ter·mi·nous (kən-tûr'mə-nəs) also co·ter·mi·nous (kō-) adj. 1. Having a boundary in common; contiguous. 2. Contained in the same boundaries; coextensive. 3. Having the same scope, range of meaning, or extent in time. [From Latin conterminus : com-, com- + terminus, boundary.] —con·ter'mi·nous·ly adv. —con·ter'mi·nous·ness n.

contes (kônt) n. Plural of conte.

con·tes·sa (kən-těs'sə, kōn-těs'sä) n. An Italian countess. [Italian, feminine of conte, count, from Late Latin comes, comit-. See COUNT².]

con·test (kõn'těst') n. 1. A struggle for superiority or victory between rivals. 2. A competition, especially one in which entrants perform separately and are rated by judges. See Synonyms at conflict. — v. con·test·ed, con·test·ing, con·tests (kən-těst', kõn'těst'). — v. tr. 1. To compete or strive for. 2. To call into question and take an active stand against; dispute or challenge: contest a will. See Synonyms at oppose. — v. intr. To struggle or compete; contend: contested with other bidders for the antique. [Probably from French conteste, from contester, to dispute, from Old French, to call to witness, from Latin contestārī : com-, com- + testis, witness; see trei- in Appendix.] —con·test'a·ble adj.

—con'tes·ta'tion (kõn'tě-stā'shən) n. —con·test'er n.

con·tes·tant (kən-těs'tənt, kõn'těs'tənt) n. 1. One taking part in a contest; a competitor. 2. One that contests or disputes something, such as an election or a will.

con·text (kõn'těkst') n. 1. The part of a text or statement that surrounds a particular word or passage and determines its meaning. 2. The circumstances in which an event occurs; a setting. [Middle English, composition, from Latin contextus, from past participle of contexere, to join together : com-, com- + texere, to weave; see teks- in Appendix.]

con·tex·tu·al (kən-těks'chō-əl, kõn-) adj. Of, involving, or depending on a context. —con·tex'tu·al·ly adv.

con·tex·tu·al·ize (kən-těks'chō-ə-līz') v. tr. con·tex·tu·al·ized, con·tex·tu·al·iz·ing, con·tex·tu·al·iz·es. To place (a word or idea, for example) in an appropriate context. —con·tex'tu·al·i·za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

con·tex·ture (kən-těks'chər, kõn'těks'-) n. 1. The act of weaving or assembling parts into a whole. 2. An arrangement of interconnected parts; a structure. —con·tex'tur·al adj.

Con·ti (kôn'tē), Niccolò de'. fl. 15th century. Italian merchant and traveler who left vivid accounts of his 30-year exploration of southern Asia.

con·ti·gu·i·ty (kõn'tī-gyōō'ī-tē) n. pl. con·ti·gu·i·ties. 1. The state of being contiguous. 2. A continuous mass or series.

con·tig·u·ous (kən-tīg'yōō-əs) adj. 1. Sharing an edge or boundary; touching. 2. Neighboring; adjacent. 3. a. Connecting without a break: the 48 contiguous states. b. Connected in time; uninterrupted: served two contiguous terms in office. [From Latin contiguus, from contingere, contig-, to touch. See CONTACT.]

—con·tig'·u·ous·ly adv. —con·tig'·u·ous·ness n.

con·ti·nence (kɒn'tə-nəns) n. 1. Self-restraint; moderation. 2. Voluntary control over urinary and fecal discharge. 3. Partial or complete abstention from sexual activity. See Synonyms at abstinence.

con·ti·nent¹ (kɒn'tə-nənt) n. 1. Abbr. cont. One of the principal land masses of the earth, usually regarded as including Africa, Antarctica, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America, and South America. 2. Continent. The mainland of Europe. Used with the. [Latin (terra) continēns, continent-, continuous (land), present participle of continēre, to hold together. See CONTAIN.]

con·ti·nent² (kɒn'tə-nənt) adj. Exercising continence. [Middle English, from Latin continēns, present participle of continēre, to restrain. See CONTAIN.]

—con'ti·nent·ly adv.

con·ti·nen·tal (kɒn'tə-něntl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a continent. 2. Often Continental. Of or relating to the mainland of Europe; European. 3. Continental. Of or relating to the American colonies during and immediately after the Revolutionary War. — n. 1. Often Continental. a. An inhabitant of a continent. b. An inhabitant of the mainland of Europe; a European. 2. A native of the continental United States living or working in Puerto Rico or the U.S. Virgin Islands. 3. Continental. A soldier in the American army during the Revolutionary War. 4. A piece of paper money issued by the Continental Congress during the Revolutionary War. —con'ti·nen'tal·ism n.

—con'ti·nen'tal·ist n. —con'ti·nen-tal'i·ty (-něnt-tăl'ĭ-tē) n.

—con'ti·nen'tal·ly adv.

continental breakfast (kɒn'tə-něntl brɛk'fəst) n. Breakfast consisting usually of coffee or tea and a roll.

continental code (kɒn'tə-něntl kōd) n. A form of Morse code having no spaces between the dot and dash elements, commonly used for telegraphic communication outside the United States and Canada. Also called international Morse code continental divide (kɒn'tə-něntl dī-vīd') n. An extensive stretch of high ground from each side of which the river systems of a continent flow in opposite directions.

Con·ti·nen·tal Di·vide (kɒn'tə-něntl dī-vīd') A series of mountain ridges extending from Alaska to Mexico that forms the watershed of North America. Most of it runs along peaks of the Rocky Mountains and is often called the Great Divide in the United States.

continental drift (kɒn'tə-nən'tl drɪft) n. The movement, formation, or re-formation of continents described by the theory of plate tectonics.

continental shelf (kɒn'tə-nən'tl shelf) n. A submerged border of a continent that slopes gradually and extends to a point of steeper descent to the ocean bottom.

continental slope (kɒn'tə-nən'tl slōp) n. The descent from the continental shelf to the ocean bottom.

con·tin·gence (kən-tɪn'jəns) n. 1. A joining or touching. 2. Contingency.

con·tin·gen·cy (kən-tɪn'jən-sē) n. pl. con·tin·gen·cies. 1. a. An event that may occur but that is not likely or intended; a possibility. b. A possibility that must be prepared for; a future emergency. 2. The condition of being dependent on chance; uncertainty. 3. Something incidental to something else. —con·tin·gen·cy adj.

contingency fee (kən-tɪn'jən-sē fē) n. A fee, as for an attorney's services, that is payable only in the event of a successful or satisfactory outcome.

contingency table (kən-tɪn'jən-sē tā'bəl) n. A statistical table that shows the observed frequencies of data elements classified according to two variables, with the rows indicating one variable and the columns indicating the other variable.

con·tin·gent (kən-tɪn'jənt) adj. 1. Liable to occur but not with certainty; possible. 2. Dependent on conditions or occurrences not yet established; conditional: arms sales contingent on the approval of Congress. See Synonyms at dependent. 3. Happening by chance or accident; fortuitous. See Synonyms at accidental. 4. Logic. True only under certain conditions; not necessarily or universally true: a contingent proposition. — n. 1. An event or condition that is likely but not inevitable. 2. A share or quota, as of troops, contributed to a general effort. 3. A representative group forming part of an assemblage. [Middle English, from Latin contingēns, contingent- present participle of contingere, to touch. See CONTACT.] —con·tin·gent·ly adv.

con·tin·u·a (kən-tɪn'yō-ə) n. A plural of continuum.

con·tin·u·al (kən-tɪn'yō-əl) adj. 1. Recurring regularly or frequently: the continual need to pay the mortgage. 2. Not interrupted; steady: continual noise; a continual diet of vegetables. —con·tin·u·al·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: continual, continuous, constant, ceaseless, incessant, perpetual, eternal, perennial, interminable. These adjectives are compared as they mean occurring over and over during a long period of time. Continual can connote absence of interruption (lived in continual fear) but is chiefly restricted to what is intermittent or repeated at intervals (the continual banging of the shutter in the wind). Continuous implies lack of interruption in time, substance, or extent: She suffered a continuous bout of illness lasting six months. The horizon is a continuous line. Constant stresses steadiness or persistence of occurrence and unvarying nature: the constant chatter of the monkeys in the zoo; constant repetition of the exercise. Ceaseless and incessant pertain to uninterrupted activity: the ceaseless thunder of the surf against the rocks; incessant questions. Perpetual emphasizes both steadiness and duration: a perpetual struggle; a perpetual stream of visitors. Eternal refers to what is everlasting, especially to what is seemingly without temporal beginning or end: “That freedom can be retained only by the eternal vigilance which has always been its price” (Elmer Davis). Perennial describes existence that goes on year after year, often with the suggestion of self-renewal: wished for perennial youth; the perennial problem of urban poverty. Interminable refers to what is or seems to be endless and is often applied to something prolonged and wearisome: interminable talk; an interminable argument.

con·tin·u·ance (kən-tĭn'yŭō-əns) n. 1. The act or fact of continuing. 2. The time during which something exists or lasts; duration. 3. A continuation or sequel. 4. Law. Postponement or adjournment to a future date.

USAGE NOTE: Continuance is interchangeable with continuation in some of its senses. However, only continuance is used to refer to the duration of a state or condition, as in his continuance in office. Continuation applies especially to prolongation or resumption of action (a continuation of the meeting) or to physical extension (the continuation of the street). The continuation of a story is that part of the story following a break in its narration.

con·tin·u·ant (kən-tĭn'yŭō-ənt) n. Linguistics. A consonant, such as s, z, m, or l, that can be prolonged as long as the breath lasts without a change in quality.

con·tin·u·a·tion (kən-tĭn'yŭō-ā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or fact of continuing. b. The state of being continued. 2. An extension by which something is carried to a further point. 3. A resumption after an interruption. See Usage Note at continuance.

con·tin·u·a·tive (kən-tĭn'yŭō-ā'tĭv, -ə-tĭv) adj. Of, relating to, or serving to cause continuation. — n. Something that expresses or causes continuation. — con·tin·u·a·tive·ly adv.

con·tin·u·a·tor (kən-tĭn'yŭō-ā'tər) n. One that continues, especially a person who carries on the work of another.

con·tin·ue (kən-tĭn'yŭō) v. con·tin·ued, con·tin·u·ing, con·tin·ues. Abbr. cont. — v. intr. 1. To go on with a particular action or in a particular condition; persist. 2. To exist over a prolonged period; last. 3. To remain in the same state, capacity, or place: She continued as mayor for a second term. 4. To go on after an interruption; resume: The negotiations continued after a break for lunch. — v. tr. 1. To carry forward; persist in: The police will continue their investigation. 2. To carry further in time, space, or development; extend. 3. To cause to remain or last; retain. 4. To carry on after an interruption; resume. 5. Law. To postpone or adjourn. [Middle English continuen, from Old French continuer, from Latin continuāre, from continuus, continuous, from continēre, to hold together. See CONTAIN.] —con·tin·u·a·ble adj. —con·tin·u·er n.

con·tin·ued fraction (kən-tĭn'yōōd frāk'shən) n. A fraction whose numerator is a whole number and whose denominator is a whole number plus a fraction that has a denominator consisting of a whole number plus a fraction.

con·tin·u·ing education (kən-tĭn'yōō-ĭng ěj'ə-kā'shən) n. 1. An instructional program that brings participants up to date in a particular area of knowledge or skills. 2. Instructional courses designed especially for part-time, adult students.

con·ti·nu·i·ty (kŏn'tə-nōō'ĭ-tē, -nyōō'-) n. pl. con·ti·nu·i·ties. 1. The state or quality of being continuous. 2. An uninterrupted succession or flow; a coherent whole. 3. a. A detailed script or scenario consulted to avoid discrepancies from shot to shot in a film. b. Spoken matter serving to link parts of a radio or television program so that no break occurs.

con·tin·u·o (kən-tĭn'yōō-ō') n. pl. con·tin·u·os. Music. A bass accompaniment, usually played on a keyboard instrument, in which numerals written underneath the notes indicate the kinds of harmony to be played. Also called figured bass, thoroughbass. [Italian, from Latin continuus, continuous. See CONTINUE.]

con·tin·u·ous (kən-tĭn'yōō-əs) adj. 1. Uninterrupted in time, sequence, substance, or extent. See Synonyms at continual. 2. Attached together in repeated units: a continuous form fed into a printer. 3. Mathematics. Of or relating to a line or curve that extends without a break or irregularity. [From Latin continuus. See CONTINUE.] —con·tin·u·ous·ly adv. —con·tin·u·ous·ness n.

continuous creation theory (kən-tĭn'yōō-əs krē-ā'shən thē'ə-rē) n. See steady-state theory.

continuous spectrum (kən-tĭn'yōō-əs spĕk'trəm) n. A spectrum having no lines or bands, especially a spectrum of radiation distributed over an uninterrupted range of wavelengths.

continuous variation (kən-tĭn'yōō-əs vâ'r'ē-ā'shən) n. Genetics. Variation within a population in which a graded series of intermediate phenotypes falls between the extremes.

continuous wave also con·tin·u·ous·wave (kən-tĭn'yōō-əs-wāv') adj. Abbr. cw, CW Emitting or capable of emitting continuously; not pulsed: a continuous wave laser; continuous wave radar.

con·tin·u·um (kən-tĭn'yōō-əm) n. pl. con·tin·u·a (-tĭn'yōō-ə) or con·tin·u·ums. 1. A continuous extent, succession, or whole, no part of which can be distinguished from neighboring parts except by arbitrary division.

2. Mathematics. A set having the same number of points as all the real numbers in an interval. [Latin, neuter of continuus, continuous. See CONTINUE.]

con·tort (kən-tôrt') v. con·tort·ed, con·tort·ing, con·torts. — v. tr. To twist, wrench, or bend severely out of shape: pain that contorted their faces. — v. intr. To become twisted into a strained shape or expression. See Synonyms at distort. [Latin contorquēre, contort-, to twist : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + torquēre, to twist; see terk^w- in Appendix.] — con·tor'tion n. — con·tor'tive adj.

con·tort·ed (kən-tôrt'tid) adj. 1. Twisted or strained out of shape. 2. Botany. Twisted, bent, or partially rolled upon itself; convolute. — con·tort'ed·ly adv. — con·tort'ed·ness n.

con·tor·tion·ist (kən-tôrt'shə-nĭst) n. One who contorts, especially an acrobat capable of twisting into extraordinary positions. — con·tor'tion·is'tic adj.

con·tour (kɔ̃n'tõr') n. 1. a. The outline of a figure, body, or mass. b. A line that represents such an outline. See Synonyms at form. See Synonyms at out·line. 2. Often contours. A surface, especially of a curving form. 3. A contour line. — v. tr. con·toured, con·tour·ing, con·tours. 1. To make or shape the outline of; represent in contour. 2. To build (a road, for example) to follow the contour of the land. — adj. 1. Following the contour lines of uneven terrain to limit erosion of topsoil: contour plowing. 2. Shaped to fit the outline or form of something: a contour sheet. [French, alteration (influenced by tour, turn); see TOUR, of Italian contorno, from contornare, to draw in outline : Latin com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + Latin tornāre, to round off (from tornus, lathe, from Greek tornos); see terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

contour feather (kɔ̃n'tõr' fĕth'ər) n. Any of the outermost feathers of a bird, forming the visible body contour and plumage.

contour line (kɔ̃n'tõr' lĭn) n. A line on a map that joins points of equal elevation.

contour map (kɔ̃n'tõr' mǎp) n. A map showing elevations and surface configuration by means of contour lines.

contr. abbr. 1. Contract. 2. Contraction. 3. Music. Contralto. 4. Control.

contra- pref. 1. Against; opposite; contrasting: contraposition. 2. Lower in pitch: contrabassoon. [Middle English, from Latin contrā-, from contrā, against. See kom in Appendix.]

con·tra·band (kɔ̃n'trə-bānd') n. 1. Goods prohibited by law or treaty from being imported or exported. 2. a. Illegal traffic in contraband; smuggling. b. Smuggled goods. 3. Goods that may be seized and confiscated by a belligerent if shipped to another belligerent by a neutral. 4. An escaped slave during the Civil War who fled to or was taken behind Union lines. — adj. Prohibited from being imported or exported. [Italian contrabbando : contra-, against (from Latin contrā-); see CONTRA- + bando, legal proclamation (from Late Latin bannus, of Germanic origin); see bhā² in Appendix.] —con'tra-band'age n.

—con'tra-band'ist n.

con·tra·bass (kɒn'trə-bās') Music. n. See double bass. — adj. Pitched an octave below the normal bass range. [Obsolete Italian contrabasso : contra-, against (from Latin contrā-); see CONTRA- + basso, bass (from Late Latin bassus, low).] —con'tra·bass'ist n.

con·tra·bas·soon (kɒn'trə-bə-sōn', -bā-) n. Music. The largest and lowest pitched of the double-reed wind instruments, sounding an octave below the bassoon. Also called double bassoon con·tra·cep·tion (kɒn'trə-sɛp'shən) n. Intentional prevention of conception or impregnation through the use of various devices, agents, drugs, sexual practices, or surgical procedures. [CONTRA- + (CON)CEPTION.]

con·tra·cep·tive (kɒn'trə-sɛp'tiv) adj. Capable of preventing conception. — n. A device, drug, or chemical agent that prevents conception.

con·tract (kɒn'trækt') n. Abbr. contr., cont. 1. a. An agreement between two or more parties, especially one that is written and enforceable by law. b. The writing or document containing such an agreement. 2. The branch of law dealing with formal agreements between parties. 3. Marriage as a formal agreement; betrothal. 4. Games. a. The last and highest bid of one hand in bridge. b. The number of tricks thus bid. c. Contract bridge. 5. A paid assignment to murder someone: put out a contract on the mobster's life. — v. con·tract·ed, con·tract·ing, con·tracts (kən-trækt', kɒn'trækt'). — v. tr. 1. To enter into by contract; establish or settle by formal agreement: contract a marriage. 2. To acquire or incur: contract obligations; contract a serious illness. 3. a. To reduce in size by drawing together; shrink. b. To pull together; wrinkle. 4. Grammar. To shorten (a word or words) by omitting or combining some of the letters or sounds. — v. intr. 1. To enter into or make an agreement: contract for garbage collection. 2. To become reduced in size by or as if by being drawn together: The pupils of the patient's eyes contracted. [Middle English, from Latin contrāctus, past participle of contrahere, to draw together, make a contract : com-, com- + trahere, to draw.] —con·tract'i·bil'i·ty, con·tract'i·ble·ness n. —con·tract'i·ble adj.

SYNONYMS: contract, condense, compress, constrict, shrink. These verbs mean to decrease in size or content. To contract is to draw together, especially by an internal force, with a resultant reduction in size, extent, or volume: The bodybuilders contracted their biceps in unison. The pupil of the eye dilates and contracts in response to light. Condense refers to a reduction in volume and an increase in compactness: “To produce snow requires both heat and cold; the first to evaporate, the second to condense” (John Lubbock). The chairman condensed all the suggestions put forward into a single plan of action. Compress applies to increased compactness brought about by pressing or squeezing; the term implies reduction in volume and change of form or shape: compress dough into a circle with a rolling pin; sat on the lid of the suitcase to compress the clothes; trying to compress my thoughts into a few words. To constrict is to make smaller or narrower, usually by binding or compression: An accumulation of silt constricted the entrance to the harbor. Tight shoes constrict the feet. Shrink refers to contraction that produces reduction in length, size, volume, or extent: Wool jersey should be shrunk before being cut and stitched. Many once prosperous northern mill towns have shrunk as industry has moved to the South. His capital shrank as his business foundered. See also Synonyms at bargain contract bridge (kɒn'trækt' brɪj) n. Games. Auction bridge in which tricks in excess of the contract may not count toward game bonuses.

con·trac·tile (kən-træk'təl, -tɪl') adj. Capable of contracting or causing contraction: Muscle is a contractile tissue. —con'trac·til'i·ty (kɒn'træk-tɪl'i-tē) n.

contractile vacuole (kən-træk'təl vək'yoo-ōl') n. A membrane-bound organelle found in certain protists that pumps fluid in a cyclical manner from within the cell to the outside by alternately filling and then contracting to release its contents at various points on the surface of the cell. It functions in maintaining osmotic equilibrium.

con·trac·tion (kən-træk'shən) n. 1. The act of contracting or the state of being contracted. 2. Abbr. cont., contr. a. A word, as won't from will not, or phrase, as o'clock from of the clock, formed by omitting or combining some of the sounds of a longer phrase. b. The formation of such a word. 3. Physiology. The shortening and thickening of functioning muscle or muscle fiber. 4. A period of decreased business activity.

con·trac·tor (kɒn'træk'tər, kən-træk'-) n. 1. One that agrees to furnish materials or perform services at a specified price, especially for construction work. 2. Something, especially a muscle, that contracts.

con·trac·tu·al (kən-træk'chōo-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or having the nature of a contract. —con·trac'tu·al·ly adv.

con·trac·ture (kən-træk'chər) n. 1. An abnormal, often permanent shortening, as of muscle or scar tissue, that results in distortion or deformity, especially of a joint of the body. 2. A deformity resulting from a contracture.

con·tra·cy·cli·cal (kɒn'trə-si'kli-kəl, -sɪk'lɪ-) adj. Acting counter to an economic cycle.

con·tra·dance or con·tra·danse (kɒn'trə-dəns') n. Variants of contredanse.

con·tra·dict (kɒn'trə-dɪkt') v. con·tra·dict·ed, con·tra·dict·ing, con·tra·dicts. — v. tr. 1. To assert or express the opposite of (a statement).

2. To deny the statement of. See Synonyms at deny. 3. To be contrary to; be inconsistent with. — v. intr. To utter a contradictory statement. [Latin contrādicere, contrādict-, to speak against : contrā-, contra- + dīcere, to speak; see deik- in Appendix.] —con'tra-dict'a-ble adj. —con'tra-dict'er, con'tra-dic'tor n.

con-tra-dic-tion (kǒn'trə-dīk'shən) n. 1. a. The act of contradicting. b. The state of being contradicted. 2. A denial. 3. Inconsistency; discrepancy.

4. Something that contains contradictory elements.

con-tra-dic-to-ry (kǒn'trə-dīk'tə-rē) adj. 1. Involving, of the nature of, or being a contradiction. See Synonyms at opposite. 2. Given to contradicting.

— n. pl. con-tra-dic-to-ries. Logic. Either of two propositions related in such a way that it is impossible for both to be true or both to be false.

—con'tra-dic'to-ri-ly adv. —con'tra-dic'to-ri-ness n.

con-tra-dis-tinc-tion (kǒn'trə-dī-stīngk'shən) n. Distinction by contrasting or opposing qualities. —con'tra-dis-tinc'tive adj. —con'tra-dis-tinc'tive-ly adv.

con-tra-dis-tin-guish (kǒn'trə-dī-stīng'gwīsh) v. tr.

con-tra-dis-tin-guished, con-tra-dis-tin-guish-ing, con-tra-dis-tin-guish-es. To distinguish by contrasting qualities.

con-tra-ges-tive (kǒn'trə-jēs'tīv) adj. Capable of preventing gestation, either by preventing implantation or by causing the uterine lining to shed after implantation. — n. A contragestive drug or agent. —con'tra-ges-ta'tion (-jē-stā'shən) n.

con-trail (kǒn'trāl') n. A visible trail of streaks of condensed water vapor or ice crystals sometimes forming in the wake of an aircraft. Also called vapor trail [CON(DENSATION) + TRAIL.]

con-tra-in-di-cate (kǒn'trə-īn'dī-kāt') v. tr. con-tra-in-di-cat-ed, con-tra-in-di-cat-ing, con-tra-in-di-cates. To indicate the inadvisability of (a medical treatment, for example). —con'tra-in-dic'a-tive (-īn-dīk'ə-tīv) adj.

con-tra-in-di-ca-tion (kǒn'trə-īn'dī-kā'shən) n. A factor that renders the administration of a drug or the carrying out of a medical procedure inadvisable: A previous allergic reaction to penicillin is a contraindication to the future use of that drug.

con-tra-lat-er-al (kǒn'trə-lăt'ər-əl) adj. Taking place or originating in a corresponding part on an opposite side.

con-tral-to (kən-träl'tō) n. pl. con-tral-tos. Abbr. contr. Music. 1. The lowest female voice or voice part, intermediate in range between soprano and tenor.

2. A woman having a contralto voice. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a contralto part; contralto tones. [Italian : contra-, below (from Latin contrā-, contra-) + alto, alto; see ALTO.]

con-tra-po-si-tion (kǒn'trə-pə-zīsh'ən) n. An opposite position; antithesis.

con-tra-pos-i-tive (kǒn'trə-pöz'ī-tīv) n. Logic. A proposition derived by negating and permuting the terms of another, equivalent proposition; for example, All not-Y is not-X is the contrapositive of All X is Y.

con·trap·pos·to (kōn'trə-pōs'tō) n. The position of a figure in painting or sculpture in which the hips and legs are turned in a different direction from that of the shoulders and head; the twisting of a figure on its own vertical axis. [Italian, past participle of contrapporre, to set opposite, contrast, from Latin contrāpōnere : contrā-, contra- + pōnere, to place; see apo- in Appendix.]

con·trap·tion (kən-trăp'shən) n. A mechanical device; a gadget. [Perhaps blend of CONTRIVE, and TRAP².]

con·tra·pun·tal (kōn'trə-pŭn'tl) adj. Music. Of, relating to, or incorporating counterpoint. [From obsolete Italian contrapunto, counterpoint : contra-, against (from Latin contrā-); see CONTRA- + punto, point, note (from Latin punctum); see PUNCTUAL.] —con'tra·pun'tal·ly adv.

con·tra·pun·tist (kōn'trə-pŭn'tist) n. Music. A specialist in counterpoint.

con·trar·i·an (kən-trâr'ē-ən) n. An investor who makes decisions that contradict prevailing wisdom, as in buying securities that are unpopular at the time.

con·tra·ri·e·ty (kōn'trə-rî'i-tē) n. pl. con·tra·ri·e·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being contrary. 2. Something that is contrary.

con·trar·i·ous (kən-trâr'ē-əs) adj. Perverse; inimical. —con·trar'i·ous·ly adv.

con·trar·i·wise (kōn'trēr'ē-wîz', kən-trâr'-) adv. 1. From a contrasting point of view. 2. In the opposite way or reverse order. 3. In a perverse manner.

con·trar·y (kōn'trēr'ē) adj. 1. Opposed, as in character or purpose: contrary opinions; acts that are contrary to our code of ethics. 2. Opposite in direction or position: playing scales in contrary motion. 3. Adverse; unfavorable: a contrary wind. 4. (also kən-trâr'ē) Given to recalcitrant behavior; willful or perverse.

— n. pl. con·trar·ies. 1. Something that is opposite or contrary. 2. Either of two opposing or contrary things: "Truth is perhaps... a dynamic compound of opposites, savage contraries for a moment conjoined" (A. Bartlett Giamatti).

3. Logic. A proposition related to another in such a way that if the latter is true, the former must be false, but if the latter is false, the former is not necessarily true. — adv. In an opposite direction or manner; counter: The judge ruled contrary to all precedent in the case. —idioms. by contraries. Obsolete. In opposition to what is expected.

on the contrary. In opposition to what has been stated or what is expected: I'm not sick; on the contrary, I'm in the peak of health. [Middle English contrarie, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin contrārius : contrā, against; see kom in Appendix + -ārius, -ary.] —con'trar'i·ly adv.

—con'trar'i·ness n.

SYNONYMS: contrary, balky, perverse, wayward, ornery. These adjectives mean given to acting in opposition to others. Contrary applies especially to a person who is inherently self-willed and resistant to direction or counsel: Who can reason with you when you're being contrary? Balky describes an animal or a mechanical device that stops short and does not proceed or continue in operation; the word is also applicable to analogous human behavior: The balky horse refused the jump. The balky engine sputtered and stopped. Even threats of indictment didn't loosen the tongue of the balky witness. Perverse implies disposition or determination to contravene what is expected or desired: He said no just to be perverse. Wayward stresses a flouting of authority that leads to erratic, capricious, or reprehensible behavior: "a lively child, who had been spoilt and indulged, and therefore was sometimes wayward" (Charlotte Brontë). One who is ornery is marked by a mean-spirited, often defiant contrariety: When I tried to get the car salesman to lower his prices, he became ornery and dug in his heels. See also Synonyms at opposite con·trast (kən-trăst', kŏn'trăst') v. con·trast·ed, con·trast·ing, con·trasts.

— v. tr. To set in opposition in order to show or emphasize differences: an essay that contrasts city and country life; contrasted this computer with inferior models.
— v. intr. To show differences when compared: siblings who contrast sharply in interests and abilities; a color that contrasted clearly with the dark background. — n. (kŏn'trăst') 1. a. The act of contrasting; a setting off of dissimilar entities or objects. b. The state of being contrasted: red berries standing in vivid contrast against the snow. 2. A difference, especially a strong dissimilarity, between entities or objects compared: the contrast between Northern and Southern speech patterns. 3. One thing that is strikingly dissimilar to another: My new school was a welcome contrast to the one before. 4. The use of opposing elements, such as colors, forms, or lines, in proximity to produce an intensified effect in a work of art. 5. The difference in brightness between the light and dark areas of a picture, such as a photograph or video image. [French contraster, from Italian contrastare, from Medieval Latin contrāstāre: Latin contrā-, contra- + Latin stāre, to stand; see stā- in Appendix.] —con·trast/a·ble adj. —con·trast'ing·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: The noun contrast may be followed by between, with, or to: There is a sharp contrast between his earlier and later works. In contrast with (or less frequently, to) his early works, the later plays are brittle and highly theatrical. When contrast is used as a transitive verb, both with and to may follow, though with is more common: He contrasts the naturalistic early plays with (or to) the brittle later comedies.

contrast medium (kən-trăst' mē'dē-əm) n. A substance, such as barium or air, used in radiography to increase the contrast of an image. A positive contrast medium absorbs x-rays more strongly than the tissue or structure being examined; a negative contrast medium, less strongly.

con·trast·y (kŏn'trăs'tē) adj. Having or producing sharp contrasts between light and dark areas in photography.

con-tra-vene (kɔ̃n'trə-vēn') v. tr. con-tra-vened, con-tra-ven-ing, con-tra-venes. 1. To act or be counter to; violate: contravene a direct order. 2. To oppose in argument; gainsay: contravened the proposal. See Synonyms at deny. [French contrevenir, from Medieval Latin contrāvenīre, to transgress, from Late Latin, to oppose : Latin contrā-, contra- + Latin venīre, to come; see g^wā- in Appendix.] —con'tra-ven'er n.

con-tra-ven-tion (kɔ̃n'trə-vēn'shən) n. The act of contravening; a violation.

con-tre-danse also con-tre-dance or con-tra-dance or con-tra-danse (kɔ̃n'trə-dāns') n. 1. A folk dance performed in two lines with the partners facing each other. 2. The music for a contredanse. [French, alteration (influenced by French contre-, opposite, from Latin contrā-, contra-), of COUNTRY-DANCE.]

con-tre-temps (kɔ̃n'trə-tän', kɔ̃n'trə-tän') n. pl. contretemps (-täNZ', -täNZ'). An unforeseen event that disrupts the normal course of things; an inopportune occurrence. [French : contre-, against (from Latin contrā-); see CONTRA- + temps, time (from Latin tempus).]

contrib. abbr. 1. Contribution. 2. Contributor.

con-trib-ute (kən-trīb'yōōt) v. con-trib-ut-ed, con-trib-ut-ing, con-trib-utes. — v. tr. 1. To give or supply in common with others; give to a common fund or for a common purpose. 2. To submit for publication: contributed two stories to the summer issue. — v. intr. 1. To make a contribution: contributes to several charities. 2. To help bring about a result; act as a factor: Exercise contributes to better health. 3. To submit material for publication. [Latin contribuere, contribūt-, to bring together : com-, com- + tribuere, to grant; see TRIBUTE.] —con-trib'u-tive adj. —con-trib'u-tive-ly adv.

—con-trib'u-tive-ness n. —con-trib'u-tor n.

con-tri-bu-tion (kɔ̃n'trī-byōō'shən) n. 1. The act of contributing. 2. Abbr.

contrib. Something contributed. 3. A payment exacted for a special purpose; an impost or a levy.

con-trib-u-to-ry (kən-trīb'yə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or involving contribution. 2. Helping to bring about a result. 3. Subject to an impost or levy. — n. pl. con-trib-u-to-ries. One that contributes.

con-trite (kən-trīt', kɔ̃n'trīt') adj. 1. Feeling regret and sorrow for one's sins or offenses; penitent. 2. Arising from or expressing contrition: contrite words. [Middle English contrit, from Latin contrītus, past participle of conterere, to crush : com-, com- + terere, to grind; see terə⁻¹ in Appendix.] —con-trite'ly adv. —con-trite'ness n.

con-tri-tion (kən-trīsh'ən) n. Sincere remorse for wrongdoing; repentance. See Synonyms at penitence.

con-tri-vance (kən-trī'vəns) n. 1. a. The act of contriving. b. The state of being contrived. 2. Something contrived, as a mechanical device or a clever plan.

con·trive (kən-trīv/) v. con·trived, con·triv·ing, con·trives. — v. tr. 1. To plan with cleverness or ingenuity; devise: contrive ways to amuse the children. 2. To invent or fabricate, especially by improvisation: contrived a swing from hanging vines. 3. To plan with evil intent; scheme: contrived a plot to seize power. 4. To bring about, as by scheming; manage: somehow contrived to get past the guards unnoticed. — v. intr. To form plans or schemes. [Middle English contriven, from Old French controver, contreuv-, from Medieval Latin contropāre, to compare : Latin com-, com- + Latin tropus, turn, manner, style (from Greek tropos); see trep- in Appendix.] — con·triv'er n.

con·trived (kən-trīvd/) adj. Obviously planned or calculated; not spontaneous; labored: a novel with a contrived ending. — con·triv'ed·ly (-trī'vid-lē, -trīvd'lē) adv.

con·trol (kən-trōl/) v. tr. con·trolled, con·trol·ling, con·trols. 1. To exercise authoritative or dominating influence over; direct. See Synonyms at conduct.

2. To hold in restraint; check: struggled to control my temper; regulations intended to control prices. 3. a. To verify or regulate (a scientific experiment) by conducting a parallel experiment or by comparing with another standard. b. To verify (an account, for example) by using a duplicate register for comparison. — n.

1. Authority or ability to manage or direct: lost control of the skidding car; the leaders in control of the country. 2. Abbr. cont., contr. a. One that controls; a controlling agent, device, or organization. b. Often controls. An instrument or set of instruments used to operate, regulate, or guide a machine or vehicle. 3. A restraining device, measure, or limit; a curb: a control on prices; price controls.

4. a. A standard of comparison for checking or verifying the results of an experiment. b. An individual or group used as a standard of comparison in a control experiment. 5. An intelligence agent who supervises or instructs another agent.

6. A spirit presumed to speak or act through a medium. [Middle English controlen, from Anglo-Norman contreroller, from Medieval Latin contrārotulāre, to check by duplicate register, from contrārotulus, duplicate register : Latin contrā-, contra- + Latin rotulus, roll, diminutive of rota, wheel; see ret- in Appendix.]

— con·trol'la·bil'i·ty n. — con·trol'la·ble adj.

control experiment (kən-trōl' ĭk-spēr'ə-mənt) n. An experiment that isolates the effect of one variable on a system by holding constant all variables but the one under observation.

con·trolled substance (kən-trōld' sŭb'stəns) n. A drug or chemical substance whose possession and use are regulated under the Controlled Substances Act.

con·trol·ler (kən-trō'lər) n. 1. One that controls: a controller, not an observer of events. 2. Also comp·trol·ler (kən-trō'lər). An officer who audits accounts and supervises the financial affairs of a corporation or of a governmental body.

3. A regulating mechanism, as in a vehicle or electric device.

—con·trol·ler·ship n.

con·trol·ling interest (kən-trō'ling ɪn'trɪst) n. Ownership of a sufficient number of shares of stock in a company to control company policy.

control rocket (kən-trōl' rɒk'ɪt) n. A vernier rocket or similar missile used to change the attitude or trajectory of a rocket or spacecraft.

control stick (kən-trōl' stɪk) n. A lever used to control the motion of an aircraft by changing the angle of the elevators and ailerons.

control surface (kən-trōl' sūr'fəs) n. A movable airfoil, especially a rudder, an aileron, or an elevator, used to control or guide an aircraft, a guided missile, or a rocket.

control tower (kən-trōl' tou'ər) n. A tower at an airfield from which air traffic is controlled by radio and observed physically and by radar.

con·tro·ver·sial (kɒn'trə-vûr'shəl, -sē-əl) adj. 1. Of, producing, or marked by controversy: a controversial movie; a controversial stand on human rights. 2. Fond of controversy; disputatious. —con'tro-ver'sial·ist n.

—con'tro-ver'si-al'i·ty (-shē-ăl'ī-tē, -sē-) n. —con'tro-ver'sial·ly adv.

con·tro·ver·sy (kɒn'trə-vûr'sē) n. pl. con·tro·ver·sies. 1. A dispute, especially a public one, between sides holding opposing views. See Synonyms at argument. 2. The act or practice of engaging in such disputes: writers skilled at controversy. [Middle English controversie, from Latin contrōversia, from contrō-versus, disputed : contrā-, contra- + versus, past participle of vertere, to turn; see wer-² in Appendix.]

con·tro·vert (kɒn'trə-vûrt', kɒn'trə-vûrt') v. tr. con·tro·vert·ed, con·tro·vert·ing, con·tro·verts. To raise arguments against; voice opposition to. [From CONTROVERSY.] —con'tro-vert'i·ble adj.

con·tu·ma·cious (kɒn'tə-mā'shəs, -tyə-) adj. Obstinately disobedient or rebellious; insubordinate. —con'tu·ma'cious·ly adv. —con'tu·ma'cious·ness n.

con·tu·ma·cy (kɒn'tōō-mə-sē, -tyōō-) n. pl. con·tu·ma·cies. Obstinate or contemptuous resistance to authority; stubborn rebelliousness. [Middle English contumacie, from Latin contumācia, from contumāx, insolent.]

con·tu·me·ly (kɒn'tōō-mə-lē, -tyōō-, -təm-lē) n. pl. con·tu·me·lies.

1. Rudeness or contempt arising from arrogance; insolence. 2. An insolent or arrogant remark or act. [Middle English contumelie, from Old French, from Latin contumēlia; akin to contumāx, insolent.] —con'tu·me'li·ous (kɒn'tə-mē'lē-əs) adj. —con'tu·me'li·ous·ly adv.

con·tuse (kən-tōōz', -tyōōz') v. tr. con·tused, con·tus·ing, con·tus·es. To injure without breaking the skin; bruise. [Middle English contusen, from Latin contundere, contūs-, to beat : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + tundere, to beat.]

con-tu-sion (kən-tōō'zhən, -tyōō'-) n. An injury in which the skin is not broken; a bruise.

co-nun-drum (kə-nūn'drəm) n. 1. A riddle in which a fanciful question is answered by a pun. 2. A paradoxical, insoluble, or difficult problem; a dilemma: "the conundrum, thus far unanswered, of achieving full employment without inflation" (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). [Origin unknown.]

con-ur-ba-tion (kɔ̃n'ər-bā'shən) n. A predominantly urban region including adjacent towns and suburbs; a metropolitan area. [CON- + Latin urbs, city + -ATION.]

co-nus ar-te-ri-o-sus (kō'nəs är-tîr'ē-ō'səs) n. pl. co-ni ar-te-ri-o-si (kō'nī är-tîr'ē-ō'sī, kō'nē är-tîr'ē-ō'sē). 1. A conical extension of the right ventricle in the heart of mammals, from which the pulmonary artery originates. 2. An extension of the ventricle in the heart of amphibians and certain fish. [New Latin : Latin conus, cone + Latin arteriōsus, arterial.]

conv. abbr. 1. Convention. 2. Convertible. 3. Convocation.

Conv. abbr. Conventual.

con-va-lesce (kɔ̃n'və-lēs') v. intr. con-va-lesced, con-va-lesc-ing, con-va-lesc-es. To return to health and strength after illness; recuperate. [Latin convalescere : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + valēscere, to grow strong, inchoative of valēre, to be strong; see wal- in Appendix.]

con-va-les-cence (kɔ̃n'və-lēs'əns) n. 1. Gradual return to health and strength after illness. 2. The period needed for returning to health after illness. —con'va-les'cent adj. & n.

con-vect (kən-vēkt') v. con-vect-ed, con-vect-ing, con-vects. — v. tr. To transfer (heat) by convection. — v. intr. To undergo convection: warm air con-vecting upward. [Back-formation from CONVECTION.]

con-vec-tion (kən-vēk'shən) n. 1. The act or process of conveying; transmission. 2. Physics. a. Heat transfer in a gas or liquid by the circulation of currents from one region to another. b. Fluid motion caused by an external force such as gravity. 3. Meteorology. The transfer of heat or other atmospheric properties by massive motion within the atmosphere, especially by such motion directed upward. [Late Latin convectiō, convectiōn-, from convectus, past participle of con-vehere, to carry together : Latin com-, com- + Latin vehere, to carry; see wegh- in Appendix.] —con-vec'tion-al adj. —con-vec'tive adj. —con-vec'tive-ly adv.

con-vec-tor (kən-vēk'tər) n. A partly enclosed, directly heated surface from which warm air circulates by convection.

con-vene (kən-vēn') v. con-ven-ed, con-ven-ing, con-venes. — v. intr. To come together usually for an official or public purpose; assemble formally. — v. tr. 1. To cause to come together formally; convoke: convene a special session of Congress. See Synonyms at call. 2. To summon to appear, as before a tribunal.

[Middle English convenen, from Old French convenir, from Latin convenire : com-, com- + venire, to come; see g^wā- in Appendix.] —con-ven'a-ble adj.

—con-ven'er, con-ven'or n.

con-ven·ience (kən-vēn'yəns) n. 1. The quality of being suitable to one's comfort, purposes, or needs: the convenience of living near shops, schools, and libraries. 2. Personal comfort or advantage: services that promote the customer's convenience. 3. Something that increases comfort or saves work: household conveniences such as a washing machine, an electric can opener, and disposable diapers. See Synonyms at amenity. 4. Chiefly British. A lavatory.

convenience food (kən-vēn'yəns fōōd) n. A prepackaged food that can be prepared quickly and easily.

convenience store (kən-vēn'yəns stôr) n. A small retail store that is open long hours and that typically sells staple groceries, snacks, and sometimes gasoline.

con-ven·ien·cy (kən-vēn'yən-sē) n. pl. con-ven·ien·cies. Archaic. Convenience.

con-ven·ient (kən-vēn'yənt) adj. 1. Suited or favorable to one's comfort, purpose, or needs: a convenient time to receive guests; a convenient excuse for not going. 2. a. Easy to reach; accessible: a bank with branches at six convenient locations. b. Close at hand; near: an apartment that is convenient to shopping and transportation. 3. Obsolete. Fitting and proper; suitable. [Middle English, from Latin conveniēns, convenient- present participle of convenire, to be suitable, fit. See CONVENE.] —con-ven'ient-ly adv.

con-vent (kɒn'vənt, -vēnt') n. 1. A community, especially of nuns, bound by vows to a religious life under a superior. 2. The building or buildings occupied by such a community. [Middle English covent, from Old French, from Medieval Latin conventus, from Latin, assembly, from past participle of convenire, to assemble. See CONVENE.]

con-ven·ti·cle (kən-vēn'ti-kəl) n. A religious meeting, especially a secret or illegal one, such as those held by Dissenters in England and Scotland in the 16th and 17th centuries. [Middle English, from Latin conventiculum, meeting, diminutive of conventus, assembly. See CONVENT.] —con-ven'ti·cler n.

con-ven·tion (kən-vēn'shən) n. Abbr. conv. 1. a. A formal meeting of members, representatives, or delegates, as of a political party, fraternal society, profession, or industry. b. The body of persons attending such an assembly: called the convention to order. 2. An agreement between states, sides, or military forces, especially an international agreement dealing with a specific subject, such as the treatment of prisoners of war. 3. General agreement on or acceptance of certain practices or attitudes: By convention, north is at the top of most maps. 4. A practice or procedure widely observed in a group, especially to facilitate social interaction; a custom: the convention of shaking hands. 5. A widely used and accepted device or technique, as in drama, literature, or painting: the theatrical convention of the aside. [Middle English convencioun, from Latin conventiō, conventiōn-, meeting, from conventus, past participle of convenīre, to assemble. See CONVENE.]

con-ven-tion-al (kən-vən'shə-nəl) adj. 1. Based on or in accordance with general agreement, use, or practice; customary: conventional symbols; a conventional form of address. 2. Conforming to established practice or accepted standards; traditional: a conventional church wedding. 3. a. Devoted to or bound by conventions to the point of artificiality; ceremonious. b. Unimaginative; conformist: longed to escape from their conventional, bourgeois lives. 4. Represented, as in a work of art, in simplified or abstract form. 5. Law. Based on consent or agreement; contractual. 6. Of, relating to, or resembling an assembly. 7. Using means other than nuclear weapons or energy: conventional warfare; conventional power plants. —con-ven'tion-al-ism n. —con-ven'tion-al-ist n. —con-ven'tion-al-ly adv.

con-ven-tion-al-i-ty (kən-vən'shə-nəl'ī-tē) n. pl. con-ven-tion-al-i-ties.

1. The state, quality, or character of being conventional. 2. A conventional act, idea, or practice. 3. conventionalities. The rules of conventional social behavior.

con-ven-tion-al-ize (kən-vən'shə-nə-līz') v. tr. con-ven-tion-al-ized, con-ven-tion-al-iz-ing, con-ven-tion-al-iz-es. To make conventional.

—con-ven'tion-al-i-za'tion (-vən'shə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

con-ven-tion-eer (kən-vən'shə-nîr') n. One who attends a convention.

con-ven-tu-al (kən-vən'chō-əl) adj. Of or relating to a convent. — n. 1. A member of a convent. 2. Conventual. Abbr. Conv. A member of a branch of the Franciscan order that permits the accumulation and possession of common property. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin conventuālis, from conventus, convent. See CONVENT.]

con-verge (kən-vûrj') v. con-verged, con-verg-ing, con-verg-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To tend toward or approach an intersecting point: lines that converge. b. To come together from different directions; meet: The avenues converge at a central square. 2. To tend toward or achieve union or a common conclusion or result: In time, our views and our efforts converged. 3. Mathematics. To approach a limit. — v. tr. To cause to converge. [Late Latin convergere, to incline together : Latin com-, com- + Latin vergere, to incline; see wer² in Appendix.]

con-ver-gence (kən-vûrj'jəns) n. 1. The act, condition, quality, or fact of converging. 2. Mathematics. The property or manner of approaching a limit, such as a point, line, surface, or value. 3. The point of converging; a meeting place: a town at the convergence of two rivers. 4. Physiology. The coordinated turning of the eyes inward to focus on an object at close range. 5. Biology. The adaptive evolution of superficially similar structures, such as the wings of birds and insects, in unrelated species subjected to similar environments. In this sense, also called convergent evolution — con-ver'gent adj.

con-ver-gen-cy (kən-vûr'jən-sē) n. pl. con-ver-gen-cies. Convergence.

convergent evolution (kən-vûr'jənt ɛv'ə-lōō'shən) n. See convergence (n., sense 5).

con-ver-sance (kən-vûr'səns, kɔn'vər-) n. The state of being conversant; familiarity.

con-ver-san-cy (kən-vûr'sən-sē) n. pl. con-ver-san-cies. Conversance.

con-ver-sant (kən-vûr'sənt, kɔn'vər-) adj. Familiar, as by study or experience: conversant with medieval history. [Middle English conversaunt, associated with, from Old French conversant, present participle of converser, to associate with, from Latin conversārī. See CONVERSE¹.] — con-ver'sant-ly adv.

con-ver-sa-tion (kɔn'vər-sā'shən) n. 1. A spoken exchange of thoughts, opinions, and feelings; a talk. 2. An informal discussion of a matter by representatives of governments, institutions, or organizations. 3. Computer Science. A real-time interaction with a computer. — con-ver-sa'tion-al adj.

— con-ver-sa'tion-al-ly adv.

con-ver-sa-tion-al-ist (kɔn'vər-sā'shə-nə-lĭst) also con-ver-sa-tion-ist (-shə-nĭst) n. One given to or skilled at conversation.

conversation piece (kɔn'vər-sā'shən pēs) n. 1. An unusual object that arouses comment or interest. 2. A genre painting, popular especially in the 18th century, depicting a group of fashionable people.

con-ver-sa-zi-o-ne (kɔn'vər-sāt'sē-ō'nē, kɔn'vər-sā-tsyô'ně) n. pl.

con-ver-sa-zi-o-nes or con-ver-sa-zi-o-ni (-nē). A meeting for conversation or discussion, especially about art. [Italian, from Latin conversātiō, conversātiōn-, dealings with persons, from conversātus, past participle of conversārī, to associate with. See CONVERSE¹.]

con-verse¹ (kən-vûrs') v. intr. con-versed, con-vers-ing, con-vers-es.

1. To engage in a spoken exchange of thoughts, ideas, or feelings; talk. See Synonyms at speak. 2. Computer Science. To interact with a computer on-line.

3. Archaic. To be familiar; associate. — n. (kɔn'vûrs') 1. Spoken interchange of thoughts and feelings; conversation. 2. Obsolete. Social interaction. [Middle English conversen, to associate with, from Old French converser, from Latin conversārī: com-, com- + versārī, to occupy oneself; see ver-² in Appendix.]

con-verse² (kən-vûrs', kɔn'vûrs') adj. Reversed, as in position, order, or action; contrary. — n. (kɔn'vûrs') 1. Something that has been reversed; an opposite. 2. Logic. A proposition obtained by conversion. [Latin conversus, past participle of convertere, to turn around. See CONVERT.] — con-verse/ly adv.

con-ver-sion (kən-vûr'zhən, -shən) n. 1. a. The act of converting. b. The state of being converted. 2. A change in which one adopts a new religion, faith, or belief. 3. Something that is changed from one use, function, or purpose to another. 4. Law. a. The unlawful appropriation of another's property. b. The changing of real property to personal property or vice versa. 5. The exchange of one type of security or currency for another. 6. Logic. The interchange of the subject and predicate of a proposition. 7. Football. A score made on a try for a point or points after a touchdown. 8. Psychiatry. A defense mechanism in which repressed ideas, conflicts, or impulses are manifested by various bodily symptoms, such as paralysis or breathing difficulties, that have no physical cause.

[Middle English conversioun, religious conversion, from Old French conversion, from Latin conversio, *conversio*n-, a turning around, from conversus, past participle of convertere, to turn around. See CONVERT.] —con-ver'sion-al, con-ver'sion-ar'y (-zhə-nēr'ē, -shə-) adj.

conversion disorder (kən-vûr'zhən dīs-ôr'dər) n. See conversion reaction.

conversion factor (kən-vûr'zhən fāk'tər) n. A numerical factor used to multiply or divide a quantity expressed in one system of units in a conversion to another system.

conversion reaction (kən-vûr'zhən rē-āk'shən) n. A neurosis characterized by the presence of bodily symptoms having no discernible physical cause but for which there is evidence of a psychological conflict or need. Also called conversion disorder con-vert (kən-vûrt') v. con-vert-ed, con-vert-ing, con-verts. — v. tr.

1. To change (something) into another form, substance, state, or product; transform: convert water into ice. 2. To change (something) from one use, function, or purpose to another; adapt to a new or different purpose: convert a forest into farmland. 3. To persuade or induce to adopt a particular religion, faith, or belief: convert pagans to Christianity; was converted to pacifism by the war. 4. To exchange for something of equal value: convert assets into cash. 5. To exchange (a security, for example) by substituting an equivalent of another form. 6. To express (a quantity) in alternative units: converting feet into meters. 7. Logic. To transform (a proposition) by conversion. 8. Law. a. To appropriate (another's property) without right to one's own use. b. To change (property) from real to personal or from joint to separate or vice versa. — v. intr. 1. To undergo a conversion: We converted to Islam several years ago. 2. To be converted: a sofa that converts into a bed; arms factories converting to peacetime production. 3. Football. To make a conversion. — n. (kõn'vûrt') One who has been converted, especially from one religion or belief to another. [Middle English converten, from Old French convertir, from Latin convertere, to turn around : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + vertere, to turn; see wer-² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: convert, metamorphose, transfigure, transform, transmogrify, transmute. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to change into a different form, substance, or state”: convert stocks into cash; misery metamorphosing into happiness; a bare stage that was transfigured into an enchanted forest; a gangling adolescent transformed into a handsome adult; a sleepy town transmogrified by the boom into a bustling city; impossible to transmute lead into gold.

con·vert·a·plane (kən-vûr'tə-plān') n. Variant of convertiplane.

con·vert·ed rice (kən-vûr'tid rīs) n. A white rice prepared from brown rice that has been soaked, steamed under pressure to force water-soluble nutrients into the starchy endosperm, and then dried and milled.

con·vert·er also con·ver·tor (kən-vûr'tər) n. 1. One that converts, especially:
a. A furnace in which pig iron is converted into steel by the Bessemer process.
b. A machine that converts electric current from one kind to another. c. An electronic device that converts one frequency of a radio signal to another. d. A device that converts data from one code to another. 2. One that is employed in converting raw products into finished products.

con·vert·i·ble (kən-vûr'tə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be converted: a convertible sofa bed. 2. Having a top that can be folded back or removed: a convertible automobile. 3. Abbr. conv., cvt. Lawfully exchangeable for gold or another currency: dollars convertible into yen. — n. 1. Something that can be converted. 2. A convertible automobile. 3. A convertible security. —con·vert'·i·bil'·i·ty, con·vert'·i·ble·ness n. —con·vert'·i·bly adv.

convertible security (kən-vûr'tə-bəl sĭ-kyōōr'ī-tē) n. A security that, at the holder's option, may be exchanged for another asset, typically a fixed number of shares of common stock.

con·vert·i·plane also con·vert·a·plane (kən-vûr'tə-plān') n. An airplane built to fly vertically as well as forward.

con·ver·tor (kən-vûr'tər) n. Variant of converter.

con·vex (kɔ̃n'vēks', kən-vēks') adj. Having a surface or boundary that curves or bulges outward, as the exterior of a sphere. [Latin convexus. See wegh- in Appendix.] —con'vex'ly adv.

con·vex·i·ty (kən-vĕk'sĭ-tē) n. pl. con·vex·i·ties. 1. The state of being convex. 2. A convex surface, body, part, or line.

con·vex·o·con·cave (kən-vĕk'sō-kən-kāv') adj. 1. Convex on one side and concave on the other. 2. Having greater curvature on the convex side than on the concave side. Used of a lens.

con·vex·o·con·vex (kən-vĕk'sō-kən-vēks') adj. Convex on both sides; biconvex. Used of a lens.

con·vey (kən-vā') v. tr. con·veyed, con·vey·ing, con·veys. 1. To take or carry from one place to another; transport. 2. To serve as a medium of transmission for; transmit: wires that convey electricity. 3. To communicate or make known; impart: “a look intended to convey sympathetic comprehension” (Saki).

4. Law. To transfer ownership of or title to. 5. Archaic. To steal. [Middle English conveien, from Old French conveier, from Medieval Latin conviāre, to escort : Latin com-, com- + via, way; see wegh- in Appendix.] —con-vey'a·ble adj.

SYNONYMS: convey, carry, bear, transport, transmit. These verbs are compared as they refer to the movement of someone or something from one place to another. Convey often implies continuous, regular movement or flow: Pipelines convey water. The word also means to serve as a medium for the delivery or transmission of something: The company has a fleet of trucks for conveying produce to the wholesale market. If you'll leave a message, I'll convey it to him. Carry has broad application but often means to support something while moving: The train carries baggage, mail, and passengers. I carried my papers in an attaché case. The term can also refer to conveyance through a channel or medium: Nerve cells carry and receive nervous impulses. Bear strongly suggests the effort of supporting a burden; often it implies the carrying of something important, such as valuable gifts: Four attendants bore the queen's palanquin. An envoy came bearing the sad news. Transport is largely limited to the movement of persons or material objects, often over a considerable distance: Huge tankers are used to transport oil. The city uses buses to transport students to school. Transmit refers to passing along, sending, or communicating something: Please transmit the stock certificates by special messenger. The cost of transmitting books by air is very high. We transmitted the instructions by electronic mail. The word also means “to serve as a medium for the passage of something such as light, electricity, or sound”: “The motion is transmitted from particle to particle, to a great distance” (Thomas H. Huxley).

con-vey·ance (kən-vā'əns) n. 1. The act of conveying. 2. A means of conveying, especially a vehicle for transportation. 3. Law. a. Transfer of title to property from one person to another. b. The document by which a property transfer is effected.

con-vey·anc·ing (kən-vā'ən-sɪŋ) n. Law. The branch of legal practice dealing with the conveyance of property or real estate. —con-vey'anc·er n.

con-vey·er also con-vey·or (kən-vā'ər) n. One that conveys, especially a mechanical apparatus, such as a continuous moving belt, that transports materials, packages, or items being assembled from one place to another.

con·vict (kən-vɪkt') v. con·vict·ed, con·vict·ing, con·victs. — v. tr. 1. Law. To find or prove (someone) guilty of an offense or crime, especially by the verdict of a court: The jury convicted the defendant of manslaughter. 2. To show or declare to be blameworthy; condemn: His remarks convicted him of a lack of sensitivity. 3. To make aware of one's sinfulness or guilt. — v. intr. To return a verdict of guilty in a court: “We need jurors... who will not convict merely because they are suspicious” (Scott Turow). — n. (kɒn'vɪkt') Law. 1. A person found or declared guilty of an offense or crime. 2. A person serving a sentence of imprisonment. — adj. Archaic. Found guilty; convicted. [Middle English convicten, from Latin convincere, convict-. See CONVINCE.]

con-vic-tion (kən-vīk'shən) n. 1. Law. a. The judgment of a jury or judge that a person is guilty of a crime as charged. b. The state of being found or proved guilty: evidence that led to the suspect's conviction. 2. a. The act or process of convincing. b. The state of being convinced. See Synonyms at certainty. 3. A fixed or strong belief. See Synonyms at opinion. — con-vic'tion-al adj.

con-vic-tive (kən-vīk'tiv) adj. Having power or serving to convince or convict. — con-vic'tive-ly adv.

con-vince (kən-vīns') v. tr. con-vinced, con-vinc-ing, con-vinc-es. 1. To bring by the use of argument or evidence to firm belief or a course of action. See Synonyms at persuade. 2. Obsolete. To prove to be wrong or guilty.

3. Obsolete. To conquer; overpower. [Latin convincere, to prove wrong : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + vincere, to conquer; see weik-³ in Appendix.]

— con-vince'ment n. — con-vinc'er n. — con-vinc'i-ble adj.

USAGE NOTE: According to a traditional rule, one persuades someone to act but convinces someone of the truth of a statement or proposition: By convincing me that no good could come of staying, he persuaded me to leave. If the distinction is accepted, then convince should not be used with an infinitive: He persuaded (not convinced) me to go. In an earlier survey, a majority of the Usage Panel held that this distinction should be maintained, but the use of convince with an infinitive has become increasingly common even among reputable writers, and it is unlikely that this stricture can be maintained for much longer.

con-vinc-ing (kən-vīn'sīŋ) adj. 1. Serving to convince: a convincing argument; a convincing manner. 2. Believable; plausible: a convincing story. See Synonyms at valid. — con-vinc'ing-ly adv. — con-vinc'ing-ness n.

con-viv-i-al (kən-vīv'ē-əl) adj. 1. Fond of feasting, drinking, and good company; sociable. See Synonyms at social. 2. Merry; festive: a convivial atmosphere at the reunion. [Late Latin conviviālis, from Latin convivium, banquet : com-, com- + vivere, to live; see g^wei- in Appendix.] — con-viv'i-al'i-ty (-əl'ī-tē) n. — con-viv'i-al-ly adv.

con-vo-ca-tion (kɔn'və-kā'shən) n. Abbr. conv. 1. a. The act of convoking. b. A group of people convoked, especially the members of a college or university community who are assembled for a ceremony. 2. A clerical assembly of the Anglican Church similar to a synod but assembling only when called. 3. a. An assembly of the clergy and representative laity of a section of a diocese of the Episcopal Church. b. The district represented at such an assembly.

— con'vo-ca'tion-al adj.

con·voke (kən·vōk') v. tr. con·voked, con·vok·ing, con·vokes. To cause to assemble in a meeting; convene. See Synonyms at call. [French convoquer, from Old French, from Latin convocāre: com-, com- + vocāre, to call; see welk^w- in Appendix.] —con·vok'er n.

con·vo·lute (kɒn'və-lōōt') adj. Rolled or coiled together in overlapping whorls, as certain leaves, petals, or shells. — v. intr. tr. con·vo·lut·ed, con·vo·lut·ing, con·vo·lutes. To coil or fold or cause to coil or fold in overlapping whorls. [Latin convolutus, past participle of convolvere, to convolve. See CONVOLVE.] —con'vo·lute'ly adv.

con·vo·lut·ed (kɒn'və-lōōt'tid) adj. 1. Having numerous overlapping coils or folds: a convoluted seashell. 2. Intricate; complicated: convoluted legal language; convoluted reasoning.

con·vo·lu·tion (kɒn'və-lōō'shən) n. 1. A form or part that is folded or coiled. 2. One of the convex folds of the surface of the brain. —con'vo·lu'tion·al adj.

con·volve (kən·vɔlv') v. con·volved, con·volv·ing, con·volves. — v. tr. To roll together; coil up. — v. intr. To form convolutions. [Latin convolvere: com-, com- + volvere, to roll; see wel² in Appendix.]

con·vol·vu·lus (kən·vɔlv'vyə-ləs) n. pl. con·vol·vu·lus·es or con·vol·vu·li (-lī'). Any of various mostly trailing or twining plants of the widespread genus Convolvulus, having funnel-shaped flowers and including several weeds and a few grown as ornamentals. [Latin, bindweed, from convolvere, to intertwine. See CONVOLVE.]

con·voy (kɒn'voi') n. 1. The act of accompanying or escorting, especially for protective purposes. 2. An accompanying and protecting force, as of ships or troops. 3. A group, as of ships or motor vehicles, traveling together with a protective escort or for safety or convenience. — v. tr. con·voyed, con·voy·ing, con·voys (kɒn'voi', kən·voi'). To accompany, especially for protection; escort: warships convoying merchant vessels across the Atlantic. [From Middle English convoyen, to escort, from Old French convoier, variant of conveier. See CONVEY.] con·vul·sant (kən·vʌl'sənt) adj. Causing or producing convulsions. — n. An agent, such as a drug, that causes convulsions.

con·vulse (kən·vʌls') v. tr. con·vulsed, con·vuls·ing, con·vuls·es. 1. To shake or agitate violently: tremors that convulsed the countryside; when civil war convulsed the nation. See Synonyms at agitate. 2. To affect with irregular and involuntary muscular contractions; throw into convulsions. 3. To cause to shake with laughter or strong emotion. [Latin convellere, convuls-, to pull violently: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + vellere, to pull.]

con·vul·sion (kən·vʌl'shən) n. 1. An intense, paroxysmal, involuntary muscular contraction. 2. An uncontrolled fit, as of laughter; a paroxysm. 3. Violent turmoil: "The market convulsions of the last few weeks have shaken the world" (Felix Rohatyn).

con-vul-sive (kən-vŭl'siv) adj. 1. Marked by or having the nature of convulsions. 2. Having or producing convulsions. —con-vul'sive-ly adv.

—con-vul'sive-ness n.

Con-way (kɒn'wā') 1. A city of central Arkansas north-northwest of Little Rock. It is a trade and industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 26,481. 2. A community of east-central Florida, a suburb of Orlando. Population, 16,000.

Con-way (kɒn'wā'), Thomas. 1735?-1800. Irish-born American Revolutionary general known for his role in the Conway Cabal, a conspiracy to remove George Washington from command of the Continental Army.

Con-well (kɒn'wɛl', -wəl), Russell Herman. 1843-1925. American cleric and educator who was the founder (1888) and first president of Temple University. His lecture "Acres of Diamonds" (first delivered in 1861) was particularly popular on the Chautauqua circuit.

co-ny (kō'nē, kŭn'ē) n. Variant of coney¹.

COO (kōō) v. cooed, coo-ing, coos. — v. intr. 1. To utter the murmuring sound of a dove or pigeon or a sound resembling it. 2. To talk fondly or amorously in murmurs: The visitors cooed over the newborn baby. — v. tr. To express or utter with soft murmuring sounds. [Imitative.] —coo'er n.

Cooch Be-har (kōoch' bə-hār') A former princely state of northeast India. Once a powerful part of Assam, it came under British rule in 1772.

COOK (kōök) v. cooked, cook-ing, cooks. — v. tr. 1. To prepare (food) for eating by applying heat. 2. To prepare or treat by heating: slowly cooked the medicinal mixture. 3. Slang. To alter or falsify so as to make a more favorable impression; doctor: disreputable accountants who were paid to cook the firm's books. — v. intr. 1. To prepare food for eating by applying heat. 2. To undergo application of heat especially for the purpose of later ingestion. 3. Slang. To happen, develop, or take place: What's cooking in town? 4. Slang. To proceed or perform very well: The band really got cooking after midnight. — n. A person who prepares food for eating. —phrasal verb. cook up. Informal. To fabricate; concoct: cook up an excuse. —idiom. cook (one's) goose. Slang. To ruin (one's) chances: The speeding ticket cooked his goose with his father. Her goose was cooked when she was caught cheating on the test. [Middle English coken, from coke, cook, from Old English cōc, from Vulgar Latin cōcus*, from Latin cocus, coquus, from coquere, to cook. See pek^w- in Appendix.]

Cook (kōök), Frederick Albert. 1865-1940. American physician and Arctic explorer who announced that he had reached the North Pole in 1908, a claim that was rejected by the scientific community.

Cook (kōök), James. Known as "Captain Cook." 1728-1779. British navigator and explorer who commanded three major voyages of discovery, charting and naming many islands of the Pacific Ocean. He also sailed along the coast of North America as far north as the Bering Strait.

Cook, Mount. 1. or Also A-o-rang-i (ä'ō-räng'gē) The highest mountain, 3,766.4 m (12,349 ft), of New Zealand, on South Island in the Southern Alps.

2. A peak, 4,196.8 m (13,760 ft) high, in the St. Elias Mountains on the border between Alaska and Yukon Territory, Canada.

cook·book (kōök'bōök') n. A book containing recipes and other information about the preparation of food.

Cooke (kōök), (Alfred) Alistair. Born 1908. British-born American journalist and broadcaster, whose books include Around the World in 50 Years (1966) and Alistair Cooke's America (1973).

Cooke (kōök), Jay. 1821-1905. American financier noted for his part in marketing Union bonds to finance the Civil War. The collapse of his bank led to the Panic of 1873.

Cooke (kōök), Terence James. 1921-1983. American Roman Catholic clergyman who was archbishop of New York from 1968 to 1983.

cook·er (kōök'ər) n. 1. One that cooks, especially a utensil or an appliance for cooking. 2. A person employed to operate cooking apparatuses in the commercial preparation of food and drink.

cook·er·y (kōök'ə-rē) n. pl. cook·er·ies. 1. The art or practice of preparing food. 2. A place for cooking.

Cookeville (kōök'vil') A city of central Tennessee east of Nashville. It is a farm trade center. Population, 21,744.

cook·ie also cook·y (kōök'ē) n. pl. cook·ies. 1. A small, usually flat and crisp cake made from sweetened dough. 2. Slang. A person, usually of a specified kind: a lawyer who was a tough cookie. [Dutch koekje, diminutive of koek, cake, from Middle Dutch koeke.]

Cook Inlet (kōök in'let') An inlet of the Gulf of Alaska in southern Alaska west of the Kenai Peninsula. It is a major fishing ground for salmon and herring and has the largest tidal bore in the United States.

Cook Islands (kōök ī'ləndz) An island group of the southern Pacific Ocean southeast of Samoa. Probably inhabited by Polynesians more than 1,500 years ago, the islands were first sighted by Capt. James Cook in 1773. They are now self-governing under the sovereignty of New Zealand.

cook-off (kōök'ɔf', -ɔf') n. A cooking competition.

cook-out (kōök'out') n. A meal cooked and served outdoors.

Cook Strait (kōök strāt) A narrow channel separating North Island and South Island in New Zealand. It was discovered by Capt. James Cook in 1770.

cook·ware (kōök'wâr') n. Cooking utensils.

cook·y (kōök'ē) n. Variant of cookie.

cool (kōol) adj. cool-er, cool-est. 1. Neither warm nor very cold; moderately cold: fresh, cool water; a cool autumn evening. 2. Giving or suggesting relief from heat: a cool breeze; a cool blouse. 3. Marked by calm self-control: a cool negotiator. 4. Marked by indifference, disdain, or dislike; unfriendly or unresponsive: a cool greeting; was cool to the idea of higher taxes. 5. Of, relating to, or characteristic of colors, such as blue and green, that produce the impression of coolness. 6. Slang. Excellent; first-rate: has a cool sports car; had a cool time at the party. 7. Slang. Entire; full: worth a cool million. — v. cooled, cool-ing, cools. — v. tr. 1. To make less warm. 2. To make less ardent, intense, or zealous: problems that soon cooled my enthusiasm for the project. — v. intr. 1. To become less warm: took a dip to cool off. 2. To become calmer: needed time for tempers to cool. — n. 1. A cool place, part, or time: the cool of early morning. 2. The state or quality of being cool. 3. Slang. Composure; poise: “Our release marked a victory. The nation had kept its cool” (Moorhead Kennedy). — idioms. cool it. Slang. To calm down; relax. cool (one’s) heels. Informal. To wait or be kept waiting. [Middle English cole, from Old English cōl. See gel- in Appendix.] — cool’ish adj. — cool’ly adv. — cool’ness n.

SYNONYMS: cool, composed, collected, unruffled, nonchalant, imperturbable, detached. These adjectives apply to persons, their attitudes, their behavior, or their actions to indicate absence of excitement or discomposure, especially in times of stress. Cool usually implies merely a high degree of self-control, though it may also indicate aloofness: “Keep strong, if possible. In any case, keep cool. Have unlimited patience” (B.H. Liddell Hart). “An honest hater is often a better fellow than a cool friend” (John Stuart Blackie). Composed implies a serene, often sedate quality arising from self-discipline: The performer was composed as she readied herself for her entrance on stage. Collected suggests self-possessed composure: The witness remained collected throughout the cross-examination. Unruffled emphasizes calm despite circumstances that might elicit agitation: “with contented mind and unruffled spirit” (Anthony Trollope). Nonchalant describes a casual manner that may suggest, sometimes misleadingly, a lack of interest or concern: He doesn’t seem excited; on the contrary, his demeanor is easy and nonchalant. Imperturbable stresses unshakable calmness considered usually as an inherent trait rather than as a product of self-discipline: “A man.../Cool, and quite English, imperturbable” (Byron). Detached implies aloofness resulting either from lack of active concern or from resistance to emotional involvement: She may be detached, she may even be unfeeling, but at least she’s not hypocritically effusive. See also Synonyms at cold cool-ant (kōol’lǎnt) n. An agent that produces cooling, especially a fluid that draws off heat by circulating through an engine or by bathing a mechanical part.

cool-er (kōō'lər) n. 1. A device, container, or room that cools or keeps cool.

2. A cold drink, often a mixture of white wine and juice. 3. Slang. A jail.

Coo-ley (kōō'lē), Charles Horton. 1864-1929. American sociologist known for his observations of the ways in which society influences the self-image of the individual.

Coo-ley (kōō'lē), Denton Arthur. Born 1920. American surgeon and educator who in 1969 performed the first artificial heart transplant on a human being.

Coo-ley's anemia (kōō'lēz ə-nē'mē-ə) n. A usually fatal form of thalassemia in which normal hemoglobin is absent, characterized by severe anemia, enlargement of the heart, liver, and spleen, and skeletal deformation. [After Thomas Benton Cooley (1871-1945), American physician.]

cool-head-ed (kōōl'hēd'id) adj. Not easily excited or flustered.

Coo-ledge (kōō'līj), Grace Goodhue. 1879-1957. First lady of the United States (1923-1929) as the wife of President Calvin Coolidge. She was known for her outgoing manner.

Coo-ledge (kōō'līj), (John) Calvin. 1872-1933. The 30th President of the United States (1923-1929), who took office after the death of Warren G. Harding. A strong supporter of business, he encouraged speculation that led to a stock market boom in the 1920's, followed by economic collapse.

coo-lie also coo-ly (koō'lē) n. pl. coo-lies. Offensive. An unskilled Asian laborer. [Hindi kulī.]

coon (kōōn) n. 1. Informal. A raccoon. 2. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Black person. [Short for RACCOON.]

coon-can (kōōn'kän') or con-qui-an (kōng'kē-ən) n. Games. A card game for 2 players using 40 cards that is an early version of rummy. [Alteration of American Spanish conquián, probably from Spanish con quién, with whom? : con, with (from Latin cum); see kom in Appendix + quien, whom (from Latin quem, accusative of quis, who); see k^wo- in Appendix.]

coon-hound (kōōn'hound') n. Any of various smooth-coated hounds of a breed developed in the southeast United States to hunt raccoons.

Coon Rapids (kōōn räp'idz) A city of eastern Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis-St. Paul. Population, 52,978.

coon's age (kōōnz āj) n. Slang. A long time.

coon-skin (kōōn'skīn') n. 1. The pelt of a raccoon. 2. An article, such as a hat, made of the pelts of raccoons.

coon-tie (kōōn'tē) n. Any of several evergreen species of the genus Zamia native to southern Florida, Mexico, and the West Indies, having compound leaves, unisexual cones, and conspicuously thickened underground stems that yield starch resembling arrowroot. Also called Seminole bread [Florida Creek kuntii, arrowroot.]

coop (kōop) n. 1. An enclosure or cage, as for poultry or small animals.

2. Slang. a. An uncomfortably confined space. b. A prison. — v. cooped, coop-ing, coops. — v. tr. To confine in or as if in a coop. See Synonyms at enclose. — v. intr. Informal. To sleep or shirk in a parked patrol car while on duty. Used of a police officer. — idiom. fly the coop (or blow the coop). To make a getaway; escape. [Middle English coupe, possibly from Middle Dutch kūpe, basket, tub, from Germanic kūpōn*, possibly from Latin cūpa, cask.]

co-op (kō'öp', kō-öp') n. A cooperative.

coop. abbr. Cooperative.

coop-er (kōō'pær) n. One that makes or repairs wooden barrels and tubs. [Middle English couper, from Middle Dutch kūper, from kūpe, basket, tub. See COOP.] —coop'er v. —coop'er-age n.

Coop-er (kōō'pær, kōöp'ær), Gary. 1901-1961. American actor who gained fame for his portrayals of strong, quiet heroes. He won an Academy Award for Sergeant York (1941) and High Noon (1952).

Coop-er (kōō'pær, kōöp'ær), James Fenimore. 1789-1851. American novelist who is best remembered for his novels of frontier life, such as The Last of the Mohicans (1826).

Coop-er (kōō'pær, kōöp'ær), Leon N. Born 1930. American physicist. He shared a 1972 Nobel Prize for the theory of superconductivity.

Coop-er (kōō'pær, kōöp'ær), Peter. 1791-1883. American manufacturer, inventor, and philanthropist who built the first American locomotive and founded Cooper Union (1859) in New York City, which offered free courses in the arts and sciences.

Coop-er (kōō'pær, kōöp'ær), Thomas. 1759-1839. British-born American chemist and pamphleteer. A strong advocate of states' rights, he favored nullification and was an early supporter of the doctrine of secession.

co-op-er-ate (kō-öp'ə-rāt') v. intr. co-op-er-at-ed, co-op-er-at-ing, co-op-er-ates. 1. To work or act together toward a common end or purpose.

2. To acquiesce willingly; be compliant: asked the child to cooperate and go to bed.

3. To form an association for common, usually economic, benefit: When buyers cooperate, they can make large wholesale purchases at a discount. [Late Latin cooperārī, cooperāt- : Latin co-, co- + operārī, to work (from opus, oper-, work); see op- in Appendix.] —co-op'er-a'tor n.

co-op-er-a-tion (kō-öp'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act or practice of cooperating.

2. The association of persons or businesses for common, usually economic, benefit. —co-op'er-a'tion-ist n.

co-op-er-a-tive (kō-öp'ər-ə-tiv, -ə-rā'tiv, -öp'rə-) adj. 1. Done in cooperation with others: a cooperative effort. 2. Marked by willingness to cooperate; compliant: a cooperative patient. 3. Of, relating to, or formed as an enterprise or organization jointly owned or managed by those who use its facilities or services: a cooperative department store; cooperative apartment buildings. — n. Abbr. coop.

An enterprise or organization that is owned or managed jointly by those who use its facilities or services. — co-op'er-a-tive-ly adv. — co-op'er-a-tive-ness n.

Coo-per's hawk (kōō'pərz hōk, kōōp'ərz) n. A short-winged hawk (Accipiter cooperii) widespread throughout North America, having a dark back, a long tail, and a rusty-barred chest. [After William Cooper (died 1864), American ornithologist.]

Coo-pers-town (kōō'pərz-toun') A residential village of east-central New York west-southwest of Schenectady. It was founded in 1787 by William Cooper, the father of James Fenimore Cooper, who used the region as the setting for his Leatherstocking Tales. The National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum is here. Population, 2,342.

co-opt (kō-ōpt', kō'ōpt') v. tr. co--opt-ed, co--opt-ing, co--opts. 1. To elect as a fellow member of a group. 2. To appoint summarily. 3. To take or assume for one's own use; appropriate: co-opted the criticism by embracing it. 4. To neutralize or win over (an independent minority, for example) through assimilation into an established group or culture: co-opt rebels by giving them positions of authority. [Latin cooptāre: co-, co- + optāre, to choose.] — co'-op-ta'tion n.

— co-op'ta-tive (-tə-tiv) adj. — co-op'tion (-ōp'shən) n. — co-op'tive adj.

co-or-di-nate (kō-ōr'dn-āt', -īt) n. 1. One that is equal in importance, rank, or degree. 2. coordinates. A set of articles, as of clothing or luggage, designed to match or complement one other, as in style or color. 3. Mathematics. Any of a set of two or more numbers used to determine the position of a point, line, curve, or plane in a space of a given dimension with respect to a system of lines or other fixed reference. — adj. (-īt, -āt') 1. Of equal importance, rank, or degree: coordinate offices of a business. 2. Of or involving coordination. 3. Of or based on a system of coordinates. — v. co-or-di-nat-ed, co-or-di-nat-ing, co-or-di-nates (-āt'). — v. tr. 1. To place in the same order, class, or rank. 2. To harmonize in a common action or effort: coordinating the moving parts of a machine; coordinate the colors of a design. — v. intr. 1. To be coordinate: The generators coordinate so that one is always running. 2. To work together harmoniously: a nursing staff that coordinates smoothly. 3. To form a pleasing combination; match: shoes that coordinate with the rest of the outfit. [CO- + ORDINATE.]

— co-or'di-nate-ly (-īt-lē) adv. — co-or'di-nate-ness (-īt-nīs) n.

— co-or'di-na'tive adj. — co-or'di-na'tor n.

coordinate bond (kō-ōr'dn-āt' bōnd) n. A covalent chemical bond between two atoms that is produced when one atom shares a pair of electrons with another atom lacking such a pair. Also called coordinate covalent bond coordinate system (kō-ōr'dn-āt' sīs'təm) n. A method of representing points in a space of given dimensions by coordinates.

co-or-di-nat-ing conjunction (kō-ôr'dn-ā'ting kən-jŭngk'shən) n. Grammar. A conjunction that connects two identically constructed grammatical elements, such as or in They don't know whether they're coming or going.

co-or-di-na-tion (kō-ôr'dn-ā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of coordinating. b. The state of being coordinate; harmonious adjustment or interaction. 2. Physiology. Harmonious functioning of muscles or groups of muscles in the execution of movements. [French, from Medieval Latin coōrdinātiō, coōrdinātiōn- : co-, co- + Latin ōrdinātiō, arrangement (from ōrdinātus, past participle of ōrdināre, to arrange in order, from ōrdō, order); see ar- in Appendix.]

coordination compound (kō-ôr'dn-ā'shən kōm-pound') n. A chemical compound formed by joining independent molecules or ions usually to a central metallic atom by coordinate bonds. Also called coordination complex

Coo-sa (kōō'sə) A river rising in northwest Georgia and flowing about 460 km (286 mi) southwest through eastern Alabama to join the Tallapoosa River near Montgomery and form the Alabama River.

coot (kōōt) n. 1. Any of several dark-gray aquatic birds of the genus Fulica of North America and Europe, having a black head and neck, lobed toes, and a white bill. 2. See scoter. 3. Informal. A foolish, eccentric, or senile person. [Middle English coote, possibly from Middle Dutch coet.]

coot-er (kōō'tər) n. Lower Southern U.S. 1. An edible freshwater turtle of the genus Chrysemys. 2. Any of various turtles or tortoises. See Regional note at goober. [Gullah, of Niger-Congo origin; akin to Mandingo kuta.]

coo-tie (kōō'tē) n. Slang. A body louse. [Probably from Malay kutu.]

cop¹ (kōp) n. Informal. A police officer. — v. tr. copped, cop-ping, cops.

1. To take unlawfully or without permission; steal. See Synonyms at steal.

2. Slang. a. To get hold of; gain or win: a show that copped four awards; copped a ticket to the game. b. To take or catch: “copped a quick look at the gentleman in a caramel cashmere sport coat on the right” (Gail Sheehy). — phrasal verb. cop out. Slang. To avoid fulfilling a commitment or responsibility; renege: copped out on my friends; copped out by ducking the issue. — idiom. cop a plea. Slang. To plead guilty to a lesser charge so as to avoid standing trial for a more serious charge. [Short for copper, probably from cop, variant of cap, to catch, from Old French capere, from Latin capere. See CAPTURE.]

cop² (kōp) n. 1. A cone-shaped or cylindrical roll of yarn or thread wound on a spindle. 2. Chiefly British. A summit or crest, as of a hill. [Middle English, summit, from Old English.]

cop. abbr. Copyright.

Cop. abbr. Coptic.

co-pa-cet-ic or co-pa-set-ic (kō'pə-sět'ik) adj. Excellent; first-rate: “You had to be a good judge of what a man was like, and the English was copacetic” (John O'Hara). [Origin unknown.]

WORD HISTORY: We know very little about the origin of the word copacetic, meaning “excellent, first-rate.” Is its origin to be found in Italian, in the speech of southern Black people, in the Creole French dialect of Louisiana, or in Hebrew? John O’Hara, who used the word in Appointment in Samarra, later wrote that copacetic was “a Harlem and gangster corruption of an Italian word.” O’Hara went on to say, “I don’t know how to spell the Italian, but it’s something like copacetti.” His uncertainty about how to spell the Italian is paralleled by uncertainty about how to spell copacetic itself. Copacetic has been recorded with the spellings copasetic, copasetty, copesetic, copisettic, and kopasettee. The spelling is now more or less fixed, however, as copacetic or copasetic, even though the origin of the word has not been determined. The Harlem connection mentioned by O’Hara would seem more likely than the Italian, since copacetic was used by Black jazz musicians and is said to have been Southern slang in the late 19th century. If copacetic is Creole French in origin, it would also have a Southern homeland. According to this explanation, copacetic came from the Creole French word coupersètique, which meant “able to be coped with,” “able to cope with anything and everything,” “in good form,” and also “having a healthy appetite or passion for life or love.” Those who support the Hebrew or Yiddish origin of copacetic do not necessarily deny the Southern connections of the word. One explanation has it that Jewish storekeepers used the Hebrew phrase kol bēšedeq, “all with justice,” when asked if things were O.K. Black children who were in the store as customers or employees heard this phrase as copacetic. No explanation of the origin of copacetic, including the ones discussed here, has won the approval of scholars, as is clearly shown by the etymology of copacetic in the first volume of the Dictionary of American Regional English, published in 1985: “Etym unknown.”

co-pai-ba (kō-pī’bə, -pā’-) n. A transparent, often yellowish, viscous oleoresin obtained from South American trees of the genus Copaifera in the pea family, used in certain varnishes and as a fixative in some perfumes. [Spanish, from Portuguese copaíba, from Tupi cupaiba.]

co-pal (kō’pəl, -pāl’) n. Any of several brittle, aromatic, yellow to red resins of recent or fossil origin, obtained from various tropical trees and used in certain varnishes. [Spanish, from Nahuatl copalli, resin.]

Co-pán (kō-pän’) A ruined Mayan city of western Honduras that flourished from c. 300 B.C. to A.D. 900. The ruins include the Hieroglyphic Stairway with nearly 2,000 glyphs.

co-par-ce-nar-y (kō-pär’sə-nēr’ē) n. pl. co-par-ce-nar-ies. 1. Law. Joint inheritance or heirship of property. Also called parcenary 2. Joint ownership. —co-par’ce-nar’y adj.

co·par·ce·ner (kō-pär'sə-nər) n. Law. One of two or more persons sharing an inheritance; a joint heir. Also called parcener co·par·ent·ing (kō-pâr'ən-tīng, -pâr'-) n. Usage Problem. An arrangement in a divorce or separation by which parents share legal and physical custody of a child or children. See Usage Note at parent. —co'·par'ent n.

co·part·ner (kō-pärt'nər, kō'pärt'-) n. A joint partner, as in a business enterprise; an associate. —co·part'ner·ship' n.

co·pa·set·ic (kō'pə-sět'ik) adj. Variant of copacetic.

cope¹ (kōp) v. intr. coped, cop·ing, copes. 1. To contend or strive, especially on even terms or with success: coping with child rearing and a full-time job. 2. To contend with difficulties and act to overcome them: “Facing unprecedented problems, the Federal Reserve of the early 1930s couldn't cope” (Robert J. Samuelson). [Middle English copen, coupen, to strike, from Old French couper, from Vulgar Latin colpāre*, from Late Latin colpus, blow, from Latin colaphus, from Greek kolaphos.] —cop'er n.

cope² (kōp) n. 1. A long ecclesiastical vestment worn over an alb or surplice. 2. A covering resembling a cloak or mantle. 3. A coping. — v. tr. coped, cop·ing, copes. 1. To cover or dress in a cope. 2. To provide with coping: cope a wall. [Middle English cope, from Old English -cāp, from Medieval Latin cāpa, cloak, from Late Latin cappa.]

co·peck (kō'pĕk) n. Variant of kopec.

Co·pen·ha·gen (kō'pən-hā'gən, -hā'-) The capital and largest city of Denmark, in the extreme eastern part of the country on the eastern coast of Sjælland. It was a trading and fishing center by the 11th century and became the capital in 1443. Population, 482,937.

co·pe·pod (kō'pə-pōd') n. Any of numerous minute marine and freshwater crustaceans of the subclass Copepoda, having an elongated body and a forked tail. [From New Latin Copepoda, order name : Greek kōpē, oar; see kap- in Appendix + -poda, -pod.]

Co·per·ni·can (kō-pûr'nī-kən, kə-) adj. Of or relating to the theory of Copernicus that the earth rotates daily on its axis and, with the other planets in the solar system, revolves around the sun.

Co·per·ni·cus (kō-pûr'nə-kəs, kə-), Nicolaus. 1473-1543. Polish astronomer who advanced the theory that the earth and other planets revolve around the sun, disrupting the Ptolemaic system of astronomy.

cope·stone (kōp'stōn) n. A capstone. [COPE² + STONE.]

Co·piague (kō'pāg', -pĕg) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on the southern shore of Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 20,769.

cop·i·er (kōp'ē-ər) n. 1. An office machine that makes copies of printed or graphic matter. 2. One that transcribes or copies: a copier of ancient manuscripts.

co-pi-lot (kō'pī'lət) n. The second or relief pilot of an aircraft.

cop-ing (kō'pɪŋ) n. The top layer or course of a masonry wall, usually having a slanting upper surface to shed water; a cope. [From COPE².]

coping saw (kō'pɪŋ sô) n. A light handsaw with a slender blade stretched across a U-shaped frame, used for cutting designs in wood.

co-pi-ous (kō'pē-əs) adj. 1. Yielding or containing plenty; affording ample supply: a copious harvest. See Synonyms at plentiful. 2. Large in quantity; abundant: copious rainfall. 3. Abounding in matter, thoughts, or words; wordy: "I found our speech copious without order, and energetic without rules" (Samuel Johnson). [Middle English, from Latin cōpiōsus, from cōpia, abundance. See op- in Appendix.] —co'pi-ous-ly adv. —co'pi-ous-ness n.

co-pla-nar (kō-plā'nər) adj. Lying or occurring in the same plane. Used of points, lines, or figures. —co'pla-nar'i-ty (kō'plə-när'ī-tē) n.

Cop-land (kōp'lænd), Aaron. 1900-1990. American composer whose works include the ballets Rodeo (1942) and Appalachian Spring (1944), which won a Pulitzer Prize.

Cop-ley (kōp'lē), John Singleton. 1738-1815. American Loyalist painter who did portraits of John Hancock and Paul Revere before departing for England when the American Revolution seemed imminent.

co-pol-y-mer (kō-pōl'ə-mər) n. A polymer of two or more different monomers. —co-pol'y-mer'ic (-mēr'ik) adj.

co-pol-y-mer-ize (kō-pōl'ə-mə-rīz', kō'pə-līm'ə-) v. co-pol-y-mer-ized, co-pol-y-mer-iz-ing, co-pol-y-mer-iz-es. — v. tr. To polymerize (different monomers) together. — v. intr. To react to form a copolymer.

—co-pol'y-mer-i-za'tion (-mər-ī-zā'shən) n.

cop-out also cop-out (kōp'out') n. Slang. 1. A failure to fulfill a commitment or responsibility or to face a difficulty squarely. 2. A person who fails to fulfill a commitment or responsibility. 3. An excuse for inaction or evasion.

cop-per¹ (kōp'ər) n. 1. Symbol Cu A ductile, malleable, reddish-brown metallic element that is an excellent conductor of heat and electricity and is widely used for electrical wiring, water piping, and corrosion-resistant parts, either pure or in alloys such as brass and bronze. Atomic number 29; atomic weight 63.54; melting point 1,083°C; boiling point 2,595°C; specific gravity 8.96; valence 1, 2. 2. A coin, usually of small denomination, made of copper or a copper alloy. 3. Chiefly British. A large cooking pot made of copper or often of iron. 4. Any of various small butterflies of the subfamily Lycaeninae, having predominantly copper-colored wings. 5. Color. A reddish brown. — v. tr. cop-pered, cop-per-ing, cop-pers. 1. To coat or finish with a layer of copper. 2. Slang. To bet against, as in faro. [Middle English cooper, from Old English, from Late Latin cuprum, from Latin Cyprium (aes), Cyprian (metal), from Cyprius, of Cyprus, from Greek Kyprios, from Kupros, Cyprus.] —cop'per-y adj.

cop-per² (kɔp'ər) n. Slang. A police officer. [From COP¹.]

cop-per-as (kɔp'ər-əs) n. See ferrous sulfate. [Middle English coperose, a metallic sulfate, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cuperosa, probably short for aqua cuprosa*, copper water, from Late Latin cuprum, copper. See COPPER¹.]

Cop-per-as Cove (kɔp'ər-əs kōv) A city of central Texas southwest of Waco. It is a trade center in an agricultural area. Population, 24,079.

cop-per-head (kɔp'ər-hĕd') n. 1. A venomous snake (Agkistrodon contortrix) of the eastern and central United States, having a reddish-brown body marked with darker crossbands arranged in an hourglass pattern. 2. Copperhead. A Northerner who sympathized with the South during the Civil War.

cop-per-leaf (kɔp'ər-lĕf') n. Any of various plants of the genus Acalypha, especially A. wilkesiana, an ornamental shrub of the Pacific Islands widely grown for its decorative, colorful, variously patterned leaves.

Cop-per-mine (kɔp'ər-mīn') A river of northern Northwest Territories, Canada, flowing about 845 km (525 mi) northward to the Arctic Ocean.

cop-per-plate (kɔp'ər-plāt') n. 1. A copper printing plate engraved or etched to form a recessed pattern of the matter to be printed. 2. A print or engraving made by using such a plate.

copper pyrites (kɔp'ər pī-rī'tēz) n. See chalcopyrite.

Cop-per River (kɔp'ər rīv'ər) A river rising in the Wrangell Mountains of southern Alaska and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) southward through the Chugach Mountains to the Gulf of Alaska.

cop-per-smith (kɔp'ər-smīth') n. 1. One that works or manufactures objects, especially utensils, in copper. 2. A brightly colored bird (Megalaima haemacephala) of southeast Asia, characterized by its ringing, metallic call.

copper sulfate (kɔp'ər sŭl'fāt') n. A poisonous blue crystalline copper salt, $\text{CuSO}_4 \cdot 5\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in agriculture, textile dyeing, leather treatment, electroplating, and the manufacture of germicides.

cop-per-ware (kɔp'ər-wâr') n. Articles made of copper.

cop-pice (kɔp'is) n. A thicket or grove of small trees or shrubs, especially one maintained by periodic cutting or pruning to encourage suckering, as in the cultivation of cinnamon trees for their bark. [Old French copeiz. See COPSE.]

Cop-po-la (kɔp'ə-lə), Francis Ford. Born 1939. American filmmaker who won an Academy Award for his direction of The Godfather, Part II (1974).

co-pra (kō'prə, kɔp'rə) n. The dried white flesh of the coconut from which coconut oil is extracted. [Portuguese, from Malayalam koppara.]

copro- pref. Excrement; dung: coprolite. [From Greek kopros, dung. See kek^w-in Appendix.]

cop-ro-la-li-a (kɔp'rə-lā'lĕ-ə) n. Psychiatry. The uncontrolled, often excessive use of obscene or scatological language that may accompany certain mental disorders, such as schizophrenia or Tourette's syndrome. [COPRO- + Greek lalia, babbling (from lalein, to talk).]

cop-ro-lite (kɒp'rə-līt') n. Fossilized excrement. —cop'ro-lit'ic (-līt'ik) adj.

cop-rol-o-gy (kɒ-prɒl'ə-jē) n. Scatology.

cop-ro-ph-a-gous (kɒ-prɒf'ə-gəs) adj. Feeding on excrement: coprophagous beetles. —cop-ro-ph'a-gy (-ə-jē) n.

cop-ro-phil-i-a (kɒp'rə-fil'ē-ə) n. An abnormal, often obsessive interest in excrement, especially the use of feces for sexual excitement.

—cop'ro-phil'i-ac' (-ē-āk') n. —cop'ro-phil'ic adj.

cop-ro-ph-i-lous (kɒ-prɒf'ə-ləs) adj. Living or growing on excrement, as certain fungi.

copse (kɒps) n. A thicket of small trees or shrubs; a coppice. [Middle English copys, from Old French copeiz, thicket for cutting, from coper, couper, to cut. See COPE¹.]

Copt (kɒpt) n. 1. An Egyptian belonging to or descended from the people of ancient or pre-Islamic Egypt. 2. A member of the Coptic Church. [French Copte, from New Latin Coptus, from Arabic Qubt, Copts, from Coptic Gyptias, from Greek Aiguptios, an Egyptian, from Aiguptos, Egypt, of Egyptian origin.]

Copt. abbr. Coptic.

cop-ter (kɒp'tər) n. Informal. A helicopter.

Cop-tic (kɒp'tik) n. Abbr. Copt., Cop. The Afro-Asiatic language of the Copts, which survives only as a liturgical language of the Coptic Church. — adj. Of or relating to the Copts, the Coptic Church, or the Coptic language.

Coptic Church (kɒp'tik chûrch) n. The Christian church of Egypt, adhering to the Monophysite doctrine.

cop-u-la (kɒp'yə-lə) n. 1. Grammar. A verb, such as a form of be or seem, that identifies the predicate of a sentence with the subject. Also called linking verb 2. Logic. The word or set of words that serves as a link between the subject and predicate of a proposition. [Latin cōpula, link.] —cop'u-lar (-lər) adj.

cop-u-late (kɒp'yə-lāt') v. intr. cop-u-lat-ed, cop-u-lat-ing, cop-u-lates. To engage in coitus or sexual intercourse. — adj. (-līt) Coupled; joined. [Latin cōpulāre, cōpulāt-, to join together, from cōpula, link.] —cop'u-la'tion n. —cop'u-la-to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

cop-u-la-tive (kɒp'yə-lā'tiv, -lə-tiv) adj. 1. Grammar. a. Serving to connect coordinate words or clauses: a copulative conjunction. b. Serving as a copula: a copulative verb. 2. Of or relating to copulation. — n. Grammar. A copulative word or group of words. —cop'u-la'tive-ly adv.

cop-y (kɒp'ē) n. pl. cop-ies. 1. An imitation or reproduction of an original; a duplicate: a copy of a painting; made two copies of the letter. 2. One specimen or example of a printed text or picture: an autographed copy of a novel. 3. Abbr. c., C. Material, such as a manuscript, that is to be set in type. 4. The words to be printed or spoken in an advertisement. 5. Suitable source material for journalism: Celebrities make good copy. — v. cop-ied, cop-y-ing, cop-ies. — v. tr.

1. To make a reproduction or copy of. 2. To follow as a model or pattern; imitate. See Synonyms at imitate. — v. intr. 1. To make a copy or copies. 2. To admit of being copied: colored ink that does not copy well. [Middle English copie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cōpia, transcript, from Latin, profusion. See op- in Appendix.] — cop'y-a-ble adj.

cop-y-book (kɒp'ē-boōk') n. An exercise book containing models of penmanship, used in teaching handwriting. — adj. Unoriginal; trite: used copybook phrases in the essay.

copy boy also cop-y-boy (kɒp'ē-boi') n. A boy employed by a newspaper or broadcast news office to carry copy and run errands.

cop-y-cat (kɒp'ē-kāt') Informal. n. One that closely imitates or mimics another. — v. cop-y-cat-ted, cop-y-cat-ting, cop-y-cats. — v. intr. To act as an imitator or mimic. — v. tr. To imitate closely; mimic. — adj. Closely imitating or following another: a copycat version of a successful product; a copycat crime.

copy desk (kɒp'ē dĕsk) n. The desk in a news office where copy is edited and prepared for typesetting or broadcasting.

cop-y-ed-it or cop-y-ed-it (kɒp'ē-ĕd'it) v. tr. cop-y-ed-it-ed, cop-y-ed-it-ing, cop-y-ed-its. To correct and prepare (a manuscript, for example) for typesetting and printing. — cop'y-ed'i-tor n.

copy girl also cop-y-girl (kɒp'ē-gûrl') n. A girl employed by a newspaper or broadcast news office to carry copy and run errands.

cop-y-hold-er (kɒp'ē-hōl'dər) n. 1. An assistant who reads manuscript aloud to a proofreader. 2. A device that holds copy in place, especially for a typesetter.

cop-y-ist (kɒp'ē-ĭst) n. One who makes written copies.

copy protection (kɒp'ē-prə-tĕk'shən) n. Computer Science. A means of preventing the illegal or unauthorized copying of a software product, especially a preventive routine that is incorporated into a copyrighted program. — cop'y-pro-TECT'ed (kɒp'ē-prə-tĕk'tĭd) adj.

cop-y-read-er (kɒp'ē-rĕ'dər) n. One who edits and corrects newspaper copy for publication.

cop-y-right (kɒp'ē-rīt') n. Abbr. c., C., cop. The legal right granted to an author, a composer, a playwright, a publisher, or a distributor to exclusive publication, production, sale, or distribution of a literary, musical, dramatic, or artistic work. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a copyright: copyright law; a copyright agreement. 2. Protected by copyright: permission to publish copyright material. — v. tr. cop-y-right-ed, cop-y-right-ing, cop-y-rights. To secure a copyright for. — cop'y-right'a-ble adj. — cop'y-right'er n.

cop-y-writ-er (kɒp'ē-rĭ'tər) n. One who writes copy, especially for advertising.

coq au vin (kōk' ō vǎN') n. A dish of chicken cooked in red wine. [French : coq, chicken + à, with + vin, wine.]

co-quet (kō-kēt') v. intr. co-quet-ted, co-quet-ting, co-quets. 1. To engage in coquetry; flirt. 2. To trifle; dally. [French coqueter, from coquet, flirtatious man, diminutive of coq, cock, from Old French coc, from Late Latin coccus. See COCK¹.]

co-quet-ry (kō'kī-trē, kō-kēt'rē) n. pl. co-quet-ries. Dalliance; flirtation. [French coquetterie, from coquette, coquette. See COQUETTE.]

co-quette (kō-kēt') n. A woman who makes teasing sexual or romantic overtures; a flirt. [French, feminine of coquet, flirtatious man. See COQUET.]

—co-quet'tish adj. —co-quet'tish-ly adv. —co-quet'tish-ness n.

co-quil-la nut (kō-kēl'yə nüt, -kē'yə) n. The thick-shelled seed of a Brazilian feather-leaved palm (Attalea funifera), polished and used for decorative carving or turning. [Portuguese coquilha, diminutive of côco, coco. See COCONUT.]

co-quille (kō-kēl') n. A scallop-shaped dish or a scallop shell in which various seafood dishes are browned and served. [French, from Latin conchylia, pl. of conchylum, shellfish, from Greek konkhulion, diminutive of konkhos.]

co-qui-na (kō-kē'nə) n. 1. Any of various small marine clams of the genus Donax that are common in the coastal waters of the eastern and southern United States and have variously colored, often striped or banded shells. 2. A soft, porous limestone, composed essentially of fragments of shells and coral, used as a building material. [Spanish, cockle, probably diminutive of concha, shell, from Latin, mussel. See CONCH.]

co-qui-to (kō-kē'tō) n. pl. co-qui-tos. A feather-leaved palm (Jubaea chilensis) native to Chile, having a thick trunk from which is obtained a sugary sap used for making wine and a kind of honey, and widely cultivated as an ornamental in warm dry regions. [Spanish, diminutive of coco, coco palm, from Portuguese côco. See COCONUT.]

cor. abbr. 1. Corner. 2. Music. Cornet. 3. Coroner. 4. Corpus. 5. Correction. 6. a. Correspondence; correspondent. b. Corresponding.

Cor. abbr. Bible. Corinthians.

cor-a-ble (kôr'ə-kəl, kôr'-) n. Nautical. A small, rounded boat made of waterproof material stretched over a wicker or wooden frame. [Welsh corwgl, from Middle Irish curach, from Old Irish.]

cor-a-coid (kôr'ə-koid', kôr'-) n. 1. A bony process projecting from the scapula toward the sternum in mammals. 2. A beak-shaped bone articulating with the scapula and sternum in most lower vertebrates, such as birds and reptiles.

— adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a coracoid. [New Latin coracoïdēs, from Greek korakoiedēs, ravenlike : korax, korak-, raven + -oidēs, -oid.]

cor-al (kôr'əl, kôr'-) n. 1. a. A rocklike deposit consisting of the calcareous skeletons secreted by various anthozoans. Coral deposits often accumulate to form reefs or islands in warm seas. b. Any of numerous chiefly colonial marine polyps of the class Anthozoa that secrete such calcareous skeletons. c. The red-orange, pinkish, or white deposits secreted by corals of the genus Corallium, used to make jewelry and ornaments. d. An object made of this material. 2. Color. A deep or strong pink to moderate red or reddish orange. 3. The unfertilized eggs of a female lobster, which turn a reddish color when cooked. — adj. Color. Of a deep or strong pink to moderate red or reddish orange. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin corallium, from Greek korallion.]

coral bean (kôr'əl bēn) n. See coral tree.

cor-al-bells (kôr'əl-bělz', kôr'-) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A species of alumroot (Heuchera sanguinea) native to the southwest United States and Mexico, widely cultivated in gardens for its clusters of small, bell-shaped, red to white flowers.

cor-al-ber-ry (kôr'əl-běr'ē, kôr'-) n. 1. A North American deciduous shrub (Symphoricarpos orbiculatus) cultivated for its abundant clusters of coral-red, berrylike fruits. Also called Indian currant 2. Any of certain eastern Asian evergreen shrubs of the genus Ardisia, such as spiceberry, cultivated as a houseplant for its clusters of long-lasting, red, berrylike fruits.

coral fungus (kôr'əl fūng'gəs) n. Any of numerous fungi, especially of the family Clavariaceae, whose often brightly colored spore-bearing structures are club-shaped to intricately branched and resemble coral.

Cor-al Ga-bles (kôr'əl gā'bəlz, kôr'-) A city of southeast Florida on Biscayne Bay southwest of Miami. It is mainly residential. Population, 40,091.

cor-al-line (kôr'ə-līn, -līn', kôr'-) adj. 1. Of, consisting of, or producing coral. 2. Resembling coral, especially in color. — n. 1. Any of various red algae of the family Corallinaceae whose fronds are covered with calcareous deposits. 2. Any of various organisms that resemble coral, such as certain bryozoans or hydrozoans. [French corallin, from Late Latin corallīnus, from Latin corallium, coral. See CORAL.]

cor-al-loid (kôr'ə-loid', kôr'-) also cor-al-loid-al (-loid'l) adj. Resembling coral in appearance or form. [Latin corallium, coral; see CORAL + -OID.]

coral pink (kôr'əl pīŋk) n. Color. A moderate to deep yellowish pink.

coral reef (kôr'əl rēf) n. An erosion-resistant marine ridge or mound consisting chiefly of compacted coral together with algal material and biochemically deposited magnesium and calcium carbonates.

cor-al-root (kôr'əl-rōōt', -rōōt', kôr'-) n. Any of several terrestrial, saprophytic, chiefly New World orchids of the genus Corallorhiza having yellowish-green to purplish-brown leafless stems and small flowers. [From the corallike appearance of its branched rhizomes.]

Coral Sea (kôr'əl sē) An arm of the southwest Pacific Ocean bounded by New Hebrides, northeast Australia, and southeast New Guinea. It was the scene of a U.S. World War II naval victory in May 1942.

coral snake (kôr'əl snāk) n. Any of various venomous snakes of the genus Micrurus, native to tropical America and the southern United States, characteristically having brilliant red, yellow, and black banded markings.

Coral Springs (kôr'əl sprīngz) A city of southeast Florida, a suburb of Fort Lauderdale. Population, 79,443.

coral tree (kôr'əl trē) n. Any of various mostly deciduous trees or shrubs of the genus Erythrina in the pea family, native to and widely cultivated in warm regions, having trifoliolate leaves, showy red or orange flowers, and pods containing often brightly colored seeds. Also called coral bean coral vine (kôr'əl vīn) n. A climbing woody vine (Antigonon leptopus) native to Mexico and widely cultivated in warm regions, having heart-shaped leaves and tendril-bearing clusters of small, red to white flowers.

Co-ran-tijn (kōr'ən-tīn', kôr'-) See Courantyne.

cor-ban (kôr'bən, -băn') n. A sacrifice made to God by the ancient Hebrews at the Temple in Jerusalem. [Middle English, from Late Latin, from Greek korban, from Hebrew qurbān.]

cor-beil also cor-beille (kôr'bəl, kôr-bā') n. A sculptured basket of flowers or fruits used as an architectural ornament. [French corbeille, from Late Latin corbicula, little basket, diminutive of Latin corbis, basket.]

cor-bel (kôr'bəl, -bəl') n. A bracket of stone, wood, brick, or other building material, projecting from the face of a wall and generally used to support a cornice or an arch. — v. tr. cor-beled also cor-belled, cor-bel-ing also cor-bel-ling, cor-bels also cor-bels. To provide with or support by a corbel or corbels. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of corp, raven (from the similarity of its shape to that of a raven's beak), from Latin corvus.]

cor-bel-ing (kôr'bə-līng, -bəl'-) n. An overlapping arrangement of bricks or stones in which each course extends farther out from the vertical of the wall than the course below.

Cor-bett (kôr'bət), James John. Known as "Gentleman Jim." 1866-1933.

American heavyweight boxing champion (1892-1897) who was famed for his courteous manner.

cor-bie gable (kôr'bē gā'bəl) n. A gable roof with corbie-steps.

cor-bie-step also cor-bie-step (kôr'bē-stēp') n. One of a series of steps or steplike projections on the top of a gable wall. [Middle English corbie, raven, from Old French corbin, from Latin corvīnus, ravenlike. See CORBINA.]

Cor-bin (kôr'bīn), Margaret Cochran. 1751-1800. American Revolutionary heroine. When her husband was killed at his gun post during the Battle of Fort Washington (1776), she took his place and fought until she was seriously wounded.

cor·bi·na (kôr-bē'nə) also cor·vi·na (-vē'nə) n. 1. A food and game fish (Menticirrhus undulatus) of North American Pacific waters and especially coastal California. 2. Any of several related marine fishes of the family Sciaenidae. [Spanish corbina, corvina, from feminine of corvino, ravenlike (from its color), from Latin corvīnus, from corvus, raven.]

Cor·by (kôr'bē) An urban district of central England southeast of Leicester. It is a center for iron and steel production. Population, 52,400.

Cor-co-va-do (kôr'kə-vă'dō, kôr'kô-vă'dō) A mountain, 704.6 m (2,310 ft) high, of southeast Brazil overlooking Rio de Janeiro. A popular tourist attraction, it has a funicular railroad and is topped by an enormous concrete statue of Christ the Redeemer.

Cor-cy-ra (kôr-sī'rə) See Corfu.

cord (kôrd) n. 1. A slender length of flexible material usually made of twisted strands or fibers and used to bind, tie, connect, or support. 2. An insulated, flexible electric wire fitted with a plug or plugs. 3. A hangman's rope. 4. An influence, feeling, or force that binds or restrains; a bond or tie. 5. Also chord (also kôrd). Anatomy. A long ropelike structure, such as a nerve or tendon: a spinal cord. 6. a. A raised rib on the surface of cloth. b. A fabric or cloth with such ribs. 7. cords. Trousers made of corduroy. 8. Abbr. cd. A unit of quantity for cut fuel wood, equal to a stack measuring 4 × 4 × 8 feet or 128 cubic feet (3.62 cubic meters). — v. tr. cord-ed, cord-ing, cords. 1. To fasten or bind with a cord. 2. To furnish with a cord. 3. To pile (wood) in cords. [Middle English, from Old French corde, from Latin chorda, from Greek khordē. See gher- in Appendix.] — cord'er n.

cord-age (kôr'dij) n. 1. Cords or ropes, especially the ropes in the rigging of a ship. 2. The amount of wood in an area as measured in cords.

cor-date (kôr'dāt') adj. Having a heart-shaped outline: a cordate leaf. [New Latin cordātus, from Latin cor, cord-, heart. See kerd- in Appendix.] — cor'-date'ly adv.

Cor-day (kôr-dā', kôr'dā), Charlotte. 1768-1798. French Revolutionary heroine who was guillotined for the assassination of Jean Paul Marat in 1793.

cord-ed (kôr'dīd) adj. 1. Tied or bound with cords. 2. Furnished with or made of cords. 3. Ribbed or twilled: a corded bedspread. 4. Stacked in cords: corded firewood.

cord grass (kôrd gräs) n. Any of several perennial grasses of the genus Spartina, several of which form colonies in salt marshes and are important as coastal soil binders.

cor-dial (kôr'jəl) adj. 1. Warm and sincere; friendly: a cordial greeting; cordial relations. See Synonyms at gracious. 2. Strongly felt; fervent: a cordial abhor- rence of waste. 3. Serving to invigorate; stimulating. — n. 1. A stimulant; a tonic. 2. A liqueur. [Middle English, of the heart, from Medieval Latin cordiālis, from Latin cor, cord-, heart. See kerd- in Appendix.] —cor·dial/i·ty (-jäl'ī-tē, -jē-äl'-, -dē-äl'-), cor'dial-ness n. —cor'dial-ly adv.

cor·di·er·ite (kôr'dē-ə-rīt') n. A dichroic violet-blue to gray mineral silicate of magnesium, aluminum, and sometimes iron. Also called dichroite [French, after Pierre L. Cordier (1777-1861), French geologist.]

cor·di·form (kôr'də-fôrm') adj. Heart-shaped. [Latin cor, cord-, heart; see kerd- in Appendix + -FORM.]

cor·dil·le·ra (kôr'dl-yâr'ə, kôr-dil'ər-ə) n. An extensive chain of mountains or mountain ranges, especially the principal mountain system of a continent. [Spanish, from cordilla, diminutive of cuerda, cord, from Latin chorda. See CORD.] —cor'dil·le'ran (-yâr'ən) adj.

Cor·dil·le·ra Cen·tral (kôr'dil-yër'ə sən-träl', -thē-yě'rä) 1. The central of three ranges of the Andes in western Colombia. 2. A mountain range of central Dominican Republic. 3. A range of the Andes extending northwest and southeast in north-central Peru. 4. A mountain range of northern Luzon, Philippines. 5. A range of south-central Puerto Rico.

Cordillera de Ta·la·man·ca (kôr'dl-yâr'ə dā tā'lä-mäng'kä, thē) a mountain range of southern Costa Rica extending southeast into western Panama.

Cordillera Mé·ri·da (kôr'dl-yâr'ə mër'i-də, mě'rē-thä) A mountain range of western Venezuela extending northeast and southwest. Pico Bolívar, 5,005.4 m (16,411 ft), is the highest elevation.

Cordillera Oc·ci·den·tal (kôr'dl-yâr'ə ök'si-děn-täl', ôk'sē-thěn-) A range of the western Andes with branches in western Colombia and along the Pacific coast of Peru.

Cordillera O·rien·tal (kôr'dl-yâr'ə ôr'ē-ën-täl', ô'ryën-) A range of the eastern Andes with branches in central Bolivia, western Colombia, and southeast Peru. Its highest elevation is Salcantay, 6,275.4 m (20,575 ft), in Peru.

Cordillera Re·al (kôr'dl-yâr'ə rā-äl') A range of the Andes with branches in western Bolivia and central Ecuador.

Cor·dil·le·ras (kôr'dil-yër'əz, kôr'thē-yě'räs) The entire complex of mountain ranges in western North America, Mexico, Central America, and South America, extending from Alaska to Cape Horn.

cord·ite (kôr'dīt') n. A smokeless explosive powder consisting of nitrocellulose, nitroglycerin, and petrolatum that has been dissolved in acetone, dried, and extruded in cords.

cord·less (kôrd'līs) adj. 1. Having no cord: a cordless telephone. 2. Using batteries as a source of power: a cordless electric shaver. —cord'less-ly adv.

cor-do-ba (kôr'də-bə, -və) n. A basic unit of currency in Nicaragua. See Table at currency. [American Spanish córdoba, after Francisco Fernández de Córdoba (1475?-1526?), Spanish explorer.]

Cór-do-ba (kôr'də-bə, -və, -thô-vä) 1. A city of north-central Argentina northwest of Buenos Aires. It was founded in 1573. Population, 993,055. 2. A city of southern Spain on the Guadalquivir River east-northeast of Seville. Probably established by Carthaginians, it was ruled by Romans, Visigoths, and Arabs until 1031. Under the Moors it was renowned as a cultural and intellectual center. Population, 291,370. — Cor'do-van (-vən) adj. & n.

cor-don (kôr'dn) n. 1. A line of people, military posts, or ships stationed around an area to enclose or guard it. 2. A cord or braid worn as a fastening or an ornament. 3. A ribbon usually worn diagonally across the breast as a badge of honor or a decoration. 4. Architecture. A stringcourse. 5. Botany. A tree or shrub, especially a fruit tree such as an apple or a pear, repeatedly pruned and trained to grow on a support as a single ropelike stem. — v. tr. cor-doned, cor-don-ing, cor-dons. To form a cordon around (an area) so as to prevent movement in or out: Troops cordoned off the riot zone. [French, from Old French, diminutive of corde, cord. See CORD.]

cor-don bleu (kôr'dôn blœ') n. pl. cor-dons bleus (kôr'dôn blœ'). A person highly distinguished in a field, especially a master chef. [French : cordons, ribbon + bleu, blue.]

cor-don sa-ni-taire (kôr-dôn' sä-nē-târ') n. pl. cor-dons sa-ni-taires (kôr-dôn' sä-nē-târ'). 1. A barrier designed to prevent a disease or other undesirable condition from spreading. 2. A chain of buffer states organized around a nation considered ideologically dangerous or potentially hostile. [French, quarantine line : cordons, line + sanitaire, sanitary.]

cor-do-van (kôr'də-vən) n. A fine leather originally made of goatskin but now more frequently of split horsehide. [Spanish cordován, from Córdoba, Córdoba, Spain.]

cor-du-roy (kôr'də-roi') n. 1. A durable cut-pile fabric, usually made of cotton, with vertical ribs. 2. corduroys. Trousers made of corduroy. 3. A road made of logs laid down crosswise. — adj. 1. Made of a fabric with vertical ribs. 2. Made of logs laid down crosswise: a corduroy road. — v. tr. cor-du-royed, cor-du-roy-ing, cor-du-roys. To build (a road) of logs laid down crosswise. [Probably from CORD + obsolete duroy, a coarse woolen fabric.]

cord-wood (kôrd'wööd') n. 1. Wood cut and piled in cords. 2. Wood sold by the cord.

core (kôr, kōr) n. 1. The hard or fibrous central part of certain fruits, such as the apple or pear, containing the seeds. 2. The central or innermost part: the hard elastic core of a baseball; a rod with a hollow core. 3. The basic or most important part; the essence: a small core of dedicated supporters; the core of the problem. See

Synonyms at substance. 4. A set of subjects or courses that make up a required portion of a curriculum. 5. Electricity. A soft iron rod in a coil or transformer that provides a path for and intensifies the magnetic field produced by the windings. 6. a. Computer Science. A memory, especially one consisting of a series of tiny doughnut-shaped masses of magnetic material. Also called core memory b. One of the magnetic doughnut-shaped masses that make up such a memory. Also called magnetic core 7. The central portion of Earth below the mantle, beginning at a depth of about 2,900 kilometers (1,800 miles) and probably consisting of iron and nickel. It is made up of a liquid outer core and a solid inner core. 8. A mass of dry sand placed within a mold to provide openings or shape to a casting. 9. The part of a nuclear reactor where fission occurs. 10. A cylindrical mass drilled vertically into the earth and removed from it to determine composition or presence of oil or gas. 11. The base, usually of soft or inferior wood, to which veneer woods are glued. — v. tr. cored, cor-ing, cores. To remove the core of: core apples. [Middle English.]

CORE abbr. Congress of Racial Equality.

core dump (kôr dümp) n. Computer Science. A copy of the data stored in the core memory of a computer, usually on a device for external storage.

co-re-lig-ion-ist (kō'ri-līj'ə-nĭst) n. One having the same religion as another.

Co-rel-li (kə-rĕl'ē, kô-), Arcangelo. 1653-1713. Italian violinist and composer who is remembered for his 12 concerti grossi, which shaped the development of the concerto.

core memory (kôr mēm'ə-rĕ) n. Computer Science. See core (n., sense 6a).

cor-e-op-sis (kôr'ē-öp'sĭs, kôr-) n. Any of various plants of the genus Coreopsis in the composite family, especially the North American species, having showy radiate flower heads with yellow or, rarely, purplish flowers. Also called tickseed [New Latin Coreopsis, genus name : Greek koris, bedbug; see sker-¹ in Appendix + -OPSIS.]

co-re-pres-sor (kō'ri-prĕs'ər) n. A substance that combines with and activates a genetic repressor, thus preventing gene transcription and inhibiting protein synthesis.

cor-er (kôr'ər, kôr'-) n. A device for coring apples.

co-re-spon-dent (kō'ri-spŏn'dənt) n. Law. A person charged with having committed adultery with the defendant in a divorce suit. —co're-spon'den-cy n.

Cor-ey (kôr'ē), Elias James. Born 1928. American chemist. He won a 1990 Nobel Prize for developing techniques of creating synthetic compounds.

corf (kôrf) n. pl. corves (kôrvz). Chiefly British. A truck, tub, or basket used in a mine. [Middle English, basket, from Middle Dutch corf, or Middle Low German korf both probably from Latin corbis.]

Cor-fu (kôrfōō, -fyōō, kôrfōō') also Kér-ki-ra (kěrkē-rä') Formerly Cor-cy-ra (kôrsī'ra). An island of Greece in the Ionian Islands off the northwest coast of the mainland. Settled c. 700 B.C., the island was controlled by Rome, Byzantium, Sicily, Venice, and Great Britain before being ceded to Greece in 1864.

cor-gi (kôrgē) n. A Welsh corgi. [Welsh : cor, dwarf + ci, dog; see kwon- in Appendix.]

Cor-i (kôr'ē, kōr'ē), Gerty Theresa Radnitz. 1896-1957. Czechoslovakian-born American biochemist. She shared a 1947 Nobel Prize with her husband, Carl Ferdinand Cori (1896-1984), and Bernardo A. Houssay for discovering the intermediate steps in glycogen-glucose conversion.

co-ri-a (kôr'ē-ə, kōr'-) n. Plural of corium.

cor-i-a-ceous (kôr'ē-ā'shəs, kōr'-) adj. Of or like leather, especially in texture. [From Late Latin coriāceus, from Latin corium, leather. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

co-ri-an-der (kôr'ē-än'dər, kōr'-, kôr'ē-än'dər, kōr'-) n. 1. An aromatic annual Eurasian herb (Coriandrum sativum) in the parsley family, having parsley-like leaves and umbels of tiny white to pinkish flowers. It is cultivated for its edible fruits, leafy shoots, and roots. 2. The fresh, young, leafy plantlets of this herb, used in salads and various dishes as a flavoring and garnish. Also called Chinese parsley, cilantro. 3. The seedlike fruit of this plant, used whole or ground as a flavoring for food and as a seasoning, as in curry powder. [Middle English coriandre, from Old French, from Latin coriandrum, from Greek koriandron.]

Cor-inth (kôr'inth, kōr'-) also Kó-rin-thos (kôr'рін-thôs') A city of southern Greece in the northeast Peloponnesus on the Gulf of Corinth. It is near the site of the ancient city of Corinth, which was founded in Homeric times and was a rich, influential maritime power in the seventh and sixth centuries B.C. Population, 22,658.

Corinth, Gulf of. Formerly, Gulf of Le-pan-to (lī-pän'tō, lě'pän-tō). An inlet of the Ionian Sea between the Peloponnesus and central Greece.

Corinth, Isthmus of. A narrow isthmus connecting central Greece with the Peloponnesus. It lies between the Gulf of Corinth and the Saronic Sea and is crossed by the Corinth Canal, constructed from 1881 to 1893.

Co-rin-thi-an (kə-rін'thē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to ancient Corinth or its people or culture. 2. Architecture. Of or relating to the Corinthian order. 3. Elegantly or elaborately ornate. 4. Given to licentious and profligate luxury. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Corinth. 2. A luxury-loving person; a bon vivant. 3. A wealthy amateur sportsman, especially an amateur yachtsman. 4. Corinthians. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr. Co, Cor. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Corinthian order (kə-rін'thē-ən ôr'dər) n. Architecture. The most ornate of the three classical orders, characterized by a slender fluted column having an ornate bell-shaped capital decorated with acanthus leaves.

Co-ri-o-lis effect (kôr'ē-ō'lis ĭ-fĕkt', kōr'-) n. The observed effect of the Coriolis force, especially the deflection of an object moving above the earth, rightward in the northern hemisphere and leftward in the southern hemisphere.

Coriolis force (kôr'ē-ō'lis fôrs) n. An apparent force used mathematically to describe motion, as of aircraft or cloud formations, relative to a noninertial, uniformly rotating frame of reference such as Earth. [After Gaspard G. de Coriolis (1792-1843), French mathematician.]

co-ri-um (kôr'ē-əm, kōr'-) n. pl. co-ri-a (-ē-ə). Anatomy. See dermis. [Latin, skin. See sker-1 in Appendix.]

cork (kôrk) n. 1. The lightweight, elastic outer bark of the cork oak, used especially for bottle closures, insulation, floats, and crafts. 2. a. Something made of cork, especially a bottle stopper. b. A bottle stopper made of other material, such as plastic. 3. A small float used on a fishing line or net to buoy up the line or net or to indicate when a fish bites. 4. Botany. A nonliving, water-resistant protective tissue that is formed on the outside of the cork cambium in the woody stems and roots of many seed plants. In this sense, also called phellem — v. tr. corked, cork-ing, corks. 1. To stop or seal with or as if with a cork. 2. To restrain or check; hold back: tried to cork my anger. 3. To blacken with burnt cork. [Middle English, from Dutch kurk, or Low German korck both from Spanish alcorque, cork-soled shoe, probably from Arabic dialectal al-qūrḡ, from Latin quercus, oak. See perk^wu- in Appendix.]

Cork (kôrk) A city of southern Ireland near the head of Cork Harbor, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. Cork was occupied by the Danes in the ninth century and by Oliver Cromwell in 1649. Population, 136,344.

cork-age (kôr'kĭj) n. A charge exacted at a restaurant for every bottle of liquor served that was not bought on the premises.

cork-board (kôrk'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A construction and insulating sheet material made of compressed and baked granules of cork.

cork cambium (kôrk kăm'bē-əm) n. Botany. A lateral ring of meristematic tissue found in woody seed plants, producing cork on the outside of the ring and parenchyma on the inside of the ring. Also called phellogen corked (kôrkt) adj. 1. Sealed with or as if with a cork. 2. Tainted in flavor by an unsound cork: corked port. 3. Blackened by burnt cork.

cork-er (kôr'kər) n. 1. One that corks bottles, for example. 2. Slang. A remarkable or astounding person or thing.

cork-ing (kôr'kĭng) Slang. adj. Splendid; fine: a corking party. — adv. Used as an intensive: a corking good story. [From CORKER.]

cork oak (kôrk ôk) n. A Mediterranean evergreen oak tree (Quercus suber) having thick bark that is periodically stripped, yielding commercial cork. Also called cork tree cork-screw (kôrk'skrōō') n. A device for drawing corks from bottles, consisting of a pointed metal spiral attached to a handle. — adj. Spiral in shape. — v. intr. tr. cork-screwed, cork-screw-ing, cork-screws. To move or cause to move in a spiral or winding course.

cork tree (kôrk trē) n. 1. See cork oak. 2. Any of various deciduous trees of the genus Phellodendron native to eastern Asia and cultivated as an ornamental, especially P. amurense, having deeply furrowed, thick, corky bark.

cork-wood (kôrk'wōōd') n. 1. A deciduous shrub or small tree (Leitneria floridana) native to wet regions of the southeast United States and having soft, lightweight wood. 2. See balsa (n., sense 1). 3. Any of certain Australian shrubs or small trees of the genus Duboisia having leaves used for the commercial extraction of belladonna alkaloids.

cork-y (kôrk'kē) adj. cork-i-er, cork-i-est. 1. Of or resembling cork.

2. Informal. Lively; buoyant. — cork'i-ness n.

Cor-liss (kôrk'līs), George Henry. 1817-1888. American inventor and manufacturer noted for his improvements to the steam engine.

corm (kôrm) n. A short, thick, solid, food-storing underground stem, sometimes bearing papery scale leaves, as in the crocus or gladiolus. [New Latin cor-mus, from Greek kormos, a trimmed tree trunk. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

Cor-mack (kôrk'mæk), Allan MacLeod. Born 1924. South African-born American physicist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for developing the CAT scan x-ray technique.

cor-mel (kôrk'məl, kôrk-měl') n. A small young corm produced by a fully developed corm. [CORM + -el, diminutive suff. (from Latin -ellus).]

cor-mo-rant (kôrk'mər-ənt, -mə-ränt') n. 1. Any of several large, widely distributed marine diving birds of the genus Phalacrocorax, having dark plumage, webbed feet, a slender hooked bill, and a distensible pouch. 2. A greedy, rapacious person. — adj. Greedy; rapacious. [Middle English cormoraunt, from Old French cormorant : corp, raven; see CORBEL + marenc, of the sea (from Latin marīnus); see MARINE.]

corn¹ (kôrn) n. 1. a. Any of numerous cultivated forms of a widely grown, usually tall annual cereal grass (Zea mays) bearing grains or kernels on large ears.

b. The grains or kernels of this plant, used as food for human beings and livestock or for the extraction of an edible oil or starch. c. An ear of this plant. Also called Indian corn, maize.

2. Chiefly British. Any of various cereal plants or grains, especially the principal crop cultivated in a particular region, such as wheat in England or oats in Scotland.

3. a. A single grain of a cereal plant. b. A seed or fruit of various other plants, such as a peppercorn. 4. Corn snow.

5. Informal. Corn whiskey. 6. Slang. Something considered trite, dated, melodramatic, or unduly sentimental. — v. corned, corn-ing, corns. — v. tr. 1. To cause to form hard particles; granulate.

2. a. To season and preserve with granulated salt. b. To preserve (beef, for example) in brine. 3. To feed (animals) with corn or grain. — v. intr. To form hard particles; become grainy: “After the snow melts all day, it corns up at night for fine conditions” (Hatfield MA Valley Advocate). [Middle English, grain, from Old English. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

corn² (kôrn) n. A horny thickening of the skin, usually on or near a toe, resulting from pressure or friction. Also called clavus [Middle English corne, from Old French, horn, from Latin cornū. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

corn-ball (kôrn'bôl') Slang. n. One who behaves in a mawkish or unsophisticated manner. — adj. Mawkish or unsophisticated; corny: a kid's cornball humor. [From corn ball, a ball of popcorn and molasses.]

Corn Belt (kôrn bêlt) An agricultural region of the central United States primarily in Iowa and Illinois but also including parts of Indiana, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, and Ohio. The chief products of the area are corn and corn-fed livestock.

corn borer (kôrn bôr'ər) n. 1. The larva of a European moth (Pyrausta nubilalis), now common in many areas of eastern North America, that feeds on and destroys corn and other plants, including potatoes and beans. Also called European corn borer 2. Any of various insect larvae similar to the corn borer that infest corn.

corn-braid (kôrn'brād') v. tr. corn-braid-ed, corn-braid-ing, corn-braids. To style (hair) in rows of thin braids; cornrow. —corn'braid' n.

corn bread or corn-bread (kôrn'brəd') n. Bread made from cornmeal.

corn cake or corn-cake (kôrn'kāk') n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See johnny-cake. See Regional note at johnnycake.

corn chip (kôrn çip) n. A thin, crisp piece of food made from cornmeal batter.

corn-cob (kôrn'kôb') n. 1. The hard, thick, cylindrical central core on which are borne the grains or kernels of an ear of corn, usually in rows. 2. A corncob pipe.

corncob pipe (kôrn'kôb' pīp) n. A pipe with a bowl made of a dried, hollowed corncob.

corn cockle (kôrn kôk'əl) n. A weedy annual Mediterranean plant (Agrostemma githago) having reddish-purple flowers and opposite leaves.

corn-crake (kôrn'krāk') n. A common Eurasian bird (Crex crex) with a short bill and brownish-yellow plumage, found in grain fields and meadows.

corn-crib (kôrn'krīb') n. A structure for storing and drying ears of corn.

corn-dodg-er (kôrn'dôj'ər) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. A small, round ball of cornmeal, flour, milk, oil, and sugar that is fried in deep fat. Regional. Also called dodger cor-ne-a (kôrn'nē-ə) n. The transparent, convex, anterior portion of the outer fibrous coat of the eyeball that covers the iris and the pupil and is continuous with the sclera. [Medieval Latin cornea (tēla), horny (tissue), from Latin corneus, horny, from cornū, horn. See ker-¹ in Appendix.] —cor'ne-al (-əl) adj.

corn earworm (kôrn îr'wûrm') n. The large, destructive larva of a moth (Heliothis zea) that feeds on corn and many other plants. Also called bollworm, earworm.

Cor-neille (kôr-nā'), Pierre. 1606-1684. French playwright whose works, including Le Cid (c. 1637) and Horace (1640), dramatize grand moral themes within elegant verse.

cor-ne-i-tis (kôr'nē-ī'tis) n. Inflammation of the cornea.

cor-nel (kôr'nəl, -nəl') n. Any of various plants of the genus Cornus, which includes the bunchberry and dogwoods. [Short for German Kornelbaum (from Old High German curnil-), or from French cornouille both from Medieval Latin corniola, from diminutive of Latin cornus.]

cor-nel-ian (kôr-nəl'yən) n. Variant of carnelian.

cornelian cherry (kôr-nəl'yən chēr'ē) n. 1. A deciduous Eurasian shrub or small tree (Cornus mas) cultivated for its clusters of early blooming, small yellow flowers and cherrylike, edible, sour fruits. 2. The fruit of this plant, used for jellies and preserves. [From CORNEL.]

Cor-ne-lius (kôr-nəl'yəs, -nāl'-, -nā'lē-ōōs'), Peter von. 1783-1867. German painter known for his frescoes and recognized as a leader of the new school of German art.

Cor-nell (kôr-nəl'), Ezra. 1807-1874. American businessman and philanthropist who helped develop and unify telegraph systems in the United States and founded Cornell University (1868) with Andrew D. White.

Cor-nell (kôr-nəl'), Katharine. 1893-1974. American actress known for her Broadway performances in A Bill of Divorcement (1921) and The Barretts of Wimpole Street (1931).

Cor-nel-lá (kôr'nəl-yä', -nĕ-yä') A city of northeast Spain, a suburb of Barcelona. Population, 90,270.

cor-ne-ous (kôr'nē-əs) adj. Made of horn or a hornlike substance; horny. [From Latin corneus, from cornū, horn. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

cor-ner (kôr'nər) n. Abbr. cor. 1. a. The position at which two lines, surfaces, or edges meet and form an angle: the four corners of a rectangle. b. The area enclosed or bounded by an angle formed in this manner: sat by myself in the corner; the corner of one's eye. 2. The place where two roads or streets join or intersect. 3. a. Sports. Any of the four angles of a boxing or wrestling ring where the ropes are joined. b. Baseball. Either side of home plate, toward or away from the batter. 4. A threatening or embarrassing position from which escape is difficult: got myself into a corner by boasting. 5. A remote, secluded, or secret place: the four corners of the earth; a beautiful little corner of Paris. 6. A part or piece made to fit on a corner, as in mounting or for protection. 7. a. A speculative monopoly of a stock or commodity created by purchasing all or most of the available supply in order to raise its price. b. Exclusive possession; monopoly: “Neither party... has a corner on all the good ideas” (George B. Merry). — v. cor-nered, cor-ner-ing, cor-ners. — v. tr. 1. To furnish with corners. 2. To place or drive into a corner: cornered the thieves and captured them. 3. To form a corner in (a stock or commodity): cornered the silver market. — v. intr. 1. To come together or be situated on or at a corner. 2. To turn, as at a corner: a truck that corners poorly. — adj. 1. Located at a street corner: a corner drugstore. 2. Designed for use in a corner: a corner table. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French corne, corner, horn, from Vulgar Latin corna*, from Latin cornua, pl. of cornū, horn, point. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

cor-ner-back also corner back (kôr'nər-bāk') n. Football. Either of two defensive halfbacks stationed a short distance behind the linebackers and relatively near the sidelines.

Cor-ner Brook (kôr'nər brōök) A city of west-central Newfoundland, Canada, on an estuary emptying into the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Population, 24,339.

cor-ner-stone also corner stone (kôr'nər-stōn') n. 1. a. A stone at the corner of a building uniting two intersecting walls; a quoin. b. Such a stone, often inscribed, laid at a ceremony marking the origin of a building. 2. An indispensable and fundamental basis: the cornerstone of an argument.

cor-ner-wise (kôr'nər-wīz') also cor-ner-ways (-wāz') adv. 1. With a corner toward the front. 2. So as to form a corner. 3. From corner to corner; diagonally.

cor-net (kôr-nĕt') n. 1. Abbr. cor. Music. A wind instrument of the trumpet class, having three valves operated by pistons. 2. (also kôr'nĭt) A piece of paper twisted into a cone and used to hold small wares such as candy or nuts. 3. (also kôr'nĭt) A headdress, often cone-shaped, worn by women in the 12th and 13th centuries. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of corn, horn, from Latin cornū. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

cor-net-à-pis-tons (kôr-nĕt'ə-pĭs'tənz) n. pl. cor-nets-à-pis-tons (kôr-nĕts'ə-pĭs'tənz). Music. A cornet. [French : cornet, horn, trumpet + à, with + pistons, valves.]

cor-net-ist also cor-net-tist (kôr-nĕt'ĭst) n. Music. One who plays a cornet.

corn-fed (kôrn'fĕd') adj. 1. Fed on corn: corn-fed pigs. 2. Slang. Healthy and strong, but provincial and unsophisticated.

corn flakes (kôrn flākz) pl.n. A crisp, flaky, commercially prepared cold cereal made from coarse cornmeal.

corn-flow-er (kôrn'flou'ər) n. An annual Eurasian plant (Centaurea cyanus) in the composite family, cultivated and also naturalized in North America and having showy heads of blue, purple, pink, or white flowers. Also called bachelor's button [So called because it is found in cornfields.]

Corn-forth (kôrn'fərth, -fôrth', -fôrth'), John Warcup. Born 1917. Australian-born British chemist. He shared a 1975 Nobel Prize for research on the structure of biological molecules.

corn-husk (kôrn'hŭsk') n. The leafy husk of an ear of corn.

corn-husk-ing (kôrn'hŭs'kĭng) n. 1. The husking of corn. 2. A social gathering for husking corn. In this sense, also called husking bee — corn/husk'er n.

cor-nice (kôr'nĭs) n. 1. a. A horizontal molded projection that crowns or completes a building or wall. b. The uppermost part of an entablature. 2. The molding at the top of the walls of a room, between the walls and ceiling. 3. An ornamental horizontal molding or frame used to conceal rods, picture hooks, or other devices. — v. tr. cor-niced, cor-nic-ing, cor-nic-es. To supply, decorate, or finish with or as if with a cornice. [Obsolete French, from Italian, possibly from Latin cornīx, cornīc-, crow, from its resemblance to a crow's beak (influenced by Greek korōnis, curved line, flourish, from korōnos, curved). See CROWN.]

cor-ni-cle (kôr'nĭ-kəl) n. See siphuncle (n., sense 2). [Latin corniculum, little horn. See CORNICULATE.]

cor-nic-u-late (kôr-nĭk'yə-lāt', -lĭt) adj. Having horns or hornlike projections. [Latin corniculātus, from corniculum, diminutive of cornū, horn. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

cor-ni-fi-ca-tion (kôr'nə-fĭ-kā'shən) n. The conversion of squamous epithelial cells into a keratinized, horny material, such as hair, nails, or feathers. [Latin cornū, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix + -FICATION.]

cor-ni-fy (kôr'nə-fĭ') v. intr. cor-ni-fied, cor-ni-fy-ing, cor-ni-fies. To undergo cornification.

Corn-ing (kôr'nĭng) A city of southern New York near the Pennsylvania border west of Elmira. The city is famous for its glassworks dating from 1868 and its glass museum. Population, 12,953.

Cor-nish (kôr'nĭsh) adj. Of or relating to Cornwall, its people, or the Cornish language. — n. 1. The Brythonic language of Cornwall, which has been extinct since the late 18th century. 2. Any of an English breed of domestic fowl often crossbred to produce roasters.

Cor-nish-man (kôr'nĭsh-mən) n. A man who is a native or inhabitant of Cornwall, England.

Cor-nish-wom-an (kôr'nĭsh-wŏm'ən) n. A woman who is a native or inhabitant of Cornwall, England.

Corn Law (kôrn lô) n. One of a series of British laws in force before 1846 regulating the grain trade and restricting imports of grain.

corn lily (kôrn lĭl'ē) n. Any of various bulbous herbs of the genus Ixia native to southern Africa and widely cultivated as an ornamental, having grasslike leaves and showy clusters of variously colored flowers.

corn·meal also corn meal (kôrn'mēl') n. Meal made from corn, used in a wide variety of foods. Also called Indian meal

Cor·no (kôr'nō), Mount. The highest peak, 2,915.8 m (9,560 ft), of the Apennines, in central Italy.

corn oil (kôrn oil) n. A pale yellow liquid obtained from the embryos of corn grains, used especially as a cooking and salad oil and in the manufacture of margarines.

corn·pone or corn pone (kôrn' pōn') n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See johnny-cake. See Regional note at johnnycake. See Regional note at pone. — adj. Informal. Folksy and homespun, as in manner or speech: a penchant for cornpone humor; cornpone political prose.

corn poppy (kôrn pŏp'ē) n. An annual Eurasian plant (Papaver rhoeas) naturalized in North America and having showy, usually scarlet flowers.

corn·row (kôrn'rō') v. tr. corn-rowed, corn-row-ing, corn-rows. To arrange or style (hair) by dividing into sections and braiding close to the scalp in rows. — corn'row' n.

corn salad (kôrn sāl'əd) n. Any of several plants of the genus Valerianella, especially a Eurasian annual (V. locusta or V. oleria), having small, white to pale bluish flowers and edible young leaves used in salads or as a potherb. Also called lamb's lettuce, mache.

corn silk (kôrn sīlk) n. The styles and stigmas that appear as a silky tuft or tassel at the tip of an ear of corn, used as a diuretic in herbal medicine.

corn snow (kôrn snō) n. Snow that has melted and refrozen into a rough, granular surface.

corn·stalk also corn stalk (kôrn'stôk') n. The stalk or stem of a corn plant.

corn·starch (kôrn'stärch') n. Starch prepared from corn grains, used industrially and as a thickener in cooking.

corn sugar (kôrn shŏŏg'ər) n. Dextrose obtained from cornstarch.

corn syrup (kôrn sīr'əp) n. A syrup prepared from cornstarch, used in industry and in numerous food products as a sweetener.

cor·nu (kôr'nō, -nyō) n. pl. cor·nu·a (-nō-ə, -nyō-ə). A part or structure, such as a bony protuberance, that resembles a horn. [Latin cornū, horn. See ker-¹ in Appendix.] — cor'nu·al (-əl) adj.

cor·nu·co·pi·a (kôr'nə-kō'pē-ə, -nyə-) n. 1. A goat's horn overflowing with fruit, flowers, and grain, signifying prosperity. Also called horn of plenty 2. Greek Mythology. The horn of the goat that suckled Zeus, which broke off and became filled with fruit. In folklore, it became full of whatever its owner desired. 3. A cone-shaped ornament or receptacle. 4. An overflowing store; an abundance: a cornucopia of employment opportunities. [Late Latin cornūcōpia, from Latin cornū cōpia: cornū, horn; see CORNU + cōpia, genitive of cōpia, plenty; see op- in Appendix.] — cor'nu·co'pi·an adj.

cor-nute (kôr-nōot', -nyōot') also cor-nut-ed (-nōō'tid, -nyōō'-) adj.

1. Shaped like a horn. 2. Having horns or horn-shaped processes. [Latin cornūtus, from cornū, horn. See CORNU.]

Corn-wall (kôrn'wôl') 1. A region of extreme southwest England on a peninsula bounded by the Atlantic Ocean and English Channel. Its tin and copper mines were known to ancient Greek traders. 2. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River and the New York border southeast of Ottawa. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 46,144.

Corn-wal-lis (kôrn-wôl'is, -wô'lis), Charles First Marquis and Second Earl Cornwallis. 1738-1805. British military and political leader who commanded forces in North Carolina during the American Revolution. His surrender at Yorktown in 1781 marked the final British defeat.

corn whiskey (kôrn hwis'kē) n. Whiskey distilled from corn.

corn-y (kôr'nē) adj. corn-i-er, corn-i-est. Trite, dated, melodramatic, or mawkishly sentimental. [From CORN¹.] —corn'i-ly adv. —corn'i-ness n.

Co-ro (kôr'ō, kōr'ō) A city of northwest Venezuela near the Caribbean Sea east-northeast of Maracaibo. It was founded in 1527 by the Spanish, who mortgaged it to a German banking house from 1528 to 1546. Population, 95,000.

corol. abbr. Corollary.

co-rol-la (kə-rōl'ə, -rō'lə) n. Botany. The petals of a flower considered as a group or unit. [Latin, small garland, diminutive of corōna, garland. See CORONA.] —co-rol'late (-rōl'āt') adj.

cor-ol-lar-y (kôr'ə-lēr-ē, kōr'-) n. pl. cor-ol-lar-ies. Abbr. corol. 1. A proposition that follows with little or no proof required from one already proven. 2. A deduction or an inference. 3. A natural consequence or effect; a result. — adj. Consequent; resultant. [Middle English corolarie, from Latin corollārium, money paid for a garland, gratuity, from corolla, small garland. See COROLLA.]

Cor-o-man-del Coast (kôr'ə-măn'dl kōst) A region of southeast India bounded by the Bay of Bengal and the Eastern Ghats. The coast is known for its monsoons and turbulent waters.

co-ro-na (kə-rō'nə) *n. pl. co-ro-nas or co-ro-nae (-nē). 1. Astronomy. a. A faintly colored luminous ring appearing to surround a celestial body visible through a haze or thin cloud, especially such a ring around the moon or sun, caused by diffraction of light from suspended matter in the intervening medium. Also called aureole b. The luminous, irregular envelope of highly ionized gas outside the chromosphere of the sun. 2. Architecture. The projecting top part of a cornice. 3. A cigar with a long, tapering body and blunt ends. 4. Anatomy. The crownlike upper portion of a bodily part or structure, such as the top of the head. 5. Botany. A crown-shaped, funnel-shaped, or trumpet-shaped outgrowth or appendage of the perianth of certain flowers, such as the daffodil or the spider lily. Also called crown 6. Electricity. A faint glow enveloping the high-field elec-* trode in a corona discharge, often accompanied by streamers directed toward the low-field electrode. [Latin corōna. See CROWN.]

Co-ro-na (kə-rō'nə) A city of southern California southwest of Riverside. It is a manufacturing center in a citrus-growing area. Population, 76,095.

Corona Aus-tra-lis (kə-rō'nə ô-strā'līs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Telescopium and Sagittarius. Also called Southern Crown [Latin Corōna austrālis: corōna, crown + austrālis, southern.]

Corona Bo-re-al-is (kə-rō'nə bôr'ē-ăl'īs, -ā'līs, bôr'ē-) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere between Hercules and Boötes. Also called Northern Crown [Latin Corōna boreālis: corōna, crown + boreālis, northern.]

corona discharge (kə-rō'nə dīs-chārij') n. An electrical discharge characterized by a corona and occurring when one of two electrodes in a gas has a shape causing the electric field at its surface to be significantly greater than that between the electrodes.

Cor-o-na-do (kôr'ə-nā'dō, kôr'-) A city of southern California on a narrow spit of land west of San Diego. It is a popular tourist resort. Population, 26,540.

Co-ro-na-do (kôr'ə-nā'dō, kôr'-, kô'rô-nā'thō), Francisco Vásquez de. 1510-1554. Spanish explorer who in his quest for the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola was the first to explore Arizona and New Mexico.

co-ro-nae (kə-rō'nē) n. A plural of corona.

co-ro-na-graph also co-ro-no-graph (kə-rō'nə-grāf') n. A telescope or an attachment for a telescope equipped with a disk that blacks out most of the sun, used to photograph the sun's corona.

cor-o-nal (kôr'ə-nəl, kôr'-, kə-rō'nəl) n. A garland, wreath, or circlet for the head. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a corona, especially of the head. 2. Of, relating to, or having the direction of the coronal suture or of the plane dividing the body into front and back portions. [Middle English, from Latin corōnālis, of a crown, from corōna, crown. See CROWN.]

coronal suture (kôr'ə-nəl sōw'chər) n. Anatomy. The suture extending across the skull between the two parietal bones and the frontal bone.

cor-o-nar-y (kôr'ə-nēr'ē, kôr'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being the coronary arteries or coronary veins. 2. Of or relating to the heart. — n. pl.

cor-o-nar-ies. A coronary thrombosis. [Latin corōnārius, of a crown, from corōna, crown. See CROWN.]

coronary artery (kôr'ə-nēr'ē ār'tə-rē) n. Either of two arteries that originate in the aorta and supply blood to the muscular tissue of the heart.

coronary bypass surgery (kôr'ə-nēr'ē bī'pās' sūr'jə-rē) A surgical procedure performed to improve blood supply to the heart by creating new routes for blood flow when one or more of the coronary arteries become obstructed. The surgery involves removing a healthy blood vessel from another part of the body, such as the leg, and grafting it onto the heart to circumvent the blocked artery.

coronary care unit (kôr'ə-nĕr'ē kâr yōō'nĭt) n. Abbr. CCU A hospital unit that is specially equipped to treat patients with serious heart conditions, such as coronary thrombosis.

coronary occlusion (kôr'ə-nĕr'ē ə-klōō'zhən) n. The partial or complete obstruction of blood flow in a coronary artery, as by a thrombus or the progressive buildup of atherosclerotic plaque.

coronary sinus (kôr'ə-nĕr'ē sĭ'nəs) n. A venous sinus that opens into the right atrium of the heart and serves to drain the coronary veins.

coronary thrombosis (kôr'ə-nĕr'ē thrōm-bō'sĭs) n. Obstruction of a coronary artery by a thrombus, often leading to destruction of heart muscle.

coronary vein (kôr'ə-nĕr'ē vān) n. Any one of the veins that drains blood from the muscular tissue of the heart and empties into the coronary sinus.

cor·o·na·tion (kôr'ə-nā'shən, kōr'-) n. The act or ceremony of crowning a sovereign or the sovereign's consort. [Middle English coronacioun, from Medieval Latin corōnātiō, corōnātiōn-, from Latin corōnātus, past participle of corōnāre, to crown, from corōna, crown. See CROWN.]

cor·o·ner (kôr'ə-nər, kōr'-) n. Abbr. cor. A public officer whose primary function is to investigate by inquest any death thought to be of other than natural causes. [Middle English, officer of the crown, from Anglo-Norman corouner, from coroune, crown, from Latin corōna. See CROWN.] —cor'·o·ner·ship' n.

WORD HISTORY: Coroner comes from Anglo-Norman corouner, a word derived from coroune, “crown.” Corouner was the term used for the royal judicial officer who was called in Latin custos placitorum coronae, or “guardian of the crown’s pleas.” The person holding the office of coroner, a position dating from the 12th century, was charged with keeping local records of legal proceedings in which the crown had jurisdiction. He helped raise money for the crown by funneling the property of executed criminals into the king’s treasury. The coroner also investigated any suspicious deaths among the Normans, who as the ruling class wanted to be sure that their deaths were not taken lightly. At one time in England all criminal proceedings were included in the coroner’s responsibilities. Over the years these responsibilities decreased markedly, but coroners have continued to display morbid curiosity. In the United States, where there is no longer the crown, a coroner’s main duty is the investigation of any sudden, violent, or unexpected death that may not have had a natural cause.

cor·o·net (kôr'ə-nĕt', kōr'-) n. 1. A small crown worn by princes and princesses and by other nobles below the rank of sovereign. 2. A chaplet or headband decorated with gold or jewels. 3. The upper margin of a horse’s hoof. [Middle English coronette, from Old French, diminutive of corone, crown. See CROWN.]

co-ro-no-graph (kə-rō'nə-grăf') n. Variant of coronagraph.

Co·rot (kô-rō', kə-), Jean Baptiste Camille. 1796-1875. French painter noted for his sketches of Italian landscapes.

co-ro·tate (kō-rō'tāt') v. intr. co-ro-tat-ed, co-ro-tat-ing, co-ro-tates. To rotate in conjunction with another body. —co'ro-ta'tion n. —co'ro-ta'-tion-al adj.

corp. abbr. Corporation.

cor-poc-ra-cy (kôr-pök'rə-sē) n. pl. cor-poc-ra-cies. 1. Corporate bureaucracy. 2. A company characterized by top-heavy, isolated, risk-averse management, excess paperwork, low productivity, poor interdepartmental communication, and lack of imagination, especially in product development and marketing. [CORPO(RATE) + (BUREAU)CRACY.] —cor'po-crat'ic (-pə-krät'ik) adj.

cor-po-ra (kôr'pər-ə) n. Plural of corpus.

corpora cal-lo-sa (kôr'pər-ə kə-lō'-sə) n. Anatomy. Plural of corpus callosum.

cor-po-ral¹ (kôr'pər-əl, kôr'prəl) adj. Of or relating to the body. See Synonyms at bodily. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin corporālis, from corpus, corpor-, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.] —cor'po-ral'i-ty (-pə-rāl'i-tē) n. —cor'po-ral-ly adv.

cor-po-ral² (kôr'pər-əl, kôr'prəl) n. Abbr. Cpl. 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Army that is above private first class and below sergeant or in the U.S. Marine Corps that is above lance corporal and below sergeant. 2. One who holds this rank. [Obsolete French, alteration of caporal, from Old Italian caporale, from capo, head, from Latin caput. See kaput- in Appendix.]

cor-po-ral³ (kôr'pər-əl, kôr'prəl) n. Ecclesiastical. A white linen cloth on which the consecrated elements are placed during the celebration of the Eucharist. [Middle English, from Old French, and from Medieval Latin corporāle both from Latin corporālis, of the body (the Eucharistic bread being representative of Christ's body), from corpus, corpor-, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

corpora lu-te-a (kôr'pər-ə lōō'tē-ə) n. Plural of corpus luteum.

corpora stri-a-ta (kôr'pər-ə strī-ā'tə) n. Anatomy. Plural of corpus striatum.

cor-po-rate (kôr'pər-īt, kôr'prīt) adj. 1. Formed into a corporation; incorporated. 2. Of or relating to a corporation: corporate assets; corporate culture. 3. United or combined into one body; collective: made a corporate effort to finish the job. 4. Corporative. [Latin corporātus, past participle of corporāre, to make into a body, from corpus, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.] —cor'po-rate-ly adv.

cor-po-ra-tion (kôr'pə-rā'shən) n. Abbr. corp. 1. A body that is granted a charter legally recognizing it as a separate legal entity having its own rights, privileges, and liabilities distinct from those of its members. 2. Such a body created for purposes of government. Also called body corporate 3. A group of people combined into or acting as one body.

cor-po-ra-tive (kôr'pər-ə-tiv, -pə-rā'tiv) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or associated with a corporation. 2. Of or relating to a government or political system in which the principal economic functions, such as banking, industry, labor, and government, are organized as corporate entities.

cor-po-ra-tor (kôr'pə-rā'tər) n. A member of a corporation.

cor-po-re-al (kôr-pôr'ē-əl, -pōr'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the body. See Synonyms at bodily. 2. Of a material nature; tangible. [From Latin corporeus, from corpus, corpor-, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

—cor-po're-al/i-ty (-al'i-tē), cor-po're-al-ness n. —cor-po're-al-ly adv.

cor-po-re-i-ty (kôr'pə-rē'i-tē, -rā'-) n. The state of being material or corporeal; physical existence.

cor-po-sant (kôr'pə-zənt) n. See Saint Elmo's fire. [Portuguese, and obsolete Spanish corpo santo both from Latin corpus sanctum, holy body : corpus, body; see k^wrep- in Appendix + sanctus, holy, past participle of sancire, to consecrate; see sak- in Appendix.]

corps (kôr, kōr) n. pl. corps (kōrz, kōrz). 1. Abbr. c., C. a. A separate branch or department of the armed forces having a specialized function. b. A tactical unit of ground combat forces between a division and an army commanded by a lieutenant general and composed of two or more divisions and auxiliary service troops. 2. A body of persons acting together or associated under common direction: the press corps. See Synonyms at band². [French, from Old French, from Latin corpus, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

corps de bal-let (kôr' də bā-lā', kōr') n. The dancers in a ballet troupe who perform as a group. [French : corps, corps + de, of + ballet, ballet.]

corpse (kōrps) n. A dead body, especially the dead body of a human being. See Synonyms at body. [Middle English corps, from Latin corpus. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

corps-man (kôr'mən, kōr'-, kōrz'mən, kōrz'-) n. 1. An enlisted person in the armed forces who has been trained to give first aid and basic medical treatment, especially in combat situations. 2. A member of a government-sponsored group designated as a corps: Peace Corpsmen.

cor-pu-lence (kôr'pyə-ləns) n. The condition of being excessively fat; obesity. [Middle English, corporality, from Latin corpulentia, corpulence, from corpulentus, corpulent, from corpus, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

cor-pu-lent (kôr'pyə-lənt) adj. Excessively fat. See Synonyms at fat. —cor'pu-lent-ly adv.

cor-pul-mo-na-le (kôr' pōol'mə-nā'lē, -nāl'ē, pūl'-) n. Acute strain or hypertrophy of the right ventricle caused by a disorder of the lungs or of the pulmonary blood vessels. [New Latin : Latin cor, heart + New Latin pulmōnālis, of the lungs.]

cor-pus (kôr'pəs) n. pl. cor-po-ra (-pər-ə). Abbr. cor. 1. A large collection of writings of a specific kind or on a specific subject. 2. The principal or capital, as distinguished from the interest or income, as of a fund or estate. 3. Anatomy. a. The main part of a bodily structure or organ. b. A distinct bodily mass or organ having a specific function. 4. Music. The overall length of a violin. [Middle English, from Latin. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

corpus al-bi-cans (kôr'pəs əl'bī-kānz') n. The white fibrous scar tissue in an ovary that results after the involution and regression of the corpus luteum. [New Latin : Latin corpus, body + New Latin albicāns, whitening.]

corpus cal-lo-sum (kôr'pəs kə-lō'səm) n. pl. corpora cal-lo-sa (kə-lō'sə). Anatomy. The arched bridge of nervous tissue that connects the two cerebral hemispheres, allowing communication between the right and left sides of the brain. [New Latin : Latin corpus, body + Latin callōsum, neuter of callōsus, callous.]

Corpus Chris-ti¹ (kôr'pəs krīs'tē) A city of southern Texas on Corpus Christi Bay, an arm of the Gulf of Mexico. The city is highly industrialized and has a large shrimp-fishing fleet. Population, 257,453.

Corpus Chris-ti² (kôr'pəs krīs'tē) n. Roman Catholic Church. 1. A feast in honor of the Eucharist. 2. The first Thursday after Trinity Sunday, the day on which this feast is observed. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, body of Christ : Latin corpus, body + Latin Christī, genitive of Christus, Christ.]

corpus-cle (kôr'pə-səl, -pŭs'əl) n. 1. a. An unattached body cell, such as a blood or lymph cell. b. A rounded, globular mass of cells, such as the pressure receptor on certain nerve endings. 2. A discrete particle, such as a photon or an electron. 3. A minute globular particle. [Latin corpusculum, diminutive of corpus, body. See k^wrep- in Appendix.] —corpus'cu-lar (kôr-pŭs'kyə-lər) adj.

corpus de-lic-ti (kôr'pəs dī-lik'tī) n. 1. Law. The material evidence in a homicide, such as the discovered corpse of a murder victim, showing that a crime has been committed. 2. A corpse. [New Latin : Latin corpus, body + Latin delictī, genitive of delictum, crime.]

corpus lu-te-um (kôr'pəs lōō'tē-əm) n. pl. corpora lu-te-a (lōō'tē-ə). A yellow, progesterone-secreting mass of cells that forms from an ovarian follicle after the release of a mature egg. [New Latin : Latin corpus, body + Latin lūteum, neuter of lūteus, yellow.]

corpus stri-a-tum (kôr'pəs strī-ā'təm) n. pl. corpora stri-a-ta (strī-ā'tə). Anatomy. Either of two gray and white, striated bodies of nerve fibers located in the lower lateral wall of each cerebral hemisphere. [New Latin : Latin corpus, body + Latin striātum, neuter of striātus, striated.]

corr. abbr. 1. Correction. 2. Correspondence; correspondent.

cor-rade (kə-rād') v. tr. intr. cor-rad-ed, cor-rad-ing, cor-rades. To erode or be eroded by abrasion. [Latin corrādere, to scrape together : com-, com- + rādere, to scrape; see rēd- in Appendix.] —cor-ra'sion (-rā'zhən) n. —cor-ra'sive (-siv, -ziv) adj.

cor·ral (kə-rāl') n. 1. An enclosure for confining livestock. 2. An enclosure formed by a circle of wagons for defense against attack during an encampment. — v. tr. cor·ralled, cor·ral·ling, cor·rals. 1. To drive into and hold in a corral. 2. To arrange (wagons) in a corral. 3. To take control or possession of. [Spanish, from Vulgar Latin currāle*, enclosure for carts, from Latin currus, cart, from currere, to run. See kers- in Appendix.]

cor·rect (kə-rēkt') v. cor·rect·ed, cor·rect·ing, cor·rects. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove the errors or mistakes from. b. To indicate or mark the errors in. 2. To punish for the purpose of improving or reforming. 3. To remove, remedy, or counteract (a malfunction, for example). 4. To adjust so as to meet a required standard or condition: correct the wheel alignment on a car. — v. intr. 1. To make corrections. 2. To make adjustments; compensate: correcting for the effects of air resistance. — adj. 1. Free from error or fault; true or accurate. 2. Conforming to standards; proper: correct behavior. [Middle English correcten, from Latin corrīgere, corrēct-, to correct : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + regere, to rule; see reg- in Appendix.] —cor·rect'a·ble, cor·rect'i·ble adj. —cor·rect'ly adv. —cor·rect'ness n. —cor·rec'tor n.

SYNONYMS: correct, rectify, remedy, redress, reform, revise, amend. These verbs mean to make right what is wrong. Correct refers to eliminating faults, errors, or defects: correct spelling mistakes; correct a misapprehension. Rectify stresses the idea of bringing something into conformity with a standard of what is right: The omission of your name from the list will be rectified. I hope I can find a way to rectify your opinion of my behavior. Remedy involves removing or counteracting something considered a cause of harm or damage: Nothing has been done to remedy the lack. He took courses to remedy his abysmal ignorance. Redress refers to setting right something considered immoral or unethical and usually involves making reparation: The wrong is too great to be redressed. Reform implies broad change that alters form or character for the better: “Let us reform our schools, and we shall find little reform needed in our prisons” (John Ruskin). “Nothing so needs reforming as other people’s habits” (Mark Twain). Revise suggests change that results from reconsideration: revise a manuscript; revising the tax laws; revise our judgment of the situation. Amend implies improvement through alteration or correction: “Whenever [the people] shall grow weary of the existing government, they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it, or their revolutionary right to dismember or overthrow it” (Abraham Lincoln). See also Synonyms at punish cor·rec·tion (kə-rēk'shən) n. Abbr. cor., corr. 1. The act or process of correcting. 2. Something offered or substituted for a mistake or fault: made corrections in the report. 3. a. Punishment intended to rehabilitate or improve.

b. corrections. The treatment of offenders through a system of penal incarceration, rehabilitation, probation, and parole, or the administrative system by which these are effectuated. 4. An amount or quantity added or subtracted in order to correct. 5. A decline in stock-market activity or prices following a period of increases. —cor-rec'tion-al adj.

cor-rec-ti-tude (kə-rĕk'tī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. Appropriate manners and behavior; propriety.

cor-rec-tive (kə-rĕk'tiv) adj. Tending or intended to correct. — n. An agent that corrects. —cor-rec'tive-ly adv.

Cor-reg-gio (kə-rĕj'ō, -ĕ-ō', kô-rĕd'jō), Antonio Allegri da. 1494-1534.

Italian High Renaissance painter known for his use of chiaroscuro. Among his works are devotional pictures, including Holy Night, and frescoes, such as those in the convent of San Paolo in Parma (1518).

Cor-reg-i-dor (kə-rĕg'i-dôr', -dôr', kôr-rĕ'hĕ-thôr') An island of the northern Philippines at the entrance to Manila Bay. Despite a heroic defense, Filipino and U.S. troops were forced to surrender the fortified island to Japan in May 1942. U.S. paratroopers recaptured the island in March 1945.

correl. abbr. Correlative.

cor-re-late (kôr'ə-lāt', kôr'-) v. cor-re-lat-ed, cor-re-lat-ing, cor-re-lates. — v. tr. 1. To put or bring into causal, complementary, parallel, or reciprocal relation. 2. To establish or demonstrate as having a correlation: correlated drug abuse and crime. — v. intr. To be related by a correlation. — adj. (-līt, -lāt') Related by a correlation, especially having corresponding characteristics. — n. (-līt, -lāt') Either of two correlate entities; a correlative. [Back-formation from CORRELATION.]

cor-re-la-tion (kôr'ə-lā'shən, kôr'-) n. 1. A causal, complementary, parallel, or reciprocal relationship, especially a structural, functional, or qualitative correspondence between two comparable entities: a correlation between drug abuse and crime. 2. Statistics. The simultaneous change in value of two numerically valued random variables: the positive correlation between cigarette smoking and the incidence of lung cancer; the negative correlation between age and normal vision. 3. An act of correlating or the condition of being correlated. [Medieval Latin correlātiō, correlātiōn- : Latin com-, com- + Latin relātiō, relation, report (from relātus, past participle of referre, to carry back); see RELATE.] —cor're-la'tion-al adj.

correlation coefficient (kôr'ə-lā'shən kō'ə-fīsh'ənt) n. A measure of the interdependence of two random variables that ranges in value from -1 to +1, indicating perfect negative correlation at -1, absence of correlation at zero, and perfect positive correlation at +1. Also called coefficient of correlation cor-rel-a-tive (kə-rĕl'ə-tiv) adj. Abbr. correl. 1. Related; corresponding.

2. Grammar. Indicating a reciprocal or complementary relationship: a correlative conjunction. — n. Abbr. cor-rel. 1. Either of two correlative entities; a correlate.

2. Grammar. A correlative word or expression. — cor-rel/a-tive-ly adv.

cor-re-pond (kôr'î-spönd', kôr'-) v. intr. cor-re-pond-ed, cor-re-pond-ing, cor-re-ponds. 1. To be in agreement, harmony, or conformity. 2. To be similar or equivalent in character, quantity, origin, structure, or function: English navel corresponds to Greek omphalos. See Synonyms at agree.

3. To communicate by letter, usually over a period of time. [French correspondre, from Medieval Latin correspondere: Latin com-, com- + respondere, to respond; see RESPOND.]

cor-re-spon-dence (kôr'î-spön'dəns, kôr'-) n. Abbr. cor., corr. 1. The act, fact, or state of agreeing or conforming. 2. Similarity or analogy.

3. a. Communication by the exchange of letters. b. The letters written or received. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or dealing with correspondence: a correspondence secretary. 2. Of, relating to, or constituting instruction by mail: correspondence courses in French and mathematics.

correspondence principle (kôr'î-spön'dəns prĭn'sə-pəl) n. The principle that predictions of quantum theory approach those of classical physics in the limit of large quantum numbers.

correspondence school (kôr'î-spön'dəns skōl) n. A school that offers instruction by mail, sending lessons and examinations to a student.

cor-re-spon-den-cy (kôr'î-spön'dən-sē, kôr'-) n. pl. cor-re-spon-den-cies. Correspondence.

cor-re-spon-dent (kôr'î-spön'dənt, kôr'-) n. Abbr. cor., corr. 1. One who communicates by means of letters. 2. One employed by the print or broadcast media to supply news stories or articles: a foreign correspondent. 3. One that has regular business dealings with another, especially at a distance. 4. Something that corresponds; a correlative. — adj. Corresponding. — cor're-spon'dent-ly adv.

cor-re-spond-ing (kôr'î-spön'dĭng, kôr'-) adj. Abbr. cor. 1. Having the same or nearly the same relationship. 2. Accompanying another: a high corporate position and its corresponding problems. 3. a. Having been assigned the responsibility of written communications: a corresponding secretary. b. Participating at a distance from the rest of a group: a corresponding member of the bar association.

— cor're-spond'ing-ly adv.

cor-re-spon-sive (kôr'î-spön'sĭv, kôr'-) adj. Jointly responsive.

— cor're-spon'sive-ly adv.

cor-ri-da (kô-rē'də, -thä) n. A bullfight. [Spanish, from past participle of correr, to run, from Latin currere. See kers- in Appendix.]

cor-ri-dor (kôr'î-dər, -dôr', kôr'-) n. 1. A narrow hallway, passageway, or gallery, often with rooms or apartments opening onto it. 2. a. A tract of land forming a passageway, such as one that allows an inland country access to the sea through another country. b. A restricted tract of land for the passage of trains. c. Restricted airspace for the passage of aircraft. d. The restricted path followed by a spacecraft on a particular mission. 3. A thickly populated strip of land connecting two or more urban areas: the Boston-Washington corridor. —idiom. corridors of power. A place in which powerful leaders work and rule. [French, from Italian corridore, from correre, to run, from Latin currere. See kers- in Appendix.]

cor·rie (kôr'ē, kôr'ē) n. A round hollow in a hillside; a cirque. [Scottish Gaelic coire, hollow, cauldron, from Old Irish, cauldron, whirlpool.]

Cor·ri·en·tes (kôr'ē-ĕn'tēs) A city of northeast Argentina on the Paraná River and the Paraguay border. It was founded in 1588. Population, 180,612.

Cor·ri·gan (kôr'ĭ-gən, kôr'-), Mairead. Born 1944. Irish peace activist. She shared the 1976 Nobel Peace Prize for work in Northern Ireland's peace movement.

cor·ri·gen·dum (kôr'ə-jĕn'dəm, kôr'-) n. pl. cor·ri·gen·da (-də). 1. An error to be corrected, especially a printer's error. 2. corrigenda. A list of errors in a book along with their corrections. [Latin, neuter gerundive of corrigerere, to correct. See CORRECT.] cor·ri·gi·ble (kôr'ĭ-jə-bəl, kôr'-) adj. Capable of being corrected, reformed, or improved. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin corrīgibilis, from Latin corrigerere, to correct. See CORRECT.] —cor'ri-gi-bil'i-ty n. —cor'ri-gi-bly adv.

cor·ri·val (kə-rĭ'vəl, kō-) n. A rival or an opponent. [French, from Latin corrĭvālis: com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + rĭvālis, rival; see RIVAL.] —cor·ri·val adj. —cor·ri·val·ry (-rē) n.

cor·rob·o·rant (kə-rōb'ər-ənt) adj. Archaic. Producing or stimulating physical vigor. Used of a medicine.

cor·rob·o·rate (kə-rōb'ə-rāt') *v. tr. cor·rob·o·rat·ed, cor·rob·o·rat·ing, cor·rob·o·rates. To strengthen or support with other evidence; make more certain. See Synonyms at confirm. [Latin corrōborāre, corrōborāt-: com-, com- + rōborāre, to strengthen (from rōbur, rōbor-, strength); see reudh- in Appendix.] —cor·rob'o-ra'tion n. —cor·rob'o-ra'tive (-ə-rā'tĭv, -ər-ə-tĭv) adj. —cor·rob'o-ra'tor n. —cor·rob'o-ra-to'ry (-ər-ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) *adj.

cor·rob·o·ree (kə-rōb'ə-rē) n. 1. An Australian aboriginal dance festival held at night to celebrate tribal victories or other events. 2. Australian. a. A large, noisy celebration. b. A great tumult; a disturbance. [From Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) garaabara.] cor·rode (kə-rōd') v. cor·rod·ed, cor·rod·ing, cor·rodes. — v. tr. 1. To destroy a metal or alloy gradually, especially by oxidation or chemical action: acid corroding metal. 2. To impair steadily; deteriorate: "Doubt and mistrust could creep into our lives, corroding personal and professional relationships" (Philip Taubman). — v. intr. To be eaten or worn away. [Middle English corroden, from Latin corrōdere, to gnaw away : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + rōdere, to gnaw; see rēd- in Appendix.] — cor-rod'i-ble, cor-ro'si-ble (-rō'sə-bəl) adj.

cor-ro-sion (kə-rō'zhən) n. 1. a. The act or process of corroding. b. The condition produced by corroding. 2. A substance, such as rust, formed by corroding. [Middle English corrosioun, corrosion of tissue, from Old French corrosion, from Medieval Latin corrōsiō, corrōsiōn-, the act of gnawing, from Latin corrōsus, past participle of corrōdere, to gnaw away. See CORRODE.]

cor-ro-sive (kə-rō'siv, -zīv) adj. 1. Having the capability or tendency to cause corrosion: a corrosive acid. 2. Gradually destructive; steadily harmful: corrosive anxiety; corrosive increases in prices; a corrosive narcotics trade. 3. Spitefully sarcastic: corrosive criticism; corrosive wit. — n. A substance having the capability or tendency to cause corrosion. — cor-ro'sive-ly adv. — cor-ro'sive-ness n.

corrosive sublimate (kə-rō'siv sūb'lə-māt') n. See mercuric chloride.

cor-ru-gate (kôr'ə-gāt', kôr'-) v. cor-ru-gat-ed, cor-ru-gat-ing, cor-ru-gates. — v. tr. To shape into folds or parallel and alternating ridges and grooves. — v. intr. To become shaped into such folds or ridges and grooves: “Now the immense ocean... sensed the change. Its surface rippled and corrugated where sweeping cloud shadows touched it” (John Updike). [Latin corrūgāre, corrūgāt-, to wrinkle up : com-, com- + rūgāre, to wrinkle (from rūga, wrinkle).] — cor'ru-gate', cor'ru-gat'ed (-gā'tid) adj.

corrugated iron (kôr'ə-gā'tid ī'ərn) n. A structural sheet iron, usually galvanized, shaped in parallel furrows and ridges for rigidity.

cor-ru-ga-tion (kôr'ə-gā'shən, kôr'-) n. 1. a. The act or process of corrugating. b. The state of being corrugated. 2. A groove or ridge on a corrugated surface.

cor-rupt (kə-rŭpt') adj. 1. Marked by immorality and perversion; depraved. 2. Venal; dishonest: a corrupt mayor. 3. Containing errors or alterations, as a text: a corrupt translation. 4. Archaic. Tainted; putrid. — v. cor-rupt-ed, cor-rupt-ing, cor-rupts. — v. tr. 1. To destroy or subvert the honesty or integrity of. 2. To ruin morally; pervert. 3. To taint; contaminate. 4. To cause to become rotten; spoil. 5. To change the original form of (a text, for example). — v. intr. To become corrupt. [Middle English, from Latin corruptus, past participle of corrumpere, to destroy : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + rumpere, to break; see reup- in Appendix.] — cor-rupt'er, cor-rupt'or n. — cor-rupt'ive adj. — cor-rupt'ly adv. — cor-rupt'ness n.

SYNONYMS: corrupt, debase, debauch, deprave, pervert, vitiate. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to ruin utterly in character or quality”: was corrupted by limitless power; debased himself by pleading with the captors; a youth debauched by drugs and drink; indulgence that depraves the moral fiber; perverted her talent by putting it to evil purposes; a proof vitiated by a serious omission.

cor-rupt-i-ble (kə-rŭp'tə-bəl) adj. Capable of being corrupted: corruptible judges. —cor-rupt'i-bil'i-ty, cor-rupt'i-ble-ness n. —cor-rupt'i-bly adv.

cor-ruption (kə-rŭp'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of corrupting. b. The state of being corrupt. 2. Decay; rot. 3. Archaic. Something that corrupts.

cor-ruption-ist (kə-rŭp'shə-nĭst) n. One who defends or practices corruption, particularly in politics.

cor-sage (kôr-săzh', -sāj') n. 1. A small bouquet of flowers worn by a woman at the shoulder or waist or on the wrist. 2. The bodice or waist of a dress. [Middle English, torso, from Old French, from cors, body, from Latin corpus. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

cor-sair (kôr'sâr') n. 1. A pirate, especially along the Barbary Coast. 2. A swift pirate ship, often operating with official sanction. [French corsaire, from Old Provençal corsari, from Old Italian corsaro, from Medieval Latin cursārius, from cursus, plunder, from Latin, run, course. See COURSE.]

corse (kôrs) n. Archaic. A corpse. [Middle English cors, from Old French, from Latin corpus. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

cor-se-let (kôr'slĭt) n. 1. Also cors-let. Body armor, especially a breastplate. 2. Also corse-lette (kôr'sə-lĕt'). An undergarment that is a combination of a light corset and a brassiere. [French, diminutive of Old French cors, body. See CORSET.]

cor-set (kôr'sĭt) n. 1. A close-fitting undergarment, often reinforced by stays, worn to support and shape the waistline, hips, and breasts. 2. A medieval outer garment, especially a laced jacket or bodice. — v. tr. cor-set-ed, cor-set-ing, cor-sets. To enclose in or as if in a corset. [Middle English, bodice, from Old French, diminutive of cors, body, from Latin corpus. See k^wrep- in Appendix.]

Cor-si-ca (kôr'sĭ-kə) An Island of France in the Mediterranean Sea north of Sardinia. Napoleon Bonaparte was born on the island, which was ceded to France by Genoa in 1768. —Cor'si-can adj. & n.

Cor-si-ca-na (kôr'sĭ-kăn'ə) A city of northeast Texas south-southeast of Dallas. It is in an oil-producing region. Population, 22,911.

cors-let (kôr'slĭt) n. Variant of corselet (n., sense 1).

cor-tege also cor-tège (kôr-tĕzh') n. 1. A train of attendants, as of a distinguished person; a retinue. 2. a. A ceremonial procession. b. A funeral procession. [French cortège, from Old Italian corteggio, from corteggiare, to pay honor, from corte, court, from Latin cohors, cohort-, throng. See gher¹ in Appendix.]

Cor-tel-you (kôr'tl-yōō'), George Bruce. 1862-1940. American public official who served as the first secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor (1903-1904).

Cor-tés (kôr-těz', -tēs'), Hernando or Hernán. 1485-1547. Spanish explorer and conquistador who conquered Aztec Mexico for Spain.

cor-tex (kôr'těks') n. pl. cor-ti-ces (-tĭ-sēz') or cor-tex-es. 1. Anatomy.

a. The outer layer of an internal organ or body structure, as of the kidney or adrenal gland. b. The outer layer of gray matter that covers the surface of the cerebral hemisphere. 2. Botany. The region of tissue in a root or stem lying between the epidermis and the vascular tissue. 3. An external layer, such as bark or rind. [Latin, bark. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

cortic- pref. Variant of cortico-.

cor-ti-cal (kôr'tĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, derived from, or consisting of cortex. 2. Of, relating to, associated with, or depending on the cerebral cortex.

—cor'ti-cal-ly adv.

cor-ti-cate (kôr'tĭ-kĭt, -kāt') also cor-ti-cat-ed (-kāt'id) adj. Having a cortex or a similar specialized outer layer.

cor-ti-ces (kôr'tĭ-sēz') n. A plural of cortex.

cortico- or cortic- pref. Cortex: corticotropin. [From Latin cortex, cortic-, bark, rind. See CORTEX.]

cor-ti-coid (kôr'tĭ-koid') n. A corticosteroid.

cor-tic-o-lous (kôr-tĭk'ə-ləs) adj. Growing or living on tree bark, as some lichens and mosses. [CORTI(CO)- + -COLOUS.]

cor-ti-co-spi-nal (kôr'tĭ-kō-spĭ'nəl) adj. Of or relating to the cerebral cortex and the spinal cord.

cor-ti-co-ste-roid (kôr'tĭ-kō-stĭr'oid', -stēr'-) n. Any of the steroid hormones produced by the adrenal cortex or their synthetic equivalents, such as cortisol and aldosterone.

cor-ti-cos-ter-one (kôr'tĭ-kōs'tə-rōn') n. A corticosteroid, C₂₁H₃₀O₄, that functions in the metabolism of carbohydrates and proteins. [CORTICO- + STER(OL) + -ONE.]

cor-ti-co-tro-pin (kôr'tĭ-kō-trō'pən) also cor-ti-co-tro-phin (-trō'fĭn) n. See ACTH. [CORTICO- + -TROP(IC) + -IN.]

cor-tin (kôr'tn) n. An adrenal cortex extract that contains a mixture of hormones including cortisone. [CORT(EX) + -IN.]

cor-ti-sol (kôr'tĭ-sōl', -zōl', -sōl', -zōl') n. See hydrocortisone (n., sense 1). [CORTIS(ONE) + -OL¹.]

cor-ti-sone (kôr'tĭ-sōn', -zōn') n. A naturally occurring corticosteroid, C₂₁H₂₈O₅, that functions primarily in carbohydrate metabolism and is used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, adrenal insufficiency, certain allergies, and gout. [Alteration of CORTICOSTERONE.]

Cort-land¹ (kôrt'lənd) A city of central New York south of Syracuse. It was settled in 1792. Population, 19,801.

Cort-land² (kôrt'lænd) n. A large, red-skinned cultivated variety of apple.

[After Cortland, a county of central New York.]

co-run-dum (kə-rŭn'dəm) n. An extremely hard mineral, aluminum oxide, Al₂O₃, sometimes containing iron, magnesia, or silica, that occurs in gem varieties such as ruby and sapphire and in a common black, brown, or blue form used chiefly in abrasives. [Tamil kuruntam.]

co-rus-cant (kə-rŭs'kənt) adj. Giving forth flashes of light; glittering.

cor-us-cate (kôr'ə-skāt', kôr'-) v. intr. cor-us-cat-ed, cor-us-cat-ing, cor-us-cates. 1. To give forth flashes of light; sparkle and glitter: diamonds coruscating in the candlelight. 2. To exhibit sparkling virtuosity: a flutist whose music coruscated throughout the concert hall. [Latin coruscāre, coruscāt-, to flash.]

—cor'us-ca'tion n.

Cor-val-lis (kôr-văl'is) A city of western Oregon on the Willamette River southwest of Salem. It is the seat of Oregon State University (established 1858).

Population, 44,757.

cor-vée (kôr-vā', kôr'vā') n. 1. Labor exacted by a local authority for little or no pay or instead of taxes and used especially in the maintenance of roads. 2. A day of unpaid work required of a vassal by his feudal lord. [French corvée, and Middle English corve both from Old French corovee, from Medieval Latin (opera) corrogāta, (work) requested, from Latin corrogāre, to summon together : com-, com- + rogāre, to ask; see reg- in Appendix.]

corves (kôrvz) n. Plural of corf.

cor-vette (kôr-vět') n. 1. A fast, lightly armed warship, smaller than a destroyer, often armed for antisubmarine operations. 2. An obsolete sailing warship, smaller than a frigate, usually armed with one tier of guns. [French, a kind of warship, probably from Middle Dutch corf, basket, small ship. See CORF.]

cor-vi-na (kôr-vē'nə) n. Variant of corbina.

cor-vine (kôr'vīn', -vīn) adj. Of, resembling, or characteristic of crows. [Latin corvīnus, from corvus, raven.]

Cor-vus (kôr'vəs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Crater and Virgo. Also called *Crow*² [Latin corvus, raven.]

Cor-win (kôr'wīn), Edward Samuel. 1878-1963. American political scientist and educator known for his works on constitutional law, including Court over Constitution (1938).

Cor-y-bant (kôr'ə-bănt', kôr'-) n. pl. Cor-y-bants or Cor-y-ban-tes (-bănt'tēz'). Greek Mythology. A priest of the Phrygian goddess Cybele whose rites were celebrated with music and ecstatic dances. —Cor'y-ban'tic adj.

co-ryd-a-lis (kə-rīd'l-īs) n. Any of various herbs of the genus Corydalis native chiefly to northern temperate regions and having finely divided leaves and spurred, often yellow or pinkish flowers. [New Latin Corydalis, genus name, from Greek korudallis, crested lark (from the shape of the flowers), from korudos. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

cor·ymb (kôr'imb, -im, kôr'-) n. Botany. A usually flat-topped flower cluster in which the individual flower stalks grow upward from various points of the main stem to approximately the same height. [French corymbe, from Latin corymbus, bunch of flowers, from Greek korumbos, head. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

—cor'ym·bose' (-im-bôs'), co·rym'bous (kə-rīm'bəs) adj.

—cor'ym·bose'ly adv.

co·ry·ne·bac·te·ri·um (kôr'ə-nē-bāk-tîr'ē-əm, kə-rin'ə-) n. Any of various gram-positive, rod-shaped bacteria of the genus Corynebacterium, which includes many animal and plant pathogens, such as the causative agent of diphtheria.

[New Latin Corynebacterium, genus name : Greek korunē, club; see ker¹ in Appendix + BACTERIUM.]

co·ryn·e·form (kə-rin'ə-fôrm') adj. Having the shape of a corynebacterium.

[CORYNE(BACTERIUM) + -FORM.]

cor·y·phae·us (kôr'ə-fē'əs, kôr'-) n. pl. cor·y·phae·i (-fē'ī'). 1. The leader of a Greek chorus. 2. A leader or spokesperson. [Latin, leader, from Greek koruphaios, from koruphē, head. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

cor·y·phée (kôr'ə-fā', kôr'-) n. A ballet dancer who ranks above a member of the corps de ballet and below a soloist and who performs in small ensembles.

[French, from Latin coryphaeus, leader. See CORYPHAEUS.]

co·ry·za (kə-rī'zə) n. See cold (n., sense 3). [Late Latin corÿza, from Greek koruza, catarrh.]

cos¹ (kôs, kôs) n. See romaine. [After Cos (Kos).]

cos² abbr. Cosine.

Cos (kôs, kôs) See Kos.

Co·sa Nos·tra (kō'sə nō'strə) n. A crime syndicate active throughout the United States, hierarchic in structure, made up of locally independent families, and believed to have an important relationship with the Sicilian Mafia. [Italian, our concern : cosa, thing, affair + nostra, feminine of nostro, our.]

co·se·cant (kō-sē'kănt', -kənt) n. Abbr. csc, cosec Mathematics. 1. The reciprocal of the sine of an angle in a right triangle. 2. The secant of the complement of a directed angle or arc.

co·seis·mal (kō-sīz'məl, -sīs'-) also co·seis·mic (-mīk) adj. Relating to or designating a line connecting the points on a map that indicate the places simultaneously affected by an earthquake shock. — n. A coseismal line.

Co·sen·za (kō-zēn'sə, kō-zēn'tsä) A city of southern Italy southeast of Naples. It has frequently suffered severe earthquake damage. Population, 105,806.

Cos·grave (kōz'grāv'), William Thomas. 1880-1965. Irish Sinn Fein leader and first president of the executive council of the Irish Free State (1922-1932).

cosh (kōsh) Chiefly British. n. A weighted weapon similar to a blackjack. — v. tr. coshed, cosh-ing, cosh-es. To attack or hit with or as if with this weapon. [Perhaps from Romany kosh, stick.]

co-sign (kō-sīn') v. tr. co-signed, co-sign-ing, co-signs. 1. To sign (a document) jointly. 2. To endorse (another's signature), as for a loan. —co-sign'er n.

co-sig-na-to-ry (kō-sīg'nə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. Signed jointly. — n. pl.

co-sig-na-to-ries. One who cosigns.

co-sine (kō'sīn') n. Abbr. cos 1. In a right triangle, the ratio of the length of the side adjacent to an acute angle to the length of the hypotenuse. 2. The abscissa at the endpoint of an arc of a unit circle centered at the origin of a Cartesian coordinate system, the arc being of length x and measured counterclockwise from the point (1, 0) if x is positive or clockwise if x is negative.

cos lettuce (kōs lēt'əs) n. See romaine.

cosm- pref. Variant of cosmo-.

cos-met-ic (kōz-mēt'ik) n. 1. A preparation, such as powder or a skin cream, designed to beautify the body by direct application. 2. Something superficial that is used to cover a deficit or defect. — adj. 1. Serving to beautify the body, especially the face and hair. 2. Serving to modify or improve the appearance of a physical feature, defect, or irregularity: cosmetic surgery. 3. a. Decorative rather than functional: cosmetic fenders on cars. b. Lacking depth or significance; superficial: made a few cosmetic changes when she took over the company. [French cosmétique, from Greek kosmētikos, skilled in arranging, from kosmētos, well-ordered, from kosmein, to arrange, from kosmos, order.] —cos-met'i-cal-ly adv.

cos-me-ti-cian (kōz'mī-tīsh'ən) n. One whose occupation is manufacturing, selling, or applying cosmetics.

cos-met-i-cize (kōz-mēt'ī-sīz') v. tr. cos-met-i-cized, cos-met-i-ciz-ing, cos-met-i-ciz-es. To make superficially attractive or acceptable: "cosmeticized packages of song and dance for easy audience consumption" (Saturday Review).

cos-me-tol-o-gy (kōz'mī-tōl'ə-jē) n. The study or art of cosmetics and their use. [French cosmétologie: cosmétique, cosmetic; see COSMETIC + -logie, -logy.] —cos'me-tol'o-gist n.

cos-mic (kōz'mīk) also cos-mi-cal (-mī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the universe, especially as distinct from Earth. 2. Infinitely or inconceivably extended; vast: "a coming together of heads of government to take up the cosmic business of nations" (Meg Greenfield). [Greek kosmikos, from kosmos, universe.] —cos'mi-cal-ly adv.

cosmic dust (kōz'mīk dūst) n. Clouds of fine solid particles of matter in interstellar space.

cosmic noise (kōz'mīk noiz) n. Radio-frequency radiation originating outside Earth's atmosphere, such as that originating from sunspots.

cosmic ray (kۆz'mĩk rā) n. A stream of ionizing radiation of extraterrestrial origin, consisting chiefly of protons, alpha particles, and other atomic nuclei but including some high-energy electrons, that enters the atmosphere, collides with atomic nuclei, and produces secondary radiation, principally pions, muons, electrons, and gamma rays.

cosmo- or cosm- pref. Universe; world: cosmology. [From Greek kosmos, order, universe.]

cos-mo-chem-is-try (kۆz'mō-kēm'ĩ-strē) n. The science of the chemical composition of the universe. —cos'mo-chem'ĩ-cal (-ĩ-kəl) adj.

cos-mo-drome (kۆz'mā-drōm') n. A launch site for spacecraft in the Soviet Union. [Russian kosmodrom, blend of kosmonaut, cosmonaut; see COSMONAUT, -drom, arena (from Latin -dromus); see -DROME.]

cos-mo-gen-ic (kۆz'mā-jěn'ĩk) adj. Produced by cosmic rays. [COSM(IC RAY) + -GENIC.]

cos-mog-o-ny (kۆz-mөг'ə-nē) n. pl. cos-mog-o-nies. 1. The astrophysical study of the origin and evolution of the universe. 2. A specific theory or model of the origin and evolution of the universe. —cos'mo-gon'ĩc (-mā-gۆn'ĩk), cos'mo-gon'ĩ-cal adj. —cos'mo-gon'ĩ-cal-ly adv. —cos-mog'o-nist n.

cos-mog-ra-phy (kۆz-mөг'rā-fē) n. pl. cos-mog-ra-phies. 1. The study of the visible universe that includes geography and astronomy. 2. A general description or depiction of the world or universe: “a full-blown cosmography in which Earth is ‘the garbage dump of the universe’” (Mark Muro). —cos-mog'ra-pher n. —cos'mo-graph'ĩc (-mā-grāf'ĩk), cos'mo-graph'ĩ-cal adj. —cos'mo-graph'ĩ-cal-ly adv.

Cos-mo-line (kۆz'mā-lēn') A trademark used for a rust and corrosion preventive compound of petrolatum.

cos-mol-o-gy (kۆz-mۆl'ə-jē) n. pl. cos-mol-o-gies. 1. The study of the physical universe considered as a totality of phenomena in time and space. 2. a. The astrophysical study of the history, structure, and constituent dynamics of the universe. b. A specific theory or model of this structure and these dynamics. —cos'mo-log'ĩc (-mā-lۆj'ĩk), cos'mo-log'ĩ-cal adj. —cos'mo-log'ĩ-cal-ly adv. —cos-mol'o-gist n.

cos-mo-naut (kۆz'mā-nōt') n. A Soviet astronaut. [Russian kosmonaut; Greek kosmos, universe + Greek nautēs, sailor; see nāu- in Appendix.]

cos-mop-o-lis (kۆz-mۆp'ə-lĩs) n. A large city inhabited by people from many different countries. [COSMO- + Greek polis, city; see pelə-³ in Appendix.]

cos-mo-pol-i-tan (kۆz'mā-pۆl'ĩ-tn) adj. 1. Pertinent or common to the whole world: an issue of cosmopolitan import. 2. Having constituent elements from all over the world or from many different parts of the world: the ancient and cosmopolitan societies of Syria and Egypt. 3. So sophisticated as to be at home in all parts of the world or conversant with many spheres of interest: a cosmopoli- tan traveler. 4. Ecology. Growing or occurring in many parts of the world; widely distributed. — n. A cosmopolitan person or organism; a cosmopolite.

—cos'mo-pol'i-tan-ism n.

cos-mop-o-lite (kۆz-mۆp'ә-lit') n. 1. A cosmopolitan person: a true cosmopolite—a Renaissance man. 2. Ecology. An organism found in most parts of the world. 3. See painted lady. [Greek kosmopolitēs : kosmos, world + politēs, citizen (from polis, city); see pelə⁻³ in Appendix.] —cos-mop'o-lit'ism (-li-tiz'әm, -li-tiz'-) n.

cos-mos (kۆz'mәs, -mۆs', -mۆs') n. 1. The universe regarded as an orderly, harmonious whole. 2. An ordered, harmonious whole. 3. Harmony and order as distinct from chaos. 4. pl. cos-mos-es or cosmos. Any of various mostly Mexican herbs of the genus Cosmos in the composite family, having radiate flower heads of variously colored flowers and opposite pinnate leaves, especially C. bipinnatus and C. sulphureus, widely cultivated as garden annuals. [Greek kosmos.]

co-spon-sor (kō-spۆn'sәr) v. tr. co-spon-sored, co-spon-sor-ing, co-spon-sors. To function in the capacity of a joint sponsor of: corporations that cosponsored a marathon. — n. A joint sponsor: two senators who were cosponsors of new legislation. —co-spon'sor-ship' n.

Cos-sack (kۆs'әk) n. A member of a people of southern European Russia and adjacent parts of Asia, noted as cavalymen especially during czarist times. [Russian kazak, and Ukrainian kozak both from South Turkic qazaq, adventurer. See KAZAKH.] —Cos'sack' adj.

cos-set (kۆs'it) v. tr. cos-set-ed, cos-set-ing, cos-sets. To pamper. — n. A pet, especially a pet lamb. [Possibly from Anglo-Norman coscet, pet lamb, from Middle English cotsete, cottage-dweller, from Old English cotsāta : cot, cottage + sāta, -sāete, inhabitant; see sed- in Appendix.]

cost (kۆst) n. 1. An amount paid or required in payment for a purchase; a price. 2. The expenditure of something, such as time or labor, necessary for the attainment of a goal. See Synonyms at price. 3. costs. Law. The charges fixed for litigation, often payable by the losing party. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: cost consciousness; cost overruns. — v. cost, cost-ing, costs. — v. intr. To require a specified payment, expenditure, effort, or loss: It costs more to live in the city. — v. tr. 1. To have as a price. 2. To cause to lose, suffer, or sacrifice: Participating in the strike cost me my job. 3. past tense and past participle costed. To estimate or determine the cost of: The accountants costed out our expenses. [Middle English, from Old French, from coster, to cost, from Latin cōnstāre, to be fixed, cost. See CONSTANT.] —cost/less adj. —cost/less-ness n.

cos-ta (kɔs'tə) n. pl. cos-tae (-tē). Biology. A rib or a riblike part, such as the midrib of a leaf or a thickened anterior vein or margin of an insect's wing. [Latin. See kost- in Appendix.] —cos'tal adj.

Cos-ta Bra-va (kɔs'tə brä'və, kô'stə, kô'-, kôs'tä brä'vä) The northeast coast of Spain, on the Mediterranean Sea from Barcelona to the French border. It has been a popular tourist area since the end of World War II.

Cos-ta Ca-bral (kôs'tə kə-bräl', kôsh'tə kə-brôl'), Antônio Bernardo da. 1803-1889. Portuguese politician who served as prime minister (1842-1846) until he was overthrown by a popular uprising. He returned to power in 1849 but was deposed in 1851.

cost accountant (kôst ə-koun'tənt) n. An accountant who keeps records of the costs of production and distribution. —cost accounting n.

Cos-ta del Sol (kɔs'tə dəl sɔl', kô'stə, kô'stä thəl sɔl') The southern coast of Spain northeast of Gibraltar. It is a popular resort and retirement area.

cos-tae (kɔs'tē) n. Biology. Plural of costa.

Cos-ta Me-sa (kɔs'tə mäsə, kô'stə) A city of southern California southwest of Santa Ana. It has an electronics industry. Population, 96,357.

co-star also co-star (kô'stär') n. A starring actor or actress given equal status with another or others in a play or film. — v. tr. intr. co-starred, co-star-ring, co-stars. To act or present as a costar.

cos-tard (kɔs'tərd) n. 1. An English variety of large cooking apple. 2. Archaic. The human head. [Middle English, from Old North French, possibly from coste, rib (from its ribbed appearance), from Latin costa. See kost- in Appendix.]

Cos-ta Ri-ca (kɔs'tə rē'kə, kô'stə, kô'-, kô'stä rē'kä) Abbr. C.R. A country of Central America between Panama and Nicaragua. Spanish conquest of the area began in 1563, and the country achieved independence in 1821. San José is the capital and the largest city. Population, 2,534,000. —Cos'ta Ri'can (rē'kən) adj. & n.

cos-tate (kɔs'tət, kô'stät') adj. Having a costa or costae; ribbed.

cost-ef-fec-tive (kôst'ĭ-fĕk'tĭv) adj. Economical in terms of the goods or services received for the money spent. —cost'-ef-fec'tive-ly adv. —cost'-ef-fec'tive-ness n.

Cos-tel-lo (kɔs-tĕl'ō), John Aloysius. 1891-1976. Irish prime minister (1948-1951 and 1954-1957) who took Ireland out of the Commonwealth of Nations (1949).

Cos-tel-lo (kɔs-tĕl'ō), Lou. 1908-1959. American comedian. As part of the Abbott and Costello comedy team he made a number of films, including Buck Privates (1941) and Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein (1948).

cos-ter-mon-ger (kɔs'tər-müŋ'gær, -mōŋg'-) n. Chiefly British. One who sells fruit, vegetables, fish, or other goods from a cart, barrow, or stand in the streets. [Obsolete costard-monger : COSTARD + MONGER.]

cos-tive (kɔs'tiv) adj. 1. a. Suffering from constipation. b. Causing constipation. 2. Slow; sluggish. 3. Stingy. [Middle English costif, from Old French costeve, past participle of costever, to constipate, from Latin cōnstipāre. See CONSTIPATE.] —cos'tive-ly adv. —cos'tive-ness n.

cost-ly (kɔst'lē) adj. cost-li-er, cost-li-est. 1. Of high price or value; expensive: costly jewelry. 2. Entailing loss or sacrifice: a costly war. —cost/li-ness n.

SYNONYMS: costly, expensive, dear, valuable, precious, invaluable, priceless. These adjectives apply to what brings a high price or is of great value. Costly, expensive, and dear refer principally to the cost entailed in acquiring something, costly especially implying high quality or rarity of the purchase: a costly Chinese porcelain jar; expensive silk underwear. “Pictures ought not to be too dear” (John Ruskin). The terms also apply figuratively to what occasions loss or sacrifice: “Morality is a private and costly luxury” (Henry Adams). “Avoid shame, but do not seek glory,—nothing so expensive as glory” (Sydney Smith). “Wisdom is never dear, provided the article be genuine” (Horace Greeley). Valuable describes what has a high market value (a valuable painting), but it also applies to immaterial qualities such as benefit, importance, or utility: “The shrewd guess, the fertile hypothesis, the courageous leap to a tentative conclusion—these are the most valuable coin of the thinker at work” (Jerome Bruner). Precious implies uniqueness and irreplaceability: Gold is a precious metal. Freedom is a precious heritage. Invaluable and priceless describe what is of inestimable worth: “A free government... is an invaluable blessing” (Alban Butler). “Although human life is priceless, we always act as if something had an even greater price than life.... But what is that something?” (Antoine de Saint-Exupéry).

cost-mar-y (kɔst'mâr'ē) n. pl. cost-mar-ies. A Eurasian perennial herb (Chrysanthemum balsamita) in the composite family, having aromatic foliage sometimes used for potpourri, tea, or flavoring. [Middle English costmarie : cost, costmary (from Old English, from Latin costum, from Greek kostos, from Sanskrit kuṣṭhaḥ) + marie, Mary, the mother of Jesus.]

cost of living (kɔst ũv lĩv'ing) n. 1. The average cost of the basic necessities of life, such as food, shelter, and clothing. 2. The cost of basic necessities as defined by an accepted standard. —cost'-of-liv'ing (kɔst'əv-lĩv'ing) adj.

cost-of-living adjustment (kɔst'əv-lĩv'ing ə-jüst'mənt) n. Abbr. COLA An adjustment made in wages that corresponds with a change in the cost of living.

cost-of-living index (kɔst'əv-lĩv'ing ɪn'dēks') n. See consumer price index.

cost-plus (kɔst'plʌs') n. The cost of production plus a fixed rate of profit. —cost'-plus' adj.

cost-push (kôst'pöösh') n. Inflation in which increased production costs, as from higher wages, tend to drive prices up.

cos-trel (kös'trəl) n. A flat, pear-shaped drinking vessel with loops for attachment to the belt of the user. [Middle English, from Old French costerel, possibly from costier, at the side, from coste, rib, from Latin costa. See kost- in Appendix.]

cos-tume (kös'toom', -tyōom') n. 1. A prevalent fashion of dress, including garments, accessories, and hairstyle. 2. a. A style of dress characteristic of a particular country, period, or people, often worn in a play or at a masquerade. b. An outfit or a disguise worn on Mardi Gras, Halloween, or similar occasions: Dressed up as a gigantic chicken, she won the prize for the best costume. 3. A set of clothes appropriate for a particular occasion or season. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a costume ball; a costume play. — v. tr. cos-tumed, cos-tum-ing, cos-tumes (kō-stōom', -styōom', kös'tōom', -tyōom'). 1. To put a costume on; dress. 2. To design or furnish costumes for. [French, from Italian, style, dress, from Latin cōnsuētūdō, custom. See CUSTOM.] cos-tum-er (kös'tōō'mər, -tyōō'-, kō-stōō'mər, -styōō'-) also cos-tum-i-er (kō-stōō'mē-ər, -styōō'-, kôs'tōom-yā') n. One that makes or supplies costumes, as for plays or masquerades.

co-sy (kō'zē) adj., v. & n. Variant of cozy.

cot¹ (köt) n. 1. A narrow bed, especially one made of canvas on a collapsible frame. 2. Chiefly British. A crib. [Hindi khāt, from Sanskrit khatvā, from Tamil kaṭṭu, to bind, tie.]

WORD HISTORY: People might assume that there is nothing particularly exotic about the history of the word cot. However, cot happens to be a good example of how words are borrowed from other cultures, becoming so firmly naturalized over time that they lose their émigré flavor. The British first encountered the object denoted by cot, a light frame strung with tapes or rope, in India, where their trading stations had been established as early as 1612. The word cot, first recorded in English in 1634, comes from khāt, the Hindi name for the contrivance. During subsequent years, cot has been used to denote other types of beds, including in British usage a crib.

cot² (köt) n. 1. A small house. 2. A protective covering or sheath. [Middle English, from Old English.]

co-tan-gent (kō-tän'jənt) n. Abbr. cot, ctn Mathematics. 1. The reciprocal of the tangent of an angle in a right triangle. 2. The tangent of the complement of a directed angle or arc. — co'tan-gen'tial (-jən'shəl) adj.

cot death (köt dēth) n. Chiefly British. Sudden infant death syndrome.

cote¹ (köt) n. A small shed or shelter for sheep or birds. [Middle English, from Old English.]

cote² (kōt) v. tr. cot·ed, cot·ing, cotes. Obsolete. To go around by the side of; skirt. [Probably from French côtoyer, to skirt, from côté, side, from Old French coste, rib. See COSTREL.]

Côte d'A·zur (kōt' də-zōōr', də-zūr') The Mediterranean coast of southeast France. It is known for its fashionable resorts.

co·ten·ant (kō-tĕn'ənt) n. One of two or more tenants sharing property.
—co·ten'an·cy n.

Co·ten·tin (kō-tān-tān') A peninsula of northwest France extending into the English Channel east of the Channel Islands. It was the scene of heavy fighting after the Allied invasion in June 1944.

co·ter·ie (kō'tə-rē, kō'tə-rē') n. A small, often select group of persons who associate with one another frequently. See Synonyms at circle. [French, from Old French, peasant association, from cotier, cottager, from cote*, cottage, possibly of Germanic origin.]

co·ter·mi·nous (kō-tūr'mə-nəs) adj. Variant of conterminous.

Côte Saint Luc (kōt' sānt lōōk', sənt, sǎn lük') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal. Population, 27,531.

coth abbr. Hyperbolic cotangent.

co·thur·nus (kō-thūr'nəs) n. pl. co·thur·ni (-nī'). 1. A buskin worn by actors of classical tragedy. 2. The ancient style of classical tragedy. [Latin, from Greek kothornos.]

co·tid·al (kō-tīd'l) adj. 1. Indicating coincidence of high tides or low tides. 2. Of or relating to a line that passes through each location on a coastal map where tides occur at the same time of day.

co·til·lion also co·til·lon (kō-tīl'yən, kə-) n. 1. A formal ball, especially one at which girls are presented to society. 2. a. A lively dance, originating in France in the 18th century, having varied, intricate patterns and steps. b. A quadrille. c. Music for these dances. [French cotillon, from Old French, petticoat, diminutive of cote, coat. See COAT.]

co·to·ne·as·ter (kə-tō'nē-ās'tər) n. Any of various erect or creeping shrubs of the genus Cotoneaster in the rose family, native to Eurasia, having white to pinkish flowers and tiny, red or black applelike fruits, and frequently cultivated for ornament. [New Latin Cotoneaster, genus name : Latin cotōneum, quince; see QUINCE + Latin -aster, partially resembling.]

Co·to·nou (kōt'n-ōō') A city of southern Benin on the Gulf of Guinea. The largest city in the country, it is a seaport and commercial center. Population, 215,000.

Co·to·pax·i (kō'tə-pāk'sē, kō'tô-pā'hē) An active volcano, 5,900.8 m (19,347 ft) high, in the Andes of central Ecuador. The symmetrical snowcapped cone is one of the highest volcanoes in the world.

cot·quean (köt'kwēn') n. Archaic. 1. A coarse or scolding woman. 2. A man who busies himself with domestic matters traditionally regarded as suitable only for women. [COT² + QUEAN.]

Cots·wold (köt'swōld') n. A sheep of a breed distinguished by its long wool, originally developed in the Cotswold Hills.

Cotswold Hills (köt'swōld' hīlz) A range of southwest England extending about 80 km (50 mi) northeast from Bristol and rising to approximately 329 m (1,080 ft).

cot·ta (köt'ə) n. pl. cot·tae (köt'ē) or cot·tas. A short surplice. [Medieval Latin, of Germanic origin.]

cot·tage (köt'ij) n. 1. A small, single-storied house, especially in the country. 2. A small summer house. [Middle English cotage, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin cotāgium, of Germanic origin.]

cottage cheese (köt'ij chēz) n. A soft, white cheese made of strained and seasoned curds of skim milk. Also called Dutch cheese, pot cheeseRegional., smear-case.

Cot·tage Grove (köt'ij grōv) A city of eastern Minnesota, a residential suburb of St. Paul. Population, 18,994.

cottage industry (köt'ij ɪn'də-strē) n. 1. A usually small-scale industry carried on at home or out of the home by family members using their own equipment. 2. A small, loosely organized, yet flourishing complex of activity or industry: “The study of Gandhi has become a virtual cottage industry in the last 30 years, producing schools, museums, foundations and more than 400 biographies” (Jean Strouse).

cot·tag·er (köt'ī-jər) n. One who resides in a cottage.

cottage tulip (köt'ij tōō'lip) n. A late-blooming type of garden tulip having long stems and egg-shaped, variously colored flowers.

Cott·bus also Kott·bus (köt'bəs, kôt'bōös') A city of east-central Germany near the Polish border. It developed as a market center in the late 12th century. Population, 120,723.

cot·ter (köt'ər) n. 1. A bolt, wedge, key, or pin inserted through a slot in order to hold parts together. 2. A cotter pin. [Origin unknown.]

cotter pin (köt'ər pɪn) n. A split cotter inserted through holes in two or more pieces and bent at the ends to fasten the pieces together.

Cot·ti·an Alps (köt'ē-ən əlps) A range of the Alps between northwest Italy and southeast France. It rises to 3,843.6 m (12,602 ft) at Mount Viso.

cot·ton (köt'n) n. 1. a. Any of various shrubby plants of the genus Gossypium, having showy flowers and grown for the soft, white, downy fibers surrounding oil-rich seeds. b. The fiber of any of these plants, used in making textiles and other products. c. Thread or cloth manufactured from the fiber of these plants. 2. The crop of these plants. 3. Any of various soft, downy substances produced by other plants, as on the seeds of a cottonwood. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: cotton shirts; cotton mills. — v. intr. cot-toned, cot-ton-ing, cot-tons. Informal. 1. To take a liking; attempt to be friendly: a dog that didn't cotton to strangers; an administration that will cotton up to the most repressive of regimes. 2. To come to understand. Often used with to or onto: “The German bosses... never cottoned to such changes” (N.R. Kleinfield). [Middle English cotoun, from Old French coton, from Old Italian cotone, from Arabic dialectal qoṭon, from Arabic quṭn.]

Cot-ton (kōt'n), Charles. 1630-1687. English poet and translator known for his poems on country life as well as his translation (1685) of Montaigne's essays.

Cot-ton (kōt'n), John. 1584-1652. English-born American cleric who was vicar of Saint Botolph's Church in England until he was summoned to court for his Puritanism. He fled to Boston, Massachusetts, where he became a civil and religious leader.

Cotton Belt (kōt'n bēlt) An agricultural region of the southeast United States extending through North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and Oklahoma and including small sections of Missouri, Kentucky, Florida, and Virginia. Originally dependent on the production of cotton, the region now has highly diversified agriculture.

cotton candy (kōt'n kăn'dē) n. A light, very sweet candy of threaded sugar, often tinted with food coloring and twirled onto a stick. Also called spun sugar cotton gin (kōt'n jĭn) n. A machine that separates the seeds, seed hulls, and other small objects from the fibers of cotton.

cotton grass (kōt'n grās) n. Any of various perennial grasslike plants of the genus Eriophorum native chiefly to wet places in northern temperate and cold regions and bearing at maturity one or more conspicuous tufts of cottony bristles.

cot-ton-mouth (kōt'n-mouth') n. See water moccasin (n., sense 1). [From the white interior of its mouth.]

cot-ton-pick-ing (kōt'n-pĭk'ĭng) adj. Informal. Used as an intensive: a cotton-picking fool; out of your cotton-picking mind.

cot-ton-seed (kōt'n-sēd') n. The seed of the cotton plant, the source of cottonseed oil.

cottonseed oil (kōt'n-sēd' oil) n. The usually pale yellow oil obtained from cottonseed, used in manufacturing, industry, and cooking.

cotton stainer (kōt'n stān'ər) n. Any of various small, flat, red and black bugs of the genus Dysdercus that pierce cotton bolls and stain the fibers.

cot-ton-tail (kōt'n-tāl') n. Any of several North American rabbits of the genus Sylvilagus, having grayish or brownish fur and a tail with a fluffy white underside. Also called wood rabbit cot·ton·weed (kõt'n-wēd') n. Any of various plants having cottony down, as some species of the genus Froelichia.

cot·ton·wood (kõt'n-wōōd') n. Any of several North American poplar trees, especially Populus deltoides, which has triangular leaves and a tuft of cottony hairs on the seeds.

Cot·ton·wood (kõt'n-wōōd') A river, about 225 km (140 mi) long, of southwest Minnesota flowing generally eastward to the Minnesota River.

cotton wool (kõt'n wōōl) n. Cotton in its natural or raw state.

cot·ton·y (kõt'n-ē) adj. 1. Of or resembling cotton; fluffy. 2. Covered with fibers resembling cotton; nappy.

co·tur·nix (kə-tûr'nîks) n. A small, stub-tailed Eurasian quail (Coturnix coturnix) having sandy, streaked plumage and commonly used in laboratory research. Also called Japanese quail [Latin, quail.]

Co·ty (kō-tē', kô-), René. 1882-1962. French politician and the last president (1953-1959) of the Fourth Republic. He was instrumental in recalling Charles de Gaulle to power (1959).

cot·y·le·don (kõt'l-ēd'n) n. 1. Botany. A leaf of the embryo of a seed plant, which, upon germination either remains in the seed or emerges, enlarges, and becomes green. Also called seed leaf. 2. Anatomy. One of the lobules constituting the uterine side of the mammalian placenta, consisting mainly of a rounded mass of villi. [Latin, navelwort, from Greek kotulēdōn, from kotulē, hollow object.]

—cot'y·le'don·al, cot'y·le'do·nous (-ēd'n-əs) adj.

cot·y·loid (kõt'l-oid') also cot·y·loid·al (kõt'l-oid'l) adj. Shaped like a cup. [Greek kotuloeidēs: kotulē, hollow object + -oeidēs, -oid.]

couch (kouch) n. 1. a. A sofa. b. A sofa on which a patient lies while undergoing psychoanalysis or psychiatric treatment. 2. a. The frame or floor on which grain, usually barley, is spread in malting. b. A layer of grain, usually barley, spread to germinate. 3. A priming coat of paint or varnish used in artistic painting. — v. couched, couch·ing, couch·es. — v. tr. 1. To word in a certain manner; phrase: couched their protests in diplomatic language. 2. To cause (oneself) to lie down, as for rest. 3. To embroider by laying thread flat on a surface and fastening it by stitches at regular intervals. 4. To spread (grain) on a couch to germinate, as in malting. 5. To lower (a spear, for example) to horizontal position, as for an attack. — v. intr. 1. To lie down; recline, as for rest. 2. To lie in ambush or concealment; lurk. 3. To be in a heap or pile, as leaves for decomposition or fermentation. [Middle English couche, from Old French, from couchier, to lay down, lie down, from Latin collocāre. See COLLOCATE.] —couch'er n.

couch·ant (kou'chənt) adj. Heraldry. Lying down with the head raised. [Middle English, from Old French, present participle of couchier, to lie down. See COUCH.]

cou·chette (kōō-shĕt') n. 1. A compartment on a European passenger train equipped with four to six berths for sleeping. 2. A sleeping berth in one of these compartments. [French, diminutive of couche, bed, from Old French. See COUCH.]

couch grass (kouch grās) n. A Eurasian grass (Agropyron repens) that has whitish-yellow root stocks and has become a troublesome weed in the New World. Also called quack grass, witch grass. [Alteration of QUITCH GRASS.]

couch potato (kouch pə-tā'tō) n. Slang. A person who spends much time sitting or lying down, usually watching television.

Cou·é (kōō-ā', kwā), Émile. 1857-1926. French doctor who popularized a system of psychotherapy based on autosuggestion.

Coues (kouz), Elliott. 1842-1899. American ornithologist, biologist, and editor who wrote Key to North American Birds (1872) and helped prepare Check List of North American Birds (1886).

cou·gar (kōō'gər) n. See mountain lion. [French cougar, alteration (influenced by jaguar, from Portuguese); see JAGUAR, of Portuguese çuçuarana, from Tupi suasuarana : suasú, deer + rana, like (from its color).]

cough (kôf, kôf) v. coughed, cough-ing, coughs. — v. intr. 1. To expel air from the lungs suddenly and noisily, often to keep the respiratory passages free of irritating material. 2. To make a noise similar to noisy expulsion of air from the lungs: The engine coughed and died. — v. tr. To expel by coughing: coughed up phlegm. — n. 1. The act of coughing. 2. An illness marked by frequent coughing. — phrasal verb. cough up. Slang. 1. To hand over or relinquish (money or another possession), often reluctantly. 2. To confess or disclose: When he saw that the police might arrest him, he coughed up the details of what he had seen. [Middle English coughen, ultimately of imitative origin.]

cough drop (kôf dröp) n. A small, often medicated and sweetened lozenge taken orally to ease coughing or soothe a sore throat.

Cough·lin (kög'lĭn), Charles Edward. 1891-1979. Canadian-born American priest and political activist who gained a wide audience through radio broadcasts of his sermons. He was silenced by his superiors in 1942 after his broadcasts became increasingly profascist.

cough syrup (kôf sĭr'əp) n. A sweetened medicated liquid taken orally to ease coughing.

could (kōöd) v. aux. Past tense of can¹. 1. Used to indicate ability, possibility, or permission in the past: I could run faster then. It could be no better at that time. Only men could go to the club in those days. 2. Used with hypothetical or conditional force: If we could help, we would. 3. Used to indicate tentativeness or politeness: I could be wrong. Could you come over here?

could·est (kōöd'ĭst) or couldst (kōödst) v. aux. Archaic. A second person singular past tense of can¹.

could·n't (kōōd'nt) Could not.

cou·lee (kōō'lē) n. 1. Western U.S. A deep gulch or ravine with sloping sides, often dry in summer. 2. Louisiana & Southern Mississippi. a. A streambed, often dry according to the season. b. A small stream, bayou, or canal. 3. Upper Midwest. A valley with hills on either side. 4. a. A stream of molten lava. b. A sheet of solidified lava. [Canadian French coulée, from French, flow, from couler, to flow, from Latin cōlāre, to filter, from cōlum, sieve.]

cou·lisse (kōō-lēs') n. 1. A grooved timber in which something slides.

2. a. One of the side scenes of the stage in a theater. b. The space between the side scenes. c. A backstage area in a theater. [French, from Old French (porte) couleice, sliding door. See PORTCULLIS.]

cou·loir (kōōl-wär') n. A deep mountainside gorge or gully, especially in the Swiss Alps. [French, from couler, to slide, to flow. See COULEE.]

cou·lomb¹ (kōō'lōm', -lōm') n. Abbr. C The meter-kilogram-second unit of electrical charge equal to the quantity of charge transferred in one second by a steady current of one ampere. See Table at measurement. [After Charles Augustin de COULOMB.]

cou·lomb² (kōō'lōm', -lōm') or cou·lom·bic (kōō-lōm'bik, -lōm'-) adj. Of or relating to the Coulomb force.

Cou·lomb (kōō'lōm', -lōm', kōō-lōm', -lōn'), Charles Augustin de. 1736-1806. French physicist who pioneered research into magnetism and electricity and formulated Coulomb's law.

Coulomb force (kōō'lōm' fōrs) n. An attractive or repulsive electrostatic force described by Coulomb's law.

Cou·lomb's law (kōō'lōmz' lô, -lōmz') n. The fundamental law of electrostatics stating that the force between two charged particles is directly proportional to the product of their charges and inversely proportional to the square of the distance between them. [After Charles Augustin de COULOMB.]

cou·lom·e·try (kōō-lōm'ī-trē) n. An analytical method for determining the amount of a substance released during electrolysis in which the number of coulombs used is measured. [COULO(MB)¹ + -METRY.] —cou·lo·met·ric (-lō-mēt'rīk) adj. —cou·lo·met·ri·cal·ly adv.

coul·ter (kōl'tər) n. A blade or wheel attached to the beam of a plow that makes vertical cuts in the soil in advance of the plowshare. [Middle English culter, from Old English culter, and Old French coltre both from Latin culter, knife, plowshare. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

Coul·ter pine (kōl'tər pīn) n. A pine tree (Pinus coulteri) native to California and Baja California, having bluish-green needles in bundles of three and bearing sharp-scaled cones that are the heaviest of all pines. [After Thomas Coulter (1793-1843), Irish botanist.]

cou·ma·rin (kōō'mər-ĭn) n. A fragrant crystalline compound, C₉H₆O₂, extracted from several plants, such as tonka beans and sweet clover, or produced synthetically and widely used in perfumes. [French coumarine, from coumarou, tonka bean tree, from Spanish coumarú, from Portuguese cumaru, from Tupi cumarú, commaru.] — cou'ma·ric (-mər-ĭk) adj.

coun·cil (koun'səl) n. 1. a. An assembly of persons called together for consultation, deliberation, or discussion. b. A body of people elected or appointed to serve in an administrative, legislative, or advisory capacity. c. An assembly of church officials and theologians convened for regulating matters of doctrine and discipline. 2. The discussion or deliberation that takes place in such an assembly or body. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a council chamber; the council table. [Middle English counceil, from Old French concile, from Latin concilium. See kelə-² in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Council, counsel, and consul are never interchangeable as such, though their meanings are related. Council and councilor refer principally to a deliberative assembly (such as a city council or student council), its work, and its membership. Counsel and counselor pertain chiefly to advice and guidance in general and to a person (such as a lawyer or camp counselor) who provides it. Consul denotes an officer in the foreign service of a country.

Coun·cil Bluffs (koun'səl blüfs) A city of southwest Iowa on the Missouri River opposite Omaha, Nebraska. It was settled as Kanessville in 1846 and renamed in 1852. Population, 54,315.

coun·cil·lor (koun'sə-lər, -slər) n. Variant of councilor.

coun·cil·man (koun'səl-mən) n. A man who is a member of a council, especially of the local governing body of a city or town.

council of ministers (koun'səl ÷v mĭn'i-stərz) n. pl. councils of ministers. A body of advisers to a head of state.

coun·cil·or also coun·cil·lor (koun'sə-lər, -slər) n. A member of a council, as one convened to advise a governor. See Usage Note at council.

coun·cil·wom·an (koun'səl-wōm'ən) n. A woman who is a member of a council, especially of the local governing body of a city or town.

coun·sel (koun'səl) n. 1. The act of exchanging opinions and ideas; consultation. 2. Advice or guidance, especially as solicited from a knowledgeable person. See Synonyms at advice. 3. A plan of action. 4. Private, guarded thoughts or opinions: keep one's own counsel. 5. A lawyer or group of lawyers giving legal advice and especially conducting a case in court. See Synonyms at lawyer. See Usage Note at council. — v. coun·seled or coun·selled, coun·sel·ing or coun·sel·ing, coun·sels or coun·sels. — v. tr. 1. To give counsel to; advise. See Synonyms at advise. 2. To recommend: counseled care in the forthcoming negotiations. — v. intr. To give or take advice. See Usage Note at council. [Middle English counseil, from Old French conseil, from Latin cōnsilium; akin to cōnsulere, to take counsel, consult.]

coun·sel·or also coun·sel·lor (koun/'sə-lər, -slər) n. 1. A person who gives counsel; an adviser. 2. An attorney, especially a trial lawyer. See Synonyms at lawyer. 3. A person who supervises young people at a summer camp. See Usage Note at council. —coun'se-lor-ship' n.

coun·sel·or-at-law (koun/'sə-lər-ət-lô', -slər-) n. pl. coun·sel·ors-at-law. An attorney; a counsel.

count¹ (kount) v. count·ed, count·ing, counts. — v. tr. 1. a. To name or list (the units of a group or collection) one by one in order to determine a total; number. b. To recite numerals in ascending order up to and including: count three before firing. c. To include in a reckoning; take account of: ten dogs, counting the puppies. 2. Informal. a. To include by or as if by counting: Count me in. b. To exclude by or as if by counting: Count me out. 3. To believe or consider to be; deem: Count yourself lucky. — v. intr. 1. To recite or list numbers in order or enumerate items by units or groups: counted by tens. 2. a. To have importance: You really count with me. b. To have a specified importance or value: Their opinions count for little. Each basket counts for two points. 3. Music. To keep time by counting beats. — n. 1. The act of counting or calculating. 2. a. A number reached by counting. b. The totality of specific items in a particular sample: a white blood cell count. 3. Law. Any of the separate and distinct charges in an indictment. 4. Sports. The counting from one to ten seconds, during which time a boxer who has been knocked down must rise or be declared the loser. 5. Baseball. The number of balls and strikes that an umpire has called against a batter. —phrasal verb. count on. 1. To rely on; depend on: You can count on my help. 2. To be confident of; anticipate: counted on getting a raise. —idiom. count heads (or count noses). To make a count of members, attendees, or participants by or as if by noting bodily presence. [Middle English counten, from Old French conter, from Latin computāre, to calculate : com-, com- + putāre, to think; see peu- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: count, import, matter, signify, weigh. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to be of significance or importance”: an opinion that counts for a great deal; actions that import little; decisions that really matter; thoughts that signify much; considerations that do not weigh with her.

count² (kount) n. Abbr. Ct. 1. A nobleman in some European countries. 2. Used as a title for such a nobleman. [Middle English counte, from Old French conte, from Late Latin comes, comit-, occupant of any state office, from Latin, companion. See ei- in Appendix.]

count·a·ble (koun'tə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be counted: countable items; countable sins. 2. Mathematics. That can be put into a one-to-one correspondence with the positive integers. — count'a·bil'i·ty n. — count'a·bly adv.

count·down (kount'doun') n. 1. The counting backward aloud from an arbitrary starting number to indicate the time remaining before an event or operation, such as the launching of a missile or space vehicle. 2. The checks and preparations carried out during this activity.

coun·te·nance (koun'tə-nəns) n. 1. Appearance, especially the expression of the face. 2. The face or facial features. See Synonyms at face. 3. a. A look or expression indicative of encouragement or of moral support. b. Support or approval. 4. Obsolete. Bearing; demeanor. — v. tr. coun·te·nanced, coun·te·nanc·ing, coun·te·nanc·es. To give or express approval to; condone: The college administration will not countenance cheating. [Middle English contenance, from Old French, from contenir, to behave. See CONTAIN.] — coun'te·nanc·er n.

coun·ter¹ (koun'tər) adj. Contrary; opposing: moves and counter moves on the checkerboard. — n. 1. One that is an opposite. 2. Sports. A boxing blow given while receiving or parrying another. 3. Sports. A fencing parry in which one foil follows the other in a circular fashion. 4. A stiff piece of leather around the heel of a shoe. 5. Nautical. The portion of a ship's stern extending from the water line to the extreme outward swell. 6. Printing. The depression between the raised lines of a typeface. — v. coun·tered, coun·ter·ing, coun·ters. — v. tr. 1. To meet or return (a blow) by another blow. 2. To move or act in opposition to; oppose. 3. To offer in response: countered that she was too busy to be thorough. — v. intr. To move, act, or respond so as to be in opposition. — adv. 1. In a contrary manner or direction. 2. To or toward an opposite or dissimilar course or outcome: a method running counter to traditional techniques. [From COUNTER-.]

count·er² (koun'tər) n. 1. Abbr. ctr. A flat surface on which money is counted, business is transacted, or food is prepared or served. 2. Games. A piece, as of wood or ivory, used for keeping a count or a place. 3. a. An imitation coin; a token. b. A piece of money. [Middle English countour, from Anglo-Norman counteor, from Medieval Latin computātōrium, counting house, from Latin computāre, to calculate. See COUNT¹.]

count·er³ (koun'tər) n. One that counts, especially an electronic or mechanical device that automatically counts occurrences or repetitions of phenomena or events.

counter- pref. 1. Contrary; opposite; opposing: counterclaim.

2. Corresponding; complementary: counterfoil. [Middle English countre-, from Old French contre-, from Latin contrā. See kom in Appendix.]

coun·ter·act (koun'tər-äkt') v. tr. coun·ter·act·ed, coun·ter·act·ing, coun·ter·acts. To oppose and mitigate the effects of by contrary action; check. See Synonyms at neutralize. —coun'ter·ac'tion n. —coun'ter·ac'tive adj. —coun'ter·ac'tive·ly adv.

coun·ter·ar·gu·ment (koun'tər-är'gyə-mənt) n. 1. An argument in opposition to another. 2. Something that undermines an argument or deters someone from action: The students considered demonstrating for free elections, but their country's secret police provided a powerful counterargument.

coun·ter·at·tack (koun'tər-ə-täk') n. A return attack. — v. intr. tr. coun·ter·at·tacked, coun·ter·at·tack·ing, coun·ter·at·tacks (koun'tər-ə-täk'). To deliver a return attack or make a return attack against.

coun·ter·bal·ance (koun'tər-bäl'əns, koun'tər-bäl'əns) n. 1. A force or influence equally counteracting another. 2. A weight that acts to balance another; a counterpoise or counterweight. — v. tr. coun·ter·bal·anced, coun·ter·bal·anc·ing, coun·ter·bal·anc·es (koun'tər-bäl'əns, koun'tər-bäl'əns). 1. To act as a counteracting force, influence, or weight to; counterpoise. 2. To oppose with an equal force; offset.

coun·ter·blow (koun'tər-blō') n. A blow delivered in return.

coun·ter·change (koun'tər-chānj') v. tr. coun·ter·chang·ed, coun·ter·chang·ing, coun·ter·chang·es. 1. To cause to change places; transpose. 2. To make checkered; variegate.

coun·ter·charge (koun'tər-chärj') n. A charge in opposition to another charge. — v. coun·ter·charg·ed, coun·ter·charg·ing, coun·ter·charg·es (koun'tər-chärj'). — v. tr. To bring a charge against (one's accuser). — v. intr. To make a countercharge.

coun·ter·check (koun'tər-chĕk') n. 1. Something that serves to check, restrict, or limit something else. 2. Something that confirms or denies the correctness of a previous check. — v. tr. coun·ter·check·ed, coun·ter·check·ing, coun·ter·check·s (koun'tər-chĕk'). 1. To oppose or check by a counteraction. 2. To check again in order to verify.

counter check (koun'tər chĕk) n. A bank check for the use of customers making a withdrawal.

coun·ter·claim (koun'tər-klām') n. A claim filed in opposition to another claim, especially in a legal action. — v. intr. tr. coun·ter·claim·ed, coun·ter·claim·ing, coun·ter·claim·s (koun'tər-klām'). To plead an opposing claim or make an opposing claim against. —coun'ter·claim'ant (-klām'ənt) n.

coun·ter·clock·wise (koun'tər-klök'wīz') adv. & adj. Abbr. cckw., ccw. In a direction opposite to the rotating hands of a clock.

coun·ter·con·di·tion·ing (koun'tər-kən-dīsh'ə-nīŋ) n. Psychology. Conditioning intended to replace a negative response to a stimulus with a positive response.

coun·ter·coup (koun'tər-kōō') n. A sudden overthrow of a government that gained power by a coup d'état.

coun·ter·cul·ture (koun'tər-kŭl'chər) n. A culture, especially of young people, with values or lifestyles in opposition to those of the established culture.

—coun'tər·cul'tur·al adj. —coun'tər·cul'tur·ist n.

coun·ter·cur·rent (koun'tər-kŭr'ənt, -kŭr'-) n. A current that flows in an opposite direction to the flow of another current. —coun'tər·cur'rent adj.

—coun'tər·cur'rent·ly adv.

coun·ter·cy·cli·cal (koun'tər-sīk'lī-kəl, -sī'klī-) adj. Intended to compensate for immoderate developments in a business cycle: a countercyclical federal aid program.

coun·ter·dem·on·stra·tion (koun'tər-dēm'ən-strā'shən) n. A demonstration held in opposition to another demonstration. —coun'tər·dem'on·stra'tor n.

coun·ter·es·pi·o·nage (koun'tər-ēs'pē-ə-nāzh', -nīj) n. Espionage undertaken to detect and counteract enemy espionage.

coun·ter·ex·am·ple (koun'tər-īg-zām'pəl) n. An example that refutes or disproves a hypothesis, proposition, or theorem.

coun·ter·fac·tu·al (koun'tər-fāk'chōō-əl) adj. Running contrary to the facts: "Cold war historiography vividly illustrates how the selection of the counterfactual question to be asked generally anticipates the desired answer" (Timothy Garton Ash). —coun'tər·fac'tu·al n.

coun·ter·feit (koun'tər-fīt') v. coun·ter·feit·ed, coun·ter·feit·ing, coun·ter·feits. — v. tr. 1. To make a copy of, usually with the intent to defraud; forge: counterfeits money. 2. To make a pretense of; feign: counterfeited interest in the story. See Synonyms at pretend. — v. intr. 1. To carry on a deception; dissemble. 2. To make fraudulent copies of something valuable. — adj. 1. Made in imitation of what is genuine with the intent to defraud: a counterfeit dollar bill. 2. Simulated; feigned: a counterfeit illness. — n. A fraudulent imitation or facsimile. [Middle English countrefeten, from contrefet, made in imitation, from Old French contrefait, past participle of contrefaire, to counterfeit : contre-, counter- + faire, to make (from Latin facere); see dhē- in Appendix.]

—coun'tər·feit'er n.

coun·ter·foil (koun'tər-foil') n. The part of a check or other commercial paper retained by the issuer as a record of a transaction.

coun·ter·force (koun'tər-fōrs', -fōrs') n. A contrary or opposing force, especially a military force capable of destroying the nuclear armaments of an enemy.

— n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a counterforce strategy; counterforce weapons.

coun·ter·glow (koun'tər-glō') n. See gegenschein.

coun·ter·in·sur·gen·cy (koun'tər-ĭn-sŭr'jən-sē) n. Political and military strategy or action intended to oppose and forcefully suppress insurgency.

—coun'ter·in·sur'gent n.

coun·ter·in·tel·li·gence (koun'tər-ĭn-tĕl'ə-jəns) n. The branch of an intelligence service charged with keeping sensitive information from an enemy, deceiving that enemy, preventing subversion and sabotage, and collecting political and military information.

coun·ter·ir·ri·tant (koun'tər-ĭr'i-tənt) n. An agent that induces local inflammation to relieve inflammation in underlying or adjacent tissues. — adj. Of or producing the effect of such an agent. —coun'ter·ir·ri·ta'tion (-tā'shən) n.

coun·ter·man (koun'tər-män', -mən) n. A man who tends a counter, as in a diner.

coun·ter·mand (koun'tər-mänd', koun'tər-mänd') v. tr.

coun·ter·mand·ed, coun·ter·mand·ing, coun·ter·mands. 1. To cancel or reverse (a previously issued command or order). 2. To recall by a contrary order: countermanded the air strikes. — n. (koun'tər-mänd') 1. An order or command reversing another one. 2. Cancellation of an order or command. [Middle English countremaunden, from Old French contremander: contre-, counter- + mander, to command (from Latin mandāre); see man-² in Appendix.]

coun·ter·march (koun'tər-märch') n. 1. A march back or in a reverse direction. 2. A complete reversal of method or conduct. — v. intr. tr.

coun·ter·marched, coun·ter·march·ing, coun·ter·march·es (koun'tər-märch'). To execute or cause to execute a countermarch.

coun·ter·mea·sure (koun'tər-mĕzh'ər) n. A measure or action taken to counter or offset another one.

coun·ter·mine (koun'tər-mĭn') v. coun·ter·mined, coun·ter·min·ing, coun·ter·mines. — v. tr. 1. To frustrate or defeat by secret and opposite measures. 2. To make or use a countermine against. — v. intr. To make or lay down countermines. — n. (koun'tər-mĭn') 1. A tunnel dug to intercept and destroy an enemy's mine. 2. A plot to frustrate or defeat an attack.

coun·ter·move (koun'tər-mōv') n. A move made in opposition or retaliation to another. — v. intr. coun·ter·moved, coun·ter·mov·ing, coun·ter·moves (koun'tər-mōv'). To make a move in retaliation or opposition. —coun'ter·move'ment n.

coun·ter·of·fen·sive (koun'tər-ə-fĕn'sĭv) n. A large-scale counterattack by an armed force, intended to stop an enemy offensive.

coun·ter·of·fer (koun'tər-ô'fĕr, -ōf'ər) n. An offer made in return by one who rejects an unsatisfactory offer.

coun·ter·pane (koun'tər-pān') n. A cover for a bed; a bedspread. [Alteration of obsolete counterpoint, from Middle English countrepoint, from Old French contrepoinete, alteration of coultepointe, from Medieval Latin culcita puncta, stitched quilt : Latin culcita, quilt, mattress; see QUILT + Latin punctus, stitched, pricked; see POINT.]

coun·ter·part (koun'tər-pärt') n. 1. a. One that closely resembles another. b. One that has the same functions and characteristics as another; an opposite number: The foreign minister is the counterpart of the secretary of state. 2. A copy or duplicate of a legal paper. 3. a. One of two parts that fit and complete each other. b. One that serves as a complement.

coun·ter·per·son (koun'tər-pûr'sən) n. A person who tends a counter, as in a diner.

coun·ter·plan (koun'tər-plān') n. 1. A plan intended to counter or oppose another plan. 2. An alternate plan.

coun·ter·play (koun'tər-plā') n. Games. A threat or offensive position in chess intended to counter an opponent's advantage in another part of the board.

coun·ter·plea (koun'tər-plē') n. Law. A plaintiff's reply to a defendant's plea or counterclaim; an answering plea.

coun·ter·plot (koun'tər-plöt') n. 1. A plot or scheme intended to subvert another plot. 2. See subplot (n., sense 1). — v. coun·ter·plot·ted, coun·ter·plot·ting, coun·ter·plots. — v. intr. To oppose or subvert one plot with another. — v. tr. To plot against; thwart with a counterplot.

coun·ter·point (koun'tər-point') n. 1. Music. a. Melodic material that is added above or below an existing melody. b. The technique of combining two or more melodic lines in such a way that they establish a harmonic relationship while retaining their linear individuality. c. A composition or piece that incorporates or consists of contrapuntal writing. 2. a. A contrasting but parallel element, item, or theme. b. Use of contrasting elements in a work of art. — v. tr. coun·ter·point·ed, coun·ter·point·ing, coun·ter·points. 1. Music. To write or arrange (music) in counterpoint. 2. To set in contrast: "The complex, clogged computer talk sadly counterpoints the simplistic nature of the characters" (Rhoda Koenig).

coun·ter·poise (koun'tər-poiz') n. 1. A counterbalancing weight. 2. A force or influence that balances or equally counteracts another. 3. The state of being in equilibrium. — v. tr. coun·ter·poised, coun·ter·pois·ing, coun·ter·pois·es. 1. To oppose with an equal weight; counterbalance. 2. To act against with an equal force or power; offset. [Alteration (influenced by POISE¹), of Middle English countrepeis, from Old French contrepeis : contre-, counter- + peis, weight; see AVOIRDUPOIS.] coun·ter·pose (koun'tər-pōz') v. tr. coun·ter·posed, coun·ter·pos·ing, coun·ter·pos·es. To set in contrast, opposition, or balance.

coun·ter·pro·duc·tive (koun'tər-prə-dŭk'tiv) adj. Tending to hinder rather than serve one's purpose: "Violation of the court order would be counterproductive" (Philip H. Lee). —coun'ter·pro·duc'tive·ly adv.

coun·ter·pro·gram·ming (koun'tər-prō'grām-ĭng, -grə-mĭng) n. The scheduling of television programs so as to attract viewers away from programs broadcast simultaneously on another network.

coun·ter·pro·pos·al (koun'tər-prə-pō'zəl) n. A proposal offered to nullify or substitute for a previous one.

coun·ter·punch (koun'tər-pŭnch') n. A countering attack or blow, especially one delivered by a boxer. — v. intr. coun·ter·punched, coun·ter·punch·ing, coun·ter·punch·es. To deliver a counterpunch.

—coun'ter·punch'er n.

coun·ter·ref·or·ma·tion (koun'tər-rĕf'ər-mā'shən) n. A reformation intended to counter the consequences of a previous reformation.

Coun·ter Reformation (koun'tər rĕf'ər-mā'shən) n. A reform movement within the Roman Catholic Church that arose in 16th-century Europe in response to the Protestant Reformation.

coun·ter·rev·o·lu·tion (koun'tər-rĕv'ə-lōō'shən) n. 1. A revolution whose aim is the deposition and reversal of a political or social system set up by a previous revolution. 2. A movement to oppose revolutionary tendencies and developments. —coun'ter·rev'o·lu'tion·ar'y (-shə-nĕr'ē) adj., n.

—coun'ter·rev'o·lu'tion·ist n.

coun·ter·shad·ing (koun'tər-shā'dĭng) n. Protective coloration in an animal or insect, characterized by darker coloring of areas exposed to light and lighter coloring of areas that are normally shaded.

coun·ter·shaft (koun'tər-shăft') n. An intermediate shaft between the powered and driven shafts in a belt drive.

coun·ter·sign (koun'tər-sĭn') v. tr. coun·ter·signed, coun·ter·sign·ing, coun·ter·signs. To sign (a previously signed document), as for authentication. — n. 1. A second or confirming signature, as on a previously signed document. Also called countersignature 2. a. A secret sign or signal to be given to a sentry in order to obtain passage; a password. b. A secret sign or signal given in answer to another.

coun·ter·sig·na·ture (koun'tər-sĭg'nə-chər) n. See countersign (n., sense 1).

coun·ter·sink (koun'tər-sĭngk') n. Abbr. csk. 1. A hole with the top part enlarged so that the head of a screw or bolt will lie flush with or below the surface. 2. A tool for making such a hole. — v. tr. coun·ter·sunk (-sŭngk'), coun·ter·sink·ing, coun·ter·sinks. 1. To make a countersink on or in. 2. To drive (a screw or bolt) into a countersink.

coun·ter·spy (koun'tər-spī') n. pl. coun·ter·spies. A spy working in opposition to enemy espionage.

coun·ter·stain (koun'tər-stān') n. A stain of a contrasting color used to color the components in a microscopic specimen that are not made visible by the principal stain. — v. tr. coun·ter·stained, coun·ter·stain·ing, coun·ter·stains. To color (a microscopic specimen) with such a stain.

coun·ter·sue (koun'tər-sōō') v. tr. coun·ter·sued, coun·ter·su·ing, coun·ter·sues. Law. To bring proceedings against (a plaintiff) in direct opposition to a suit brought against oneself. — coun'ter·suit' (-sōōt') n.

coun·ter·sunk (koun'tər-sŭngk') v. Past tense and past participle of counter·sink.

coun·ter·ten·or (koun'tər-tĕn'ər) n. Music. 1. An adult male voice with a range above that of tenor. 2. A singer having a voice that is within this range. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a countertenor part; a countertenor arrangement.

coun·ter·ter·ror (koun'tər-tĕr'ər) adj. Intended to prevent or counteract terrorism: counterterror measures; counterterror weapons. — n. Action or strategy intended to counteract or suppress terrorism. — coun'ter·ter'ror·ism n.
— coun'ter·ter'ror·ist adj. & n.

coun·ter·top (koun'tər-tŏp') n. A level surface on a cabinet or display case, as in a kitchen or department store. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a countertop appliance; countertop goods on sale.

coun·ter·trade (koun'tər-trād') n. International barter in which one country agrees to import commodities from another country to which it exports commodities. — coun'ter·trad'er n.

coun·ter·trans·fer·ence (koun'tər-trāns-fŭr'əns, -trāns'fər-) n. The surfacing of a psychotherapist's own repressed feelings through identification with the emotions, experiences, or problems of a person undergoing treatment.

coun·ter·vail (koun'tər-vāl', koun'tər-vāl') v. coun·ter·vailed, coun·ter·vail·ing, coun·ter·vails. — v. tr. 1. To act against with equal force; counteract. 2. To compensate for; offset. — v. intr. To act against an often detrimental influence or power. [Middle English countrevailen, from Old French contrevaloir, contrevail- : contre-, counter- + valoir, to be worth (from Latin valēre, to be strong); see wal- in Appendix.]

coun·ter·weigh (koun'tər-wā') v. intr. tr. coun·ter·weighed, coun·ter·weigh·ing, coun·ter·weighs. To counterbalance or cause to counterbalance.

coun·ter·weight (koun'tər-wāt') n. 1. A weight used as a counterbalance. 2. A force or influence equally counteracting another. — coun'ter·weight'ed (-wā'tĭd) adj.

count·er·wom·an (koun/'tər-wōm'ən) n. A woman who tends a counter, as in a diner.

count·ess (koun/'tīs) n. 1. A woman holding the title of count or earl.

2. a. The wife or widow of a count in various European countries. b. The wife or widow of an earl in Great Britain. 3. Used as a title for such a noblewoman. [Middle English countes, from Old French contesse, feminine of conte, count. See COUNT².]

count·ing·house also count·ing house (koun/'tīng-hous') n. A building, room, or office in which a business firm carries on operations such as accounting and correspondence.

count·less (koun/'līs) adj. Incapable of being counted; innumerable. See Synonyms at incalculable. —count/less·ly adv.

count noun (kount noun) n. A noun for an object, such as chair, or for an idea, such as experience, that speakers of a language identify as referring to a single entity and that can form a plural or occur in a noun phrase construction with an indefinite article, with numerals, or with such terms as many.

count palatine (kount pāl'ə-tīn') n. pl. counts palatine. 1. a. Any of various noblemen originally exercising certain royal powers within their own domains, especially a count of the Holy Roman Empire having sovereign powers in his own territories. b. A feudal lord having sovereign powers over his lands. 2. The titled proprietor of a county palatine in England or Ireland.

coun·tri·fied also coun·try·fied (kūn/'trī-fīd') adj. 1. Resembling or having the characteristics of country life; rural. 2. Lacking sophistication.

country (kūn/'trē) n. pl. coun·tries. 1. a. A nation or state. b. The territory of a nation or state; land. c. The people of a nation or state; populace: The whole country will profit from the new economic reforms. 2. The land of a person's birth or citizenship: Foreign travel is restricted in his country. 3. A region, territory, or large tract of land distinguishable by features of topography, biology, or culture: hill country; Bible country. 4. A district outside of cities and towns; a rural area: a vacation in the country. 5. Law. A jury. 6. Informal. Country music. — adj.

1. Of, relating to, or typical of the country: a country road; country cooking.

2. Of or relating to country music. —idiom. in country. In Vietnam during the period of U.S. military operations there: "He'd been in country a month longer than the other four" (Nelson DeMille). [Middle English countree, from Old French contree, from Vulgar Latin (terra) contrāta*, (land) opposite, before, from Latin contrā, opposite. See kom in Appendix.]

country and western (kūn/'trē ənd wēs'tərn) n. Abbr. C & W, C and W See country music.

country club (kūn/'trē klüb) n. A suburban club for social and sports activities, usually featuring a golf course.

country cousin (kŭn'trē kūz'ɪn) n. One whose ingenuousness or rustic ways may bemuse or entertain city dwellers.

coun·try·dance (kŭn'trē-dāns') n. A folk dance of English origin in which two lines of dancers face each other.

coun·try·fied (kŭn'trī-fīd') adj. Variant of countrified.

country gentleman (kŭn'trē jĕn'tl-mən) n. A man who owns a country estate.

coun·try·man (kŭn'trē-mən) n. 1. A person from one's own country; a compatriot. 2. A native or inhabitant of a particular country. 3. A man who lives in the country or has country ways.

country mile (kŭn'trē mīl) n. Informal. A very great distance.

country music (kŭn'trē myōō'zĭk) n. Music. Popular music based on the folk style of the southern rural United States or on the music of cowboys in the American West. Also called country and western coun·try·seat (kŭn'trē-sēt') n. An estate or mansion in the country.

coun·try·side (kŭn'trē-sīd') n. 1. A rural region. 2. The inhabitants of a rural region.

country singer (kŭn'trē sĭng'ər) n. Music. One who sings country music.

coun·try·wide (kŭn'trē-wīd') adv. & adj. Throughout a whole country; nationwide: launched a fundraising campaign countrywide; a countrywide search.

coun·try·wom·an (kŭn'trē-wōōm'ən) n. 1. A woman from one's own country; a compatriot. 2. A woman from a particular country. 3. A woman who lives in the country or has country ways.

coun·ty (koun'tē) n. pl. coun·ties. Abbr. co, co. 1. An administrative subdivision of a state in the United States. 2. a. A territorial division exercising administrative, judicial, and political functions in Great Britain and Ireland. b. The territory under the jurisdiction of a count or earl. 3. The people living in a county. [Middle English counte, territorial division, from Old French conte, the territory of a count, from Medieval Latin comitātus, from Late Latin, the office of count, from Latin, retinue, from comes, comit-, companion. See ei- in Appendix.] —coun'ty adj.

county agent (koun'tē ā'jənt) n. A government employee who serves as a consultant and adviser in a chiefly rural county on such matters as agriculture, education, and home economics.

county fair (koun'tē fār) n. A fair usually held every year at the same location in a county, especially for the competitive showing of livestock and farm products.

county palatine (koun'tē pāl'ə-tĭn') n. pl. counties palatine. The domain of a count palatine in England or Ireland.

county seat (koun'tē sēt) n. A town or city that is the administrative center of its county.

county town (koun'tē toun) n. Chiefly British. A county seat. Also called shire town coun·ty·wide (koun'tē-wīd') adv. & adj. Throughout a whole county: found at locations countywide; a countywide war on drugs.

coup (kōō) n. pl. coups (kōōz). 1. A brilliantly executed stratagem; a master-stroke. 2. A coup d'état. 3. Among certain Native American peoples, a feat of bravery performed in battle, especially the touching of an enemy's body without causing injury. —idiom. count coup. Among certain Native American peoples, to ceremoniously recount one's exploits in battle. [French, stroke, from Old French colp, from Late Latin colpus. See COPE¹.]

coup de grâce (kōō' də grās') n. pl. coups de grâce. 1. A deathblow delivered to end the misery of a mortally wounded victim. 2. A finishing stroke or decisive event. [French : coup, stroke + de, of + grâce, mercy.]

coup de main (kōō də mǎn') n. pl. coups de main. A sudden action undertaken to surprise an enemy. [French : coup, stroke, blow + de, of + main, hand.]

coup d'état (kōō dā-tä') n. pl. coups d'état or coup d'états (dā-tä'). The sudden overthrow of a government by a usually small group of persons in or previously in positions of authority. [French : coup, blow, stroke + de, of + état, state.]

coup de théâ·tre (kōō də tā-ä'trə) n. pl. coups de théâtre. 1. A sudden, dramatic turn of events in a play. 2. An unexpected and sensational event, especially one that reverses or negates a prevailing situation. [French : coup, stroke + de, of + théâtre, theater.]

coup d'oeil (kōō dœ'yə) n. pl. coups d'oeil. A quick survey; a glance. [French : coup, stroke + de, of + oeil, eye.]

coupe¹ (kōōp) n. 1. a. A dessert of ice cream or fruit-flavored ice, garnished and served in a special dessert glass. b. The stemmed glass in which a coupe is served. 2. A shallow, bowl-shaped dessert dish. [French, cup, from Late Latin cuppa.]

coupe² (kōōp) n. Variant of coupé (n., sense 2).

cou·pé (kōō-pā') n. 1. A closed four-wheel carriage with two seats inside and one outside. 2. Also coupe (kōōp). A closed two-door automobile. [French, from past participle of couper, to cut, from coup, blow. See COUP.]

Cou-pe-rin (kōō-pə-rǎn', kōōp-rǎn'), François. 1668-1733. French composer who was court organist at Versailles during the reign of Louis XIV.

Cou-pe-rus (kōō-pā'rəs, -pěr'əs), Louis. 1863-1923. Dutch novelist and leading member of the Dutch realist school of fiction. He is known for his tetralogy The Books of the Small Souls.

cou·ple (küp'əl) n. 1. Two items of the same kind; a pair. 2. Something that joins or connects two things together; a link. 3. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). a. Two people united, as by betrothal or marriage. b. Two people together.

4. Informal. A few; several: a couple of days. 5. Physics. A pair of forces of equal magnitude acting in parallel but opposite directions, capable of causing rotation but not translation. — v. coupled, coupling, couples. — v. tr. 1. To link together; connect: coupled her refusal with an explanation. 2. a. To join as spouses; marry. b. To join in sexual union. 3. Electricity. To link (two circuits or currents) as by magnetic induction. — v. intr. 1. To form pairs; join. 2. To unite sexually; copulate. 3. To join chemically. — adj. Informal. Two or few: “Every couple years the urge strikes, to... haul off to a new site” (Garrison Keillor). [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cōpula, bond, pair.]

SYNONYMS: couple, pair, brace, yoke. These nouns denote two individuals of the same kind together. Couple does not necessarily imply more than association: a square dance performed by four couples. The term may also mean simply “few”: a couple of minutes; a couple of books. Pair stresses close association and often reciprocal dependence of things (a pair of gloves; a pair of pajamas); sometimes it denotes a single thing with interdependent parts (a pair of scissors; a pair of spectacles). Brace refers principally to certain animals or game birds (a brace of hounds; a brace of partridges), and yoke to two joined draft animals (a yoke of oxen).

USAGE NOTE: When used to refer to two people who function socially as a unit, as in a married couple, the word couple may take either a singular or a plural verb, depending on whether the members are considered individually or collectively: The couple were married last week. Only one couple was unaccounted for. When a pronoun follows, they and their are more common than it and its: The couple decided to spend their (less commonly its) vacation in Italy. Care should be taken that the verb and the pronoun agree in number: The couple have their (less commonly has its) primary residence in New York. • Although the phrase a couple of has been well established in English since before the Renaissance, it has been criticized on several grounds. Grammarians used to insist that a couple of should be used only to refer to things closely linked to one another and so was improperly used in phrases such as a couple of years ago. This objection has not been heard in some time and was never well supported. Modern critics have sometimes maintained that a couple of is too inexact to be appropriate in formal writing. But the inexactitude of a couple of may serve a useful communicative purpose, suggesting that the writer is indifferent to the precise number of items involved. Thus the sentence She lives only a couple of miles away implies not only that the distance is short but that its exact measure is unimportant. Furthermore, a couple of is different from a few in that it does not imply that the relevant amount is relatively small. One might say admiringly of an exceptional center fielder that he can throw the ball a couple of hundred feet, but not, except ironically, a few hundred feet, which would suggest that such a throw was unremarkable. The usage should be considered unobjectionable on all levels of style.

coupler (kŭp'lər) n. 1. One that couples, especially a device for coupling two railroad cars. 2. Music. A device connecting two organ keyboards so that they may be played together.

couplet (kŭp'lit) n. 1. A unit of verse consisting of two successive lines, usually rhyming and having the same meter and often forming a complete thought or syntactic unit. 2. Two similar things; a pair. [French, from Old French, diminutive of couple, couple. See COUPLE.]

coupling (kŭp'ling) n. 1. The act of forming couples. 2. The act of uniting sexually. 3. A device that links or connects. 4. Electronics. Transfer of energy from one circuit to another. 5. The body part of a four-footed animal that connects the hindquarters to the forequarters.

coupon (kōō'pōn', kyōō'-) n. Abbr. cp. 1. A negotiable certificate attached to a bond that represents a sum of interest due. 2. a. One of a set of detachable certificates that may be torn off and redeemed as needed: a food coupon. b. A detachable part, as of a ticket or advertisement, that entitles the bearer to certain benefits, such as a cash refund or a gift. c. A certificate accompanying a product that may be redeemed for a cash discount. d. A printed form, as in an advertisement, to be used as an order blank or for requesting information or obtaining a discount on merchandise. 3. A detachable slip calling for periodic payments, as for merchandise bought on an installment plan. [French, from Old French colpon, piece cut off, from colper, to cut, from colp, blow. See COUP.]

WORD HISTORY: A Roman might have had difficulty predicting what would become of the Latin word colaphus, which meant “a blow with the fist.” In Old French, a language that developed from Latin, Late Latin colpus, from Latin colaphus, became colp, or modern French coup, with the same sense. Coup has had a rich development in French, gaining numerous senses, participating in numerous phrases, such as coup d'état (a term that we have borrowed), and giving rise to many derivatives, including couper, “to cut; literally, to divide with a blow or stroke.” Couper yielded the word coupon, “a portion that is cut off,” which came to refer to a certificate that was detachable from a principal certificate. The detachable certificate could be exchanged for interest or dividend payments by the holder of the principal certificate. Coupon is first recorded in English in 1822 with this sense and then came to apply to forms or tickets, detachable or otherwise, that could be exchanged for various benefits or used to request information.

couponing (kōō'pōn'ing, kyōō'-) n. The sending out or turning in of coupons, especially the regular redemption of a manufacturer's coupon for cash.

cour·age (kûr'ij, kûr'-) n. The state or quality of mind or spirit that enables one to face danger, fear, or vicissitudes with self-possession, confidence, and resolution; bravery. [Middle English corage, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin coraticum*, from Latin cor. See kerd- in Appendix.]

cou·ra·geous (kə-rā'jəs) adj. Having or characterized by courage; valiant. See Synonyms at brave. —cou·ra'geous·ly adv. —cou·ra'geous·ness n.

cou·rante (kōō-rānt') n. 1. A 17th-century French dance characterized by running and gliding steps to an accompaniment in triple time. 2. Music. The second movement of the classical baroque suite, typically following the allemande. [French, from feminine present participle of courir, to run, from Old French courre, from Latin currere. See kers- in Appendix.]

Cou·an·tyne also Co·ran·tijn (kōr'ən-tīn', kōr'-) A river rising in southeast Guyana and flowing about 724 km (450 mi) to the Atlantic Ocean. It forms the Guyana-Suriname border in its lower course.

Cou·bet (kōōr-bā', -bĕ') Gustave. 1819-1877. French painter known for his realistic depiction of everyday scenes. His works include Burial at Ornans (1850), Bonjour M. Courbet (1854), and The Artist's Studio (1855).

Cou·be·voie (kōōr-bə-vwä', kōōr-) A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris on the Seine River. Population, 59,830.

cour·gette (kōōr-zhĕt') n. Chiefly British. A zucchini. [French dialectal, diminutive of courge, gourd, from Old French cohourde, from Latin cucurbita.]

cou·ri·er (kōōr'ē-ər, kûr'-, kûr'-) n. 1. a. A messenger, especially one on official diplomatic business. b. A spy carrying secret information. 2. a. A personal attendant hired to make arrangements for a journey. b. An employee of a travel agency serving as a guide for tourists. [French courrier, from Old French, from Old Italian corriere, from correre, to run, from Latin currere. See kers- in Appendix.]

cou·lan (kōōr'lən) n. See limpkin. [French, perhaps alteration of courliri, from Galibi kurliri.]

Cou·land also Kur·land (kōōr'lənd) A historical region and former duchy of western European U.S.S.R. between the Baltic Sea and the Western Dvina River. It passed to Russia in 1795 and was largely incorporated into Latvia in 1918.

Cou·nand (kōōr'nānd, -nənd, kōōr-nān'), André Frédéric. 1895-1988.

French-born American physiologist. He shared a 1956 Nobel Prize for developing new techniques in treating heart disease.

course (kōrs, kōrs) n. 1. Onward movement in a particular direction; progress. 2. The direction of continuing movement: took a northern course. 3. The route or path taken by something, such as a stream, that moves. See Synonyms at way. 4. Movement in time; duration: in the course of a year. 5. Sports. A designated area of land or water on which a race is held or a sport played. 6. A mode of action or behavior: followed the best course and invested her money. 7. A typical or natural manner of proceeding or developing; customary passage: a fad that ran its course. 8. A systematic or orderly succession; a sequence: a course of medical treatments. 9. A continuous layer of building material, such as brick or tile, on a wall or roof of a building. 10. a. A complete body of prescribed studies constituting a curriculum. b. A unit of such a curriculum. 11. A part of a meal served as a unit at one time. 12. Nautical. The lowest sail on a mast of a square-rigged ship. 13. A point on the compass, especially the one toward which a ship is sailing. — v. coursed, cours-ing, cours-es. — v. tr. 1. To move swiftly through or over; traverse: ships coursing the seas. 2. a. To hunt (game) with hounds. b. To set (hounds) to chase game. — v. intr. 1. To proceed or move swiftly along a specified course: “Big tears now coursed down her face” (Iris Murdoch). 2. To hunt game with hounds. — idioms. in due course. At the proper or right time. of course. 2. In the natural or expected order of things; naturally. 3. Without any doubt; certainly. [Middle English, from Old French cours, from Latin cursus, from past participle of currere, to run. See kers- in Appendix.]

cours-er¹ (kôr'sær, kōr'-) n. 1. A dog trained for coursing. 2. A huntsman.

cours-er² (kôr'sær, kōr'-) n. A swift horse; a charger.

course-ware (kôrs'wâr', kōrs'-) n. Computer Science. Educational software designed especially for classroom use. [COURSE + (SOFT)WARE.]

cours-ing (kôr'sing, kōr'-) n. Hunting with dogs trained to chase game by sight instead of scent.

court (kôrt, kōrt) n. Abbr. C., ct. 1. a. An extent of open ground partially or completely enclosed by walls or buildings; a courtyard. b. A short street, especially a wide alley walled by buildings on three sides. c. A large open section of a building, often with a glass roof or skylight. d. A large building, such as a mansion, standing in a courtyard. 2. a. The place of residence of a sovereign or dignitary; a royal mansion or palace. b. The retinue of a sovereign, including the royal family and personal servants, advisers, and ministers. c. A sovereign's governing body, including the council of ministers and state advisers. d. A formal meeting or reception presided over by a sovereign. 3. Law. a. A person or body of persons whose task is to hear and submit a decision on cases at law. b. The building, hall, or room in which such cases are heard and determined. c. The regular session of a judicial assembly. d. A similar authorized tribunal having military or ecclesiastical jurisdiction. 4. Sports. An open, level area marked with appropriate lines, upon which a game, such as tennis, handball, or basketball, is played. 5. The body of directors of an organization, especially of a corporation. 6. A legislative assembly. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a court jester; court records. — v. court-ed, court-ing, courts. — v. tr.

1. a. To attempt to gain; seek: courting wealth and fame. b. To behave so as to invite or incur: courts disaster by taking drugs. 2. To try to gain the love or affections of, especially to seek to marry. 3. To attempt to gain the favor of by attention or flattery: a salesperson courting a potential customer. — v. intr. To pursue a courtship; woo. — idiom. pay court to. 1. To flatter with solicitous overtures in an attempt to obtain something or clear away antagonism. 2. To seek someone's love; woo. [Middle English, from Old French cort, from Latin cohors, cohort-, courtyard, retinue. See gher-¹ in Appendix.]

court bouillon (kōōr bōōl'yōn', kōr, kōr) n. A poaching liquid for fish whose ingredients usually include water, vinegar or wine, diced vegetables, and seasonings. [French : court, short + bouillon, broth.]

cour-te-ous (kūr'tē-əs) adj. Characterized by gracious consideration toward others. See Synonyms at polite. [Middle English corteis, courtly, from Old French, from cort, court. See COURT.] — cour'te-ous-ly adv.
— cour'te-ous-ness n.

cour-te-san (kōr'tī-zən, kōr'-) n. A woman who is a prostitute, especially one whose clients are men of rank or wealth. [French courtisane, from Old French, from Old Italian cortigiana, feminine of cortigiano, courtier, from corte, court, from Latin cohors, cohort-. See gher-¹ in Appendix.]

cour-te-sy (kūr'tī-sē) n. pl. cour-te-sies. 1. a. Polite behavior. b. A polite gesture or remark. 2. a. Consent or agreement in spite of fact; indulgence: They call this pond a lake by courtesy only. b. Willingness or generosity in providing something needed: free advertising through the courtesy of the local newspaper. — adj. 1. Given or done as a polite gesture: paid a courtesy visit to the new neighbors. 2. Free of charge: courtesy tickets for the reporters. [Middle English courtesie, from Old French, from corteis, courtly. See COURTEOUS.]

courtesy card (kūr'tī-sē kărd) n. A card that confers on its bearer a special right or privilege, as at a supermarket or bank.

courtesy title (kūr'tī-sē tīt'l) n. 1. A title of no legal validity that is assumed or granted by custom, such as the academic title professor given to any instructor at a college. 2. a. In Great Britain, the title that the heir of a high-ranking peer customarily uses, consisting of a secondary title accorded to the peer. b. In Great Britain, the prefixes Lord and Lady added to the given names of the younger children of dukes and marquises or the Honourable added to the children of viscounts and barons.

court-house (kōrt'hous', kōrt'-) n. Abbr. c.h., C.H. 1. Law. A building housing judicial courts. 2. a. A building housing the offices of a county government. b. A county seat.

court-i-er (kōr'tē-ər, -tyər, kōr'-) n. 1. An attendant at a sovereign's court. 2. One who seeks favor, especially by insincere flattery or obsequious behavior. [Middle English courteour, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French cortoyer, to be at a royal court, from cort, court. See COURT.]

court-ly (kôrt'lē, kôrt'-) adj. court-li-er, court-li-est. 1. Suitable for a royal court; stately: courtly furniture and pictures. 2. Elegant; refined: courtly manners. 3. Flattering in an insincere way; obsequious. — adv. In a courtly manner; elegantly or politely. —court/li-ness n.

courtly love (kôrt'lē lüv) n. An idealized and often illicit form of love celebrated in the literature of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance in which a knight or courtier devotes himself to a noblewoman who is usually married and feigns indifference to preserve her reputation.

court-mar-tial (kôrt'mär'shəl, kôrt'-) n. pl. courts-mar-tial (kôrts'-, kôrts'-). Abbr. c.m. 1. A military or naval court of officers appointed by a commander to try persons for offenses under military law. 2. A trial by such a military tribunal. — v. tr. court-mar-tialed also court-mar-tialled, court-mar-tial-ing also court-mar-tial-ling, court-mar-tials also court-mar-tials. To try by military tribunal. [From martial court.] court of appeals (kôrt üv ə-pēl'z) n. pl. courts of appeals. Law. A court to which appeals are made on points of law resulting from the judgment of a lower court.

court of chancery (kôrt üv chän'sə-rē) n. pl. courts of chancery. Law. A court with jurisdiction in equity.

court of claims (kôrt üv klāmz) n. pl. courts of claims. Law. A U.S. federal court that determines claims brought by individuals against the government.

court of common pleas (kôrt üv kôm'an plēz) n. pl. courts of common pleas. Law. 1. A court in some states of the United States having general jurisdiction. 2. A court in Great Britain that formerly heard civil cases between commoners.

court of domestic relations (kôrt üv də-mēs'tik rĭ-lā'shənz) n. pl.

courts of domestic relations. Law. A court having the judicial authority to investigate and decide on cases involving marital and especially parental rights and obligations, including child custody, support, and well-being.

Court of Exchequer (kôrt üv ěks'chĕk'ər, kôrt) n. Law. A former superior court in Great Britain dealing with matters of revenue, now merged with the King's or Queen's Bench.

court of law (kôrt üv lô) n. pl. courts of law. Law. A court that hears cases and makes decisions based on statutes or the common law.

court of record (kôrt üv rĭ-kôrd') n. pl. courts of record. Law. A court whose proceedings and decisions are retained on permanent record.

Court of Saint James's (kôrt üv sānt jāmz', jām'zĭz) n. The British royal court.

court order (kôrt ôr'dər) n. Law. An order issued by a court that requires a person to do or refrain from doing something.

court plaster (kôrt pläs'tər) n. Cloth coated with an adhesive substance and used to cover cuts or scratches on the skin. [From its use by ladies at court to make beauty spots.]

Cour-trai (kōōr-trā', kōōr-) See Kortrijk.

court reporter (kôrt rī-pôrtər) n. Law. A stenographer who makes a verbatim record and transcription of proceedings, as in a court.

court-room (kôrt'rōōm', -rōōm', kôrt'-) n. Law. A room in which the proceedings of a court are held.

court-ship (kôrt'shīp', kôrt'-) n. The act, process, or period of courting.

court-side (kôrt'sīd', kôrt'-) n. Sports. The area immediately bordering the official court of play, as in tennis or basketball.

courts-mar-tial (kôrts'mär'shəl, kôrts'-) n. Plural of court-martial.

court tennis (kôrt tēn'īs) n. Sports. A form of tennis played in a large indoor court with a specially marked-out floor and high cement walls off which the ball may be played.

court-yard (kôrt'yärd', kôrt'-) n. An open space surrounded by walls or buildings, adjoining or within a building such as a large house or housing complex.

cous-cous (kōōs'kōōs') n. 1. A pasta of North African origin made of crushed and steamed semolina. 2. A traditional North African dish consisting of pasta steamed with a meat and vegetable stew. [French, from Arabic kuskus, from kaskasa, to pulverize.]

cous-in (küz'īn) n. 1. A child of one's aunt or uncle. Also called first cousin 2. A relative descended from a common ancestor, such as a grandparent, by two or more steps in a diverging line. 3. A relative by blood or marriage; a kinsman or kinswoman. 4. A member of a kindred group or country: our Canadian cousins. 5. Used as a form of address by a sovereign in addressing another sovereign or a high-ranking member of the nobility. [Middle English cosin, a relative, from Old French, from Latin cōnsōbrīnus, cousin : com-, com- + sōbrīnus, cousin on the mother's side; see swesor- in Appendix.] —cous'in-hood' n. —cous'in-ly adj. —cous'in-ship' n.

cous-in-ger-man (küz'īn-jūr'mən) n. pl. cous-ins-ger-man (küz'īnz-). A child of one's aunt or uncle; a first cousin.

Cous-teau (kōō-stō'), Jacques Yves. Born 1910. French underwater explorer, film producer, and author who helped produce the Aqua-Lung (1943) and later developed underwater laboratories.

couth (kōōth) adj. Marked by or possessing a high degree of sophistication; refined: "Many picnics manage without this sophistication, but we like to be couth and feel that the delicacies of gracious living enhance the chances" (John Gould). — n. Refinement; sophistication: "The man has no couth" (Los Angeles Times). [Back-formation from UNCOUTH.]

cou·ture (kōō-tōōr', -tūr') n. 1. The business of designing, making, and selling highly fashionable, usually custom-made clothing for women. 2. Dressmakers and fashion designers considered as a group. 3. The high-fashion clothing created by designers. [French, sewing, from Old French cousture, from Vulgar Latin cōnsūtūra*, from Latin cōnsuere, cōnsūt-, to sew together : com-, com- + suere, to sew; see syū- in Appendix.]

cou·tu·rier (kōō-tōōr'ē-ər, -ē-ā', -tūr-yā') n. 1. An establishment engaged in couture. 2. One who designs for or owns such an establishment. [French, dressmaker, from Old French cousturier, from cousture, sewing. See COUTURE.]

cou·tu·rière (kōō-tōōr'ē-ər, -ē-âr', -tūr-yër') n. A woman who designs for or owns an establishment engaged in couture. [French, dressmaker, seamstress, from Old French cousturiere, feminine of cousturier. See COUTURIER.]

cou·vade (kōō-vād') n. A practice in certain non-Western cultures in which the husband of a woman in labor takes to his bed as though he were bearing the child. [French, from Old French, from couver, to incubate, hatch, from Latin cubāre, to lie down on.]

co·va·lence (kō-vā'ləns) n. The number of electron pairs an atom can share with other atoms. —co·va·len·cy n. —co·va·lent adj. —co·va·lent·ly adv.

covalent bond (kō-vā'lənt bönd) n. A chemical bond formed by the sharing of one or more electrons, especially pairs of electrons, between atoms.

co·var·i·ance (kō-vâr'ē-əns) n. A statistical measure of the variance of two random variables that are observed or measured in the same mean time period. This measure is equal to the product of the deviations of corresponding values of the two variables for their respective means.

co·var·i·ant (kō-vâr'ē-ənt) adj. 1. Physics. Expressing, exhibiting, or relating to covariant theory. 2. Statistics. Varying with another variable quantity in a manner that leaves a specified relationship unchanged.

covariant theory (kō-vâr'ē-ənt thē'ə-rē) n. The principle that the laws of physics have the same form regardless of the system of coordinates in which they are expressed.

Co·var·ru·bias (kō'və-rōō'bē-əs, kō'vā-rōō'byäs), Miguel. 1904-1957. Mexican artist and author who is best known for his book and magazine illustrations. His works include The Prince of Wales and other Famous Americans (1925) and Island of Bali (1937).

cove¹ (kōv) n. 1. A small sheltered bay in the shoreline of a sea, river, or lake. 2. a. A recess or small valley in the side of a mountain. b. A cave or cavern. 3. A narrow gap or pass between hills or woods. 4. Architecture. a. A concave molding. b. A curved surface forming a junction between a ceiling and a wall. In this sense, also called coving — v. tr. coved, cov·ing, coves. To make in an inward curving form. [Middle English, chamber, cave, from Old English cofa.]

cove² (kōv) n. Chiefly British. A fellow; a man. [Probably from Romany kova, man.]

co-vel-lite (kō-vĕl'īt', kō'və-līt') n. A lustrous indigo-blue mineral, CuS, an important ore of copper. [After Nicolò Covelli (1790-1829), Italian mineralogist.]

cov-en (kǔv'ən, kō'vən) n. An assembly of 13 witches. [Perhaps from Middle English covent, assembly, convent. See CONVENT.]

cov-e-nant (kǔv'ə-nənt) n. 1. A binding agreement; a compact. See Synonyms at bargain. 2. Law. a. A formal sealed agreement or contract. b. A suit to recover damages for violation of such a contract. 3. In the Bible, God's promise to the human race. — v. cov-e-nant-ed, cov-e-nant-ing, cov-e-nants. — v. tr. To promise by or as if by a covenant. See Synonyms at promise. — v. intr. To enter into a covenant. [Middle English, from Old French, from present participle of convenir, to agree. See CONVENE.] — cov'e-nant'al (-nān'tl) adj. — cov'e-nant'al-ly adv.

cov-e-nant-ee (kǔv'ə-nān-tē', -nən-) n. The party in a covenant to whom the promise is made.

cov-e-nant-er (kǔv'ə-nān'tər) n. 1. One who makes a covenant.

2. Covenanter. A Scottish Presbyterian who supported either of two agreements, the National Covenant of 1638 or the Solemn League and Covenant of 1643, intended to defend and extend Presbyterianism.

cov-e-nan-tor (kǔv'ə-nān'tər, -nən-, kǔv'ə-nān-tôr') n. The party in a covenant by whom the promise is to be carried out.

Cov-ent Garden (kǔv'ənt gār'dn, kōv'-) An area in London long noted for its produce market (established in 1671) and its royal theater (first built in 1731-1732). The market was moved to a site on the Thames River in 1974.

Cov-en-try¹ (kǔv'in-trē) 1. A city of central England east-southeast of Birmingham. Famous as the home of Lady Godiva in the 11th century, Coventry was severely damaged in air raids during World War II (November 1940). Population, 318,600. 2. A town of west-central Rhode Island southwest of Providence. It was settled in 1643 and was formerly a noted lacemaking center. Population, 31,083.

Cov-en-try² (kǔv'ən-trē) n. A state of ostracism or exile: "It's not that smoke-filled rooms are back; smokers huddle in Coventry these days" (Flora Lewis). [After Coventry¹, England (possibly from the sending of Royalist prisoners there during the English Civil War).]

cov-er (kǔv'ər) v. cov-ered, cov-er-ing, cov-ers. — v. tr. 1. To place something upon or over, so as to protect or conceal. 2. To overlay or spread with something: cover potatoes with gravy. 3. a. To put a cover or covering on. b. To wrap up; clothe. 4. To invest (oneself) with a great deal of something: covered themselves with glory. 5. a. To spread over the surface of: Dust covered the table. Snow covered the ground. b. To extend over: a farm covering more than 100 acres.

6. a. To copulate with (a female). Used especially of horses. b. To sit on in order to hatch. 7. To hide or screen from view or knowledge; conceal: covered up his misdemeanors. 8. a. To protect or shield from harm, loss, or danger. b. To protect by insurance: took out a new policy that will cover all our camera equipment. c. To compensate or make up for. 9. To be sufficient to defray, meet, or offset the cost or charge of: had enough funds to cover her check. 10. To make provision for; take into account: The law does not cover all crimes. 11. To deal with; treat of: The book covers the feminist movement. 12. To travel or pass over; traverse: They covered 60 miles in two days. 13. a. To have as one's territory or sphere of work. b. To be responsible for reporting the details of (an event or situation): Two reporters covered the news story. 14. To hold within the range and aim of a weapon, such as a firearm. 15. To protect, as from enemy attack, by occupying a strategic position. 16. Sports. a. To be responsible for guarding (an opponent). b. To be responsible for defending (a position): cover left field. 17. To match (an opponent's stake) in a wager. 18. To purchase (stock that one has shorted). 19. Games. To play a higher-ranking card than (the one previously played). 20. Obsolete. To pardon or remit. — v. intr. 1. To spread over a surface to protect or conceal something: a paint that covers well. 2. To act as a substitute or replacement during someone's absence: Her assistant covered for her. 3. To hide something in order to save someone from censure or punishment: cover up for a colleague. 4. Games. To play a higher card than the one previously played. — n. 1. Something that covers or is laid, placed, or spread over or upon something else, as: a. A lid or top. b. A binding or enclosure for a book or magazine. c. A protective overlay, as for a mattress or furniture. 2. a. Something that provides shelter. b. Strategic protection given by armed units during hostile action: The battleship approached the combat zone under a cover of fighter planes. 3. a. Something, such as vegetation, covering the surface of the ground. b. Vegetation, such as underbrush, serving as protective concealment for wild animals. 4. a. Something, such as darkness, that screens, conceals, or disguises. See Synonyms at shelter. b. A false background and identity, especially for a spy. 5. A table setting for one person: Covers were laid for ten. 6. A cover charge. 7. An envelope or wrapper for mail. 8. Funds sufficient to meet an obligation or secure against loss. 9. One who substitutes for another. — idioms. cover (one's) tracks. To conceal traces so as to elude pursuers. cover (the) ground. 2. To traverse a given distance with satisfying speed. 3. To deal with or accomplish something in a certain manner: The history course covered a lot of ground in six weeks. take cover. To seek concealment or protection, as from enemy fire. under cover. 5. In an enclosure for mailing. 6. Being hidden or protected, as by darkness. [Middle English coveren, from Old French covrir, from Latin cooperire, to cover completely : co-, intensive pref.; see CO- + operire, to cover; see wer-⁴ in Appendix.] — cov'er-a-ble adj. — cov'er-er n. — cov'er-less adj.

cover-age (kǔv'ər-ij) n. 1. The extent or degree to which something is observed, analyzed, and reported: complete news coverage of the election.

2. a. Inclusion in an insurance policy or protective plan. b. The extent of protection afforded by an insurance policy. 3. The amount of funds reserved to meet liabilities. 4. The percentage of persons reached by a medium of communication, such as television or a newspaper.

cover-alls (kǔv'ər-ôlz') pl.n. A loose-fitting one-piece work garment worn to protect clothes.

cover boy (kǔv'ər boi) n. An attractive young man whose picture is featured on a magazine cover.

cover charge (kǔv'ər chärj) n. A fixed amount added to the bill at a nightclub or restaurant for entertainment or services.

cover crop (kǔv'ər kröp) n. A crop, such as winter rye or clover, planted between periods of regular crop production to prevent soil erosion and provide humus or nitrogen.

Cover-dale (kǔv'ər-däl'), Miles. 1488-1568. English cleric and scholar who produced the first complete English translation of the Bible (1535).

covered bridge (kǔv'ərd brīj) n. A bridge whose roadway is protected by a roof and sides.

covered wagon (kǔv'ərd wäg'ən) n. A large wagon covered with an arched canvas top, used especially by American pioneers for prairie travel.

cover girl (kǔv'ər gûrl) n. An attractive young woman whose picture is featured on a magazine cover.

cover glass (kǔv'ər gläs) n. 1. A small thin piece of glass used to cover a specimen on a microscope slide. Also called cover slip 2. A protective sheet of glass for a transparency.

cover-ing (kǔv'ər-ĩng) n. Something that covers, so as to protect or conceal.

covering letter (kǔv'ər-ĩng lět'ər) n. A letter sent with other documents to explain more fully or provide more information. Also called cover letter cover-let (kǔv'ər-lit) also cover-lid (-lid) n. A bedspread. [Middle English coverlite, from Anglo-Norman coverelyth : covrir, to cover; see COVER + lit, bed (from Latin lectus); see legh- in Appendix.]

cover letter (kǔv'ər lět'ər) n. See covering letter.

cover-lid (kǔv'ər-lid) n. Variant of coverlet.

covers abbr. Mathematics. Versed cosine.

co-ver-sine (kō-vûr'sīn') n. Mathematics. See versed cosine.

cover slip (kǔv'ər slīp) n. See cover glass (n., sense 1).

cover story (kǔv'ər stôr'ē) n. 1. A featured story in a magazine that concerns the illustration on the cover. 2. A false story intended to deceive or mislead: The spy's cover story required posing as a diplomat.

covert (kūv'ərt, kō'vərt, kō-vūrt') adj. 1. Not openly practiced, avowed, engaged in, accumulated, or shown: covert military operations; covert funding for the rebels. See Synonyms at secret. 2. Covered or covered over; sheltered.

3. Law. Being married and therefore protected by one's husband. — n. 1. A covering or cover. 2. a. A covered place or shelter; hiding place. b. Thick underbrush or woodland affording cover for game. 3. Zoology. One of the small feathers covering the bases of the longer feathers of a bird's wings or tail. 4. A flock of coots. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English, from Old French, from past participle of covrir, to cover. See COVER.] —cov'ert-ly adv. —cov'ert-ness n.

cover-ture (kūv'ər-chər, -chōōr') n. 1. a. A covering; a shelter. b. The state of being concealed; disguise. 2. Law. The status of a married woman under common law. [Middle English, from Old French. See COVERT.]

cover-up or cover-up (kūv'ər-ŭp') n. 1. An effort or strategy of concealment, especially a planned effort to prevent something potentially scandalous from becoming public. 2. A loose garment for wear over other clothing, such as a swimsuit or an evening dress.

cov-et (kūv'it) v. cov-et-ed, cov-et-ing, cov-ets. — v. tr. 1. To feel blame-worthy desire for (that which is another's). See Synonyms at envy. 2. To wish for longingly. See Synonyms at desire. — v. intr. To feel immoderate desire for that which is another's. [Middle English coveiten, from Old French coveitier, from covitie, desire, from Latin cupiditās, from Latin cupidus, desirous, from cupere, to desire.] —cov'et-a-ble adj. —cov'et-er n. —cov'et-ing-ly adv.

cov-et-ous (kūv'ī-təs) adj. 1. Excessively and culpably desirous of the possessions of another. See Synonyms at jealous. 2. Marked by extreme desire to acquire or possess: covetous of learning. —cov'et-ous-ly adv. —cov'et-ous-ness n.

cov-ey (kūv'ē) n. pl. cov-eyes. 1. A family or small flock of birds, especially partridge or quail. See Synonyms at flock¹. 2. A small group, as of persons. [Middle English, from Old French covee, brood, from feminine past participle of cover, to incubate, from Latin cubāre, to lie down.]

Co-vi-na (kō-vē'nə) A city of southern California east of Los Angeles. It has a large citrus-processing industry. Population, 43,207.

cov-ing (kō'vīng) n. See cove¹ (n., sense 4).

Cov-ing-ton (kūv'īng-tən) A city of extreme northern Kentucky on the Ohio River opposite Cincinnati. Settled in 1812 on the site of an earlier tavern and ferry landing, it is now heavily industrialized. Population, 43,264.

cow¹ (kou) n. 1. The mature female of cattle of the genus Bos. 2. The mature female of other large animals, such as whales, elephants, or moose. 3. A domesticated bovine of either sex or any age. —idiom. till the cows come home. Informal. For a long time; indefinitely: The guests stayed till the cows came home.

[Middle English cou, from Old English cū. See g^wou- in Appendix.] —cow'y adj.

cow² (kou) v. tr. cowed, cow-ing, cows. To frighten with threats or a show of force. See Synonyms at intimidate. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.]

—cow'ed-ly (-īd-lē) adv.

cow-ard (kou'ərd) n. One who shows ignoble fear in the face of danger or pain. [Middle English, from Old French couard, from coue, tail, from Latin cauda.]

—cow'ard adj.

Cow-ard (kou'ərd), Sir Noel Pierce. 1899-1973. British actor, playwright, and composer especially noted for his witty and worldly comedies, such as Hay Fever (1925) and Private Lives (1930).

cow-ard-ice (kou'ər-dīs) n. Ignoble fear in the face of danger or pain. [Middle English cowardise, from Old French couardise, alteration of couardie, from couard, coward. See COWARD.]

cow-ard-ly (kou'ərd-lē) adj. Exhibiting the characteristics of a coward, particularly ignoble fear: a cowardly surrender. —cow'ard-li-ness n. —cow'ard-ly adv.

cow-bane (kou'bān') n. 1. A perennial North American herb (Oxypolis rigidior) having pinnately compound leaves and umbels of small white flowers.

2. Any of several related plants, such as the water hemlock.

cow-bell (kou'bēl') n. A bell hung from a collar around a cow's neck.

cow-ber-ry (kou'bēr'ē) n. 1. A low, creeping, evergreen shrub (Vaccinium vitis-idaea), native to northern parts of North America and Eurasia and having drooping clusters of small white or pinkish flowers. 2. The edible red berry of this plant, used to make sauces, jams, and preserves. Also called lingberry, lingon-berry, mountain cranberry.

cow-bird (kou'bûrd') n. Any of various blackbirds of the genus Molothrus, especially the common North American species M. ater, that lay their eggs in the nests of other birds and are often seen accompanying herds of grazing cattle.

[From their habit of staying with cattle.]

cow-boy (kou'boi') n. 1. A hired man, especially in the western United States, who tends cattle and performs many of his duties on horseback. Regional. Also called buckaroo, cowman, cowpoke, cowpuncher Regional., vaquero Regional., *waddy*². See Regional note at vaquero. 2. An adventurous hero. 3. Slang. A reckless person, such as a driver, pilot, or manager, who ignores potential risks.

cowboy boot (kou'boi' bōōt) n. A high-arched boot with a high Cuban heel and usually ornamental stitching.

cowboy hat (kou'boi' hăt) n. A felt hat having a tall crown and very wide brim. Also called ten-gallon hat cow-catch-er (kou'kăch'ər, -kěch'-) n. The metal grille or frame projecting from the front of a locomotive and serving to clear the track of obstructions.

cow college (kou kōl'ij) n. Informal. 1. An agricultural college. 2. A college or university considered to be provincial and unsophisticated.

cow-er (kou'ər) v. intr. cow-ered, cow-er-ing, cow-ers. To cringe in fear. [Middle English couren, of Scandinavian origin.]

Cowes (kouz) A town on the northern coast of the Isle of Wight off southern England. It is the headquarters of the Royal Yacht Club and the site of annual fashionable regattas. Population, 19,663.

cow-fish (kou'fīsh') n. pl. cowfish or cow-fish-es. 1. Any of various small whales, porpoises, or similar aquatic mammals, especially a whale of the genus Mesoplodon, having a pointed snout. 2. Any of various marine fishes of the family Ostraciidae, especially Lactophrys quadricornis of warm Atlantic waters, having hornlike spines over each eye.

cow-girl (kou'gûrl') n. A hired woman, especially in the western United States, who tends cattle and performs many of her duties on horseback.

cow-hand (kou'händ') n. A cowboy or cowgirl.

cow-herb (kou'ûrb', -hûrb') n. An annual plant (Vaccaria pyramidata), native to Eurasia and naturalized in North America and having clusters of deep-pink flowers.

cow-herd (kou'hûrd') n. One who herds or tends cattle.

cow-hide (kou'hīd') n. 1. a. The hide of a cow. b. The leather made from this hide. 2. A strong, heavy, flexible whip, usually made of braided leather. — v. tr. cow-hid-ed, cow-hid-ing, cow-hides. To beat with a strong, heavy, flexible whip.

cowl (koul) n. 1. a. The hood or hooded robe worn especially by a monk. b. A draped neckline on a woman's garment. 2. A hood-shaped covering used to increase the draft of a chimney. 3. The top portion of the front part of an automobile body, supporting the windshield and dashboard. 4. The cowling on an aircraft. — v. tr. cowled, cowl-ing, cowls. To cover with or as if with a cowl. [Middle English coule, from Old English cugele, from Late Latin cuculla, from Latin cucullus, hood.]

Cowl (koul), Jane. 1884?-1950. American actress who enjoyed great success on Broadway in the 1920's and 1930's.

cowled (kould) adj. 1. Wearing or supplied with a cowl; hooded. 2. Having the shape of a hood.

Cow-ley (kou'lē), Abraham. 1618-1667. English metaphysical poet whose works include Davideis (1656), an epic on the life of King David.

Cow-ley (kou'lē), Malcolm. 1898-1989. American writer, editor, and critic whose works include studies of American expatriate writers of the 1920's and commentaries on William Faulkner.

cow-lick (kou'lik') n. A projecting tuft of hair on the head that grows in a different direction from the rest of the hair and will not lie flat.

cowling (kou'liŋg) n. A removable metal covering for an engine, especially an aircraft engine.

Cow-litz (kou'liʦ) A river rising in the Cascade Range of southwest Washington and flowing about 209 km (130 mi) west and south to the Columbia River.

cow-man (kou'mən, -mǎn') n. 1. An owner of cattle or a cattle ranch. 2. a. See cowboy (n., sense 1). b. A cowherd.

co-work-er or co-work-er (kō'wūr'kər) n. One that works with another; a fellow worker.

cow parsnip (kou pār'snɪp) n. Any of several tall, coarse herbs of the genus Heracleum in the parsley family, native chiefly to northern temperate regions and having compound umbels of small flowers.

cow-pea (kou'pē') n. 1. An annual African plant (Vigna unguiculata) in the pea family, widely cultivated in warm regions for food, forage, and soil improvement. 2. An edible seed of this plant. Also called black-eyed pea, catjang.

Cow-per (kō'pər, kou'-, kō'p'ər), William. 1731-1800. British poet considered a precursor of romanticism. His best-known work, The Task (1785), praises rural life and leisure.

Cow-per's gland (kou'pərz glænd, kō'p'-) n. See bulbourethral gland.

[After William Cowper (1666-1709), English surgeon.]

cow pilot (kou pī'lət) n. See sergeant major (n., sense 3).

cow-poke (kou'pōk') n. See cowboy (n., sense 1).

cow pony (kou pō'nē) n. A small, agile horse used in herding cattle.

cow-pox (kou'pōks') n. A mild, contagious skin disease of cattle, usually affecting the udder, that is caused by a virus and characterized by the eruption of a pustular rash. When the virus is transmitted to humans, as by vaccination, it can confer immunity to smallpox. Also called vaccinia cow-punch-er (kou'pүн'chər) n. See cowboy (n., sense 1).

cow-rie or cow-ry (kou'rē) n. pl. cow-ries. Any of various tropical marine gastropods of the family Cypraeidae, having glossy, often brightly marked shells, some of which are used as currency in the South Pacific and Africa. [Hindi kaurī, from Sanskrit kapardikā, diminutive of kapardah, shell, of Dravidian origin.]

co-write (kō-rīt') v. tr. co-wrote (-rōt'), co-writ-ten (-rīt'n), co-writ-ing, co-writes. To write jointly or in collaboration with another author.
—co'writ-er n.

cow-ry (kou'rē) n. Variant of cowrie.

cow shark (kou shärk) n. Any of several sharks of the family Hexanchidae of warm and temperate seas.

cow-shed (kou'shed') n. A shed for housing cows.

cow-slip (kou'slɪp') n. 1. A Eurasian primrose (Primula veris), usually having fragrant yellow flowers, widely cultivated as an ornamental, and long used in herbal medicine. 2. See marsh marigold. 3. The Virginia cowslip. [Middle English cowslyppe, from Old English cūslippe : cū, cow; see g^wou- in Appendix + slypa, slime; see sleubh- in Appendix.]

cow town (kou toun) n. A small town in a cattle-raising area.

COX (kōks) Nautical. n. A coxswain. — v. intr. tr. coxed, cox-ing, cox-es. To act as coxswain or serve as coxswain for.

COX·A (kōk'sə) n. pl. COX·AE (kōk'sē'). 1. Anatomy. The hip or hip joint.

2. Zoology. The first segment of the leg of an insect or other arthropod, joining the leg to the body. [Latin, hip.] — COX'AL adj.

COX·AL·GI·A (kōk-sāl'jē-ə, -jə) n. Pain in or disease of the hip or hip joint.

[COX(A) + -ALGIA.] — COX·AL'GIC (-jĭk) adj.

COX·COMB (kōks'kōm') n. 1. A conceited dandy; a fop. 2. Obsolete. A jester's cap; a cockscomb. [Middle English cokkes comb, crest of a cock : cokkes, genitive of cok, cock; see COCK¹ + comb, crest; see COMB.]

COX·COMB·RY (kōk'skōm'rē, -skām-) n. pl. COX·COMB·RIES. Behavior that is characteristic of or appropriate to a coxcomb; foppish conceit.

Cox·ey (kōk'sē), Jacob Sechler. 1854-1951. American businessman and reformer who led a march on Washington, D.C., to protest unemployment and recommended the use of fiat money to finance a work program.

COX·I·TIS (kōk-sī'tis) n. Inflammation of the hip joint. [COX(A) + -ITIS.]

COX·SACK·IE·VI·RUS also Cox-sack·ie virus (kōk-sä'kē-vī'rəs, kōk-sāk'ē-) n. Any of a group of enteroviruses that can cause a disease resembling poliomyelitis but without paralysis. [After Coxsackie, a village of east-central New York.]

COX·SWAIN (kōk'sən, -swān') Nautical. n. 1. A person who usually steers a ship's boat and has charge of its crew. 2. A person in a racing shell who usually directs the rest of the crew. — v. intr. tr. COX·SWAINED, COX·SWAIN·ING, COX·SWAINS. To act as coxswain or serve as coxswain for. [Middle English cockswaynne : cok, cockboat; see COCKBOAT + swain, servant; see SWAIN.]

COY (koi) adj. COY·ER, COY·EST. 1. Tending to avoid people and social situations; reserved. 2. Affectedly and usually flirtatiously shy or modest. See Synonyms at shy¹. 3. Annoyingly unwilling to make a commitment. [Middle English, from Old French quei, coi, quiet, still, from Vulgar Latin quētus*, from Latin quiētus. See k^weiə- in Appendix.] — COY'LY adv. — COY'NESS n.

COY·DOG (kī'dōg', -dōg') n. The hybrid offspring of a coyote and a feral dog. [COY(OTE) + DOG.]

COY·O·TE (kī-ō'tē, kī'ōt') n. 1. A small, wolflike carnivorous animal (Canis latrans) native to western North America and found in many other regions of the continent. Also called prairie wolf 2. A firefighter who is sent to battle remote, usually very severe forest fires, often for days at a time. [American Spanish, from Nahuatl cóyotl.]

COY·O·TIL·LO (koi'ə-tĭl'ō, -tē'yō, kī'ə-) n. pl. COY·O·TIL·LOS. A poisonous shrub (Karwinskia humboldtiana) native to Texas and Mexico, having small greenish flowers and black fruits. [American Spanish, diminutive of coyote, coyote. See COYOTE.]

coy·pu (koi'pōō) n. pl. coy·pus. A large aquatic South American rodent (Myocastor coypus) having webbed feet and a long tail. Also called nutria [American Spanish coipú, from Araucanian kóypu.]

coz (küz) n. Informal. A cousin.

coz·en (küz'ən) v. coz·ened, coz·en·ing, coz·ens. — v. tr. 1. To mislead by means of a petty trick or fraud; deceive. 2. To persuade or induce to do something by cajoling or wheedling. 3. To obtain by deceit or persuasion. — v. intr. To act deceitfully. [Perhaps from Middle English cosin, fraud, trickery.]

—coz'en·er n.

coz·en·age (küz'ə·nij) n. 1. The art or practice of cozening. 2. An act or example of cozening.

Co·zu·mel (kō'zə·mēl', sōō-) An island off the coast of southeast Mexico near Cancún. It is a growing resort area.

co·zy also co·sy (kō'zē) adj. co·zi·er also co·si·er, co·zi·est also co·si·est.

1. Snug, comfortable, and warm. 2. Marked by friendly intimacy. See Synonyms at comfortable. 3. Informal. Marked by close association for devious purposes: a cozy agreement with the competition. — v. intr. co·zied also co·sied, co·zy·ing also co·sy·ing, co·zies also co·sies. Informal. To try to get on friendly or intimate terms; ingratiate oneself: “out on the... hustings, cozying up to reactionaries and racists alike” (Chuck Stone). — n. pl. co·zies also co·sies. A padded or knitted covering placed especially over a teapot to keep the tea hot.

[Probably of Scandinavian origin.] —co'zi·ly adv. —co'zi·ness n.

Coz·zens (küz'ənz), James Gould. 1903-1978. American writer whose novels include Guard of Honor, for which he won a 1948 Pulitzer Prize, and By Love Possessed (1957).

cp abbr. Candlepower.

cP abbr. Centipoise.

CP abbr. 1. Chemically pure. 2. Or C.P. Command post. 3. Communist Party.

cp. abbr. 1. Compare. 2. Coupon.

C.P. abbr. Cape Province.

CPA also C.P.A. abbr. Certified public accountant.

cpd. abbr. Compound.

CPFF abbr. Cost plus fixed fee.

CPI abbr. Consumer price index.

cpl abbr. 1. Complete. 2. Ecclesiastical. Complin.

Cpl. abbr. Corporal.

cpm or CPM abbr. 1. Cost per thousand. 2. Cycles per minute.

CPO abbr. Chief petty officer.

CPOM abbr. Master chief petty officer.

CPOS abbr. Senior chief petty officer.

CPR abbr. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

cps abbr. 1. Characters per second. 2. Cycles per second.

CPS also C.P.S. abbr. Certified professional secretary.

Cpt. or CPT abbr. Captain.

CPU abbr. Computer Science. Central processing unit.

CQ¹ (sē'kyōō') n. Code letters used at the beginning of radio messages intended for all receivers. [Origin unknown.]

CQ² abbr. Call to quarters.

Cr The symbol for the element chromium.

CR abbr. Psychology. 1. Conditioned reflex. 2. Conditioned response.

cr. abbr. 1. Credit; creditor. 2. Creek. 3. Crescendo. 4. Crown.

C.R. abbr. Costa Rica.

crab¹ (krăb) n. 1. a. Any of various predominantly marine crustaceans of the division Brachyura within the order Decapoda, characterized by a broad, flattened cephalothorax covered by a hard carapace with a small abdomen concealed beneath it, short antennae, and five pairs of legs, of which the anterior pair are large and pincerlike. b. Any of various similar related crustaceans, such as the hermit crab or the king crab. c. A horseshoe crab. 2. a. A crab louse. b. crabs. Slang. Infestation by crab lice. 3. The maneuvering of an aircraft partially into a crosswind to compensate for drift. 4. A machine for handling or hoisting heavy weights. — v. crabbed, crab-bing, crabs. — v. intr. 1. To hunt or catch crabs. 2. To scurry sideways in the manner of a crab. 3. To drift diagonally or sideways. 4. To direct an aircraft into a crosswind. — v. tr. 1. To direct (an aircraft) partly into a crosswind to eliminate drift. 2. To cause to move or scurry sideways. — idiom. catch a crab. To strike the water with an oar in recovering a stroke or miss it in making one while rowing. [Middle English crabbe, from Old English crabba. See gerbh- in Appendix.] — crab-ber n.

crab² (krăb) n. 1. A crab apple tree or its fruit. 2. A quarrelsome, ill-tempered person. — v. crabbed, crab-bing, crabs. — v. intr. Informal. To find fault; criticize someone or something. — v. tr. 1. Informal. To interfere with and ruin; spoil. 2. Informal. To find fault with; complain about. 3. To make ill-tempered or sullen. [Middle English crabbe, possibly from crabbe, crab (shellfish). See CRAB¹.] — crab'ber *n.

Crab (krăb) n. See Cancer.

crab apple also crab-ap-ple (krăb'ăp'əl) n. 1. Any of several deciduous trees of the genus Malus, native to North America and Eurasia and having clusters of white, pink, or reddish flowers. 2. The small, tart fruit of such a tree, sometimes used to make jelly and preserves.

Crabbe (krăb), Clarence Linden. Known as “Buster.” 1907-1983. American athlete and actor best remembered for his leading roles in numerous adventure films, such as Tarzan the Fearless (1933) and Buck Rogers (1939).

Crabbe (krăb), George. 1754-1832. British poet noted for his simple, realistic poems of middle-class life, including The Village (1783).

crab-bed (krăb'îd) adj. 1. Irritable and perverse in disposition; ill-tempered. 2. Difficult to understand; complicated. 3. Difficult to read: crabbed handwriting. [Middle English, from crabbe, crab (influenced by CRAB²),. See CRAB¹.]
—crab'bed-ly adv. —crab'bed-ness n.

crab-by (krăb'ē) adj. crab-bi-er, crab-bi-est. Informal. Grouchy; ill-tempered.
—crab'bi-ly adv. —crab'bi-ness n.

crab cactus (krăb kăk'təs) n. See Thanksgiving cactus.

crab-grass or crab grass (krăb'grăs') n. Any of certain grasses of the genus Digitaria, especially D. sanguinalis or D. ischaemum, widely naturalized in North America.

crab louse (krăb lous) n. A sucking louse (Phthirus pubis) that generally infests the pubic region and causes severe itching.

crab-meat (krăb'mēt') n. The edible flesh of a crab.

crab's eye (krăbz ī) n. See rosary pea.

crab-stick (krăb'stik') n. 1. A stick made of crab apple wood. 2. A crabby, ill-tempered person.

crab-wise (krăb'wîz') adv. 1. Sideways. 2. In a furtive or circumspect manner; indirectly.

crack (krăk) v. cracked, crack-ing, cracks. — v. intr. 1. To break or snap apart. 2. To make a sharp, snapping sound. 3. To break without complete separation of parts; fissure: The mirror cracked. 4. To change sharply in pitch or timbre, as from hoarseness or emotion. Used of the voice. 5. To break down; fail: The defendant's composure finally began to crack. 6. To have a mental or physical breakdown: cracked under the pressure. 7. To move or go rapidly: was cracking along at 70 miles an hour. 8. Chemistry. To break into simpler molecules by means of heat. — v. tr. 1. To cause to make a sharp, snapping sound. 2. To cause to break without complete separation of parts: cracked the glass. 3. a. To break with a sharp, snapping sound. See Synonyms at break. b. To crush (corn or wheat, for example) into small pieces. 4. To strike with a sudden, sharp sound. 5. Informal. a. To break open or into: crack a safe. b. To open up for use or consumption: crack a book; cracked a beer. c. To break through (an obstacle) in order to win acceptance or acknowledgement: finally cracked the “men-only” rule at the club. 6. To discover the solution to, especially after considerable effort: crack a code. 7. To cause (the voice) to crack. 8. Informal. To tell (a joke), especially on impulse or in an effective manner. 9. To cause to have a mental or physical breakdown. 10. To impair or destroy: Their rude remarks cracked his equanimity. 11. To reduce (petroleum) to simpler compounds by cracking. — n. 1. A sharp, snapping sound, such as the report of a firearm. 2. a. A partial split or break; a fissure. b. A slight, narrow space: The window was open a crack. 3. A sharp, resounding blow. 4. a. A mental or physical impairment; a defect. b. A breaking, harshly dissonant vocal tone or sound, as in hoarseness. 5. An attempt or try: gave him a crack at the job; took a crack at photography. 6. A witty or sarcastic remark. See Synonyms at joke. 7. A moment; an instant: at the crack of dawn. 8. Slang. Chemically purified, very potent cocaine in pellet form that is smoked through a glass pipe and is considered highly and rapidly addictive. — adj. Excelling in skill or achievement; first-rate: a crack shot; a crack tennis player. — phrasal verbs. crack down. To act more forcefully to regulate, repress, or restrain: The police cracked down on speeding. crack up. Informal. 2. To praise highly: He was simply not the genius he was cracked up to be. 3. a. To damage or wreck (a vehicle or vessel): crack up a plane; crack up a boat. b. To wreck a vehicle in an accident: cracked up on the expressway. 4. To have a mental or physical breakdown. 5. To experience or cause to experience a great deal of amusement: really cracked up when I heard that joke. — idiom. crack the whip. To behave in a domineering manner; demand hard work and efficiency from those under one's control. [Middle English craken, from Old English cracian. See gerə-² in Appendix.]

crack-a-jack (kräk'ə-jäk') adj. Slang. Variant of crackerjack.

crack-brain (kräk'brän') n. A foolish or eccentric person. — crack'brained' adj.

crack-down (kräk'daun') n. An act or example of forceful regulation, repression, or restraint: a crackdown on crime.

cracked (kräkt) adj. 1. a. Broken so that fissures appear on the surface: a cracked mirror. b. Broken into small or coarse pieces: cracked corn; cracked ice. 2. Having a harsh or dissonant tone: a cracked voice. 3. Informal. Mentally deranged; crazy.

cracked wheat (kräkt hwēt) n. Whole wheat grains that have been cut or crushed into smaller pieces.

crack-er (kräk'ər) n. 1. A thin, crisp wafer or biscuit, usually made of unsweetened dough. 2. One that cracks, especially: a. A firecracker. b. A small cardboard cylinder covered with decorative paper that holds candy or a party favor and pops when a paper strip is pulled at one or both ends and torn. c. The apparatus used in the cracking of petroleum. d. One who makes unauthorized use of a computer, especially to tamper with data or programs. 3. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for a poor white person of the rural, especially southeast United States.

crack-er-bar-rel (kräk'ər-bär'əl) adj. Resembling or characteristic of the extended informal discussions carried on by persons habitually assembled at a country store: cracker-barrel philosophy. [After the cracker barrels that people supposedly would gather round for conversation in old-time general stores.]

crack·er·jack (krāk'ər-jāk') also crack·a·jack (krāk'ə-) adj. Slang. Of excellent quality or ability; fine. [Probably from CRACK, first-rate + JACK.] —crack·'er·jack', crack·'a·jack' n.

Crack·er Jack (krāk'ər jāk) A trademark used for a candied popcorn confection.

crack·ers (krāk'ərz) adj. Chiefly British. Insane; mad. [Probably from CRACKER, breakdown.]

crack house (krāk hous) n. Slang. A heavily fortified and guarded building or apartment, often containing a laboratory where cocaine is converted to crack, in which a drug dealer dispenses crack to customers.

crack·ing (krāk'ing) n. Chemistry. Thermal decomposition, sometimes with catalysis, of a complex substance, especially the breaking of petroleum molecules into shorter molecules to extract low-boiling fractions such as gasoline. — adj. Excellent; great: had a cracking time at the dance. — adv. Used as an intensive: a cracking good show.

crack·le (krāk'əl) v. crack·led, crack·ling, crack·les. — v. intr. 1. To make a succession of slight sharp, snapping noises: a fire crackling in the wood stove.

2. To show liveliness or brilliance: a book that crackles with humor. 3. To become covered with a network of fine cracks; craze. — v. tr. 1. To crush (paper, for example) with sharp, snapping sounds. 2. To cause (china, for example) to become covered with a network of fine cracks. — n. 1. The act or sound of crackling.

2. a. A network of fine cracks on the surface of glazed pottery, china, or glassware. b. Crackleware. [Frequentative of CRACK.]

crack·le·ware (krāk'əl-wâr') n. Glazed pottery or glassware bearing a decorative surface network of fine cracks.

crack·ling (krāk'ling) n. 1. The production of a succession of slight sharp, snapping noises. 2. cracklings. The crisp bits that remain after rendering fat from meat or frying or roasting the skin, especially of a pig or a goose. [Sense 2, Dutch krakeling, from obsolete Dutch kraeckelingh, from Middle Dutch krākelinc, from krāken, to crack. See CRACKNEL.]

crack·ly (krāk'lē) adj. crack·li·er, crack·li·est. Likely to crackle; crisp.

crack·nel (krāk'nəl) n. 1. A hard, crisp biscuit. 2. cracknels. Crisp bits of fried pork fat; cracklings. [Middle English crakenele, alteration of Old French crachelin, from Middle Dutch krākelinc, small cake, from krāken, to crack. See gerə-2 in Appendix.]

crack·pot (krāk'pöt') n. An eccentric person, especially one with bizarre ideas. [CRACK(ED) + POT¹, skull (obsolete).]

crack·up or crack-up (krāk'üp') n. Informal. 1. A crash, as one involving an airplane or an automobile. 2. A mental or physical breakdown.

Crac-ow also Kra-ków (kräk'ou, krä'kou, -kōof) A city of southern Poland on the Vistula River south-southeast of Warsaw. Founded in the eighth century A.D., it was the national capital from 1305 to 1595. Population, 740,300.

-cracy suff. Government; rule: meritocracy. [French -cratie, from Old French, from Late Latin -cratia, from Greek -kratia, from kratos, strength, power. See kar- in Appendix.]

cradle (kräd'l) n. 1. A small low bed for an infant, often furnished with rockers. 2. a. The earliest period of life: from the cradle to the grave. b. A place of origin; a birthplace: the cradle of civilization. 3. a. A framework of wood or metal used to support something, such as a ship undergoing construction or repair. b. A framework used to protect an injured limb. 4. A low flat framework that rolls on casters, used by a mechanic working beneath an automobile. Also called creeper. 5. The part of a telephone that contains the connecting switch upon which the receiver and mouthpiece unit is supported. 6. a. A frame projecting above a scythe, used to catch grain as it is cut so that it can be laid flat. b. A scythe equipped with such a frame. 7. A boxlike device furnished with rockers, used for washing gold-bearing dirt. — v. cradled, cradling, cradles. — v. tr. 1. a. To place or retain in or as if in a cradle. b. To care for or nurture in infancy. c. To hold or support protectively: cradled the cat in his arms. 2. To reap (grain) with a cradle. 3. To place or support (a ship, for example) in a cradle. 4. To wash (gold-bearing dirt) in a cradle. — v. intr. Obsolete. To lie in or as if in a cradle. [Middle English cradel, from Old English.] — cradler n.

cradle-board (kräd'l-bôrd', -bôrd') n. A board or frame on which an infant is secured, as by binding or wrapping in a blanket, used by certain Native American peoples as a portable cradle and for carrying an infant on the back.

cradle cap (kräd'l kăp) n. A form of dermatitis that occurs in infants and is characterized by heavy, yellow, crusted lesions on the scalp.

cradle-song (kräd'l-sông', -sông') n. A lullaby.

craft (krăft) n. 1. Skill in doing or making something, as in the arts; proficiency. See Synonyms at art¹. 2. Skill in evasion or deception; guile. 3. a. An occupation or trade requiring manual dexterity or skilled artistry. b. The membership of such an occupation or trade; guild. 4. pl. craft. A boat, ship, or aircraft. — v. tr. craft-ed, craft-ing, crafts. 1. To make by hand. 2. Usage Problem. To make or construct (something) in a manner suggesting great care or ingenuity: “It was not the Chamber of Commerce that crafted the public policies that have resulted in a $26 billion annual subvention to the farmers” (William F. Buckley, Jr.). [Middle English, from Old English cræft.] — craft'er n.

USAGE NOTE: Craft has been used as a verb since the Old English period and was used in Middle English to refer specifically to the artful construction of a text or discourse. In recent years, crafted, the past participle of craft, has enjoyed a vogue as a participle referring to well-wrought writing. This may be a sign that the Jamesian conception of the literary muse has begun to yield to a Trollopian conception of literature as a kind of intellectual handicraft; or it may indicate little more than the desperation with which book reviewers seize on any novel adjective. In any event, the usage is more acceptable when applied to literary works than to other sorts of writing, and more acceptable as a participle than as a verb. It was acceptable to 73 percent of the Usage Panel in the phrase beautifully crafted prose. By contrast, only 35 percent of the Panel accepted the sentence The planners crafted their proposal so as to anticipate the objections of local businesses.

craft beer (kräft bîr) n. A distinctively flavored beer that is brewed and distributed regionally. Also called craft brew crafts·man (kräfts'mən) n. A man who practices a craft with great skill.

—crafts'man·like' adj. —crafts'man·ly adj. —crafts'man·ship' n.

crafts·people (kräfts'pē'pəl) pl.n. Artisans considered as a group.

crafts·per·son (kräfts'pûr'sən) n. A craftsman or a craftswoman.

crafts·wom·an (kräfts'wōm'ən) n. A woman who practices a craft with great skill.

craft union (kräft yōon'yən) n. A labor union limited in membership to workers engaged in the same craft. Also called horizontal union craft·work (kräft'wûrk') n. Work made or done by craftspeople. —craft'·work'er n.

craft·y (kräft'tē) adj. craft·i·er, craft·i·est. 1. Skilled in or marked by underhandedness, deviousness, or deception. See Synonyms at sly. 2. Chiefly British. Skillful; dexterous. [Middle English, from Old English cræftig, strong, skillful, from cræft, skill.] —craft'i·ly adv. —craft'i·ness n.

crag (kräg) n. A steeply projecting mass of rock forming part of a rugged cliff or headland. [Middle English, from Welsh craig, or Scottish Gaelic creagh.] —crag'ged (kräg'ïd) adj.

crag·gy (kräg'ē) adj. crag·gi·er, crag·gi·est. 1. Having crags: craggy terrain. 2. Rugged and uneven: a craggy face. —crag'gi·ly adv. —crag'gi·ness n.

Craig (kräg), Edward Gordon. 1872-1966. British theatrical producer, director, and designer whose innovative productions and simplified stage designs influenced modern theater.

Craig·av·on (krā-gäv'ən, -gā'vən), First Viscount Title of James Craig. 1871-1940. Irish statesman who opposed home rule for Ulster and was Northern Ireland's first prime minister (1921-1940).

Crai·gie (krā'gē), Sir William Alexander. 1876-1957. British lexicographer and philologist who was joint editor of the Oxford English Dictionary (1901-1933).

Cra-io-va (krä-yō'və, krä-yô'vä) A city of southwest Romania west of Bucharest. Built on the site of a Roman settlement, it was destroyed by an earthquake in 1790 and burned by the Turks in 1802. Population, 260,422.

crake (krāk) n. Any of several short-billed birds of the family Rallidae, such as the corncrake. [Middle English, crow, probably from Old Norse krāka. See gerə² in Appendix.]

cram (kräm) v. crammed, cram-ming, crams. — v. tr. 1. To force, press, or squeeze into an insufficient space; stuff. 2. To fill too tightly. 3. a. To gorge with food. b. To eat quickly and greedily. 4. Informal. To prepare (students) hastily for an impending examination. — v. intr. 1. To gorge oneself with food. 2. Informal. To study hastily for an impending examination: was up all night cramming for the history midterm. — n. 1. A group that has been crammed together; a crush. 2. Informal. Hasty study for an imminent examination. [Middle English crammen, from Old English crammian. See ger- in Appendix.]

—cram'mer n.

Cram (kräm), Donald James. Born 1919. American chemist. He shared a 1987 Nobel Prize for creating artificial molecules that can mimic vital chemical reactions.

Cram (kräm), Ralph Adams. 1863-1942. American architect and noted exponent of the Gothic revival. He designed part of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine in New York City.

cram-be (kräm'bē) n. Any of certain Old World annual plants of the genus Crambe in the mustard family, cultivated for their seeds, which yield a useful oil similar to rape oil. [Latin crambē, cabbage, from Greek krambē.]

cram-bo (kräm'bō) n. pl. cram-boes or cram-bos. 1. A word game in which a player or team must find and express a rhyme for a word or line presented by the opposing player or team. 2. Doggerel. [Obsolete crambe, cabbage, from Latin crambē (repetīta), (warmed-over) cabbage, said of pedestrian writing, from Greek krambē.]

cramp¹ (krämp) n. 1. A sudden, involuntary, spasmodic muscular contraction causing severe pain, often occurring in the leg or shoulder as the result of strain or chill. 2. A temporary partial paralysis of habitually or excessively used muscles. 3. cramps. Spasmodic contractions of the uterus, such as those occurring during menstruation or labor, usually causing pain in the abdomen that may radiate to the lower back and thighs. — v. cramped, cramp-ing, cramps. — v. tr. To affect with or as if with a cramp. — v. intr. To suffer from or experience cramps. [Middle English crampe, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

cramp² (krämp) n. 1. A frame with an adjustable part to hold pieces together; a clamp. 2. A cramp iron. 3. A compressing or restraining force, influence, or thing. 4. A confined position or part. — v. tr. cramped, cramp-ing, cramps. 1. To hold together with a cramp. 2. To shut in so closely as to restrict the physical freedom of: were cramped in the tiny cubicle. 3. a. To steer (the wheels of a vehicle) to make a turn. b. To jam (a wheel) by a short turn. — adj. 1. Restricted; narrowed. 2. Difficult to read or decipher. — idiom. cramp (one's) style. To restrict or prevent from free action or expression. [Probably Middle Dutch crampe, hook, cramp.]

cramp-fish (krämp'fish') n. pl. crampfish or cramp-fish-es. See electric ray. [From CRAMP¹ (from its ability to give electric shocks).]

cramp iron (krämp ī'ərn) n. A bar, usually of iron, with right-angle bends at both ends, used for permanently holding together stones, timber, and other materials used in building.

cram-pon (kräm'pŏn', -pən) n. 1. Often crampons. A hinged pair of curved iron bars for raising heavy objects, such as stones or timber. 2. An iron spike attached to the shoe to prevent slipping when walking on ice or climbing. In this sense, also called climbing iron [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

cram school (kräm skōōl) n. A school especially in Japan that prepares its students for university entrance examinations by way of an accelerated curriculum.

Cra-nach (krä'näKH), Lucas. Known as "the Elder." 1472-1553. German painter and engraver noted for his many portraits and religious works, some of which depict the theological views of his friend Martin Luther.

cran-ber-ry (krän'bēr'ē) n. 1. A mat-forming, evergreen shrub (Vaccinium macrocarpum) of eastern North America, having pink flowers and tart, red, edible berries. 2. The berries of this plant, used in sauces, jellies, relishes, and beverages. 3. Any of several similar or related plants, especially Vaccinium oxycoccus. [Partial translation of Low German Kraanbere: Kraan, crane (from Middle Low German kran); see gerə-² in Appendix + bere, berry.]

cranberry bush (krän'bēr'ē böōsh) n. A North American shrub (Viburnum trilobum) having broad clusters of white flowers and scarlet fruit. Also called cranberry tree, highbush cranberry.

Cran-brook (krän'brōōk') A city of southeast British Columbia, Canada, near the Alberta and Idaho borders. It is a trade center in a lumbering and mining region. Population, 15,915.

Cran-dall (krän'dl), Prudence. 1803-1890. American educator and reformer who in 1833 was prosecuted for announcing her plan to open a school for Black girls in Connecticut.

crane (krān) n. 1. a. Any of various large wading birds of the family Gruidae, having a long neck, long legs, and a long bill. b. A similar bird, such as a heron. 2. A machine for hoisting and moving heavy objects by means of cables attached to a movable boom. 3. Any of various devices with a swinging arm, as in a fire-place for suspending a pot. — v. craned, cran-ing, cranes. — v. tr. 1. To hoist or move with or as if with a crane. 2. To strain and stretch (the neck, for example) in order to see better. — v. intr. 1. To stretch one's neck toward something for a better view. 2. To be irresolute; hesitate. [Middle English, from Old English cran. See gerə-² in Appendix.]

Crane (krān), (Harold) Hart. 1899-1932. American poet whose works, including The Bridge (1930), celebrate America's cultural past, present, and future.

Crane (krān), Stephen. 1871-1900. American writer whose works include The Red Badge of Courage (1895) and the short story "The Open Boat" (1898).

crane fly (krān flī) n. Any of numerous long-legged, slender-bodied flies of the family Tipulidae, having the general appearance of a large mosquito. Also called daddy longlegs cranes-bill (krānz'bil') n. See geranium (n., sense 1).

Cran-ford (krān'fərd) A community of northeast New Jersey west of Elizabeth. Mainly residential, it has varied industries. Population, 22,624.

crani- pref. Variant of cranio-.

crani-a (krā'nē-ə) n. A plural of cranium.

crani-al (krā'nē-əl) adj. Of or relating to the skull or cranium. [From CRANIUM.] —crani-al-ly adv.

cranial index (krā'nē-əl ĭn'děks') n. The ratio of the maximum breadth to the maximum length of the skull, multiplied by 100.

cranial nerve (krā'nē-əl nûrv) n. Any of several nerves that arise in pairs from the brainstem and reach the periphery through openings in the skull. There are 12 such pairs in mammals, birds, and reptiles and usually 10 pairs in amphibians and fish.

crani-ate (krā'nē-ĭt, -āt') adj. Having a skull or cranium. — n. An animal or a human being having a skull or cranium.

crani-ec-to-my (krā'nē-ĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. crani-ec-to-mies. Surgical removal of a portion of the cranium.

cranio- or crani- pref. Cranium: craniometer. [From CRANIUM.]

crani-o-cer-e-bral (krā'nē-ō-sĕr'ə-brəl, -sə-rĕ'brəl) adj. Of or relating to both the cranium and the cerebrum.

crani-o-fa-cial (krā'nē-ō-fā'shəl) adj. Of or involving both the cranium and the face: craniofacial surgery.

crani-ol-o-gy (krā'nē-ōl'ə-jĕ) n. The scientific study of the characteristics of the skull, such as size and shape, especially in human beings.

—crani-o-log'i-cal (-ə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl) adj. —crani-o-log'i-cal-ly adv.

—crani-ol'o-gist n.

crani-om-e-ter (krā'nē-ōm'ĭ-tĕr) n. An instrument or device used to measure the skull. —crani-o-met'ric (-ə-mĕt'rik), crani-o-met'ri-cal adj.

crani-om-e-try (krā'nē-ōm'ĭ-trĕ) n. Measurement of the skull to determine its characteristics as related to sex, race, or body type.

cra·ni·o·sac·ral (krā'nē-ō-sāk'rəl, -sā'krəl) adj. 1. Of or associated with both the cranium and the sacrum. 2. Of or relating to the parasympathetic nervous system.

cra·ni·ot·o·my (krā'nē-ōt'ə-mē) n. pl. cra·ni·ot·o·mies. 1. Surgical incision into the skull. 2. The cutting or breaking of the fetal skull to reduce its size for removal when normal delivery is not possible.

cra·ni·um (krā'nē-əm) n. pl. cra·ni·ums or cra·ni·a (-nē-ə). 1. The skull of a vertebrate. 2. The portion of the skull enclosing the brain; the braincase. [Middle English craneum, from Medieval Latin cranium, from Greek kranion. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

crank¹ (krängk) n. 1. A device for transmitting rotary motion, consisting of a handle or arm attached at right angles to a shaft. 2. A clever turn of speech; a verbal conceit: quips and cranks. 3. A peculiar or eccentric idea or action. 4. Informal. a. A grouchy person. b. An eccentric person, especially one who is unduly zealous. — v. cranked, crank·ing, cranks. — v. tr. 1. a. To start or operate (an engine, for example) by turning a handle. b. To move or operate (a window, for example) by or as if by turning a handle. 2. To make into the shape of a crank; bend. 3. To provide with a handle that is used in turning. — v. intr. 1. To turn a handle. 2. To wind in a zigzagging course. — adj. Of, being, or produced by an eccentric person: a crank letter; a crank phone call. — phrasal verbs. crank out. To produce, especially mechanically and rapidly: cranks out memo after memo. crank up. 2. To cause to start or get started as if by turning a crank: cranked up a massive publicity campaign. 3. To cause to intensify, as in volume or force: cranks up the sound on the stereo. [Middle English, from Old English cranc-, as in crancstæf, weaving implement.] crank² (krängk) adj. Nautical. Liable to capsize; unstable. [Origin unknown.]

crank·case (krängk'kās') n. The metal case enclosing the crankshaft and associated parts in a reciprocating engine.

crank·pin also crank pin (krängk'pīn') n. A bar or cylinder in the arm of a crank to which a reciprocating member or connecting rod is attached.

crank·shaft (krängk'shäft') n. A shaft that turns or is turned by a crank.

crank·y¹ (kräng'kē) adj. crank·i·er, crank·i·est. 1. Having a bad disposition; peevish. 2. Having eccentric ways; odd. 3. Full of bends and turns; crooked: a cranky mountain road. 4. Working unpredictably; erratic: a cranky old truck. 5. Rickety; loose. — crank'i·ly adv. — crank'i·ness n.

crank·y² (kräng'kē) adj. crank·i·er, crank·i·est. Nautical. Liable to capsize.

Cran·mer (krän'mər), Thomas. 1489-1556. English prelate who as archbishop of Canterbury (1533-1553) was instrumental in the marital machinations of Henry VIII, revised the Book of Common Prayer (1552), and instituted other reforms. Under Mary I, a Roman Catholic, he was convicted of heresy and burned at the stake.

cran·ny (krän'ē) n. pl. cran·nies. A small opening, as in a wall or rock face; a crevice. [Middle English crani, perhaps alteration of Old French cren, cran, notch, from crener*, to notch.] —cran'ned adj.

Cran·ston (krän'stən) A city of east-central Rhode Island south of Providence. It was settled in 1636. Population, 76,060.

crap¹ (krăp) Vulgar Slang. n. 1. Excrement. 2. An act of defecating.

3. Worthless nonsense; rubbish. — v. intr. crapped, crap·ping, craps. To defecate. [Middle English crappe, chaff, from Old French crappe, from Medieval Latin crappa, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

crap² (krăp) Games. n. See craps. — v. crapped, crap·ping, craps. To make a losing throw in the game of craps. [Back-formation from CRAPS.]

cape (krāp) n. 1. See crepe (n., sense 1). 2. A black band worn, as on the sleeve, as a sign of mourning. Also called crepe — v. tr. craped, crap·ing, crapes. To cover or drape with or as if with cape. [Alteration of French crêpe. See CREPE.]

cape·hang·er (krāp'hăng'gər) n. A morose, gloomy, or pessimistic person.

cape jasmine (krāp jăz'mĭn) n. An evergreen shrub (Tabernaemontana divaricata) native to India and cultivated as an ornamental in warm regions for its fragrant white flowers. [From the crinkled lobes of the corolla.]

cape myrtle also crepe myrtle (krāp mûr'tl) n. A deciduous shrub (Lagerstroemia indica) native to China and widely cultivated in warm regions for its showy clusters of variously colored flowers with crinkled petals.

crap·per (krăp'ər) n. Vulgar Slang. A toilet. [From CRAP¹.]

crap·pie (kröp'ē) n. pl. crap·pies. Either of two edible North American sunfishes, the black crappie (Pomoxis nigromaculatus) or the white crappie (P. annularis). [Canadian French crapet.]

craps (krăps) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. A gambling game played with two dice in which a first throw of 7 or 11 wins, a first throw of 2, 3, or 12 loses the bet, and a first throw of any other number (a point) must be repeated to win before a 7 is thrown, which loses both the bet and the dice. 2. A losing throw in this game. Also called *crap*² [Louisiana French, game of hazard, from English crabs, lowest throw in hazard, from CRAB¹, or CRAB².]

Crap·sey (krăp'sē), Adelaide. 1878-1914. American poet many of whose works are written in cinquains, a form she developed.

crap·shoot (krăp'shōōt') n. Slang. A risky enterprise.

crap·shoot·er (krăp'shōō'tər) n. Games. One who plays craps.

crap·u·lence (krăp'yə-ləns) n. 1. Sickness caused by excessive eating or drinking. 2. Excessive indulgence; intemperance. [From CRAPULENT, sick from gluttony, from Late Latin crāpulentus, very drunk, from Latin crāpula, intoxication, from Greek kraipalē.] —crap'u·lent adj. —crap'u·lous adj.

crash¹ (krăsh) v. crashed, crash-ing, crash-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To break violently or noisily; smash. b. To undergo sudden damage or destruction on impact: Their car crashed into a guardrail. The airplane crashed over the ocean. 2. To make a sudden loud noise: breakers crashing against the rocks. 3. To move noisily or so as to cause damage: went crashing through the woods. 4. To fail suddenly, as a market or an economy. 5. Slang. To undergo a period especially of depression as an aftereffect of drug-taking. 6. Slang. a. To find temporary lodging or shelter, as for the night. b. To go to sleep. — v. tr. 1. To cause to crash. 2. To dash to pieces; smash. 3. Informal. To join or enter (a party, for example) without invitation. — n. 1. A sudden loud noise, as of an object breaking. 2. a. A smashing to pieces. b. A collision, as between two automobiles. See Synonyms at collision. 3. A sudden economic or fiscal failure. 4. Slang. Mental depression after drug-taking. — adj. Informal. Of or characterized by an intensive effort to produce or accomplish: a crash course on income-tax preparation; a crash diet.

—idiom. crash and burn. Slang. 1. To fail utterly. 2. To fall asleep from exhaustion. 3. To wipe out, as in skateboarding. [Middle English crasschen; probably akin to crasen, to shatter. See CRAZE.] —crash'er n.

crash² (krăsh) n. 1. A coarse, light, unevenly woven fabric of cotton or linen, used for towels and curtains. 2. Starched reinforced fabric used to strengthen a book binding or the spine of a bound book. [From Russian krashenina, colored linen, from krashenie, coloring, from krasit', to color. See ker-³ in Appendix.]

Crash·aw (krăsh'ô), Richard. 1613?-1649. English metaphysical poet best known for his collection of religious verse, Steps to the Temple (1646).

crash dive (krăsh dīv) n. A rapid dive made by a submarine, especially in an emergency.

crash-dive (krăsh'dīv') v. intr. crash--dived or crash--dove (-dōv'), crash·div-ing, crash--dives. To undergo a crash dive.

crash helmet (krăsh hĕl'mīt) n. A padded helmet, as one worn by bicyclists, motorcyclists, or aviators, to protect the head in case of accident.

crash-ing (krăsh'īng) adj. Total; absolute: a crashing bore.

crash-land (krăsh'länd') v. crash--land-ed, crash--land-ing, crash--lands. — v. tr. To land (an aircraft or a spacecraft) under emergency conditions, usually with damage to the craft. — v. intr. To land an aircraft or a spacecraft under emergency conditions.

crash landing (krăsh lăn'dīng) n. An emergency landing by an aircraft or a spacecraft.

crash pad (krăsh păd) n. 1. Padding inside vehicles, such as automobiles or tanks, for protecting occupants in the event of an accident or sudden stop.

2. Slang. A place affording free and usually temporary lodging: "the head shops and crash pads of the psychedelic past" (Wall Street Journal).

crash truck (krāsh trūk) n. A truck specially designed and equipped to rescue victims of an air crash. Also called crash wagon crash-wor-thy (krāsh'wūr'thē) adj. Capable of withstanding the effects of a crash: crashworthy cars. —crash'wor'thi-ness n.

crass (krās) adj. crass-er, crass-est. So crude and unrefined as to be lacking in discrimination and sensibility. [Latin crassus, dense.] —crass'i-tude' (-ī-tōōd', -tyōōd'), crass'ness n. —crass'ly adv.

Cras-sus (krās'əs), Marcus Licinius. 115?-53 B.C. Roman politician and general who joined Julius Caesar and Pompey in the first triumvirate to challenge the senate's power (60). Hungry for military glory, he invaded Parthia and was killed in battle.

-crat suff. A participant in or supporter of a specified form of government: technocrat. [French -crate, from Greek -kratēs, ruler, from kratos, strength, power. See -CRACY.]

crate (krāt) n. 1. A container, such as a slatted wooden case, used for storing or shipping. 2. Slang. An old, rickety vehicle, especially a decrepit automobile or aircraft. — v. tr. crat-ed, crat-ing, crates. To pack into a container, such as a slatted wooden case. [Latin crātis, wickerwork.]

crater (krā'tər) n. 1. A bowl-shaped depression at the mouth of a volcano or geyser. 2. a. A bowl-shaped depression in a surface made by an explosion or the impact of a body, such as a meteoroid. b. A pit; a hollow. 3. Variant of krater. — v. crat-ered, crat-er-ing, crat-ers. — v. tr. To make craters in: "The missiles did not... crater the airfield" (Tom Clancy). — v. intr. To form a crater or craters. [Latin crātēr, from Greek kratēr, mixing vessel. See kerə- in Appendix.]

Cra-ter (krā'tər) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Hydra and Corvus. [Latin crātēr, mixing bowl, crater.]

Crater, Joseph Force. 1889-1937?. American jurist. A justice of the New York Supreme Court, he mysteriously disappeared amid speculation of corruption in 1930 and was declared legally dead in 1937.

Crater Lake (krā'tər lāk) A lake of southwest Oregon in a volcanic crater of the Cascade Range. At 589.3 m (1,932 ft) deep, it is the second-deepest lake in North America. The lake and surrounding parkland are popular tourist attractions.

crater-let (krā'tər-līt) n. A small crater.

cravat (krə-văt') n. A scarf or band of fabric worn around the neck as a tie. [French cravate, necktie worn by Croatian mercenaries in the service of France, from Cravate, a Croatian, from German dialectal Krabate, from Serbo-Croatian Hrvāt.]

crave (krāv) v. craved, crav-ing, craves. — v. tr. 1. To have an intense desire for. See Synonyms at desire. 2. To need urgently; require. 3. To beg earnestly for; implore. See Synonyms at beg. — v. intr. To have an eager or intense desire. [Middle English craven, from Old English cræfian, to beg.]

—crav'er n. —crav'ing-ly adv.

crav-en (krāv'vən) adj. Characterized by abject fear; cowardly. — n. A coward. [Middle English cravant, perhaps from Old French crevant, present participle of crever, to burst, from Latin crepāre, to break.] —crav-en-ly adv.

—crav-en-ness n.

crav-ing (krāv'vīng) n. A consuming desire; a yearning.

craw (krô) n. 1. The crop of a bird or insect. 2. The stomach of an animal.

—idiom. stick in (one's) craw. To cause abiding discontent and resentment in (one). [Middle English crawe.]

craw-dad (krô'dād') n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See crayfish (n., sense 1).

[Probably alteration of CRAWFISH.]

craw-fish (krô'fish') n. Variant of crayfish. — v. intr. craw-fished, craw-fish-ing, craw-fish-es. Informal. To withdraw from an undertaking.

Craw-ford (krô'fərd), Francis Marion. 1854-1909. American writer of more than 40 romantic novels, including The Three Fates (1892) and The White Nun (1909).

Craw-ford (krô'fərd), Joan. 1908-1977. American actress noted for her portrayals of tough-minded, ambitious women in films such as The Woman (1939) and Mildred Pierce (1945), for which she won an Academy Award.

Craw-ford (krô'fərd), Thomas. 1814-1857. American sculptor and noted exponent of neoclassicism. His works include Armed Freedom atop the U.S. Capitol.

Craw-ford (krô'fərd), William Harris. 1772-1834. American public official who held numerous governmental posts and was one of four candidates for President in the election decided by the House of Representatives (1824).

crawl¹ (krôl) v. intr. crawled, crawl-ing, crawls. 1. To move slowly on the hands and knees or by dragging the body along the ground; creep. 2. To advance slowly, feebly, laboriously, or with frequent stops: We crawled along until we reached the open road. 3. To proceed or act servilely. 4. To be or feel as if swarming or covered with moving things: The accident scene was crawling with police officers. My flesh crawled in horror. See Synonyms at teem¹. 5. To swim the crawl. — n. 1. The action of moving slowly on the hands or knees or dragging the body along the ground. 2. An extremely slow pace: Traffic was moving at a crawl. 3. Sports. A rapid swimming stroke consisting of alternating overarm strokes and a flutter kick. 4. A set of letters or figures that move across, up, or down a movie or television screen, usually giving information, such as film credits or weather alerts. [Middle English craulen, from Old Norse krafla. See gerbh- in Appendix.] —crawl'ing-ly adv.

crawl² (krôl) n. A pen in shallow water, as for confining fish or turtles. [Afrikaans kraal, enclosure for animals. See KRAAL.]

crawl·er (krô'lər) n. 1. One that crawls, especially an early form of certain insect larvae. 2. A vehicle, such as a bulldozer, that moves on continuous belts of metal plates.

Craw·ley (krô'lē) An urban district of southeast England near London. It was designated a new town in 1946 to help alleviate overcrowding in London. Population, 72,700.

crawl·space or crawl space (krô'l'spās) n. A low or narrow space, such as one beneath the upper or lower story of a building, that gives workers access to plumbing or wiring equipment.

crawl·y (krô'lē) adj. crawl·i·er, crawl·i·est. Informal. 1. Creepy. 2. Feeling as if covered with moving things.

cray·fish (krā'fish') also craw·fish (krô'l'-) n. pl. crayfish or cray·fish·es also crawfish or craw·fish·es. 1. Any of various freshwater crustaceans of the genera Cambarus and Astacus, resembling a lobster but considerably smaller.

Regional. Also called crawdad, mudbug. 2. See spiny lobster. [By folk etymology from Middle English crevice, from Old French crevice, perhaps from Old High German krebiz, edible crustacean. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The crayfish, also known as the crawfish, owes its name to a misunderstanding. The actual source of the word may be the Old High German word krebiz, “edible crustacean,” or a word related to it. From this Germanic source came Old French crevice, which when taken into English became crevice (first recorded in a document written in 1311-1312). In Old French and Middle English these words designated the crayfish. People began to pronounce and spell the last part of this word as if it were fish, the first fish spelling (actually fysshes) being recorded in 1555. Because of a variation in Anglo-Norman pronunciation, two forms of the word have come down to Modern English: crayfish and crawfish.

cray·on (krā'ŏn', -ən) n. 1. A stick of colored wax, charcoal, or chalk, used for drawing. 2. A drawing made with one of these sticks. — v. tr. cray·oned, cray·on·ing, cray·ons. To draw, color, or decorate with a stick of colored wax, charcoal, or chalk. [French, diminutive of craie, chalk, from Latin crēta.]

—cray·on·ist (-ə-nĭst) n.

craze (krāz) v. crazed, craz·ing, craz·es. — v. tr. 1. To cause to become mentally deranged or obsessed; make insane. 2. To produce a network of fine cracks in the surface or glaze of. — v. intr. 1. To become mentally deranged or obsessed; go insane. 2. To become covered with fine cracks. — n. 1. A short-lived popular fashion; a fad. 2. A fine crack in a surface or glaze. [Middle English crasen, to shatter, of Scandinavian origin.]

cra·zy (krā'zē) adj. cra·zi·er, cra·zi·est. 1. Affected with madness; insane. 2. Informal. Departing from proportion or moderation, especially: a. Possessed by enthusiasm or excitement: The crowd at the game went crazy. b. Immoderately fond; infatuated: was crazy about boys. c. Intensely involved or preoccupied: is crazy about cars and racing. d. Foolish or impractical; senseless: a crazy scheme for making quick money. — n. pl. cra-zies. One who is or appears insane: “To them she is not a brusque crazy, but ‘appropriately passionate’” (Mary McGroary). —idiom. like crazy. Informal. To an exceeding degree: They were running around like crazy. —cra’zi-ly adv. —cra’zi-ness n.

crazy bone (krā’zē bōn) n. Informal. The funny bone.

Crazy Horse (krā’zē hōrs’), Real name Tashunca-Uitco. 1849?-1877. Sioux leader who militarily resisted the encroachment of whites in the Black Hills and joined Sitting Bull in the defeat of Gen. George A. Custer at Little Bighorn (1876).

crazy quilt (krā’zē kwilt) n. 1. A patchwork quilt of pieces of cloth of various shapes, colors, and sizes, arranged haphazardly. 2. A disorderly mixture; a hodgepodge: The map was a crazy quilt of districts and precincts.

cra-zy-weed (krā’zē-wēd’) n. See locoweed. [From its toxic effect on some animals.]

C-re-ac-tive protein (sē’rē-āk’tiv prō’tēn’) n. Abbr. CRP A globulin that appears in the blood in certain acute inflammatory conditions, such as rheumatic fever, bacterial infections, and neoplastic diseases. [C-(polysaccharide) reactive.] creak (krēk) v. intr. creaked, creak-ing, creaks. 1. To make a grating or squeaking sound. 2. To move with a creaking sound. — n. A grating or squeaking sound. [Middle English creken, croak, complain, of imitative origin.] —creak’ing-ly adv.

creak-y (krē’kē) adj. creak-i-er, creak-i-est. 1. Tending or likely to creak. 2. Dilapidated; decrepit. —creak’i-ly adv. —creak’i-ness n.

cream (krēm) n. 1. a. The yellowish fatty component of unhomogenized milk that tends to accumulate at the surface. b. Any of various substances resembling or containing cream: hand cream. 2. Color. A pale yellow to yellowish white. 3. The choicest part: the cream of the crop. — v. creamed, cream-ing, creams. — v. intr. 1. To form cream. 2. To form foam or froth at the top. — v. tr. 1. To remove the cream from; skim. 2. To select or remove the best part from: Many special schools cream off the highest achievers. 3. To beat into a creamy consistency. 4. To prepare or cook in or with a cream sauce. 5. To add cream to. 6. Slang. To defeat overwhelmingly: The home team was creamed last night. [Middle English creme, from Old French craine (from Late Latin crānum, of Celtic origin), and from Old French creme (from Latin chrīisma, an anointing, from Greek khrisma, unguent, from khriein, to anoint); see ghrēi- in Appendix.] —cream adj.

cream cheese (krēm chēz) n. A soft white cheese made of cream and milk.

cream-col-ored (krēm’kūl’ərd) adj. Color. Of the color of cream; yellowish-white.

cream-cups (krēm'kūps') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.). An annual plant (Platystemon californicus) native to the southwest United States and Mexico and cultivated for its showy cream-colored to yellowish flowers.

cream-er (krēm'mər) n. 1. A small jug or pitcher for cream. 2. A machine or device for separating cream from milk. 3. A refrigerator in which milk is placed to form cream. 4. A substitute for cream: a nondairy coffee creamer.

cream-er-y (krēm'mə-rē) n. pl. cream-er-ies. An establishment where dairy products are prepared or sold.

cream of tartar (krēm ūv tār'tər) n. See potassium bitartrate.

cream puff also cream-puff (krēm'pūf') n. 1. A shell of light pastry filled with whipped cream, custard, or ice cream. 2. Slang. A weakling. 3. Slang. An old, especially secondhand car in very good condition.

cream sauce (krēm sôs) n. A white sauce made by cooking together a mixture of flour and butter with milk or cream.

cream soda (krēm sō'də) n. A sweet carbonated drink with a vanilla flavor.

cream-y (krēm'mē) adj. cream-i-er, cream-i-est. Rich in or resembling cream. —cream'i-ly adv. —cream'i-ness n.

crease (krēs) n. 1. A line made by pressing, folding, or wrinkling. 2. Sports.
a. A rectangular area marked off in front of the goal in hockey and lacrosse.
b. One of the lines in cricket marking off the positions of the bowler and batter or the space between two of these lines. — v. creased, creasing, creases.
— v. tr. 1. To make a pressed, folded, or wrinkled line in. 2. To graze or wound superficially with a bullet. — v. intr. To become wrinkled. [Alteration of creaste, perhaps from Middle English creste, ridge. See CREST.] —crease/less adj.
—crease/proof' adj. —creas'er n. —creas'y adj.

cre·ate (krē-āt') v. tr. cre-at-ed, cre-at-ing, cre-ates. 1. To cause to exist; bring into being. See Synonyms at found¹. 2. To give rise to; produce: That remark created a stir. 3. To invest with an office or title; appoint. 4. To produce through artistic or imaginative effort: create a poem; create a role. — adj. Archaic. Created. [Middle English createn, from Latin creāre, creāt-. See ker-² in Appendix.]

cre·a·tine (krē'ə-tēn', -tīn) also cre·a·tin (-tīn) n. A nitrogenous organic acid, C₄H₉N₃O₂, that is found in the muscle tissue of vertebrates mainly in the form of phosphocreatine and supplies energy for muscle contraction. [Greek kreas, ·kreat-, flesh; see kreuə- in Appendix + -INE².] creatine kinase (krē'ə-tēn' kī'nās') n. An enzyme present in muscle, brain, and other tissues of vertebrates that catalyzes the reversible conversion of ADP and phosphocreatine into ATP and creatine.

creatine phosphate (krē'ə-tēn' fōs'fāt') n. See phosphocreatine.

cre·at·i·nine (krē-ăt'n-ēn', -in) n. A creatine anhydride, C₄H₇N₃O, formed by the metabolism of creatine, that is found in muscle tissue and blood and normally excreted in the urine as a metabolic waste. [CREATIN(E) + -INE².]

cre·a·tion (krē-ā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of creating. b. The fact or state of having been created. 2. The act of investing with a new office or title. 3. a. The world and all things in it. b. All creatures or a class of creatures. 4. Creation. Theology. The act of God by which the world was brought into existence. Often used with the. 5. An original product of human invention or artistic imagination: the latest creation in the field of computer design. —cre·a'tion·al adj.

cre·a·tion·ism (krē-ā'shə-nīz'əm) n. The position that the account of the creation of the universe given at the beginning of the Bible is literally true.

—cre·a'tion·ist adj. & n.

creation science (krē-ā'shən sī'əns) n. An effort to give scientific proof for the account of the creation of the universe given at the beginning of the Bible.

cre·a·tive (krē-ā'tiv) adj. 1. Having the ability or power to create: Human beings are creative animals. 2. Productive; creating. 3. Characterized by originality and expressiveness; imaginative: creative writing. — n. One who displays productive originality: the creatives in the advertising department.

—cre·a'tive·ly adv. —cre·a'tiv'i·ty (-i-tē), cre·a'tive·ness n.

cre·a·tor (krē-ā'tər) n. 1. One that creates: the creator of a new television series; a born creator of trouble. 2. Creator. God. Used with the.

crea·ture (krē'chər) n. 1. Something created. 2. a. A living being, especially an animal. b. A human being. 3. One dependent on or subservient to another; a tool. —crea'tur·al adj. —crea'ture·li·ness n. —crea'ture·ly adj.

creature comfort (krē'chər kŭm'fərt) n. Something that contributes to physical comfort.

crèche (krësh) n. 1. A representation of the Nativity, usually with statues or figurines. 2. A hospital for foundlings. 3. Chiefly British. A day nursery. [French, from Old French crèche, crib, of Germanic origin.]

Cré·cy (krēs'ē, krā-sē') or Cré·cy-en-Pon·thieu (-än-pôn-tyœ') A town of northern France northwest of Amiens. It was the site of the first decisive battle of the Hundred Years' War (August 26, 1346), in which Edward III of England defeated Philip VI of France.

cre·dence (krēd'ns) n. 1. Acceptance as true or valid; belief. See Synonyms at belief. 2. Claim to acceptance; trustworthiness. 3. Recommendation; credentials: a letter of credence. 4. A small table or shelf for holding the bread, wine, and vessels of the Eucharist when they are not in use at the altar. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin crēdentia, from Latin crēdēns, crēdent- present participle of crēdere, to believe. See kerd- in Appendix.]

cre·den·tial (krī-děn'shəl) n. 1. That which entitles one to confidence, credit, or authority. 2. credentials. Evidence or testimonials concerning one's right to credit, confidence, or authority: The new ambassador presented her credentials to the president. — v. tr. Usage Problem. cre-den-tialed, cre-den-tial-ing, cre-den-tials. To supply with credentials: “trained, professional, credentialed child care” (Lee Salk). [From Medieval Latin crēdentiālis, giving authority, from crē-dentia, trust. See CREDENCE.]

USAGE NOTE: The participle credentialed is well established in reference to certified teachers and some other professions, but its more general use to mean “possessing professional or expert credentials” is still widely considered jargon. The sentence The board heard testimony from a number of credentialed witnesses was unacceptable to 85 percent of the Usage Panel.

cre-den-tial-ism (krī-dĕnʹshə-līzʹəm) n. Overemphasis on diplomas or degrees in giving jobs or conferring social status: “Neo-liberalism made useful points in its critique of vested interests, of bureaucratic follies [and] of credentialism” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.).

cre-den-za (krī-dĕnʹzə) n. A buffet, sideboard, or bookcase, especially one without legs. [Italian, from Medieval Latin crēdentia, trust (possibly from the practice of placing food and drink on a sideboard to be tasted by a servant before being served to ensure that it contained no poison). See CREDENCE.]

cred-i-bil-i-ty (krĕdʹə-bīlʹi-tē) n. 1. The quality, capability, or power to elicit belief: “America’s credibility must not be squandered, especially by its leaders” (Henry A. Kissinger). 2. A capacity for belief: a story that strained our credibility.

credibility gap (krĕdʹə-bīlʹi-tē gāp) n. 1. Public skepticism about the truth of statements, especially official claims and pronouncements: “The credibility gap [is] the result of a deliberate policy of artificial manipulation of official news” (Walter Lippmann). 2. Lack of trustworthiness. 3. A discrepancy or disparity, especially between words and actions.

cred-i-ble (krĕdʹə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being believed; plausible. See Synonyms at plausible. 2. Worthy of confidence; reliable. [Middle English, from Latin crēdibilis, from crēdere, to believe. See kerd- in Appendix.]

—credʹi-ble-ness n. —credʹi-bly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Credible is widely but incorrectly used where credulous would be appropriate, as in He was credible (should be credulous) enough to believe the manufacturer’s claims.

cred-it (krĕdʹit) n. Abbr. cr. 1. Belief or confidence in the truth of something. See Synonyms at belief. 2. A reputation for sound character or quality; standing. 3. A source of honor or distinction: She is a credit to her family. 4. Approval for an act, ability, or quality; praise: Why should he get all the credit? 5. Influence based on the good opinion or confidence of others. 6. Often credits. An acknowledgment of work done, as in the production of a motion picture or publication: At the end of the film we stayed to watch the credits. 7. a. Official certification or recognition that a student has successfully completed a course of study: He received full credit for his studies at a previous school. b. A unit of study so certified: This course carries three credits. 8. Reputation for solvency and integrity entitling a person to be trusted in buying or borrowing: You should have no trouble getting the loan if your credit is good. 9. a. An arrangement for deferred payment of a loan or purchase: a store that offers credit; bought my stereo on credit. b. The terms governing such an arrangement: low prices and easy credit. c. The time allowed for deferred payment: an automatic 30-day credit on all orders.

10. Accounting. a. The deduction of a payment made by a debtor from an amount due. b. The right-hand side of an account on which such amounts are entered. c. An entry or the sum of the entries on this side. d. The positive balance or amount remaining in a person's account. e. A credit line. — v. tr.

cred-it-ed, cred-it-ing, cred-its. 1. To believe in; trust: "She refused steadfastly to credit the reports of his death" (Agatha Christie). 2. a. To regard as having performed an action or being endowed with a quality: had to credit them with good intentions. b. To ascribe to a person; attribute: credit the invention to him. See Synonyms at attribute. 3. Accounting. a. To enter as a credit: credited $500 to her account. b. To make a credit entry in: credit an account. 4. To give or award an educational credit to. 5. Archaic. To bring honor or distinction to. [French, from Old French, from Old Italian credito, from Latin crēditum, loan, from neuter past participle of crēdere, to entrust. See kerd- in Appendix.]

cred-it-a-ble (krəd'ī-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Deserving of often limited praise or commendation: The student made a creditable effort on the essay. 2. Worthy of belief: a creditable story. 3. Deserving of commercial credit; creditworthy: a creditable customer. 4. That can be assigned. — cred'it-a-bil'i-ty, cred'it-a-ble-ness n. — cred'it-a-bly adv.

credit bureau (krəd'īt byōōr'ō) n. An organization to which business firms apply for credit information on prospective customers.

credit card (krəd'īt kārd) n. A card issued by a bank or business authorizing the holder to buy goods or services on credit. Also called charge card credit hour (krəd'īt our) n. A credit in a school or college, usually representing one hour of class per week for one term.

credit line (krəd'īt līn) n. 1. A line of copy acknowledging the source or origin of a news dispatch, published article, or other work. 2. The maximum amount of credit to be extended to a customer. In this sense, also called line of credit cred-i-tor (krəd'ī-tər) n. Abbr. cr. One to whom money or its equivalent is owed.

credit rating (krəd'īt rā'tīng) n. An estimate of the amount of credit that can be extended to a company or person without undue risk.

credit union (krĕd'it yōōn'yən) n. A cooperative organization that makes loans to its members at low interest rates.

cred-it-wor-thy (krĕd'it-wŭr'thē) adj. Having an acceptable credit rating.
—cred'it-wor'thi-ness n.

cre-do (krĕ'dō, krā'-) n. pl. cre-dos. 1. A creed. 2. Credo. a. The Apostles' Creed or the Nicene Creed. b. The musical setting for the Apostles' Creed or the Nicene Creed, as in a choral Mass. [Middle English, the Apostles' Creed, from Latin crĕdō, I believe (the first word of the Apostles' Creed or the Nicene Creed), first person sing. present tense of crĕdere, to believe. See kerd- in Appendix.]

cre-du-li-ty (krĭ-dōō'lĭ-tē, -dyōō'-) n. A disposition to believe too readily. [Middle English credulite, from Old French, from Latin crĕdulitās, from crĕdulus, credulous. See CREDULOUS.]

cred-u-lous (krĕj'ə-ləs) adj. 1. Disposed to believe too readily; gullible.

2. Arising from or characterized by credulity. See Usage Note at credible.

[From Latin crĕdulus, from crĕdere, to believe. See kerd- in Appendix.]

—cred'u-lous-ly adv. —cred'u-lous-ness n.

Cree (krĕ) n. pl. Cree or Crees. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting a large area from eastern Canada west to Alberta and the Great Slave Lake. Formerly located in central Canada, the Cree expanded westward and eastward in the 17th and 18th centuries, the western Cree adopting the Plains Indian life and the eastern Cree retaining their woodland culture. b. A member of this people.

2. The Algonquian language of the Cree.

creed (krĕd) n. 1. A formal statement of religious belief; a confession of faith.

2. A system of belief, principles, or opinions: laws banning discrimination on the basis of race or creed; an architectural creed that demanded simple lines. [Middle English crede, from Old English crĕda, from Latin crĕdō, I believe. See Credo.]

—creed'al (krĕd'l) adj.

creek (krĕk, krĭk) n. Abbr. cr. 1. A small stream, often a shallow or intermittent tributary to a river. Regional. Also called branch, *brook*¹*Regional.*, *kill*²*Regional.*, run.

2. A channel or stream running through a salt marsh: tidal creeks teeming with shore wildlife. 3. Chiefly British. A small inlet in a shoreline, extending farther inland than a cove.

—idiom. up the creek (or up the creek without a paddle). Informal. In a difficult, unfortunate, or inextricable position. [Middle English creke, probably from Old Norse kriki, bend.]

Creek (krĕk) n. pl. Creek or Creeks. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting eastern Alabama, southwest Georgia, and northwest Florida and now located in central Oklahoma and southern Alabama. The Creek were removed to Indian Territory in the 1830's. b. A member of this people. c. The Muskogean language of the Creek.

2. a. A Native American confederacy made up of the Creek and various smaller southeast tribes. b. A member of this confederacy.

Also called *Muskogee*¹

creel (krēl) n. 1. A wicker basket, especially one used by anglers for carrying fish. 2. A frame for holding bobbins or spools in a spinning machine. [Middle English crel, from Old French creille*, latticework, from Latin crātīcula, gridiron, diminutive of crātis, wickerwork.]

creep (krēp) v. intr. crept (krēpt), creep-ing, creeps. 1. To move with the body close to the ground, as on hands and knees. 2. a. To move stealthily or cautiously. b. To move or proceed very slowly: Traffic creeps at that hour. 3. Botany. a. To grow or spread along a surface, rooting at intervals or clinging by means of suckers or tendrils. b. To grow horizontally under the ground, as the rhizomes of many plants. 4. To slip out of place; shift gradually. 5. To have a tingling sensation, made by or as if by things moving stealthily: a moan that made my flesh creep. — n. 1. The act of creeping; a creeping motion or progress. 2. Slang. An annoyingly unpleasant or repulsive person. 3. A slow flow of metal when under high temperature or great pressure. 4. A slow change in a characteristic of electronic equipment, such as a decrease in power with continued usage. 5. Geology. The slow movement of rock debris and soil down a weathered slope. 6. creeps. Informal. A sensation of fear or repugnance, as if things were crawling on one's skin: That house gives me the creeps. [Middle English crepen, from Old English crēopan.]

creep-er (krē'pər) n. 1. One that creeps. 2. Botany. A plant that spreads by means of stems that creep. 3. See cradle (n., sense 4). 4. A grappling device for dragging bodies of water, such as lakes or rivers. 5. A one-piece fitted garment for an infant. 6. creepers. A metal frame with a spike or spikes, attached to a shoe or boot to prevent slipping, especially on ice.

creep-ing (krē'pɪŋ) adj. Developing gradually over a period of time: creeping insanity.

creeping Char-lie (krē'pɪŋ çär'lē) n. See moneywort.

creeping eruption (krē'pɪŋ ĩ-rŭp'shən) n. A human skin disease caused by hookworm or roundworm larvae burrowing and creeping beneath the skin and characterized by eruptions in the form of progressing reddish lines.

creeping Jen-nie also creeping Jen-ny (krē'pɪŋ jĕn'ē) n. See moneywort.

creep-y (krē'pē) adj. creep-i-er, creep-i-est. Informal. 1. Of or producing a sensation of uneasiness or fear, as of things crawling on one's skin: a creepy feeling; a creepy story. 2. Annoyingly unpleasant; repulsive: the creepy kids next door. —creep/i-ness n.

creese (krēs) n. Variant of kris.

cre-mains (krĭ-mānz') pl.n. The ashes that remain after cremation of a corpse. [Blend of CREMATED, and REMAINS.]

cre·mate (krē'māt', krī-māt') v. tr. cre·mat·ed, cre·mat·ing, cre·mates. To incinerate (a corpse). [Latin cremāre, cremāt-. See ker³ in Appendix.]

—cre·ma'tion (krī-mā'shən) n. —cre'ma'tor n.

cre·ma·to·ri·um (krē'mə-tôr'ē-əm, -tôr'-) n. pl. cre·ma·to·ri·ums or cre·ma·to·ri·a (-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-). A furnace or establishment for the incineration of corpses.

cre·ma·to·ry (krē'mə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, krēm'ə-) n. pl. cre·ma·to·ries. A crematorium. — adj. Of or relating to cremation.

crème de ca·cao (krēm' də kə-kou', kə-kā'ō) n. A sweet white or brownish liqueur with a chocolate flavor. [French : crème, cream + de, of + cacao, cacao.]

crème de la crème (krēm' də lä krēm') n. 1. Something superlative.

2. People of the highest social level. [French : crème, cream + de, of + la, the + crème, cream.]

crème de menthe (krēm də mǎnt', mēnth', mīnt') n. A sweet green or white liqueur flavored with mint. [French : crème, cream + de, of + menthe, mint.]

crème fraîche (krēm' frēsh') n. Cream that has been slightly fermented and thickened with lactic acid, often used as a topping or an ingredient in sauces.

[French : crème, cream + fraîche, fresh.]

Cre·mer (krē'mər), Sir William Randal. 1838-1908. British pacifist who founded the Workmen's Peace Association (1870). He won the 1903 Nobel Peace Prize.

Cre·mo·na (krə-mō'nə, krě-mô'nä) A city of northern Italy on the Po River east-southeast of Milan. Originally a Roman colony, it was an independent commune in the Middle Ages until its surrender to Milan in 1334. Population, 80,758.

cre·nate (krē'nāt') also cre·nat·ed (-nā'tīd) adj. Having a margin with low, rounded or scalloped projections: a crenate leaf. [New Latin crēnātus, from Medieval Latin crēna, notch.] —cre'nate'ly adv.

cre·na·tion (krī-nā'shən) n. 1. A rounded projection, as on the margin of a shell. 2. The condition or state of being crenate. 3. A process resulting from osmosis in which red blood cells, in a hypertonic solution, undergo shrinkage and acquire a notched or scalloped surface.

cren·a·ture (krěn'ə-chər, krē'nə-) n. A rounded projection; a crenation.

cren·e·lat·ed also cren·el·lat·ed (krěn'ə-lā'tīd) adj. 1. Having battlements. 2. Indented; notched: a crenelated wall. [Probably from French créneler, to furnish with battlements, from Old French crenel, crenelation, diminutive of cren, notch. See CRANNY.] —cren'e·la'tion n.

cren·shaw (krěn'shō') n. A variety of winter melon (Cucumis melo var. inodorus) having a greenish-yellow rind and sweet, usually salmon-pink flesh. [Origin unknown.]

cren-u-late (krĕn'yə-līt, -lāt') also cren-u-lat-ed (-lā'tīd) adj. Having a margin with very small, low, rounded teeth: a crenulate leaf. [New Latin crĕnulātus, from crĕnula, diminutive of Medieval Latin crĕna, notch.] —cren'u-la'tion n.

cre-o-dont (krĕ'ə-dōnt') n. Any of various extinct carnivorous mammals of the suborder Creodonta, of the Paleocene Epoch to the Pliocene Epoch. [From New Latin Creodonta, suborder name : Greek kreas, flesh; see kreuə- in Appendix + Greek odont-, tooth.]

Cre-ole (krĕ'ōl') n. 1. A person of European descent born in the West Indies or Spanish America. 2. a. A person descended from or culturally related to the original French settlers of the southern United States, especially Louisiana.

b. The French dialect spoken by these people. 3. A person descended from or culturally related to the Spanish and Portuguese settlers of the Gulf States. 4.

Often creole. A person of mixed Black and European ancestry who speaks a creolized language, especially one based on French or Spanish. 5. A Black slave born in the Americas as opposed to one brought from Africa. 6. creole. A creolized language. 7. Haitian Creole. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the Creoles. 2. creole. Cooked with a spicy sauce containing tomatoes, onions, and peppers: shrimp creole; creole cuisine. [French crĕole, from Spanish criollo, person native to a locality, from Portuguese crioulo, diminutive of cria, person raised in the house, especially a servant, from criar, to bring up, from Latin creāre, to beget. See ker-² in Appendix.]

cre-o-lized language (krĕ'ə-līzd' lăng'gwĭj) n. A language derived from a pidgin but more complex in grammar and vocabulary than the ancestral pidgin because it has become the native tongue of a community.

Cre-on (krĕ'ōn') n. Greek Mythology. The brother of Iocasta and uncle of Antigone who became the king of Thebes after the fall of Oedipus.

cre-o-sol (krĕ'ə-sōl', -sōl', -sōl') n. A colorless to yellow aromatic liquid, $C_8H_{10}O_2$, that is a constituent of creosote. [CREOS(OTE) + -OL¹.]

cre-o-sote (krĕ'ə-sōt') n. 1. A colorless to yellowish oily liquid containing phenols and creosols, obtained by the destructive distillation of wood tar, especially from the wood of a beech, and formerly used as an expectorant in treating chronic bronchitis. 2. A yellowish to greenish-brown oily liquid containing phenols and creosols, obtained from coal tar and used as a wood preservative and disinfectant. It can cause severe neurological disturbances if inhaled in strong concentrations. — v. tr. cre-o-sot-ed, cre-o-sot-ing, cre-o-sotes. To treat or paint with creosote. [German Kreosot : Greek kreas, flesh; see kreuə- in Appendix + Greek sōtēr, preserver (from sōzein, to save); see teuə- in Appendix.]

creosote bush (krĕ'ə-sōt' böōsh) n. Any of several resinous, aromatic evergreen shrubs of the genus Larrea, especially L. tridentata, a yellow-flowered plant characteristic of warm deserts in the southwest United States and Mexico.

crepe also crêpe (krāp) n. 1. A light, soft, thin fabric of silk, cotton, wool, or another fiber, with a crinkled surface. Also called crape 2. See crape (n., sense 2). 3. Crepe paper. 4. Crepe rubber. 5. (also krĕp) A very thin, small pancake, often stuffed and rolled up. [French crêpe, from Old French créspe, curly, from Latin crispus. See sker-² in Appendix.]

crêpe de Chine (krāp' də shĕn') n. pl. crêpes de Chine (krāp') also crêpe de Chines (shĕn'). A silk crepe used for dresses and blouses. [French : crêpe, crepe + de, of + Chine, China.]

crepe myrtle (krāp mûr'tl) n. Variant of crape myrtle.

crepe paper (krāp pā'pər) n. Crinkled tissue paper, resembling the fabric crepe, used for decorations.

crepe rubber (krāp rŭb'ər) n. Rubber with a crinkled texture, used especially for shoe soles.

crêpe su-zette (krāp' sōo-zĕt', krĕp') n. pl. crêpe su-zettes or crêpes su-zettes (krāp' sōo-zĕt', krĕp'). A thin dessert pancake usually rolled with hot orange or tangerine sauce and often served with a flaming brandy or curaçao sauce. [French : crêpe, pancake + Suzette, Suzy allegedly after Suzette (for Suzanne) Reichenberg (1853-1924), French actress.]

crep-i-tate (krĕp'i-tāt') v. intr. crep-i-tat-ed, crep-i-tat-ing, crep-i-tates. To make a crackling or popping sound; crackle. [Latin crepitāre, crepitāt-, to crackle, frequentative of crepāre, to creak.] —crep'i-tant (-tənt) adj. —crep'i-ta'tion n.

crept (krĕpt) v. Past tense and past participle of creep.

cre-pus-cle (krĭ-pŭs'əl) n. Variant of crepuscule.

cre-pus-cu-lar (krĭ-pŭs'kyə-lər) adj. 1. Of or like twilight; dim: “the period’s crepuscular charm and a waning of the intense francophilia that used to shape the art market” (Wall Street Journal). 2. Zoology. Becoming active at twilight or before sunrise, as do bats and certain insects and birds.

cre-pus-cule (krĭ-pŭs'kyōōl) also cre-pus-cle (-pŭs'əl) n. Twilight. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin crepusculum, from creper, dark.]

res-cen-do (krə-shĕn'dō) n. pl. res-cen-dos or res-cen-di (-dē). 1. Abbr. cr. Music. a. A gradual increase, especially in the volume or intensity of sound in a passage. b. A passage played with a gradual increase in volume or intensity.

2. a. A steady increase in intensity or force: “insisted [that] all paragraphs... should be structured as a crescendo rising to a climactic last sentence” (Henry A. Kissinger).

b. Usage Problem. The climactic point or moment after such a progression: “The attacks... began in December... and reached a crescendo during [the president’s] September visit” (Foreign Affairs). — adj. Gradually increasing in volume, force, or intensity. — adv. Music. With a crescendo. — v. intr. res-cen-doed, res-cen-do-ing, res-cen-does. To build up to or reach a point of great intensity, force, or volume: “The designer-name craze crescendoed in the mid-seventies”

(Bernice Kanner). [Italian, present participle of crescere, to increase, from Latin crēscere. See ker-² in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Crescendo is sometimes used by reputable speakers and writers to denote a climax or peak, as in noise level, rather than an increase. Although citational evidence over time attests to widespread currency, it is difficult for anyone acquainted with the technical musical sense of crescendo to use it to mean “a peak.” Such usage, as in When the guard sank a three-pointer to tie the game, the noise of the crowd reached a crescendo, was unacceptable to 55 percent of the Usage Panel.

crē·cent (krēs'ənt) n. 1. The figure of the moon as it appears in its first or last quarter, with concave and convex edges terminating in points. 2. Something having concave and convex edges terminating in points. — adj. 1. Crescent-shaped. 2. Waxing, as the moon; increasing. [Middle English cressaunt, from Anglo-Norman, variant of Old French creissant, from present participle of creistre, to grow, from Latin crēscere. See ker-² in Appendix.] — crē·cen'tic (krəsən'tik) adj.

crē·sol (krēs'sōl', -sōl', -sōl') n. Any of three isomeric phenols, $\text{CH}_3\text{C}_6\text{H}_4\text{OH}$, used in resins and as a disinfectant. [Alteration of CREOSOL.]

crēss (krēs) n. 1. An Old World annual plant (Lepidium sativum) in the mustard family, cultivated for its edible seedlings and leaves. 2. Any of several related plants, such as pennycress and watercress. [Middle English cresse, from Old English.]

crē·set (krēs'it) n. A metal cup, often suspended on a pole, containing burning oil or pitch and used as a torch. [Middle English, from Old French, alteration of croisuel, probably from Vulgar Latin croceolus*, small lamp.]

Crē·si·da (krēs'i-də) n. A Trojan woman in medieval romances who first returns the love of Troilus but later forsakes him for Diomedes.

crēst (krēst) n. 1. a. A usually ornamental tuft, ridge, or similar projection on the head of a bird or other animal. b. An elevated, irregularly toothed ridge on the stigmas of certain flowers. 2. a. A plume used as decoration on top of a helmet. b. A helmet. 3. a. Heraldry. A device placed above the shield on a coat of arms. b. A representation of such a device. 4. a. The top, as of a hill or wave. b. The highest or culminating point; the peak: the crest of a flood; at the crest of her career. 5. The ridge on a roof. — v. crēst·ed, crēst·ing, crēsts. — v. tr. 1. To decorate or furnish with a crest. 2. To reach the crest of: crested the ridge. — v. intr. 1. To form into a crest or crests: waves cresting over the sea wall. 2. To reach a crest: The swollen river crested at 9 P.M. [Middle English creste, from Old French, from Latin crista. See sker-² in Appendix.]

crest-ed wheat-grass (krēs'tīd hwēt'grās', wēt'-) n. A Eurasian perennial grass (Agropyron cristatum) cultivated for pasture and rangeland in the Great Plains and western North America.

crest-fall-en (krēs'tfô'lən) adj. Dispirited and depressed; dejected. —crest-fall'en-ly adv. —crest'fall'en-ness n.

crest-ing (krēs'tīng) n. An ornamental ridge, as on top of a wall or roof.

Cres-tone Needle (krēs'tōn nēd'l) A peak, 4,330.1 m (14,197 ft) high, in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of south-central Colorado.

Crestone Peak (krēs'tōn pēk) A mountain, 4,359.7 m (14,294 ft) high, in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of south-central Colorado.

cre-syl (krē'sīl) n. See toly. [CRESO(L) + -YL.]

cre-syl-ic (krī-sīl'ik) adj. Of or relating to creosote or cresol. [CRES(OL) + -YL + -IC.]

Cre-ta-ceous (krī-tā'shəs) adj. 1. Of, belonging to, or designating the geologic time, system of rocks, and sedimentary deposits of the third and last period of the Mesozoic Era, characterized by the development of flowering plants and the disappearance of dinosaurs. 2. cretaceous. Of, containing, or resembling chalk. — n. The Cretaceous Period. [From Latin crētāceus, chalky, from crēta, chalk, from Crēta (terra), Cretan (earth).] —cre-ta'ceous-ly adv.

Crete (krēt) An island of southeast Greece in the eastern Mediterranean Sea. Its Minoan civilization was one of the earliest in the world and reached the height of its wealth and power c. 1600 B.C. Crete subsequently fell to the Greeks, Romans, Byzantines, Arabs, Venetians, and Ottoman Turks. The islanders proclaimed their union with modern Greece in 1908. —Cre'tan adj. & n.

Crete, Sea of. A section of the southern Aegean Sea between Crete and the Cyclades Islands.

Cré-teil (krā-tā') A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris on the Marne River. Population, 71,693.

cre-tic (krē'-tik) n. See amphimacer. [Latin Crēticus, of Crete, Cretic foot, from Crēta, Crete.]

cre-tin (krēt'n) n. 1. A person afflicted with cretinism. 2. Offensive Slang. An idiot. [French crétin, from French dialectal, deformed and mentally retarded person, from Vulgar Latin christiānus*, Christian, human being, poor fellow, from Latin Chrīstiānus, Christian. See CHRISTIAN.] —cre'tin-oid' (-oid') adj. —cre'tin-ous (-əs) adj.

cre-tin-ism (krēt'n-iz'əm) n. A congenital condition caused by a deficiency of thyroid hormone during prenatal development and characterized in childhood by dwarfed stature, mental retardation, dystrophy of the bones, and a low basal metabolism. Also called congenital myxedema cre·tonne (krī-tŏn', krē'tŏn') n. A heavy unglazed cotton, linen, or rayon fabric, colorfully printed and used for draperies and slipcovers. [After Creton, a village of northwest France.]

Cre·ÿ·sa (krē-ōō'zə) n. Greek Mythology. The wife of Aeneas, who was lost while fleeing from Troy but came back as a ghost to warn Aeneas of his future.

Creutz·feldt·Ja·kob disease (kroits'fělt-yä'kôp dĩ-zēz') n. A rare, usually fatal disease of the brain, characterized by progressive dementia and gradual loss of muscle control, that occurs most often in middle age and is caused by a slow virus. Also called Jakob-Creutzfeldt disease [After Hans G. Creutzfeldt (1883-1964) and Alfons M. Jakob (1884-1931), German psychiatrists.]

cre·val·le (krī-väl'ē) n. Any of several marine fishes of the family Carangidae, such as the crevalle jack. [Alteration of CAVALLA.]

crevalle jack (krī-väl'ē jăk) n. A food and game fish (Caranx hippos) of warm seas, having a laterally compressed silvery body.

cre·vasse (krī-văs') n. 1. A deep fissure, as in a glacier; a chasm. 2. A crack or breach in a dike or levee. — v. intr. tr. cre·vassed, cre·vass·ing, cre·vass·es. To develop or cause to develop crevasses. [French, from Old French crevace, crevice. See CREVICE.]

Crève·coeur (krěv-kœr'), Michel Guillaume Jean de. Pen name J. Hector Saint John. 1735-1813. French-born American agriculturalist, writer, and diplomat whose Letters from an American Farmer (1782), a collection of essays on American life, was read widely in France.

crev·ice (krěv'is) n. A narrow crack or opening; a fissure or cleft. [Middle English, from Old French crevace, probably from Vulgar Latin crepācia*, from crepa*, from Latin crepāre, to crack.] — crev'iced adj.

crew¹ (krō) n. 1. a. A group of people working together; a gang: a crew of stagehands. b. A group of people gathered together temporarily; a crowd. 2. a. All personnel operating or serving aboard a ship. b. All of a ship's personnel except the officers. c. All personnel operating or serving aboard an aircraft in flight. 3. a. Sports. A team of rowers, as of a racing shell. b. The sport of rowing. — v. intr. crewed, crew·ing, crews. To serve as a member of a crew: crewed for my sister on a sloop; a spacecraft that was crewed by a team of eight people. [Middle English creue, military reinforcement, from Old French, increase, from feminine past participle of creistre, to grow, from Latin crēscere. See ker² in Appendix.]

crew² (krō) v. Chiefly British. A past tense of crow².

crew chief (krō chēf) n. A noncommissioned air force officer who is in charge of a group of enlisted people, such as maintenance specialists, on the flight line.

crew cut or crew·cut (krō'küt') n. A closely cropped haircut. [So called because it was worn by rowers.]

Crewe (krōō) also Crewe and Nant-wich (nānt'wīch') A municipal borough of west-central England southeast of Liverpool. It is an important railroad junction. Population, 47,800.

crewed (krōōd) adj. Operated by an onboard crew: a crewed space flight.

crew-el (krōō'əl) n. Loosely twisted worsted yarn used for fancywork and embroidery. [Middle English crule.]

crew-el-work (krōō'əl-wûrk') n. Needlework produced with crewel.

crew-mate (krōō'māt') n. A fellow member of a crew, especially of a crew of astronauts.

crew neck (krōō nĕk) n. 1. A round close-fitting neckline. 2. Often crew-neck (krōō'nĕk'). A garment, especially a sweater, with such a neckline.

[From the wearing of similarly styled sweaters by rowers.]

crew sock (krōō sŏk) n. A warm, usually ribbed sock. [From its use by rowers.]

crib (krīb) n. 1. A bed with high sides for a young child or baby. 2. a. A small building, usually with slatted sides, for storing corn. b. A rack or trough for fodder; a manger. c. A stall for cattle. 3. A small, crude cottage or room. 4. A framework to support or strengthen a mine or shaft. 5. A wicker basket. 6. a. A petty theft. b. Plagiarism. c. See pony (n., sense 4). 7. Games. A set of cards made up from discards by each player in cribbage, used by the dealer. — v.

cribbed, crib-bing, cribs. — v. tr. 1. To confine in or as if in a crib. 2. To furnish with a crib. 3. a. To plagiarize (an idea or answer, for example). b. To steal. — v. intr. To plagiarize; cheat. [Middle English, manger, from Old English cribb.] — crib/ber n.

crib-bage (krīb'ij) n. Games. A card game for from two to four players in which the score is kept by inserting small pegs into holes arranged in rows on a small board. [From CRIB.]

crib-bit-ing (krīb'bī'ting) n. An injurious habit of horses in which they bite at the edge of a feed trough or other object and swallow air at the same time.

crib death (krīb dĕth) n. See sudden infant death syndrome.

crib-ri-form (krīb'rĭ-fŏrm') adj. Perforated like a sieve. [Latin cribrum, sieve; see krei- in Appendix + -FORM.]

cri-ce-tid (krī-sĕ'tid, -sĕt'id) n. Any of various small rodents of the family Cricetidae, which includes muskrats and gerbils. [From New Latin Cricetidae, family name, from Cricetus, hamster genus, from Medieval Latin cricetus, hamster, perhaps from Old Czech křeček, diminutive of křeč.] — cri-ce'tid adj.

Crich-ton (krīt'n), James. Known as “the Admirable Crichton.” 1560-1582. Scottish adventurer, linguist, and scholar whose intellectual achievements were lauded by Aldus Manutius and Thomas Urquhart. He was killed in a brawl.

crick¹ (krĭk) n. A painful cramp or muscle spasm, as in the back or neck. — v. tr. cricked, crick-ing, cricks. To cause a painful cramp or muscle spasm in by turning or wrenching. [Middle English crike.]

crick² (krĭk) n. Inland Northern U.S. & Western U.S. Variant of creek. See Regional note at run.

Crick (krĭk), Francis Henry Compton. Born 1916. British biologist who with James D. Watson proposed a spiral model, the double helix, for the molecular structure of DNA. He shared a 1962 Nobel Prize for advances in the study of genetics.

crick-et¹ (krĭk'ĭt) n. Any of various insects of the family Gryllidae, having long antennae and legs adapted for leaping. The males of many species produce a shrill chirping sound by rubbing the front wings together. [Middle English cricet, from Old French criquet, from criquer, to click, of imitative origin.]

crick-et² (krĭk'ĭt) n. 1. Sports. An outdoor game played with bats, a ball, and wickets by two teams of 11 players each. 2. Good sportsmanship and fair conduct: It's not cricket to cheat at cards. — v. intr. crick-et-ed, crick-et-ing, crick-ets. Sports. To play the game of cricket. [Obsolete French criquet, piece of wood, from Old French, stick for a bowling game, perhaps from Middle Dutch cricke, walking stick.] — crick'et-er, crick'et-er' (-ĭ-tĭr') n.

crick-et³ (krĭk'ĭt) n. A small wooden footstool. [Origin unknown.]

cri-coid (krĭ'koid') n. A ring-shaped cartilage of the lower larynx that articulates with the thyroid cartilage and artenoid cartilages. [New Latin cricoīdēs, from Greek krikoeidēs, ring-shaped : krikos, ring; see sker⁻² in Appendix + -oidēs, -oid.]

cri de coeur (krē' də kœr') n. pl. cris de coeur (krē'). An impassioned outcry, as of entreaty or protest. [French : cri, cry + de, of + coeur, heart.]

cried (krĭd) v. Past tense and past participle of cry.

cri-er (krĭ'ær) n. 1. An official who announces the orders of a court of law. 2. A town crier. 3. A hawker.

cries (krĭz) v. Third person singular present tense of cry. — n. Plural of cry.

Crile (krĭl), George Washington. 1864-1943. American surgeon noted for his research on surgical trauma, shock, and other medical issues.

crim. abbr. Criminal.

crim. con. abbr. Law. Criminal conversation.

crime (krĭm) n. 1. An act committed or omitted in violation of a law forbidding or commanding it and for which punishment is imposed upon conviction.

2. Unlawful activity: statistics relating to violent crime. 3. A serious offense, especially one in violation of morality. See Synonyms at offense. 4. An unjust, senseless, or disgraceful act or condition: It's a crime to squander our country's natural resources. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin crĭmen. See krei- in Appendix.]

Crime·a (krī-mē'ə, krī-) A region and peninsula of southern Ukraine on the Black Sea and Sea of Azov. In ancient times it was colonized by Greeks and Romans and later overrun by Ostrogoths, Huns, and Mongols. Conquered by the Ottoman Turks in 1475, the area was annexed by Russia in 1783. The peninsula was the scene of the Crimean War (1853-1856), in which a coalition of English, French, and Turkish troops defeated the Russians, although Crimea itself did not change hands. —Crime'an adj.

crim·i·nal (krīm'ə-nəl) adj. Abbr. crim. 1. Of, involving, or having the nature of crime: criminal abuse. 2. Relating to the administration of penal law.

3. a. Guilty of crime. b. Characteristic of a criminal. 4. Shameful; disgraceful: a criminal waste of talent. — n. One that has committed or been legally convicted of a crime. [Middle English, from Old French criminel, from Late Latin crīminālis, from Latin crīmen, crīmin-, accusation. See CRIME.] —crim'i·nal·ly adv.

criminal conversation (krīm'ə-nəl kŏn'vər-sā'shən) n. Abbr. crim. con. Law. Adultery.

criminal court (krīm'ə-nəl kōrt) n. Law. A court empowered to hear and decide on cases involving offenses against criminal law.

crim·i·nal·ist (krīm'ə-nə-līst) n. A specialist in the collection and examination of the physical evidence of crime. —crim'i·nal·is'tics n.

crim·i·nal·i·ty (krīm'ə-nəl'i-tē) n. pl. crim·i·nal·i·ties. 1. The state, quality, or fact of being criminal. 2. A criminal practice or act.

crim·i·nal·ize (krīm'ə-nə-līz') v. tr. crim·i·nal·ized, crim·i·nal·iz·ing, crim·i·nal·iz·es. 1. To impose a criminal penalty on or for; outlaw. 2. To treat as a criminal. —crim'i·nal·i·za'tion (-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

criminal justice (krīm'ə-nəl jüs'tis) n. The system of law enforcement, the bar, the judiciary, corrections, and probation that is directly involved in the apprehension, prosecution, defense, sentencing, incarceration, and supervision of those suspected of or charged with criminal offenses. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: criminal justice issues; criminal justice programs.

criminal law (krīm'ə-nəl lô) n. Law that deals with crimes and their punishments.

crim·i·nate (krīm'ə-nāt') v. tr. crim·i·nat·ed, crim·i·nat·ing, crim·i·nates. To incriminate. [Latin crīminārī, crīmināt-, to accuse, from crīmen, crīmin-, accusation. See CRIME.] —crim'i·na'tion n. —crim'i·na'tive, crim'i·na-to'ry (-nə-tôr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. —crim'i·na'tor n.

crim·i·no·gen·ic (krīm'ə-nə-jĕn'ik) also crim·o·gen·ic (krī'mə-) adj. Producing or tending to produce crime or criminality: "Alcohol is the most criminogenic substance in America" (James B. Jacobs).

crim·i·nol·o·gy (krīm'ə-nŏl'ə-jē) n. Abbr. criminol. The scientific study of crime, criminals, criminal behavior, and corrections. [Italian criminologia, from Latin crīmen, crīmin-, accusation. See CRIME.] —crim' i-no-log'i-cal (-nə-lōj' i-kəl) adj. —crim' i-no-log'i-cal-ly adv. —crim' i-nol'o-gist n.

crim-o-gen-ic (krī'mə-jən' ik) adj. Variant of criminogenic.

crimp¹ (krīmp) v. tr. crimped, crimp-ing, crimps. 1. To press or pinch into small, regular folds or ridges: crimp a pie crust. 2. To bend or mold (leather) into shape. 3. To cause (hair) to form tight curls or waves. 4. To have a hampering or obstructive effect on: Supplies of foreign oil were crimped by the embargo. — n.

1. The act of crimping. 2. Something made by or as if by crimping, as: a. Hair that has been tightly curled or waved. b. A series of curls, as of wool fibers. c. A crease or bend. 3. An obstructing or hampering agent or force: Rising interest rates put a crimp in new home construction. [Dutch, or Low German krimpen from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German.] —crimp'er n.

crimp² (krīmp) n. A person who tricks or coerces men into service as sailors or soldiers. — v. tr. crimped, crimp-ing, crimps. To procure (sailors or soldiers) by trickery or coercion. [Origin unknown.]

crimp-y (krīm' pē) adj. crimp-i-er, crimp-i-est. Full of crimps; wavy. —crimp'i-ness n.

crim-son (krīm' zən) n. Color. A deep to vivid purplish red to vivid red. — v. tr. intr. crim-soned, crim-son-ing, crim-sons. To make or become deeply or vividly red. [Middle English cremesin, from Old Spanish cremesín, and Old Italian cremesino or Medieval Latin cremesīnus all from Arabic qirmizīy, from qirmiz, kermes insect. See KERMES.] —crim'son adj.

cringe (krīnj) v. intr. cringed, cring-ing, cring-es. 1. To shrink back, as in fear; cower. 2. To behave in a servile way; fawn. — n. An act or instance of cringing. [Middle English crengen, to bend haughtily, probably ultimately from Old English cringan, to give way.]

crin-gle (krīng' gəl) n. Nautical. A small ring or grommet of rope or metal fastened to the edge of a sail. [Low German kringel, diminutive of kring, ring, from Middle Low German.]

crin-kle (krīng' kəl) v. crin-kled, crin-king, crin-kles. — v. intr. 1. To form wrinkles or ripples. 2. To make a soft, crackling sound; rustle. — v. tr. To cause to crinkle. — n. A wrinkle, ripple, or fold. [From Middle English crinkled, full of turnings.] —crin'kly adj.

crin-kle-root (krīng' kəl-rōōt', -rōōt') n. A woodland plant (Cardamine diphylla) of eastern North America, having fleshy rootstocks, trifoliolate leaves, and clusters of white or pinkish flowers.

cri-noid (krī'noid') n. Any of various echinoderms of the class Crinoidea, including the sea lilies and feather stars, that are characterized by a cup-shaped body, feathery radiating arms, and either a stalk or clawlike structure with which they are able to attach to a surface. — adj. Of or belonging to the Crinoidea. [From New Latin Crinoidea, class name : Greek krinon, lily + Greek -ooidēs, -oid.]

crin·o·line (krīn'ə-līn) n. 1. A coarse, stiff fabric of cotton or horsehair used especially to line and stiffen hats and garments. 2. A petticoat made of this fabric. 3. A hoop skirt. [French, from Italian crinolino : crino, horsehair (from Latin crīnis, hair); see sker-² in Appendix + lino, flax (from Latin līnum); see līno- in Appendix.] —crin'·o·line, crin'·o·lined (-līnd) adj.

cri·num (krī'nəm) n. Any of various bulbous plants of the genus Crinum, native to warm regions and having strap-shaped leaves and showy umbels of variously colored flowers. Also called spider lily [New Latin Crinum, genus name, from Greek krinon, lily.]

cri·ol·lo (krē-ō'lō, -ô'γô) n. pl. cri·ol·los (-ō'lōz, -ô'γôs). A Spanish American of European, usually Spanish descent. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a criollo or criollos. 2. Indigenous to or characteristic of a Spanish-American country: criollo cattle; a criollo dish. [Spanish. See CREOLE.]

cri·o·sphinx (krī'ə-sfīngks') n. A sphinx with the head of a ram. [Greek krios, ram; see ker-¹ in Appendix + SPHINX.]

crip·ple (krīp'əl) n. 1. One that is partially disabled or unable to use a limb or limbs: cannot race a horse that is a cripple. 2. A damaged or defective object or device. — v. tr. crip·pled, crip·pling, crip·ples. 1. To cause to lose the use of a limb or limbs. 2. To disable, damage, or impair the functioning of: a strike that crippled the factory. [Middle English crepel, from Old English crypel.] —crip'·pler n.

Crip·ple Creek (krīp'əl krēk) A city of central Colorado in the Rocky Mountains southwest of Colorado Springs. After 1891 it was the center of a thriving gold-producing area but declined as deposits were exhausted. Population, 655.

Cripps (krīps), Sir (Richard) Stafford. 1889-1952. British statesman who advocated a unified front with the Communists against the Nazi threat. During World War II he was ambassador to Moscow (1940-1942) and later served as Chancellor of the Exchequer (1947-1950).

cri·sis (krī'sīs) n. pl. cri·ses (-sēz). 1. a. A crucial or decisive point or situation; a turning point. b. An unstable condition, as in political, social, or economic affairs, involving an impending abrupt or decisive change. 2. A sudden change in the course of a disease or fever, toward either improvement or deterioration. 3. An emotionally stressful event or a traumatic change in a person's life. 4. A point in a story or drama when a conflict reaches its highest tension and must be resolved. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: crisis intervention; crisis planning. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek, from krinein, to separate. See krei- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: crisis, crossroad, exigency, head, juncture, pass. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "a critical point or state of affairs": a military crisis; government policy at the crossroad; had failed to predict the health-care exigency; a problem that is coming to a head; negotiations that had reached a crucial juncture; things rapidly coming to a desperate pass.

crisis center (krī'sīs sēn'tər) n. A center staffed especially by volunteers who give support and advice to people experiencing personal crises.

crisis management (krī'sīs mǎn'ij-mənt) n. Special measures taken under pressure to solve problems caused by a crisis.

crisp (krīsp) adj. crisp-er, crisp-est. 1. Firm but easily broken or crumbled; brittle: crisp potato chips. 2. Pleasingly firm and fresh: crisp carrot and celery sticks. 3. a. Bracing; invigorating: crisp mountain air. b. Lively; sprightly: music with a crisp rhythm. 4. Conspicuously clean or new: a crisp dollar bill.

5. Marked by clarity, conciseness, and briskness: a crisp reply. See Synonyms at incisive. 6. Having small curls, waves, or ripples. — v. tr. intr. crisped, crisp-ing, crisps. To make or become crisp. — n. 1. Something crisp or easily crumbled: The roast was burned to a crisp. 2. A dessert of fruit baked with a sweet, crumbly topping: apple crisp. 3. Chiefly British. A potato chip. [Middle English, curly, from Old English, from Latin crispus. See sker-² in Appendix.] — crisp/ly adv. — crisp/ness n.

cris-pate (krīs'pāt') also cris-pat-ed (-pā'tīd) adj. Curled or ruffled, as the margins of certain leaves. [Latin crispātus, past participle of crispāre, to curl, from crispus, curly. See sker-² in Appendix.]

cris-pa-tion (krīs-pā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of crisping or curling. b. The state of being crisped or curled. 2. A slight involuntary muscular contraction, often producing a crawling sensation of the skin.

crisped (krīspt) adj. Botany. Crispate.

crisp-er (krīs'pər) n. One that crisps, especially a compartment in a refrigerator used for storing vegetables and keeping them fresh.

Cris-pi (krīs'pē, krē'spē), Francesco. 1819-1901. Italian statesman who served as premier of the restored kingdom of Italy (1887-1890 and 1894) and advocated a strong alliance with Germany.

Cris-pin (krīs'pīn), Saint. Third century A.D. Roman shoemaker who with his brother Saint Crispinian sought to spread Christianity and was martyred.

crisp-y (krīs'pē) adj. crisp-i-er, crisp-i-est. Crisp. — crisp/i-ness n.

cris-sa (krīs'ə) n. Plural of crissum.

criss-cross (krīs'krôs', -krôs') v. criss-crossed, criss-cross-ing, criss-cross-es. — v. tr. 1. To mark with crossing lines. 2. To move back and forth through or over: crisscrossed the country on a speaking tour. — v. intr. To move back and forth. — n. 1. A mark or pattern made of crossing lines. 2. A state of being at conflicting or contrary purposes. — adj. Crossing one another or marked by crossings. — adv. In a manner or direction that crosses or is marked by crossings. [Alteration of Middle English Cristcrosse, mark of a cross, short for Cristcross (me speed), may Christ's cross (give me success).]

cris-sum (krɪs'əm) n. pl. cris-sa (krɪs'ə). Zoology. The feathers or area under the tail of a bird surrounding the cloacal opening. [New Latin, from Latin crīsāre, to move the buttocks during intercourse. See sker-2 in Appendix.] —cris'sal (-əl) adj.

cris-ta (krɪs'tə) n. pl. cris-tae (-tē). 1. Anatomy. A crest or ridge, as on the top of a bone. 2. Biology. One of the inward projections or folds of the inner membrane of a mitochondrion. [Latin. See sker-2 in Appendix.]

cris-tate (krɪs'tāt') also cris-tat-ed (-tā'tɪd) adj. Having or forming a crest or crista. [Latin cristātus, from crista, tuft. See sker-2 in Appendix.]

crit. abbr. Critic; critical; criticism.

cri-te-ri-on (krī-tîr'ē-ən) n. pl. cri-te-ri-a (-tîr'ē-ə) or cri-te-ri-ons. A standard, rule, or test on which a judgment or decision can be based. See Synonyms at standard. [Greek kritērion, from kritēs, judge, from krinein, to separate, judge. See krei- in Appendix.] —cri-te/ri-al (-əl) adj.

USAGE NOTE: Like the analogous etymological plurals agenda and data, criteria is widely used as a singular form. Unlike them, however, it is not yet acceptable in that use.

crit-ic (krɪt'ɪk) n. 1. One who forms and expresses judgments of the merits, faults, value, or truth of a matter. 2. Abbr. crit. One who specializes especially professionally in the evaluation and appreciation of literary or artistic works: a film critic; a dance critic. 3. One who tends to make harsh or carping judgments; a faultfinder. [Latin criticus, from Greek kritikos, able to discern, from kritēs, judge, from krinein, to separate, judge. See krei- in Appendix.]

crit-i-cal (krɪt'ɪ-kəl) adj. Abbr. crit. 1. Inclined to judge severely and find fault. 2. Characterized by careful, exact evaluation and judgment: a critical reading. 3. Of, relating to, or characteristic of critics or criticism: critical acclaim; a critical analysis of Melville's writings. 4. Forming or having the nature of a turning point; crucial or decisive: a critical point in the campaign. 5. a. Of or relating to a medical crisis: an illness at the critical stage. b. Being or relating to a grave physical condition especially of a patient. 6. Indispensable; essential: a critical element of the plan; a second income that is critical to the family's well-being. 7. Being in or verging on a state of crisis or emergency: a critical shortage of food. 8. Fraught with danger or risk; perilous. 9. Mathematics. Of or relating to a point at which a curve has a maximum, minimum, or point of inflection. 10. Chemistry & Physics. Of or relating to the value of a measurement, such as temperature, at which an abrupt change in a quality, property, or state occurs: A critical temperature of water is 100°C, its boiling point at standard atmospheric pressure. 11. Physics.

Capable of sustaining a nuclear chain reaction. —crit'i-cal-ly adv.

—crit'i-cal-ness n.

SYNONYMS: critical, captious, censorious, faultfinding, hypercritical. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “tending or marked by a tendency to find and call attention to errors and flaws”: a critical attitude; a captious pedant; censorious of petty failings; an excessively demanding and faultfinding tutor; hypercritical of colloquial speech.

ANTONYM: uncritical

critical angle (krīt'ī-kəl äng'gəl) n. 1. Physics. The smallest angle of incidence at which a light ray passing from one medium to another less refractive medium can be totally reflected from the boundary between the two. 2. The angle of attack of an airfoil at which airflow abruptly changes, causing changes in the lift and drag of an aircraft.

crit-i-cal-i-ty (krīt'ī-käl'ī-tē) n. 1. The quality, state, or degree of being of the highest importance: “The challenge of our future food supply is approaching criticality” (New York Times). 2. Physics. The point at which a nuclear reaction is self-sustaining.

critical mass (krīt'ī-kəl mäs) n. 1. The smallest mass of a fissionable material that will sustain a nuclear chain reaction at a constant level. 2. A very important or crucial stage: “The sudden national uproar over drugs and drug abuse has reached politically critical mass in Washington” (Tom Morgenthau).

critical point (krīt'ī-kəl point) n. 1. Physics. The temperature and pressure at which the liquid and gaseous phases of a pure stable substance become identical. Also called critical state 2. Mathematics. a. A maximum, minimum, or point of inflection of a curve. b. A point at which the derivative of a function is zero or infinite.

critical pressure (krīt'ī-kəl prēsh'ər) n. The least applied pressure required at the critical temperature to liquefy a gas.

critical state (krīt'ī-kəl stāt) n. See critical point (n., sense 1).

critical temperature (krīt'ī-kəl tēm'pər-ə-chōōr') n. The temperature above which a gas cannot be liquefied, regardless of the pressure applied.

crit-ic-as-ter (krīt'ī-käs'tər) n. A petty or inferior critic. [CRITIC + Latin -aster, pejorative suff.]

crit-i-cism (krīt'ī-siz'əm) n. Abbr. crit. 1. The act of criticizing, especially adversely. 2. A critical comment or judgment. 3. a. The art, skill, or profession of making discriminating judgments and evaluations, especially of literary or other artistic works. b. A review or article expressing such judgment and evaluation. 4. Detailed investigation of the origin and history of literary documents, such as the Bible.

crit·i·cize (krīt'ī-sīz') v. crit·i·cized, crit·i·ciz·ing, crit·i·ciz·es. — v. tr.

1. To find fault with: criticized the decision as unrealistic. See Usage Note at critique. 2. To judge the merits and faults of; analyze and evaluate. — v. intr. To act as a critic. —crit'ī·ciz'a·ble adj. —crit'ī·ciz'er n.

SYNONYMS: criticize, blame, reprehend, censure, condemn, denounce. These verbs are compared as they mean to express an unfavorable judgment. Criticize can mean merely to evaluate good and bad points without necessarily finding fault: “To criticize is to appreciate, to appropriate, to take intellectual possession” (Henry James). Usually, however, the word implies the expression of disapproval: The reviewer roundly criticized the novel. Blame emphasizes the finding of fault and the fixing of responsibility: “People are always blaming their circumstances for what they are” (George Bernard Shaw). Reprehend implies sharp disapproval: “reprehends students who have protested apartheid” (New York Times). Censure refers to open and strong expression of criticism; often it implies a formal reprimand: “No man can justly censure or condemn another, because indeed no man truly knows another” (Thomas Browne). Condemn denotes the pronouncement of harshly adverse judgment: “The wrongs which we seek to condemn and punish have been so calculated, so malignant and so devastating that civilization cannot tolerate their being ignored because it cannot survive their being repeated” (Robert H. Jackson). Denounce implies public proclamation of condemnation or repudiation: The press denounces clandestine support for the counterrevolution.

cri·tique (krī-tēk') n. 1. A critical review or commentary, especially one dealing with works of art or literature. 2. A critical discussion of a specified topic. 3. The art of criticism. — v. tr. cri·tiqued, cri·tiqu·ing, cri·tiques. Usage Problem. To review or discuss critically. [French, from Greek kritikē tekhnē, art of criticism, from feminine of kritikos, critical. See CRITIC.]

USAGE NOTE: Critique has been used as a verb meaning “to review or discuss critically” since the 18th century, but lately this usage has gained much wider currency, in part because the verb criticize, once neutral between praise and censure, is now mainly used in a negative sense. (One is not likely to say, for example, She criticized the bill approvingly.) But this use of critique is still regarded by many as pretentious jargon; 69 percent of the Usage Panel rejects the sentence As mock inquisitors grill him, top aides take notes and critique the answers with the President afterward. There is no exact synonym, but in most contexts one can usually substitute go over, review, or analyze.

Crit·ten·den (krīt'n-dən), John Jordan. 1787-1863. American politician who proposed the Crittenden Compromise (1860), an unsuccessful last-minute effort to forestall the Civil War.

crit·ter (krīt'ər) n. Regional. 1. A living creature. 2. A domestic animal, especially a cow, horse, or mule. 3. A person. [Alteration of CREATURE.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Critter, a pronunciation spelling of creature, actually reflects a pronunciation that would have been very familiar to Shakespeare: 16th- and 17th-century English had not yet begun to pronounce the -ture suffix with its modern (ch) sound. This archaic pronunciation still exists in regional American critter and in Irish creature, pronounced (krā'tūr) and used in the same senses as the American regionalism. The most common meaning of critter is “a living creature,” whether wild or domestic; it also can mean “a child” when used as a term of sympathetic endearment, or it can mean “an unfortunate person.” In old-fashioned regional speech, critter and beast denoted a large domestic animal. The more restricted senses “a cow,” “a horse,” or “a mule” are still characteristic of the speech in specific regions of the United States. The use of critter among younger speakers almost always carries with it a jocular or informal connotation.

croak (krōk) n. A low, hoarse sound, as that characteristic of frogs and crows. — v. croaked, croak·ing, croaks. — v. tr. 1. To utter in a low, hoarse sound. 2. Slang. To kill. — v. intr. 1. a. To utter a low, hoarse sound. b. To speak with a low, hoarse voice. 2. To mutter discontentedly; grumble. 3. Slang. To die. [From Middle English croken, to croak, probably of imitative origin.] — croak'i·ly adv. — croak'y adj.

croak·er (krō'kər) n. 1. a. A croaking animal, especially a frog. b. A person who grumbles or habitually predicts evil. 2. Any of various fishes, chiefly of the family Sciaenidae, that make croaking or grunting sounds.

Croat (krōt, krō'ăt') n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Croatia. 2. Serbo-Croatian as used in Croatia, distinguished from Serbian primarily by its being written in the Latin alphabet. Also called Croatian [New Latin Croata, from Serbo-Croatian Hrvāt.]

Cro·a·tia (krō-ā'shə, -shē-ə) An country of southern Europe along the north-east Adriatic coast. It was settled by Croats in the 7th century, became a kingdom in the 10th century, and reached the height of its power in the 11th century before being conquered by Hungary in 1091. Eventually Croatia became a part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and later a constituent republic of Yugoslavia. Croatia declared its independence from Yugoslavia in 1991. Zagreb is the capital and the largest city. Population, 4,396,397.

Cro·a·tian (krō-ā'shən) n. See Croat. — adj. Of or relating to Croatia or its people, language, or culture.

croc (krök) n. Informal. A crocodile.

Cro-ce (krō'chĕ), Benedetto. 1866-1952. Italian philosopher, historian, and critic noted for a major work of modern idealism, Philosophy of the Spirit (1902-1917), and as a staunch opponent of fascism.

cro-ce-in (krō'sĕ-ĭn) n. Any of various red or orange acid azo dyes. [Latin croceus, saffron-colored (from crocus, saffron) + -IN.]

cro-chet (krō-shā') v. cro-cheted (-shād'), cro-chet-ing (-shā'ĭng), cro-chets (-shāz'). — v. intr. To make a piece of needlework by looping thread with a hooked needle. — v. tr. To make by looping thread with a hooked needle: crochet a sweater. — n. Needlework made by looping thread with a hooked needle. [From French crocheter, from Old French crochet, hook, diminutive of croche feminine of croc, of Germanic origin.]

cro-ci (krō'sī, -kī) n. A plural of crocus.

cro-cid-o-lite (krō-sĭd'ĭl-ĭt') n. A fibrous, lavender-blue or greenish mineral, a sodium iron silicate that is used as a commercial form of asbestos. [Greek krokus, krokis, krokud-, krokid-, nap on woolen cloth + -LITE.]

crock¹ (krök) n. 1. a. An earthenware vessel. b. A broken piece of earthenware. 2. Slang. Foolish talk; nonsense: That story is nothing but a crock. [Middle English crokke, from Old English crocc. Sense 2, perhaps from crock of shit.]

crock² (krök) Regional. n. Soot. — v. crocked, crock-ing, crocks. — v. tr. To soil with or as if with crock. — v. intr. To give off soot or color. [Origin unknown.]

crock³ (krök) Chiefly British. n. One that is worn-out, decrepit, or impaired; a wreck. — v. crocked, crock-ing, crocks. — v. intr. To become weak or disabled. Often used with up. — v. tr. To disable; wreck. Often used with up. [Origin unknown.]

crocked (krökt) adj. Slang. Drunk. [Possibly from CROCK³.]

Crock-er (krök'ər), Charles. 1822-1888. American railroad financier who merged the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific railroads (1884).

crock-er-y (krök'ə-rĕ) n. Earthenware.

crock-et (krök'ĭt) n. Architecture. A projecting ornament, usually in the form of a cusp or curling leaf, placed along outer angles of pinnacles and gables. [Middle English croket, ornamental curl of hair, hook, from Old North French croquet, shepherd's crook, diminutive of croque, variant of Old French croche. See CROCHET.]

Crock-ett (krök'ĭt), David. Known as "Davy." 1786-1836. American frontiersman and politician who was a U.S. representative from Tennessee (1827-1831 and 1833-1835) and joined the Texas revolutionaries fighting against Mexico. He died at the siege of the Alamo.

Crock-Pot (krök'pöt') A trademark used for an electric cooker that maintains a low temperature. This trademark often occurs in print in lowercase without a hyphen and occasionally in figurative uses: "Pressure cookers and crock pots are proven labor savers for beans, stews, meats, and poultry” (Christian Science Monitor). “First Super Bowl Sunday, now WORLD WAR III; out of the frying pan, into the crock pot” (Washington Post).

croc·o·dile (krök'ə-dīl') n. 1. Any of various large aquatic reptiles, chiefly of the genus Crocodylus, native to tropical and subtropical regions and having thick, armorlike skin and long, tapering jaws. 2. A crocodilian reptile, such as an alligator, a caiman, or a gavial. 3. Leather made from crocodile skin. [Middle English cocodril, from Old French, from Latin cocodrillus, variant of crocodilus, from Greek krokodilos : krokē, pebble + drilos, circumcised man, worm.]

WORD HISTORY: The crocodile may owe its name to its resemblance to a much smaller creature, a lizard that lived in the stone walls of Ionia. This lizard's name, krokodilos, is thought to be a compound of krokē, “pebble, gravel,” and drilos, which is only attested as meaning “circumcised man” but is assumed to mean “worm” as well. According to Herodotus, Ionians in Egypt noted the resemblance, probably humorously, between basking crocodiles and their own “worm of the stones.” The modern form of English crocodile represents a return to the Classical Latin spelling crocodilus, Latin having borrowed the word from Greek. But other spellings occurred in Classical Greek and Latin, and one of these Latin spellings, cocodrillus, passed into Medieval Latin and Old French (cocodril) and then into English, so that our earliest possible use of the word, in a work perhaps composed before 1300, is spelled cokedrille. It was not until the 16th century that the word came to have its present spelling. The various spellings met with in the history of crocodile reflect the same sort of variations that occurred in the history of alligator.

crocodile bird (krök'ə-dīl' būrd) n. A black and white African bird (Pluvianus aegyptius) that is related to the plover and feeds on insects that parasitize crocodiles.

Croc-o-dile River (krök'ə-dīl' rīv'ər) See Limpopo.

crocodile tears (krök'ə-dīl' tārz) pl.n. An insincere display of grief; false tears. [From the belief that crocodiles weep either to attract a victim or when eating one.]

croc·o·dil·i·an (krök'ə-dīl'ē-ən, -dīl'yən) n. Any of various reptiles of the order Crocodylia, which includes the alligators, crocodiles, caimans, and gavials. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a crocodile. 2. Belonging to the order Crocodylia.

croc·o·ite (krök'ō-īt', krō'kō-) also croc·oi·site (krök'wə-zīt') n. A rare lead chromate mineral, $PbCrO_4$, that forms brilliant orange crystals. [Alteration of French crocoise, from Greek krokoeis, saffron-colored, from krokos, saffron. See CROCUS.]

cro-cus (krō'kəs) n. pl. cro-cus-es or cro-ci (-sī, -kī). 1. a. Any of various perennial Eurasian herbs of the genus Crocus, having grasslike leaves and showy, variously colored flowers. b. Any of several other plants, such as the autumn crocus. 2. Color. A grayish to light reddish purple. 3. A dark red powdered variety of iron oxide, Fe₂O₃, used as an abrasive for polishing. 4. A coarse, loosely woven material like burlap, once used to make sacks for shipping saffron. See Regional note at gunnysack. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin, from Greek krokos, of Semitic origin.]

crocus sack (krō'kəs sāk) n. South Atlantic U.S. See gunnysack. See Regional note at gunnysack.

Croe-sus¹ (krē'səs), Died c. 546 B.C. Last king of Lydia (560-546) whose kingdom, which had prospered during his reign, fell to the Persians under Cyrus.

Croe-sus² (krē'səs) n. A very wealthy man. [After CROESUS¹.]

croft (krōft, kröft) n. Chiefly British. 1. A small enclosed field or pasture near a house. 2. A small farm, especially a tenant farm. [Middle English, from Old English.]

croft-er (krōf'tər, kröf'-) n. Chiefly British. One who rents and cultivates a croft; a tenant farmer.

crois-sant (krwä-sän', krə-sänt') n. A rich, crescent-shaped roll of leavened dough or puff pastry. [French, from Old French creissant, croissant, crescent. See CRESCENT.]

WORD HISTORY: The words croissant and crescent illustrate double borrowings, each coming into English from a different form of the same French word. In Latin the word crēscere, “to grow,” when applied to the moon meant “to wax”; one could have the phrase lūna crēscēns, “waxing moon.” Old French croissant, the equivalent of Latin crēscēns, came to mean “the time during which the moon waxes,” “the crescent-shaped figure of the moon in its first and last quarters,” and “a crescent-shaped object.” In Middle English, which adopted croissant in its Anglo-Norman form cressaunt, the first instance of our English word, recorded in a document dated 1399-1400, meant “a crescent-shaped ornament.” Crescent, the Modern English descendant of Middle English cressaunt, owes its second c to Latin crēscere. Croissant is not an English development but instead a borrowing of the Modern French descendant of Old French croissant. It is first recorded in English in 1899. French croissant was used to translate German Hörnchen, the name given by the Viennese to this pastry, which was first baked in 1689 to commemorate the raising of the siege of Vienna by the Turks, whose symbol was the crescent.

Croix de Guerre (krwä' də gâr') n. A French military decoration for bravery in combat. [French : croix, cross + de, of + guerre, war.]

cro-ker sack (krō'kær sāk) n. Lower Southern U.S. See gunnysack. See Regional note at gunnysack. [Alteration of CROCUS SACK.]

Cro-ly (krō'lē), Herbert David. 1869-1930. American writer and editor who founded (1914) the liberal journal The New Republic.

Cro-Mag-non (krō-mäg'nən, -männ'yən) n. An early form of modern human being (Homo sapiens) inhabiting Europe in the late Paleolithic Era and characterized by a broad face and tall stature. It is known from skeletal remains first found in the Cro-Magnon cave in southern France. —Cro-Mag'non adj.

crom-lech (kröm'lěk') n. 1. A prehistoric monument consisting of monoliths encircling a mound. 2. A dolmen. [Welsh : crom, feminine of crwm, arched + llech, stone.]

cro-mo-lyn sodium (krō'mə-līn sō'dē-əm) n. A drug, C₂₃H₁₄Na₂O₁₁, usually administered by inhalation and used to prevent certain allergic attacks, especially those associated with asthma or hay fever. [Rearrangement of chemical name carboxychromon-yloxy-hydroxypropane.]

Cromp-ton (krömp'tən), Samuel. 1753-1827. British inventor of the spinning mule (1779).

Crom-well (kröm'wěl', -wəl, krüm'-), Oliver. 1599-1658. English military, political, and religious figure who led the Parliamentary victory in the English Civil War (1642-1649) and called for the execution of Charles I. As lord protector of England (1653-1658) he ruled as a virtual dictator. His son Richard (1626-1712) succeeded him briefly as lord protector (1658-1659) before the restoration of the monarchy under Charles II. —Crom-well'i-an adj.

Crom-well (kröm'wěl', -wəl, krüm'-), Thomas Earl of Essex. 1485?-1540. English politician who proposed the legislation that established the monarch as head of the established church (1534).

crone (krōn) n. An ugly, withered old woman; a hag. [Middle English, from Old North French carogne, carrion, cantankerous woman, from Vulgar Latin carōnia*, carrion, from Latin carō, carn-, flesh. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

Cro-nin (krō'nīn), A(rchibald) J(oseph). 1896-1981. British physician and writer whose novels include Hatter's Castle (1931) and The Judas Tree (1961).

Cro-nin (krō'nīn), James W. Born 1931. American educator and physicist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for work concerning the asymmetry of subatomic particles.

Cron-je (krôn'yā), Piet Arnoldus. 1836?-1911. South African general active in both Boer Wars (1881 and 1899-1900).

Cro-nus (krō'nəs) n. Greek Mythology. A Titan who ruled the universe until dethroned by his son Zeus.

cro-ny (krō'nē) n. pl. cro-nies. A long-time close friend or companion. [Possibly from Greek khronios, long lasting, from khronos, time.]

cro·ny·ism (krō'nē-iz'əm) n. Favoritism shown to old friends without regard for their qualifications, as in political appointments to office.

crook¹ (krōök) n. 1. An implement or tool, such as a bishop's crosier or a shepherd's staff, with a bent or curved part. 2. A part that is curved or bent like a hook. 3. A curve or bend; a turn: a crook in the path. 4. Informal. One who makes a living by dishonest methods. — v. crooked, crook·ing, crooks. — v. tr. To make a crook in; bend. — v. intr. To bend or curve. See Synonyms at bend¹. [Middle English crok, from Old Norse krōkr.]

crook² (krōök) adj. Australian. 1. Out of order; faulty. 2. Not well; ill. 3. Of poor quality; inferior. 4. Not honest; crooked. [From CROOKED, or CROOK¹.]

Crook (krōök), George. 1829-1890. American general who defeated the Sioux (1876) and subdued Geronimo (1883).

crook·back (krōök'bāk') n. Obsolete. See hunchback (n., sense 1). — crook·backed' adj.

crook·ed (krōök'id) adj. 1. Having or marked by bends, curves, or angles. 2. Informal. Dishonest or unscrupulous; fraudulent. — crook·ed·ly adv. — crook·ed·ness n.

crook·er·y (krōök'ə-rē) n. Dishonest practices, as in business or politics.

Crookes (krōöks), Sir William. 1832-1919. British chemist and physicist who discovered thallium (1861), invented the radiometer (1875), and studied cathode rays.

Crookes tube (krōöks tōob) n. A low-pressure discharge tube used to study the properties of cathode rays. [After Sir William CROOKES.]

crook·neck (krōök'něk') n. Any of several edible varieties of summer squash having a narrow crooked or curved neck and a yellow rind and flesh.

croon (krōön) v. crooned, croon·ing, croons. — v. intr. 1. To hum or sing softly. 2. To sing popular songs in a soft, sentimental manner. 3. Scots. To roar or bellow. — v. tr. To sing softly or in a humming way: crooning a lullaby. — n. A soft singing or humming. [Middle English crounen, from Middle Dutch krōnen, to lament. See gerə⁻² in Appendix.] — croon'er n.

crop (kröp) n. 1. a. Cultivated plants or agricultural produce, such as grain, vegetables, or fruit. b. The total yield of such produce in a particular season or place. 2. A group, quantity, or supply appearing at one time: a crop of new ideas. 3. A short haircut. 4. An earmark on an animal. 5. a. A short whip used in horseback riding, with a loop serving as a lash. b. The stock of a whip. 6. Zoology. a. A pouchlike enlargement of a bird's gullet in which food is partially digested or stored for regurgitation to nestlings. b. A similar enlargement in the digestive tract of annelids and insects. — v. cropped, crop·ping, crops. — v. tr. 1. a. To cut or bite off the tops or ends of: crop a hedge; sheep cropping grass. b. To cut (hair, for example) very short. c. To clip (an animal's ears, for example). d. To trim (a photograph or picture, for example). 2. a. To harvest: crop salmon. b. To cause to grow or yield a crop. — v. intr. 1. To feed on growing grasses and herbage. 2. To plant, grow, or yield a crop. — phrasal verb. crop up. To appear unexpectedly or occasionally: “one of the many theories that keep cropping up in his story” (Christopher Lehmann-Haupt). [Middle English, from Old English cropp, ear of grain.]

crop-dust·er or crop duster (kröp'düst'ər) n. 1. A light airplane equipped for spraying crops with powdered insecticides or fungicides. 2. The pilot of such an airplane.

crop-dust·ing (kröp'düs'ting) n. The process of spraying crops with powdered insecticides or fungicides from an airplane. — crop'·dust' v.

crop-eared (kröp'ird') adj. 1. Having the ears cropped. 2. Having the hair cut so short that the ears show.

crop-land (kröp'länd') n. Land that is fit or used for growing crops.

crop-per¹ (kröp'ər) n. A person who works land in return for a share of the yield; a sharecropper.

crop-per² (kröp'ər) n. 1. A heavy fall; a tumble. 2. A disastrous failure; a fiasco. [Perhaps from the phrase neck and crop, completely.]

crop rotation (kröp rō-tā'shən) n. The successive planting of different crops on the same land to improve soil fertility and help control insects and diseases.

cro·quet (krō-kā') Games. n. 1. An outdoor game in which the players drive wooden balls through a series of wickets using long-handled mallets. 2. The act of driving away an opponent's croquet ball by hitting one's own ball when the two are in contact. — v. tr. cro·queted (-kād'), cro·quet·ing (-kā'ing), cro·quets (-kāz'). To drive away (an opponent's croquet ball) by hitting one's own ball when the two are in contact. [French dialectal, hockey stick, from Old North French, shepherd's crook, diminutive of croque. See CROCKET.]

cro·quette (krō-kēt') n. A small cake of minced food, such as poultry, vegetables, or fish, that is usually coated with bread crumbs and fried in deep fat.

[French, from croquer, to crunch.]

cro·qui·gnole (krō'kən-yōl') n. A permanent wave in which the hair is wound around metal rods from the ends of the hair toward the scalp. [French, small, crisp pastry, tap on the head, from croquer, to crunch.]

Cros·by (krôz'bē) also Great Crosby (grāt) A municipal borough of north-west England on Liverpool Bay. It is primarily residential. Population, 53,660.

Cros·by (krôz'bē), Harry Lillis. Known as “Bing.” 1904-1977. American singer and actor noted for his crooning voice and for roles in many films, including Going My Way (1944), for which he won an Academy Award.

cro·sier or cro·zier (krō'zhər) n. 1. A staff with a crook or cross at the end, carried by or before an abbot, a bishop, or an archbishop as a symbol of office.

2. Botany. See fiddlehead (n., sense 2). [Middle English croser, from Old French crossier, staff bearer (influenced by croisier, one who bears a cross, from crois, cross, from Latin crux), from crose, crosier, of Germanic origin.]

CROSS (krôs, krös) n. 1. a. An upright post with a transverse piece near the top, on which condemned persons were executed in ancient times. b. Often Cross. The upright post with a transverse piece upon which Jesus was crucified. c. A symbolic representation of the structure on which Jesus was crucified. d. A crucifix. 2. A sign made by tracing the outline of a cross with the right hand upon the forehead and chest as a devotional act. 3. A trial, affliction, or frustration. See Synonyms at burden¹. 4. A medal, emblem, or insignia in the form of an upright post with a transverse piece near the top of it, or a modification thereto. 5. A mark or pattern formed by the intersection of two lines, especially such a mark (X) used as a signature. 6. A pipe fitting with four branches in upright and transverse form, used as a junction for intersecting pipes. 7. Biology. a. A plant or animal produced by crossbreeding; a hybrid. b. The process of crossbreeding; hybridization. 8. One that combines the qualities of two other things: a novel that is a cross between romance and satire. 9. Slang. A contest whose outcome has been dishonestly prearranged. — v. crossed, cross-ing, cross-es. — v. tr. 1. To go or extend across; pass from one side of to the other: crossed the room to greet us; a bridge that crosses the bay. 2. To carry or conduct across something: crossed the horses at the ford. 3. To extend or pass through or over; intersect: Elm Street crosses Oak Street. 4. a. To delete or eliminate by or as if by drawing a line through: crossed tasks off her list as she did them. b. To make or put a line across: Cross your t's. 5. To place crosswise one over the other: cross one's legs. 6. To make the sign of the cross upon or over as a sign of devotion. 7. To encounter in passing: His path crossed mine. 8. Informal. a. To interfere with; thwart or obstruct: Don't cross me. b. To ruin completely. Used with up: Their lack of cooperation crossed up the whole project. 9. Biology. To crossbreed or cross-fertilize (plants or animals). — v. intr. 1. To lie or pass across each other; intersect. 2. a. To move or extend from one side to another: crossed through Canada en route to Alaska. b. To make a crossing: crossed into Germany from Switzerland. 3. To change from one condition or loyalty to another. Used with over. 4. To meet in or as if in passing: Our letters must have crossed in the mail. 5. Biology. To crossbreed or cross-fertilize. — adj. 1. Lying or passing crosswise; intersecting: a cross street. 2. Contrary or counter; opposing. 3. Showing ill humor; annoyed. 4. Involving interchange; reciprocal. 5. Crossbred; hybrid. — adv. Crosswise. — prep. Across. — idioms. cross (someone's) palm. To pay, tip, or bribe. cross swords. To quarrel or fight. [Middle English cross, from Old English, probably from Old Norse kross, from Old Irish cross, from Latin crux.] — cross'er n. — cross'ly adv. — cross'ness n.

Cross (krôs, krös), Wilbur Lucius. 1862-1948. American politician and educator who was editor of the Yale Review (1911-1940) and governor of Connecticut (1931-1939).

cross-bar (krôs'bär', krös'-) n. A horizontal bar, line, or stripe.

cross-beam (krôs'bēm', krös'-) n. A horizontal or transverse beam, especially a structural member resting on two supports.

cross-bill (krôs'bīl', krös'-) n. Any of various finches of the genus Loxia, having curved mandibles with narrow tips that cross when the bill is closed.

cross-bones (krôs'bönz', krös'-) pl.n. A representation of two bones placed crosswise, usually under a skull, symbolizing danger or death.

cross-bow (krôs'bō', krös'-) n. A weapon consisting of a bow fixed crosswise on a wooden stock, with grooves on the stock to direct the projectile.

—cross'bow'man n.

cross-bred (krôs'brēd, krös'-) adj. Produced by the mating of individuals of different breeds, varieties, or species. —cross'bred' n.

cross-breed (krôs'brēd', krös'-) v. cross-bred (-brēd'), cross-breed-ing, cross-breeds. — v. tr. To produce (an organism) by the mating of individuals of different breeds, varieties, or species; hybridize. — v. intr. To mate so as to produce a hybrid; interbreed. — n. An organism produced by mating of individuals of different varieties or breeds.

cross-check (krôs'chĕk', krös'-) v. tr. cross-checked, cross-check-ing, cross-checks. 1. To verify by comparing with parallel or supplementary data.

2. Sports. To check illegally in ice hockey by striking an opponent with one's hockey stick held in both hands and lifted off the ice. — n. The act of cross-checking.

cross-coun-try (krôs'kūn'trē, krös'-) adj. 1. Abbr. XC, X-C Moving or directed across open country rather than following tracks, roads, or runs: a cross-country race. 2. From one side of a country to the opposite side: a cross-country flight. — n. Abbr. XC, X-C Sports. A cross-country sport, especially racing or skiing. —cross'-coun'try adv.

cross-country ski-ing (krôs'kūn'trē skē'ing) n. Sports. The sport of skiing over the countryside rather than on downhill runs.

cross-court (krôs'kōrt', -kōrt', krös'-) adv. & adj. Sports. To or toward the other side of a playing court, especially a basketball or tennis court.

cross cousin (krôs kŭz'īn) n. A cousin who is the child of one's mother's brother or one's father's sister.

cross-cul-tur-al (krôs'kŭl'chər-əl, krös'-) adj. Comparing or dealing with two or more different cultures: a cross-cultural survey; cross-cultural influences on an artist's work. —cross'-cul'tur-al-ly adv.

- cross-cur-rent (krôs/'kûr'ənt, -kûr'-, krôs'-'-) n. 1. A current flowing across another current. 2. A conflicting tendency, inclination, or movement: a crosscurrent of dissent; sociopolitical crosscurrents.
- cross-cut (krôs/'küt', krôs'-'-) v. cross-cut, cross-cut-ting, cross-cuts. — v. tr. 1. To cut or run across or through. 2. To cut using a crosscut saw. 3. To interweave (fragments of two or more scenes) in a film. — v. intr. To use the cinematic technique of crosscutting. — adj. 1. Constructed or used for cutting crosswise: crosscut teeth on a saw. 2. Cut across or crosswise: a crosscut slice of beef; a crosscut incision. — n. 1. A course or cut going crosswise. 2. A path more direct than the main path; a shortcut. 3. A level in a mine driven so that it intersects a vein of ore. 4. A crosscut saw. 5. An example of the cinematic technique of interweaving fragments of two or more scenes.
- crosscut saw (krôs/'küt' sô) n. A saw for cutting wood across the grain.
- cross-cut-ting (krôs/'küt'ing, krôs'-'-) n. A technique used especially in filmmaking in which fragments of two or more separate scenes are interwoven.
- cross-dress (krôs/'drës', krôs'-'-) v. intr. cross--dressed, cross--dress-ing, cross--dress-es. To dress in the clothing characteristic of the opposite sex. — cross'-dress'er n. — cross'-dress'ing n.
- crose (krôs, krôs) n. Sports. The stick used in lacrosse. [French, from Old French crose, staff. See CROSIER.]
- cross-ex-am-ine (krôs/'ig-zăm'in, krôs'-'-) v. cross-ex-am-ined, cross-ex-am-in-ing, cross-ex-am-ines. — v. tr. 1. To question (a person) closely, especially with regard to answers or information given previously. 2. Law. To question (a witness already examined by the opposing side). — v. intr. To question a person closely. — cross'-ex-am'i-na'tion n. — cross'-ex-am'in-er n.
- cross-eye (krôs/'ī', krôs'ī') n. A form of strabismus in which one or both eyes deviate toward the nose. — cross'-eyed' adj.
- cross-fer-til-i-za-tion (krôs/'fûr'tl-ī-zā'shən, krôs'-'-) n. 1. Biology. Fertilization by the union of gametes from different individuals, sometimes of different varieties or species. Also called allogamy 2. Mutual exchange, as between dissimilar concepts, cultures, or classifications, that enhances understanding or produces something beneficial. — cross'-fer'tile adj.
- cross-fer-til-ize (krôs/'fûr'tl-iz', krôs'-'-) v. intr. tr. cross-fer-til-ized, cross-fer-til-iz-ing, cross-fer-til-iz-es. To undergo or cause to undergo cross-fertilization.
- cross-file (krôs/'fil', krôs'-'-) v. tr. intr. cross--filed, cross--fil-ing, cross--files. To register (someone) or be registered as a candidate in the primaries of more than one political party. — cross'-fil'er n.
- cross-fire (krôs/'fir', krôs'-'-) n. 1. Lines of fire from two or more positions crossing each other at a single point: soldiers caught in crossfire. 2. A confronta-tional situation in which opposing factions, forces, views, or opinions converge.

3. Rapid, heated discussion.

Cross-Flo-ri-da Waterway (krôs'flôr'i-də wô'tər-wā', -flôr'-, krôs'-) See Lake Okeechobee.

cross-grained (krôs'grānd', krôs'-) adj. 1. Having an irregular, transverse, or diagonal grain, as opposed to a parallel grain. 2. Troublesome to deal with; contrary.

cross hair or cross-hair (krôs'hâr', krôs'-) n. Either of two fine strands of wire crossed in the focus of the eyepiece of an optical instrument and used as a calibration or sighting reference.

cross-hatch (krôs'hăch', krôs'-) v. tr. cross-hatched, cross-hatch-ing, cross-hatch-es. To mark or shade with two or more sets of intersecting parallel lines. — cross/hatch' n. — cross/-hatch'ing n.

cross-head (krôs'hěd', krôs'-) n. A beam that connects the piston rod to the connecting rod of a reciprocating engine.

cross-in-dex (krôs'in'děks', krôs'-) v. cross-in-dexed, cross-in-dex-ing, cross-in-dex-es. — v. tr. 1. To index (a particular item) under more than one heading. 2. To furnish (an index in a book, for example) with cross-references. — v. intr. To furnish cross-references. — cross/-in/dex n.

cross-ing (krô'sing, krôs'ing) n. 1. The act or action of crossing. 2. a. A place at which roads, lines, or tracks intersect; an intersection. b. A place at which a river, railroad, or highway, for example, may be crossed: a railroad crossing; a pedestrian crossing. 3. The intersection of the nave and transept in a cruciform church.

crossing over or cross-ing-o-ver (krô'sing-ō'vər, krôs'ing-) n. The exchange of genetic material between homologous chromosomes that occurs during meiosis and contributes to genetic variability.

cross-leg-ged (krôs'lěg'id, -lěgd', krôs'-) adv. & adj. 1. With the legs or ankles crossed and the knees far apart. 2. With one leg lying over and across the other leg.

cross-link (krôs'lingk', krôs'-) v. tr. cross--linked, cross-link-ing, cross-links. To join (adjacent chains of a polymer or protein) by creating covalent bonds. — n. A chemical bond or link created by cross-linking.

cross match-ing (krôs măch'ing) n. The process of determining the compatibility of blood from a donor with that of a recipient before transfusion.

cross-mul-ti-ply (krôs'mŭl'tə-plī', krôs'-) v. intr. cross-mul-ti-plied, cross-mul-ti-ply-ing, cross-mul-ti-plies. To multiply the numerator of one of a pair of fractions by the denominator of the other. — cross multiplication n.

cross-na-tion-al (krôs'năsh'ə-nəl, -năsh'nəl, krôs'-) adj. Of, relating to, or involving two or more nations.

cross-sop·te·ryg·i·an (krö-söp'tə-rīj'ē-ən) n. A member of the Crossopterygii, a group of bony fishes with paired, rounded fins that are extinct except for the coelacanth and are regarded as ancestors of amphibians and other terrestrial vertebrates. [From New Latin Crossopterygia, subclass name : Greek krossoi, fringe (from krossōtos, fringed, from krossai, projecting stone blocks) + Greek pterugia, fins pl. diminutive of pterox, pteryg-, wing. See PTERYGOID.]

—cross-sop'te-ryg'i-an adj.

cross·o·ver (krôs'ō'vər, krös'-) n. 1. A place at which or the means by which a crossing is made. 2. A short connecting track by which a train can be transferred from one line to another. 3. Genetics. a. Crossing over. b. A characteristic resulting from the exchange of genetic material between homologous chromosomes during meiosis. 4. A registered member of one political party who votes in the primary of the other party. 5. a. The adaptation of a musical style, as by blending elements of two or more styles or categories, in order to appeal to a wider audience. b. A recording designed to appeal to more than one segment or portion of the listening audience. c. One that appeals to a wide or diverse audience. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: the crossover vote in California; a big crossover hit.

cross·patch (krôs'päch', krös'-) n. A peevish, irascible person; a grouch. [CROSS + patch, jester.]

cross·piece (krôs'pēs', krös'-) n. A transverse or horizontal piece, as of a structure or implement.

cross·pol·li·nate (krôs'pöll'ə-nāt', krös'-) v. tr. cross·pol·li·nat·ed, cross·pol·li·nat·ing, cross·pol·li·nates. 1. To pollinate (a flower) by means of cross-pollination. 2. To influence or inspire (another), especially in a reciprocal manner.

cross·pol·li·na·tion (krôs'pöll'ə-nā'shən, krös'-) n. 1. The transfer of pollen from an anther of the flower of one plant to a stigma of the flower of another plant. 2. Influence or inspiration between or among diverse elements: “Jazz is fundamentally the cross-pollination of individual musicians playing together and against each other in small groups” (Ralph de Toledano).

cross product (krôs pröd'əkt) n. Mathematics. See vector product.

cross·pur·pose (krôs'pūr'pəs, krös'-) n. A usually unintentionally conflicting or contrary purpose. — idiom. at cross-purposes. Having or acting under a misunderstanding of each other's purposes: We're working at cross-purposes. We're talking at cross-purposes.

cross·ques·tion (krôs'kwēs'chən, krös'-) v. tr. cross·ques·tion·ed, cross·ques·tion·ing, cross·ques·tions. To question closely; cross-examine. — n. A question asked during cross-examination.

cross-re-action (krôs/rē-āk/shən, krôs/-) n. The reaction between an antigen and an antibody that was generated against a different but similar antigen.

—cross/-re-act/ v. —cross/-re-ac/tive adj. —cross/-re-ac-tiv/i-ty n.

cross-re-fer (krôs/rī-fûr/, krôs/-) v. cross-re-ferred, cross-re-fer-ring, cross-re-fers. — v. tr. To refer (a reader) from one part or passage to another. — v. intr. To make a cross-reference.

cross-ref-er-ence (krôs/rĕf'ər-əns, -rĕf'rəns, krôs/-) n. A reference from one part of a book, index, catalogue, or file to another part containing related information. — v. tr. cross-ref-er-enced, cross-ref-er-enc-ing, cross-ref-er-enc-es. To provide with cross-references.

cross-re-sis-tance (krôs/rī-zīs'təns, krôs/-) n. Tolerance to a usually toxic substance as a result of exposure to a similarly acting substance: Some insects develop cross-resistance to insecticides.

cross-road (krôs/rōd/, krôs/-) n. 1. A road that intersects another road. 2. crossroads. (used with a sing. verb). a. A place where two or more roads meet. b. A small, usually rural community situated at an intersection of two or more roads. c. A place that is centrally located. d. A crucial point. See Synonyms at crisis.

cross-ruff (krôs/rŭf/, -rŭf/, krôs/-) Games. n. A series of plays in games of the whist family in which partnership hands alternately trump suits led by the other partner. — v. cross-ruffed, cross-ruff-ing, cross-ruffs. — v. intr. To perform a crossruff or a series of crossruffs. — v. tr. To trump (one's partner's lead or a lead from the dummy) in alternating plays.

cross section also cross-sec-tion (krôs/sĕk/shən, krôs/-) n. 1. a. A section formed by a plane cutting through an object, usually at right angles to an axis. b. A piece so cut or a graphic representation of such a piece. 2. Physics. A measure of the probability of an encounter between particles that will result in the occurrence of a particular atomic or nuclear reaction. Also called collision cross section 3. Statistics. A sample meant to be representative of a whole population. 4. Informal. A variety; a diversity. —cross/-sec/tion-al (krôs/sĕk/shə-nəl, krôs/-) adj.

USAGE NOTE: Informally, one can speak of a cross section of a population even if the group chosen is not statistically representative of the population as a whole. Thus it is possible to say You meet a cross section of Americans when you travel by interstate bus, even though it is clear that some types of Americans are likely to be underrepresented among the interstate bus-riding public. When cross section is used in reference to the samples used in surveys and other investigations, however, the presumption is usually that the group has been chosen so as to be representative of the larger population. Thus in the sentence We interviewed a representative cross section of moviegoers, the phrase representative cross section was found to be redundant by 84 percent of the Usage Panel. See Usage Note at redundancy.

cross-stitch (krôś'stîç', krôs' -) n. 1. A double stitch forming an X in sewing and embroidery. 2. Needlework made with X-shaped stitches. — v. cross-stitched, cross-stitch-ing, cross-stitch-es. — v. tr. To make or embroider with X-shaped stitches. — v. intr. To work in the fashion of X-shaped stitches.

cross-talk (krôś'tôk', krôs' -) n. 1. Electronics. Undesired signals or sounds, as of voices, in a telephone or other communications device as a result of coupling between transmission circuits. 2. Ancillary, incidental conversation: cross-talk among members of the panel.

cross-tie (krôś'tî', krôs' -) n. A transverse beam or rod serving as a support, especially a beam that connects and supports the rails of a railroad.

cross-tolerance (krôś'tôl'ər-əns, krôs' -) n. Resistance to the effects of a substance as a result of continued exposure to a different substance having a similar pharmacologic action.

cross-town or cross-town (krôś'toun', krôs' -) adj. Running, extending, or going across a city or town: a cross-town street; cross-town traffic. — adv. Across a city or town: traveling cross-town.

cross-tree (krôś'trē', krôs' -) n. Nautical. One of the two horizontal crosspieces at the upper ends of the lower masts in fore-and-aft-rigged vessels, serving to spread the shrouds.

cross vault (krôś vòlt) n. A vaulting formed by the intersection of two or more simple vaults. Also called cross vaulting cross vine (krôś vīn) n. See bigonia.

cross-walk (krôś'wôk', krôs' -) n. A path marked off for pedestrians crossing a street.

cross-way (krôś'wā', krôs' -) n. A crossroad.

cross-ways (krôś'wāz', krôs' -) adv. Variant of crosswise.

cross-wind (krôś'wīnd', krôs' -) n. A wind blowing at right angles to a given direction, as to an aircraft's line of flight.

cross-wise (krôś'wīz', krôs' -) also cross-ways (-wāz') adv. So as to be or lie in a cross direction; across: placed the kindling crosswise to the rest of the wood. — adj. Crossing: a crosswise piece.

cross-word puzzle (krôś'wôrd' püz'əl, krôs' -) n. A puzzle in which an arrangement of numbered squares is to be filled with words running both across and down in answer to correspondingly numbered clues.

crotch (kröch) n. 1. The angle or region of the angle formed by the junction of two parts or members, such as two branches, limbs, or legs. 2. The fork of a pole or other support. [Possibly alteration of CRUTCH, and partly from croche, crook, crosier (from Old French croche, hook, shepherd's crook, feminine of croc, hook).] — crotched (kröcht) adj.

crotch-et (kröch'īt) n. 1. An odd, whimsical, or stubborn notion. 2. Music. See quarter note. 3. Obsolete. A small hook or hooklike structure. [Middle English crochet, from Old French. See CROCHET.]

crotch-et-y (kröch'ī-tē) adj. Capriciously stubborn or eccentric; perverse.
—crotch'et-i-ness n.

Croth-ers (krŭth'ərz), Rachel. 1878-1958. American playwright, director, and producer whose plays, including Susan and God (1937), often concern women's issues.

cro-ton (krōt'n) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Croton, which includes the sources of cascarilla bark and croton oil. 2. An Old World tropical evergreen shrub (Codiaeum variegatum) widely cultivated as a houseplant for its glossy, multicolored foliage. [New Latin Croton, genus name, from Greek krotōn, castor oil plant.]

Cro-to-na (krə-tō'nə) See Crotone.

Cro-ton bug (krōt'n bŭg) n. See German cockroach. [After the Croton River of southeast New York.]

Cro-to-ne (krə-tō'nē, krō-tō'ně) Formerly Cro-to-na (krə-tō'nə). A city of southern Italy on the Ionian Sea northeast of Reggio di Calabria. It was founded c. 708 B.C. as a colony of Magna Graecia and reached the height of its power after 510 B.C. Population, 58,281.

cro-ton-ic acid (krō-tŏn'ik əs'id) n. An organic acid, C₄H₆O₂, used in the preparation of pharmaceuticals and resins. [From New Latin Croton, plant genus. See CROTON.]

croton oil (krōt'n oil) n. A brownish-yellow oil obtained from the seeds of a tropical Asian shrub or small tree (Croton tiglium) and having a cathartic action too violent for human use.

cro-tin (krōt'n) n. 1. A pungent cheese made of goat's milk and formed into small disks. 2. A disk of this cheese. [French, from Old French crostin, animal dropping, diminutive of crote, dung, probably of Germanic origin.]

crouch (krouch) v. crouched, crouch-ing, crouch-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To stoop, especially with the knees bent: They crouched over the grate with a flashlight, searching for the lost gem. b. To press the entire body close to the ground with the limbs bent: a cat crouching near its prey. 2. To bend servilely or timidly; cringe. — v. tr. To bend (the head or knee, for example) low, as in fear or humility. — n. The act or posture of bending low or crouching. [Middle English crouchen, probably from Old North French crouchir*, to become bent, variant of Old French crochir, from croche, hook. See CROCHET.]

croup¹ (krōop) n. A pathological condition of the larynx, especially in infants and children, that is characterized by respiratory difficulty and a hoarse, brassy cough. [From dialectal croup, to croak.] —croup'ous (krōop'pəs), croup'y adj.

croup² (krōōp) n. The rump of a beast of burden, especially a horse. [Middle English croupe, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

crou-pi-er (krōō'pē-ər, -pē-ā') n. An attendant at a gaming table who collects and pays bets. [French, one who rides behind another on a horse (obsolete), croupier, from croupe, rump, croup, from Old French. See CROUP².]

crouse (krōōs) adj. Scots. Lively; vivacious. [Middle English crous, fierce, bold, perhaps from Middle Flemish cruus, curly, bold.]

Crouse (krous), Russel. 1893-1966. American playwright whose works include several collaborations, such as State of the Union, for which he shared a Pulitzer Prize (1946), and the musical Call Me Madam (1950).

crous-tade (krōō-stād') n. A molded or hollowed bowl-like crust, as of pastry, rice, or bread, used as a serving container for another food. [French, from Provençal croustado, from Latin crustātus, past participle of crustāre, to encrust, from crusta, crust. See CRUST.]

crou-ton (krōō'tōn', krōō-tōn') n. A small crisp piece of toasted or fried bread. [French croûton, diminutive of croûte, crust, from Old French crouste, from Latin crusta. See kreus- in Appendix.]

crow¹ (krō) n. 1. Any of several large, glossy, black birds of the genus Corvus, having a characteristic raucous call, especially C. brachyrhynchos of North America. 2. A crowbar. — idiom. as the crow flies. In a straight line. [Middle English croue, from Old English crāwe. See gerə⁻² in Appendix.]

crow² (krō) v. intr. crowed, crow-ing, crows. 1. To utter the shrill cry characteristic of a cock or rooster. 2. To exult loudly, as over another's defeat; boast. See Synonyms at boast¹. 3. To make a sound expressive of pleasure or well-being, characteristic of an infant. — n. 1. The shrill cry of a cock. 2. An inarticulate sound expressive of pleasure or delight. [Middle English crouen, from Old English crāwan. See gerə⁻² in Appendix.]

Crow¹ (krō) n. pl. Crow or Crows. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting an area of the northern Great Plains between the Platte and Yellowstone rivers, now located in southeast Montana. The Crow became nomadic buffalo hunters after migrating west from the Missouri River in North Dakota in the 18th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The Siouan language of the Crow. Also called Absaroke Crow² (krō) n. See Corvus.

crow-bar (krō'bār') n. A straight bar of iron or steel, with the working end shaped like a chisel and often slightly bent and forked, used as a lever. — v. tr. crow-barred, crow-bar-ring, crow-bars. To extract, remove, or insert forcibly: “[The newsmagazines] can crowbar stories in as late as Sunday and still be out on Monday” (Edwin Diamond). [From the resemblance of its forked end to a crow's foot or beak.]

crow-ber-ry (krō'bĕr'ē) n. 1. A low-growing evergreen shrub (Empetrum nigrum) native to cool regions of the Northern Hemisphere and having tiny leaves, small pinkish or purplish flowers, and black, berrylike fruits. 2. The fruit of this plant.

crow blackbird (krō blāk'būrd') n. See grackle (n., sense 1).

crowd¹ (kroud) n. 1. A large number of persons gathered together; a throng. 2. The common people; the populace. 3. A group of people united by a common characteristic, as age, interest, or vocation: the over-30 crowd. 4. A group of people attending a public function; an audience: The play drew a small but appreciative crowd. 5. A large number of things positioned or considered together. — v. crowd-ed, crowd-ing, crowds. — v. intr. 1. To congregate in a restricted area; throng: The children crowded around the TV. 2. To advance by pressing or shoving: A bevy of reporters crowded toward the candidate. — v. tr. 1. To force by or as if by pressing or shoving: Police crowded the spectators back to the viewing stand. Urban sprawl crowded the small farmers out of the immediate area. 2. To draw or stand near to: The batter crowded the plate. 3. To press, cram, or force tightly together: crowded the clothes into the closet. 4. To fill or occupy to overflowing: Books crowded the shelves. 5. Informal. To put pressure on, as to pay a debt. — idiom. crowd (on) sail. Nautical. To spread a large amount of sail to increase speed. [From Middle English crowden, to crowd, from Old English crūdan, to hasten.] — crowd'er n.

SYNONYMS: crowd, crush, flock, horde, mob, press, throng. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a large group of people gathered close to one another”: a crowd of well-wishers; a crush of autograph seekers; a flock of schoolchildren; a horde of demonstrators; a mob of hard-rock enthusiasts; a press of shoppers; throngs of tourists.

crowd² (kroud, krōd) n. 1. Music. An ancient Celtic stringed instrument that was bowed or plucked. Also called crwth. 2. Chiefly British. A fiddle. [Middle English croud, from Welsh crwth, hump, crowd.]

crow-die or crow-dy (krōd'dē, krō'-, krōd'dē) n. pl. crow-dies. Scots. 1. A soft cheese made from curds. 2. Porridge; gruel. [Origin unknown.]

crowd pleas-er also crowd-pleas-er or crowd·pleas-er (kroud'plē'zər) n. Informal. A person, spectacle, work, or idea that appeals to popular taste: “an ambitious exhibit that is neither an easy crowd pleaser nor a rehash of old ideas, but an original look at German expressionist sculpture” (Mark Stevens).

crowd-pleas-ing or crowd·pleas-ing (kroud'plē'zɪŋ) adj. Informal. Having characteristics that satisfy popular taste: a crowd-pleasing musical comedy.

crow-dy (krōd'dē, krō'-, krōd'dē) n. Variant of crowdie.

crow-foot (krō'fōōt') n. 1. pl. crow-foots. a. Any of numerous plants of the genus Ranunculus that have palmately cleft or divided leaves, such as the buttercups. b. Any of several other plants having leaves or other parts somewhat resembling a bird's foot. 2. pl. crow-feet (-fēt'). An iron ball with four spikes arranged so that one always points upwards, used to delay the advance of mounted troops and infantry; a caltrop. 3. pl. crow-feet. Nautical. A set of small lines passed through holes of a batten or fitting to help support the backbone of an awning.

Crow-ley (krou'lē) A city of southern Louisiana west of Lafayette. It is the trade and shipping center of a rice-growing region. Population, 16,036.

crown (kroun) n. Abbr. cr. 1. An ornamental circlet or head covering, often made of precious metal set with jewels and worn as a symbol of sovereignty. 2. Often Crown. a. The power, position, or empire of a monarch or of a state governed by constitutional monarchy. b. The monarch as head of state. 3. A distinction or reward for achievement, especially a title signifying championship in a sport. 4. Something resembling a diadem in shape. 5. a. A coin stamped with a crown or crowned head on one side. b. A silver coin formerly used in Great Britain and worth five shillings. c. Any one of several coins, such as the koruna, the krona, or the krone, having a name that means "crown." d. A basic unit of currency in Czech Republic, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, and Sweden. 6. a. The top or highest part of the head. b. The head itself. 7. The top or upper part of a hat. 8. The highest point or summit. 9. The highest, primary, or most valuable part, attribute, or state: considered the rare Turkish stamp the crown of their collection. 10. Dentistry. a. The part of a tooth that is covered by enamel and projects beyond the gum line. b. An artificial substitute for the natural crown of a tooth. 11. Nautical. The lowest part of an anchor, where the arms are joined to the shank. 12. Botany. a. The upper part of a tree, which includes the branches and leaves. b. The part of a plant, usually at ground level, where the stem and roots merge. c. The persistent, mostly underground base of a perennial herb. d. See corona (n., sense 5). 13. The crest of an animal, especially of a bird. 14. The portion of a cut gem above the girdle. — v. crowned, crown-ing, crowns. — v. tr. 1. To put a crown or garland on the head of. 2. To invest with regal power; enthrone. 3. To confer honor, dignity, or reward upon. 4. To surmount or be the highest part of. 5. To form the crown, top, or chief ornament of. 6. To bring to completion or successful conclusion; consummate: crowned the event with a lavish reception. 7. Dentistry. To put a crown on (a tooth). 8. Games. To make (a piece in checkers that has reached the last row) into a king by placing another piece upon it. 9. Informal. To hit on the head. — v. intr. To reach a stage in labor when a large segment of the fetal scalp is visible at the vaginal orifice. Used of a fetus or the head of a fetus. [Middle English crowne, from Anglo-Norman coroune, from Latin corōna, wreath, garland, crown, from Greek korōnē, korōna, anything curved, kind of crown, from korōnos, curved. See sker-² in Appendix.]

crown canopy (kroun kǎn'ə-pē) n. See canopy (n., sense 5).

crown colony (kroun kōl'ə-nē) n. A British colony in which the government in London has some control of legislation, usually administered by an appointed governor.

crown daisy (kroun dā'zē) n. See garland chrysanthemum.

crown gall (kroun gōl) n. A widespread disease of numerous plants caused by the bacterium Agrobacterium tumefaciens and characterized by formation of galls especially at the junction of root and stem.

crown glass (kroun glās) n. 1. A soda-lime optical glass that is exceptionally hard and clear, with low refraction and low dispersion. 2. A form of window glass made by whirling a glass bubble to make a flat circular disk with a lump left in the center by the glass blower's rod.

crown jewel (kroun jōō'əl) n. 1. a. A precious stone that is part of a sovereign's regalia. b. crown jewels. The jewels, such as those in a crown or scepter, used ceremonially by a sovereign. 2. a. Something felt to resemble the ceremonial jewels of a sovereign, as in brilliance. b. A prized corporate asset, typically a very profitable part of a company sought by another party in a hostile takeover attempt.

crown lens (kroun lēnz) n. The crown-glass element in an achromatic lens.

crown-of-thorns (kroun'əv-thōrnz') n. 1. A trailing or climbing spiny shrub (Euphorbia milii) native to Madagascar and cultivated as a houseplant, having showy flower clusters with usually red, petallike bracts. 2. The Christ's thorn.

Crown Point (kroun point) 1. A city of northwest Indiana, a mainly residential suburb of Gary. Population, 17,728. 2. A village of northeast New York on the western shore of Lake Champlain. It was the site of a French fort captured by the British in 1759 during the French and Indian War. In the American Revolution it was taken by the Green Mountain Boys, retaken by the British in 1777, and abandoned the same year after the defeat at Saratoga. Population, 900.

crown prince (kroun prīns) n. The male heir apparent to a throne.

crown princess (kroun prīn'sis) n. 1. The female heir apparent to a throne. 2. The wife of a crown prince.

crown roast (kroun rōst) n. A pork, lamb, or veal roast consisting of the rib sections of two loins placed upright and fastened together in a circle.

crown rot (kroun rōt) n. Any of several mostly fungal diseases of plants characterized by a rotting of the stem near ground level.

crown saw (kroun sô) n. A cylindrical saw with teeth on the bottom edge of the cylinder, used for cutting round holes.

crown vetch (kroun věch) n. A perennial European herb (Coronilla varia) in the pea family, grown for forage and erosion control and having clusters of small white or pink flowers and pinnately compound leaves.

crow's-foot (krōz/'fōōt') n. pl. crow's--feet (-fēt'). 1. Often crow's-feet. A lasting wrinkle or wrinkles formed at the outer corner of the eye. 2. A three-pointed embroidery stitch, especially one in the form of a filled triangle used as finishing, as at the end of a seam.

crow's-nest (krōz/'něst') n. 1. Nautical. A small lookout platform with a protective railing and windscreen, located near the top of a ship's mast or superstructure. 2. A similar lookout platform located ashore.

croze (krōz) n. A groove inside the end of a barrel or cask into which the head is set. [French creux, from Old French crues, groove, from Vulgar Latin crosus*, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

cro-zier (krō/'zhær) n. Variant of crosier.

CRP abbr. C-reactive protein.

CRT abbr. Cathode-ray tube.

cru (krō) n. pl. crus. 1. A vineyard or wine-producing region in France. 2. A grade or class of wine: premier cru. [French, from the past participle of croître, to grow, from Old French creistre. See CRESCENT.]

cru-ces (krō/'sēz) n. A plural of crux.

cru-cial (krō/'shəl) adj. 1. a. Extremely significant or important: a crucial problem. b. Vital to the resolution of a crisis; decisive: a crucial election. See Synonyms at decisive. 2. Archaic. Having the form of a cross; cross-shaped. [From New Latin (instantia) crucis, (experimentum) crucis, crossroads (case), crossroads (experiment), from Latin crux, cruc-, cross. Sense 2, French from Old French, from Latin crux, cruc-, cross.] —cru'cial·ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: A crucial election is like a signpost because it shows which way the electorate is moving. The metaphor of a signpost, in fact, gives us the sense of the word crucial, “of supreme importance, critical.” Francis Bacon used the phrase instantia crucis, “crucial instance,” to refer to something in an experiment that proves one of two hypotheses and disproves the other. Bacon’s phrase was based on a sense of the Latin word crux, “cross,” which had come to mean “a guidepost that gives directions at a place where one road becomes two,” and hence was suitable for Bacon’s metaphor. Both Robert Boyle, often called the father of modern chemistry, and Isaac Newton used the similar Latin phrase experimentum crucis, “crucial experiment.” When these phrases were translated into English, they became crucial instance and crucial experiment.

cru-ci-ate (krō/'shē-āt') adj. 1. Arranged in or forming a cross; cruciform. 2. a. Overlapping or crossing, as the wings of some insects when at rest.

b. Shaped like a cross: the cruciate ligaments of the knee. [New Latin cruciātus, from Latin crux, cruc-, cross.] —cru'ci-ate'ly adv.

cru-ci-ble (krōō'sə-bəl) n. 1. A vessel made of a refractory substance such as graphite or porcelain, used for melting and calcining materials at high temperatures. 2. A severe test, as of patience or belief; a trial. See Synonyms at trial. 3. A place, time, or situation characterized by the confluence of powerful intellectual, social, economic, or political forces: "Yale is a crucible in American life for the accommodation of intellectual achievement, of wisdom, of refinement, with the democratic ideals of openness, of social justice and of equal opportunity" (Benno C. Schmidt, Jr.). [Middle English crusible, from Medieval Latin crūcibulum, night-light, crucible, possibly from Old French croisuel, cresset. See CRESSET.] crucible steel (krōō'sə-bəl stēl) n. See drill steel.

cru-ci-fer (krōō'sə-fər) n. 1. One who bears a cross in a religious procession. 2. Botany. Any of various plants in the mustard family (Cruciferae or Brassicaceae), which includes the alyssum, candytuft, cabbage, radish, broccoli, and many weeds. [Late Latin : crux, cruc-, cross + -fer, -fer.] —cru-cif'er-ous (-sif'ər-əs) adj.

cru-ci-fix (krōō'sə-fiks') n. 1. An image or figure of Jesus on the cross. 2. A cross viewed as a symbol of Jesus's crucifixion. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin crucifixus, from Latin, past participle of crucifigere, crucify. See CRUCIFY.]

cru-ci-fix-ion (krōō'sə-fik'shən) n. 1. a. The act of crucifying; execution on a cross. b. Crucifixion. The crucifying of Jesus on Calvary. Used with the. c. A representation of Jesus on the cross. 2. An extremely difficult, painful trial; torturous suffering.

crucifixion thorn (krōō'sə-fik'shən thôrn) n. Any of several unrelated shrubs or small trees of desert regions in the southwest United States and Mexico, having tiny, early deciduous leaves and branches and stems resembling a mass of thorns.

cru-ci-form (krōō'sə-fôrm') adj. Shaped like a cross; cruciate. [Latin crux, cruc-, cross + -FORM.] —cru'ci-form' n. —cru'ci-form'ly adv.

cru-ci-fy (krōō'sə-fī') v. tr. cru-ci-fied, cru-ci-fy-ing, cru-ci-fies. 1. To put (a person) to death by nailing or binding to a cross. 2. To mortify or subdue (the flesh). 3. To treat cruelly; torment: a candidate who was crucified by the press. [Middle English crucifien, from Old French crucifier, alteration of Latin crucifigere : crux, cruc-, cross + fīgere, to attach; see dhig^w- in Appendix.] —cru'ci-fi'er n.

crud (krūd) n. 1. Slang. a. A coating or an incrustation of filth or refuse. b. Something loathsome, despicable, or worthless. c. One who is contemptible or disgusting. 2. A disease or ailment, imaginary or real, especially one affecting the skin. 3. Sports. Heavy, sticky snow that is unsuitable for skiing. [Middle crud·dy (krüd'ē) adj. crud·di·er, crud·di·est. Slang. Worthless, loathsome, or disgusting. —crud·di·ness n.

English crudde, possibly from Old English cruden*, past participle of crūdan, to press, drive.]

crude (krōōd) adj. crud·er, crud·est. 1. Being in an unrefined or natural state; raw. 2. Lacking tact, refinement, or taste. 3. a. Not carefully or completely made; rough. b. Statistics. In an unanalyzed form; not adjusted to allow for related circumstances or data. 4. Displaying a lack of knowledge or skill.

5. Undisguised or unadorned; blunt: must face the crude truth. 6. Archaic.

Unripe or immature. — n. A substance, especially petroleum, in its unrefined state. [Middle English, from Latin crūdus. See kreuə- in Appendix.] —crude'ly

adv. —cru'di·ty (krōō'dī-tē), crude'ness n.

SYNONYMS: crude, native, raw. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “in a natural state and not yet processed for use”: crude rubber; native iron; raw cotton. See also Synonyms at rude crude oil (krōōd oil) n. Unrefined petroleum.

cru·di·tés (krōō'dī-tā') pl.n. Cut raw vegetables, such as carrot sticks and pepper strips, served often with a dip as an appetizer. [French, pl. of crudité, indigestibility, from Old French crudite, from Latin crūdītās, indigestion, undigested food, from crūdus, raw. See CRUDE.]

cru·el (krōō'əl) adj. cru·el·er or cru·el·ler, cru·el·est or cru·el·lest.

1. Disposed to inflict pain or suffering. 2. Causing suffering; painful. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin crūdēlis. See kreuə- in Appendix.]

—cru'el·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: cruel, fierce, ferocious, barbarous, inhuman, savage, vicious. These adjectives mean showing a disposition to inflict violence, pain, or hardship, or to find satisfaction in the suffering of others. Cruel implies both disposition to harm and satisfaction in or indifference to suffering: a cruel tyrant. Fierce suggests the fearless aggression of a wild animal: a fierce attack; fierce anger. Ferocious adds to fierce connotations of rabid fury and rampant brutality: a ferocious attack dog; a ferocious battle for supremacy. Barbarous suggests harshness and cruelty that befit only primitive human beings: committed a barbarous crime. Inhuman means markedly deficient in those qualities such as kindness and sympathy that are proper to a human being: cruel and inhuman behavior. Savage implies a lack of the control or moderation expected of a civilized person: a savage outburst of temper; a savage slap. Vicious suggests a disposition to malicious, violent, or destructive behavior: vicious animosity; a vicious anonymous letter; a vicious kick.

cru-el-ty (krōō'əl-tē) n. pl. cru-el-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being cruel. 2. Something, such as a cruel act or remark, that causes pain or suffering. 3. Law. The infliction of physical or mental distress, especially when considered a determinant in granting a divorce.

cru-et (krōō'īt) n. 1. A small glass bottle for holding a condiment, such as vinegar or oil, at the table. 2. A small vessel for holy water or for water or wine used in the consecration of the Eucharist. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of crue, flask, of Germanic origin.]

Cruik-shank (krōōk'shāngk'), George. 1792-1878. British caricaturist and illustrator of the works of Charles Dickens and other novelists.

cruise (krōōz) v. cruised, cruis-ing, cruis-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To sail or travel about, as for pleasure or reconnaissance. b. To go or move along, especially in an unhurried or unconcerned fashion: "A whole cache of babies... cruised imperiously in their strollers, propelled by their mothers or by pairs of grandmothers" (Anne Tyler). 2. To travel at a constant speed, or at a speed providing maximum operating efficiency for a sustained period. 3. a. Informal. To move leisurely about an area in the hope of discovering something: taxis cruising for fares. b. Slang. To look for a sexual partner, as in a public place. 4. To inspect a wooded area to determine its lumber yield. — v. tr. 1. To travel about or journey over.

2. Slang. a. To look in (a public area) for a sexual partner. b. To seek out and make a sexual overture to. 3. To inspect in order to determine lumber yield. — n. The act or an instance of cruising, especially a sea voyage for pleasure. [Dutch kruisen, to cross, from Dutch kruis, cross, from Middle Dutch cruce, from Latin crux, cruc-, cross.]

cruise control (krōōz kən-trōl') n. 1. A system in a motor vehicle for maintaining a constant speed. 2. Maintenance of a constant speed in such a vehicle.

cruise missile (krōōz mīs'əl) n. An unmanned aircraft that serves as a self-contained bomb.

cruis-er (krōō'zər) n. 1. One of a class of fast warships of medium tonnage with a long cruising radius and less armor and firepower than a battleship.

2. Nautical. A cabin cruiser. 3. See squad car.

cruis-er-weight (krōōzər-wāt') n. 1. Sports. A boxer in a subcategory of the heavyweight division, having an upper weight limit set at 190 pounds (86 kilograms). 2. Chiefly British. A light heavyweight boxer. [Possibly after the cruiser warship, the second heaviest warship.]

cruis-ing radius (krōō'zĩng rā'dē-əs) n. The maximum distance that a ship or aircraft can travel away from and back to its point of origin without refueling.

crul-ler (krül'ər) n. 1. A small, usually ring-shaped or twisted cake of sweet dough fried in deep fat. 2. Chiefly New England & Chiefly Pennsylvania. An unraised doughnut, usually twisted but also shaped into rings or oblongs. [From obsolete Dutch krulle-koken, rolled-up cake, from Middle Dutch crulle-koken, to curl, from crulle, curly.]

crumb (krŭm) n. 1. A very small piece broken from a baked item, such as a cookie, cake, or bread. 2. A small fragment, scrap, or portion: eraser crumbs; not a crumb of kindness for you. 3. The soft inner portion of bread. 4. Slang. A contemptible, untrustworthy, or loathsome person. — v. crumbed, crumb-ing, crumbs. — v. tr. 1. To break into very small pieces; crumble. 2. To cover or prepare with very small pieces of bread. 3. To brush (a table or cloth) clear of small scraps or fragments of food. — v. intr. To break apart in very small pieces: a solid cake that won't crumb. [Middle English crome, from Old English cruma.]

crum-ble (krŭm' bəl) v. crum-bled, crum-bling, crum-bles. — v. tr. To break into small fragments or particles. — v. intr. 1. To fall into small fragments or particles; disintegrate. See Synonyms at decay. 2. To give way; collapse: an ego that crumbles under pressure. [Alteration (influenced by CRUMB), of Middle English cremelen, from Old English cymelen*, frequentative of gecrymian, to break into crumbs, from cruma, crumb.]

crum-bly (krŭm' blē) adj. crum-bli-er, crum-bli-est. Easily crumbled; friable. — crum'bli-ness n.

crumb-y (krŭm' ē) adj. Slang. Variant of crummy.

crum-horn (krŭm' hōrn') n. Music. Variant of krummhorn.

crum-mie (krŭm' ē) n. Scots. A cow, especially one with crooked horns. [From Scots crumb, crooked, from Middle English. See CRUMPET.]

crum-my also crumb-y (krŭm' ē) adj. crum-mi-er also crumb-i-er, crum-mi-est also crumb-i-est. Slang. 1. Miserable or wretched: a crummy situation in the family. 2. Shabby or cheap: a crummy little rowboat. [Probably from CRUMB.]

crump (krŭmp) v. crumped, crump-ing, crumps. — v. tr. 1. To crush or crunch with the teeth. 2. To strike heavily with a crunching sound. — v. intr. To make a crunching sound, especially in walking over snow. — n. 1. a. A crunching sound. b. The sound of an exploding shell. 2. A heavy blow. [Imitative.]

crum-pet (krŭm' pīt) n. A small, flat round of bread, baked on a griddle and usually served toasted. [Possibly from Middle English crompid (cake), curled (cake), probably past participle of crumpen, to curl up, probably from crumb, crump, crooked, from Old English.]

crum-ple (krŭm' pəl) v. crum-pled, crum-pling, crum-ples. — v. tr. 1. To crush together or press into wrinkles; rumple. 2. To cause to fall apart. — v. intr. 1. To become wrinkled. 2. To fall apart; collapse: a regime that finally crumpled. — n. An irregular fold, crease, or wrinkle. [Middle English crumplen, probably frequentative of crumpen, to curl up. See CRUMPET.] — crum'ply adj.

crunch (krŭnch) v. crunched, crunch-ing, crunch-es. — v. tr. 1. To chew with a noisy crackling sound. 2. To crush, grind, or tread noisily. 3. Slang. To perform operations on; manipulate or process (numerical or mathematical data). — v. intr. 1. To chew noisily with a crackling sound: crunching on celery. 2. To move with a crushing sound: crunching through the snow. 3. To produce or emit a crushing sound. — n. 1. The act or sound of crunching. 2. a. A decisive confrontation. b. A critical moment or situation, especially one that occurs because of a shortage of time or resources: a year-end crunch; an energy crunch. c. A period of financial difficulty characterized by tight money and unavailability of credit. [Alteration of craunch, possibly of imitative origin.] —crunch/a-ble adj.

crunch-er (krŭnch'ər) n. Slang. A finishing or decisive blow.

crunch-y (krŭn'chē) adj. crunch-i-er, crunch-i-est. Making a crunching or crackling sound, as when chewed; crisp: crunchy fresh vegetables.

crup-per (krŭp'ər) n. 1. A leather strap looped under a horse's tail and attached to a harness or saddle to keep it from slipping forward. 2. The rump of a horse; the croup. [Middle English crouper, from Old French cropiere, from croupe, rump. See CROUP².]

cru-ra (krŭr'ə) n. Plural of cru-s.

cru-ral (krŭr'əl) adj. Of or relating to the leg, shank, or thigh. [Latin crūrālis, from crūs, crūr-, leg.]

cru-s (krŭs, krŭs) n. pl. cru-ra (krŭr'ə). 1. The section of the leg or hind limb between the knee and foot; shank. 2. a. A leglike part. b. A body part consisting of elongated masses or diverging bands that resemble legs or roots. [Latin crūs, crūr-, leg.]

cru-sade (krŭ-sād') n. 1. Often Crusade. Any of the military expeditions undertaken by European Christians in the 11th, 12th, and 13th centuries to recover the Holy Land from the Muslims. 2. A holy war undertaken with papal sanction. 3. A vigorous concerted movement for a cause or against an abuse. See Synonyms at campaign. — v. intr. cru-sad-ed, cru-sad-ing, cru-sades. To engage in a crusade. [French croisade, and Spanish crusada both ultimately from Latin crux, cruc-, cross.] —cru-sad'er n.

cru-sa-do (krŭ-sä'dō) also cru-za-do (-zä'-) n. pl. cru-sa-does or cru-sa-dos. An old Portuguese coin of gold or silver having a cross pictured on the reverse. [Portuguese, from past participle of cruzar, to mark with a cross, from cruz, cross, from Latin crux, cruc-.]

cruse (krŭz, krŭs) n. A small earthenware container, such as a pot or jar, for holding liquids. [Middle English crouse, perhaps from Middle Dutch cruyse, pot.]

crush (krŭsh) v. crushed, crush-ing, crush-es. — v. tr. 1. To press between opposing bodies so as to break or injure. 2. To break, pound, or grind (stone or ore, for example) into small fragments or powder. 3. To put down; subdue:

crushed the rebellion. 4. To overwhelm or oppress severely: spirits that had been crushed by rejection and failure. 5. To crumple or rumple: crushed the freshly ironed shirt. 6. To hug, especially with great force. 7. To press upon, shove, or crowd. 8. To extract or obtain by pressing or squeezing: crush juice from a grape. 9. Archaic. To drink; quaff. — v. intr. 1. To be or become crushed. 2. To proceed or move by crowding or pressing. — n. 1. The act of crushing; extreme pressure. 2. The state of being crushed. 3. A great crowd: a crush of spectators. 4. A substance prepared by or as if by crushing, especially a fruit drink: orange crush. 5. Informal. a. A usually temporary infatuation. b. The object of such an infatuation. 6. A decisive or critical moment or situation. 7. The process of stamping or crushing grapes for wine. [Middle English crushen, from Old French croissir, of Germanic origin.] —crush/a·ble adj. —crush'er n. —crush-'proof' (-prōof') adj.

SYNONYMS: crush, mash, pulp, smash, squash. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to press forcefully so as to reduce to a pulpy mass”: crush rose geranium leaves; mashed the sweet potatoes; pulped raspberries through a sieve; smashing bamboo stems with a hammer; squash an egg under one's foot. See also Synonyms at crowd¹ crushed (krüşht) adj. Treated so as to have a permanently crinkled or rumpled appearance. Used of a fabric: crushed velvet; crushed denim.

crust (krüst) n. 1. a. The hard outer portion or surface area of bread. b. A piece of bread consisting mostly of the hard outer portion. c. A piece of bread that has become hard and dry. 2. A pastry shell, as of a pie or tart. 3. A hard, crisp covering or surface: snow with a firm crust. 4. A hard deposit formed on the interior of a wine bottle as the wine matures. 5. Geology. a. The exterior portion of the earth that lies above the Mohorovičić discontinuity. b. The outermost solid layer of a planet or moon. 6. The hard outer covering or integument of certain plants and animals, such as lichens and crustaceans. 7. Pathology. An outer layer or coating formed by the drying of a bodily exudate such as pus or blood; a scab. 8. Informal. Insolence; audacity; gall. — v. crust-ed, crust-ing, crusts. — v. tr. 1. To cover with a crust. 2. To form into a crust. — v. intr. 1. To become covered with a crust. 2. To harden into a crust. [Middle English cruste, from Old French crouste, from Latin crusta. See kreus- in Appendix.] —crust/less adj.

crus·ta·cean (krü-stā'shən) n. Any of various predominantly aquatic arthropods of the class Crustacea, including lobsters, crabs, shrimps, and barnacles, characteristically having a segmented body, a chitinous exoskeleton, and paired, jointed limbs. — adj. Of or belonging to the Crustacea. [From New Latin Crustācea, class name, neuter pl. of crustāceus, hard-shelled, from Latin crusta, shell. See kreus- in Appendix.]

crus·ta·ceous (krŭ-stā'shəs) adj. 1. Having, resembling, or constituting a hard crust or shell. 2. Crustacean. [Latin crusta, shell; see kreus- in Appendix + -ACEOUS.]

crust·al (krŭs'təl) adj. Of or relating to a crust, especially that of the earth or the moon.

crus·tose (krŭs'tōs') adj. Of or relating to a lichen whose thallus is thin, crusty, and closely adherent to or embedded in the surface on which it grows. [Latin crustosus, crusted, from crusta, crust. See kreus- in Appendix.]

crust·y (krŭs'tē) adj. crust·i·er, crust·i·est. 1. Having, resembling, or being a crust. 2. Seemingly rough and surly in manner. See Synonyms at gruff.

—crust·i·ly adv. —crust·i·ness n.

crutch (krŭch) n. 1. A staff or support used by the physically injured or disabled as an aid in walking, usually designed to fit under the armpit and often used in pairs. 2. A forked leg rest on a sidesaddle. 3. A device used for assistance or support; a prop: a mnemonic crutch. 4. The crotch of a person or animal. 5. A forked device or part. — v. tr. crutched, crutch·ing, crutch·es. To support on or as if on crutches; prop up. [Middle English crucche, from Old English crycc.]

crux (krŭks, krōōks) n. pl. crux·es or cru·ces (krōō'sēz). 1. The basic, central, or critical point or feature: the crux of the matter; the crux of an argument. 2. A puzzling or apparently insoluble problem. [Probably short for Medieval Latin crux (interpretum), torment (of interpreters), from Latin crux, cross.]

Crux (krŭks, krōōks) n. See Southern Cross.

cru·za·do (krōō-zā'dō) n. Variant of crusado.

Cru·zan (krōō-zăn', krōō'zăn) n. A native or inhabitant of St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands. [From American Spanish Santa Cruz, St. Croix.] —Cru'zan adj.

cru·zei·ro (krōō-zâr'ō, -zâ'rōō) n. pl. cru·zei·ros. A former unit of currency in Brazil. [Portuguese, from cruz, cross (from the figure on the coin), from Latin crux, cruc-.]

crwth (krōōth) n. Music. See crowd² (n., sense 1). [Welsh.]

cry (krī) v. cried (krīd), cry·ing, cries (krīz). — v. intr. 1. To sob or shed tears because of grief, sorrow, or pain; weep. 2. To call loudly; shout. 3. To utter a characteristic sound or call. Used of an animal. 4. To demand or require immediate action or remedy: grievances crying out for redress. — v. tr. 1. To utter loudly; call out. 2. To proclaim or announce in public: crying one's wares in the marketplace. 3. To bring into a particular condition by weeping: cry oneself to sleep. 4. Archaic. To beg for; implore: cry forgiveness. — n. pl. cries (krīz). 1. A loud utterance of an emotion, such as fear, anger, or despair. 2. A loud exclamation; a shout or call. 3. A fit of weeping: had a good long cry. 4. An urgent entreaty or appeal. 5. A public or general demand or complaint. 6. A common view or general report. 7. An advertising of wares by calling out: venders' cries at the fish market. 8. A rallying call or signal: a cry to arms. 9. A slogan, especially a political one. 10. The characteristic call or utterance of an animal. 11. a. The baying of hounds during the chase. b. A pack of hounds. 12. Obsolete. Clamor; outcry. 13. Obsolete. A public announcement; a proclamation. —phrasal verbs. cry down. To belittle or disparage. cry off. To break or withdraw from a promise, agreement, or undertaking. cry up. To praise highly; extol. —idioms. cry havoc. To sound an alarm; warn. cry (one's) eyes out (or cry (one's) heart out). To weep inconsolably for a long time. cry on (someone's) shoulder. To tell one's problems to someone else in an attempt to gain sympathy or consolation. cry over spilled milk. To regret in vain what cannot be undone or rectified. cry wolf. To raise a false alarm. in full cry. In hot pursuit, as hounds hunting. [Middle English crien, from Old French crier, from Vulgar Latin critāre*, from Latin quirītāre, to cry out.]

SYNONYMS: cry, weep, wail, keen, whimper, sob, blubber. These verbs mean to make inarticulate sounds of grief, unhappiness, or pain. Cry and weep both involve the shedding of tears; cry more strongly implies accompanying sound: “And when he [William of Orange] died the little children cried in the streets” (John Lathrop Motley). “I weep for what I'm like when I'm alone” (Theodore Roethke). Wail refers primarily to sustained, inarticulate mournful sound: “The women... began to wail together; they mourned with shrill cries” (Joseph Conrad). Keen suggests the wailing associated with lamentation for those who have died: “It is the wild Irish women keening over their dead” (George A. Lawrence). Whimper refers to low, plaintive broken or repressed cries, as those made by a child: The condemned prisoner cowered and began to whimper for clemency. Sob describes weeping or a mixture of broken speech and weeping marked by convulsive breathing or gasping: “sobbing and crying, and wringing her hands as if her heart would break” (Laurence Sterne). Blubber refers to noisy, unrestrained shedding of tears accompanied by broken or inarticulate speech: He blubbered like a child who had been spanked.

cry·ba·by (krī'bā'bē) n. A person who cries or complains frequently with little cause.

cry·ing (krī'ing) adj. Demanding or requiring action or attention: a crying need.
—idiom. for crying out loud. Used to express annoyance or astonishment:
Let's get going, for crying out loud!

cry·mo·ther·a·py (krī'mō-thēr'ə-pē) n. See cryotherapy. [Greek krumos, cold; see kreus- in Appendix + THERAPY.]

cryo- pref. Cold; freezing: cryoscopy. [From Greek kruos, icy cold. See kreus- in Appendix.]

cry·o·bank (krī'ə-bangk') n. A place of storage that uses very low temperatures to preserve semen or transplantable tissues.

cry·o·bi·ol·o·gy (krī'ō-bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. The study of the effects of very low temperatures on living organisms. —cry'·o·bi'·o·log'i·cal (-bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj.
—cry'·o·bi'·o·log'i·cal·ly adv. —cry'·o·bi·ol'·o·gist n.

cry·o·gen (krī'ə-jən) n. A liquid, such as liquid nitrogen, that boils at a temperature below about 110 K (−160°C) and is used to obtain very low temperatures; a refrigerant.

cry·o·gen·ic (krī'ə-jěn'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to low temperatures.

2. Requiring or suitable to cryogenic storage. —cry'·o·gen'i·cal·ly adv.

cry·o·gen·ics (krī'ə-jěn'iks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The production of low temperatures or the study of low-temperature phenomena. Also called cryogeny cry·og·e·ny (krī-ōj'ə-nē) n. See cryogenics.

cry·o·lite (krī'ə-līt') n. An uncommon, white, vitreous natural fluoride of aluminum and sodium, Na₃AlF₆, nearly invisible in water in powdered form and used chiefly in the electrolytic recovery of aluminum. Also called Greenland spar cry·om·e·ter (krī-ōm'ī-tər) n. A thermometer capable of measuring very low temperatures.

cry·on·ics (krī-ōn'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The process of freezing and storing the body of a diseased, recently deceased person to prevent tissue decomposition so that at some future time the person might be brought back to life upon development of new medical cures. [CRY(O)- + -onics as in BIONICS.]

—cry·on'ic adj.

cry·o·phil·ic (krī'ə-fīl'ik) also cry·oph·i·lous (krī-ōf'ə-ləs) adj. Having an affinity for or thriving at low temperatures.

cry·o·pre·serve (krī'ō-pri-zûrv') v. tr. cry·o·pre·served, cry·o·pre·serv·ing, cry·o·pre·serves. To preserve (cells or tissue, for example) by freezing at very low temperatures. —cry'·o·pres'er·va'tion (-prēz'ər-vā'shən) n.

cry·o·probe (krī'ə-prōb') n. A surgical instrument used to apply extreme cold to tissues during cryosurgery.

cry·o·pro·tec·tant (krī'ō-prə-těk'tənt) n. A substance, such as glycerol, used to protect cells or tissues from damage during freezing. —cry'·o·pro·tec'tant adj. —cry'·o·pro·tec'tive adj.

cry·o·scope (krī'ə-skōp') n. An instrument used to measure the freezing point of a liquid.

cry·os·co·py (krī-ōs'kə-pē) n. A technique for determining the molecular weight of a solute by dissolving a known quantity of it in a solvent and recording the amount by which the freezing point of the solvent drops. —cry'·o·scop'ic (-ə-skōp'ik) adj.

cry·o·stat (krī'ə-stāt') n. An apparatus used to maintain constant low temperature. —cry'·o·stat'ic adj.

cry·o·sur·ger·y (krī'ō-sûr'jə-rē) n. The selective exposure of tissues to extreme cold, often by applying a probe containing liquid nitrogen, to bring about the destruction or elimination of abnormal cells. —cry'·o·sur'geon (-jən) n. —cry'·o·sur'gi·cal (-jī-kəl) adj.

cry·o·ther·a·py (krī'ō-thēr'ə-pē) n. The local or general use of low temperatures in medical therapy. Also called cryotherapy crypt (krīpt) n. 1. An underground vault or chamber, especially one beneath a church that is used as a burial place. 2. Anatomy. A small pit, recess, or glandular cavity in the body. [Latin crypta, from Greek kruptē, from feminine of kruptos, hidden, from kruptein, to hide.]

crypt- pref. Variant of crypto-.

crypt·aes·the·sia (krīp'təs-thē'zhə, -zhē-ə) n. Psychology. Variant of cryptesthesia.

crypt·a·nal·y·sis (krīp'tə-nāl'i-sīs) n. 1. The analysis and deciphering of cryptographic writings or systems. 2. Also crypt·an·a·lyt·ics (krīp'tän-ə-līt'iks). (used with a sing. verb). The study of techniques for deciphering cryptographic writings or systems. [CRYPT(OGRAM) + ANALYSIS.] —crypt·an'a·lyst (krīp-tän'ə-līst) n. —crypt·an'a·lyt'ic (-līt'ik) adj.

crypt·an·a·lyze (krīp-tän'ə-līz') v. tr. crypt·an·a·lyzed, crypt·an·a·lyz·ing, crypt·an·a·lyz·es. To decipher or decode.

crypt·es·the·sia or crypt·aes·the·sia (krīp'təs-thē'zhə, -zhē-ə) n. Psychology. A mode of paranormal perception, such as clairvoyance.

crypt·tic (krīp'tik) also crypt·ti·cal (-tī-kəl) adj. 1. Having hidden meaning; mystifying. See Synonyms at ambiguous. 2. Secret or occult. 3. Using code or cipher. 4. Biology. Tending to conceal or camouflage: cryptic coloring. [Late Latin crypticus, from Greek kruptikos, from kruptos, hidden, from kruptein, to hide.] —crypt'ti·cal·ly adv. —crypt'tic·ness n.

crypt·to (krīp'tō) n. pl. crypt·tos. One who covertly supports a certain doctrine, group, or party. — adj. 1. Secret; covert. 2. Of, relating to, or employing cryptography. [From CRYPTO-.]

crypto- or crypt- pref. Hidden; secret: cryptoclastic. [From Greek kruptos, hidden, from kruptein, to hide.]

crypt·to·clas·tic (krīp'tō-klās'tik) adj. Composed of microscopic rock fragments.

crypt·to·coc·co·sis (krīp'tə-kō-kō'sis) n. A systemic infection caused by the fungus Cryptococcus neoformans that can affect any organ of the body but most often occurs in the central nervous system.

crypt-to-coc-cus (krĭp'tə-kök'əs) n. Any of various yeastlike fungi of the genus Cryptococcus, commonly occurring in the soil and including certain pathogenic species, such as the causative agent of cryptococcosis. —crypt'to-coc'cal adj.

crypt-to-crys-tal-line (krĭp'tō-kris'tə-lĭn, -lĭn') adj. Having a microscopic crystalline structure.

crypt-to-gam (krĭp'tə-găġm') n. Botany. A member of a formerly recognized taxonomic group that included all seedless plants, such as mosses, algae, fungi, and ferns. [From New Latin Cryptogamia, genus name : CRYPTO- + -gamia, -gamy.] —crypt'to-gam'ic, crypt-tog'a-mous (-tög'ə-məs) adj.

crypt-to-gen-ic (krĭp'tə-jĕn'ĭk) also crypt-tog-e-nous (krĭp-tøj'ə-nəs) adj. Of obscure or unknown origin. Used of diseases.

crypt-to-gram (krĭp'tə-grăġm') n. 1. A piece of writing in code or cipher. Also called cryptograph 2. A figure or representation having a secret or occult significance. —crypt'to-gram'mic adj.

crypt-to-graph (krĭp'tə-grăġf') n. 1. See cryptogram (n., sense 1). 2. A system of secret or cipher writing; a cipher. 3. a. A device for translating plain text into cipher. b. A device for deciphering codes and ciphers. — v. tr.

crypt-to-graphed, crypt-to-graph-ing, crypt-to-graphs. To write (a message, for example) in code or cipher.

crypt-tog-ra-pher (krĭp-tög'rə-fər) n. One who uses, studies, or develops cryptographic systems and writings.

crypt-tog-ra-phy (krĭp-tög'rə-fĕ) n. 1. The process or skill of communicating in or deciphering secret writings or ciphers. 2. Secret writing. —crypt'to-graph'ic (-tə-grăġf'ĭk) adj. —crypt'to-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

crypt-tol-o-gy (krĭp-tōl'ə-jĕ) n. The study of cryptanalysis or cryptography. —crypt'to-log'ic (-tə-lōġ'ĭk), crypt'to-log'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —crypt-tol'o-gist n.

crypt-to-me-ri-a (krĭp'tə-mĭr'ĕ-ə) n. See Japanese cedar. [New Latin Cryptomeria, genus name : CRYPTO- + Greek meros, part.]

crypt-or-chism (krĭp-tôr'kĭz'əm) also crypt-or-chi-dism (-kĭ-dĭz'əm) n. A developmental defect marked by the failure of the testes to descend into the scrotum. [From New Latin cryptorchidismus : CRYPT(O)- + orchis, testicle (from Greek orkhis).] —crypt-or'chid n.

crypt-to-spo-rid-i-o-sis (krĭp'tō-spə-rĭd'ĕ-ō'sĭs) n. A pathological condition caused by protozoa of the genus Cryptosporidium that infects human beings and some animals. [New Latin Cryptosporidium, genus name (CRYPTO- + SPOR(O)- + Latin -idium, diminutive suff.) + -OSIS.]

crypt-to-zo-ite (krĭp'tə-zō'ĭt') n. A malarial parasite at the stage of development in which it inhabits bodily tissue before invading the red blood cells. [CRYPTO- + ZO(O)- + *-ITE*¹.]

crp·to·zo·ol·o·gy (krĭp'tō-zō-ōl'ə-jē) n. The study of creatures, such as the Sasquatch, whose existence has not been substantiated.

—crp'to-zo'o·log'i·cal (-zō'ə-lōj'i-kəl) adj. —crp'to-zo-ol'o·gist n.

crs·tal (krĭs'təl) n. 1. a. A homogenous solid formed by a repeating, three-dimensional pattern of atoms, ions, or molecules and having fixed distances between constituent parts. b. The unit cell of such a pattern. 2. A mineral, especially a transparent form of quartz, having a crystalline structure, often characterized by external planar faces. 3. a. A natural or synthetic crystalline material having piezoelectric or semiconducting properties. b. An electronic device, such as an oscillator or a detector, using such a material. 4. a. A high-quality clear, colorless glass. b. An object, especially a vessel or an ornament, made of such glass. c. Such objects considered as a group. 5. A clear glass or plastic protective cover for the face of a watch or clock. 6. Slang. A stimulant drug, usually methamphetamine, in its powdered form. — adj. Clear or transparent: a crystal lake; the crystal clarity of their reasoning. [Middle English crystal, from Old French, from Latin crystallum, from Greek krustallos. See kreus- in Appendix.]

Cryst·tal (krĭs'təl) A city of eastern Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 25,543.

crystal ball (krĭs'təl bōl) n. 1. A globe of quartz crystal or glass in which images, especially those believed to portend the future, are supposedly visible to fortune tellers. 2. A vehicle or technique for making predictions.

crystal clear or crs·tal·clear (krĭs'təl-klĭr') adj. Absolutely clear; pellucid: a crystal clear sky; gave me crystal clear directions.

crystal detector (krĭs'təl dĭ-tēk'tər) n. A rectifying detector used especially in early radio receivers and consisting of a semiconducting crystal in point contact with a fine metal wire.

crystal gaz·ing (krĭs'təl gā'zĭng) n. 1. Divination by gazing into a crystal ball. 2. The making of determinations or predictions using questionable or unscientific means. —crystal gazer n.

crs·tal·ize (krĭs'tə-lĭz') v. Variant of crystallize.

crystall- pref. Variant of crystallo-.

Crystal Lake (krĭs'təl lāk) A city of northeast Illinois north of Elgin. It is in a summer resort area. Population, 24,512.

crystal lattice (krĭs'təl lăt'ĭs) n. A geometric arrangement of the points in space at which the atoms, molecules, or ions of a crystal occur. Also called space lattice crs·tal·lif·er·ous (krĭs'tə-lĭf'ər-əs) also crs·tal·lig·er·ous (-lĭj'-) adj. Producing or containing crystals.

crs·tal·line (krĭs'tə-lĭn, -lĭn', -lĕn') adj. 1. Being, relating to, or composed of crystal or crystals. 2. Resembling crystal, as in transparency or distinctness of structure or outline. [Middle English crystallin, from Old French, from Latin crystallinus, from Greek krustallinos, from krustallos, crystal. See kreus- in Appendix.] —cryst' tal·lin' i·ty (-lĭn'ī-tē) n.

crystalline lens (krĭs'tə-lĭn lĕnz) n. The lens of an eye.

crys·tal·lite (krĭs'tə-lĭt') n. Any of numerous minute rudimentary, crystalline bodies of unknown composition found in glassy igneous rocks.

—crys'tal·lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk) adj.

crys·tal·lize also crys·tal·ize (krĭs'tə-lĭz') v. crys·tal·lized also crys·tal·ized, crys·tal·liz·ing also crys·tal·iz·ing, crys·tal·liz·es also crys·tal·iz·es. — v.

tr. 1. To cause to form crystals or assume a crystalline structure. 2. To give a definite, precise, and usually permanent form to: It only took a week for her to crystallize her design for the decorations. 3. To coat with crystals, as of sugar. — v.

intr. 1. To assume a crystalline form. 2. To take on a definite, precise, and usually permanent form. —crys'tal·liz'a·ble adj. —crys'tal·li·za'tion (-lĭ-zā'shən)

n. —crys'tal·liz'er n.

crystallo- or crystall- pref. Crystal: crystallize. [From Greek krustallo-, from krustallos, crystal. See kreus- in Appendix.]

crys·tal·log·ra·phy (krĭs'tə-lŏg'rə-fē) n. The science of crystal structure and phenomena. —crys'tal·log'ra·pher n. —crys'tal·lo·graph'ic (-lə-grăf'ĭk), crys'tal·lo·graph'i·cal adj. —crys'tal·lo·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

crys·tal·loid (krĭs'tə-loid') n. 1. Chemistry. A substance that can be crystallized. 2. Botany. Any of various minute crystallike particles consisting of protein and found in certain plant cells, especially oily seeds. — adj. Resembling or having properties of a crystal or crystalloid.

—crys'tal·loi'dal (-loid'l) adj.

crystal pleat (krĭs'təl plēt) n. One of a series of very narrow pleats creased in the same direction.

crystal set (krĭs'təl sĕt) n. An early radio receiver using a crystal detector.

crystal violet (krĭs'təl vī'ə-lĭt) n. A dye derived from gentian violet that is used as a general biological stain and an acid-base indicator.

Cs The symbol for the element cesium.

CS abbr. 1. Capital stock. 2. Chief of staff. 3. a. Christian Science. b. Christian Scientist. 4. Civil service. 5. Psychology. Conditioned stimulus.

cs. abbr. Case.

C.S.A. abbr. Confederate States of America.

csc abbr. Mathematics. Cosecant.

CSC abbr. Civil Service Commission.

csch abbr. Mathematics. Hyperbolic cosecant.

C-section (sĕ'sĕk'shən) n. A cesarean section.

CSF abbr. Cerebrospinal fluid.

csk. abbr. 1. Cask. 2. Countersink.

CST abbr. 1. Or C.S.T. Central Standard Time. 2. Convulsive shock treatment.

c-store or C-store (sĕ'stŏr', -stŏr') n. A convenience store.

CT abbr. 1. Computerized tomography. 2. Connecticut.

ct. abbr. 1. Cent. 2. Certificate. 3. Court.

Ct. abbr. 1. Connecticut. 2. Count (title).

cte·nid·i·um (tĭ-nĭd'ē-əm) n. pl. cte·nid·i·a (-ē-ə). Zoology. A comblike structure, such as the respiratory apparatus of a mollusk or a row of spines in some insects. [New Latin, from Greek kteis, kten-, comb.]

cten·oid (tĕn'oid', tē'noid') adj. Biology. 1. Comblike. 2. Having marginal projections that resemble the teeth of a comb: a ctenoid fish. [Greek ktenoeidēs, comblike : kteis, kten-, comb + -oeidēs, -oid.]

cten·o·phore (tĕn'ə-fōr', -fōr') n. Any of various marine animals of the phylum Ctenophora, having transparent, gelatinous bodies bearing eight rows of comblike cilia used for swimming. Also called comb jelly [From New Latin Ctenophora, phylum name : Greek kteis, kten-, comb + New Latin -phora from neuter pl. of Greek -phoros, -phore.] —ctenoph'o·ran (tĭ-nŏf'ər-ən) adj.

Ctes·i·phon (tĕs'ə-fŏn', tē'sə-) An ancient city of central Iraq on the Tigris River southeast of Baghdad. As the residence of Parthian kings it was renowned for its splendor. The Arabs captured and plundered the city in 637.

ctf. abbr. Certificate.

ctg. abbr. Cartage.

ctge. abbr. Cartage.

ctn abbr. Mathematics. Cotangent.

ctn. abbr. Carton.

ctr. abbr. 1. Center. 2. Counter.

CT scan (sē'tē' skăn) n. See CAT scan.

CT scanner (sē'tē' skăn'ər) n. See CAT scanner.

Cu The symbol for the element copper¹ (n., sense 1). [Latin cuprum.]

cu. or cu abbr. Cubic.

cua·dril·la (kwä-drē'yə, -drē'yə) n. pl. cua·dril·las. The group of assistants to the matador in a bullfight. [Spanish, diminutive of cuadra, square, from Latin quadra. See QUADRILLE¹.]

Cuan·za also Kwan·za (kwän'zə) A river rising in central Angola and flowing about 965 km (600 mi) generally northwest to the Atlantic Ocean.

cuat·ro (kwä'trō) n. pl. cuat·ros. Music. A small guitarlike instrument of Latin America, usually having four or five pairs of strings. [Spanish, from Latin quattuor, four. See QUATRAIN.]

cub (küb) n. 1. The young of certain carnivorous animals, such as the bear, wolf, or lion. 2. A youth, especially one who is inexperienced, awkward, or ill-mannered. 3. A novice or learner, particularly in newspaper reporting. 4. Cub. A Cub Scout. [Origin unknown.]

Cu·ba (kyō'bə) An island country in the Caribbean Sea south of Florida. Discovered by Columbus in 1492, it was a Spanish colony until 1898. Fulgencio Batista dominated the government of Cuba from 1933 until 1959, when he was ousted by Fidel Castro. Havana is the capital and the largest city. Population, 9,723,605. —Cu'ban adj. & n.

cub·age (kyōō'bīj) n. Cubic content, volume, or displacement.

Cuban heel (kyōō'bən hēl) n. A broad heel of moderate height with a slightly tapered back and straight front, used in shoes and some boots.

Cuban sandwich (kyōō'bən sänd'wīch) n. Florida. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine.

cu·ba·ture (kyōō'bə-chōōr', -chər) n. 1. The determination of the cubic contents of a solid. 2. Cubage. [CUB(E) + (QUADR)ATURE.]

cub·by (küb'ē) n. pl. cub·bies. A small room; a cubbyhole. [Short for CUBBY-HOLE.]

cub·by·hole (küb'ē-hōl') n. 1. A snug or cramped space or room. 2. A small compartment. 3. A category, especially an overly restrictive one. [From cub, pen, hutch (perhaps from Flemish cube, from Middle Flemish) + HOLE.]

cube (kyōōb) n. 1. Mathematics. A regular solid having six congruent square faces. 2. a. Something having the general shape of a cube: a cube of sugar. b. A cubicle, used for work or study. 3. Mathematics. The third power of a number or quantity. 4. cubes. Slang. Cubic inches. Used especially of an internal combustion engine. — v. tr. cubed, cub·ing, cubes. 1. Mathematics. To raise (a quantity or number) to the third power. 2. To determine the cubic contents of. 3. To form or cut into cubes; dice. 4. To tenderize (meat) by breaking the fibers with superficial cuts in a pattern of squares. [Latin cubeus, from Greek kubos.]

—cub'er n.

cu·bé also cu·be (kyōō'bā', kyōō-bā') n. Any of several tropical American woody plants of the genus Lonchocarpus in the pea family, whose roots are used locally as a fish poison and commercially as a source of rotenone. [American Spanish.]

cu·beb (kyōō'bēb') n. 1. A tropical southeast Asian shrubby vine (Piper cubeba) having spicy, berrylike fruits, heart-shaped leaves, and small flowers in cylindrical spikes. 2. The dried, unripe, berrylike fruit of this plant, used in perfumery, pharmaceuticals, and commercial flavorings. [Middle English cubebe, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cubeba, from Arabic kabābah.]

cube root (kyōōb rōōt) n. Mathematics. A number whose cube is equal to a given number.

cube steak (kyōōb stāk) n. A thin slice of beef tenderized by cubing.

cu·bic (kyōō'bīk) adj. 1. a. Having the shape of a cube. b. Shaped similar to a cube. 2. Abbr. c, cu., cu a. Having three dimensions. b. Having a volume equal to a cube whose edge is of a stated length: a cubic foot. 3. Mathematics. Of the third power, order, or degree. 4. Of or relating to a crystalline form that has three equal axes at right angles to each other; isometric. — n. Mathematics. A cubic expression, curve, or equation. —cu'bic·ly adv.

cu·bi·cal (kyōō'bī-kəl) adj. 1. Cubic. 2. Of or relating to volume.

—cu'bi·cal·ly adv. —cu'bi·cal·ness n.

cu·bi·cle (kyōō'bī-kəl) n. 1. A small compartment, as for work or study. 2. A small sleeping compartment, especially within a dormitory. [Middle English, from Latin cubiculum, bed chamber, from cubāre, to lie down.]

cubic measure (kyōō'bīk mēzh'ər) n. A unit, such as a cubic foot, or a system of units used to measure volume or capacity.

cubic zirconia (kyōō'bīk zûr-kō'nē-ə) n. A synthetic gemstone, ZrO_2 , used in jewelry as an artificial diamond.

cu·bi·form (kyōō'bə-fôrm') adj. Having the shape of a cube.

cub·ism also Cub·ism (kyōō'bīz'əm) n. A nonobjective school of painting and sculpture developed in Paris in the early 20th century, characterized by the reduction and fragmentation of natural forms into abstract, often geometric structures usually rendered as a set of discrete planes. —cub'ist n. —cu·bis'tic adj.

—cu·bis'ti·cal·ly adv.

cu·bit (kyōō'bīt) n. An ancient unit of linear measure, originally equal to the length of the forearm from the tip of the middle finger to the elbow, or about 17 to 22 inches (43 to 56 centimeters). [Middle English cupite, from Latin cubitum, cubit, elbow.]

cu·boid (kyōō'boid') adj. Having the approximate shape of a cube. — n.

1. Anatomy. A tarsal bone on the outer side of the foot in front of the calcaneus and behind the fourth and fifth metatarsal bones. 2. Mathematics. A rectangular parallelepiped. —cu·boi'dal (kyōō-boid'l) adj.

cuboidal epithelium (kyōō-boi'dəl ěp'ə-thē'lē-əm) n. Epithelial tissue consisting of one or more cell layers, the most superficial of which is composed of cube-shaped or somewhat prismatic cells.

Cub Scout (küb skout) n. A member of the junior division of the Boy Scouts, for boys of ages eight through ten.

cu·chi·fri·to (kōō'chī-frē'tō) n. cu·chi·fri·tos. A small deep-fried cube of pork. [American Spanish : cuchí, pig (alteration of Spanish cochino, diminutive of coch, interj. used to call pigs) + Spanish frito, past participle of freir, to fry (from Latin frīgere).]

Cu·chul·ain (kōō-kül'in, -kHül'-) n. Mythology. A hero of ancient Ulster who single-handedly defended it against the rest of Ireland.

cuck·ing stool (kük'ing stōol) n. An instrument of punishment no longer in use, consisting of a chair in which the offender was tied and exposed to public derision or ducked in water. [Middle English cukking stol, from cukken, to defecate, of Scandinavian origin. See kakka- in Appendix.]

cuck·old (kük'əld, kōök'-) n. A man married to an unfaithful wife. — v. tr. cuck·old·ed, cuck·old·ing, cuck·olds. To make a cuckold of. [Middle English cokewald, from Anglo-Norman cucuald*, from cucu, the cuckoo, from Vulgar Latin cuccūlus*, from Latin cucūlus.]

WORD HISTORY: In our era of more relaxed sexual mores, the allusion to the cuckoo on which the word cuckold is based may be little appreciated. The female of some Old World cuckoos lays its eggs in the nests of other birds, leaving them to be cared for by the resident nesters. This parasitic tendency has given the female bird a figurative reputation for unfaithfulness as well. Hence in Old French we find the word cucuault, composed of cocu, “cuckoo, cuckold,” and the pejorative suffix -ald and used to designate a husband whose wife has wandered afield like the female cuckoo. An earlier assumed form of the Old French word was borrowed into Middle English by way of Anglo-Norman. Middle English cokewold, the ancestor of Modern English cuckold, is first recorded in a work written around 1250.

cuck·old·ry (kük'əl-drē, kōök'-) n. 1. The state of being a cuckold. 2. The act of making someone a cuckold.

cuck·oo (kōō'kōō, kōök'ōō) n. pl. cuck·oos. 1. a. A grayish European bird (Cuculus canorus) that has a characteristic two-note call and lays its eggs in the nests of birds of other species. b. Any of various related birds of the family Cuculidae, having grayish-brown plumage and a slender body. 2. The call or cry of one of these birds. 3. Slang. A foolish or crazy person. — v. tr. cuck·ooed, cuck·oo·ing, cuck·oos. To repeat incessantly, as a cuckoo does its call. — adj. Slang. Lacking in sense; foolish or crazy. [Middle English cuccu, of imitative origin.]

cuckoo clock (kōō'kōō klōk) n. A wall or shelf clock that announces intervals of time with a sound imitative of a cuckoo's call and often with the simultaneous emergence of a mechanical bird from a small door.

cuck·oo·flow·er (kōō'kōō-flou'ər, kōök'ōō-) n. 1. A perennial herb (Cardamine pratensis) in the mustard family, native to the northern temperate regions and having pinnate leaves and pink, purple, or sometimes white flowers. Also called lady's smock. 2. See ragged robin.

cuck·oo·pint (kōō'kōō-pīnt', kōök'ōō-) n. A European plant (Arum maculatum) having arrow-shaped leaves, a yellow-green spathe, and scarlet berries. Also called lords-and-ladies [From obsolete cuckoopintle, from Middle English cokkupintel: cokku, cuccu, cuckoo; see CUCKOO + pintel, penis (from Old English).]

cuckoo spit (kōō'kōō spīt) n. A frothy mass of liquid secreted on plant stems as a protective covering by nymphs of the spittlebug. Also called frog spit cu·cul·late (kyōō'kə-lāt', kyōō-kŭl'āt') adj. Botany. Having the shape of a cowl or hood; hooded: cucullate sepals. [Medieval Latin cucullātus, from Latin cucullus, hood. See COWL.] —cu'cul·late'ly adv.

cu·cum·ber (kyōō'kŭm'bər) n. 1. a. A tendril-bearing, climbing or sprawling annual plant (Cucumis sativus) widely cultivated for its edible cylindrical fruit that has a green rind and crisp white flesh. b. The fruit of this plant, eaten fresh or pickled. 2. Any of several related or similar plants, such as the bur cucumber or the squirting cucumber. [Middle English cucomer, from Old French coucombre, from Latin cucumis, cucumer-.]

cucumber mosaic (kyōō'kŭm'bər mō-zā'ik) n. A viral disease of the cucumber and many other plants, characterized by mottled and curled leaves and misshapen and mottled fruits.

cucumber tree (kyōō'kŭm'bər trē) n. Any of certain magnolias, especially Magnolia acuminata, a deciduous tree of eastern North America, having greenish-yellow flowers and a cucumber-shaped aggregate fruit.

cu·cur·bit (kyōō-kŭr'bīt) n. 1. Any of various mostly climbing or trailing plants of the family Cucurbitaceae, which includes the squash, pumpkin, cucumber, gourd, watermelon, and cantaloupe. 2. A gourd-shaped flask forming the body of an alembic, formerly used in distillation. [Middle English cucurbite, from Old French, from Latin cucurbita, gourd.]

Cú·cu·ta (kōō'kə-tə, -kōō-tä') A city of northeast Colombia near the Venezuelan border. It was rebuilt after a devastating earthquake in 1875. Population, 355,828.

cud (kŭd) n. 1. Food regurgitated from the first stomach to the mouth of a ruminant and chewed again. 2. Something held in the mouth and chewed, such as a quid of tobacco. [Middle English, from Old English cudu.]

Cud·a·hy (kŭd'ə-hē) 1. A city of southern California southeast of Los Angeles. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 22,817. 2. A city of southeast Wisconsin, an industrial suburb of Milwaukee on Lake Michigan. Population, 18,659.

cud·bear (kŭd'bâr') n. A purplish-red dye derived from certain lichens. [After Cuthbert Gordon, 18th-century Scottish chemist.]

cud·dle (kŭd'l) v. cud·dled, cud·dling, cud·dles. — v. tr. To fondle in the arms; hug tenderly. See Synonyms at caress. — v. intr. To nestle; snuggle. — n. The act of cuddling; a hug or embrace. [Origin unknown.] —cud'dle·some adj. —cud'dly adj.

cud·dy¹ (kŭd'ē) n. pl. cud·dies. 1. Nautical. A small cabin or the cook's galley on a ship. 2. A small room, cupboard, or closet. [Origin unknown.]

cud·dy² (kŭd'ē) n. pl. cud·dies. Scots. 1. A donkey. 2. A fool; a dolt. [Perhaps from Cuddy, nickname for Cuthbert.]

cudg·el (kūj'əl) n. A short, heavy stick; a club. — v. tr. cudg·eled or cudg·elled, cudg·el·ing or cudg·el·ling, cudg·els or cudg·els. To beat or strike with or as if with a cudgel. [Middle English cuggel, from Old English cycgel.]

cud·weed (kūd'wēd') n. 1. Any of various woolly plants of the genus Gnaphalium in the composite family, having small whitish or yellowish flower heads.

2. Any of several similar and related plants in the genus Filago.

cue¹ (kyōō) n. 1. Games. A long tapered rod with a leather tip used to strike the cue ball in billiards and pool. 2. Games. A long stick with a concave attachment at one end for shoving disks in shuffleboard. 3. A queue of hair. 4. A line of waiting people or vehicles; a queue. — v. cued, cu·ing, cues. — v. tr.

1. Games. To strike with a cue. 2. To braid or twist (hair) into a queue. — v. intr. To form a line or queue. [Variant of QUEUE.]

cue² (kyōō) n. 1. A signal, such as a word or an action, used to prompt another event in a performance, such as an actor's speech or entrance, a change in lighting, or a sound effect. 2. a. A reminder or a prompting. b. A hint or suggestion.

3. Music. a. An extract from the music for another part printed, usually in smaller notes, within a performer's part as a signal to enter after a long rest. b. A gesture by a conductor signaling the entrance of a performer or part.

4. Psychology. A stimulus, either consciously or unconsciously perceived, that elicits or signals a type of behavior. 5. Archaic. One's assigned role or function.

6. Archaic. A mood; a disposition. — v. tr. cued, cu·ing, cues. 1. To give a cue to; signal or prompt. 2. To insert or cause to be inserted into the sequence of a performance. — phrasal verb. cue (someone) in. To give information or instructions to (a latecomer, for example). [Perhaps from q, qu, abbreviation of Latin quandō, when, used for actors' copies of plays. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

cue³ (kyōō) n. The letter q.

cue ball (kyōō bôl) n. Games. The white ball that is propelled with the cue in billiards and pool.

cue card (kyōō kârd) n. A large card held out of the audience's sight, bearing words or dialogue in large letters as an aid for a speaker or an actor chiefly in television broadcasting.

cued speech (kyōōd spēch) n. A means of communication in which a speaker uses hand signals to clarify ambiguous mouth movements for lip readers.

Cuen·ca (kwěng'kə, -kă) A city of south-central Ecuador southeast of Guayaquil. Founded in 1557, it is known as "the Marble City" for its fine buildings. Population, 157,213.

Cuer·na·va·ca (kwěr-nə-vă'kə, -nä-vă'kă) A city of south-central Mexico in the Cuernavaca Valley near Mexico City. It is an industrial city and a popular tourist and health resort. Population, 192,770.

cues-ta (kwěs'tə) n. A ridge with a gentle slope on one side and a cliff on the other. [Spanish, from Latin costa, side. See kost- in Appendix.]

cuff¹ (küf) n. 1. a. A fold used as trimming at the bottom of a sleeve. b. A band, often having an opening with a button closure, at the bottom of a sleeve. 2. The turned-up fold at the bottom of a trouser leg. 3. The band at the top of a sock. 4. The part of a glove that extends over the wrist. 5. A handcuff.

6. Medicine. An inflatable band, usually wrapped around the upper arm, that is used along with a sphygmomanometer in measuring arterial blood pressure. — v. tr. cuffed, cuff-ing, cuffs. 1. To form a cuff or cuffs on. 2. To put handcuffs on. — idioms. off the cuff. In an extemporaneous or informal manner. on the cuff. On credit. [Middle English cuffe, mitten.]

cuff² (küf) v. tr. cuffed, cuff-ing, cuffs. To strike with or as if with the open hand; slap. — n. A blow or slap with the open hand. [Origin unknown.]

cuff link or cuff-link (küf'lıngk') n. A fastening for a shirt cuff, usually consisting of two buttons or buttonlike parts connected with a chain or shank that passes through two slits in the cuff.

Cu-fic (koo'fik, kyoo'-) adj. Variant of Kufic.

Cu-ia-bá (koo'yə-bä') A city of west-central Brazil west of Brasília on the Cuiabá River, about 483 km (300 mi) long. The city was founded during the gold rush of the early 18th century. Population, 167,880.

cui bo-no (kwē' bō'nō) n. Utility, advantage, or self-interest considered as the determinant of value or motivation. [Latin : cui, to whose, dative of qui + bonō, dative of bonum, advantage.]

cui-rass (kwī-rās') n. 1. a. A piece of armor for protecting the breast and back. b. The breastplate alone. 2. A defense or protection: "A carefully primped irony, that cuirass of art in the early Eighties, is necessary—a distance so affected as to constitute a hopeless impediment to feeling" (Robert Hughes). 3. Zoology. A protective covering of bony plates or scales. — v. tr. cui-rassed, cui-rass-ing, cui-rass-es. To protect with a cuirass. [Middle English curas, from Old French cuirace, probably alteration (influenced by Old French cuir, leather), of Old Provençal coirassa, from Late Latin coriācea (vestis), leather (garment), feminine of coriāceus, from Latin corium, hide. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

cui-ras-sier (kwîr'ə-sîr') n. A horse soldier in European armies whose equipment included the cuirass. [French, from cuirasse, cuirass, from Old French. See CUIRASS.]

Cui-se-naire (kwē'zə-nâr') A trademark used for a set of colored rods and disks employed in the teaching of mathematics.

cuish (kwish) n. Variant of cuisse.

Cui-si-nart (kwē'zə-närt', kwē'zə-närt') A trademark used for a kind of food processor and its attachments.

cui-sine (kwĩ-zēn') n. 1. A characteristic manner or style of preparing food: Spanish cuisine. 2. Food; fare. [French, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin cočina*, variant of Latin coquīna, kitchen, cookery, from coquere, to cook. See pek^w- in Appendix.]

cuisine bourgeoise (kwĩ-zēn' bōōr-zhwāz') n. Simple home cooking, especially as practiced in France. [French : cuisine, cooking + bourgeoise, middle-class.]

cuisine min-ceur (kwĩ-zēn' mǎN-sœr') n. A low-calorie style of French cooking. [French : cuisine, cooking + minceur, thinness, slimness.]

cuisse (kwĩs) also cuish (kwĩsh) n. Plate armor worn to protect the front of the thigh. [Middle English quisse, probably back-formation from quisseues, pl. of quisseu, cuisse, from Old French quisseuz, pl. of quissel, from quisse, thigh, from Latin coxa, hip.]

cuit-tle (kü'tl) v. tr. cuit-tled, cuit-tling, cuit-tles. Scots. To coax; cajole. [Origin unknown.]

cui-ui (kwē'wē) n. A freshwater sucker (Chasmistes cujus) found only in Nevada. [Northern Paiute kuyui.]

cuke (kyōök) n. Informal. A cucumber.

Cu-kor (kyōō'kər, -kōr, kōō'-), George. 1899-1983. American filmmaker whose works include Little Women (1933), The Philadelphia Story (1940), and My Fair Lady (1964), for which he won an Academy Award.

Cul-bert-son (kül'bært-sən), Ely. 1891-1955. American contract bridge authority whose dominance of international matches and several books, including The Contract Bridge Blue Book (1930), helped popularize the card game.

culch or culch (külch) n. 1. A natural bed for oysters, consisting of gravel or crushed shells to which the oyster spawn may adhere. 2. The spawn of the oyster. 3. Also scultch or sculch (skülch). New England. Clean trash or rubbish, such as string, paper, and cloth: “We always had a culch box around” (New Hampshire informant in DARE). 4. A person or thing not highly regarded. [Perhaps ultimately from Old French culche, couch. See COUCH.]

cul-de-sac (kül'dĩ-sǎk', kōōl'-) n. pl. culs-de-sac (külz'-, kōōlz'-) or cul-de-sacs (kül'-). 1. a. A dead-end street. b. An impasse: “This was the cul-de-sac the year kept driving me toward: men and women would always be at odds” (Philip Weiss). 2. Anatomy. A saclike cavity or tube open only at one end. [French : cul, bottom (from Old French, from Latin cūlus); see CULET + de, of (from Old French, from Latin dē); see DE- + sac, sack (from Old French, from Latin saccus); see SACK¹.]

Cu-le-bra Cut (kōō-lā'brə küt) See Gaillard Cut.

Culebra Peak (kōō-lā'brə pēk) A mountain, 4,284.3 m (14,047 ft) high, in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of extreme south-central Colorado.

cu-let (kyōō'līt, kŭl'īt) n. 1. The small flat face at the bottom of a gem cut as a brilliant. 2. Armor consisting of overlapping plates used to protect the buttocks. [Obsolete French, diminutive of cul, rump, from Latin cŭlus. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

cu-lex (kyōō'lēks') n. pl. cu-li-ces (-lī-sēz'). Any of various mosquitoes of the genus Culex, which includes the common house mosquito (C. pipiens). [Latin, gnat.]

Cu-lia-cán (kōōl'yə-kän') A city of western Mexico west-northwest of Durango on the Culiacán River, about 282 km (175 mi) long. The city was founded in 1531 and figured prominently as a departure point for early Spanish expeditions to the north. Population, 304,826.

cu-li-nar-y (kyōō'lə-nēr'ē, kŭl'ə-) adj. Of or relating to a kitchen or to cookery. [Latin culinārius, from culīna, kitchen. See pek^w- in Appendix.]

cull (kŭl) v. tr. culled, cull-ing, culls. 1. To pick out from others; select. 2. To gather; collect. 3. To remove rejected members or parts from (a herd, for example). — n. Something picked out from others, especially something rejected because of inferior quality. [Middle English cullen, from Old French cuillir, from Latin colligere. See COLLECT¹.] —cull'er n.

Cul-len (kŭl'ən), Countée. 1903-1946. American poet whose collections Colors (1926) and Copper Sun (1927) established him as a leading figure of the Harlem Renaissance.

cul-let (kŭl'īt) n. Scraps of broken or waste glass gathered for remelting, especially with new material. [Probably alteration of collet, neck of glass left on the blowing iron, from French, collar, diminutive of col, neck, from Old French, from Latin collum. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

cul-lion (kŭl'yən) n. Archaic. A contemptible fellow; a rascal. [Middle English coilon, testicle, from Old French coillon, from Latin culleus, bag.]

cul-lis (kŭl'īs) n. A gutter or groove in a roof. [Middle English colis, from Old French coleis, channel, from coler, to pour, from Latin cōlāre, to filter, from colum, sieve.]

Cul-lo-den Moor (kə-lōd'n mōōr, -lōd'n) A moor in northern Scotland east of Inverness. It was the site of the final defeat of the Highland Jacobites by English forces (April 16, 1746).

cul-ly (kŭl'ē) Archaic. n. pl. cul-lies. A fool or dupe. — v. tr. cul-ried, cul-ly-ing, cul-lies. To fool; cheat. [Perhaps from CULLION.]

culm¹ (kŭlm) n. The stem of a grass or similar plant. [Latin culmus, stalk.]

culm² (kŭlm) n. 1. Waste from anthracite coal mines, consisting of fine coal, coal dust, and dirt. 2. a. Carboniferous shale. b. Inferior anthracite coal. [Middle English colme, coal dust, perhaps from Old English col, coal.]

cul-mi-nant (kŭl'mə-nənt) adj. 1. Being at the highest altitude. 2. Reaching the highest point or degree; highest.

cul-mi-nate (kŭl'mə-nāt') v. intr. cul-mi-nat-ed, cul-mi-nat-ing, cul-mi-nates. 1. a. To reach the highest point or degree; climax: habitual antagonism that culminated in open hostility. b. To come to completion; end: Years of waiting culminated in a tearful reunion. 2. Astronomy. To reach the highest point above an observer's horizon. Used of stars and other celestial bodies. — v. tr. To bring to the point of greatest intensity or to completion; climax: The ceremony culminated a long week of preparation. [Late Latin culmināre, culmināt-, from Latin culmen, culmin-, summit. See kel⁻² in Appendix.] — cul'mi-na'tion n.

cu-lotte (kōō-lōt', kyōō-, kōō'lōt', kyōō'-) n. A woman's full trousers cut to resemble a skirt. Often used in the plural. [French, breeches, diminutive of cul, rump, from Latin cūlus. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

cul-pa-ble (kŭl'pə-bəl) adj. Deserving of blame or censure as being wrong, evil, improper, or injurious. See Synonyms at blameworthy. [Middle English coup-able, from Old French, from Latin culpābilis, from culpāre, to blame, from culpa, fault.] — cul'pa-bil'i-ty n. — cul'pa-bly adv.

Cul-pep-er (kŭl'pĕp'ər), Lord Thomas. 1635-1689. English colonial administrator who served as governor of Virginia (1677-1683).

cul-prit (kŭl'prīt) n. 1. One charged with an offense or crime. 2. One guilty of a fault or crime. [Probably from cul. prit, abbreviation for Anglo-Norman culpable: prit d'averrer nostre bille*, guilty: (I am) ready to aver our indictment : culpable, guilty (from Latin culpābilis); see CULPABLE + prit*, ready (variant of prest, from Latin praestō); see PRESTO.]

WORD HISTORY: According to British legal tradition, the word culprit comes from cul. prit, an abbreviation of the Anglo-Norman legal phrase Culpable: prit d'averrer nostre bille. These words, said by the clerk of the crown in response to a not-guilty plea, meant, "Guilty: I am ready to aver our indictment." After law French went out of official use in the courts, the shortened form cul. prit was misinterpreted as a term of address used by the clerk to a prisoner indicted for high treason or felony and pleading "not guilty." Culprit is first recorded in such a use in 1678. The term was thereafter taken to mean "the accused," and then, by association with Latin culpa, "guilt," it came to mean "a guilty party."

culs-de-sac (kŭlz'dī-sāk', kōōlz'-) n. A plural of cul-de-sac.

cult (kŭlt) n. 1. a. A religion or religious sect generally considered to be extremist or false, with its followers often living in an unconventional manner under the guidance of an authoritarian, charismatic leader. b. The followers of such a religion or sect. 2. A system or community of religious worship and ritual. 3. The formal means of expressing religious reverence; religious ceremony and ritual. 4. A usually nonscientific method or regimen claimed by its originator to have exclusive or exceptional power in curing a particular disease. 5. a. Obsessive, especially faddish, devotion to or veneration for a person, principle, or thing.

b. The object of such devotion. 6. An exclusive group of persons sharing an esoteric, usually artistic or intellectual interest. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a cult figure; cult films. [Latin cultus, worship, from past participle of colere, to cultivate. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.] — cul'tic, cult'ish adj. — cul'tism n. — cul'tist n.

cultch (kŭlch) n. Variant of culch.

cul·ti (kŭl'tī) n. A plural of cultus.

cul·ti·gen (kŭl'tə-jən) n. An organism, especially a cultivated plant, such as a banana, not known to have a wild or uncultivated counterpart. [CULTI(VATED) + GEN.]

cul·ti·va·ble (kŭl'tə-və-bəl) adj. Capable of undergoing cultivation: cultivable land. — cul'ti·va·bil'i·ty n.

cul·ti·var (kŭl'tə-vâr', -vâr') n. Abbr. cv. A horticultural race or variety of a plant that has originated and persisted only under cultivation. [CULTI(VATED) + VAR(IETY).]

cul·ti·vate (kŭl'tə-vât') v. tr. cul·ti·vat·ed, cul·ti·vat·ing, cul·ti·vates.

1. a. To improve and prepare (land), as by plowing or fertilizing, for raising crops; till. b. To loosen or dig soil around (growing plants). 2. To grow or tend (a plant or crop). 3. To promote the growth of (a biological culture). 4. To nurture; foster. See Synonyms at nurture. 5. To form and refine, as by education. 6. To seek the acquaintance or goodwill of; make friends with. [Medieval Latin cultivāre, cultivāt-, from cultivus, tilled, from Latin cultus, past participle of colere, to till. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.] — cul'ti·vat'a·ble adj.

cul·ti·vat·ed (kŭl'tə-vâ'tīd) adj. 1. Of or relating to cultivation; produced in cultivation: a cultivated plant. 2. Educated; polished; refined.

cul·ti·va·tion (kŭl'tə-vā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of cultivating. b. The state of being cultivated. 2. Refinement; culture. See Synonyms at culture.

cul·ti·va·tor (kŭl'tə-vā'tər) n. 1. One who cultivates: an inveterate cultivator of beautiful gardens; a cultivator of valuable corporate contacts. 2. An implement or a machine for loosening the soil and destroying weeds around growing plants.

cul·trate (kŭl'trāt') also cul·trat·ed (-trā'tīd) adj. Sharp-edged and pointed; knifelike: cultrate leaves. [Latin cultrātus, from culter, cultr-, knife. See skel-1 in Appendix.]

cul·tur·al (kŭl'chər-əl) adj. Of or relating to culture or cultivation. — cul'tur·al·ly adv.

cultural anthropology (kŭl'chər-əl ăn'thrə-pŏl'ə-jē) n. The scientific study of the development of human cultures based on archaeological, ethnologic, ethnographic, linguistic, social, and psychological data and methods of analysis.

Cul·tur·al Revolution (kŭl'chər-əl rĕv'ə-lŏō'shən) n. A comprehensive reform movement in China, initiated by Mao Zedong in 1965 to eliminate coun-terrevolutionary elements in the country's institutions and leadership. It was characterized by political zealotry, purges of intellectuals, and social and economic chaos.

cul·tu·ra·ti (kŭl'chə-rä'tē) pl.n. People interested in culture and cultural activities. [CULTUR(E) + (LITER)ATI.]

cul·ture (kŭl'chər) n. 1. a. The totality of socially transmitted behavior patterns, arts, beliefs, institutions, and all other products of human work and thought. b. These patterns, traits, and products considered as the expression of a particular period, class, community, or population: Edwardian culture; Japanese culture; the culture of poverty. c. These patterns, traits, and products considered with respect to a particular category, such as a field, subject, or mode of expression: religious culture in the Middle Ages; musical culture; oral culture.

2. Intellectual and artistic activity, and the works produced by it.

3. a. Development of the intellect through training or education.

b. Enlightenment resulting from such training or education. 4. A high degree of taste and refinement formed by aesthetic and intellectual training. 5. Special training and development: voice culture for singers and actors. 6. The cultivation of soil; tillage. 7. The breeding of animals or growing of plants, especially to produce improved stock. 8. Biology. a. The growing of microorganisms, tissue cells, or other living matter in a specially prepared nutrient medium. b. Such a growth or colony, as of bacteria. — v. tr. cul·tured, cul·tur·ing, cul·tures. 1. To cultivate. 2. a. To grow (microorganisms or other living matter) in a specially prepared nutrient medium. b. To use (a substance) as a medium for culture: culture milk. [Middle English, cultivation, from Old French, from Latin cultūra, from cultus, past participle of colere. See CULTIVATE.]

SYNONYMS: culture, cultivation, breeding, refinement, taste. These nouns denote a personal quality resulting from the development of intellect, manners, and aesthetic appreciation. Culture implies enlightenment attained through close association with and appreciation of the highest level of civilization: "Culture is then properly described not as having its origin in curiosity, but as having its origin in the love of perfection" (Matthew Arnold). Cultivation suggests the process of self-improvement or self-development through which culture is acquired: The books and paintings in her library reflect her considerable cultivation. Breeding is revealed especially in good manners, poise, and sensitivity to the feelings of others: "The test of a man's or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel" (George Bernard Shaw). Refinement stresses aversion to coarseness and implies a delicacy of feeling associated with fastidiousness: "to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion" (William Henry Channing). Taste is the capacity for recognizing and appreciating what is fitting, proper, or aesthetically superior: "These questions of taste, of feeling, of inheritance, need no settlement. Every one carries his own inch-rule of taste” (Henry Adams).

cul·tured (kŭl'chərd) adj. 1. Educated, polished, and refined; cultivated.

2. Produced under artificial and controlled conditions: cultured pearls.

culture medium (kŭl'chər mē'dē-əm) n. A liquid or gelatinous substance containing nutrients in which microorganisms or tissues are cultivated for scientific purposes.

culture shock (kŭl'chər shök) n. A condition of confusion and anxiety affecting a person suddenly exposed to an alien culture or milieu.

cul·tus (kŭl'təs) n. pl. cul-tus-es or cul-ti (-tī). A cult, especially a religious one. [Latin, veneration. See CULT.]

cul·ver (kŭl'vər) n. A dove or a pigeon. [Middle English, from Old English culufre, from Vulgar Latin columbra*, from Latin columbula, diminutive of columba, dove.]

Cul-ver City (kŭl'vər sīt'ē) A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Los Angeles. Its motion-picture industry dates to c. 1915. Population, 38,793.

cul-ver-in (kŭl'vər-ĭn) n. 1. An early, crudely made musket. 2. A long heavy cannon used in the 16th and 17th centuries. [Middle English, from Old French coulevrine, from couleuvre, snake, from Latin colubra, feminine of coluber.]

Cul-ver's root (kŭl'vərz rōōt) n. 1. A perennial herb (Veronicastrum virginicum) native to eastern North America, having whorled leaves and small white or pinkish flowers in slender spikes. 2. The rootstock of this plant, formerly used in medicine as a cathartic and an emetic. [After Culver, 18th-century American physician.]

cul-vert (kŭl'vərt) n. 1. A sewer or drain crossing under a road or embankment.

2. a. The part of a road or embankment that passes over such a sewer or drain.

b. The channel or conduit for such a sewer or drain. [Origin unknown.]

cum (kōōm, kŭm) prep. Together with; plus. Often used in combination: our attic-cum-studio. [Latin. See kom in Appendix.]

cum. abbr. Cumulative.

Cu-mae (kyōō'mē) An ancient city and Greek colony of south-central Italy near present-day Naples. Founded c. 750 B.C., it is the earliest-known Greek settlement in Italy. Cumae adopted Roman culture after the second century B.C. and gradually declined as neighboring cities rose to power.

Cu-ma-ná (kōō'mä-nä') A city of northeast Venezuela on the Caribbean Sea east of Caracas. It was founded in 1521 to exploit nearby pearl fisheries. Population, 173,000.

cum-ber (kŭm'bər) v. tr. cum-bered, cum-ber-ing, cum-bers. 1. To weigh down; burden: was cumbered with many duties. 2. To hamper or hinder, as by being in the way: was cumbered with a long poncho. 3. To litter; clutter up: Weeds cumbered the garden paths. 4. Archaic. To bother; distress. — n. A hindrance; an encumbrance. [Middle English combren, to annoy, from Old French combrer, from combre, hindrance, from Vulgar Latin comboros*, of Celtic origin.]

—cum'ber-er n.

Cum·ber·land (kŭm'bər-lənd) A city of northwest Maryland in the Panhandle on the Potomac River and the West Virginia border. It is a shipping center for a coal-mining area. Population, 23,706.

Cumberland Gap (kŭm'bər-lənd gǎp) A natural passage through the Cumberland Plateau near the junction of the Kentucky, Virginia, and Tennessee borders. It was discovered in 1750 and used by Daniel Boone in 1775 as a strategic point along his Wilderness Road, the principal route of westward migration for the next half century.

Cumberland Plateau or Cumberland Mountains (kŭm'bər-lənd plā-tō') The southwest section of the Appalachian Mountains, extending northeast to southwest from southern West Virginia through Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee into northern Alabama.

Cumberland River (kŭm'bər-lənd rĭv'ər) A river rising in southeast Kentucky and flowing about 1,105 km (687 mi) in a winding course southwest into northern Tennessee then northwest to the Ohio River near Paducah in southwest Kentucky.

cum·ber·some (kŭm'bər-səm) adj. 1. Difficult to handle because of weight or bulk. See Synonyms at heavy. 2. Troublesome or onerous.

—cum'ber-some-ly adv.

Cum·bri·a (kŭm'brē-ə) An ancient Celtic kingdom of northwest England. The southern part came under Anglo-Saxon control c. 944; the northern portion passed to Scotland in 1018. —Cum'bri-an adj. & n.

Cumbrian Mountains (kŭm'brē-ən moun'tənz) A range of hills in northwest England rising to 979.1 m (3,210 ft) at Scafell Pike.

cum·brous (kŭm'brəs) adj. Cumbersome. [Middle English, from cumbren, to annoy. See CUMBER.] —cum'brous-ly adv. —cum'brous-ness n.

cum·in (kŭm'in, kōō'mĭn, kyōō'-) n. 1. a. An annual Mediterranean herb (Cuminum cyminum) in the parsley family, having finely divided leaves and clusters of small white or pink flowers. b. The seedlike fruit of this plant used for seasoning, as in curry and chili powders. 2. Black cumin. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cumīnum, from Greek kuminon, probably of Semitic origin.]

cum lau·de (kōōm lou'də, lou'dē, kŭm lô'dē) adv. & adj. With honor. Used to express academic distinction: graduated cum laude; 25 cum laude graduates.

[Probably Medieval Latin cum laudē: Latin cum, with + Latin laudē, ablative of laus, praise.]

cum-mer-bund (kŭm'ər-bünd') n. A broad sash, especially one that is pleated lengthwise and worn as an article of formal dress, as with a dinner jacket. [Hindi kamarband, from Persian : kamar, waist + band, band; see BUND¹.]

Cum-mings (kŭm'ingz), Edward Estlin. Usually styled e. e. cummings. 1894-1962. American writer. Best known for his lyrical and typographically eccentric poetry, he also wrote The Enormous Room (1922), an account of his imprisonment in France during World War I.

cum-quat (kŭm'kwöt') n. Variant of kumquat.

cum-shaw (kŭm'shô') n. A tip; a gratuity. [Pidgin English, from Chinese (Amoy) gamsia, an expression of thanks.]

cumul- pref. Variant of cumulo-.

cu-mu-late (kyōōm'yə-lāt') v. cu-mu-lat-ed, cu-mu-lat-ing, cu-mu-lates.

— v. tr. 1. To gather in a heap; accumulate. 2. To combine into one unit; merge.

— v. intr. To become massed. — adj. Having cumulated or having been cumulated; heaped up or amassed. [Latin cumulāre, cumulāt-, from cumulus, heap. See keuə- in Appendix.] —cu'mu-la'tion n.

cu-mu-la-tive (kyōōm'yə-lā'tiv, -yə-lə-tiv) adj. Abbr. cum. 1. Increasing or enlarging by successive addition. 2. Acquired by or resulting from accumulation. 3. Of or relating to interest or a dividend that is added to the next payment if not paid when due. 4. Law. a. Supporting the same point as earlier evidence: cumulative evidence. b. Imposed with greater severity upon a repeat offender: cumulative punishment. c. Following successively; consecutive: cumulative sentences. 5. Statistics. a. Of or relating to the sum of the frequencies of experimentally determined values of a random variable that are less than or equal to a specified value. b. Of or relating to experimental error that increases in magnitude with each successive measurement. —cu'mu-la'tive-ly adv. —cu'mu-la-tive-ness n.

cumulative voting (kyōōm'yə-lā'tiv vō'ting) n. A system of voting in which each voter is given as many votes as there are positions to be filled and allowed to cast those votes for one candidate or distribute them in any way among the candidates.

cu-mu-li (kyōōm'yə-lī') n. Plural of cumulus.

cumuli- pref. Variant of cumulo-.

cu-mu-li-form (kyōōm'yə-lə-fôrm') adj. Having the shape of a cumulus.

cumulo- or cumuli- or cumul- pref. Cumulus: cumulonimbus. [From CUMULUS.]

cu-mu-lo-nim-bus (kyōōm'yə-lō-nim'bəs) n. pl. cu-mu-lo-nim-bus-es or cu-mu-lo-nim-bi (-bī). An extremely dense, vertically developed cumulus with a relatively hazy outline and a glaciated top extending to great heights, usually producing heavy rains, thunderstorms, or hailstorms.

cu-mu-lous (kyōō'myə-ləs) adj. Resembling a pile or mound; heaped up.

cu·mu·lus (kyōōm'yə-ləs) n. pl. cu·mu·li (-lī'). 1. A dense, white, fluffy, flat-based cloud with a multiple rounded top and a well-defined outline, usually formed by the ascent of thermally unstable air masses. 2. A pile, mound, or heap. [Latin, heap. See keuə- in Appendix.]

Cu·nax·a (kyōō-nāk'sə) An ancient town of Babylonia northwest of Babylon. It was the site of a battle (401 B.C.) in which Artaxerxes II of Persia defeated his brother Cyrus the Younger, leading to the Retreat of the Ten Thousand described by Xenophon in his Anabasis.

cunc·ta·tion (kūngk-tā'shən) n. Procrastination; delay. [Latin cūnctātiō, cūnctātiōn-, from cūnctātus, past participle of cūnctārī, to delay. See konk- in Appendix.] —cunc'ta'tive (kūngk'tā'tiv, -tə-tiv) adj. —cunc'ta'tor n.

cu·ne·al (kyōō'nē-əl) adj. Wedge-shaped. [New Latin cuneālis, from Latin cuneus, wedge.]

cu·ne·ate (kyōō'nē-īt, -āt') adj. Botany. Wedge-shaped. Used especially to describe a leaf or petal base that is narrowly triangular. [Latin cuneātus, past participle of cuneāre, to make wedge-shaped, from cuneus, wedge.] —cu'ne·ate'ly adv.

cu·ne·i·form (kyōō'nē-ə-fōrm', kyōō-nē'-) adj. 1. Wedge-shaped.

2. a. Being a character or characters formed by the arrangement of small wedge-shaped elements and used in ancient Sumerian, Akkadian, Assyrian, Babylonian, and Persian writing. b. Relating to, composed in, or using such characters.

3. Anatomy. Of, relating to, or being a wedge-shaped bone or cartilage. — n.

1. Writing typified by the use of characters formed by the arrangement of small wedge-shaped elements. 2. Anatomy. A wedge-shaped bone, especially one of three such bones in the tarsus of the foot. [Probably from French cunéiforme, from Latin cuneus, wedge.]

Cu·ne·ne also Ku·ne·ne (kōō-nā'nə) A river rising in west-central Angola and flowing about 1,207 km (750 mi) south and west to the Atlantic Ocean. It forms the Angola-Namibia border in its lower course.

Cu·ne·o (kōō'nē-ō', -nĕ-ô) A city of northwest Italy west of Genoa. It is an industrial and agricultural center. Population, 55,385.

cun·ner (kūn'ər) n. A small fish (Tautogolabrus adspersus) of North American Atlantic waters that is common along the shore of the eastern United States. [Origin unknown.]

cun·ni·lin·gus (kūn'ə-līng'gəs) n. Oral stimulation of the clitoris or vulva. [New Latin, from Latin, he who licks the vulva : cunnus, vulva; see (s)keu- in Appendix + lingere, to lick; see leigh- in Appendix.] —cun'ni·lin'gual adj.

cun·ning (kūn'ing) adj. 1. Marked by or given to artful subtlety and deceptiveness. See Synonyms at sly. 2. Executed with or exhibiting ingenuity.

3. Delicately pleasing; pretty or cute: a cunning little pet. — n. 1. Skill in deception; guile. 2. Skill or adeptness in execution or performance; dexterity. [Middle English, present participle of connen, to know, from Old English cunnan. See gnō- in Appendix.] —cun'ning-ly adv. —cun'ning-ness n.

Cun-ning-ham (kūn'ŋing-hām'), Merce. Born 1919. American dancer and choreographer of avant-garde works, including Squaregame (1976).

cunt (künt) n. Obscene. 1. The female genital organs. 2. Sexual intercourse with a woman. 3. a. Used as a disparaging term for a woman. b. Used as a disparaging term for a person one dislikes or finds extremely disagreeable. [Middle English cunte.]

cup (küp) n. 1. a. A small, open container, usually with a flat bottom and a handle, used for drinking. b. Such a container and its contents. 2. Abbr. c., C. A unit of capacity or volume equal to 16 tablespoons or 8 fluid ounces (237 milliliters). See Table at measurement. 3. The bowl of a drinking vessel. 4. The chalice or the wine used in the celebration of the Eucharist. 5. A decorative cup-shaped vessel awarded as a prize or trophy. 6. Sports. A golf hole or the metal container inside a hole. 7. Either of the two parts of a brassiere that fit over the breasts. 8. An athletic supporter having a protective reinforcement of rigid plastic or metal. 9. A sweetened, flavored, usually chilled beverage, especially one made with wine: claret cup. 10. A dish served in a cup-shaped vessel: fruit cup. 11. a. A cuplike object. b. Biology. A cuplike structure or organ. 12. A lot or portion to be suffered or enjoyed. — v. tr. cupped, cup-ping, cups. 1. To place in or as in a cup. 2. To shape like a cup: cup one's hand. 3. To subject to the therapeutic procedure of cupping. — idioms. cup of tea. 1. Something that one excels in or enjoys: Opera is not my cup of tea. 2. A matter to be reckoned or dealt with: Recreational sport is relaxing. Professional sport is another cup of tea altogether. in (one's) cups. Intoxicated; drunk. [Middle English cuppe, from Old English, from Late Latin cuppa, drinking vessel, perhaps variant of Latin cūpa, tub, cask.]

cup-and-sau-cer plant (küp'ən-sô'sər plānt) n. A tendril-bearing Mexican vine (Cobaea scandens) cultivated for its showy flowers. Also called Mexican ivy vine cup-bear-er (küp'bâr'ər) n. One who fills and distributes cups of wine, as in a royal household.

cup-board (küb'ərd) n. A closet or cabinet, usually with shelves for storing food, crockery, and utensils.

cup-cake (küp'kāk') n. A small cake baked in a cup-shaped container.

cu-pel (kyōō'pəl, kyōō-pĕl') n. 1. A porous cup, often made of bone ash, used in assaying to separate precious metals from base elements such as lead. 2. The bottom or receptacle in a silver-refining furnace. — v. tr. cu-peled or cu-pelled, cu-pel-ing or cu-pel-ling, cu-pels or cu-pels. To assay or separate from base metals in a cupel. [French coupelle, from Old French, diminutive of coupe, cup, from Late Latin cuppa, drinking vessel.] —cu'pel-ler, cu'pel-er n.

cu·pel·la·tion (kyōō'pə-lā'shən) n. A refining process for nonoxidizing metals, such as silver and gold, in which a metallic mixture is oxidized at high temperatures and base metals are separated by absorption into the walls of a cupel.

Cu·per·ti·no (kōō'pər-tē'nō, kyōō'-) A city of western California west of San Jose. It has an electronics industry. Population, 40,263.

cup·flow·er (küp'flou'ər) n. Any of various South American plants of the genus Nierembergia, cultivated as annual bedding plants for their showy purple or sometimes white flowers.

cup·ful (küp'fōōl') n. pl. cup·fuls. 1. The amount that a cup can hold. 2. A measure of capacity equal to one cup.

cup fungus (küp füng'gəs) n. Any of various ascomycetous fungi, especially of the family Pezizaceae, characterized by a spore-bearing structure that is often stalkless and cup-shaped or disk-shaped.

Cu·pid (kyōō'pīd) n. 1. Roman Mythology. The god of love; the son of Venus. 2. cupid. A representation of Cupid as a naked, cherubic boy usually having wings and holding a bow and arrow, used as a symbol of love. [Middle English Cupide, from Old French, from Latin cupīdō, desire, Cupid, from cupere, to desire.]

cu·pid·i·ty (kyōō-pīd'ī-tē) n. Excessive desire, especially for wealth; covetousness or avarice. [Middle English cupidite, from Old French, from Latin cupiditās, from cupidus, desiring, from cupere, to desire.]

Cu·pid's bow (kyōō'pīdz bō') n. pl. Cupid's bows. An archery bow that curves inward at the center and usually outward at the ends.

cu·pid's-dart (kyōō'pīdz-därt') n. pl. cupid's-darts. A perennial Mediterranean herb (Catananche caerulea) in the composite family, cultivated for its long-stalked flower heads with showy, usually blue ray flowers.

cu·po·la (kyōō'pə-lə) n. 1. Architecture. a. A domed roof or ceiling. b. A small structure surmounting a roof. 2. A cylindrical shaft type of blast furnace used for remelting metals, usually iron, before casting. 3. A small rounded and domed structure, as for observation, on a tracked, armored vehicle. [Italian, from Late Latin cūpula, diminutive of Latin cūpa, tub.]

cup·pa (küp'ə) n. Chiefly British. A cup of tea. [Short for cuppa tea, alteration of cup of tea.]

cup·ping (küp'ŋ) n. A treatment in which evacuated glass cups are applied to intact or scarified skin in order to draw blood toward or through the surface. It was used for disorders associated with an excess of blood, one of the four humors of medieval physiology.

cup plant (küp plānt) n. A coarse perennial herb (Silphium perfoliatum) in the composite family, native to the central and southeast United States and having showy radiate flower heads of yellow flowers and opposite leaves whose bases fuse to form a cup around the stem.

cup·py (kŭp'ē) adj. cup·pi·er, cup·pi·est. 1. Shaped like a cup. 2. Marked by shallow depressions: A loose, cuppy track slowed the horses.

cupr- pref. Variant of cupro-.

cu·pre·ous (kōō'prē-əs, kyōō'-) adj. Of, resembling, or containing copper; coppers. [From Late Latin cūpreus, from cūprum, copper. See COPPER¹.]

cupri- pref. Variant of cupro-.

cu·pric (kōō'prīk, kyōō'-) adj. Of or containing divalent copper.

cu·prif·er·ous (kōō-prīf'ər-əs, kyōō'-) adj. Containing copper.

cu·prite (kōō'prīt', kyōō'-) n. A natural red secondary ore of copper, essentially Cu₂O, that forms as a result of weathering.

cupro- or cupri- or cupr- pref. Copper: cupriferous. [From Late Latin cūprum, copper. See COPPER¹.]

cu·pro·nick·el (kōō'prō-nīk'əl, kyōō'-) n. An alloy of copper that contains 10 to 30 percent nickel.

cu·prous (kōō'prəs, kyōō'-) adj. Of, relating to, or containing univalent copper.

cu·pu·late (kyōō'pyə-lāt', -līt) also cu·pu·lar (-lər) adj. 1. Resembling a small cup; cup-shaped. 2. Having or bearing a cupule.

cu·pule (kyōō'pyōōl) n. Biology. A small cup-shaped structure or organ, such as the cup at the base of an acorn or one of the suckers on the feet of certain flies. [Late Latin cūpula, little cask, diminutive of Latin cūpa, tub.]

cur (kŭr) n. 1. A dog considered to be inferior or undesirable; a mongrel. 2. A base or cowardly person. [Middle English curre, perhaps of Scandinavian origin. See gerə-² in Appendix.]

cur. abbr. 1. Currency. 2. Current.

cur·a·ble (kyōōr'ə-bəl) adj. Being such that curing or healing is possible: curable diseases. —cur·a·bil·i·ty, cur·a·ble·ness n. —cur·a·bly adv.

cu·ra·çao (kyōōr'ə-sō', -sou', kōōr'-) also cu·ra·çoa (-sō'ə) n. A liqueur flavored with the peel of the sour orange. [After Curaçao.]

Cu·ra·çao (kōōr'ə-sou', -sō', kyōōr'-, kōōr'ə-sou', -sō', kyōōr'-) An island of the Netherlands Antilles in the southern Caribbean Sea off the northwest coast of Venezuela. It was discovered in 1499 and settled by the Spanish in 1527. The Dutch gained control in 1634, although the British held the island during the Napoleonic Wars (1807-1815). Oil refining and tourism are the major industries.

cu·ra·cy (kyōōr'ə-sē) n. pl. cu·ra·cies. The office, duties, or term of office of a curate. [CURA(TE)¹ + -CY.]

cu·ra·re also cu·ra·ri (kōō-rä'rē, kyōō-) n. 1. A dark resinous extract obtained from several tropical American woody plants, especially Chondrodendron tomentosum or certain species of Strychnos, used as an arrow poison by some Indian peoples of South America. 2. A purified preparation or alkaloid obtained from Chondrodendron tomentosum, used in medicine and surgery to relax skeletal muscles. 3. A plant yielding curare. [Portuguese, or Spanish curaré both of Cariban and Tupian origin.]

cu·ra·rize (kōō-rā' rīz', kyōō-) v. tr. cu·ra·rized, cu·ra·riz·ing, cu·ra·riz·es.

1. To poison with curare. 2. To treat with curare so as to relax the skeletal muscles. —cu·ra'ri·za'tion (-rī-zā'shən) n.

cu·ras·sow (kōōr'ə-sō', kyōōr'-) n. Any of several long-tailed, crested South and Central American game birds of the family Cracidae, related to the pheasants and domestic fowl. [Alteration of Curaçao.] cu·rate¹ (kyōōr'īt) n. 1. A cleric, especially one who has charge of a parish.

2. A cleric who assists a rector or vicar. [Middle English curat, from Medieval Latin cūrātus, from Late Latin cūra, spiritual charge, from Latin, care. See CURE.]

cu·rate² (kyōōr'āt') v. tr. Usage Problem. To act as curator of; organize and oversee. [Back-formation from CURATOR.]

USAGE NOTE: The verb curate is widely used in art circles to mean “arrange or supervise (an exhibition of art),” as in She has curated two exhibitions for the Modern Museum. This usage is rejected by 81 percent of the Usage Panel.

cu·ra·tive (kyōōr'ə-tīv) adj. 1. Serving or tending to cure. 2. Of or relating to the cure of disease. — n. Something that cures; a remedy. [Middle English, from Old French curatif, from Medieval Latin cūrātīvus, from Latin cūrātus, past participle of cūrāre, to cure, from cūra, care. See CURE.] —cu'ra·tive·ly adv. —cu'ra·tive·ness n.

cu·ra·tor (kyōō-rā'tər, kyōōr'ə-tər) n. One that manages or oversees, as the administrative director of a museum collection or a library. [Middle English curatour, legal guardian, from Old French curateur, from Latin cūrātor, overseer, from cūrāre, to take care of. See CURATIVE.] —cu'ra·to'ri·al (kyōōr'ə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj. —cu·ra'tor·ship' n.

curb (kûrb) n. 1. A concrete border or row of joined stones forming part of a gutter along the edge of a street. 2. An enclosing framework, such as that around a skylight. 3. A raised margin along an edge used to confine or strengthen. 4. Something that checks or restrains: High interest rates put a curb on spending. 5. A chain or strap that passes under a horse's lower jaw and serves in conjunction with the bit to restrain the horse. — v. tr. curbed, curb·ing, curbs. 1. To check, restrain, or control as if with a curb; rein in. See Synonyms at restrain. 2. To lead (a dog) off the sidewalk into the gutter so that it can excrete waste matter. 3. To furnish with a curb. [Blend of Middle English, curved piece of wood (from Old French corbe, curved object, from corbe, curved, from Latin curvus), Middle English corbe, horse strap (from corben, to bow down, halt, from Old French corber, to bow down, from Latin curvāre, from curvus, curved, bent); see sker² in Appendix.]

curb bit (kûrb bĭt) n. A horse's bit to which a curb is attached.

curb cut (kûrb kÿt) n. A small ramp built into the curb of a sidewalk to ease passage to the street, especially for bicyclists, pedestrians with baby carriages, and physically disabled people.

curb-ing (kûr'bĭng) n. 1. The material used to construct a curb. 2. A row of curbstones; a curb.

curb roof (kûrb rōof) n. A roof having two slopes on each side, as a gambrel roof or a mansard roof.

curb service (kûrb sÿr'vĭs) n. Service or attendance, especially from a restaurant, provided to customers remaining in their parked vehicles.

curb-side (kûrb'sĭd') n. 1. The side of a pavement or street that is bordered by a curb. 2. A sidewalk. — adj. Located, operating, or occurring at or along the sidewalk or curb: curbside trash collection.

curb-stone (kûrb'stōn') n. A stone or row of stones that constitutes a curb. — adj. Untrained or unsophisticated; amateurish: a curbstone commentator.

cur-cu-li-o (kær-kyōō'lē-ō') n. pl. cur-cu-li-os. See snout beetle. [Latin curculiō, a kind of weevil.]

cur-cu-ma (kûr'kyə-mə) n. Any of various tropical Asian plants of the genus Curcuma, which includes turmeric and zedoary. [New Latin Curcuma, genus name, from Arabic kurkum, saffron.]

curd (kûrd) n. 1. The part of milk that coagulates when the milk sours or is treated with enzymes. Curd is used to make cheese. 2. A coagulated liquid that resembles milk curd. — v. intr. tr. curd-ed, curd-ing, curds. To form or cause to form into curd; curdle. [Middle English, variant of crud.] — curd'y adj.

curd cheese (kûrd chēz) n. Chiefly British. Cottage cheese.

cur-dle (kûr'dl) v. cur-dled, cur-dling, cur-dles. — v. intr. 1. a. To change into curd. See Synonyms at coagulate. b. To become congealed as if by having changed into curd: The blood in my veins curdled at the horrific sight. 2. To go bad or become spoiled. — v. tr. To cause to change into or as if into curd. [Frequentative of CURD.]

cure (kyōōr) n. 1. Restoration of health; recovery from disease. 2. A method or course of medical treatment used to restore health. 3. An agent, such as a drug, that restores health; a remedy. 4. Something that corrects or relieves a harmful or disturbing situation: The cats proved to be a good cure for our mouse problem.

5. Ecclesiastical. Spiritual charge or care, as of a priest for a congregation. 6. The office or duties of a curate. 7. The act or process of preserving a product. — v. cured, cur-ing, cures. — v. tr. 1. To restore to health. 2. To effect a recovery from: cure a cold. 3. To remove or remedy (something harmful or disturbing): cure an evil. 4. To preserve (meat, for example), as by salting, smoking, or aging. 5. To prepare, preserve, or finish (a substance) by a chemical or physical process. 6. To vulcanize (rubber). — v. intr. 1. To effect a cure or recovery: a medicine that cures. 2. To be prepared, preserved, or finished by a chemical or physical process: hams curing in the smokehouse. [Middle English, from Old French, medical treatment, from Latin cūra, from Old Latin coisa-.] —cur'er n. —cure'less adj.

SYNONYMS: cure, heal, remedy. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to set right an undesirable or unhealthy condition”: cure an ailing economy; heal a wounded spirit; remedy a structural defect.

cu·ré (kyōō-rā', kyōōr'ā') n. A parish priest. [French, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cūrātus. See CURATE¹.]

cure-all (kyōōr'ōl') n. A remedy that cures all diseases or evils; a panacea.

cu·ret (kyōō-rēt') n. Variant of curette.

cu·ret·tage (kyōōr'ī-tāzh') n. The removal of tissue or growths from a body cavity, such as the uterus, by scraping with a curette. Also called curettement cu·rette also cu·ret (kyōō-rēt') n. A surgical instrument shaped like a scoop or spoon, used to remove tissue or growths from a body cavity. [French, from Old French, from curer, to cure, from Latin cūrāre, to take care of, from cūra, care. See CURE.]

cu·rette·ment (kyōō-rēt'mənt) n. See curettage.

cur·few (kūr'fyōō) n. 1. A regulation requiring certain or all people to leave the streets or be at home at a prescribed hour. 2. a. The time at which such a restriction begins or is in effect: a 10 P.M. curfew for all residents. b. The signal, such as a bell, announcing the beginning of this restriction. [Middle English curfeu, from Old French cuevrefeu : coverir, to cover; see COVER + feu, fire (from Latin focus, hearth).]

cu·ri·a (kōōr'ē-ə, kyōōr'-) n. pl. cu·ri·ae (kōōr'ē-ē', kyōōr'-). 1. a. One of the ten primitive subdivisions of a tribe in early Rome, consisting of ten gentes.

b. The assembly place of such a subdivision. 2. a. The Roman senate or any of the various buildings in which it met in republican Rome. b. The place of assembly of high councils in various Italian cities under Roman administration.

3. The ensemble of central administrative and governmental services in imperial Rome. 4. Often Curia. Roman Catholic Church. The central administration governing the Church. 5. a. A medieval assembly or council. b. A medieval royal court of justice. [Latin, council, curia. See wī-ro- in Appendix.] —cu'ri·al adj.

cu·rie (kyōōr'ē, kyōō-rē') n. A unit of radioactivity, equal to the amount of a radioactive isotope that decays at the rate of 3.7×10^{10} disintegrations per second. [After Marie CURIE.]

Cu·rie (kyōōr'ē, kyōō-rē', kŭ-), Eve Denise. Born 1904. French pianist, writer, and editor best known for Madame Curie (1937), a biography of her mother, Marie Curie.

Cu·rie also Cu·rie-Jo·liot (kyōōr'ē-zhō-lyō', kyōō-rē'-, kü-), Irène. See Irène Joliot-Curie.

Cu·rie (kyōōr'ē, kyōō-rē', kü-), Marie. Originally Manja Skłodowska. 1867-1934. Polish-born French chemist. She shared a 1903 Nobel Prize with her husband, Pierre Curie (1859-1906), and Henri Becquerel for fundamental research on radioactivity. In 1911 she won a second Nobel Prize for her discovery and study of radium and polonium.

Curie point (kyōōr'ē point) n. A transition temperature marking a change in the magnetic or ferroelectric properties of a substance, especially the change from ferromagnetism to paramagnetism. Also called Curie temperature [After Pierre CURIE.]

cu·ri·o (kyōōr'ē-ō') n. pl. cu·ri·os. A curious or unusual object of art or piece of bric-a-brac. [Short for CURIOSITY.]

cu·ri·o·sa (kyōōr'ē-ō'sə, -zə) pl.n. Books or other writings dealing with unusual, especially pornographic, topics. [New Latin, neuter pl. of Latin cūriōsus, inquisitive. See CURIUS.]

cu·ri·os·i·ty (kyōōr'ē-ōs'i-tē) n. pl. cu·ri·os·i·ties. 1. A desire to know or learn. 2. A desire to know about people or things that do not concern one; nosiness. 3. An object that arouses interest, as by being novel or extraordinary: kept the carved bone and displayed it as a curiosity. 4. A strange or odd aspect. 5. Archaic. Fastidiousness. [Middle English curiosite, from Old French, from Latin cūriōsītās, from cūriōsus, inquisitive. See CURIUS.]

cu·ri·ous (kyōōr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Eager to learn more: curious investigators; a trap door that made me curious. 2. Unduly inquisitive; prying. 3. Arousing interest because of novelty or strangeness: a curious fact. 4. Archaic. a. Accomplished with skill or ingenuity. b. Extremely careful; scrupulous. [Middle English, from Old French curios, from Latin cūriōsus, careful, inquisitive, from cūra, care. See CURE.] —cu'ri·ous·ly adv. —cu'ri·ous·ness n.

SYNONYMS: curious, inquisitive, snoop, nosy. These adjectives apply to persons who show a marked desire for information or knowledge. Curious most often implies an avid desire to know or learn, though it can suggest an undue interest in the affairs of others: A curious child is a teacher's delight. Inquisitive frequently suggests excessive curiosity and the asking of many questions: "Remember, no revolvers. The police are, I believe, proverbially inquisitive" (Lord Dunsany). Both snoopy and nosy imply an unworthy motive. Snoopy suggests underhanded prying: The snoopy neighbor watched our activities all day. Nosy implies impertinent curiosity likened to that of an animal using its nose to examine or probe: I watched him flip through the letters on my desk in his nosy way. See also Synonyms at strange

Cu-ri-ti-ba (kōōr'ī-tē'bə) A city of southeast Brazil southwest of São Paulo. It was founded in 1654 but did not grow rapidly until the late 19th and early 20th centuries when German, Italian, and Slavic immigrants began to develop the surrounding area. Population, 1,024,975.

cu-ri-um (kyōōr'ē-əm) n. Symbol Cm A silvery, metallic synthetic radioactive transuranic element. Its longest lived isotope is Cm 247 with a half-life of 16.4 million years. Atomic number 96; melting point (estimated) 1,350°C; valence 3. [After Marie CURIE, and Pierre CURIE.]

curl (kûrl) v. curled, curl-ing, curls. — v. tr. 1. To twist (the hair, for example) into ringlets or coils. 2. To form into a coiled or spiral shape: curled the ends of the ribbon. 3. To decorate with coiled or spiral shapes. 4. To raise and turn under (the upper lip), as in snarling or showing scorn. — v. intr. 1. To form ringlets or coils. 2. To assume a spiral or curved shape. 3. To move in a curve or spiral: The wave curled over the surfer. 4. Sports. To engage in curling. — n. 1. Something with a spiral or coiled shape. 2. A coil or ringlet of hair. 3. A treatment in which the hair is curled. 4. a. The act of curling: the curl of a meandering river. b. The state of being curled. 5. Sports. A weightlifting exercise using one or two hands, in which a barbell held at the thigh or to the side of the body is raised to the chest or shoulder and then lowered without moving the upper arms, shoulders, or back. 6. Any of various plant diseases in which the leaves roll up. — phrasal verb. curl up. To assume a position with the legs drawn up: The child curled up in an armchair to read. [Middle English crullen, curlen, from crulle, curly, perhaps of Middle Low German origin.] curl-er (kûr'lər) n. 1. One that curls, as a device on which hair is wound for curling. 2. Sports. A player of curling.

cur-lew (kûrl'yōō, kûr'lōō) n. Any of several brownish, long-legged shore birds of the genus Numenius, having long, slender, downward-curving bills. [Middle English curleu, from Old French courlieu, perhaps of imitative origin.]

Cur-ley (kûr'lē), James Michael. 1874-1958. American politician who as mayor of Boston (1914-1918, 1922-1926, 1930-1934, and 1946-1950) and governor of Massachusetts (1935-1937) was known for his colorful leadership of Boston's Democratic political machine.

curl-i-cue also curl-y-cue (kûr'li-kyōō') n. A fancy twist or curl, such as a flourish made with a pen. [CURLY + CUE¹, tail and possibly CUE³.] — curl'i-cued adj.

curl-ing (kûr'lɪŋ) n. Sports. A game originating in Scotland in which two four-person teams slide heavy, oblate stones toward the center of a circle at either end of a length of ice.

curling iron (kûr'lɪŋ ī'ərn) n. A rod-shaped metal implement used when heated to curl the hair.

curl paper (kûrl pā'pər) n. A piece of soft paper on which a lock of hair is rolled up for curling.

curl-y (kûr'lē) adj. curl-i-er, curl-i-est. 1. Having curls. 2. Having the tendency to curl. 3. Having a wavy grain: curly maple wood. —curl/i-ly adv.

—curl/i-ness n.

curl-y-cue (kûr'lī-kyōō') n. Variant of curlicue.

curly top (kûr'lē tōp) n. A viral disease of many plants, such as beets, beans, and tomatoes, characterized by curled leaves and stunted growth.

cur-mudg-eon (kər-mŭj'ən) n. An ill-tempered person full of resentment and stubborn notions. [Origin unknown.] —cur-mudg'eon-ly adj.

—cur-mudg'eon-ry n.

WORD HISTORY: The etymology of the word curmudgeon has eluded us for at least two centuries, although some lexicographers have thought the solution was at hand, one to his embarrassment. When Samuel Johnson stated in his famous dictionary of 1755 that curmugeon “is a vicious manner of pronouncing cœur méchant, Fr. an unknown correspondent,” he was giving credit to an anonymous writer for the statement that curmudgeon came from French cœur, “heart,” and méchant, “evil.” Another lexicographer, John Ash, following in Johnson’s tracks though none too carefully, gave the etymology a bit differently in his dictionary of 1775: “from the French cœur unknown, and mechant a correspondent”; thus misinterpreting Johnson’s attribution as a gloss for the French. Although its origin is unknown, curmudgeon has been around for some time, being first recorded in a work published in 1577.

cur-rach also cur-ragh (kûr'əKH, kûr'ə) n. Irish & Scots. A coracle. [Middle English currok, from Irish Gaelic curach, from Old Irish.]

cur-rant (kûr'ənt, kŭr'-) n. 1. Any of various deciduous, spineless shrubs of the genus Ribes, native chiefly to the Northern Hemisphere and having flowers in racemes and edible, variously colored berries. 2. The fruits of any of these plants, used for jams, jellies, desserts, or beverages. 3. A small, seedless raisin of the Mediterranean region, used chiefly in baking. 4. Any of several other plants or their fruit. [From Middle English (raysons of) coraunte, (raisins of) Corinth, currants, from Anglo-Norman (raisins de) Corauntz, from Latin Corinthus, from Greek Korinthos.]

cur-ren-cy (kûr'ən-sē, kŭr'-) n. pl. cur-ren-cies. Abbr. cur. 1. Money in any form when in actual use as a medium of exchange, especially circulating paper money. 2. Transmission from person to person as a medium of exchange; circulation: coins now in currency. 3. General acceptance or use; prevalence: the currency of a slang term. [From Middle English curraunt, in circulation. See CURRENT.]

CURRENCY TABLE: LISTED BY COUNTRY

COUNTRY	BASIC UNIT	SUB-UNIT	COUNTRY	BASIC UNIT	SUB-UNIT
Afghanistan	afghani	100 puls	Denmark	krone	100 öre
Albania	lek	100 qindarka	Djibouti	franc	100 centimes
Algeria	dinar	100 centimes	Dominica	dollar	100 cents
Andorra	peseta	100 centimos	Dominican Republic	peso	100 centavos
Angola	kwanza	100 lwei
Argentina	peso	100 centavos	Ecuador	sucre	100 centavos
Armenia	dram	100 lumma	Egypt	pound	100 piasters
Australia	dollar	100 cents	El Salvador	colon	100 centavos
Austria	schilling	100 groschen	Equatorial Guinea	franc	100 centimes
Azerbaijan	manat	100 qepiq	Eritrea	birr	100 cents
			Estonia	kroon	100 senti
Bahamas	dollar	100 cents	Ethiopia	birr	100 cents
Bahrain	dinar	1000 fils
Bangladesh	taka	100 paisas	Fiji	dollar	100 cents
Barbados	dollar	100 cents	Finland	markka	100 pennis
Belgium	franc	100 centimes	France	franc	100 centimes
Belize	dollar	100 cents
Benin	franc	100 centimes	Gabon	franc	100 centimes
Bhutan	ngultrum	100 chetrums	Gambia	dalasi	100 butut
Bolivia	boliviano	100 centavos	Georgia	lari	100 tetri
Bosnia–Herzegovina	dinar	100 para	Germany	deutsche mark	100 pfennigs
Botswana	pula	100 thebe
Brazil	real	100 centavos	Ghana	cedi	100 pesewa
Brunei	dollar	100 cents	Greece	drachma	100 lepta
Bulgaria	lev	100 stotinki	Grenada	dollar	100 cents
Burkina Faso	franc	100 centimes	Guatemala	quetzal	100 centavos
Burundi	franc	100 centimes	Guinea	franc	100 centimes
			Guinea–Bissau	peso	100 centavos
Cameroon	franc	100 centimes	Guyana	dollar	100 cents
Canada	dollar	100 cents
Cape Verde	escudo	100 centavos	Haiti	gourde	100 centimes
Cayman Islands	dollar	100 cents	Honduras	lempira	100 centavos
Central African Republic	franc	100 centimes	Hong Kong	dollar	100 cents
			Hungary	forint	100 fillér
Chad	franc	100 centimes
Chile	peso	100 centavos	Iceland	krona	100 aurar
China	yuan	10 jiao	India	rupee	100 paise
Colombia	peso	100 centavos	Indonesia	rupiah	100 sen
Comoros	franc	100 centimes	Iran	rial	100 dinars
Congo	franc	100 centimes	Iraq	dinar	1000 fils
Costa Rica	colon	100 centimos	Ireland	pound	100 pence
Cuba	peso	100 centavos	Israel	shekel	100 agorot
Cyprus	pound	100 cents	Italy	lira	100 centesimi
Czech Republic	koruna	100 halers	Ivory Coast	franc	100 centimes

CURRENCY TABLE: LISTED BY COUNTRY

COUNTRY	BASIC UNIT	SUB-UNIT	COUNTRY	BASIC UNIT	SUB-UNIT
Jamaica	dollar	100 cents	Nicaragua	cordoba	100 centavos
Japan	yen	100 sen	Niger	franc	100 centimes
Jordan	dinar	1000 fils	Nigeria	naira	100 kobo
Kampuchea	riel	100 sen	North Korea	won	100 chon
Kazakhstan	tenge	100 tiyin	Norway	krone	100 öre
Kenya	shilling	100 cents	Oman	riyal	1000 baiza
Kirghiz	som	100 tyn	Pakistan	rupee	100 paisas
Kiribati	dollar	100 cents	Panama	balboa	100 centesimos
Kuwait	dinar	1000 fils	Papua New Guinea	kina	100 toea
Laos	kip	100 at	Paraguay	guarani	100 centimos
Latvia	lats	100 santimi	Peru	sol	100 centimos
Lebanon	pound	100 piasters	Philippines	peso	100 centavos
Lesotho	loti	100 lisente	Poland	zloty	100 groszy
Liberia	dollar	100 cents	Portugal	escudo	100 centavos
Libya	dinar	1000 dirhams	Qatar	riyal	100 dirhams
Liechtenstein	franc	100 centimes	Romania	leu	100 bani
Lithuania	litas	100 centu	Russia	ruble	100 kopecks
Luxembourg	franc	100 centimes	Rwanda	franc	100 centimes
Macao	pataca	100 avos	Saint Lucia	dollar	100 cents
Madagascar	franc	100 centimes	Saint Vincent and the Grenadines	dollar	100 cents
Malawi	kwacha	100 tambala	San Marino	lira	100 centesimi
Malaysia	ringgit	100 sen	São Tomé and Príncipe	dobra	100 centavos
Maldives	rufiyaa	100 larees	Saudi Arabia	riyal	100 halalas
Mali	franc	100 centimes	Senegal	franc	100 centimes
Malta	lira	100 cents	Seychelles	rupee	100 cents
Mauritania	ouguiya	5 khoums	Sierra Leone	leone	100 cents
Mauritius	rupee	100 cents	Singapore	dollar	100 cents
Mexico	peso	100 centavos	Slovakia	koruna	100 halier
Moldova	leu	100 bani	Slovenia	tolar	100 stotinov
Monaco	franc	100 centimes	Solomon Islands	dollar	100 cents
Mongolia	tugrik	100 mongo	Somalia	shilling	100 cents
Morocco	dirham	100 centimes	South Africa	rand	100 cents
Mozambique	metical	100 centavos	South Korea	won	100 chon
Myanmar	kyat	100 pyas	Spain	peseta	100 centimos
Namibia	dollar	100 cents	Sri Lanka	rupee	100 cents
Nauru	dollar	100 cents	Sudan	dinar	10 pounds
Nepal	rupee	100 paisas
Netherlands	guilder	100 cents
Netherlands Antilles	guilder	100 cents
New Zealand	dollar	100 cents

CURRENCY TABLE: LISTED BY COUNTRY

COUNTRY	BASIC UNIT	SUB-UNIT	COUNTRY	BASIC UNIT	SUB-UNIT
Suriname	guilder	100 cents	United Arab Emirates	dirham	100 fils
Swaziland	lilangeni	100 cents	United Kingdom	pound	100 pence
Sweden	krona	100 öre	United States	dollar	100 cents
Switzerland	franc	100 centimes	Uruguay	peso	100
Syria	pound	100 piasters		uruguay	ocentesimos
Taiwan	yuan	10 jiao	Uzbekistan	sum	100 tyyn
Tadzhikistan	ruble	100 tanga
Tanzania	shilling	100 cents	Vanuatu	vatu
Thailand	baht	100 satang	Vatican City	lira	100 centesimi
Togo	franc	100 centimes	Venezuela	bolivar	100 centimos
Tonga	pa'anga	100 seniti	Vietnam	dong	10 hao
Trinidad and Tobago	dollar	100 cents	Western Samoa	tala	100 sene
Tunisia	dinar	1000 millimes
Turkey	lira	100 kuruş	Yemen	rial	100 fils
Turkmenistan	manat	100 tenesi	Yugoslavia	dinar	100 para
Tuvalu	dollar	100 cents
			Zaire	zaire	100 makuta
Uganda	shilling	100 cents	Zambia	kwacha	100 ngwee
Ukraine	karbovanet		Zimbabwe	dollar	100 cents cur-rent (kûr'ənt, kûr'-'-) adj. 1. Abbr. cur. a. Belonging to the present time: current events; current leaders. b. Being in progress now: current negotiations. 2. Passing from one to another; circulating: current bills and coins. 3. Prevalent, especially at the present time: current fashions. See Synonyms at prevailing. 4. Running; flowing. — n. 1. A steady, smooth onward movement: a current of air from a fan; a current of spoken words. See Synonyms at flow. 2. The part of a body of liquid or gas that has a continuous onward movement: rowed out into the river's swift current. 3. A general tendency, movement, or course. See Synonyms at tendency. 4. Symbol i, I Electricity. a. A flow of electric charge. b. The amount of electric charge flowing past a specified circuit point per unit time. [Middle English curraunt, from Old French corant, present participle of courre, to run, from Latin currere. See kers- in Appendix.] —cur'rent-ly adv. —cur'rent-ness n.

current assets (kûr'ənt əs'əts') pl.n. Cash or assets convertible into cash at short notice.

current density (kûr'ənt dĕn'sĭ-tē) n. 1. Symbol j, J Electricity. The ratio of the magnitude of current flowing in a conductor to the cross-sectional area perpendicular to the current flow. 2. Physics. The number of subatomic particles per unit time crossing a unit area in a designated plane perpendicular to the direction of movement of the particles.

current ratio (kûr'ənt rā'shō) n. The arithmetic ratio of current assets to liabilities.

cur-ri-cle (kûr'ī-kəl) n. A light, open, two-wheeled carriage, drawn by two horses abreast. [From Latin curriculum, course, racing chariot, from currere, to run. See CURRENT.]

cur-ric-u-lum (kə-rīk'yə-ləm) n. pl. cur-ric-u-la (-lə) or cur-ric-u-lums. 1. All the courses of study offered by an educational institution. 2. A group of related courses, often in a special field of study: the engineering curriculum. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: curriculum development; curriculum enhancements. [Latin, course, from currere, to run. See CURRENT.]
—cur-ric'u-lar (-lər) adj.

cur-ric-u-lum vi-tae (kə-rīk'yə-ləm vī'tē, vē'tī, kə-rīk'ōō-lōōm wē'tī') n. pl. cur-ric-u-la vi-tae (-lə). Abbr. CV A summary of one's education, professional history, and job qualifications, as for a prospective employer. [Latin, the race of life : curriculum, course + vitae, genitive of vita, life.]

cur-rie (kûr'ē, kÿr'ē) n. Variant of curry².

cur-ri-er (kûr'ē-ər, kÿr'-) n. One that prepares tanned hides for use. [Middle English curreieur, from Old French, from Latin coriarius, from corium, leather. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

Cur-ri-er (kûr'ē-ər, kÿr'-), Nathaniel. 1813-1888. American lithographer who with his business partner James Merritt Ives produced more than 7,000 different prints illustrating American life and tradition, each signed "Currier & Ives."

cur-ri-er-y (kûr'ē-ə-rē, kÿr'-) n. pl. cur-ri-er-ies. The trade, work, or shop of a carrier.

cur-rish (kûr'īsh) adj. Snarling and bad-tempered. —cur'rish-ly adv.

cur-ry¹ (kûr'ē, kÿr'ē) v. tr. cur-ried, cur-ry-ing, cur-ries. 1. To groom (a horse) with a currycomb. 2. To prepare (tanned hides) for use, as by soaking or coloring. —idiom. curry favor. To seek or gain favor by fawning or flattery. [Middle English curreien, from Anglo-Norman curreier, to arrange, curry, from Vulgar Latin conrēdāre* : Latin com-, com- + Vulgar Latin -rēdāre*, to make ready (of Germanic origin); see reidh- in Appendix.]

cur-ry² also cur-rie (kûr'ē, kÿr'ē) n. pl. cur-ries. 1. Curry powder. 2. A heavily spiced sauce or relish made with curry powder and eaten with rice, meat, fish, or other food. 3. A dish seasoned with curry powder. — v. tr. cur-ried, cur-ry-ing, cur-ries. To season (food) with curry. [Tamil karī.]

Cur-ry (kûr'ē, kÿr'ē), John Steuart. 1897-1946. American painter noted for his vigorous depictions of the rural American scene, such as Tornado over Kansas (1929).

cur-ry-comb (kûr'ē-kôm', kûr'-) n. A comb with metal teeth, used for grooming horses. — v. tr. cur-ry-combed, cur-ry-comb-ing, cur-ry-combs. To groom with a currycomb.

curry powder (kûr'ē pou'dər) n. A blended, pungent condiment prepared from cumin, coriander, turmeric, and other spices.

curse (kûrs) n. 1. a. An appeal or prayer for evil or misfortune to befall someone or something. b. The evil or misfortune that comes in or as if in response to such an appeal: bewailed the curse of ill health. 2. One that is accursed. 3. A source or cause of evil; a scourge: "Selfishness is the greatest curse of the human race" (William Ewart Gladstone). 4. A profane word or phrase; a swearword. 5. Ecclesiastical. A censure, ban, or anathema. 6. Slang. Menstruation. Used with the. — v. cursed or curst (kûrst), curs-ing, curs-es. — v. tr. 1. To invoke evil or misfortune upon; damn. 2. To swear at. 3. To bring evil upon; afflict: was cursed with crippling arthritis. 4. Ecclesiastical. To put under a ban or an anathema; excommunicate. — v. intr. To utter curses; swear. [Middle English, from Old English curs.] —curs'er n.

curs-ed (kûr'sîd, kûrst) also curst (kûrst) adj. So wicked and detestable as to deserve to be cursed. —curs'ed-ly adv. —curs'ed-ness n.

cur-sive (kûr'sîv) adj. Having the successive letters joined together: cursive writing; a cursive style of type. — n. 1. A cursive character or letter. 2. A manuscript written in cursive characters. 3. Printing. A type style that imitates handwriting. [French (écriture) cursive, cursive (handwriting), from Medieval Latin (scripta) cursîva, from Latin cursus, past participle of currere, to run. See kers- in Appendix.] —cur'sive-ly adv. —cur'sive-ness n.

cur-sor (kûr'sər) n. Computer Science. A bright, usually blinking, movable indicator on a display, marking the position at which a character can be entered, corrected, or deleted. [Middle English, runner, from Latin, from cursus, past participle of currere, to run. See kers- in Appendix.]

cur-so-ri-al (kûr-sôr'ē-əl, -sôr'-) adj. Adapted to or specialized for running: cursorial birds; cursorial legs. [From Late Latin cursōrius, of running. See CURSOR.] cur-so-ry (kûr'sə-rē) adj. Performed with haste and scant attention to detail: a cursory glance at the headlines. See Synonyms at superficial. [Late Latin cursōrius, of running, from Latin cursor, cursōr-, runner. See CURSOR.] —cur'so-ri-ly adv. —cur'so-ri-ness n.

curst (kûrst) v. A past tense and a past participle of curse. — adj. Variant of cursed.

curt (kûrt) adj. curt-er, curt-est. 1. Rudely brief or abrupt, as in speech or manner. See Synonyms at gruff. 2. Using few words; terse. 3. Having been shortened. [Middle English, short, brief, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin curtus. See sker¹ in Appendix.] —curt'ly adv. —curt'ness n.

cur-tail (kər-tāl') v. tr. cur-tailed, cur-tail-ing, cur-tails. To cut short; abbreviate. See Synonyms at shorten. [Middle English curtailen, to restrict, probably blend of Old French courtauld, docked; see CURTAL, Middle English tailien, to cut (from Old French tailler); see TAILOR.] — cur-tail'er n. — cur-tail'ment n.

cur-tain (kūr'tn) n. 1. Material that hangs in a window or other opening as a decoration, shade, or screen. 2. Something that functions as or resembles a screen, cover, or barrier: the curtain of mist before the mountain; a heavy curtain of artillery fire. 3. a. The movable screen or drape in a theater or hall that separates the stage from the auditorium or that serves as a backdrop. b. The rising or opening of a theater curtain at the beginning of a performance or an act. c. Curtain time. d. The fall or closing of a theater curtain at the end of a performance or an act. e. The concluding line, speech, or scene of a play or an act. 4. The part of a rampart or parapet connecting two bastions or gates. 5. Architecture. An enclosing wall connecting two towers or similar structures. 6. curtains. Slang. a. The end. b. Absolute ruin: "If the employee doesn't shape up, it's curtains" (Business Week). c. Death. — v. tr. cur-tained, cur-tain-ing, cur-tains. 1. To provide (something) with or as if with a curtain. 2. To shut off (something) with or as if with a curtain. [Middle English cortine, from Old French, from Late Latin cōrtīna, from Latin cōrs, cōrt-, variant of cohors, court. See COURT.]

curtain call (kūr'tn kōl) n. The appearance of performers or a performer at the end of a performance in response to applause.

curtain lecture (kūr'tn lĕk'chər) n. A private reprimand given to a husband by his wife. [So called because it was originally given in a curtained bed.]

curtain rais-er (kūr'tn rā'zər) n. 1. A short play or skit presented before the principal dramatic production. 2. A preliminary event.

curtain speech (kūr'tn spĕch) n. A talk given in front of the curtain at the conclusion of a theatrical performance.

curtain time (kūr'tn tīm) n. The time at which a theatrical performance begins or is scheduled to begin.

cur-tal (kūr'tl) n. Archaic. 1. An animal with a docked tail. 2. Something cut short or docked. — adj. Obsolete. Cut short or docked. [Obsolete French courtault, from Old French, from court, short, from Latin curtus. See sker-1 in Appendix.]

curtal ax (kūr'tl äks) n. Archaic. A cutlass. [By folk etymology from earlier coutelace, curtelace, cutlass, from Old French coutelas. See CUTLASS.]

cur-tate (kūr'tāt') adj. Having been shortened; abbreviated. [Latin curtātus, past participle of curtāre, to shorten, from curtus, cut short. See CURT.]

cur-te-sy (kūr'tī-sē) n. pl. cur-te-sies. Law. The life tenure that by common law is held by a man over the property of his deceased wife if children with rights of inheritance were born during the marriage. [Middle English curtesie. See COURTESY.]

cur-ti-lage (kûr'tl-ij) n. Law. The enclosed area immediately surrounding a house or dwelling. [Middle English, from Old French courtillage, from courtil, diminutive of cort, court. See COURT.]

Cur-tin (kûr'tn), John. 1885-1945. Australian statesman who served as prime minister and minister of defense (1941-1945).

Cur-tis (kûr'tis), Benjamin Robbins. 1809-1874. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1851-1857). He resigned in protest after the Dred Scott decision.

Cur-tis (kûr'tis), Charles. 1860-1936. Vice President of the United States (1929-1933) under Herbert Hoover.

Cur-tis (kûr'tis), Cyrus Hermann Kotschmar. 1850-1933. American publisher of magazines such as Ladies' Home Journal and Saturday Evening Post.

Cur-tis (kûr'tis), George Ticknor. 1812-1894. American lawyer and biographer who defended Dred Scott before the U.S. Supreme Court (1857) and wrote biographies of James Buchanan (1833) and Daniel Webster (1870).

Cur-tis (kûr'tis), George William. 1824-1892. American journalist and reformer who was the political editor of Harper's Weekly (1863-1892) and was active in the movement for civil service reform.

Cur-tiss (kûr'tis), Glenn Hammond. 1878-1930. American aviation pioneer who developed the first airplane to complete a one-kilometer flight (1908), the first seaplane (1911), and the aileron (1911).

curt-sy or curt-sey (kûrt'sē) n. pl. curt-sies or curt-seys. A gesture of respect or reverence made chiefly by women by bending the knees with one foot forward and lowering the body. — v. intr. curt-sied or curt-seyed, curt-sy-ing or curt-sey-ing, curt-sies or curt-seys. To make a curtsy. [Variant of COURTESY.]

cu-rule (kyöör'ool') adj. Privileged to sit in a curule chair; of superior rank. [Latin curūlis, of a curule chair, from currus, chariot, from currere, to run. See kers- in Appendix.]

curule chair (kyöör'ool' châr) n. A seat with heavy curved legs and no back, reserved for the use of the highest officials in ancient Rome. Also called curule seat cur-va-ceous (kûr-vā'shəs) adj. Having the curves of a full or voluptuous figure. — cur-va'ceous-ly adv. — cur-va'ceous-ness n.

cur-va-ture (kûr'və-chöör', -chær) n. 1. The act of curving or the state of being curved. 2. Mathematics. a. The ratio of the change in the angle of a tangent that moves over a given arc to the length of the arc. b. The limit of this ratio as the length of the arc approaches zero. c. The reciprocal of the radius of a circle.

3. Medicine. A curving or bending, especially an abnormal one: curvature of the spine. [Middle English, from Latin curvātūra, from curvātus, past participle of curvāre, to bend, from curvus, curved. See sker-2 in Appendix.]

curve (kûrv) n. 1. a. A line that deviates from straightness in a smooth, continuous fashion. b. A surface that deviates from planarity in a smooth, continuous fashion. c. Something characterized by such a line or surface, especially a rounded line or contour of the human body. 2. A relatively smooth bend in a road or other course. 3. a. A line representing data on a graph. b. A trend derived from or as if from such a graph. 4. A graphic representation showing the relative performance of individuals as measured against each other, used especially as a method of grading students in which the assignment of grades is based on predetermined proportions of students. 5. Mathematics. a. The graph of a function on a coordinate plane. b. The intersection of two surfaces in three dimensions. 6. Baseball. A curve ball. 7. Slang. A trick or deception. — v. curved, curv-ing, curves. — v. intr. To move in or take the shape of a curve: The path curves around the lake. — v. tr. 1. To cause to curve. See Synonyms at bend¹. 2. Baseball. To pitch a curve ball to. 3. To grade (students, for example) on a curve. [From Middle English, curved, from Latin curvus. See sker-2 in Appendix.] — curv'ed-ness n. — curv'y adj.

curve ball or curve-ball (kûrv'bôl') n. Baseball. A pitched ball that veers or breaks to the left when thrown with the right hand and to the right when thrown with the left hand. — idiom. pitch (someone) a curve ball (or throw (someone) a curve ball). Slang. 1. To mislead; deceive. 2. To cause to be surprised, especially unpleasantly so.

cur-vet (kûr-vět') n. A light leap by a horse, in which both hind legs leave the ground just before the forelegs are set down. — v. cur-vet-ted or cur-vet-ed, cur-vet-ting or cur-vet-ing, cur-vets or cur-vets. — v. intr. 1. To leap in a curvet. 2. To prance; frolic. — v. tr. To cause to leap in a curvet. [Italian corvetta, from Old Italian, from Old French courbette, from courber, to curve, from Latin curvāre, from curvus, curved. See sker-2 in Appendix.]

cur-vi-lin-e-ar (kûr'və-līn'ē-ər) also cur-vi-lin-e-al (-əl) adj. Formed, bounded, or characterized by curved lines. [Latin curvus, curved; see CURVE + LINEAR.] — cur'vi-lin'e-ar'i-ty (-ē-ăr'ī-tē) n. — cur'vi-lin'e-ar-ly adv.

Cur-wen (kûr'wən), John. 1816-1880. British music educator and publisher who founded the tonic sol-fa system of music teaching.

Cur-zon (kûr'zən), George Nathaniel First Marquis Curzon of Kedleston. 1859-1925. British politician who served as viceroy and governor-general of India (1898-1905) and as secretary of state for foreign affairs (1919-1924).

Cus-co (kōō'skō) See Cuzco.

CUS-CUS (küs'kəs) n. Any of several nocturnal marsupials of the genus Phalanger of New Guinea, Australia, and adjacent islands, having large eyes, small ears, a pointed snout, and a long, prehensile tail. [New Latin, probably from a New Guinean word.]

cu-sec (kyōō'sĕk') n. A volumetric unit for measuring the flow of liquids, equal to one cubic foot per second. [CU(BIC) + SEC(OND)]¹.]

Cush¹ (kūsh, kōōsh) In the Old Testament, the oldest son of Ham.

Cush² also Kush (kūsh, kōōsh) 1. An ancient region of northeast Africa where the biblical descendants of Cush settled. It is often identified with Ethiopia.

2. An ancient kingdom of Nubia in northern Sudan. It flourished from the 11th century B.C. to the 4th century A.D., when its capital fell to the Ethiopians.

cu-shaw (kə-shō', kōō'shō') n. Any of several kinds of winter squash (Cucurbita mixta) having a curved neck. [Origin unknown.]

Cush-ing (kōōsh'ing), Caleb. 1800-1879. American lawyer, politician, and diplomat who as special envoy to China (1843-1845) negotiated a treaty that opened five Chinese ports to American trade.

Cush-ing (kōōsh'ing), Harvey Williams. 1869-1939. American neurologist noted for his study of the brain and the pituitary gland.

Cush-ing (kōōsh'ing), William. 1732-1810. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1789-1810).

Cush-ing's disease (kōōsh'ingz dī-zēz') n. The form of Cushing's syndrome involving the pituitary gland. [After Harvey Williams CUSHING.]

Cushing's syndrome (kōōsh'ingz sīn'drōm') n. A syndrome caused by an increased production of ACTH from a tumor of the adrenal cortex or of the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland, or by excessive intake of glucocorticoids. It is characterized by obesity and weakening of the muscles. [After Harvey Williams CUSHING.]

cush-ion (kōōsh'ən) n. 1. A pad or pillow with a soft filling, used for resting, reclining, or kneeling. 2. Something resilient used as a rest, support, or shock absorber. 3. A mat placed or attached beneath carpeting to provide softness and increase durability. 4. A padlike body part. 5. Games. The rim bordering the playing surface of a billiard table. 6. A pillow used in lacemaking. 7. Something that mitigates or relieves an adverse effect: extra funds serving as a cushion against future inflation. — v. tr. cush-ioned, cush-ion-ing, cush-ions. 1. To provide with a cushion: cushion a bench. 2. To place or seat on a cushion. 3. To cover or hide (something) with or as if with a cushion. 4. To protect from impacts or other disturbing effects: an automobile suspension that cushions the ride. 5. To mitigate the effects of; absorb the shock of: cushion a blow. [Middle English cushin, from Old French coussin, from Vulgar Latin coxinum*, from Latin coxa, hip.] —cush-ion-y adj.

Cush-it-ic (kōō-shīt'ik) n. A branch of the Afro-Asiatic language family spoken in Somalia, Ethiopia, and northern Kenya and including Beja, Orono, and Somali.

—Cush-it'ic adj.

Cush·man (kōōsh'mən), Charlotte Saunders. 1816-1876. American actress whose many acclaimed roles included Lady Macbeth and Hamlet.

cush·y (kōōsh'ē) adj. cush·i·er, cush·i·est. Informal. Making few demands; comfortable: a cushy job. [Origin unknown.] —cush'i·ly adv. —cush'i·ness n.

WORD HISTORY: Since cushy has such an informal, breezy, American ring, it is difficult to believe that it is an import, as some etymologists claim. Members of the British army in India are supposed to have picked up the Anglo-Indian version of the Hindi word khūush, meaning “pleasant,” to which the suffix -y, as in empty and sexy, was added, thus forming a new English word. Cushy, however, is actually first recorded in a letter from the European battlefield during World War I. This fact, in conjunction with our inability to find an Anglo-Indian source, casts some doubt on the Hindi or Anglo-Indian origin of cushy. Two other possibilities are that cushy is a shortening of cushion with the -y suffix or that it is a borrowing of French couchée, “lying down; a bed.”

cusk (kŭsk) n. pl. cusk or cusks. 1. A food fish (Brosme brosme) of North Atlantic coastal waters that is related to the cod. 2. See burbot. [Probably alteration of tusk, a kind of codfish, perhaps from Norwegian dialectal tusk, variant of Norwegian torsk, tosk, from Old Norse thorskr. See ters- in Appendix.]

cusk eel (kŭsk ēl) n. Any of several bottom-dwelling, eellike, chiefly marine fishes of the family Ophidiidae.

cus·p (kŭsp) n. 1. A point or pointed end. 2. Anatomy. a. A pointed or rounded projection on the chewing surface of a tooth. b. A triangular fold or flap of a heart valve. 3. Mathematics. A point at which a curve crosses itself and at which the two tangents to the curve coincide. 4. Architecture. The point of intersection of two ornamental arcs or curves, such as the inner points of a trefoil.

5. Astronomy. Either point of a crescent moon. 6. A transitional point or time, as between two astrological signs. [Latin cuspis, point.]

cus·pate (kŭs'pāt') also cus·pat·ed (-pā'tīd) adj. 1. Having a cusp. 2. Shaped like a cusp.

cus·pid (kŭs'pid) n. See canine (n., sense 2). [From Latin cuspis, cuspid-, point.]

cus·pi·date (kŭs'pī-dāt') also cus·pi·dat·ed (-dā'tīd) adj. 1. Having a cusp. 2. Biology. Terminating in or tipped with a sharp, firm point: a cuspidate leaf apex. [Latin cuspidātus, past participle of cuspidāre, to make pointed, from cuspis, cuspid-, point.]

cus·pi·da·tion (kŭs'pī-dā'shən) n. Architecture. Decoration with cusps.

cus-pi-dor (kŭs'pī-dôr', -dôr') n. A spittoon. [Portuguese, from cuspir, to spit, from Latin cōnspuere, to spit upon : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + spuere, to spit.]

cuss (kŭs) Informal. v. intr. tr. cussed, cuss-ing, cuss-es. To curse or curse at.
— n. 1. A curse. 2. An odd or perverse creature. [Alteration of CURSE.]

cuss-ed (kŭs'ĭd) adj. Informal. 1. Perverse; stubborn. 2. Cursed. —cuss-ed-ly adv. —cuss'ed-ness n.

cus-tard (kŭs'tərd) n. A dish consisting of milk, eggs, flavoring, and sometimes sugar, boiled or baked until set. [Middle English crustade, custard, a pie with a crust, probably from Old Provençal croustado. See CROUSTADE.] —cus'tard-y adj.

custard apple (kŭs'tərd əp'əl) n. 1. Any of several tropical American trees of the genus Annona, especially A. reticulata, having large, nearly heart-shaped edible fruits with white to yellowish flesh. 2. The fruit of any of these trees. Also called bullock's heart [So called because its pulp resembles custard.]

Cus-ter (kŭs'tər), George Armstrong. 1839-1876. American soldier. A brigadier general at age 23, he was killed and his troops annihilated by Sioux and Cheyenne warriors led by Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse at Little Bighorn.

cus-to-di-al (kŭ-stō'dē-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the work of guarding or maintaining: the custodial duties of a security guard. 2. a. Having custody, especially of a child: "children whose custodial parent has remarried" (American Demographics). b. Of or relating to child custody: custodial households. 3. Marked by care and supervision rather than efforts to cure: custodial treatment of terminal patients.

cus-to-di-an (kŭ-stō'dē-ən) n. 1. One that has charge of something; a caretaker: the custodian of a minor child's estate; the custodian of an absentee landlord's property. 2. A janitor: worked nights as custodian of a high school. —cus-to/di-an-ship' n.

cus-to-dy (kŭs'tə-dē) n. pl. cus-to-dies. 1. The act or right of guarding, especially such a right granted by a court: an adult who was given custody of the child. 2. Care, supervision, and control exerted by one in charge. See Synonyms at care. 3. The state of being detained or held under guard, especially by the police: took the robbery suspect into custody. [Middle English custodie, from Latin custō-dia, from custōs, custōd-, guard.]

cus-tom (kŭs'təm) n. 1. A practice followed by people of a particular group or region. 2. A habitual practice of a person: my custom of reading a little before sleep. See Synonyms at habit. 3. Law. A common tradition or usage so long established that it has the force or validity of law. 4. a. Habitual patronage, as of a store. b. Habitual customers; patrons. 5. customs. (used with a sing. verb). a. A duty or tax imposed on imported and, less commonly, exported goods. b. The governmental agency authorized to collect these duties. c. The procedure for inspecting goods and baggage entering a country. 6. Tribute, service, or rent paid by a feudal tenant to a lord. — adj. 1. Made to order. 2. Specializing in the making or selling of made-to-order goods: a custom tailor. [Middle English custume, from Old French costume, from Latin cōnsuētūdō, cōnsuētūdin-, from cōnsuētus, past participle of cōnsuēscere, to accustom : com-, intensive pref.; see COM- + suēscere, to become accustomed; see s(w)e- in Appendix.]

cus·tom·a·ble (kūs'tə-mə-bəl) adj. Subject to tariffs: customable imports.

cus·tom·ar·y (kūs'tə-mēr'ē) adj. 1. Commonly practiced, used, or encountered; usual. See Synonyms at usual. 2. Based on custom or tradition rather than written law or contract. —cus'tom·ar'i·ly (-mâr'ə-lē) adv. —cus'tom·ar'i·ness n.

cus·tom·built (kūs'təm-bīlt') adj. Built according to the specifications of the buyer.

cus·tom·er (kūs'tə-mər) n. 1. One that buys goods or services. 2. Informal.

An individual with whom one must deal: a tough customer.

cus·tom·house (kūs'təm-hous') also cus·toms·house (-təmz-) n. Abbr. c.h., C.H. A governmental building or office where customs are collected and ships are cleared for entering or leaving the country.

cus·tom·ize (kūs'tə-mīz') v. tr. cus·tom·ized, cus·tom·iz·ing, cus·tom·iz·es. To make or alter to individual or personal specifications: customize a van. —cus'tom·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n. —cus'tom·iz'er n.

cus·tom·made (kūs'təm-mād') adj. Made according to the specifications of an individual purchaser.

cus·toms·house (kūs'təmz-hous') n. Variant of customhouse.

customs union (kūs'təmz yōn'yən) n. An international association organized to eliminate customs restrictions on goods exchanged between member nations and to establish a uniform tariff policy toward nonmember nations.

cut (kūt) v. cut, cut·ting, cuts. — v. tr. 1. To penetrate with a sharp edge; strike a narrow opening in. 2. To separate into parts with or as if with a sharp-edged instrument; sever: cut cloth with scissors. 3. To sever the edges or ends of; shorten: cut one's hair. 4. To reap; harvest: cut grain. 5. To fell by sawing; hew. 6. To have (a new tooth) grow through the gums. 7. To form or shape by severing or incising: a doll that was cut from paper. 8. a. To form by penetrating, probing, or digging: cut a trench. b. To exhibit the appearance or give the impression of: cuts a fine figure on the dance floor. 9. To separate from a main body; detach: cut a limb from a tree. 10. To discharge from a group or number: had to cut three players from the team. 11. To pass through or across; cross: a sailboat cutting the water. 12. Games. To divide (a deck of cards) into two parts, as in completing a shuffle or in exposing a card at random. 13. To reduce the size, extent, or duration of; curtail or shorten: cut a payroll; cut a budget; cut the cooking time in half. 14. To lessen the strength of; dilute: cut whiskey with distilled water. 15. To dissolve by breaking down the fat of: Soap cuts grease. 16. To injure the feelings of; hurt keenly. 17. To refuse to speak to or recognize; snub: She cut me dead at the party. 18. To fail to attend purposely: cut a class.

19. Informal. To cease; stop: cut the noise; cut an engine. 20. Sports. To strike (a ball) so that it spins in a reverse direction. 21. a. To perform: cut a caper. b. To make out and issue: cut a check to cover travel expenses. 22. Slang. To be able to manage; handle successfully: He couldn't cut the long hours anymore. 23. To stop filming (a movie scene). 24. a. To record a performance on (a phonograph record or other medium). b. To make a recording of. 25. To edit (film or recording tape). — v. intr. 1. To make an incision or a separation: Cut along the dotted line. 2. To allow incision or severing: Butter cuts easily. 3. To function as a sharp-edged instrument. 4. To grow through the gums. Used of teeth. 5. To penetrate injuriously. 6. To change direction abruptly: Cut to the left at the next intersection. 7. To go directly and often hastily: cut across a field. 8. Games. To divide a pack of cards into two parts, especially in order to make a chance decision or selection. 9. To make an abrupt change of image or sound, as in filming: cut from one shot to another. — n. 1. The act of cutting. 2. The result of cutting, especially an opening or wound made by a sharp edge. 3. A part that has been cut from a main body: a cut of beef; a cut of cloth. 4. A passage made by digging or probing. 5. The elimination or removal of a part: a cut in a speech. 6. A reduction: a cut in salary. 7. The style in which a garment is cut: a suit of traditional cut. 8. Informal. A portion of profits or earnings; a share. 9. A wounding remark; an insult. 10. An unexcused absence, as from school or a class. 11. A step in a scale of value or quality; degree: a cut above the average. 12. Printing. a. An engraved block or plate. b. A print made from such a block. 13. Sports. A stroke that causes a ball to spin in a reverse direction. 14. Baseball. A swing of a bat. 15. Games. The act of dividing a deck of cards into two parts, as before dealing. 16. One of the objects used in drawing lots. 17. An abrupt change of image or sound, as between shots in a film. 18. A movie at a given stage in its editing: approved the final cut for distribution. 19. A single selection of music from a recording, especially a phonograph recording. — phrasal verbs. cut back. 1. To shorten by cutting; prune. 2. To reduce or decrease: cut back production.

cut down. 3. To kill or strike down. 4. To alter by removing extra or additional fittings: cut down a car for racing. 5. To reduce the amount taken or used: cutting down on one's intake of rich foods. cut in. 6. To move into a line of people or things out of turn. 7. To interrupt: During the debate my opponent kept cutting in. 8. To interrupt a dancing couple in order to dance with one of them. 9. To connect or become connected into an electrical circuit. 10. To mix in with or as if with cutting motions: Measure out the flour and use a pair of knives to cut the shortening in. 11. To include, especially among those profiting. cut off. 12. To separate from others; isolate. 13. To stop suddenly; discontinue. 14. To shut off;

bar. 15. To interrupt the course or passage of: The infielder cut off the throw to the plate. 16. To interrupt or break the line of communication of: The telephone operator cut us off. 17. To disinherit: cut their heirs off without a cent. cut out. 18. To remove by or as if by cutting. 19. To form or shape by or as if by cutting. 20. To take the place of; supplant. 21. To suit or fit by nature: I'm not cut out to be a hero. 22. To assign beforehand or by necessity; predetermine: We've got our work cut out for us. 23. To deprive: felt cut out of all the fun. 24. To stop; cease. 25. Informal. To depart hastily. 26. Chiefly Southern U.S. To turn off (a light or television set). cut up. Informal. 27. To behave in a playful, comic, or boisterous way; clown. 28. To criticize severely. —idioms. cut a fat hog. Texas. To take on more than one is able to accomplish: "Boy, has he cut a fat hog, as they say down home" (Hughes Rudd). cut corners. To do something in the easiest or most inexpensive way. cut down to size. To deflate the self-importance of. cut loose. To speak or act without restraint: cut loose with a string of curses. cut no ice. To make no effect or impression: Your objections will cut no ice with management. cut (one's) losses. To withdraw from a losing situation. cut (one's) teeth on. To learn or do as a beginner or at the start of one's career. cut short. To stop before the end; abbreviate. [Middle English cutten.] —cut'ta-ble adj.

cut-and-dried (küt'n-drīd') also cut-and-dry (-drī') adj. 1. Prepared and arranged in advance; settled. 2. Ordinary; routine: cut-and-dried dialogue.

cu-ta-ne-ous (kyōō-tā'nē-əs) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting the skin. [From New Latin cutāneus, back-formation from Late Latin intercutāneus, and subcutāneus both from Latin cutis, skin. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

—cu-ta'ne-ous-ly adv.

cut-a-way (küt'ə-wā') n. 1. A man's formal daytime coat, with front edges sloping diagonally from the waist and forming tails at the back. 2. A brief shot that interrupts the visual continuity of the main action of a film, often to depict related matter or supposedly concurrent action. 3. A model or diagram of an object with part of the outer layer removed so as to reveal the interior. 4. Sports. A back dive in which the diver turns in the air so as to face the board before entering the water.

cut-back (küt'bāk') n. 1. A decrease; a curtailment: "The political effects of food cutbacks could be devastating" (New York Times). 2. A sharp reversal of direction, as of a ball carrier in football.

cutch (kūch) n. See catechu (n., sense 1). [Malay kachu, of Dravidian origin.]

cute (kyōōt) adj. cut-er, cut-est. 1. Delightfully pretty or dainty. 2. Obviously contrived to charm; precious: "[He] mugs so ferociously he kills the humor—it's an insufferably cute performance" (David Ansen). 3. Shrewd; clever. [Short for ACUTE.] —cute'ly adv. —cute'ness n.

WORD HISTORY: Cute is a good example of how a shortened form of a word can take on a life of its own, developing a sense that dissociates it from the longer word from which it was derived. Cute was originally a shortened form of acute in the sense “keenly perceptive or discerning, shrewd.” In this sense cute is first recorded in a dictionary published in 1731. Probably cute came to be used as a term of approbation for things demonstrating acuteness, and so it went on to develop its own sense of “attractive, fetching,” first recorded with reference to “gals” in 1838.

cu·tes (kyōō'tēz) n. Anatomy. A plural of cutis.

cute·sy (kyōōt'sē) adj. cute·si·er, cute·si·est. Informal. Deliberately or affectedly cute; precious: a cutesy boutique for children's fashions. —cute/si·ness n.

cut·ey (kyōō'tē) n. Informal. Variant of cutie.

cut flower (küt flou'ər) n. Any of various showy flowers used in fresh arrangements.

cut glass (küt gläs) n. Glassware shaped or decorated by cutting instruments or abrasive wheels. —cut'/glass' (küt'gläs') adj.

cut·grass also cut grass (küt'gräs') n. 1. Any of several grasses of the genus Leersia, found mostly along marshes, ponds, and streams and having leaves with very rough margins. 2. Any of several other grasses with rough margins.

cu·ti·cle (kyōō'tī-kəl) n. 1. The outermost layer of the skin of vertebrates; epidermis. 2. The strip of hardened skin at the base and sides of a fingernail or toenail. 3. Dead or cornified epidermis. 4. Zoology. The noncellular, hardened or membranous protective covering of many invertebrates, such as the transparent membrane that covers annelids. 5. Botany. The layer of cutin covering the epidermis of the aerial parts of plants. [Latin cutīcula, diminutive of cutis, skin. See (s)keu- in Appendix.] —cu·tic'u·lar (-tīk'yə-lər) adj.

cut·ie also cut·ey (kyōō'tē) n. pl. cut·ies also cut·eys. Informal. A cute person.

cu·tin (kyōōt'n) n. Botany. A waxlike, water-repellent material present in the walls of some plant cells and forming the cuticle, which covers the epidermis.

[Latin cutis, skin; see (s)keu- in Appendix + -IN.]

cu·tin·ize (kyōōt'n-īz') v. cu·tin·ized, cu·tin·iz·ing, cu·tin·iz·es. — v. tr.

To coat or impregnate with cutin. — v. intr. To become coated or impregnated with cutin. —cu'tin·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

cu·tis (kyōō'tīs) n. pl. cu·tes (-tēz) or cu·tis·es. Anatomy. See dermis. [Latin, skin. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

cut·lass also cut·las (küt'ləs) n. 1. A short heavy sword with a curved single-edged blade, once used as a weapon by sailors. 2. Caribbean. A machete. [French coutelas, from Old French coutelasse, probably augmentative of coutel, knife, from Latin cultellus, diminutive of culter, knife. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

cutlass fish (küt'ləs fīsh) n. Any of several marine fishes of the genus Trichiurus, having a long, ribbonlike body and a pointed tail.

cut-ler (küt'lər) n. One who makes, repairs, or sells knives or other cutting instruments. [Middle English cuteler, from Old French coutelier, from coutel, knife. See CUTLASS.]

Cut-ler (küt'lər), Manasseh. 1742-1823. American cleric, botanist, and pioneer noted for his study of New England flora and as a central figure in the settlement of the Ohio River valley.

Cutler Ridge (küt'lər rīj) A community of extreme southeast Florida on Biscayne Bay south-southwest of Miami. Population, 21,268.

cut-ler-y (küt'lə-rē) n. 1. Cutting instruments and tools. 2. Utensils such as knives, forks, and spoons used as tableware. 3. The occupation of a cutler. [Middle English cutellerie, from Old French coutellerie, from coutel, knife. See CUTLASS.]

cut-let (küt'līt) n. 1. A thin slice of meat, usually veal or lamb, cut from the leg or ribs. 2. A patty of chopped meat or fish, usually coated with bread crumbs and fried; a flat croquette. [French côtelette, from Old French costelette, diminutive of coste, rib, from Latin costa. See kost- in Appendix.]

cut-off also cut-off (küt'ɔf', -ɔf') n. 1. A designated limit or point of termination. 2. A shortcut or bypass. 3. A new channel cut by a river across the neck of an oxbow. 4. The act or an instance of cutting off: a cutoff of funds; an electricity cutoff. 5. Baseball. The interception by an infielder of a throw to home plate from the outfield. 6. A device that cuts off a flow of fluid. 7. Music. A conductor's signal indicating a stop or break in playing or singing. 8. cutoffs. Pants, such as blue jeans, made into shorts by cutting off part of the legs. — adj.

1. Designating a limit or point of termination: a cutoff date for applications.

2. Baseball. Serving to intercept or relay a throw to home plate from the outfield: the cutoff man.

cut-out (küt'out') n. 1. Something cut out or intended to be cut out from something else. 2. Electricity. A device that interrupts, bypasses, or disconnects a circuit or circuit element. 3. A recording that is no longer current and whose remaining stock is sold at a discounted price. 4. Slang. A mutually trusted intermediary who handles communications between espionage agents.

cut-o-ver (küt'ɔ'vər) adj. Cleared of trees, especially those that bear valuable lumber.

cut-purse (küt'pûrs') n. A pickpocket.

cut-rate (küt'rāt') adj. Sold or on sale at a reduced price: cut-rate goods.

Cut-tack (küt'ək) A city of eastern India southwest of Calcutta. Founded in the tenth century, it was long noted for gold and silver filigree work. Population, 269,950.

cut-ter (kût'ər) n. 1. One that cuts, especially in tailoring. 2. A device or machine that cuts. 3. Nautical. a. A single-masted, fore-and-aft-rigged sailing vessel with two or more headsails and a mast set somewhat farther aft than that of a sloop. b. A ship's boat, powered by a motor or oars and used for transporting stores or passengers. 4. A small, lightly armed boat used by the Coast Guard.

5. A small sleigh, usually seating one person and drawn by a single horse.

cut-throat (küt'thrōt') n. 1. A murderer, especially one who cuts throats.

2. An unprincipled, ruthless person. 3. A cutthroat trout. — adj. 1. Cruel; murderous. 2. Relentless or merciless in competition: a cutthroat business.

3. Sports & Games. Being a form of a game in which each of three or more players acts and scores individually: cutthroat handball; cutthroat bridge.

cutthroat trout (küt'thrōt' trout) n. A large trout (Salmo clarkii) found in western North American waters that resembles the rainbow trout and is distinguished by red or orange markings on the lower jaw.

cut time (küt tīm) n. Music. Duple or quadruple meter with the half note being the unit of time.

cut-ting (küt'ing) adj. 1. Capable of or designed for incising, shearing, or severing: a cutting tool. 2. Sharply penetrating; piercing: a cutting wind. 3. Injuring or capable of injuring the feelings of others: a cutting remark. See Synonyms at incisive. — n. 1. A part cut off from a main body. 2. A part, such as a stem, leaf, or root, removed from a plant to propagate a new plant, as through rooting or grafting. 3. An excavation made through high ground in a construction project. 4. The editing of film or recording tape. 5. Chiefly British. A clipping, as from a newspaper. — cut'ting-ly adv.

cutting edge (küt'ing ěj) n. 1. An effective quality or element. 2. The position of greatest advancement or importance; the forefront: "California is on the cutting edge of trends that spread nationwide" (Carl Ingram).

cut-tle-bone (küt'l-bōn') n. The calcareous internal shell of a cuttlefish, used as a dietary supplement for cage birds or ground into powder for use as a polishing agent. [Middle English : Middle English codel, cutil, cuttlefish; see CUTTLEFISH + BONE.]

cut-tle-fish (küt'l-fīsh') n. pl. cuttlefish or cut-tle-fish-es. Any of various squidlike cephalopod marine mollusks of the genus Sepia that have ten arms and a calcareous internal shell and eject a dark, inky fluid when in danger. [Probably Middle English codel, cutil, cuttlefish (from Old English cudele) + FISH.]

cut-up (küt'ŭp') n. Informal. A mischievous person; a prankster.

cut-wa-ter (küt'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) n. 1. Nautical. The forward part of a ship's prow. 2. The wedge-shaped end of a bridge pier, designed to divide the current and break up ice floes.

cut-work (küt'wûrk') n. Openwork embroidery in which the ground fabric is cut away from the design.

cut-worm (küt'wûrm') n. The larva of various moths of the family Noctuidae that feed on and destroy a wide variety of plants. [So called because many species eat through stems of plants.]

cu·vette (kyōō'vēt) n. A small, transparent, often tubular laboratory vessel.

[French, diminutive of cuve, tub, from Latin cūpa.]

Cu·vier (kyōō'vē-ā', kōōv-yā', kü-vyā'), Baron Georges Léopold Chrétien Frédéric Dagobert. 1769-1832. French naturalist who is considered the founder of comparative anatomy and vertebrate paleontology.

Cux·ha·ven (kōōks-hä'fən) A city of northwest Germany at the mouth of the Elbe River. It is a North Sea fishing port and a summer resort. Population 56,977.

Cuy·a·ho·ga Falls (kī'ə-hō'gə fōlz, kə-hō'-, -hō'-, -hä'-) A city of northeast Ohio on the Cuyahoga River, about 129 km (80 mi) long. The city is a residential and industrial suburb of Akron. Population, 48,950.

Cuz·co also Cus·co (kōō'skō) A city of southern Peru in the Andes east-southeast of Lima. It was built on the plundered site of an ancient city supposedly founded in the 11th century by Manco Capac, the first ruler of the Incas. As the capital of a vast and prosperous empire, it was known as "the City of the Sun." Population, 89,563.

CV abbr. 1. Cardiovascular. 2. Curriculum vitae.

cv. abbr. Cultivar.

C.V. abbr. Cape Verde.

CVA abbr. Cerebrovascular accident.

cvt. abbr. Convertible.

cw or CW abbr. Continuous wave.

cw. abbr. Clockwise.

cwm (kōōm) n. See cirque. [Welsh, valley.]

CWO abbr. Chief warrant officer.

c.w.o. abbr. Cash with order.

cwt. or cwt abbr. Hundredweight.

CY abbr. Calendar year.

-cy suff. 1. State; condition; quality: bankruptcy. 2. Rank; office: baronetcy.

[Middle English -cie, from Old French -cie, -tie, from Latin -cia, -tia, and Greek -kia, -keia, -tia, -teia.]

cy·an (sī'än', -ən) n. Color. A greenish blue, considered a primary color in printing and photography. [Greek kuanos, dark blue.]

cyan- pref. Variant of cyano-.

cy·an·am·ide also cy·an·am·id (sī-än'ə-mīd) n. 1. A caustic acidic crystalline compound, NHCNH, prepared by treating calcium cyanamide with sulfuric acid. 2. Calcium cyanamide.

cy·a·nate (sī'ə-nāt', -nət) n. A salt or ester of cyanic acid.

cy·an·ic (sī-än'īk) adj. 1. Relating to or containing cyanogen. 2. Color. Of a blue or bluish hue.

cyanic acid (sī-än'īk əs'īd) n. A poisonous, unstable, highly volatile organic acid, HOCN, used to prepare cyanates.

cy·a·nide (sī'ə-nīd') n. also cy·a·nid (-nīd) Any of various salts or esters of hydrogen cyanide containing a CN group, especially the extremely poisonous compounds potassium cyanide and sodium cyanide. — v. tr. cy·a·nid·ed, cy·a·nid·ing, cy·a·nides. 1. To treat (a metal surface) with cyanide to produce a hard surface. 2. To treat (an ore) with cyanide to extract gold or silver.

cyanide process (sī'ə-nīd' prōs'ēs') n. A process of extracting gold or silver from ores by treating them with a solution of sodium cyanide or calcium cyanide.

cy·a·nine (sī'ə-nēn', -nīn) n. Any of various blue dyes, used to sensitize photographic emulsions to a greater range of light.

cy·a·nite (sī'ə-nīt') n. Variant of kyanite.

cyano- or cyan- pref. 1. Blue: cyanotype. 2. a. Cyanogen: cyanic. b. Cyanide: cyanogenesis. [Greek kuanos-, from kuanos, dark blue.]

cy·a·no·ac·ry·late (sī'ə-nō-āk'rə-lāt', sī-ăn'ō-) n. An adhesive substance with an acrylate base that is used in industry and medicine.

cy·a·no·bac·te·ri·um (sī'ə-nō-bāk-tīr'ē-əm, sī-ăn'ō-) n. A photosynthetic bacterium of the class Coccogoneae or Hormogoneae, generally blue-green in color and in some species capable of nitrogen fixation. Cyanobacteria were once thought to be algae. Also called blue-green alga cy·a·no·co·bal·a·min (sī'ə-nō'kō-bāl'ə-mīn, sī-ăn'ō-) n. See vitamin B₁₂ cy·an·o·gen (sī-ăn'ə-jən) n. 1. A colorless, flammable, pungent, highly poisonous gas, C₂N₂, used as a rocket propellant, an insecticide, and a chemical weapon. 2. A univalent radical, CN, found in simple and complex cyanide compounds.

cy·a·no·gen·e·sis (sī'ə-nō-jěn'ī-sīs, sī-ăn'ō-) n. Generation of cyanide.

—cy'a·no·ge·net'ic (-jə-nēt'ik), cy'a·no·gen'ic (-jěn'ik) adj.

cy·a·no·hy·drin (sī'ə-nō-hī'drīn, sī-ăn'ō-) n. Any of several compounds that contain both the CN and OH radicals. [CYANO- + HYDR(O)- + -IN.]

cy·a·nosed (sī'ə-nōzd', -nōsd') adj. Afflicted with cyanosis. [From CYANOSIS.]

cy·a·no·sis (sī'ə-nō'sīs) n. A bluish discoloration of the skin and mucous membranes resulting from inadequate oxygenation of the blood. —cy'a·not'ic (-nōt'ik) adj.

cy·an·o·type (sī-ăn'ə-tīp') n. See blueprint (n., sense 1).

cy·a·nu·ric acid (sī'ə-nōōr'ik əs'īd, -nyōōr'-) n. A white crystalline acid, C₃N₃(OH)₃, that decomposes with heating to form cyanic acid.

cy·ath·i·um (sī-ăth'ē-əm) n. An inflorescence consisting of a cuplike cluster of modified leaves enclosing a female flower and several male flowers, as in the poinsettia. [New Latin, from kuathion, diminutive of kuathos, ladle.]

Cyb·e·le (sīb'ə-lē) n. Greek Mythology. The Phrygian goddess of nature of ancient Asia Minor.

cy·ber·nate (sī'bər-nāt') v. cy·ber·nat·ed, cy·ber·nat·ing, cy·ber·nates.

— v. tr. To control (an industrial process) by computer. [CYBER(ETICS) + -ATE¹.]

—cy'ber·na'tion n.

cy·ber·net·ics (sī'bər-nēt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The theoretical study of communication and control processes in biological, mechanical, and electronic systems, especially the comparison of these processes in biological and artificial systems. [From Greek kubernētēs, governor, from kubernan, to govern.]

—cy'ber·net'ic adj. —cy'ber·net'i·cal·ly adv. —cy'ber·net'i·cist, cy'ber·ne·ti'cian (-nĭ-tĭsh'ən) n.

cy·ber·punk (sī'bər-pŭŋk') n. Fast-paced science fiction involving futuristic computer-based societies. [CYBER(NETICS) + PUNK.] —cy'ber·punk' adj.

cy·ber·space (sī'bər-spās') n. The continuum of computer networks and bulletin board systems in which on-line communication takes place. [CYBER(NETICS) + SPACE.]

cy·borg (sī'bōrg') n. A human being who has certain physiological processes aided or controlled by mechanical or electronic devices. [CYB(ERNETIC) + ORG(ANISM).]

cy·cad (sī'kād', -kəd) n. Any of various palmlike gymnospermous cone-bearing evergreen plants of the division Cycadophyta, native to warm regions and having large pinnately compound leaves. [New Latin Cycas, Cycad-, genus name, from Greek kukas, erroneous reading of koikas, accusative pl. of koix, a kind of palm tree, perhaps of Egyptian origin.]

cycl- pref. Variant of cyclo-.

Cyc·la·des (sĭk'lə-dēz') also Ki·klá·dhes (kē-klä'thēs) A group of islands of southeast Greece in the southern Aegean Sea. The name was used in ancient times for the islands surrounding the small island of Delos.

cy·cla·mate (sī'klə-māt', sĭk'lə-) n. A salt of cyclamic acid formerly used as an artificial sweetener, especially: a. Sodium cyclamate. b. Calcium cyclamate. [CYCLAM(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

cy·cla·men (sī'klə-mən, sĭk'lə-) n. Any of various plants of the genus Cyclamen, especially a Mediterranean species (C. persicum) widely cultivated as a houseplant, having decorative leaves and showy, variously colored flowers with reflexed petals. [New Latin, genus name, from Latin cyclamīnos, from Greek kuklamīnos, probably from kuklos, circle, wheel (perhaps from its bulbous roots). See CYCLE.]

cyc·la·mic acid (sĭk'lə-mĭk' əs'ĭd, sī'klə-) n. A crystalline acid, C₆H₁₃NO₃S, used to produce cyclamates. [Short for cycl(ohexylsulf)amic acid.]

cy·clase (sī'klās', -klāz') n. An enzyme that acts as a catalyst in the cyclization of a compound. [CYCL(IC) + -ASE.]

cy·cle (sī'kəl) n. 1. An interval of time during which a characteristic, often regularly repeated event or sequence of events occurs: Sunspots increase and decrease in intensity in an 11-year cycle. 2. a. A single complete execution of a periodically repeated phenomenon: A year constitutes a cycle of the seasons. b. A periodically repeated sequence of events: the cycle of birth, growth, and death; a cycle of reprisal and retaliation. 3. The orbit of a celestial body. 4. A long period of time; an age. 5. a. The aggregate of traditional poems or stories organized around a central theme or hero: the Arthurian cycle. b. A series of poems or songs on the same theme: Schubert's song cycles. 6. A bicycle, motorcycle, or similar vehicle.

7. Botany. A circular or whorled arrangement of flower parts such as those of petals or sepals. — v. cy-cled, cy-cling, cy-cles. — v. intr. 1. To occur in or pass through a cycle. 2. To move in or as if in a cycle. 3. To ride a bicycle, motorcycle, or similar vehicle. — v. tr. To use in or put through a cycle: cycled the heavily soiled laundry twice; cycling the recruits through eight weeks of basic training. [Middle English, from Late Latin cyclus, from Greek kuklos, circle. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.] — cy'cler n.

cy-clic (sī'klīk, sīk'lik) or cy-cli-cal (sī'klī-kəl, sīk'li-kəl) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or characterized by cycles: a cyclic pattern of weather changes. b. Recurring or moving in cycles: cyclical history. 2. Chemistry. Of or relating to compounds having atoms arranged in a ring or closed-chain structure. 3. Botany. a. Having parts arranged in a whorl. b. Forming a whorl. — cy'cli-cal/i-ty (sīk'lə-kāl'i-tē, sī'klə-) n. — cy'cli-cal-ly adv.

cyclic AMP (sī'klīk ā'em-pē') n. A cyclic nucleotide of adenosine that acts at the cellular level as a regulator of various metabolic processes.

cyclic GMP (sī'klīk jē'em-pē') n. A cyclic nucleotide of guanosine thought to act at the cellular level as a regulator of various metabolic processes, possibly as an antagonist to cyclic AMP.

cy-clist (sī'klīst) n. One who rides or races a bicycle, motorcycle, or similar vehicle.

cy-cli-za-tion (sī'klī-zā'shən, sīk'li-) n. The formation of one or more rings in a hydrocarbon.

cyclo- or cycl- pref. 1. Circle; cycle: cyclorama. 2. A cyclic compound: cyclohexane. [Greek kuklo-, from kuklos, circle. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

cy-clo-al-kane (sī'klō-āl'kān) n. An alicyclic hydrocarbon with a saturated ring. Also called cycloparaffin cy-clo-hex-ane (sī'klō-hĕk'sān') n. An extremely flammable, colorless, mobile liquid, C₆H₁₂, obtained from petroleum and benzene and used in the manufacture of nylon and as a solvent, a paint, and a varnish remover.

cy-clo-hex-i-mide (sī'klō-hĕk'sə-mīd', -mīd) n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₁₅H₂₃NO₄, that is used as an agricultural fungicide.

cy-cloid (sī'klōid') adj. 1. Resembling a circle. 2. Zoology. a. Thin, rounded, and smooth-edged; disklike. Used of fish scales. b. Having or composed of such scales. 3. Psychiatry. Afflicted with or relating to cyclothymia. — n.

1. Mathematics. The curve traced by a point on the circumference of a circle that rolls on a straight line. 2. Zoology. A fish having cycloid scales. [French cycloïde, from Greek kukloeidēs, circular : kuklos, circle; see k^wel-¹ in Appendix + -oidēs, -oid.] —cy·cloi'dal (-kloid'l) adj.

cy·clom·e·ter (sī-klōm'ī-tər) n. 1. An instrument that records the revolutions of a wheel to indicate distance traveled. 2. An instrument that measures circular arcs. —cy'clo·met'ric (-klə-mēt'rīk) adj. —cy·clom'e·try n.

cy·clone (sī'klōn') n. 1. Meteorology. An atmospheric system characterized by the rapid, inward circulation of air masses about a low-pressure center, usually accompanied by stormy, often destructive, weather. Cyclones circulate counterclockwise in the Northern Hemisphere and clockwise in the Southern Hemisphere. 2. A violent, rotating windstorm. 3. Any of various devices using centrifugal force to separate materials. [From Greek kuklōn, present participle of kukloun, to rotate, from kuklos, circle. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.] —cy·clon'ic (-klōn'īk), cy·clon'i·cal adj.

cyclone cellar (sī'klōn' sĕl'ər) n. An underground shelter in or adjacent to a house, used for protection from severe windstorms. Also called storm cellar cy·clo·pae·di·a (sī'klə-pē'dē-ə) n. Variant of cyclo·pedia.

cy·clo·par·af·fin (sī'klō-pär'ə-fīn) n. See cycloalkane.

cy·clo·pe·an (sī'klə-pē'ən, sī-klō'pē-) adj. 1. Often Cyclopean. Relating to or suggestive of a Cyclops: a great Cyclopean monocle. 2. Of or constituting a primitive style of masonry characterized by the use of massive stones of irregular shape and size.

cy·clo·pe·di·a also cy·clo·pae·di·a (sī'klə-pē'dē-ə) n. An encyclopedia.

[Short for ENCYCLOPEDIA.] —cy'clo·pe'dic (-dīk) adj. —cy'clo·pe'dist (-dīst) n.

cy·clo·pen·tane (sī'klə-pĕn'tān', sīk'lə-) n. A colorless, flammable, liquid cycloalkane, C₅H₁₀, derived from petroleum and used as a solvent and motor fuel.

Cy·clo·pes (sī-klō'pĕz) n. Greek Mythology. Plural of Cyclops.

cy·clo·phos·pha·mide (sī'klə-fōs'fə-mīd') n. A highly toxic, immunosuppressive, antineoplastic drug, C₇H₁₅Cl₂N₂P, used in the treatment of Hodgkin's disease, lymphoma, and certain leukemias.

cy·clo·ple·gia (sī'klə-plĕ'jə) n. Paralysis of the ciliary muscles of the eye, resulting in the loss of visual accommodation.

cy·clo·pro·pane (sī'klə-prō'pān') n. A highly flammable, explosive, colorless gas, C₃H₆, sometimes used as an anesthetic.

Cy·clops (sī'klōps) n. pl. Cy·clo·pes (sī-klō'pĕz). Greek Mythology. 1. Any of the three one-eyed Titans who forged thunderbolts for Zeus. 2. Any of a race of one-eyed giants, reputedly descended from these Titans, inhabiting the island of cy·clo·ram·a (sī'klō-rām'ə, -rā'mə) n. 1. A large composite picture placed on the interior walls of a cylindrical room so as to appear in natural perspective to a spectator standing in the center of the room. 2. A large curtain or wall, usually concave, hung or placed at the rear of a stage. [CYCL(O)- + (PAN)ORAMA.] —cy'clo·ram'ic adj.

Sicily. [Latin, from Greek Kuklōps : kuklos, circle; see CYCLE + ōps, eye; see MYOPIA.]

cy·clo·ser·ine (sī'klō-sēr'ēn) n. An antibiotic effective against a wide range of bacteria, used especially in the treatment of tuberculosis and infections of the urinary tract.

cy·clo·sis (sī-klō'sis) n. pl. cy·clo·ses (-sēz). The streaming rotary motion of protoplasm within certain cells and one-celled organisms. [New Latin, from Greek kuklōsis, a surrounding, from kukloun, to surround, from kuklos, circle. See k^wel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

cy·clo·spor·ine (sī'klō-spōr'ēn, -īn, -spōr'-) also cy·clo·spor·in (-īn) n. An immunosuppressive drug obtained from certain soil fungi, used mainly to prevent the rejection of transplanted organs.

cy·clo·stome (sī'klō-stōm') n. Any of various primitive eellike vertebrates of the class Agnatha, such as a lamprey, lacking jaws and true teeth and having a circular, sucking mouth. [From New Latin Cyclostomī, and Cyclostomata, class names CYCLO- + Greek stoma, stomat-, mouth.] —cy·clos'to·mate' (sī-klōs'tō-māt', -mīt), cy'clo·stom'a·tous (sī'klō-stōm'ə-təs, -stō'mə-) adj.

cy·clo·thyme (sī'klō-thīm') n. A person afflicted with cyclothymia.

cy·clo·thy·mi·a (sī'klō-thī'mē-ə) n. Psychiatry. A mild affective disorder characterized by alternating periods of elation and depression. —cy'clo·thy'mic (-mīk) adj. & n.

cy·clo·tron (sī'klō-trōn') n. A circular particle accelerator in which charged subatomic particles generated at a central source are accelerated spirally outward in a plane perpendicular to a fixed magnetic field by an alternating electric field. A cyclotron is capable of generating particle energies between a few million and several tens of millions of electron volts.

cy·der (sī'dər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of cider.

cyg·net (sīg'nīt) n. A young swan. [Middle English cignet, from Anglo-Norman, diminutive of Old French cygne, swan, from Latin cygnus, from Greek kuknos.]

Cyg·nus (sīg'nəs) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Lacerta and Lyra, containing the star Deneb. Also called Northern Cross, Swan. [Latin cygnus, swan. See CYGNET.]

cyl·in·der (sīl'ən-dər) n. Abbr. cyl. 1. Mathematics. a. The surface generated by a straight line intersecting and moving along a closed plane curve, the directrix, while remaining parallel to a fixed straight line that is not on or parallel to the plane of the directrix. b. The portion of such a surface bounded by two parallel planes and the regions of the planes bounded by the surface. c. A solid bounded by two parallel planes and such a surface, especially such a surface having a circle as its directrix. 2. A cylindrical container or object. 3. Engineering. a. The chamber in which a piston of a reciprocating engine moves. b. The chamber of a pump from which fluid is expelled by a piston. 4. The rotating chamber of a revolver that holds the cartridges. 5. Any of several rotating parts in a printing press, especially one that carries the paper. 6. Archaeology. A cylindrical stone or clay object with an engraved design or inscription. [Latin cylindrus, from Greek kulindros, from kulindein, to roll.]

cylinder head (sīl'ən-dər hĕd) n. The closed, often detachable, end of a cylinder in an internal-combustion engine.

cy·lin·dri·cal (sə-līn'drī-kəl) also cy·lin·dric (-drīk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the shape of a cylinder, especially of a circular cylinder. 2. Mathematics. Of or relating to the coordinate system, or to any of three coordinates in it, formed by two polar coordinates in a plane and a rectangular coordinate measured perpendicularly from the plane. —cy·lin'dri·cal'i·ty (-kāl'ī-tē) n. —cy·lin'dri·cal·ly adv.

cy·lin·droid (sīl'ən-droid') n. Mathematics. A cylindrical surface or solid all of whose sections perpendicular to the elements are elliptical. — adj. Resembling a cylinder.

cy·ma (sī'mə) n. Architecture. A molding for a cornice, having a partly concave and partly convex curve in profile, used especially in classical architecture. Also called cymatium [Greek kuma, wave, cyma, from kuein, to swell. See keuə- in Appendix.]

cy·ma·tium (sī-mā'shəm, -shĕ-əm) n. pl. cy·ma·tia (-shə, -shĕ-ə). Architecture. 1. See cyma. 2. The topmost molding of a classical cornice. [Latin, from Greek kumation, diminutive of kuma, cyma. See CYMA.]

cym·bal (sīm'bəl) n. Music. A percussion instrument consisting of a concave brass plate that makes a loud clashing tone when hit with a drumstick or when used in pairs. [Middle English, from Old English, and from Old French cymbale both from Latin cymbalum, from Greek kumbalon, from kumbē, bowl.] —cym'bal·eer' (sīm'bə-līr'), cym'bal·er, cym'bal·ist n.

cy·m·bid·i·um (sīm-bīd'ē-əm) n. Any of various epiphytic orchids of the genus Cymbidium, native to tropical Asia and Australia and extensively hybridized and cultivated for their elongate clusters of showy blooms. [New Latin Cymbidium, genus name, from Latin cymba, boat, from Greek kumbē.]

cyme (sīm) n. Botany. A usually flat-topped or convex flower cluster in which the main axis and each branch end in a flower that opens before the flowers below or to the side of it. [Latin cŷma, young cabbage sprout, from Greek kuma. See CYMA.] —cy·mif'er·ous (sī-mīf'ər-əs) adj.

cy·mene (sī'mēn') n. Any of three colorless isomeric liquid hydrocarbons, C₁₀H₁₄, obtained chiefly from the essential oils of cumin and thyme and used in the manufacture of synthetic resins. [French cymène, from Greek kuminon, cumin, probably of Semitic origin.]

cym·ling (sīm'lɪŋ) also cym·lin (-lɪn) n. A greenish-white, flat, round squash with a scalloped edge. [Alteration of SIMNEL.]

cy·mo·gene (sī'mə-jēn') n. A flammable gaseous fraction of petroleum, consisting chiefly of butane. [CYM(ENE) + -GENE.] cy·moid (sī'moid') adj. 1. Architecture. Resembling a cyma. 2. Botany. Resembling a cyme.

cy·mo·phane (sī'mə-fān') n. A variety of chrysoberyl having a shimmering luster and microscopic, needlelike inclusions that reflect a streak of light. [French : Greek kuma, wave, cyma; see CYMA + Greek -phanēs, appearing; see -PHANE.]

cy·mose (sī'mōs') also cy·mous (-məs) adj. 1. Relating to or resembling a cyme; determinate. 2. Bearing a cyme or cymes. [CYM(E) + -OSE¹.] — cy'·mose'ly adv.

Cym·ric (kīm'rik, sīm'-) adj. Of or relating to the Cymry. — n. See Welsh (n., sense 2).

Cym·ry (kīm'rē, sīm'-) n. (used with a pl. verb). 1. The Brythonic Celts of Wales, Cornwall, and Brittany. 2. The Welsh. [Welsh, pl. of Cymro, the Welsh people, Wales, from British Celtic kombrogos*, fellow countryman. See merg- in Appendix.]

Cyn·e·wulf (kɪn'ə-wōolf') or Cyn·wulf (kɪn'wōolf'), fl. c. 900. Anglo-Saxon poet whose extant works are Juliana, Elene, The Ascension, and The Fates of the Apostles.

cyn·ic (sɪn'ik) n. 1. A person who believes all people are motivated by selfishness. 2. Cynic. A member of a sect of ancient Greek philosophers who believed virtue to be the only good and self-control to be the only means of achieving virtue. — adj. 1. Cynical. 2. Cynic. Of or relating to the Cynics or their beliefs. [Latin cynicus, Cynic philosopher, from Greek kunikos, from kuōn, kun-, dog. See kwon- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A cynic may be pardoned for thinking that this is a dog's life. The Greek word kunikos, from which cynic comes, was originally an adjective meaning “doglike,” from kuōn, “dog.” The word was most likely applied to the Cynic philosophers because of the nickname kuōn given to Diogenes of Sinope, the prototypical Cynic. He is said to have performed such actions as barking in public, urinating on the leg of a table, and masturbating on the street. The first use of the word recorded in English, in a work published from 1547 to 1564, is in the plural for members of this philosophical sect. In 1596 we find the first instance of cynic meaning “faultfinder,” a sense that was to develop into our modern sense. The meaning “faultfinder” came naturally from the behavior of countless Cynics who in their pursuit of virtue pointed out the flaws in others. Such fault-finding could lead quite naturally to the belief associated with cynics of today that selfishness determines human behavior.

cyn·i·cal (sɪn'ɪ-kəl) adj. 1. Scornful of the motives, virtue, or integrity of others: a cynical distrust of friendly strangers; a cynical view of the average voter's intelligence. 2. Expressing or exhibiting scorn and bitter mockery: cynical laughter.
—cyn'i-cal·ly adv. —cyn'i-cal-ness n.

cyn·i·cism (sɪn'ɪ-sɪz'əm) n. 1. A scornful, bitterly mocking attitude or quality: the public cynicism aroused by governmental scandals. 2. A scornful, bitterly mocking comment or act. 3. Cynicism. The beliefs of the ancient Cynics.

Cyn·os·ceph·a·lae (sɪn'ə-sɛf'ə-lē, sɪ'nə-) Two hills of southeast Thessaly in northeast Greece. The Theban general Pelopidas was killed in battle here (364 B.C.). Later (197) the Roman general Flaminius decisively defeated Philip V of Macedon at Cynoscephalae.

cy·no·sure (sɪ'nə-shōʊr', sɪn'ə-) n. 1. An object that serves as a focal point of attention and admiration. 2. Something that serves to guide. [French, Ursa Minor (which contains the guiding star Polaris), from Latin cynosūra, from Greek kunosoura, dog's tail, Ursa Minor : kuōn, kun-, dog; see kwon- in Appendix + oura, tail; see ors- in Appendix.] —cy'no-sur'al adj.

Cyn·wulf (kɪn'wʊɒlf') See Cynewulf.

CYO abbr. Catholic Youth Organization.

cy·pher (sɪ'fər) n. & v. Variant of cipher.

cy pres (sē'prā') n. The legal doctrine that allows a court freedom in interpreting the terms of a will or gift if carrying out the terms literally would be impracticable or illegal. At the same time, the general intent of the testator or donor is supposed to be observed as closely as possible. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman : cy (from Latin sīc, so); see SIC¹ + pres (from Late Latin pressē, close to, from Latin pressus, past participle of premere, to press closely); see PRESS¹.]

cy·press (sɪ'prɪs) n. 1. a. Any of various evergreen trees or shrubs of the genus Cupressus, native to Eurasia and North America and having opposite, scalelike leaves and globose, woody cones. b. Any of several similar or related coniferous trees, such as the bald cypress. c. The wood of any of these trees. 2. Cypress branches used as a symbol of mourning. [Middle English cipres, from Old French, from Late Latin cypressus, probably blend of Latin cupressus, cyparissus (from Greek kuparissos).]

Cy·press (sɪ'prɪs) A city of southern California, a suburb of Long Beach. Population, 42,655.

cypress spurge (sī'prīs spûrj) n. A perennial European ornamental plant (Euphorbia cyparissias) having numerous narrow leaves and flower clusters with petaloid bracts.

cypress vine (sī'prīs vīn) n. An annual twining tropical American vine (Ipomoea quamoclit) naturalized in warm regions, having pinnately cut leaves and showy, usually scarlet flowers.

Cyp·ri·an (sīp'rē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Cyprus; Cypriot. 2. a. Of or relating to the ancient worship of Aphrodite on Cyprus. b. Licentious; wanton. — n. 1. See Cypriot (n., sense 1). 2. Also cyprian. a. A wanton person. b. A prostitute.

Cyp·ri·an (sīp'rē-ən), Saint. Died A.D. 258. Christian prelate and martyr who led Christians in North Africa during persecution by the Roman emperors Decius and Valerian.

cyp·ri·nid (sīp'rə-nīd) n. Any of numerous often small freshwater fishes of the family Cyprinidae, which includes the minnows, carps, and shiners. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the family Cyprinidae. [From New Latin Cyprīnidae, family name, from Cyprīnus, type genus, from Latin cyprīnus, carp, from Greek kuprinos.]

cyp·rin·o·dont (sī-prīn'ə-dōnt', -prī'nə-) n. Any of various small, soft-finned fishes of the family Cyprinodontidae, which includes the killifishes, topminnows, and many species popular in home aquariums. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the family Cyprinodontidae. [Latin cyprīnus, carp (from Greek kuprinos) + -ODONT.]

cyp·ri·noid (sīp'rə-noid', sī-prī'-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a carp or other cyprinid fish. — n. A cyprinoid fish. [From New Latin Cyprīnoidēa, suborder name, from Cyprīnus, genus name. See CYPRINID.]

Cyp·ri·ot (sīp'rē-ət, -ōt') also Cyp·ri·ote (-ōt', -ət) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Cyprus. Also called Cyprian 2. The ancient or modern Greek dialect of Cyprus. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Cyprus or its people or culture. 2. Of or relating to Cypriot Greek as used on Cyprus. [French cypriote, from Greek Kupriōtēs, from Kupros, Cyprus.]

cyp·ri·pe·di·um (sīp'rī-pē'dē-əm) n. Any of various orchids of the genus Cypripedium, such as the lady's slipper. [New Latin Cypripedium, genus name : Late Latin Cypris, Venus (from Greek Kupris, Aphrodite, from Kupros, Cyprus, legendary birthplace of Aphrodite) + New Latin -pedium (alteration of Greek pedilon, sandal); see ped- in Appendix.]

cy·pro·hep·ta·dine (sī'prō-hēp'tə-dēn') n. An antihistamine, C₂₁H₂₁N, used to relieve the symptoms of various allergic reactions, such as itching and skin rash. [CY(CLIC) + PRO(PYL) + HEPTA- + (PIPERI)DINE.]

cy·prot·er·one (sī-prōt'ə-rōn') n. A synthetic steroid that inhibits the secretion of androgens. [CY(CLO)- + PRO(GES)TERONE.]

Cy-prus (sī'prəs) An island country in the eastern Mediterranean Sea south of Turkey. Site of an ancient Neolithic culture, the island was settled by Phoenicians c. 800 B.C. and thereafter fell successively to the Assyrians, Egyptians, Persians, Macedonian Greeks, Egyptians again, and finally Romans (58 B.C.) The Byzantines controlled it from A.D. 395 until 1191, when it was captured by Richard I of England during the Third Crusade. Venice annexed it in 1489, Turkey conquered it in 1571, and Great Britain proclaimed its sovereignty in 1914. Cyprus became independent in 1960. Nicosia is the capital and the largest city. Population, 642,731.

cyp-se-la (sĭp'sə-lə) n. pl. cyp-se-lae (-lē'). An achene fruit derived from an inferior ovary, characteristic of plants in the composite family. [New Latin, from Greek kupselē, hollow vessel.]

Cy-ra-no de Ber-ge-rac (sĭr'ə-nō də būr'zhə-rāk', bĕr'-), Savinien de. 1619-1655. French satirist and duelist whose works include the spirited drama The Pedant Imitated (1654). He is the subject of Edmond Rostand's play Cyrano de Bergerac (1897), which depicts him as a chivalric duelist with a comically long nose.

Cy-re-na-ic (sĭr'ə-nā'ĭk, sĭ'rə-) adj. 1. Of or relating to Cyrenaica or Cyrene. 2. Of or advocating the doctrines of Aristippus of Cyrene, who argued that pleasure is the only good in life. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Cyrenaica or Cyrene. 2. A disciple of the Cyrenaic school of philosophy.

Cy-re-na-ic-a (sĭr'ə-nā'ĭ-kə, sĭ'rə-) An ancient region of northeast Libya bordering on the Mediterranean Sea. It was colonized by the Greeks in the seventh century B.C. and became a Roman province in the first century B.C.

Cy-re-ne (sĭ-rĕ'nĕ) An ancient Greek city of Cyrenaica. Founded c. 630 B.C., it was noted as an intellectual center with distinguished schools of medicine and philosophy.

Cyr-il (sĭr'əl), Saint. 827-869. Christian missionary and theologian who with his brother Saint Methodius (826-885) worked in Moravia, translating the Scriptures into Old Church Slavonic.

Cy-ril-lic (sə-rĭl'ĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or constituting the old Slavic alphabet ascribed to Saint Cyril, at present used in modified form for Russian, Bulgarian, certain other Slavic languages, and other languages of the Soviet Union.

Cy-rus (sĭ'rəs), Known as "the Younger." 424?-401 B.C. Persian prince who led a mammoth force of Greeks against his brother Artaxerxes II. The retreat that followed his defeat and death are described in Xenophon's Anabasis.

Cy-rus II (sĭ'rəs), Known as "Cyrus the Great." 600?-529? B.C. King of Persia (550-529) and founder of the Persian Empire who conquered Lydia and Babylon. Tolerant in religious matters, he allowed the worship of native gods and permitted the exiled Jews to return to Jerusalem (537).

cyst (sĭst) n. 1. Pathology. An abnormal membranous sac containing a gaseous, liquid, or semisolid substance. 2. Anatomy. A sac or vesicle in the body.

3. Biology. A small capsulelike sac that encloses certain organisms in their dormant or larval stage. 4. Botany. A thick-walled resting spore, as in certain algae or fungi. [New Latin cystis, from Greek kustis, bladder. See kwes- in Appendix.]

cyst- pref. Variant of cysto-.

cys-tec-to-my (sĭ-stĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. cys-tec-to-mies. 1. Surgical removal of a cyst. 2. a. Surgical removal of the gallbladder. b. Surgical removal of all or part of the urinary bladder.

cys-te-ine (sĭs'tə-ĕn', -ĭn, -tĕ-) n. An amino acid, $C_3H_7O_2NS$, derived from cystine and found in most proteins. [CYST(INE) + -EIN.]

cys-tic (sĭs'tĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the characteristic of a cyst. 2. Having or containing cysts or a cyst. 3. Enclosed in a cyst. 4. Anatomy. Of, relating to, or involving the gallbladder or urinary bladder.

cystic duct (sĭs'tĭk dŭkt) n. The duct that conveys bile from the gallbladder to the common bile duct.

cys-ti-cer-ci (sĭs'tĭ-sŭr'sĭ') n. Plural of cysticercus.

cys-ti-cer-coid (sĭs'tĭ-sŭr'koid) n. The larval stage of certain tapeworms, resembling a cysticercus but having the scolex completely filling the enclosing cyst. [CYSTICERC(US) + -OID.]

cys-ti-cer-co-sis (sĭs'tĭ-sər-kō'sĭs) n. The condition of being infested with cysticerci. [CYSTICERC(US) + -OSIS.]

cys-ti-cer-cus (sĭs'tĭ-sŭr'kəs) n. pl. cys-ti-cer-ci (-sĭ'). The larval stage of many tapeworms, consisting of a single invaginated scolex enclosed in a fluid-filled cyst. [New Latin : Greek kustis, cyst; see CYST + Greek kerkos, tail.]

cystic fibrosis (sĭs'tĭk fĭ-brō'sĭs) n. Abbr. CF A hereditary disease of the exocrine glands, usually developing during early childhood and affecting mainly the pancreas, respiratory system, and sweat glands. It is characterized by the production of abnormally viscous mucus by the affected glands, usually resulting in chronic respiratory infections and impaired pancreatic function. Also called mucoviscidosis cys-tine (sĭs'tĕn') n. A white crystalline amino acid, $C_6H_{12}N_2O_4S_2$, found in many proteins, especially keratin. [From its discovery in bladder stones.]

cys-ti-tis (sĭ-stĭ'tĭs) n. Inflammation of the urinary bladder.

cysto- or cyst- pref. Bladder; cyst; sac: cystocele. [From New Latin cystis, bladder, from Greek kustis. See kwes- in Appendix.]

cys-to-cele (sĭs'tə-sĕl') n. Herniation of the urinary bladder through the wall of the vagina.

cys-toid (sĭs'toid') adj. Formed like or resembling a cyst. — n. A cystoid structure.

- cys·to·lith (sĭs'tə-lĭth') n. 1. Botany. A mineral concretion, usually of calcium carbonate, occurring in the epidermal cells of certain plants, such as figs. 2. See urinary calculus.
- cys·to·scope (sĭs'tə-skōp') n. A tubular instrument equipped with a light and used to examine the interior of the urinary bladder and ureter.
—cys'to·scop'ic (-skōp'ĭk) adj. —cys·tos'co·py (sĭ-stōs'kə-pē) n.
- cys·tos·to·my (sĭ-stōs'tə-mē) n. pl. cys·tos·to·mies. The surgical formation of an opening into the urinary bladder.
- cyt- pref. Variant of cyto-.
- cyte suff. Cell: leukocyte. [New Latin -cyta, from Greek kutos, hollow vessel. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]
- Cy·the·ra (sĭ-thĭr'ə, sĭth'ər-ə) also Kĭ·thi·ra (kē'thē-rä') An island of southern Greece in the Mediterranean Sea south of the Peloponnesus. Southernmost of the Ionian Islands, it was the chief center for the worship of Aphrodite.
- Cyth·e·re·a (sĭth'ə-rē'ə) n. Greek Mythology. See Aphrodite.
- cy·ti·dine (sĭ'tĭ-dēn') n. A white, crystalline nucleoside, C₉H₁₃N₃O₅, composed of one molecule each of cytosine and ribose. [CYT(O)- + -ID(E) + -INE².]
- cyto- or cyt- pref. Cell: cytoplasm. [From Greek kutos, hollow vessel. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]
- cy·to·chem·is·try (sĭ'tō-kēm'ĭ-strē) n. The branch of biochemistry that deals with the study of the chemical composition and activity of cells.
—cy'to·chem'i·cal (-kēm'ĭ-kəl) adj.
- cy·to·chrome (sĭ'tə-krōm') n. Any of a class of iron-containing proteins important in cell respiration as catalysts of oxidation-reduction reactions.
- cytochrome oxidase (sĭ'tə-krōm' ōk'sĭ-dās') n. An oxidizing enzyme containing iron and a porphyrin, found in mitochondria and important in cell respiration as an agent of electron transfer from certain cytochrome molecules to oxygen molecules.
- cy·to·gen·e·sis (sĭ'tō-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs) n. The formation, development, and variation of cells. Also called cytogeny
- cy·to·ge·net·ics (sĭ'tō-jə-nĕt'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb.) The branch of biology that deals with heredity and the cellular components, particularly chromosomes, associated with heredity. —cy'to·ge·net'ic, cy'to·ge·net'i·cal adj.
—cy'to·ge·net'i·cal·ly adv. —cy'to·ge·net'i·cist (-sĭst) n.
- cy·tog·e·ny (sĭ-tōj'ə-nē) n. See cytogenesis.
- cy·to·ki·ne·sis (sĭ'tō-kĭ-nē'sĭs, -kĭ-) n. The division of the cytoplasm of a cell following the division of the nucleus. —cy'to·ki·net'ic (-nĕt'ĭk) adj.
- cy·to·ki·nin (sĭ'tə-kĭ'nĭn) n. Any of a class of plant hormones that promote cell division and growth and delay the senescence of leaves.

cy·tol·o·gy (sī-tōl'ə-jē) n. Abbr. cytol. The branch of biology that deals with the formation, structure, and function of cells. —cy'to·log'ic (-tə-lōj'ik), cy'to·log'i·cal adj. —cy·tol'o·gist n.

cy·tol·y·sin (sī-tōl'ī-sin) n. A substance, such as an antibody, capable of dissolving or destroying cells. [CYTOLYS(IS) + -IN.]

cy·tol·y·sis (sī-tōl'ī-sis) n. The dissolution or destruction of a cell. —cy'to·lyt'ic (sī'tə-līt'ik) adj.

cy·to·me·gal·ic (sī'tō-mī-gāl'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or characterized by greatly enlarged cells.

cy·to·meg·a·lo·vi·rus (sī'tə-mēg'ə-lō-vī'rəs) n. Abbr. CMV Any of a group of herpes viruses that attack and enlarge epithelial cells. Such viruses also cause a disease of infants characterized by circulatory dysfunction and microcephaly.

cy·to·mem·brane (sī'tə-mēm'brān) n. See cell membrane.

cy·to·path·ic (sī'tə-pāth'ik) adj. Of or relating to degeneration or disease of cells.

cy·to·path·o·gen·ic (sī'tə-pāth'ə-jēn'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or producing pathological changes in cells. —cy'to·path'o·ge·nic'i·ty (-jə-nīs'ī-tē) n.

cy·to·phil·ic (sī'tə-fil'ik) adj. Having an affinity for cells.

cy·to·pho·tom·e·ter (sī'tō-fō-tōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument used to identify and locate the chemical compounds within a cell by measuring the intensity of light passing through stained sections of the cytoplasm.

cy·to·pho·tom·e·try (sī'tə-fō-tōm'ī-trē) n. The study of cells and chemical compounds within cells by means of a cytophotometer.

—cy'to·pho'to·met'ric (-tə-mēt'rik) adj. —cy'to·pho'to·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

cy·to·plasm (sī'tə-plāz'əm) n. The protoplasm outside the nucleus of a cell.

—cy'to·plas'mic (-plāz'mik) adj. —cy'to·plas'mi·cal·ly adv.

cy·to·plast (sī'tə-plāst') n. The intact cytoplasm of a single cell.

—cy'to·plas'tic (-plās'tik) adj.

cy·to·sine (sī'tə-sēn') n. A pyrimidine base, C₄H₅N₃O, that is an essential constituent of RNA and DNA. [CYT(O)- + (RIB)OS(E) + -INE².]

cy·to·skel·e·ton (sī'tə-skēl'itn) n. The internal framework of a cell, composed largely of actin filaments and microtubules.

cy·to·sol (sī'tə-sōl', -sōl') n. The fluid component of cytoplasm, excluding organelles and the insoluble, usually suspended, cytoplasmic components.

[CYTO- + SOL(UTION).]

cy·to·sta·sis (sī'tə-stā'sis, -stās'is) n. Arrest of cellular growth and multiplication.

cy·to·sta·tic (sī'tə-stāt'ik) adj. Inhibiting or suppressing cellular growth and multiplication. — n. A cytostatic agent. —cy'to·stat'i·cal·ly adv.

cy·to·tax·on·o·my (sī'tō-tāk-sōn'ə-mē) n. The classification of organisms based on cellular structure and function, especially on the structure and number of chromosomes. —cy'to-tax'o-nom'ic (-tāk'sə-nōm'ik) adj.

—cy'to-tax-on'o-mist n.

cy-to-tech-nol-o-gist (sī'tə-tĕk-nōl'ə-jĭst) n. A technician trained in medical examination and identification of cellular abnormalities.

—cy'to-tech-nol'o-gy n.

cy-to-tox-ic (sī'tə-tōk'sĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or producing a toxic effect on cells. —cy'to-tox-ic'i-ty (-tōk-sĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

cytotoxic T cell (sī'tə-tōk'sĭk tē sĕl) n. See killer cell.

cy-to-tox-in (sī'tə-tōk'sĭn) n. A substance having a specific toxic effect on certain cells.

CZ or C.Z. abbr. Canal Zone.

czar (zär, tsär) n. 1. Also tsar or tzar (zär, tsär). A male monarch or emperor, especially one of the emperors who ruled Russia until the revolution of 1917.

2. A person having great power; an autocrat: “the square-jawed, ruddy complacency of Jack Farrell, the czar of the Fifteenth Street police station” (Ernest Hemingway). 3. Informal. An appointed official having special powers to regulate or supervise an activity: a racetrack czar; an energy czar. [Russian tsar', from Old Russian tsĭsarĭ, emperor, king, from Old Church Slavonic tsĕsarĭ, from Gothic kaisar, from Greek kaisar, from Latin Caesar, emperor. See CAESAR.] —czar'dom n.

USAGE NOTE: The word czar can also be spelled tsar. Czar is the most common form in American usage and virtually the only one employed in the extended senses “any tyrant” or informally, “one in authority.” But tsar is preferred by most scholars of Slavic studies as a more accurate transliteration of the Russian and is often found in scholarly writing with reference to one of the Russian emperors.

czar-das (chär'däsh') n. 1. An intricate Hungarian dance characterized by variations in tempo. 2. Music for this dance. [Hungarian csárdás, from csárda, wayside tavern, from Serbo-Croatian čardāk, watchtower, from Turkish çardak, hut, trellis, from Persian chār tāq, from chahār tāq, four-cornered vault : chahār, four (from Old Iranian cathwārō); see k^wetwer- in Appendix + tāq, vault.]

czar-e-vitch (zär'ə-vĭch', tsär'-) n. The eldest son of a Russian czar. [Russian tsarevich : tsar', czar; see CZAR + -evich, masculine patronymic suff.]

cza-rev-na (zä-rĕv'nə, tsä-) n. 1. The daughter of a Russian czar. 2. The wife of a czarevitch. [Russian tsarevna : tsar', czar; see CZAR + -evna, feminine patronymic suff.]

cza-ri-na (zä-rĕ'nə, tsä-) n. The wife of a Russian czar. [Alteration (perhaps influenced by Latin rĕgĭna, queen), of Russian tsaritsa : tsar', czar; see CZAR + -itza, feminine suff.]

czar·ism (zär'iz'əm, tsär'-) n. The system of government in Russia under the czars. —czar'ist adj. & n.

cza·rit·za (zä-rīt'sə, tsä-rēt'-) n. An empress of Russia. [Russian tsaritsa : tsar, czar; see CZAR + -itza, feminine suff.]

Czech (chĕk) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Czech Republic or Czechoslovakia, especially a Bohemian, Moravian, or Silesian. 2. The Slavic language of the Czechs. [Polish, from Czech Čech.] —Czech adj.

Czech·o·slo·va·ki·a (chĕk'ə-slə-vä'kē-ə, -ō-slō-) Abbr. Czech. A former country of central Europe. It was formed in 1918 from Czech-speaking and Slovak-speaking territories of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, although disparate ethnic elements led to internal conflicts before World War II. Communists gained control of the government after the war and stayed in control until late 1989. On January 1, 1993, the country was divided into two independent states, Czech Republic and Slovakia. —Czech'o·slo'vak, Czech'o·slo·va'ki·an adj. & n.

Czech Republic (chĕk rī-püb'lĭk) A country of central Europe. Established in January 1993, it comprises the former provinces of Bohemia, Moravia, and part of Silesia. Prague is the capital and the largest city. Population, 10,291,927.

Czer·ny (chĕr'nē), Karl. 1791-1857. Austrian pianist and composer. A student of Beethoven and the teacher of Liszt, he wrote piano exercises, such as School of the Left Hand, which remain in wide use.

Cze·sto·cho·wa (chĕn'stə-kō'və, chĕn'stô-hô'vā) A city of southern Poland north of Katowice. It is heavily industrialized. Population, 246,600.

d¹ or D (dē) n. pl. d's or D's. 1. The fourth letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter d. 3. The fourth in a series. 4. Music. a. The second tone in the scale of C major or the fourth tone in the relative minor scale. b. A key or scale in which D is the tonic. c. A written or printed note representing this tone. d. A string, key, or pipe tuned to the pitch of this tone. 5. D. The lowest passing grade given to a student in a school or college. 6. Something shaped like the letter D.

d² abbr. 1. Day. 2. Deuteron. 3. Physics. Down quark.

D¹ 1. The symbol for the isotope deuterium. 2. Also d. The symbol for the Roman numeral 500.

D² also D. abbr. Democrat; democratic.

d. abbr. 1. Dam (zoology). 2. Date. 3. Daughter. 4. Also D.. Deputy. 5. Died. 6. Also D.. Dose. 7. Also D.. Drachma. 8. Chiefly British. Penny (12 of a shilling).

D. abbr. 1. Department. 2. Deus. 3. Diopter. 4. Doctor (in academic degrees). 5. Don (title). 6. Duchess. 7. Duke.

'd 1. Had: He'd already left. 2. Would; should: I'd rather walk than drive. 3. Did: Who'd you ask?

DA¹ (dē'ā') n. See ducktail. [Abbreviation of duck's ass.]

DA² abbr. 1. Delayed action. 2. Deposit account. 3. Also D.A.. Don't answer.

Da. abbr. Danish.

D.A. abbr. 1. Also DA. Law. District attorney. 2. Doctor of Arts.

dab¹ (dăb) v. dabbed, dab-bing, dabs. — v. tr. 1. To apply with short, poking strokes: dabbed some paint on the worn spots. 2. To cover lightly with or as if with a moist substance. 3. To strike or hit lightly. — v. intr. To tap gently; pat. — n. 1. A small amount: a dab of jelly. 2. A quick, light pat. [Middle English dabben, to strike.]

dab² (dăb) n. Any of various flatfishes, chiefly of the genera Limanda and Hippoglossoides, related to and resembling the flounders. [Middle English dabbe.]

dab³ (dăb) n. Chiefly British. A dab hand. [Origin unknown.]

dab-ber (dăb'ər) n. A cushioned pad used by printers and engravers to apply ink.

dab-ble (dăb'əl) v. dab-bled, dab-bling, dab-bles. — v. tr. To splash or spatter with or as if with a liquid: "The moon hung over the harbor dabbling the waves with gold" (Katherine Mansfield). — v. intr. 1. To splash liquid gently and playfully. 2. To undertake something superficially or without serious intent. 3. To bob forward and under in shallow water so as to feed off the bottom. [Possibly from Dutch dabbelen, frequentative of dabben, to strike, tap.]

dab-bler (dăb'lər) n. One who engages in an activity superficially or without serious intent. See Synonyms at amateur.

dab·bling duck (dăb'lıng dŭk) n. Any of various ducks, chiefly of the genus Anas, including the mallards, teals, and shovelers, that feed by dabbling in shallow water and are favored as game birds.

dab·chick (dăb'chĭk') n. Any of various small grebes of the genus Podiceps. [Alteration of dobchick : Middle English doppe, diving bird (from Old English -doppe); see DIDAPPER + CHICK.]

dab hand (dăb hănd) n. A person skilled in a particular activity; an expert: a dab hand at gardening.

Dą·bro·wa Gór·ni·cza (dôm-brô'və gōor-nē'chə) A city of southern Poland northeast of Katowice. It has been a coal-mining center since the 1790's. Population, 136,800.

da ca·po (dä kă'pō) adv. Abbr. D.C. Music. From the beginning. Used as a direction to repeat a passage. [Italian : da, from + capo, head.]

Dac·ca also Dha·ka (dăk'ə, də'kə) The capital and largest city of Bangladesh, in the east-central part of the country. It was the Mogul capital of Bengal in the 17th century and came under British rule in 1765. After India achieved independence in 1947, Dacca was made the capital of East Pakistan, which became Bangladesh in 1971. Population, 1,850,000.

dace (dās) n. pl. dace or dac·es. Any of various small freshwater fishes of the family Cyprinidae, which also includes carps and minnows. [Middle English dace, darce, from Old French dars, from Late Latin darsus, possibly of Celtic origin.]

da·cha (dä'chə) n. A Russian country house or villa. [Russian, gift, land, country house. See dō- in Appendix.]

Da·chau (dä'kou', -khou') A city of southeast Germany north-northwest of Munich. It was the site of a Nazi concentration camp built in 1935 and captured by the Allies in April 1945. Population, 33,141.

dachs·hund (däks'hoönt', dăk'sənt) n. A small dog of a breed developed in Germany for hunting badgers and having a long body, a usually short-haired brown or black and brown coat, drooping ears, and very short legs. [German : Dachs, badger (from Middle High German dahs, from Old High German); see teks- in Appendix + Hund, dog (from Middle High German hunt, from Old High German); see kwon- in Appendix.]

Da·ci·a (dā'shē-ə, -shə) An ancient region and Roman province corresponding roughly to present-day Romania. Inhabited before the Christian era by a people of Thracian stock with an advanced material culture, the region was abandoned to the Goths after A.D. 270. —Da'ci·an adj. & n.

da·coit also da·koit (də-koit') n. 1. A member of any of the robber bands of India and Burma who formerly lived in the hills and attacked in armed gangs, usually on horseback. 2. A member of a robber gang in modern India and Burma. [Hindi ḍakait.]

- da·coit·y (də-koi/'tē) n. Robbery by a band or gang of dacoits. [Hindi ḍakaitī, from ḍakait, dacoit.]
- dac·quoise (dă-kwöz') n. A cake made of ground almond or hazelnut meringue layers with fruit or variously flavored cream fillings between the layers. [French, from feminine of dacquois, of Dax, a town of southwest France.]
- Da·cron (dā'krŏn', dăk'rŏn') A trademark used for a synthetic polyester fabric or the fiber from which it is made.
- dac·ti·no·my·cin (dăk'tə-nō-mī'sīn) n. An antibiotic of the actinomycin group, C₆₂H₈₆N₁₂O₁₆, isolated from bacteria and used as an antineoplastic agent in the treatment of certain cancers. Also called actinomycin D [d- (abbr. of DEXTROROTATORY) + ACTINOMYCIN.]
- dac·tyl (dăk'təl) n. 1. A metrical foot consisting of one accented syllable followed by two unaccented or of one long syllable followed by two short, as in flat-tery. 2. A finger, toe, or similar part or structure; a digit. [Middle English dactil, from Latin dactylus, from Greek daktulos, finger, dactyl.] —dac·tyl'ic (-tīl'ik) adj., n. —dac·tyl'i·cal·ly adv.
- dactylo- or dactyl- pref. Finger; toe; digit: dactylogram. [From Greek daktulos, finger.]
- dac·tyl·o·gram (dăk-tīl'ə-grām') n. A fingerprint.
- dac·ty·log·ra·phy (dăk'tə-lŏg'rə-fē) n. The study of fingerprints as a method of identification. —dac'ty·lo·graph'ic (-lŏ-grăf'ik) adj.
- dac·ty·lol·o·gy (dăk'tə-lŏl'ə-jē) n. The use of the fingers and hands to communicate and convey ideas, as in the manual alphabet used by hearing-impaired and speech-impaired people.
- dad (dăd) n. Informal. A father. [Probably of baby-talk origin.]
- Da·da or da·da (dă'dă) n. A European artistic and literary movement (1916-1923) that flouted conventional aesthetic and cultural values by producing works marked by nonsense, travesty, and incongruity. [French dada, hobbyhorse, Dada, of baby-talk origin.] —Da'da·ism n. —Da'da·ist adj., n. —Da'da·is'tic adj.
- dad·dy (dăd'ē) n. pl. dad·dies. Informal. A father. —dad'dy·ish adj.
- daddy long·legs (dăd'ē lŏng'lĕgz', lŏng'-) n. pl. daddy longlegs. 1. Any of various arachnids of the order Phalangida, with a small, rounded body and long, slender legs. Also called harvestman. 2. See crane fly.
- dad·gum (dăd'gŭm') adj. Chiefly Southern U.S. Used as an intensive to express mild annoyance. See Regional note at damned. [Alteration of GODDAMN.]
- da·do (dā'dō) n. pl. da·does. 1. Architecture. The section of a pedestal between base and surbase. 2. The lower portion of the wall of a room, decorated differently from the upper section, as with panels. 3. a. A rectangular groove cut into a board so that a like piece may be fitted into it. b. The groove so cut. — v. tr.
- da·doed, da·do·ing, da·does. 1. To furnish with a dado. 2. a. To cut a dado in. b. To fit into a dado. [Italian, from Latin datum, neuter past participle of dare, to give. See dō- in Appendix.]

dae·dal (dēd'l) adj. 1. Ingenious and complex in design or function; intricate. 2. Finely or skillfully made or employed; artistic. [Latin daedalus, from Greek daidalos.]

Dae·da·lus (dēd'l-əs) n. Greek Mythology. A legendary artist and inventor, builder of the Labyrinth. —Dae·da'li-an, Dae·da'le-an (dī-dā'lē-ən, -dāl'yən) adj.

dae·mon (dē'mən) n. Variant of demon.

dae·mon·ic (dī-mōn'ik) adj. Variant of demonic.

daf·fo·dil (dāf'ə-dīl) n. 1. a. A bulbous plant (Narcissus pseudonarcissus) having showy, usually yellow flowers with a trumpet-shaped central crown. b. The flower of this plant. 2. Color. A brilliant to vivid yellow. [Alteration of Middle English affodil, from Latin asphodelus, asphodel. See ASPHODEL.]

daf·fy (dāf'ē) adj. daf·fi·er, daf·fi·est. Informal. 1. Silly; foolish. 2. Crazy. [From obsolete daff, fool, from Middle English daffe; probably akin to dafte, foolish. See DAFT.] —daf'fi·ly adv. —daf'fi·ness n.

daft (dāft) adj. daft·er, daft·est. 1. Mad; crazy. 2. Foolish; stupid. 3. Scots. Frolicsome. [Middle English dafte, foolish, from Old English gedæfte, meek.] —daft'ly adv. —daft'ness n.

Daft (dāft), Leo. 1843-1922. British-born American engineer who built the first commercial central power station in 1884.

dag¹ (dǎg) n. 1. A lock of matted or dung-coated wool. 2. A hanging end or shred. [Middle English dagge, shred.]

dag² abbr. Decagram.

Da·gan (dā'gän') n. Mythology. The Babylonian god of the earth.

DAGC abbr. Electronics. Delayed automatic gain control.

Da·ges·tan (dä'gĭ-stän, də-gyĭ-) A region of southwest Russia bordering on the Caspian Sea. Settled in the first millennium B.C., it was ceded to Russia by Persia in 1813.

dag·ga (dǎg'ə) n. South African. Indian hemp used as a narcotic; cannabis. [Afrikaans, from Khoikoin dachab.]

dag·ger (dǎg'ər) n. 1. A short pointed weapon with sharp edges. 2. Something that agonizes, torments, or wounds. 3. Printing. a. See obelisk (n., sense 2). b. A double dagger. —idiom. look daggers at. To glare at angrily or hatefully. [Middle English daggere, alteration of Old French dague, from Old Provençal dague, or Old Italian daga both perhaps from Vulgar Latin dāca* (ēnsis), Dacian (knife), from feminine of Latin Dācus.]

dagger fern (dǎg'ər fûrn) n. See Christmas fern.

da·go also Da·go (dā'gō) n. pl. da·gos or da·goes. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Italian, a Spaniard, or a Portuguese. [Alteration of Spanish Diego, a given name, from Latin Jacōbus, Jacob.]

Da·gon (dā'gōn') n. Mythology. The chief god of the ancient Philistines and later the Phoenicians, represented as half-man and half-fish.

Da·guerre (də-gâr', də-gěr'), Louis Jacques Mandé. 1789-1851. French artist and inventor of the daguerreotype process for obtaining positive photographic prints.

da·guerre·o·type (də-gâr'ə-tīp') n. 1. An early photographic process with the image made on a light-sensitive silver-coated metallic plate. 2. A photograph made by this process. — v. tr. da·guerre·o·typed, da·guerre·o·typ·ing, da·guerre·o·types. To make a daguerreotype of. [French, after Louis Jacques Mand DAGUERREÉ.] —da·guerre·o·typ'er n. —da·guerre·o·typ'y n.

dag·wood also Dag·wood (däg'wōōd') n. A multilayered sandwich with a variety of fillings. [After Dagwood Bumstead, a character who made such sandwiches in the comic strip Blondie by Murat Bernard (“Chic”) Young (1901-1973).]

dah (də) n. The spoken representation of a dash in Morse code. [Imitative.]

da·ha·be·ah also da·ha·bee·yah or da·ha·bi·ah (də'hə-bē'ə) n. Nautical. A houseboat having sails and sometimes an engine, used on the Nile. [Arabic dahabīya, from dahabīy, golden, the Golden One, name of the gilded barge of the Muslim rulers of Egypt, from dahab, gold.]

dahl (däl) n. 1. See cajan pea. 2. A thick creamy East Indian stew made with lentils, onions, and various spices. [Hindi dāl, dahl seed, from Sanskrit dalaḥ, dalam, piece split off, from dalati, he splits.]

Dahl·gren (däl'grən), John Adolphus Bernard. 1809-1870. American naval officer and inventor of innovative smoothbore armaments for the U.S. Navy.

dahl·ia (däl'yə, däl'-, däl'-) n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Dahlia native to the mountains of Mexico, Central America, and Colombia, having tuberous roots and showy, rayed, variously colored flower heads. 2. The flower head of one of these plants. [New Latin Dahlia, genus name, after Anders Dahl (1751-1787), Swedish botanist.]

Da·ho·mey (də-hō'mē, də-ō-mā') See Benin (sense 2). —Da·ho'me·an (də-hō'mē-ən), Da·ho'man (-mən) adj. & n.

da·hoon (də-hōōn') n. A small tree (Ilex cassine) of the southeast United States, having red or sometimes orange to yellow fruit and leathery, dark green leaves. Also called cassina [Origin unknown.]

Dai (dī) n. & adj. Variant of Tai.

dai·kon (dī'kōn', -kən) n. A white radish (Raphanus sativus var. longipinnatus) of Japan, having a long root that is eaten raw, pickled, or cooked. Also called Chinese radish, Japanese radish, Oriental radish. [Japanese : dai, big + kon, root.]

dai·ly (dā'lē) adj. 1. Of or occurring during the day. 2. Happening or done every day: the physician's daily rounds. 3. Computed or assessed for each day: a daily record. 4. Everyday: casual clothes only for daily use. — adv. 1. Every day: Exercise daily. 2. Once a day: Wind the clock daily. — n. pl. dai·lies. 1. A newspaper published every day or every weekday. 2. dailies. The first unedited print of movie film usually viewed after a day's shooting; the rushes. [Middle English dayly, from Old English dæglic, from dæg, day. See DAY.] — dai/li-ness, dai/ly-ness n.

daily double (dā'lē dūb'əl) n. Sports & Games. A bet won by choosing both winners of two specified races on one day, as in horse racing.

dai·mi·o or dai·my·o (dī'mē-ō', dīm'yō') n. pl. daimio or dai·mi·os also daimyo or dai·my·os. A feudal lord of Japan who was a large landowner. [Japanese daimyō: dai, great (from Chinese dà) + myō, name (from Chinese míng).]

Daim·ler (dīm'lər), Gottlieb. 1834-1900. German engineer and pioneer automobile manufacturer who produced the first high-speed internal-combustion engine (1885).

dai·mon (dī'mōn') n. Variant of demon.

dai·my·o (dī'mē-ō', dīm'yō') n. Variant of daimio.

dain·ty (dān'tē) adj. dain·ti·er, dain·ti·est. 1. Delicately beautiful or charming; exquisite: "No dainty rhymes or sentimental love verses for you, terrible year" (Walt Whitman). 2. Delicious or choice. See Synonyms at delicate. 3. Of refined taste; discriminating. 4. Overly fastidious; squeamish. — n. pl.

dain·ties. Something delicious; a delicacy. [Middle English deinte, excellent, from deinte, excellence, from Old French deintie, from Latin dignitās, from dignus, worthy. See dek- in Appendix.] — dain/ti·ly adv. — dain/ti-ness n.

dai·qui·ri (dī'kə-rē, dāk'ə-) n. pl. dai·qui·ris. An iced cocktail of rum, lime or lemon juice, and sugar. [After Daiquirí, a village of eastern Cuba.]

Dai·ren (dī'rěn') See Dalian.

dair·y (dâr'ē) n. pl. dair·ies. 1. A commercial establishment for processing or selling milk and milk products. 2. A place where milk and cream are stored and processed. 3. A dairy farm. 4. The dairy business; dairying. — adj. 1. Of, for, or relating to milk or milk products: the dairy section at the grocery store. 2. Of or relating to dairying. 3. Judaism. Of, relating to, or intended for the consumption or preparation of milk or milk products exclusively, as dictated by dietary law. [Middle English daierie, from Anglo-Norman : Middle English daie, dairymaid (from Old English dāege, bread kneader); see dheigh- in Appendix + -erie, place (from Old French); see -ERY.]

dairy cattle (dâr'ē kăt'l) pl.n. Cows bred and raised for milk rather than meat.

dair·y·er (dâr'ē-ər) n. One who owns or manages a dairy or works in one.

dairy farm (dâr'ē färm) n. A farm for producing milk and milk products.

dair·y·ing (dâr'ē-ĭng) n. The business of owning and operating a dairy or a dairy farm.

dair·y·maid (dâr'ē-mād') n. A woman or girl who works in a dairy.

dair·y·man (dâr'ē-mən) n. 1. A man who owns or manages a dairy. 2. A man who works in a dairy.

dair·y·wom·an (dâr'ē-wōom'ən) n. 1. A woman who owns or manages a dairy. 2. A woman who works in a dairy.

da·is (dā'ĭs, dī'-, dās) n. A raised platform, as in a lecture hall, for speakers or honored guests. [Middle English deis, from Anglo-Norman, platform, from Late Latin discus, table, from Latin, discus, quoit. See DISK.]

dai·shi·ki (dī-shē'kē) n. Variant of dashiki.

dai·sy (dā'zē) n. pl. dai·sies. 1. Any of several plants of the composite family, especially a widely naturalized Eurasian plant (Chrysanthemum leucanthemum) having flower heads with a yellow center and white rays. Also called oxeye daisy, white daisy. 2. A low-growing European plant (Bellis perennis) having flower heads with pink or white rays. Also called English daisy. 3. The flower head of any of these plants. 4. Slang. One that is deemed excellent or notable. [Middle English daisie, from Old English dæges ēage: dæges, genitive of dæg, day; see agh- in Appendix + ēage, eye; see ok^w- in Appendix.]

daisy chain (dā'zē chān) n. 1. A garland made of daisies joined together in or as if in a long chain. 2. Something, such as a series of connected events, activities, or experiences, likened to a garland: "It's a vast daisy chain of status, stretching from the first toddler group to the entry-level position at an investment banking house" (James Traub).

daisy fleabane (dā'zē flē'bān') n. An eastern North American weed (Eri-geron annuus) naturalized in Europe, having rayed, white to bluish flower heads grouped in corymblike panicles.

daisy wheel (dā'zē hwēl) n. A printing device used especially in the printing machines attached to computers and word processors and consisting of printing characters fixed at the ends of spokes on a wheel.

Da·kar (dā-kār', dāk'ār') The capital and largest city of Senegal, in the western part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. It grew around a French fort built in 1857 and was the capital of French West Africa from 1904 to 1959. Population, 1,341,000.

Da·kin (dā'kĭn), Henry Drysdale. 1880-1952. British biochemist noted for his research on enzymes and antiseptics.

Da·kin's solution (dā'kĭnz sə-lōō'shən) n. A dilute aqueous solution of sodium hypochlorite used in cleansing wounds. [After Henry Drysdale DAKIN.]

da·koit (dā-koit') n. Variant of dacoit.

Da·ko·ta (də-kō'tə) n. pl. Dakota or Da·ko·tas. 1. a. Any of the Sioux peoples, especially any of the peoples of the Santee branch. b. A member of a Sioux people, especially a Santee. 2. The Siouan language of the Dakota.

—Da·ko'tan adj. & n.

Da·ko·tas (də-kō'təz) The Dakota Territory or (after 1889) the states of North Dakota and South Dakota.

Dakota Territory (də-kō'tə tēr'i-tôr'ē) A territory of the north-central United States organized in 1861 and divided into the states of North Dakota and South Dakota in 1889. The territory included much of present-day Montana until 1864 and Wyoming until 1868.

dal abbr. Decaliter.

Da·la·dier (də-lä'dē-ā', də-lä-dyā'), Édouard. 1884-1970. French statesman who signed the Munich Pact with Adolf Hitler in September 1938. He was arrested by the Germans after the fall of France (1940) and remained in captivity until 1945.

Da·lai La·ma (də'li lä'mə) n. The traditional governmental ruler and highest priest of the Lamaist religion in Tibet and Mongolia. [Tibetan : Mongolian dalai, ocean + Tibetan bla-ma, monk (so called because he is known as the ocean of compassion).]

dal·a·pon (däl'ə-pŏn') n. An organic acid, C₃H₄Cl₂O₂, used as a herbicide that selectively kills grasses and other monocotyledons. [Probably D(I)⁻¹ + AL(PH)A + P(ROPI)ON(IC ACID).]

da·la·si (də-lä'sē) n. pl. dalasi. A basic unit of currency in Gambia. See Table at currency. [Mandingo, possibly ultimately from English dollars. See DOLLAR.]

dale (dāl) n. A valley: galloped over hill and dale. [Middle English, from Old English dæl.]

Dale (dāl), Sir Henry Hallett. 1875-1968. British physiologist. He shared a 1936 Nobel Prize for work on the chemical transmission of nerve impulses.

Dale (dāl), Sir Thomas. Died 1619. English-born naval commander and colonial administrator noted for his strict rule of Virginia from 1611 to 1616.

Dale City (dāl sīt'ē) A community of northeast Virginia southwest of Alexandria. It is mainly residential. Population, 47,170.

Da·lén (də-lān', də-), Nils Gustaf. 1869-1937. Swedish inventor. He won a 1912 Nobel Prize for devising an automatic regulator for lighthouse beacons.

da·leth (də'līd, -lēt, -lēth) n. The fourth letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew dāleth, from dālt, door.]

Da·ley (də'lē), Richard Joseph. 1902-1976. American politician who dominated Chicago politics during his years as mayor (1955-1976). Known as one of the last old-time big city bosses, Daley was also an important figure in the national Democratic Party.

Dal-hou-sie (dāl-hōō'zē, -hou'-), Tenth Earl and First Marquis of Title of James Andrew Broun Ramsay. 1812-1860. British colonial administrator in India whose term as governor-general (1847-1856) was marked by acquisition of territory and development of communication and transportation lines.

Da-li (dä'liē), Salvador. 1904-1989. Spanish surrealist artist known for his flamboyant personal style and his disquieting interpretation of fantastic images in meticulously rendered canvases. Among his most famous works is Persistence of Memory (1931), a desolate landscape inhabited by limp, melting watches.

—Da'li-esque' (-ěsk') adj.

Dal-ian (däl'yän') also Ta-lien (tä'lyě'n') Formerly Dai-ren (dī'rě'n'). A city of northeast China on the Liaodong Peninsula and the Bo Hai. A major seaport, it was opened to foreign commerce in 1901 and occupied by the Japanese during the Russo-Japanese War (1904-1905). Dalian and Lüshun form the conurbation of Lüda. Population, 1,380,000.

Dal-las (däl'əs) A city of northeast Texas on the Trinity River east of Fort Worth. It was founded by French settlers in 1841 and became a cotton market in the 1870's. Population, 1,006,877.

Dal-las (däl'əs), Alexander James. 1759-1817. West Indian-born American public official who as secretary of the treasury (1814-1816) urged the adoption of a protective tariff.

Dal-las (däl'əs), George Mifflin. 1792-1864. Vice President of the United States (1845-1849) under James K. Polk. He also served as minister to Russia (1837-1839) and Great Britain (1856-1861).

dalles (dälz) pl.n. The rapids of a river that runs between the steep precipices of a gorge or narrow valley. [French, pl. of dalle, gutter, from Old French, from Old Norse dæla.]

Dalles (dälz), The. A city of northern Oregon on the Columbia River east of Portland. An important stop on the Oregon Trail in the 1800's, it is now a busy inland port. Population, 10,800.

dal-li-ance (däl'ē-əns) n. 1. Frivolous spending of time; dawdling. 2. Playful flirtation.

Dal-lis grass (däl'is gräs) n. A tall, South American perennial grass (Paspalum dilatatum) grown for pasturage in the southern United States. [Probably alteration of Dallas, Texas.]

Dall sheep (dôl shēp) or Dall's sheep (dôlz) n. A stocky wild sheep (Ovis dalli) of the mountainous regions of northwest North America, ranging from white to nearly black and having curved, yellowish horns. [After William Healey Dall (1845-1927), American naturalist.]

dal-ly (däl'ē) v. dal-ried, dal-ly-ing, dal-lies. — v. intr. 1. To play amorously; flirt: "Sylvester dallied about Lena until he began to make mistakes in his work" (Willa Cather). See Synonyms at flirt. 2. To trifle; toy. 3. To waste time; dawdle. — v. tr. To waste (time). [Middle English dalien, from Old French dalier.] —dal'li-er n. —dal'ly-ing-ly adv.

Dal-mane (däl'män) A trademark used for a hypnotic drug prescribed for insomnia.

Dal-ma-ti-a (däl-mā'shə) A historical region of southeast Europe on the Adriatic Sea. Subdued by the Romans in the 1st century B.C., it was divided between the kingdoms of Serbia and Croatia in the 10th century and held by numerous powers after the 15th century. Dalmatia became part of the kingdom that formed the nucleus of Yugoslavia in 1918.

Dal-ma-tian (däl-mā'shən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Dalmatia. 2. Also dalmatian. A dog of a breed believed to have originated in Dalmatia, having a short, smooth white coat covered with black or dark brown spots. In this sense, also called carriage dog, coach dog. — adj. Of or relating to Dalmatia or its inhabitants or culture.

dal-mat-ic (däl-mät'ik) n. 1. The wide-sleeved garment worn over the alb by a deacon, cardinal, bishop, or abbot at the celebration of Mass. 2. A wide-sleeved garment worn by an English monarch at his or her coronation. [Middle English dalmatik, from Old French dalmatique, from Medieval Latin dalmatica (vestis), Dalmatian (garment) (originally made of white wool from Dalmatia), from Latin dalmaticus, of Dalmatia.]

Dal-rym-ple (däl-rim'pəl, däl'rīm-), Sir James First Viscount Stair. 1619-1695. Scottish jurist noted for his treatise Institutes of the Law of Scotland (1681).

dal se-gno (däl sän'yō) adv. Abbr. d.s., D.S. Music. From a place marked by the sign § to a designated point. Used as a direction to repeat a passage. [Italian : da, from + il, the + segno, sign.]

dal-ton (dôl'tən) n. See atomic mass unit. [After John DALTON.]

Dal-ton (dôl'tən) A city of northwest Georgia southeast of Chattanooga, Tennessee. It is an industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 21,761.

Dal-ton (dôl'tən), Hugh Baron Dalton of Forest and Frith. 1887-1962. British politician who as Chancellor of the Exchequer (1945-1947) oversaw the nationalization of the Bank of England.

Dal-ton (dôl'tən), John. 1766-1844. British chemist whose pioneer work on the properties of gases led to his formulation of the atomic theory. He also studied his own condition of colorblindness.

Dal-ton (dôl'tən), Robert. 1867-1892. American outlaw noted for his exploits as a horse thief, train robber, and leader of the Dalton gang, which included his two brothers.

dal-ton-ism also Dal-ton-ism (dôl'tə-niz'əm) n. An inherited defect in perception of red and green; red-green colorblindness. [After John DALTON.]

—dal-to'ni-an (-tō'nē-ən), dal-ton'ic (-tön'ik) adj.

Da·ly (dā'lē), (John) Augustin. 1839-1899. American playwright and theatrical manager best known for melodramas such as Under the Gaslight (1867).

Da·ly (dā'lē), Marcus. 1841-1900. Irish-born American tycoon who developed the Anaconda copper mine. His feuds with other “copper kings” dominated Montana politics for more than a decade in the late 1800's.

Daly City (dā'lē sīt'ē) A city of western California, a suburb of San Francisco. It was settled in 1906 by refugees from the San Francisco earthquake. Population, 31,896.

dam¹ (dām) n. 1. a. A barrier constructed across a waterway to control the flow or raise the level of water. b. A body of water controlled by such a barrier. 2. A barrier against the passage of liquid or loose material, as a rubber sheet used in dentistry to isolate one or more teeth from the rest of the mouth. 3. An obstruction; a hindrance. — v. tr. dammed, dam·ming, dams. 1. To hold back or confine by means of a dam. 2. To close up; obstruct: He tried to dam his grief. See Synonyms at hinder¹. [Middle English, probably from Old English damm*.] —dam'mer n.

dam² (dām) n. 1. Abbr. d. A female parent. Used of a four-legged animal. 2. Archaic. A mother. [Middle English dam, dame, lady, mother. See DAME.]

dam³ abbr. Decameter.

Dam (dām, dām), (Carl Peter) Henrik. 1895-1976. Danish biochemist. He shared a 1943 Nobel Prize for the discovery of vitamin K.

dam·age (dām'ij) n. 1. Impairment of the usefulness or value of person or property; harm. 2. damages. Law. Money ordered to be paid as compensation for injury or loss. 3. Informal. Cost; price. — v. dam·aged, dam·ag·ing, dam·ag·es. — v. tr. To cause damage to. See Synonyms at injure. — v. intr. To suffer or be susceptible to damage. [Middle English, from Old French : dam, loss (from Latin damnum) + -age, -age.] —dam'age·a·bil'i·ty n.

—dam'age·a·ble adj. —dam'ag·ing·ly adv.

damage control (dām'ij kən-trōl') n. An effort to minimize or curtail damage or loss.

Da·man (də-män') A region of northwest India on the eastern shore of the Gulf of Cambay. A Portuguese colony after the 16th century, it was annexed by India in 1961.

Da·man·hur (dām'ən-hōor', də'män-hōor') A city of northeast Egypt on the Nile River delta northwest of Cairo. In ancient times it was known as Hermopolis Parva. Population, 221,500.

dam·ar (dām'ər) n. Variant of dammar.

dam·as·cene (dām'ə-sēn', dām'ə-sēn') v. tr. dam·as·cened, dam·as·cen·ing, dam·as·cenes. To decorate (metal) with wavy patterns of inlay or etching. — n. Metalwork decorated with wavy patterns of inlay or etching. — adj. 1. Of or relating to damascening. 2. Of or relating to damask.

[French damasquiner, from damasquin, of Damascus, from Latin Damascēnus, from Greek Damaskēnos, from Damaskos, Damascus.] —dam'a-scen'er n.

Da-mas-cus (də-mäs'kəs) The capital and largest city of Syria, in the southwest part of the country. Inhabited since prehistoric times, the city became a thriving commercial center under the Romans and was a Saracen stronghold during the Crusades. Population, 1,259,000. —Dam'a-scene' (däm'ə-sēn') adj. & n.

Damascus steel (də-mäs'kəs stēl) n. An early form of steel having wavy markings, developed in Near Eastern countries and used chiefly in sword blades.

dam-ask (däm'əsk) n. 1. A rich patterned fabric of cotton, linen, silk, or wool. 2. A fine, twilled table linen. 3. Damascus steel. 4. The wavy pattern on Damascus steel. — v. tr. dam-asked, dam-ask-ing, dam-asks. 1. To damascene. 2. To decorate or weave with rich patterns. [Middle English, Damascus, damask, from Latin Damascus, from Greek Damaskos.] —dam'ask adj.

damask rose (däm'əsk rōz) n. A rose (Rosa damascena) native to Asia that has fragrant red or pink flowers and is used as a source of attar. [From Middle English Damask, Damascus. See DAMASK.]

damask steel (däm'əsk stēl) n. Damascus steel.

Dam-a-vand (däm'ə-vänd', də'mä-vänd) also Dem-a-vend (dēm'ə-vënd') A peak, 5,774.9 m (18,934 ft) high, in the Elburz Mountains of northern Iran northeast of Tehran. It is the highest elevation in the range.

d'Am-boise (dän-bwäz'), Jacques. Born 1934. American ballet dancer and choreographer noted for his work with the National Dance Institute.

dame (dām) n. 1. Used formerly as a courtesy title for a woman in authority or a mistress of a household. 2. a. A married woman; a matron. b. An elderly woman. 3. Slang. A woman. 4. Chiefly British. a. A woman holding a nonhereditary title conferred by a sovereign in recognition of personal merit or service to the country. b. The wife or widow of a knight. c. Used as the title for such a woman. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin domina, feminine of dominus, lord, master. See dem- in Appendix.]

dame's rocket (dāmz rök'it) n. pl. dame's rockets. A European plant (Hesperis matronalis) having clusters of fragrant purple to white flowers. Also called dame's violet

Da-mien de Veus-ter (dä'mē-ən də vyōō'stər, də-myän' də vœ-stēr'), Joseph. Known as "Father Damien." 1840-1889. Belgian Roman Catholic missionary who ministered to the leper colony on Molokai (1873-1889), where he contracted leprosy and died.

Dam-i-et-ta (däm'ē-ēt'ə) also Dum-yat (dōom-yät') A city of northeast Egypt on the Nile River delta north-northeast of Cairo. It was conquered by Crusaders in 1219. Population, 118,100.

da·min·o·zide (də-mĭn'ə-zīd') n. A chemical plant growth regulator, C₆H₁₂N₂O₃, used commercially on apples to retard growth, enhance color, and increase storage life. [D(IMETHYL) + AMINO- + (HYDRA)Z(INE) + -IDE.]

dam·mar or dam·ar also dam·mer (dăm'ər) n. Any of various hard resins obtained from trees of the genera Shorea, Balanocarpus, and Hopea, native to southeast Asia and the Malay Archipelago and used in varnishes and lacquers. [Malay damar, resin.]

dam·mit (dăm'ĭt) interj. Used to express anger, irritation, contempt, or disappointment. [Alteration of damn it.]

damn (dăm) v. damned, damn-ing, damns. — v. tr. 1. To pronounce an adverse judgment upon. See Synonyms at condemn. 2. To bring about the failure of; ruin. 3. To condemn as harmful, illegal, or immoral: a cleric who damned gambling and strong drink. 4. Theology. To condemn to everlasting punishment or a similar fate; doom. 5. To swear at. — v. intr. To swear; curse. — interj. Used to express anger, irritation, contempt, or disappointment. — n. 1. The saying of “damn” as a curse. 2. Informal. The least valuable bit; a jot: not worth a damn. — adv. & adj. Damned. — idiom. damn well. Without any doubt; positively: I am damn well going to file charges against him. [Middle English dampnen, from Old French dampner, from Latin damnāre, to condemn, inflict loss upon, from damnum, loss.] — damn'ing-ly adv.

dam·na·ble (dăm'nə-bəl) adj. Deserving condemnation; odious.
— dam'na-ble-ness n. — dam'na-bly adv.

dam·na·tion (dăm-nā'shən) n. 1. The act of damning or the condition of being damned. 2. Theology. a. Condemnation to everlasting punishment; doom. b. Everlasting punishment. 3. Failure or ruination incurred by adverse criticism. — interj. Used to express anger or annoyance. See Regional note at tarnation.

dam·na·to·ry (dăm'nə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. Threatening with or expressing condemnation; damning.

damned (dămd) adj. damned-er (dăm'dər), damned-est (dăm'dĭst).
1. Condemned, especially to eternal punishment. 2. Informal. Deserving condemnation; detestable: this damned weather. 3. Used as an intensive: a damned fool. — adv. damned-er, damned-est. Used as an intensive: a damned poor excuse. — n. Theology. Souls doomed to eternal punishment.

REGIONAL NOTE: There are many regional variants, mostly euphemisms, for damned, both as an oath and as a mild intensive. Southern exclamations and intensives tend to begin with dad-, a euphemism for “god”—hence dadblamed, dadblasted, dadburn, and dadgum. Dadgum can be combined with it in the interjection dadgummit. Another such euphemism is the better known doggone, probably originally Southern but now widespread. Like dadgum, doggone is used as a mild intensive: “The best doggone deals in Alabama” (billboard in Montgomery). Dog- gone likewise appears in phrasal interjections: Doggonit, I dropped my hammer. A common regional variant of damned is durn, also euphemistic and relatively mild, as in this snatch of Baltimore dialogue: “If that’s not just the weirdest durn thing I ever laid eyes on” (Anne Tyler).

damned·est (dăm’dist) adj. Superlative of damned. — n. All that is possible; the utmost: did my damnedest to deliver the term paper on time.

Dam·o·cles (dăm’ə-klēz’), fl. fourth century B.C. Greek courtier to Dionysius the Elder, tyrant of Syracuse, who according to legend was forced to sit at a banquet table under a sword suspended by a single hair to demonstrate the precariousness of a king’s fortunes.

dam·oi·selle (dăm’ə-zěl’) n. Archaic. Variant of damosel.

Da·mon (dā’mən) n. A legendary figure who, out of devotion, pledged his life as a guarantee that his condemned friend Pythias would return to face execution. Both were subsequently pardoned.

dam·o·sel also dam·oi·selle or dam·o·zel (dăm’ə-zěl’) n. Archaic. A young woman; a damsel. [Middle English damoisele, from Old French damoiselle, damsel. See DAMSEL.]

damp (dămp) adj. damp·er, damp·est. 1. Slightly wet. See Synonyms at wet. 2. Archaic. Dejected. — n. 1. Moisture in the air; humidity. 2. Foul or poisonous gas that sometimes pollutes the air in coal mines. 3. Lowness of spirits; depression. 4. A restraint or check; a discouragement. — v. tr. damp·ed, damp·ing, damp·s. 1. To make damp or moist; moisten. 2. To extinguish (a fire, for example) by cutting off air. 3. To restrain or check; discourage. 4. Music. To provide (the strings of a keyboard instrument) with dampers as a means of reducing the dynamic level. 5. Physics. To decrease the amplitude of (a wave). — phrasal verb. damp off. Botany. To be affected by damping off. [Middle English, poison gas, perhaps from Middle Dutch, vapor.] — damp’ish adj. — damp’ly adv. — damp’ness n.

damp·en (dăm’pən) v. damp·ened, damp·en·ing, damp·ens. — v. tr. 1. To make damp. 2. To deaden, restrain, or depress: “trade moves... aimed at dampening protectionist pressures in Congress” (Christian Science Monitor). 3. To soundproof. — v. intr. To become damp. — damp’en·er n.

damp·er (dăm’pər) n. 1. One that deadens, restrains, or depresses: Rain put a damper on our picnic plans. 2. An adjustable plate, as in the flue of a furnace or stove, for controlling the draft. 3. Music. a. A device in various keyboard instruments for deadening the vibrations of the strings. b. A mute for various brass instruments. 4. A device that eliminates or progressively diminishes vibrations or oscillations, as of a magnetic needle.

Dam·pi·er (dām'pē-ər), William. 1652-1715. English buccaneer and navigator who described his circumnavigation of the globe in A New Voyage Round the World (1697) and later explored the South Seas.

damp·ing (dām'pɪŋ) n. The capacity built into a mechanical or electrical device to prevent excessive correction and the resulting instability or oscillatory conditions.

damping off (dām'pɪŋ ôf) n. Botany. A disease of seedlings that is caused by fungi and results in wilting and death.

Dam·rosch (dām'rōsh), Leopold. 1832-1885. German-born American musician who was the first to conduct Wagnerian opera at New York's Metropolitan Opera House. His son Walter Johannes Damrosch (1862-1950) continued the tradition, introducing Wagner's works throughout the United States.

dam·sel (dām'zəl) n. A young woman or girl; a maiden. [Middle English damisele, from Old French dameisele, damoiselle, from Vulgar Latin dominicella*, diminutive of domina, lady. See DAME.]

dam·sel·fish (dām'zəl-fɪsh') n. pl. damselfish or dam·sel·fish·es. Any of various small tropical marine fishes of the family Pomacentridae, having laterally compressed, usually brightly colored bodies. Also called demoiselle dam·sel·fly (dām'zəl-flī') n. Any of various often brightly colored, predatory insects having a long slender body and elongated wings that fold together when the insect is at rest. Also called demoiselle, devil's darning needle.

dam·son (dām'zən, -sən) n. 1. A Eurasian plum tree (Prunus insititia) cultivated since ancient times for its edible fruit. Also called bullace plum 2. The oval, bluish-black, juicy plum of this tree. [Middle English damson, damacene, from Latin (prūnum) Damascēnum, (plum) of Damascus, from Damascēnus. See DAM-ASCENE.]

dan also Dan (dän, dän) n. 1. Sports. a. Any of 12 levels of proficiency at the grade of black belt in martial arts such as judo and karate. b. One who has achieved such a level. 2. Games. An expert or expert level in shogi and other such games. [Japanese.]

Dan¹ (dän) In the Old Testament, a son of Jacob and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

Dan² (dän) n. Archaic. Used formerly as a title of honor for respected men, such as clerics and poets. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin Domnus, from Latin dominus, master, lord. See dem- in Appendix.]

Dan. abbr. 1. Bible. Daniel. 2. Danish.

Da·na (dā'nə), Charles Anderson. 1819-1897. American newspaperman who as owner-editor of the New York Sun (after 1868) promoted a lively, readable style and stressed human-interest stories.

Da·na (dā'nə), James Dwight. 1813-1895. American scientist whose textbooks established him as the foremost geologist of his time.

Da·na (dā'nə), Richard Henry. 1815-1882. American lawyer and writer best known for his Two Years Before the Mast (1840), an account of his voyage from Boston to California around Cape Horn.

Dan·a·e also Dan·a·ë (dän'ə-ē') n. Greek Mythology. The daughter of Eurydice and Acrisius and mother of Perseus who was imprisoned by her father in a bronze chamber.

Da·na·i·des also Da·na·ï·des (də-nā'ī-dēz') pl.n. Greek Mythology. The daughters of Danaus, who at their father's command murdered their bridegrooms on their wedding night and were condemned in Hades to pour water eternally into a leaky vessel.

Dan·a·kil (dän'ə-kīl', də-nā'kēl) A desert region of northeast Ethiopia and northern Djibouti bordering on the Red Sea. It is part of the Great Rift Valley.

Da Nang or Da·nang (də näng', də' näng') Formerly Tou·rane (tōō-rän'). A city of central Vietnam on the South China Sea. It was the site of an important U.S. military base during the Vietnam War. Population, 318,655.

Dan·a·us also Dan·a·üs (dän'ē-əs) n. Greek Mythology. A king of Argos, father of the Danaides.

Dan·bur·y (dän'bər'ē, -bə-rē) A city of southwest Connecticut northwest of Bridgeport. Settled in 1685, it was largely destroyed by the British in 1777 during the American Revolution. Population, 65,585.

dance (däns) v. danced, danc·ing, danc·es. — v. intr. 1. To move rhythmically usually to music, using prescribed or improvised steps and gestures.

2. a. To leap or skip about excitedly. b. To appear to flash or twinkle: eyes that danced with merriment. c. Informal. To appear to skip about; vacillate: danced around the issue. 3. To bob up and down. — v. tr. 1. To engage in or perform (a dance). 2. To cause to dance. 3. To bring to a particular state or condition by dancing: My partner danced me to exhaustion. — n. 1. A series of rhythmical motions and steps, usually to music. 2. The art of dancing: “[They] have both offered as a definition of dance: a spiritual activity in physical form” (Susan Sontag). 3. A party or gathering of people for dancing; a ball. 4. One round or turn of dancing: May I have this dance? 5. A musical or rhythmical accompaniment composed or played for dancing. 6. The act or an instance of dancing. [Middle English dauncen, from Old French danser, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

—danc'er n. —danc'ing·ly adv.

dance·a·ble (dän'sə-bəl) adj. Suitable for dancing: a danceable melody.

—dance'a·bil'i·ty n.

dance·go·er (däns'gō'ər) n. One who frequently attends dance performances.

—dance'go'ing adj. & n.

dance hall or dance·hall (däns'hôl') n. A building or part of a building with facilities for dancing.

dan·cer·ly (dăn'sər-lē) adj. Having or displaying the movements, skills, or knowledge of a dancer or the dance: “impressionistic doodles, symphonic splashes and dancery flourishes” (Los Angeles Times).

dance-wear (dăns'wâr') n. Clothing such as leotards and warmup suits that are worn for dance practice and exercising.

danc·y also danc·ey (dăn'sē) adj. danc·i·er, danc·i·est. Informal. Suitable for or inviting dancing; danceable: dancy music.

D and C (dē ənd sē) n. Dilation and curettage.

dan·de·li·on (dăn'dl-ī'ən) n. 1. A Eurasian plant (Taraxacum officinale) of the composite family having many-rayed yellow flower heads and deeply notched basal leaves. Widely naturalized as a weed in North America, it is used in salads and to make wine. 2. Any of several similar or related plants. 3. Color. A brilliant to vivid yellow. [Middle English dent-de-lioun, from Old French dentdelion, from Medieval Latin dēns leōnis, lion's tooth (from its sharply indented leaves) : Latin dēns, dent-, tooth; see dent- in Appendix + Latin leōnis, genitive of leō, lion; see LION.]

WORD HISTORY: Dentdelioun, the Middle English form of dandelion, makes it easy to see that our word is a borrowing of Old French dentdelion, literally, “tooth of the lion,” referring to the sharply indented leaves of the plant. Modern French dent-de-lion, unlike Modern English dandelion, reveals to anyone who knows French what the components of the word are. The English spelling, on the other hand, reflects the pronunciation of the Old French word at the time it was borrowed into English. For example, the t in dentdelion probably disappeared early in Old French, having been absorbed into the related sound of the d. The earliest recorded instance of the word occurs in a herbal written in 1373, but we find an instance of dandelion used in a proper name (Willelmus Dawndelyon) in a document dated 1363.

dan·der¹ (dăn'dər) n. Informal. Temper or anger: What got their dander up? [Perhaps alteration of dunder, fermented cane juice used in rum-making, fermentation, possibly alteration of Spanish redundar, to overflow, from Latin redundāre. See REDUNDANT.]

dan·der² (dăn'dər) n. Scurf from the coat or feathers of various animals, often of an allergenic nature. [Alteration of DANDRUFF.]

Dan·die Din·mont (dăn'dē dīn'mönt') n. A small terrier of a breed developed in the border counties of England and Scotland and having a rough grayish or brownish coat, a long body, drooping ears, and short legs. [After Dandie Dinmont, the owner of two such dogs in Guy Mannering, a novel by Sir Walter Scott.]

dan·di·fy (dăn'də-fī') v. tr. dan·di·fied, dan·di·fy·ing, dan·di·fies. To dress as or cause to resemble a dandy. —dan'di·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

dan·dle (dăn'dl) v. tr. dan·dled, dan·dling, dan·dles. 1. To move (a small child) up and down on the knees or in the arms in a playful way: “Somebody who was dandled on Queen Victoria’s knee must appear an old foggy” (Edward, Duke of Windsor). 2. To pamper or pet. — n. Narragansett Bay. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter. [Origin unknown.] —dan’dler n.

dandle board (dăn'dl bôrd) n. Narragansett Bay. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter.

Dan·dong (dăn'dông') also Tan·tung (tăn'toông') or An·tung (ăn'toông') A city of northeast China on the Yalu River opposite North Korea. It is a seaport and manufacturing center. Population, 400,000.

dan·druff (dăn'drəf) n. A scaly scurf formed on and shed from the scalp, sometimes caused by seborrhea. [dand-, of unknown origin + dialectal hurf, scurf (from Old Norse hrufa, crust, scab).] —dan'druff·y adj.

dan·dy (dăn'dē) n. pl. dan·dies. 1. A man who affects extreme elegance in clothes and manners; a fop. 2. Informal. Something very good or agreeable. 3. Nautical. See yawl (n., sense 1). — adj. dan·di·er, dan·di·est.

1. Suggestive of or attired like a dandy; foppish. 2. Informal. Fine; good. [Perhaps short for jack-a-dandy, fop.] —dan'dy·ish adj. —dan'dy·ish·ly adv. —dan'dy·ism n.

dandy fever (dăn'dē fē'vər) n. See dengue. [Alteration of DENGUE.]

dandy roll (dăn'dē rōl) n. A cylinder of wire gauze pressed on moist pulp before it starts through the rollers of a papermaking device and resulting in the production of a watermark. Also called dandy roller

Dane (dān) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Denmark. 2. A person of Danish ancestry. [Middle English Dan, from Old Norse Danr.]

Dane·geld (dăn'gæld') also Dane·gelt (-gəlt') n. A tax levied in England from the 10th to the 12th century to finance protection against Danish invasion. [Middle English : Dane, genitive pl. of Dan, Dane; see DANE + geld, tribute (from Old English geld, gield, payment).]

Dane·law also Dane·lagh (dăn'lô') n. 1. The body of law established by the Danish invaders and settlers in northeast England in the ninth and tenth centuries. 2. The sections of England under the jurisdiction of this law. [Middle English Denelage, from Old English Dena lagu : Dena, genitive of Dene, the Danes + lagu, law; see LAW.]

dang (dǎng) n., adv. & adj. Damn. [Alteration of DAMN.]

dan·ger (dăn'jər) n. 1. Exposure or vulnerability to harm or risk. 2. A source or an instance of risk or peril. 3. Obsolete. Power, especially power to harm. [Middle English daunger, power, dominion, peril, from Old French dangier, from Vulgar Latin dominiarium*, authority, power, from Latin dominium, sovereignty, from dominus, lord, master. See dem- in Appendix.]

dan·ger·ous (dān'jər-əs) adj. 1. Involving or filled with danger; perilous.

2. Being able or likely to do harm. —dan'ger·ous·ly adv.

—dan'ger·ous·ness n.

dan·gle (däng'gəl) v. dan·gled, dan·gling, dan·gles. — v. intr. 1. To hang loosely and swing or sway to and fro. 2. To be a hanger-on. — v. tr. 1. To cause to hang loosely or swing. 2. To cause (one's expectations or hopes) to hang uncertainly or remain unresolved. — n. 1. The act or an instance of dangling.

2. Something dangled. [Perhaps from Danish dangle, or Swedish dangla.]

—dan'gler n. —dan'gly adj.

dan·gle·ber·ry (däng'gəl-běr'ē) n. A deciduous shrub (Gaylussacia frondosa) of the eastern United States, having dark blue fruits. Also called dwarf huckleberry [Probably alteration of tangleberry.]

dan·gling participle (däng'gling pär'ti-sip'əl) n. Grammar. A participle, usually in a subordinate clause, that lacks a clear grammatical relation with the subject of the sentence, such as approaching in the sentence Approaching New York, the skyline came into view.

Dan·iel (dän'yəl) n. Bible. 1. In the Old Testament, a Hebrew prophet of the sixth century B.C. 2. Abbr. Dan., Dn A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Hebrew Dāni'el, God is my judge.]

Dan·iel (dän'yəl), Peter Vivian. 1784-1860. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1841-1860).

Dan·iel (dän'yəl), Samuel. 1562?-1619. English writer whose works include The Civil Wars (1595-1609), a poetic account of the Wars of the Roses.

Dan·iels (dän'yəlz), Josephus. 1862-1948. American journalist who served as secretary of the navy (1913-1921) and ambassador to Mexico (1933-1941).

Da·ni·lo·va (də-nē'lə-və), Alexandra. Born c. 1906. Russian-born American ballerina who danced with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo from 1938 to 1958.

da·ni·o (dā'nē-ō') n. pl. da·ni·os. Any of various small, often brightly colored freshwater fishes of the genera Danio and Brachydanio, native to Asia and popular as aquarium fish. [New Latin Danio, genus name.]

Dan·ish (dā'nīsh) adj. Abbr. Dan., Da. Of or relating to Denmark, the Danes, their language, or their culture. — n. 1. Abbr. Dan., Da. The North Germanic language of the Danes. 2. pl. Danish or Dan-ish-es. A Danish pastry. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by Old Norse Danr, Dane), of Denish, from Old English Denisc, from Dene, the Danes.]

Danish pastry (dā'nīsh pā'strē) n. A sweet, buttery pastry made with raised dough.

Dan·ite (dän'īt') n. Bible. In the Old Testament, a descendant of Dan. — adj. Of or relating to the Hebrew tribe descended from Dan.

dank (dǎngk) adj. dank-er, dank-est. Disagreeably damp or humid. See Synonyms at wet. [Middle English, probably of Scandinavian origin.] —dank'ly adv. —dank'ness n.

Dan-nay (dǎn'nā), Frederic. 1905-1982. American writer who teamed with his cousin Manfred B. Lee to create the fictional sleuth Ellery Queen.

D'An-nun-zio (dǎn-nōōn'tsyō), Gabriele. 1863-1938. Italian writer best known for his passionate, free-spirited heroes and his support of Benito Mussolini's fascist regime.

Da-no-Nor-we-gian (dā'-nō-nōr-wē'jən) n. An official literary form of Norwegian based on written Danish. Also called Bokmål, Riksmål.

Dan River (dǎn rīv'ər) A river, about 290 km (180 mi) long, of southern Virginia and northern North Carolina flowing south and east to the Roanoke River.

dan-seur (dǎn-sœr') n. pl. dan-seurs (-sœr'). A man who is a ballet dancer. [French, from Old French, from danser, to dance. See DANCE.]

dan-seuse (dǎn-sœz') n. pl. dan-seuses (-sœz'). A woman who is a ballet dancer. [French, feminine of danseur, danseur. See DANSEUR.]

Dan-te A-li-ghie-ri (dǎn'tā ä'lē-gyě'rē, dǎn'tē), 1265-1321. Italian poet whose masterpiece, The Divine Comedy (completed 1321), details his visionary progress through Hell and Purgatory, escorted by Virgil, and through Heaven, guided by his lifelong idealized love Beatrice. —Dan'te-an adj., n.

—Dan-tesque' (dǎn-těsk', dǎn-) adj.

Dan-ton (dǎn-tôn'), Georges Jacques. 1759-1794. French Revolutionary leader who took part in the storming of the Bastille (1789) and supported the execution of Louis XVI (1793) but was guillotined the following year for his opposition to the Reign of Terror.

Da-nu (dǎ'nōō) n. Mythology. The mother of the Irish gods, and the goddess of death.

Dan-ube (dǎn'yōōb) A river of south-central Europe rising in southwest Germany and flowing about 2,848 km (1,770 mi) southeast through Austria, Hungary, Serbia, and Romania to the Black Sea. It has been a major trade route since the Middle Ages. —Dan-u'bi-an adj.

Dan-vers (dǎn'vərz) A town of northeast Massachusetts north-northeast of Boston. It was settled in the 1630's and set off from Salem in 1752. Population, 24,174.

Dan-ville (dǎn'vil') 1. A city of western California, a suburb of Oakland. Population, 31,306. 2. A city of eastern Illinois east-northeast of Decatur. It is a commercial center in an agricultural region. Population, 33,828. 3. An independent city of southern Virginia on the Dan River near the North Carolina border. Founded in 1793, it was the last capital of the Confederacy in 1865. Population, 53,056.

Dan-zig (dǎn'sīg, dǎn'tsík) See Gdańsk.

Danzig Free City (dän'sig frē sīt'ē) A former state (1919-1939) on the Gulf of Gdańsk surrounding and including the city of Gdańsk.

dap (dăp) v. intr. dapped, dap-ping, daps. 1. To fish by letting a baited hook fall gently onto the water. 2. To dip lightly or quickly into water, as a bird does. 3. To skip or bounce, especially over the surface of water. [Probably alteration of DAB¹.]

daph-ne (dăf'nē) n. Any of several Eurasian shrubs of the genus Daphne often cultivated for their glossy evergreen foliage and clusters of small, bell-shaped flowers. [Latin, laurel, from Greek daphnē.]

Daph-ne (dăf'nē) n. Greek Mythology. A nymph who metamorphosed into a laurel tree as a means of escaping from Apollo.

daph-ni-a (dăf'nē-ə) n. pl. daphnia. Any of various water fleas of the genus Daphnia, some species of which are commonly used as food for aquarium fish. [New Latin Daphnia, genus name, perhaps from Latin Daphnē, Daphne.]

Daph-nis (daf'nīs) n. Greek Mythology. A Sicilian shepherd and son of Hermes who was famed as a musician and reputed to be the inventor of pastoral poetry.

Da Pon-te (də pŏn'tē, də pŏn'tè), Lorenzo. 1749-1838. Italian-born American poet and educator who wrote librettos for Mozart's Marriage of Figaro (1786), Don Giovanni (1787), and Così fan Tutte (1790).

dap-per (dăp'ər) adj. 1. a. Neatly dressed; trim. b. Very stylish in dress. 2. Lively and alert. [Middle English daper, elegant, probably from Middle Dutch dapper, quick, strong.] —dap'per-ly adv. —dap'per-ness n.

dap-ple (dăp'əl) n. 1. a. Mottled or spotted marking, as on a horse's coat. b. An individual spot. 2. An animal with a mottled or spotted skin or coat. — v. tr. dap-pled, dap-pling, dap-ples. To mark or mottle with spots. [Back-formation from DAPPLED.] —dap'ple adj.

dap-pled (dăp'əld) adj. Spotted; mottled. [Middle English, probably from Old Norse depill, spot, splash, diminutive of dapi, pool.]

dap-ple-gray (dăp'əl-grā') adj. Gray with a mottled pattern of darker gray markings. — n. A horse having a coat of mottled gray. [Middle English dappel-grai, probably alteration (influenced by DAPPLED), of appel-grai*, apple-gray, from Old Norse apalgrār: apall-, apple + grār, gray.]

dap-son-e (dăp'sŏn', -zŏn') n. An antibacterial drug, C₁₂H₁₂N₂O₂S, used primarily to treat leprosy and some forms of dermatitis. [D(I)⁻¹ + A(MINO)- + (DI)P(HENYL) + S(ULF)ONE.]

DAR abbr. 1. Damage assessment routine. 2. Daughters of the American Revolution.

Dar-by and Joan (där'bē ənd jŏn) n. An elderly married couple who live a placid, harmonious life together and are seldom seen apart. [Probably after Darby and Joan, a couple in an 18th-century English ballad.]

Dard (därd) also Dar-dic (där'dik) n. A group of Indic languages spoken in the upper Indus River valley.

Dar-dan (där'dn) or Dar-da-ni-an (där-dä'nē-ən) n. Archaic. A Trojan. [After Dardanus, the mythical founder of Troy.] — Dar'dan adj.

Dar-da-nelles (där'dn-ēlz') Formerly Hel-les-pont (hěl'i-spönt'). A strait connecting the Aegean Sea with the Sea of Marmara. In ancient times it was the scene of the legendary exploits of Hero and Leander.

Dar-da-nus (där'dn-əs) n. Greek Mythology. The founder of Troy.

Dar-dic (där'dik) n. Variant of Dard.

dare (dâr) v. dared, dar-ing, dares. — v. tr. 1. To have the courage required for: The gymnast dared a breathtakingly difficult move. 2. To challenge (someone) to do something requiring boldness: They dared me to dive off the high board. 3. To confront or oppose boldly; defy. See Synonyms at defy. — v. intr. To be courageous or bold enough to do or try something: Go ahead and dive if you dare. — v. aux. To be courageous or bold enough to: I dare not say. How dare she go? — n. An act of daring; a challenge. [Middle English daren, from Old English dearr, first and third person sing. present indicative of durran, to venture, dare. See dhers- in Appendix.] — dar'er n.

USAGE NOTE: Depending on its sense, the verb dare sometimes behaves like an auxiliary verb (such as can or may) and sometimes like a main verb (such as want or try). When used as an auxiliary verb, dare does not agree with its subject: Let him say that if he dare. It also does not combine with do in questions, negations, or certain other constructions: Dare we tell her the truth? I dare not mention their names. Finally, it does not take to before the complement verb that follows it: If you dare breathe a word about it I'll never speak to you again. When used as a main verb, dare does agree with its subject (If he dares to show up at her house I'll be surprised), and it does combine with do (Did anyone dare to admit it?). It may optionally take to before the verb following it: No one dares (or dares to) speak freely about the political situation. The auxiliary forms are used primarily in present tense questions, negations, imperatives, and conditional clauses. These forms differ subtly in meaning from the main verb forms in that they emphasize the attitude or involvement of the speaker while the main verb forms present a more objective situation. Thus How dare she take the exam without ever once coming to class? expresses indignation at the student's action, whereas How did she dare to take the exam without ever once coming to class? is a genuine request for information. When dare is used as a transitive verb meaning "challenge," only main verb forms are possible and to is required: Anyone who dares (not dare) him to attempt (not just attempt) it will be sorry.

Dare (dâr), Virginia. 1587-1587?. The first child of English parents born in America. She disappeared with other members of the Lost Colony of Roanoke Island in Virginia.

dare·dev·il (dâr'děv'əl) n. One who is recklessly bold. — adj. Recklessly bold. See Synonyms at adventurous. —dare'dev'il-ry, dare'dev'il-try (-trē) n.

dare·say (dâr'sā') v. intr. tr. To think very likely or almost certain; suppose. Used in the first person singular present tense: Will they be late? Yes, I daresay. I daresay you're wrong.

Dar es Sa·laam (dâr' ěs sə-lām') The de facto capital and largest city of Tanzania, in the eastern part of the country on an arm of the Indian Ocean. It was founded in 1862 by the sultan of Zanzibar. The name means "haven of peace." Population, 757,346.

Dar·fur (där-fōor') A region and former sultanate of western Sudan. Occupied since prehistoric times, the area fell to the Egyptians in 1874 and later to the British, who incorporated it into their holdings in the Sudan.

Dar·i·en (där'ē-ĕn', dâr'-, dăr'ē-ən, dâr'-) A town of southwest Connecticut northwest of Stamford. Settled c. 1641, it is mainly residential. Population, 18,196.

Da·ri·én (dâr'ē-ĕn', dār-yĕn') A region of eastern Panama on the Gulf of Darién, a wide bay of the Caribbean Sea between eastern Panama and northwest Colombia. In 1513 Vasco Núñez de Balboa led an expedition across the Isthmus of Darién (now the Isthmus of Panama) and became the first European to view the Pacific Ocean from the New World.

dar·ing (dâr'ing) adj. Willing to take or seek out risks; bold and venturesome. See Synonyms at adventurous. — n. Audacious bravery; boldness. —dar'ing·ly adv. —dar'ing·ness n.

Da·rí·o (dä-rē'ō), Rubén. 1867-1916. Nicaraguan poet who is considered the father of modern Spanish poetry. His works include Cantos de Vida y Esperanza (1905).

dar·i·ole (dăr'ē-ōl') n. 1. A small cooking mold. 2. A dish, as of vegetables, fish, custard, or pastry, that is cooked and served in a small mold. [Middle English dariol, from Old French dariole, a small, filled pastry, alteration of dialectal doriolle, from dorer, to gild. See DORY².]

Da·ri·us I (də-rī'əs), Known as "Darius the Great." 550?-486 B.C. King of Persia (521-486) who expanded the empire, organized a highly efficient administrative system, and invaded Greece, only to be defeated at the Battle of Marathon in 490.

Da·ri·us III (də-rī'əs), Died 330 B.C. King of Persia (336-330) who was defeated in several battles by Alexander the Great. His murder by a Bactrian satrap effectively ended the Persian Empire.

Dar-jee-ling¹ (där-jē'ling) A town of northeast India in the lower Himalaya Mountains on the Sikkim border. At an altitude of 2,287.5 m (7,500 ft), it is a popular tourist center with commanding views of Mount Kanchenjunga and Mount Everest. Population, 57,603.

Dar-jee-ling² (där-jē'ling) n. A fine variety of black tea grown especially in the northern part of India.

dark (därk) adj. dark-er, dark-est. Abbr. dk. 1. a. Lacking or having very little light: a dark corner. b. Lacking brightness: a dark day. 2. Reflecting only a small fraction of incident light. 3. Of a shade tending toward black in comparison with other shades. Used of a color. 4. Having a complexion that is not fair; swarthy. 5. Characterized by gloom; dismal: took a dark view of the consequences. 6. Sullen or threatening: a dark scowl. 7. Difficult to understand; obscure: stories that are large in scope and dark in substance. 8. Concealed or secret; mysterious: "the dark mysteries of Africa and the fabled wonders of the East" (W. Bruce Lincoln). 9. Lacking enlightenment, knowledge, or culture: a dark age in the history of education. 10. Exhibiting or stemming from evil characteristics or forces; sinister: "churned up dark undercurrents of ethnic and religious hostility" (Peter Maas). 11. Having richness or depth: a dark, melancholy vocal tone. 12. Not giving performances; closed: The movie theater is dark on Mondays. — n.

1. Absence of light. 2. A place having little or no light. 3. Night; nightfall: home before dark. 4. A deep hue or color. —idiom. in the dark. 1. In secret: high-level decisions made in the dark. 2. In a state of ignorance; uninformed: kept me in the dark about their plans. [Middle English derk, from Old English deorc.]

—dark'ish adj. —dark'ly adv. —dark'ness n.

SYNONYMS: dark, dim, murky, dusky, obscure, opaque, shady, shadowy. These adjectives indicate the absence of light or clarity. Dark, the most widely applicable, can refer to insufficiency of illumination for seeing: "Under the earth, in the flat, dark air, the wet, gloomy rock gave quarter grudgingly" (Jimmy Breslin). The word can also denote deepness of shade or color (dark brown), absence of cheer (a dark, somber mood), or lack of rectitude: "It [gold] serves what life requires,/But dreadful too, the dark Assassin hires" (Alexander Pope). Dim suggests lack of clarity of outline, as of physical entities or mental processes such as recollection: "life and the memory of it cramped,/dim, on a piece of Bristol board" (Elizabeth Bishop); it can also apply to a source of light to indicate insufficiency: "storied Windows richly dight,/Casting a dim religious light" (John Milton). Murky implies darkness, often extreme, such as that produced by smoke or fog: "an atmosphere murky with sand" (Willa Cather). "The path was altogether indiscernible in the murky darkness which surrounded them" (Sir Walter Scott). Figuratively it can imply dark vagueness: "the narrow crevice of one good deed in a murky life of guilt" (Charles Dickens). Dusky applies principally to the dimness that is characteristic of diminishing light, as at twilight: “The dusky night rides down the sky,/And ushers in the morn” (Henry Fielding); it often refers to deepness of shade of a color: “A dusky blush rose to her cheek” (Edith Wharton). Obscure usually means unclear to the mind or senses (an obscure communiqué requiring clarification), but it can refer to physical darkness (the obscure rooms of a shuttered mansion). Opaque means not admitting penetration by light (opaque rock crystals); figuratively it applies to something that is unintelligible: “Nixon confined himself to opaque philosophical statements that indicated he was not ready for a discussion of basic assumptions” (Henry A. Kissinger). Shady refers literally to what is sheltered from light, especially sunlight (a shady grove of catalpas) or figuratively to what is of questionable honesty (shady business deals). Shadowy also implies obstructed light (a shadowy avenue through thick foliage) but may suggest shifting illumination and indistinctness: “[He] retreated from the limelight to the shadowy fringe of music history” (Charles Sherman). The word can refer to something that seems to lack substance and is mysterious and possibly sinister: a shadowy figure in a black Homburg traversing the fogbound park.

dark adaptation (därk äd'äp-tä'shən) n. The physical and chemical adjustments of the eye, including dilation of the pupil and increased activity of rods in the retina, that make vision possible in relative darkness. —dark'-a-dapt' (därk'ə-däpt') v. —dark'-a-dapt'ed (därk'ə-däpt'id) adj.

Dark Age (därk äj) n. 1. An era of repression and unenlightenment: The war plunged the country into a Dark Age. 2. Dark Ages. a. The period from about A.D. 476 to about the year 1000. b. The entire period from the end of classical civilization to the revival of learning in the West; the Middle Ages.

Dark Continent (därk kōn'tə-nənt) A former name for Africa, so used because its hinterland was largely unexplored and therefore mysterious until the 19th century. Henry M. Stanley was probably the first to use the term in his 1878 account Through the Dark Continent.

dark-en (där'kən) v. dark-ened, dark-en-ing, dark-ens. — v. tr. 1. a. To make dark or darker. b. To give a darker hue to. 2. To fill with sadness; make gloomy. 3. To render vague or uncertain; obscure: The sudden drop in stock prices darkened the future for investors. 4. To tarnish or stain: a scandal that darkened the family's good name. — v. intr. To become dark or darker. —dark'en-er n.

dark-field microscope (därk'fēld' mī'krə-skōp') n. A microscope in which an object is illuminated only from the sides so that it appears bright against a dark background.

dark horse (därk hōrs) n. 1. One who achieves unexpected support and success as a political candidate, typically during a party's convention. 2. A little-known, unexpectedly successful entrant, as in a horserace.

dark lantern (därk län'tərn) n. A lantern whose light can be blocked, as by a sliding panel.

dar-kle (där'kəl) v. dar-kled, dar-king, dar-kles. — v. intr. 1. To appear darkly or indistinctly. 2. a. To grow dark. b. To become gloomy. — v. tr. To make dark or indistinct: “the dramatist... whose province it is to darkle and obscure” (London National Observer). [Back-formation from DARKLING.]

dar-king (där'klīng) adv. In the dark. — adj. 1. Occurring or enacted in the dark. 2. Dark; dim. — n. The dark: “She carried some rugs for me through the shrubbery in the darkling” (H.G. Wells).

darkling beetle (där'klīng bēt'l) n. A beetle of the family Tenebrionidae, having a brown or black body and feeding on decaying vegetation, living plants, or stored grain. It is found in a variety of habitats, including deserts. Also called tenebrionid dark reaction (därk rē-āk'shən) n. The second stage of photosynthesis, not requiring light to occur, and during which energy released from ATP drives the production of organic molecules from carbon dioxide.

dark-room (därk'rōom', -rōom') n. A room in which photographic materials are processed, either in complete darkness or with a safelight.

dark-some (därk'səm) adj. Dark and somber.

dark star (därk stār) n. A star that is normally obscured or too faint for direct visual observation, especially the component of an eclipsing binary star detectable by spectral analysis or in the eclipse of the bright component.

Dar-lan (där-län'), Jean Louis Xavier François. 1881-1942. French admiral. A leading member of Marshal Pétain's Vichy government, he was nevertheless instrumental in persuading French territories in northern and western Africa to side with the Allies after 1942.

dar-ling (där'ling) n. 1. A dearly beloved person. 2. One that is greatly liked or preferred; a favorite: “the pride and vanity of the rich, the darlings of fate” (Mario Puzo). — adj. 1. Dearly beloved. 2. Regarded with special favor; favorite: “Metaphysics and poetry... are my darling studies” (Samuel Taylor Coleridge). 3. Informal. Charming or amusing: a darling hat. [Middle English dereling, from Old English dēorling: dēore, dear + -ling, diminutive suff.; see -LING¹.]

Dar-ling Range (där'ling rānj) An upland region of southwest Australia extending along the Pacific coast north and south of Perth.

Darling River (där'ling rīv'ər) A river rising in the Great Dividing Range of southeast Australia and flowing about 2,739 km (1,702 mi) generally southwest to the Murray River. It is the longest river in Australia but has a sporadic flow.

Dar-ling-ton (där'ling-tən) A borough of northeast England south of Newcastle. It is a railroad center. Population, 97,800.

Darm-stadt (därm'stät, -shtät') A city of southwest Germany southeast of Frankfurt. It was chartered in 1330. Population, 134,718.

darn¹ (därn) v. darned, darn-ing, darns. — v. tr. To mend (a garment, for example) by weaving thread or yarn across a gap or hole. — v. intr. To repair a hole, as in a garment, by weaving thread or yarn across it. — n. A hole repaired by weaving thread or yarn across it: a sock full of darns. [French dialectal darnier, perhaps from Norman French darne, piece, from Breton darn.] — darn'er n.

darn² (därn) interj. Used to express dissatisfaction or annoyance. — adv. & adj. Damn. — v. tr. intr. darned, darn-ing, darns. To damn. [Alteration of DAMN.]

dar-na-tion (där-nā'shən) n. & interj. Damnation. See Regional note at tar-nation.

darned (därnd) adj. Damned.

darned-est or darnd-est (därn'dĭst) n. The most possible: I did my darnedest to finish on time.

dar-nel (där'nəl) n. Any of several Eurasian grasses of the genus Lolium, especially L. temulentum or L. perenne. Also called rye grass [Middle English.]

darn-ing needle (där'nĭng nĕd'l) n. 1. A long, large-eyed needle used in darning. 2. Upper Northern U.S. See dragonfly. See Regional note at dragon-fly.

Darn-ley (därn'lē), Lord Title of Henry Stewart or Stuart. 1545-1567. Scottish nobleman and second husband (1565-1567) of Mary Queen of Scots. He plotted to kill David Rizzio, Mary's secretary, in 1566 and was himself murdered the following year, possibly at the urging of Mary's lover, the Earl of Bothwell.

Dar-row (där'ō), Clarence Seward. 1857-1938. American lawyer known for his highly publicized defense of so-called lost causes, such as the Leopold-Loeb murder case (1924) and the Scopes evolution trial (1925).

dart (därt) n. 1. a. A slender, pointed missile, often having tail fins, thrown by hand, shot from a blowgun, or expelled by an exploding bomb. b. An object likened to a slender, pointed missile either in shape, use, or effect. 2. The stinger of an insect. 3. darts. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Games. A game in which small, slender, pointed missiles are thrown at a target. 4. A sudden, rapid movement. 5. A tapered tuck sewn to adjust the fit of a garment. — v. dart-ed, dart-ing, darts. — v. intr. To move suddenly and rapidly: The dog darted across the street. — v. tr. 1. To thrust or throw suddenly and rapidly. 2. To cause to move swiftly and abruptly: The squirrel darted its head from side to side before scampering up the tree. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

dart-er (där'tər) n. 1. One that moves suddenly and rapidly. 2. See anhinga. 3. Any of various small, often brilliantly colored freshwater fishes of the family Percidae, closely related to the perches and found in eastern North America.

Dart-ford (därt'fərd) A municipal borough of southeast England east-southeast of London. The Peasants' Revolt led by Wat Tyler began here in June 1381. Population, 77,900.

Dart-moor (därt' mōor', -mōr', -mōr') An upland region of southwest England noted for its bare granite tors. There are remains of numerous Bronze Age settlements.

Dart-mouth (därt' mæth) 1. A city of southern Nova Scotia, Canada, on an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean opposite Halifax. It was founded by the British in the 1750's. Population, 62,277. 2. A town of southeast Massachusetts on Buzzards Bay southwest of New Bedford. Formerly a shipbuilding center, it is now a tourist resort. Population, 27,244.

Dar-von (där'vōn) A trademark used for propoxyphene hydrochloride.

Dar-win (där'wīn) A city of northern Australia on Port Darwin, an inlet of the Timor Sea. It was founded as Palmerston in 1869 and renamed in 1911. Population, 65,200.

Dar-win (där'wīn), Charles Robert. 1809-1882. British naturalist who revolutionized the study of biology with his theory of evolution based on natural selection. His most famous works include Origin of Species (1859) and The Descent of Man (1871). —Dar-win'i-an adj. & n.

Dar-win (där'wīn), Erasmus. 1731-1802. British physician, scientist, reformer, and poet whose Zoonomia (1794-1796) anticipated the evolutionary theories of his grandson Charles.

Dar-win-ism (där'wī-nīz'əm) n. A theory of biological evolution developed by Charles Darwin and others, stating that all species of organisms arise and develop through the natural selection of small, inherited variations that increase the individual's ability to compete, survive, and reproduce. Also called Darwinian theory —Dar'win-ist n. —Dar'win-is'tic adj.

DASD abbr. Computer Science. Direct access storage device.

dash¹ (dāsh) v. dashed, dash-ing, dash-es. — v. tr. 1. To break or smash by striking violently. 2. To hurl, knock, or thrust with sudden violence. 3. To splash; bespatter. 4. To perform or complete hastily: dash off a letter; dash down a glass of juice. 5. a. To add an enlivening or altering element to. b. To affect by adding another element or ingredient to: ice cream that was dashed with rum.

6. a. To destroy or wreck: Our dreams were dashed. See Synonyms at blast.

b. To confound; abash. — v. intr. 1. To strike violently; smash. 2. To move with haste; rush: dashed to the door. — n. 1. A swift, violent blow or stroke:

knocked the books to the floor with an impatient dash of his hand. 2. a. A splash.

b. A small amount of an added ingredient: a dash of sherry. 3. A quick stroke, as with a pencil or brush. 4. A sudden movement; a rush: made a dash for the exit.

5. Sports. A footrace, usually less than a quarter-mile long, run at top speed from the outset. 6. A spirited quality in action or style; verve. See Synonyms at vigor.

7. A punctuation mark (—) used in writing and printing. 8. In Morse and similar codes, the long sound or signal used in combination with the dot and silent intervals to represent letters or numbers. 9. A dashboard. [Middle English dashen, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Danish daske, to beat.]

dash² (dăsh) v. tr. dashed, dash-ing, dash-es. To damn. [Alteration of DAMN.]

dash-board (dăsh'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A panel under the windshield of a vehicle, containing indicator dials, compartments, and sometimes control instruments.

da-sheen (dă-shēn') n. See taro. [Origin unknown.]

dash-er (dăsh'ər) n. One that dashes, especially the plunger of an ice-cream freezer.

da-shi (dă'shē) n. A clear soup stock, usually with a fish or vegetable base. [Japanese, broth.]

da-shi-ki (də-shē'kē) also dai-shi-ki (dī-) n. pl. da-shi-kis. A loose, brightly colored African garment. [Yoruba dansiki.]

dash-ing (dăsh'ing) adj. 1. Audacious and gallant; spirited. 2. Marked by showy elegance; splendid: a dashing coat. See Synonyms at fashionable.

—dash/ing-ly adv.

dash-pot (dăsh'pôt') n. A device consisting of a piston that moves within a cylinder containing oil, used to dampen and control motion.

Dasht-e-Ka-vir (dăsh'tē-kə-vîr', dăsh'tē-kä-vîr') A salt desert of north-central Iran southeast of the Elburz Mountains.

Dasht-e-Lut (dăsh'tē-lōōt') A sand and stone desert of eastern Iran extending southward from the Dasht-e-Kavir.

das-sie (dăs'ē) n. See hyrax. [Afrikaans, diminutive of das, badger, from Middle Dutch. See teks- in Appendix.]

Das-sin (dăs'in), Jules. Born 1911. American-born French film director whose credits include Never on Sunday (1959).

das-tard (dăs'tərd) n. A sneaking, malicious coward. [Middle English, probably alteration of Old Norse dæstr, exhausted, from past participle of dæsa, to languish, decay.]

das-tard-ly (dăs'tərd-lē) adj. Cowardly and malicious; base. —das-tard-li-ness n.

das-y-ure (dăs'ē-yōōr') n. Any of various often carnivorous marsupials of the family Dasyuridae of Australia, Tasmania, and adjacent islands, including marsupial mice and rats, native cats, the Tasmanian devil, and the Tasmanian wolf. [New Latin Dasyurus, genus name : Greek dasus, hairy + oura, tail; see ors- in Appendix.]

dat. abbr. Dative.

da-ta (dā'tə, dăt'ə, dă'tə) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. Factual information, especially information organized for analysis or used to reason or make decisions. 2. Computer Science. Numerical or other information represented in a form suitable for processing by computer. 3. Values derived from scientific experiments. 4. Plural of datum (n., sense 1). — pl.n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: data communications; data updates. [Latin, pl. of datum. See DATUM.]

USAGE NOTE: Data originated as the plural of Latin datum, “something given,” and many maintain that it must still be treated as a plural form. The New York Times, for example, adheres to the traditional rule in this headline: “Data Are Elusive on the Homeless.” But while data comes from a Latin plural form, the practice of treating data as a plural in English often does not correspond to its meaning, given an understanding of what counts as data in modern research. We know, for example, what “data on the homeless” would consist of—surveys, case histories, statistical analyses, and so forth—but it would be a vain exercise to try to sort all of these out into sets of individual facts, each of them a “datum” on the homeless. (Does a case history count as a single datum, or as a collection of them? Is a correlation between rates of homelessness and unemployment itself a datum, or is it an abstraction over a number of data?) Since scientists and researchers think of data as a singular mass entity like information, it is entirely natural that they should have come to talk about it as such and that others should defer to their practice. Sixty percent of the Usage Panel accepts the use of data with a singular verb and pronoun in the sentence Once the data is in, we can begin to analyze it. A still larger number, 77 percent, accepts the sentence We have very little data on the efficacy of such programs, where the singularity of data is implicit in the use of the quantifier very little (contrast the oddness of We have very little facts on the efficacy of such programs).

data bank or da·ta·bank (dā'tə-bangk', dāt'ə-) n. Computer Science. 1. See database. 2. An organization chiefly concerned with building, maintaining, and using a data bank.

da·ta·base (dā'tə-bās', dāt'ə-) Computer Science. n. also data base A collection of data arranged for ease and speed of search and retrieval. Also called data bank — v. tr. da·ta·based, da·ta·bas·ing, da·ta·bas·es. To put (data) into a database.

data carrier (dā'tə kār'ē-ər) n. Computer Science. A medium, such as magnetic tape, that is selected to record and often transport or communicate data.

data did·dling (dā'tə dīd'līng) n. Slang. Computer crime involving the illegal manipulation of data before or during input.

data processing (dā'tə prōs'ēs'īng) n. Abbr. DP Computer Science.

1. Conversion of data into a form that can be processed by computer. 2. The storing or processing of data by a computer. — da'ta-pro'cess'ing (dā'tə-prōs'ēs'īng, -prō'sēs'-, dāt'ə-) adj.

data processor (dā'tə prōs'ēs'ər) n. 1. Computer Science. A device, such as a calculator or computer, that performs operations on data. 2. A person who processes data.

data set (dā'tə sēt) n. Abbr. DS Computer Science. 1. An electronic device that provides an interface in the transmission of data to a remote station. 2. A collection of related data records on a computer-readable medium, such as a disk. 3. See modem.

date¹ (dāt) n. Abbr. d. 1. a. Time stated in terms of the day, month, and year. b. A statement of calendar time, as on a document. 2. A specified day of a month. 3. A particular point or period of time at which something happened or existed, or is expected to happen. 4. The time during which something lasts; duration. 5. The time or historical period to which something belongs: artifacts of a later date. 6. a. An appointment, especially an engagement to go out socially with a member of the opposite sex, for example. See Synonyms at engagement. b. A person's companion on such an outing. 7. An engagement for a performance: has four singing dates this month. — v. dat-ed, dat-ing, dates. — v. tr. 1. To mark or supply with a date: date a letter. 2. To determine the date of: date a fossil. 3. To betray the age of: Pictures of old cars date the book. 4. To go on a date with. — v. intr. 1. To have origin in a particular time in the past: This statue dates from 500 B.C. 2. To become old-fashioned. 3. To go on dates. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin data, from Latin data (Romae), issued (at Rome) (on a certain day), feminine past participle of dare, to give. See dō- in Appendix.] —dat'a-ble, date'a-ble adj. —dat'er n.

date² (dāt) n. 1. The sweet, edible, oblong or oval fruit of the date palm, containing a narrow, hard seed. 2. A date palm. [Middle English, from Old French, from Old Provençal datil, from Latin dactylus, from Greek daktulos, date, finger (from its shape).]

dat-ed (dā'tid) adj. 1. Marked with or displaying a date. 2. Old-fashioned; out-of-date. —dat'ed-ly adv. —dat'ed-ness n.

date-less (dāt'līs) adj. 1. Having no date whatsoever. 2. So ancient that no date can be determined. 3. Having no limits in time; timeless.

date-line (dāt'līn') n. A phrase at the beginning of a newspaper or magazine article that gives the date and place of its origin. —date'line' v.

date line (dāt līn) n. The International Date Line.

date palm (dāt pām) n. A palm tree (Phoenix dactylifera) of western Asia and northern Africa and cultivated also in California, having featherlike leaves and bearing clusters of dates.

date rape (dāt rāp) n. Rape perpetrated by the victim's social escort.

dat-ing bar (dā'tīng bār) n. See singles bar.

da-tive (dā'tiv) Grammar. adj. Abbr. dat. Of, relating to, or being the grammatical case that in some Indo-European languages, such as Latin and Russian, as well as in some non-Indo-European languages, marks the recipient of action and is used with prepositions or other function words corresponding in meaning to English to and for. — n. 1. The dative case. 2. A word or form in the dative case. [Middle English datif, from Latin (cāsus) datīvus, (case) of giving (translation of Greek dotikē (ptōsis)), from datus, past participle of dare, to give. See dō- in Appendix.] —da'tive·ly adv.

Da·tong (dä'tông') also Ta·tung (tä'tōōng') A city of northeast China west of Beijing. It is an important industrial and railroad center. Population, 688,200.

da·tum (dä'təm, dät'əm, dä'təm) n. 1. pl. da·ta (-tə). A fact or proposition used to draw a conclusion or make a decision. See Usage Note at data. 2. pl.

da·tums. A point, line, or surface used as a reference, as in surveying, mapping, or geology. [Latin, something given, from neuter past participle of dare, to give. See dō- in Appendix.]

da·tu·ra (də-tōör'ə, -tyōör'ə) n. Any of several plants of the genus Datura, having large trumpet-shaped flowers up to 25 centimeters (10 inches) long and usually prickly fruits. The leaves and seeds yield alkaloids with narcotic properties. Also called thorn apple [New Latin Datura, genus name, from Hindi dhatūrā, from Sanskrit dhattūrā, thorn-apple.]

daub (dôb) v. daubed, daub·ing, daubs. — v. tr. 1. To cover or smear with a soft, adhesive substance, such as plaster, grease, or mud. 2. To apply paint to with hasty or crude strokes. — v. intr. To apply paint or coloring with crude, unskillful strokes. — n. 1. The act or a stroke of daubing. 2. A soft, adhesive coating material, such as plaster, grease, or mud. 3. Matter daubed on; a smear. 4. A crude, amateurish painting or picture. [Middle English dauben, from Old French dauber, from Latin dēalbāre, to whitewash : dē-, intensive pref.; see DE- + albus, white; see albho- in Appendix.] —daub'er n. —daub'er·y (dô'bə-rē) n.

Dau·bi·gny (dō-bē-nyē'), Charles François. 1817-1878. French landscape painter best known for his sensitive portrayal of light, which influenced the later impressionists.

Dau·det (dō-dā'), Alphonse. 1840-1897. French writer of the naturalist school whose stories of life in his native Provence include Lettres de mon Moulin (1869).

Dau·det (dō-dā'), Léon. 1867-1942. French writer known for his highly charged political essays and numerous volumes of memoirs.

Dau·gav·pils (dou'gəf-pīlz', -gäf-pēlz') A city of southeast Latvia southeast of Riga. Founded in the 13th century, it was held by Germany (1941-1944) during World War II. Population, 124,000.

Daugh·er·ty (dô'ər-tē), Harry Micajah. 1860-1941. American lawyer and politician who was a prominent member of the Ohio Gang that supported President Warren G. Harding. He served as U.S. attorney general from 1921 to 1924.

daugh·ter (dô'tər) n. Abbr. d. 1. One's female child. 2. A female descendant. 3. A woman considered as if in a relationship of child to parent: a daughter of the nation. 4. One personified or regarded as a female descendant: "Culturally Japan is a daughter of Chinese civilization" (Edwin O. Reischauer). 5. Physics. The immediate product of the radioactive decay of an element. — adj. Possessing the characteristics of a daughter; having the relationship of a daughter. [Middle English doughter, from Old English dohtor. See dhugh·ter- in Appendix.]

—daugh'ter-ly adj.

daughter cell (dô'tər sĕl) n. Biology. Either of the two identical cells that form when a cell divides.

daugh·ter-in-law (dô'tər-ĭn-lô') n. pl. daugh·ters-in-law (dô'tərz-). The wife of one's son.

Dau·mier (dō-myā'), Honoré. 1808-1879. French artist best known for his bitterly satirical lithographs of scenes from bourgeois society.

daunt (dônt, dănt) v. tr. daunt·ed, daunt·ing, daunts. To abate the courage of; discourage. See Synonyms at dismay. [Middle English daunten, from Old French danter, from Latin domitāre, frequentative of domāre, to tame. See demə- in Appendix.] —daunt'er n. —daunt'ing-ly adv.

daunt-less (dônt'lis, dănt'-) adj. Incapable of being intimidated or discouraged; fearless. See Synonyms at brave. —daunt'less-ly adv. —daunt'less-ness n.

dau·phin (dô'fĭn) n. 1. The eldest son of the king of France from 1349 to 1830. 2. Used as a title for such a nobleman. [Middle English, from Old French, title of the lords of Dauphiné, from Dalphin, Dalfin, a surname, from dalfin, dolphin (from the device on the family's coat of arms). See DOLPHIN.]

dau·phine (dô-fĕn') n. The wife of a dauphin. [French, feminine of dauphin. See DAUPHIN.]

Dau·phi·né (dô-fĕ-nā') A historical region and former province of southeast France bordering on Italy. After 1349 it became an appanage controlled by the eldest son of the king of France.

Daus·set (dō-sĕ', -sā'), Jean. Born 1915. French physiologist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for discoveries concerning the relationship of cell structure to organ transplants and diseases.

DAV abbr. Disabled American Veterans.

Da·vao (dă'vou') A city of southeast Mindanao, Philippines, on Davao Gulf, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. Davao is a major port and commercial center. Population, 270,600.

Dav·e·nant or D'Av·e·nant (dăv'ə-nənt, dăv'nənt), Sir William. 1606-1668. English playwright whose works include The Wits (performed 1633) and The Siege of Rhodes (1656), one of the earliest known dramas to combine words and music. He was appointed poet laureate in 1638.

dav-en-port (däv'ən-pôrt', -pôrt') n. 1. A large sofa, often convertible into a bed. 2. A small desk. [From davenport, a small writing desk (obsolete), probably from the name of the manufacturer.]

Dav-en-port (däv'ın-pôrt', -pôrt') A city of eastern Iowa on the Mississippi River opposite Moline and Rock Island, Illinois. It grew rapidly after the first railroad bridge across the Mississippi was completed in 1856. Population, 95,333.

Dav-en-port (däv'ın-pôrt', -pôrt'), John. 1597-1670. English Puritan who fled to America in 1637 and helped found a colony at New Haven, Connecticut.

Da-vid (dā'vıd), Died c. 962 B.C. The second king of Judah and Israel. According to the Old Testament, he slew the Philistine giant Goliath and succeeded Saul as king. He is the reputed author of many of the Psalms.

Da-vid (dā'vıd), Saint. c. 520-600. Patron saint of Wales. His shrine at St. David's in southwest Wales was an important place of pilgrimage during the Middle Ages.

Da-vid I (dā'vıd), 1082?-1153. King of Scotland (1124-1153) who transformed Scotland into a feudalistic society.

Da-vid (dä'vət), Gerard. 1460?-1523. Dutch painter of religious subjects who is regarded as one of the most important Flemish primitives.

Da-vid (dä'ved'), Jacques Louis. 1748-1825. French painter known for his classicism and his commitment to the ideals of the French Revolution. His works include The Oath of the Horatii (1785) and The Death of Marat (1793).

Da-vid-son (dā'vıd-sən), Jo(seph). 1883-1952. American sculptor best remembered for his vigorous portrait busts of Woodrow Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Albert Einstein, among others.

Da-vie (dā've) A town of southeast Florida southwest of Fort Lauderdale. It is in a citrus-growing area. Population, 47,217.

Da-vies (dā'vez), Arthur Bowen. 1862-1928. American painter who was the chief organizer of the revolutionary Armory Show in 1913.

Da-vies (dā'vez), Marion. 1898?-1961. American actress known mainly for her long liaison with William Randolph Hearst, who built San Simeon for her.

Dá-vi-la y Pa-di-lla (dä'və-lə ē pä-dē'ə, dä've-lä ē pä-thē'yä), Agustín. Known as "Chronicler of the Indies." 1562-1604. Mexican prelate and historian who wrote a mammoth study of the Spanish colonial era in Mexico and Florida.

da Vin-ci (də vın'chē, də), Leonardo. See Leonardo da Vinci.

Da-vis (dā'vıs) A city of central California west of Sacramento. A branch of the University of California (established 1908) is here. Population, 46,209.

Da-vis (dā'vıs), Alexander Jackson. 1803-1892. American architect noted for his Greek revival edifices, such as the Patent Office in Washington, D.C. (1832), and the state capitols of Indiana (1835) and North Carolina (1837).

Da-vis (dā'vıs), Benjamin Oliver. 1877-1970. American cavalry officer who was the first Black general in the U.S. Army (1940-1948). His son Benjamin Oliver Davis, Jr. (born 1912), was the first Black general in the U.S. Air Force (1954-1970).

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Bette. 1908-1989. American actress who won an Academy Award for Dangerous (1935) and Jezebel (1938).

Da·vis (dā'vīs), David. 1815-1886. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1862-1877).

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Dwight Filley. 1879-1945. American tennis player and donor (1900) of the Davis Cup for the annual international team tennis competition.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Elmer Holmes. 1890-1958. American commentator best known for his radio news analyses during and in the years immediately following World War II.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Jefferson. 1808-1889. American soldier and president of the Confederacy (1861-1865). He was captured by Union soldiers in 1865 and imprisoned for two years, and although he was indicted for treason (1866), he was never prosecuted.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), John. See John Davys.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), John William. 1873-1955. American politician and diplomat who ran unsuccessfully for President against Calvin Coolidge in 1924.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Miles Dewey, Jr. 1926-1991. American jazz musician acclaimed for his warm, often muted trumpet style.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Rebecca Blaine Harding. 1831-1910. American writer whose early works, such as the novel Margaret Howth (1862), are among the first examples of American realism.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Richard Harding. 1864-1916. American writer whose vivid coverage of the Spanish-American, Boer, and Russo-Japanese wars established him as the leading correspondent of his day.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Sammy, Jr. 1925-1990. American entertainer famous for his exuberant dancing, singing, and acting.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), Stuart. 1894-1964. American artist who often incorporated jazz tempos into his vibrant canvases. In the 1920's he was strongly influenced by cubism.

Da·vis (dā'vīs), William Morris. 1850-1934. American geologist and geographer who systematized the study of geography and revolutionized its teaching in the United States.

Da·vis-son (dā'vī-sən), Clinton Joseph. 1881-1958. American physicist. He shared a 1937 Nobel Prize for the discovery of the diffraction of electrons by crystals.

Davis Strait (dā'vīs strāt) A strait of the northern Atlantic Ocean between southeast Baffin Island and southwest Greenland.

- dav-it (dāv'it, dā'vīt) n. Nautical. Any of various types of small cranes that project over the side of a ship and are used to hoist boats, anchors, and cargo. [Middle English daviot, from Norman French daviot, diminutive of Davi, David.]
- Da-vy (dā'vē), Sir Humphry. 1778-1829. British chemist who was a pioneer of electrochemistry, using its methods to isolate sodium and potassium (1807) and barium, boron, calcium, and magnesium (1808).
- Davy Jones (dā'vē jōnz') n. The bottom of the sea, as personified in songs and stories. [Origin unknown.]
- Davy Jones's locker (dā'vē jōn'ziz lɔk'ər, jōnz) n. The bottom of the sea, especially as the grave of all who perish at sea.
- Da-vys also Da-vis (dā'vis), John. 1550?-1605. English navigator who explored the Arctic while searching for the Northwest Passage and later sailed to the South Seas. He discovered the Falkland Islands in 1592.
- daw (dô) n. A jackdaw. [Middle English dawe, from Old English dāwe*.]
- daw-dle (dôd'l) v. daw-dled, daw-dling, daw-dles. — v. intr. 1. To take more time than necessary: dawdled through breakfast. 2. To move aimlessly or lackadaisically: dawdling on the way to work. — v. tr. To waste (time) by idling: dawdling the hours away. [Perhaps alteration of dialectal daddle, to diddle.] — daw'dler n. — daw'dling-ly adv.
- Dawes (dôz), Charles Gates. 1865-1951. Vice President of the United States (1925-1929) under Calvin Coolidge. He shared the 1925 Nobel Peace Prize for proposing the Dawes Plan to reduce Germany's World War I reparations.
- Dawes (dôz), William. 1745-1799. American patriot who rode with Paul Revere on April 18, 1775, to warn of the British advance on Lexington and Concord, Massachusetts.
- dawn (dôn) n. 1. The time each morning at which daylight first begins. 2. A first appearance; a beginning: the dawn of history. See Synonyms at beginning. — v. intr. dawned, dawn-ing, dawns. 1. To begin to become light in the morning. 2. To begin to appear or develop; emerge. 3. To begin to be perceived or understood: Realization of the danger soon dawned on us. [From Middle English daunen, to dawn, probably a back-formation from dauning, daybreak, alteration of dauing, from Old English dagung, from dagian, to dawn. See agh- in Appendix.]
- dawn redwood (dôn rēd'wōd') n. A cone-bearing Chinese tree (Metasequoia glyptostroboides) related to the redwood, having deciduous, flat, opposite leaves and small, globular cones. It is now commonly cultivated in the United States.
- Daw-son (dô'sən) A town of western Yukon Territory, Canada, at the confluence of the Yukon and Klondike rivers. A boom town during the Klondike gold rush of the late 1890's, it was the territorial capital from 1898 to 1951. Population, 697.

Daw-son (dô'sən), Sir John William. 1820-1899. Canadian geologist and anti-Darwinist who was an authority on fossils.

Dawson Creek (dô'sən krĕk) A city of eastern British Columbia, Canada, near the Alberta border. It is the southern terminus of the Alaska Highway. Population, 11,373.

day (dā) n. Abbr. d 1. The period of light between dawn and nightfall; the interval from sunrise to sunset. 2. a. The 24-hour period during which Earth completes one rotation on its axis. b. The period during which a celestial body makes a similar rotation. 3. One of the numbered 24-hour periods into which a week, month, or year is divided. 4. The portion of a 24-hour period that is devoted to work, school, or business: an eight-hour day; a sale that lasted for three days. 5. A 24-hour period or a portion of it that is reserved for a certain activity: a day of rest. 6. a. A specific, characteristic period in one's lifetime: That writer has had his day. In grandmother's day, skirts were long. b. A period of opportunity: Every defendant is entitled to a day in court. 7. A period of time in history; an era: We studied the tactics used in Napoleon's day. The day of computer science is well upon us. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the day. 2. Working during the day: the day nurse. 3. Occurring before nightfall: a day hike. — idioms. day after day. For many days; continuously. day in, day out. Every day without fail; continuously. [Middle English dai, day, from Old English dæg. See agh- in Appendix.]

Day (dā), Benjamin Henry. 1810-1889. American printer and journalist who founded the first penny newspaper, the New York Sun (1833). His son Benjamin (1838-1916) invented the Ben Day process for shading printed illustrations.

Day (dā), Clarence Shepard, Jr. 1874-1935. American writer best known for his autobiographical Life with Father (1935) and Life with Mother (published 1937).

Day (dā), Dorothy. 1897-1980. American journalist and reformer who cofounded the Catholic Worker in 1933 to promote pacifism and social justice.

Day or Daye (dā), Stephen. 1594?-1668. English-born colonist who was the first printer in New England. His Bay Psalm Book appeared in 1640.

Day (dā), William Rufus. 1849-1923. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1903-1922).

Day-ak (dā'ăk') or Dy-ak (dī'-) n. pl. Dayak or Day-aks also Dyak or Dy-aks. 1. A member of any of various Indonesian peoples inhabiting Borneo. 2. The language of the Dayak.

Da-yan (dā-yăn'), Moshe. 1915-1981. Israeli military leader and politician who directed the 1956 Sinai campaign and the 1967 Six-Day War.

day bed or day-bed (dā'bĕd') n. A couch or sofa that is convertible into a bed.

day-book (dā'bōök') n. Abbr. DB, D.B. 1. A book in which daily transactions are recorded. 2. A diary.

day-break (dā'brāk') n. The beginning of day; dawn.

day camp (dā kāmp) n. A children's camp providing recreation and meals during the day but no overnight facilities.

day-care or day care (dā'kâr') n. Provision of daytime training, supervision, recreation, and often medical services for children of preschool age, for the disabled, or for the elderly. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: daycare providers; day care centers.

day-dream (dā'drēm') n. A dreamlike musing or fantasy while awake, especially of the fulfillment of wishes or hopes. — v. intr. day-dreamed or day-dreamt (-drēm't'), day-dreaming, day-dreams. To have dreamlike musings or fantasies while awake. —day'dream'er n.

Daye (dā), Stephen. See Stephen Day.

day-flow-er (dā'flou'ər) n. Any of various plants of the genus Commelina having blue or purplish flowers that wilt quickly.

day-fly (dā'fli') n. See mayfly.

Day-Glo (dā'glō') A trademark used for fluorescent coloring agents and materials. This trademark sometimes occurs in print in figurative contexts and in lowercase: "It was during that Day-Glo decade when the world finally found the path to McLuhan's door" (New York Times). "The troupe's staging... follows Alice's fantasy romp through day-glo daisies, past a smiling Cheshire cat" (Los Angeles Times).

day-hop (dā'höp') n. Informal. 1. A trip that can be made in one day's time: It was just a dayhop from New York City to the Berkshires for skiing. 2. A day student at a boarding school, college, or university.

day labor (dā lā'bər) n. Labor hired and paid by the day. —day laborer n.

day letter (dā lēt'ər) n. A telegram sent during the day.

Day Lew-is (dā lōw'is), Cecil. 1904-1972. Irish-born poet and critic who became poet laureate in 1968 and wrote detective novels under the pen name Nicholas Blake.

day-light (dā'līt') n. 1. The light of day; sunlight. 2. a. Daybreak.

b. Daytime. 3. Exposure to public notice: corrupt business practices that were finally brought into the daylight. 4. Understanding or insight into what was formerly obscure: finally began to see daylight concerning the root of the problem.

5. daylight. Slang. One's wits: "His adventurism had scared the daylight out of them" (Frederick Forsyth).

day-light-sav-ing time (dā'līt-sā'vīng tīm) n. Abbr. DST, D.S.T. Time during which clocks are set one hour or more ahead of standard time to provide more daylight at the end of the working day during late spring, summer, and early fall.

day lily or day-lil-y (dā'līl'ē) n. Any of several perennial Eurasian herbs of the genus Hemerocallis in the lily family, having often grasslike leaves and yellow, orange, or purplish lilylike flowers. Also called hemerocallis day-long (dā'lōng', -lōng') adj. Lasting through the whole day. — adv.

Through the day; all day.

day nursery (dā nûr'sə-rē) n. A facility for the supervision of preschool children, especially during the hours that their parents are at work.

Day of Atonement (dā ùv ə-tōn'mənt) n. See Yom Kippur. [Translation of Hebrew yôm kippûr.]

Day of Judgment (dā ùv jŭj'mənt) n. See Judgment Day (n., sense 1).

day one (dā wŭn) n. Informal. The very beginning; the first day: worked hard on the project from day one.

day-pack (dā'pāk') n. A rather small, lightweight backpack for carrying articles such as books.

day room (dā rōom) n. A recreation room, especially one found in a barracks on a military installation.

day sailer (dā sāl'lər) n. Nautical. A small sailboat for day trips.

day school (dā skōol) n. 1. A private school for pupils living at home. 2. A school that holds classes during the day.

day shift or day-shift (dā'shif't') n. 1. A group of employees working during the day in a factory or business. 2. The period of time for such work.

day-side (dā'sīd') n. 1. Office employees and other personnel who work days. 2. The side of a planet facing the sun. — day'side' adj.

days of grace (dāz ùv grās) pl.n. Extra days, usually three, allowed for payment of a note or bill after it has come due. [Translation of Latin diēs gratiae.]

day-star (dā'stār') n. 1. The morning star. 2. The sun.

day student (dā stōod'nt) n. A student at a school or university who does not reside in the facilities provided by the institution.

day-time (dā'tīm') n. The time between sunrise and sunset. — adj. Occurring in or appropriate for use during the day: daytime tasks; daytime clothes.

day-to-day (dā'tə-dā') adj. 1. Occurring on a routine or daily basis: the day-to-day movements of the stock market. 2. Subsisting one day at a time with little regard for the future: lived a day-to-day existence.

Day-ton (dāt'n) A city of southwest Ohio north-northeast of Cincinnati. Now a manufacturing center, it was the home of Orville and Wilbur Wright. Population, 182,044.

Day-to-na Beach (dā-tō'nə bēch) A city of northeast Florida on the Atlantic coast north-northeast of Orlando. Automobile speed trials and races have been held on its hard, white beach since the early 1900's. Population, 54,176.

day-tripper (dā'trīp'ər) n. One who takes a trip during the day without an overnight stop.

day-wear (dā'wâr') n. Attire that is appropriate for use during the day.

daze (dāz) v. tr. dazed, daz-ing, daz-es. 1. To stun, as with a heavy blow or shock; stupefy. 2. To dazzle, as with strong light. — n. A stunned or bewildered condition. [Middle English dasen, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse dasask, to become weary, reflexive of ·dasa, to tire out.]

SYNONYMS: daze, bemuse, benumb, stun, stupefy. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to dull or paralyze the mental capacities with or as if with a shock”: dazed by the defeat; bemused by the senator’s resignation; a boring performance that benumbed the audience; stunned by their sudden death; a display that stupefied all onlookers.

daz·zle (dăz’əl) v. daz·zled, daz·zling, daz·zles. — v. tr. 1. To dim the vision of, especially to blind with intense light. 2. To amaze, overwhelm, or bewilder with spectacular display: a figure skater who dazzled the audience with virtuosic jumps. — v. intr. 1. To become blinded. 2. To inspire admiration or wonder. — n. The act of dazzling or the state of being dazzled. [Frequentative of DAZE.] —daz’zler n. —daz’zling·ly adv.

dB abbr. Decibel.

DB or D.B. abbr. Daybook.

d.b.a. abbr. Doing business as.

D.B.A. abbr. Doctor of Business Administration.

D.B.E. abbr. Dame Commander of the British Empire.

d.b.h. abbr. Diameter at breast height.

D.Bib. abbr. Douay Bible.

dbIe. abbr. Double.

dc or DC abbr. Direct current.

DC or D.C. abbr. District of Columbia.

D.C. abbr. 1. Music. Da capo. 2. Doctor of Chiropractic.

D.C.L. abbr. 1. Doctor of Canon Law. 2. Doctor of Civil Law.

DCM or D.C.M. abbr. Distinguished Conduct Medal.

dd. abbr. Delivered.

D.D. abbr. 1. Demand draft. 2. Dishonorable discharge. 3. Latin. Divinitatis Doctor (Doctor of Divinity).

D-day (dē’dā’) n. The unnamed day on which an operation or offensive is to be launched, especially June 6, 1944, the day on which the Allied forces invaded France during World War II. [D (abbr. of DESIGNATED) + DAY.]

D.D.S. abbr. 1. Doctor of Dental Science. 2. Doctor of Dental Surgery.

DDT (dē’dē-tē’) n. A colorless contact insecticide, C₁₄H₉Cl₅, toxic to human beings and animals when swallowed or absorbed through the skin. It has been banned in the United States for most uses since 1972. [D(ICHLORO)D(IPHENYL)T(RICHLOROETHANE).]

DE abbr. Delaware.

de- pref. 1. Do or make the opposite of; reverse: decriminalize. 2. Remove or remove from: delouse; deoxygenate. 3. Out of: deplane; defenestration.

4. Reduce; degrade: declass. 5. Derived from: deverbative. [Middle English de-, from Old French de-, or des-; Old French de-, from Latin dē-, from, off, apart, away, down, out, completely (from dē); see de- in Appendix, or from Old French des-, out, off, apart, away, completely (from Latin dis-, dis-, and Latin dē-).]

de-ac-ces-sion (dē'äk-sësh'ən) v. de-ac-ces-sioned, de-ac-ces-sion-ing, de-ac-ces-sions. — v. tr. To remove and sell (a work of art) from a museum's collection, especially in order to purchase other works of art: "He also denied that... friends of the museum were permitted to buy... pieces that were deaccessioned" (New York Times). — v. intr. To remove a work of art from a museum's collection and sell it. —de'ac-ces'sion n.

de-a-cid-i-fy (dē'ə-sīd'ə-fī') v. tr. de-a-cid-i-fied, de-a-cid-i-fy-ing, de-a-cid-i-fies. To remove the acid from or reduce the acid content of.

—de'a-cid'i-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

dea-con (dē'kən) n. 1. A cleric ranking just below a priest in the Anglican, Eastern Orthodox, and Roman Catholic churches. 2. A Protestant layperson who assists the minister in various functions. 3. Used as a title prefixed to the surname of such a person: Deacon Brown. [Middle English deken, from Old English dīacon, from Late Latin diāconus, from Greek diakonos, attendant.]

dea-con-ess (dē'kə-nīs) n. 1. A Protestant woman who assists the minister in various functions. 2. Used as a title prefixed to the surname of such a woman: Deaconess Brown.

dea-con-ry (dē'kən-rē) n. pl. dea-con-ries. 1. The office or position of a deacon. 2. Deacons considered as a group.

de-ac-ti-vate (dē-äk'tə-vāt') v. tr. de-ac-ti-vat-ed, de-ac-ti-vat-ing, de-ac-ti-vates. 1. To render inactive or ineffective. 2. To inhibit, block, or disrupt the action of (an enzyme or other biological agent). 3. To remove from active military status. —de-ac'ti-va'tion n. —de-ac'ti-va'tor n.

dead (děd) adj. dead-er, dead-est. 1. Having lost life; no longer alive. 2. Marked for certain death; doomed: was marked as a dead man by the assassin. 3. a. Having the physical appearance of death: a dead pallor. b. Lacking feeling or sensitivity; numb or unresponsive: Passersby were dead to our pleas for help. c. Weary and worn-out; exhausted. 4. a. Not having the capacity to live; inanimate or inert. b. Not having the capacity to produce or sustain life; barren: dead soil. 5. a. No longer in existence, use, or operation. b. No longer having significance or relevance. c. Physically inactive; dormant: a dead volcano. 6. a. Not commercially productive; idle: dead capital. b. Not circulating or running; stagnant: dead water; dead air. 7. a. Devoid of human or vehicular activity; quiet: a dead town. b. Lacking all animation, excitement, or activity; dull: The party being dead, we left early. 8. Having no resonance. Used of sounds: "One characteristic of compact discs we all can hear is dead sound. It may be pure but it has no life” (Musical Heritage Review). 9. Having grown cold; having been extinguished: dead coals; a dead flame. 10. Lacking elasticity or bounce: That tennis ball is dead. 11. Out of operation because of a fault or breakdown: The motor is dead. 12. a. Sudden; abrupt: a dead stop. b. Complete; utter: dead silence. c. Exact; unerring. 13. Sports. Out of play. Used of a ball. 14. a. Lacking connection to a source of electric current. b. Drained of electric charge; discharged: a dead battery. — n. 1. One who has died: respect for the dead. 2. The period exhibiting the greatest degree of intensity: the dead of winter; the dead of night. — adv. 1. Absolutely; altogether: You can be dead sure of my innocence. 2. Directly; exactly: There’s a gas station dead ahead. 3. Suddenly: She stopped dead on the stairway. — idioms. dead and buried. No longer in use or under consideration: All past animosities are dead and buried now. dead in the water. Unable to function or move: The crippled ship was dead in the water. With no leadership, the project was dead in the water. dead to rights. In the very act of making an error or committing a crime: The police caught the thief dead to rights with my silverware. [Middle English ded, from Old English dēad. See dheu-2 in Appendix.] — dead/ness n.

SYNONYMS: dead, deceased, departed, extinct, lifeless, inanimate. These adjectives all mean without life. Dead, which has the widest use, applies in general to whatever once had—but no longer has—physical life (a dead man; a dead leaf), function (The battery is dead), or force or currency (a dead issue; a dead language). Deceased—like departed, which is a euphemistic term—refers only to nonliving human beings: attended a memorial service for a recently deceased friend; “shedding funereal tears over his departed dog” (Ben Jonson). Extinct can refer to what has no living successors (The dodo is extinct) or to what is extinguished or inactive (an extinct volcano). Lifeless applies to what no longer has physical life (a lifeless body), to what does not support life (a lifeless planet), and to what lacks animation, spirit, or brightness (a lifeless performance of the sonata; lifeless colors). Inanimate is most often limited to what has never had physical life: “He then fell, like an inanimate log, to the earth” (James Fenimore Cooper).

dead air (dĕd âr) n. An unintended interruption in a broadcast during which there is no sound.

dead-air space (dĕd'âr' spās) n. An unventilated space.

dead·beat¹ (dĕd'bĕt') n. Slang. 1. One who does not pay one’s debts. 2. A lazy person; a loafer.

dead·beat² (dĕd'bĕt') adj. Having an indicator that stops without oscillation.

dead bolt also dead·bolt (dĕd'bōlt') n. A bolt on a lock that is moved by turning the key or knob without activation of a spring.

dead center (děd sěn'tər) n. The point at the end of each stroke of a moving crank and connecting rod at which the two lie in the same straight line and the turning force applied by the connecting rod is zero. Also called dead point dead duck (děd dük) n. Slang. One doomed to failure or to death.

dead·en (děd'n) v. dead·ened, dead·en·ing, dead·ens. — v. tr. 1. To render less intense, sensitive, or vigorous: a medication to deaden the pain; wall tiles that deaden the sound from the rehearsal studio. 2. To make soundproof. 3. To make less colorful or brilliant. — v. intr. 1. To become dead. 2. To lose vigor, brilliance, or liveliness. — dead'en·er n.

dead end (děd ěnd) n. 1. An end of a passage, such as a street or pipe, that affords no exit. 2. A point beyond which no movement or progress can be made; an impasse.

dead-end (děd'ěnd') adj. 1. Having no exit. 2. Permitting no opportunity for advancement: a dead-end job. 3. Informal. Tough and rowdy: a dead-end gang. — v. intr. dead--end·ed, dead--end·ing, dead--ends. To terminate with no exit or possibility of advancement: The road dead-ends at the lake. That job dead-ends at the end of the year.

dead·en·ing (děd'n-ĩng) n. Material used for soundproofing.

dead·eye (děd'ī') n. 1. Nautical. A flat hardwood disk with a grooved perimeter, pierced by three holes through which the lanyards are passed, used to fasten the shrouds. 2. Slang. An expert shooter: a deadeye with the rifle.

dead·fall (děd'fôl') n. 1. A trap for large animals in which a heavy weight is arranged to fall on and kill or disable the prey. 2. A mass of fallen timber and tangled brush.

dead hand (děd hănd) n. 1. The ever-present, oppressive influence of past events. 2. Mortmain. [Middle English dede hond, translation of Old French mortemain, or Medieval Latin manus mortua, mortmain.]

dead·head (děd'hěd') Informal. n. 1. A person who uses a free ticket for admittance, accommodation, or entertainment. 2. A vehicle, such as an aircraft, that transports no passengers or freight during a trip. 3. A person regarded as dull-witted or sluggish. 4. A partially submerged log or trunk. — v. tr.

dead·head·ed, dead·head·ing, dead·heads. 1. To pilot or drive (a vehicle) carrying no passengers or freight. 2. To pull (dead or dying blossoms) off a flower. — v. intr. To bypass a senior employee in order to promote a more junior employee. — adv. Without passengers or freight; empty.

dead heat (děd hēt) n. Sports. A race in which two or more contestants compete evenly or finish at the same time.

dead letter (děd lět'ər) n. 1. An unclaimed or undelivered letter that after a period of time is destroyed or returned to the sender by the postal service. 2. A law, directive, or factor still formally in effect but no longer valid or enforced.

dead lift (dĕd lift) n. Sports. A weightlifting event in which the weight is lifted from the floor to the level of the hips and then lowered by controlled effort to the floor.

dead-light (dĕd'lit') n. 1. Nautical. a. A strong shutter or plate fastened over a ship's porthole or cabin window in stormy weather. b. A thick window set in a ship's side or deck. 2. A skylight constructed so that it cannot be opened.

dead-line (dĕd'lin') n. 1. A time limit, as for payment of a debt or completion of an assignment. 2. A boundary line in a prison that prisoners can cross only at the risk of being shot. — v. tr. dead-lined, dead-lin-ing, dead-lines. To govern by setting a time limit: "He was never going to be deadlined by a day, or even a month" (New Yorker).

dead load (dĕd lōd) n. The fixed weight of a structure or piece of equipment, such as a bridge on its supports. Also called dead weight dead-lock (dĕd'lōk') n. A standstill resulting from the opposition of two unrelenting forces or factions. — v. tr. intr. dead-locked, dead-lock-ing, dead-locks. To bring or come to a standstill.

dead-ly (dĕd'lē) adj. dead-li-er, dead-li-est. 1. Causing or tending to cause death: deadly weapons; a deadly spill of radioactive waste products. See Synonyms at fatal. 2. Suggestive of death: a deadly pallor. 3. Aiming or wanting to kill; implacable: deadly enemies. 4. a. Destructive in effect: gave the film a deadly review. b. Tending to take away vitality, effectiveness, or force: the deadly habit of procrastination. 5. Absolute; utter: deadly concentration. 6. Extreme or terrible: worked under deadly strain. 7. Extremely accurate; unerring: She is a deadly shot with the bow. 8. Dull, tedious, and boring: a deadly prose style. — adv. 1. So as to suggest death. 2. To an extreme: deadly serious. — dead/li-ness n.

deadly nightshade (dĕd'lē nīt'shād') n. 1. See belladonna (n., sense 1). 2. See bittersweet nightshade.

deadly sin (dĕd'lē sĭn) n. One of the seven sins—anger, covetousness, envy, gluttony, lust, pride, and sloth—that are supposed to be fatal to one's spiritual development and progress.

dead-man's float (dĕd'mānz' flōt) n. Sports. A prone floating position in swimming in which the swimmer's arms are extended straight forward above the head and the legs are held together.

dead march (dĕd mārĉ) n. Music. A slow, solemn funeral march.

dead nettle (dĕd nĕt'l) n. Any of several weedy plants of the genus Lamium, native to Eurasia and northern Africa and having clusters of small, usually purplish flowers with two lips. [So called because it looks like a nettle but does not sting.]

dead-on (dĕd'ōn', -ōn') adj. Informal. Precisely accurate and to the point: "She avoids big scenes... preferring to rely on small gestures and dead-on dialogue" (Peter S. Prescott).

dead-pan (děd'pǎn') n. 1. A blank, expressionless face. 2. A person, especially a performer, who has or assumes a blank expression. — adj. Impassively matter-of-fact, as in style, behavior, or expression: deadpan delivery of the joke. — adv. With a blank, expressionless face. — v. dead-panned, dead-pan-ning, dead-pans. — v. tr. To express in an impassive, matter-of-fact way. — v. intr. To express oneself in an impassive, matter-of-fact way.

dead point (děd point) n. See dead center.

dead reckoning (děd rěk'ə-nīng) n. 1. Abbr. DR A method of estimating the position of an aircraft or a ship without astronomical observations, as by applying to a previously determined position the course and distance traveled since. 2. Predictive calculation based on inference; guesswork. [Possibly alteration of ded., abbr. of deduced, from deduce, to trace from the beginning. See DEDUCE.]

Dead Sea (děd sē) A salt lake, about 397 m (1,300 ft) below sea level, between Israel and Jordan. It is one of the saltiest bodies of water known and is the lowest point on the earth.

dead spot (děd spōt) n. A zone within the range of a radio transmitter where little or no radio signal can be received.

dead weight (děd wāt) n. 1. The unrelieved weight of a heavy, motionless mass. 2. An oppressive burden or difficulty. 3. Abbr. DW See dead load.

dead-wood (děd'wōōd') n. 1. Dead branches or wood on a tree. 2. One that is burdensome or superfluous. 3. Nautical. The vertical planking between the keel of a vessel and the sternpost, serving as a reinforcement.

deaf (děf) adj. deaf-er, deaf-est. 1. Partially or completely lacking in the sense of hearing. 2. Deaf. Of or relating to the Deaf or their culture. 3. Unwilling or refusing to listen; heedless: was deaf to our objections. — n. (used with a pl. verb). 1. Deaf people considered as a group. 2. Deaf. The community of deaf people who use American Sign Language as a primary means of communication. [Middle English def, deaf, from Old English dēaf.] —deaf/ly adv. —deaf/ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Some writers have lately introduced a distinction between the lowercase noun deaf, which is used to refer simply to people with extensive hearing disorders, and the capitalized noun Deaf, which refers to the culture and community that has grown up around the use of American Sign Language as a primary means of communication.

deaf-en (děf'ən) v. deaf-ened, deaf-en-ing, deaf-ens. — v. tr. 1. To make deaf, especially momentarily by a loud noise. 2. To make soundproof. — v. intr. To cause permanent or momentary deafness. —deaf/en-ing-ly adv.

deaf-mute also deaf mute (děf'myōōt') Offensive. n. A person who can neither hear nor speak. — adj. (děf-myōōt') Unable to speak or hear.

deal¹ (dēl) v. dealt (dēlt), deal-ing, deals. — v. tr. 1. To give out as a share or portion; apportion. 2. To distribute among several recipients. See Synonyms at distribute. 3. To sell: deal prescriptions; deal cocaine. 4. To administer; deliver: dealt him a blow to the stomach. 5. Games. a. To distribute (playing cards) among players. b. To give (a specific card) to a player while so distributing. — v. intr. 1. To be occupied or concerned; treat: a book that deals with the Middle Ages. 2. To behave in a specified way toward another or others; have transactions: deal honestly with competitors. 3. To take action with respect to someone or something: The committee will deal with this complaint. See Synonyms at treat. 4. To do business; trade: dealing in diamonds. 5. Games. To distribute playing cards. — n. 1. The act or a round of apportioning or distributing. 2. Games. a. Distribution of playing cards. b. The cards so distributed; a hand. c. The right or turn of a player to distribute the cards. d. The playing of one hand. 3. An indefinite quantity, extent, or degree: has a great deal of experience. 4. An agreement often arranged secretly, as in business or politics. 5. a. A business transaction. b. An agreement, especially one that is mutually beneficial. See Synonyms at bargain. 6. Informal. A sale favorable especially to the buyer; a bargain. 7. Informal. Treatment received: a raw deal; a fair deal. [Middle English delen, from Old English dælan, to divide, share. See dail- in Appendix.]

deal² (dēl) n. 1. a. A fir or pine board cut to standard dimensions. b. Such boards or planks considered as a group. 2. Fir or pine wood. [Middle English dele, from Middle Dutch, and Middle Low German dele, plank.]

de-a-late (dē-ā'lāt') or de-a-lat-ed (-lā'tīd) adj. Having lost the wings. Used of ants, termites, and other insects that shed their wings after a mating flight. — n. A dealate insect. — de'a-la'tion n.

de-al-co-hol-ize (dē-āl'kə-hô-līz') v. tr. de-al-co-hol-ized, de-al-co-hol-iz-ing, de-al-co-hol-izes. To remove some or all of the alcohol from (beverages): dealcoholized the white wine. — de-al'co-hol'i-za'tion (-hō'li-zā'shən, -hōl'ī-) n.

deal-er (dē'lər) n. Abbr. dlr. 1. One that is engaged in buying and selling: a used-car dealer; a drug dealer. 2. Games. The one who distributes cards.

deal-er-ship (dē'lər-shīp') n. A franchise to sell specified items in a certain area.

deal-fish (dēl'fīsh') n. pl. dealfish or deal-fish-es. An Atlantic ribbonfish (Trachipterus arcticus) having a compressed, tapering, silvery body that can attain a length of 2.6 meters (82 feet). [From DEAL².]

de-a-lign-ment (dē'ə-līn'mənt) n. A movement among voters toward non-partisanship, resulting in a weakening of party structure.

deal·ing (dē'ling) n. 1. dealings. Transactions or relations with others, usually in business. 2. Method or manner of conduct in relation to others; treatment: honest dealing.

deal·mak·er (dēl'mā'kər) n. One that makes deals, as in business, finance, or politics. —deal'mak'ing (-mā'king) n.

dealt (dělt) v. Past tense and past participle of deal¹.

de·am·i·nase (dē-ām'ə-nās', -nāz') n. Any of a class of enzymes that catalyze the hydrolysis of compounds containing the amino group NH₂.

de·am·i·nate (dē-ām'ə-nāt') v. tr. de·am·i·nat·ed, de·am·i·nat·ing, de·am·i·nates. To remove an amino group, NH₂, from (an organic compound). —de·am'i·na'tion n.

de·am·i·nize (dē-ām'ə-nīz') v. tr. de·am·i·nized, de·am·i·niz·ing, de·am·i·niz·es. To deaminate. —de·am'i·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.

dean (dēn) n. 1. a. An administrative officer in charge of a college, faculty, or division in a university. b. An officer of a college or high school who counsels students and supervises the enforcement of rules. 2. Ecclesiastical. The head of the chapter of canons governing a cathedral or collegiate church. 3. Roman Catholic Church. A priest appointed to oversee a group of parishes within a diocese. 4. The senior member of a body or group: the dean of the Washington diplomatic corps. [Middle English deen, from Old French deien, from Late Latin decānus, chief of ten, from Greek dekanos, from deka, ten. See dek in Appendix.] —dean'ship' n.

Dean (dēn), James Byron. 1931-1955. American actor whose moody, rebellious persona in films such as East of Eden and Rebel Without a Cause (both 1955) made him a cult figure. He died in an automobile accident.

Dean (dēn), Jay Hanna. Known as “Dizzy.” 1911-1974. American baseball player. A right-handed pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals (1930-1937), he is best remembered for his 1934 season, in which he won 30 regular-season games, led the league in strikeouts, and won two World Series games.

Deane (dēn), Silas. 1737-1789. American diplomat who persuaded France to supply commercial and military aid to the Revolutionary cause.

dean·er·y (dē'nə-rē) n. pl. dean·er·ies. The office, jurisdiction, or official residence of an ecclesiastical dean.

dean's list (dēnz list) n. pl. deans' lists. A list of students in a high school, college, or university who have attained high academic rank.

dear¹ (dīr) adj. dear·er, dear·est. 1. a. Loved and cherished: my dearest friend. b. Greatly valued; precious: lost everything dear to them. 2. Highly esteemed or regarded. Used in direct address, especially in salutations: Dear Lee Dawson. 3. a. High-priced; expensive. See Synonyms at costly. b. Charging high prices. 4. Earnest; ardent: “This good man was a dear lover and constant practicer of angling” (Izaak Walton). 5. Obsolete. Noble; worthy. — n. 1. One that is greatly loved. 2. An endearing, lovable, or kind person. — adv. 1. With fondness; affectionately. 2. At a high cost: sold their wares dear. — interj. Used as a polite exclamation, chiefly of surprise or distress: oh dear; dear me. [Middle English dere, from Old English dēore.] —dear'ly adv. —dear'ness n.

dear² (dīr) adj. Severe; grievous; sore: our dearest need. [Middle English dere, from Old English dēor.]

Dear-born (dīr'bōrn', -bərn) A city of southeast Michigan west of Detroit. Greenfield Village, the restored birthplace of Henry Ford, is here. Population, 89,286.

Dear-born (dīr'bōrn', -bərn), Henry. 1751-1829. American soldier and politician who fought in the American Revolution and later represented Maine in the U.S. Congress (1793-1797).

Dearborn Heights (dīr'bōrn' hīts) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 60,838.

Dear John (dīr jōn) n. A letter, as to a serviceman, requesting a divorce or ending a personal relationship.

dearth (dūrth) n. 1. A scarce supply; a lack. 2. Shortage of food; famine. [Middle English derthe, from Old English dēorthu*, costliness, from dēore, costly. See DEAR¹.]

death (dēth) n. 1. The act of dying; termination of life. 2. The state of being dead. 3. The cause of dying: Drugs were the death of him. 4. A manner of dying: a heroine's death. 5. Often Death. A personification of the destroyer of life, usually represented as a skeleton holding a scythe. 6. a. Bloodshed; murder. b. Execution. 7. Christian Science. The product of human belief of life in matter. 8. Law. Civil death. 9. The termination or extinction of something: the death of imperialism. —idioms. at death's door. Near to death; gravely ill or injured. be the death of (someone). To distress or irritate (someone) to an intolerable degree. put to death. To execute. to death. To an intolerable degree; extremely: worried to death. [Middle English deeth, from Old English dēath. See dheu-² in Appendix.]

death angel (dēth ān'jəl) n. Botany. See death cup.

death-bed (dēth'bēd') n. 1. The bed on which a person dies. 2. The last hours before death. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a deathbed confession; deathbed pallor. —idiom. on one's deathbed. Close to death.

death benefit (dēth bēn'ə-fīt) n. Insurance money payable to a deceased person's stipulated beneficiary.

death-blow (dēth'blō') n. 1. A stroke or blow that causes death. 2. A destructive event or occurrence: dealt a deathblow to our hopes.

death camas also death camass (dēth kām'əs) n. Any of several plants of the genus Zigadenus of western North America, having grasslike leaves and clusters of usually greenish-white flowers. All parts of the plant are poisonous to livestock.

death cup (děth kúp) n. A poisonous, usually white mushroom (Amanita phalloides) having a prominent cup-shaped base. Also called death angel, death cap.

death duty (děth dōō'tē) n. Chiefly British. A tax on inherited property; an inheritance tax.

death house (děth hous) n. See death row.

death instinct (děth in'stingkt') n. Psychiatry. 1. A primitive impulse for destruction, decay, and death, manifested by a turning away from pleasure, postulated by Sigmund Freud as coexisting with and opposing the life instinct. Also called Thanatos 2. Death wish.

death-less (děth'līs) adj. Not subject to termination or death; immortal: deathless renown. —death/less-ly adv. —death/less-ness n.

death-ly (děth'lē) adj. 1. Of, resembling, or characteristic of death: a deathly silence. 2. Causing death; fatal. — adv. 1. In the manner of death.

2. Extremely; very: The night was deathly cold.

death mask (děth măsk) n. A cast of a person's face taken after death.

death penalty (děth pēn'əl-tē) n. A sentence of punishment by execution.

death point (děth point) n. An environmental limit, as of temperature or radiation, beyond which a specified life form cannot survive: the thermal death point of bacteria.

death qualify (děth kwōl'ə-fī') v. tr. Law. To excuse (opponents of the death penalty) from serving on a jury. —death qualification n.

death rate (děth rāt) n. The ratio of total deaths to total population in a specified community or area over a specified period of time. The death rate is often expressed as the number of deaths per 1,000 of the population per year. Also called fatality rate death rattle (děth răt'l) n. A gurgling or rattling sound sometimes made in the throat of a dying person, caused by loss of the cough reflex and passage of the breath through accumulating mucus.

death row (děth rō) n. The part of a prison for housing inmates who have received the death penalty. Also called death house death seat (děth sēt) n. Informal. The passenger seat next to the driver of an automotive vehicle. [Australian, so called because this seat is said to be the most dangerous one in the event of an accident.]

death's-head (děths'hěd') n. The human skull as a symbol of mortality or death.

deaths-man (děths'mən) n. Archaic. An executioner.

death tax (děth tăks) n. 1. See inheritance tax. 2. See estate tax.

death-trap (děth'trăp') n. 1. An unsafe building or other structure. 2. A perilous circumstance or situation.

Death Valley (děth văl'ē) An arid desert basin of eastern California and western Nevada. It includes the lowest point, 86 m (282 ft) below sea level, in the Western Hemisphere.

death warrant (děth wôr'ənt) n. 1. Law. An official order authorizing a person's execution. 2. Something that destroys hope or expectation; a deathblow.

death-watch (děth'wöch') n. 1. A vigil kept beside a dying or dead person. 2. One who guards a condemned person before execution. 3. A deathwatch beetle.

deathwatch beetle (děth'wöch' bēt'l) n. Any one of several beetles of the family Anobiidae, especially Xestobium rufovillosum, whose head makes a clicking sound as it burrows into wood or wooden structures. The sound was superstitiously regarded as a portent of death.

death wish (děth wışh) n. 1. Psychiatry. a. A desire for self-destruction, often accompanied by feelings of depression, hopelessness, and self-reproach. b. The desire, often unconscious, for the death of another person, such as a parent, toward whom one has unconscious hostility. 2. A suicidal urge thought to drive certain people to put themselves consistently into dangerous situations. [Translation of German Todeswunsch.] de-at-ri-bu-tion (dē'ă-trə-byōō'shən) n. A downgrading in the attribution of a work of art.

Deau-ville (dō'vil, dō-vēl') A city of northwest France on the English Channel. It is a fashionable resort with a noted racecourse. Population, 4,682.

deb (děb) n. Informal. A debutante.

deb. abbr. Debenture.

de-ba-cle (dī-bă'kəl, -băk'əl) n. 1. A sudden, disastrous collapse, downfall, or defeat; a rout. 2. A total, often ludicrous failure. 3. The breaking up of ice in a river. 4. A violent flood. [French débâcle, from débâcler, to unbar, from Old French desbacler : des-, de- + bacler, to bar (from Vulgar Latin bacculāre*, from Latin baculum, rod); see bak- in Appendix.]

De Ba-key (də bā'kē), Michael Ellis. Born 1908. American heart surgeon who implanted the first totally artificial heart in a human being (1966).

de-bar (dē-băr') v. tr. de-barred, de-bar-ring, de-bars. 1. To exclude or shut out; bar. 2. To forbid, hinder, or prevent. [Middle English debarren, from Old French desbarer, to unbar : des-, de- + barer, to bar (from barre, bar); see BAR¹.]

—de-bar'ment n.

de-bark (dī-bărk') v. de-barked, de-bark-ing, de-barks. — v. tr. To unload, as from a ship or an airplane. — v. intr. To disembark. [French débarquer : dé-, from (from Old French de-); see DE- + barque, ship (from Old French); see BARK³.] —de'bar-ka'tion (dē'băr-kă'shən) n.

de·base (dī-bās′) v. tr. de·based, de·bas·ing, de·bas·es. To lower in character, quality, or value; degrade. See Synonyms at adulterate. See Synonyms at corrupt. See Synonyms at degrade. [DE- + BASE².] —de·base′ment n.
—de·bas′er n.

de·bat·a·ble (dī-bā′tə-bəl) adj. 1. Being such that formal argument or discussion is possible. 2. Open to dispute; questionable. 3. In dispute, as land or territory claimed by more than one country. —de·bat′a·bly adv.

de·bate (dī-bāt′) v. de·bat·ed, de·bat·ing, de·bates. — v. intr. 1. To consider something; deliberate. 2. To engage in argument by discussing opposing points. 3. To engage in a formal discussion or argument. See Synonyms at discuss. 4. Obsolete. To fight or quarrel. — v. tr. 1. To deliberate on; consider. 2. To dispute or argue about. 3. To discuss or argue (a question, for example) formally. 4. Obsolete. To fight or argue for or over. — n. 1. A discussion involving opposing points; an argument. 2. Deliberation; consideration: passed the motion with little debate. 3. A formal contest of argumentation in which two opposing teams defend and attack a given proposition. 4. Obsolete. Conflict; strife. [Middle English debaten, from Old French debatre: de-, de- + battre, to beat; see BATTER¹.] —de·bate′ment n. —de·bat′er n.

de·bauch (dī-bôch′) v. de·bauched, de·bauch·ing, de·bauch·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To corrupt morally. b. To lead away from excellence or virtue. 2. To reduce the value, quality, or excellence of; debase. See Synonyms at corrupt. 3. Archaic. To cause to forsake allegiance. — v. intr. To indulge in dissipation. — n. 1. The act or a period of debauchery. 2. An orgy. [French débaucher, from Old French desbauchier, to lead astray, roughhew timber: des-, de- + bauch, beam of Germanic origin.] —de·bauch′ed·ly (-bô′chīd-lē) adv.
—de·bauch′er n.

de·bauch·ee (dī-bô′chē′, dēb′ə-shē′, -shā′) n. A person who habitually indulges in debauchery or dissipation; a libertine.

de·bauch·er·y (dī-bô′chə-rē) n. pl. de·bauch·er·ies. 1. a. Extreme indulgence in sensual pleasures; dissipation. b. debaucheries. Orgies. 2. Archaic. Seduction from morality, allegiance, or duty.

de·ben·ture (dī-bēn′chər) n. Abbr. deb. 1. A certificate or voucher acknowledging a debt. 2. An unsecured bond issued by a civil or governmental corporation or agency and backed only by the credit standing of the issuer. 3. A customhouse certificate providing for the payment of a drawback. [Middle English debentur, from Latin dēbentur, they are due (probably the first word appearing on certificates of indebtedness), third person pl. passive of dēbere, to owe. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

De·bierne (də-byērnl′), André Louis. 1874-1949. French chemist who discovered the element actinium in pitchblende (1899) and isolated pure radium (1910).

de·bil·i·tate (dī-bīl'ī-tāt') v. tr. de·bil·i·tat·ed, de·bil·i·tat·ing, de·bil·i·tates. To sap the strength or energy of; enervate. [Latin dēbilitāre, dēbilitāt-, from dēbilis, weak. See bel- in Appendix.] —de·bil'ī·ta'tion n. —de·bil'ī·ta'tive adj.

de·bil·i·tat·ed (dī-bīl'ī-tā'tīd) adj. Showing impairment of energy or strength; enfeebled. See Synonyms at weak.

de·bil·i·ty (dī-bīl'ī-tē) n. pl. de·bil·i·ties. The state of being weak or feeble; infirmity. [Middle English debilite, from Old French, from Latin dēbilitās, from dēbilis, weak. See bel- in Appendix.]

deb·it (dēb'it) n. 1. An item of debt as recorded in an account. 2. a. An entry of a sum in the debit or left-hand side of an account. b. The sum of such entries. 3. The left-hand side of an account or accounting ledger where bookkeeping entries are made. 4. A drawback; a detriment. — v. tr. deb·it·ed, deb·it·ing, deb·its. 1. To enter (a sum) on the left-hand side of an account or accounting ledger. 2. To charge with a debit: The bank debited my account for the overdrawn check. [Middle English debite, from Latin dēbitum, debt. See DEBT.]

deb·o·nair also deb·o·naire (dēb'ə-nâr') adj. 1. Suave; urbane. 2. Affable; genial. 3. Carefree and gay; jaunty. [Middle English debonaire, gracious, kindly, from Old French, from de bon aire, of good lineage or disposition : de, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + bon, bonne, good (from Latin bonus); see deu-² in Appendix + aire, nest, family; see AERIE.] —deb'ō·nair'ly adv. —deb'ō·nair'ness n.

de·bone (dē-bōn') v. tr. de·boned, de·bon·ing, de·bones. To remove the bones from: debone a chicken breast.

Deb·o·rah (dēb'ər-ə, dēb'rə) In the Old Testament, a judge and prophet who aided the Israelites in their victory over the Canaanites.

de·bouch (dī-bouch', -bōosh') v. de·bouched, de·bouch·ing, de·bouch·es. — v. intr. 1. To march from a narrow or confined area into the open. 2. To emerge; issue: a river into which a large stream debouches. — v. tr. To cause to emerge or issue. [French déboucher : dé-, out of (from Old French des-); see DE- + bouche, mouth (from Latin bucca, cheek, mouth).]

de·bouch·ment (dī-bouch'mənt, -bōosh'-) n. 1. The act or an instance of marching from a narrow, confined area into the open. 2. A debouchure.

de·bou·chure (dī-bōō'shōōr') n. An opening or mouth, as of a river or stream.

De Bow (də bō'), James Dunwoody Brownson. 1820-1867. American editor whose monthly review (inaugurated in 1846) championed the Southern cause, defending slavery and advocating secession and protectionism.

De·bre·cen (dēb'rīt-sēn', -rě-tsēn') A city of eastern Hungary near the Romanian border east of Budapest. First known in the 13th century, it was the provisional capital from 1944 to 1945. Population, 208,891.

De·breu (də-brœʹ), Gerard. Born 1921. French-born American economist. He won a 1983 Nobel Prize for his work on the basic economic problem of supply and demand.

dé·bride·ment (də'brēd-mänʹ, dī-brēd'mənt) n. Surgical excision of dead, devitalized, or contaminated tissue and removal of foreign matter from a wound. [French, from débrider, to debride, from Old French desbrider, to open up, unbridle : des-, de- + bride, bridle (probably from Middle High German brīdel, rein).]
—dé·bride' v.

de·brief (dē-brēfʹ) v. tr. de·briefed, de·brief·ing, de·briefs. 1. To question to obtain knowledge or intelligence gathered especially on a military mission.

2. To instruct (a government agent, for example) not to reveal classified or secret information after employment has ceased.

de·brief·ing (dē-brēf'fing) n. 1. The act or process of debriefing or of being debriefed. 2. The information imparted during the process of being debriefed.

de·bris also dé·bris (də-brēʹ, də-, də'brēʹ) n. 1. a. The scattered remains of something broken or destroyed; rubble or wreckage. b. Carelessly discarded refuse; litter. 2. Geology. An accumulation of relatively large rock fragments: glacial debris. 3. Biology. The fragmented remains of dead or damaged cells or tissue. [French débris, from Old French debrisier, to break to pieces : de-, intensive pref.; see DE- + brisier, to break (from Vulgar Latin brīsāre*, to press grapes, probably of Celtic origin).]

Debs (děbz), Eugene Victor. 1855-1926. American labor organizer and socialist leader who ran unsuccessfully for President five times between 1900 and 1920.

debt (dět) n. 1. Something owed, such as money, goods, or services. 2. a. An obligation or liability to pay or render something to someone else. b. The condition of owing: a young family always in debt. 3. An offense requiring forgiveness or reparation; a trespass. [Middle English dette, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin dēbita*, pl. of Latin dēbitum, debt, neuter past participle of dēbēre, to owe. See ghabh- in Appendix.] —debt'less adj.

debt·or (dět'ər) n. 1. Abbr. dr. One that owes something to another. 2. One who is guilty of a trespass or sin; a sinner. [Middle English dettour, from Old French dettor, from Latin dēbitor, from dēbitus, past participle of dēbēre, to owe. See DEBT.]

de·bug (dē-būgʹ) v. tr. de·bugged, de·bug·ging, de·bugs. 1. To remove a hidden electronic device, such as a microphone, from: debug a conference room. 2. To make (a hidden microphone, for example) ineffective. 3. To search for and eliminate malfunctioning elements or errors in: debug a spacecraft before launch; debug a computer program. 4. To remove insects from, as with a pesticide.
—de·bug'ger n.

de-bunk (dē-bŭngkʹ) v. tr. de-bunked, de-bunk-ing, de-bunks. To expose or ridicule the falseness, sham, or exaggerated claims of: debunk a supposed miracle drug. —de-bunk'er n.

WORD HISTORY: One can readily see that debunk is constructed from the prefix de-, meaning “to remove,” and the word bunk. But what is the origin of the word bunk, denoting the nonsense that is to be removed? Bunk came from a place where much bunk has originated, the United States Congress. During the 16th Congress (1819-1821) Felix Walker, a representative from western North Carolina whose district included Buncombe County, continued on with a dull speech in the face of protests by his colleagues. Walker replied he had felt obligated “to make a speech for Buncombe.” Such a masterful symbol for empty talk could not be ignored by the speakers of the language, and Buncombe, actually spelled Bunkum in its first recorded appearance in 1828 and later shortened to bunk, became synonymous with claptrap. The response to all this bunk seems to have been delayed, for debunk is not recorded until 1923.

De-bus-sy (də-byōō'sē, dəb'yōō-sē', də-bü-sē') Claude Achille. 1862-1918. French composer who is considered the first exponent of musical impressionism. His works include the tone poem L'Après-midi d'un Faune (1894).

de-but also dé-but (dā-byōō', dā'byōō') n. 1. A first public appearance, as of a performer. 2. The formal presentation of a young woman to society. 3. The beginning of a course of action: the debut of a new foreign policy. — v. tr. intr. de-buted (-byōōd'), de-but-ing (-byōō'ing), de-buts (-byōōz'). Usage Problem. To present in or make a debut. [French début, from débuter, to give the first stroke in a game, begin : dé-, from, away (from Old French de-); see DE- + but, goal, target (from Old French butte); see BUTT³.]

USAGE NOTE: Debut is widely used as a verb, both intransitively (Her new series will debut next March on network television) and transitively (The network will debut her new series next March). These usages are well established in connection with entertainment and the performing arts but are not entirely acceptable when used of other sorts of introductions, as of products (The company will debut the new six-cylinder convertible next fall) or publications (The national edition of the newspaper debuted last summer), probably because of the association of the form with the language of show-business publicity.

deb-u-tante (dəb'yōō-tānt', dā'byōō-) n. A young woman making a formal debut into society. [French débutante, feminine present participle of débuter, to begin. See DEBUT.]

De·bye (də-bī'), Peter Joseph Wilhelm. 1884-1966. Dutch-born American physicist. He won a 1936 Nobel Prize for his investigations on dipole movements and on diffraction of x-rays and electrons in gases.

dec. abbr. 1. Deceased. 2. Declaration. 3. Declension. 4. Declination. 5. Decorated. 6. Decorative. 7. Decrease. 8. Music. Decrescendo.

Dec. or Dec abbr. December.

deca- or dec- also deka- or dek- pref. Ten: decane. [Greek deka-, from deka, ten. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

dec·ade (dĕk'ād', dĕ-kād') n. 1. A period of ten years. 2. A group or series of ten. [Middle English, a group of ten, from Old French, from Late Latin decas, decad-, from Greek dekas, from deka, ten. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

dec·ade·long (dĕk'ād-lōng', -lōng', də-kād'-) adj. Lasting a decade: a decadelong national research effort.

dec·a·dence (dĕk'ə-dəns, dĭ-kād'ns) n. 1. A process, condition, or period of deterioration or decline, as in morals or art; decay. 2. Often Decadence. A literary movement especially of late 19th-century France and England characterized by refined aestheticism, artifice, and the quest for new sensations. [French décadence, from Old French decadence, from Medieval Latin dēcadentia, a decaying, declining, from Vulgar Latin dēcadere*, to decay. See DECAY.]

dec·a·den·cy (dĕk'ə-dən-sē, dĭ-kād'n-) n. Decadence.

dec·a·dent (dĕk'ə-dənt, dĭ-kād'nt) adj. 1. Being in a state of decline or decay. 2. Marked by or providing unrestrained gratification; self-indulgent. 3. Often Decadent. Of or relating to literary Decadence. — n. 1. A person in a condition or process of mental or moral decay. 2. Often Decadent. A member of the Decadence movement. [French décadent, back-formation from décadence, decadence. See DECADENCE.] — dec·a·dent·ly adv.

de·caf (dē'kăf') n. Informal. Decaffeinated coffee. — de'caf' adj.

de·caf·fein·at·ed (dē-kăf'ə-nā'tĭd, -kăf'ē-ə-) adj. Having the caffeine removed: decaffeinated coffee; decaffeinated soft drinks. — de·caf'fein·ate' v. — de·caf'fein·a'tion n.

dec·a·gon (dĕk'ə-gŏn') n. A polygon with ten angles and ten sides. [Medieval Latin decagōnum, from Greek *deka*gōnon : deka, ten; see dekṃ in Appendix + -gōnon, -gon.] — de·cag'o·nal (dĭ-kăg'ə-nəl) adj. — de·cag'o·nal·ly adv.

dec·a·gram or dek·a·gram (dĕk'ə-grăm') n. Abbr. dag, dkg A metric unit of mass equal to 10 grams.

dec·a·he·dron (dĕk'ə-hĕ'drən) n. pl. dec·a·he·drons or dec·a·he·dra (-drə). A polyhedron with ten faces. — dec'a·he'dral adj.

de·cal (dē'kăl', dĭ-kăl') n. 1. A picture or design transferred by decalcomania. 2. A decorative sticker.

de·cal·ci·fy (dē-kăl'sə-fĭ') v. de·cal·ci·fied, de·cal·ci·fy·ing, de·cal·ci·fies. — v. tr. To remove calcium or calcium compounds from (bones or teeth, for example). — v. intr. To lose calcium or calcium compounds.

—de·cal'ci-fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —de·cal'ci-fi'er n.

de·cal·co·ma·ni·a (dē-kāl'kə-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) n. 1. The process of transferring pictures or designs printed on specially prepared paper to materials such as glass or metal. 2. A decal. [French décalcomanie : from décalquer, to transfer a tracing (de-, from Latin dē-; see de- + calquer, to trace); see CALQUE + manie, craze (from its popularity in the 19th century) (from Latin mania, madness); see MANIA.]

de·ca·les·cence (dē'kə-lēs'əns) n. A sudden slowing in the rate of temperature increase in a metal being heated, caused by endothermic structural changes and resulting in a darkening of the metal. [From DE- + Latin calēscere, to become warm, inchoative of calēre, to be warm; see kelə-¹ in Appendix.] —de'ca·les'cent adj.

dec·a·li·ter or dek·a·li·ter (dĕk'ə-lē'tər) n. Abbr. dal, dkl A metric unit of volume equal to 10 liters.

Dec·a·logue or Dec·a·log (dĕk'ə-lōg', -lōg') n. 1. Bible. The Ten Commandments. 2. A fundamental set of rules having authoritative weight. [Middle English decalog, from Late Latin decalogus, from Greek dekalogos : deka, ten; see dek in Appendix + logos, word, pronouncement; see leg- in Appendix.]

dec·a·me·ter or dek·a·me·ter (dĕk'ə-mē'tər) n. Abbr. dam, dkm A metric unit of length equal to 10 meters.

dec·a·met·ric (dĕk'ə-mĕt'rik) adj. Of, relating to, or being a radio wave of wavelength between one and ten decameters.

de·camp (dī-kāmp') v. intr. de·camped, de·camp·ing, de·camps. 1. To depart secretly or suddenly. 2. To depart from a camp or camping ground. [French décamper, from Old French descamper, to strike camp : des-, de- + camper, to camp (from camp, camp); see CAMP¹.] —de·camp'ment n.

dec·ane (dĕk'ān') n. Any of various liquid isomers, C₁₀H₂₂, of the methane series.

dec·a·no·ic acid (dĕk'ə-nō'ik əs'īd) n. See capric acid.

de·cant (dī-kānt') v. tr. de·cant·ed, de·cant·ing, de·cants. 1. To pour off (wine, for example) without disturbing the sediment. 2. To pour (a liquid) from one container into another. [Medieval Latin dēcanthāre : Latin dē-, de- + Latin canthus, rim of a wheel or vessel (of Celtic origin).] —de'can·ta'tion (dē'kän-tā'shən) n.

de·cant·er (dī-kān'tər) n. A vessel used for decanting, especially a decorative bottle used for serving wine.

de·cap·i·tate (dī-kāp'ī-tāt') v. tr. de·cap·i·tat·ed, de·cap·i·tat·ing, de·cap·i·tates. To cut off the head of; behead. [Late Latin dēcapitāre, dēcapitāt- : Latin dē-, de- + Latin caput, capit-, head; see kaput- in Appendix.]

—de·cap'i·ta'tion n. —de·cap'i·ta'tor n.

dec-a-pod (děk'ə-pŏd') n. 1. A crustacean of the order Decapoda, such as a crab, lobster, or shrimp, characteristically having ten legs, each joined to a segment of the thorax. 2. A cephalopod mollusk, such as a squid or cuttlefish, having ten armlike tentacles. — adj. Of or relating to the Decapoda or a decapod. [From New Latin Decapoda, order name : DECA- + -poda, -pod.] — de-cap'o-dal (dĭ-kăp'ə-dəl), de-cap'o-dan (-dən), de-cap'o-dous (-dəs) adj.

De-cap-o-lis (dĭ-kăp'ə-lĭs) A confederacy in northeast Palestine of ten Roman-controlled cities settled by Greeks. It was formed after 63 B.C. and dominated by Damascus.

de-car-bon-ate (dē-kăr'bə-nāt') v. tr. de-car-bon-at-ed, de-car-bon-at-ing, de-car-bon-ates. To remove carbon dioxide or carbonic acid from. — de-car'bon-a'tion n.

de-car-bon-ize (dē-kăr'bə-nīz') v. tr. de-car-bon-ized, de-car-bon-iz-ing, de-car-bon-iz-es. To remove carbon from; decarburize. — de-car'bon-i-za'tion (-bə-nĭ-zā'shən) n. — de-car'bon-iz'er n.

de-car-box-yl-ase (dē'kăr-bŏk'sə-lās', -lāz') n. Any of various enzymes that hydrolyze the carboxyl radical.

de-car-box-yl-a-tion (dē'kăr-bŏk'sə-lā'shən) n. Removal of a carboxyl group from a chemical compound, usually with hydrogen replacing it.

de-car-bu-rize (dē-kăr'bə-rīz', -byə-) v. tr. de-car-bu-rized, de-car-bu-riz-ing, de-car-bu-riz-es. To decarbonize. — de-car'bu-ri-za'tion (-rĭ-zā'shən) n.

dec-are (děk'âr', -âr') n. A metric unit of area equal to 10 ares.

dec-a-syl-la-ble (děk'ə-sĭl'ə-bəl) n. A line of verse having ten syllables. — dec'a-syl-lab'ic (-sə-lăb'ĭk) adj.

de-cath-lete (dĭ-kăth'lēt) n. Sports. An athlete who participates in a decathlon.

de-cath-lon (dĭ-kăth'lŏn, -lŏn') n. Sports. An athletic contest in which each contestant participates in the following ten track and field events: the 100-meter, 400-meter, and 1,500-meter runs; the 110-meter high hurdle; the discus and javelin throws; the shot-put; the pole vault; the high jump; and the long jump. [DECA- + (PENTA)THLON.]

De-ca-tur (dĭ-kā'tər) 1. A city of northern Alabama on the Tennessee River north of Birmingham. Most of the original city was destroyed during the Civil War. Population, 48,761. 2. A city of northwest Georgia, a residential suburb of Atlanta. Population, 17,336. 3. A city of central Illinois east of Springfield. Abraham Lincoln practiced law here. Population, 83,885.

De-ca-tur (dĭ-kā'tər), Stephen. 1779-1820. American naval officer known for his heroic deeds in the Tripolitan War, the War of 1812, and skirmishes against the Barbary pirates.

de-cay (dĭ-kā') v. de-cayed, de-cay-ing, de-cays. — v. intr. 1. Biology. To break down into component parts; rot. 2. Physics. To disintegrate or diminish by radioactive decay. 3. Electronics. To decrease gradually in magnitude. Used of voltage or current. 4. Aerospace. To decrease in orbit. Used of an artificial satellite. 5. To fall into ruin: a civilization that had begun to decay. 6. Pathology. To decline in health or vigor; waste away. 7. To decline from a state of normality, excellence, or prosperity; deteriorate. — v. tr. To cause to decay. — n.

1. a. The destruction or decomposition of organic matter as a result of bacterial or fungal action; rot. b. Rotted matter. 2. Physics. Radioactive decay. 3. Aerospace. The decrease in orbital altitude of an artificial satellite as a result of conditions such as atmospheric drag. 4. A gradual deterioration to an inferior state: tooth decay; urban decay. 5. A falling into ruin. [Middle English decayen, from Old French decair, from Vulgar Latin dēcadere*: Latin dē-, de- + Latin cadere, to fall; see kad- in Appendix.] —de·cay'er n.

SYNONYMS: decay, rot, putrefy, spoil, crumble, molder, disintegrate, decompose. These verbs all refer to gradual change resulting in destruction or dissolution. Decay denotes a falling away from soundness; it may imply a stage in deterioration short of complete destruction: Dentists advise their patients to brush and floss regularly to prevent their teeth from decaying. Rot is sometimes synonymous with decay (wood that had rotted), but it often, like putrefy, stresses a stage of deterioration marked by offensiveness to the sense of smell: Animal flesh that rots is attractive to vultures. The intact carcass of the prehistoric animal was prevented from putrefying by the arctic cold. Spoil usually refers to the process by which perishable substances, especially food, become unfit for use or consumption: I put the veal scallops into the refrigerator before they could spoil. Crumble implies the physical breakdown of a substance into small fragments or particles: We saw the remains of an ancient church that had crumbled to ruins. To molder is to crumble to dust: Her grandmother's shawl had moldered away in the trunk. Disintegrate refers to complete breakdown into component parts and implies the destruction of usefulness or integrity: The sandstone façade had disintegrated from long exposure to the elements. Decompose, largely restricted to the breakdown of substances into their chemical components, also connotes rotting and putrefying, both literally and figuratively: "trivial personalities decomposing in the eternity of print" (Virginia Woolf).

Dec·can (dĕk'ən) A plateau of south-central India between the Eastern Ghats and the Western Ghats. The name is also used for the entire Indian peninsula south of the Narmada River.

decd. abbr. Deceased.

de·cease (dī-sēs') v. intr. de·ceased, de·ceas·ing, de·ceas·es. To die. — n. The act of dying; death. [Middle English decesen, from deces, death, from Old French, from Latin dēcessus, departure, death, from past participle of dēcēdere, to depart, die : dē-, de- + cēdere, to go; see ked- in Appendix.]

de·ceased (dī-sēs't/) adj. Abbr. dec., decd. No longer living; dead. See Synonyms at dead. — n. pl. deceased. A dead person.

de·ce·dent (dī-sēd'nt) n. Law. A dead person. [Latin dēcēdēns, dēcēdent- present participle of dēcēdere, to depart, die. See DECEASE.]

de·ceit (dī-sēt'/) n. 1. The act or practice of deceiving; deception. 2. A stratagem; a trick. 3. The quality of being deceitful; falseness. [Middle English deceite, from Old French, from past participle of deceveir, to deceive. See DECEIVE.]

de·ceit·ful (dī-sēt'fəl) adj. 1. Given to cheating or deceiving. 2. Deliberately misleading; deceptive. See Synonyms at dishonest. — de·ceit'ful·ly adv.

— de·ceit'ful·ness n.

de·ceive (dī-sēv'/) v. de·ceived, de·ceiv·ing, de·ceives. — v. tr. 1. To cause to believe what is not true; mislead. 2. Archaic. To catch by guile; ensnare. — v. intr. To practice deceit. [Middle English deceiven, from Old French deceveir, from Vulgar Latin dēcipēre*, from Latin dēcipere, to ensnare, deceive : dē-, de- + capere, to seize; see kap- in Appendix.] — de·ceiv'a·ble adj. — de·ceiv'er n. — de·ceiv'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: deceive, betray, mislead, beguile, delude, dupe, hoodwink, bamboozle, double-cross. These verbs mean to lead another into error, danger, or a disadvantageous position, for the most part by underhand means. Deceive involves the deliberate concealment or the misrepresentation of the truth: “There is a moment of difficulty and danger at which flattery and falsehood can no longer deceive” (Letters of Junius). Betray implies faithlessness or treachery: “When you betray somebody else, you also betray yourself” (Isaac Bashevis Singer). Mislead means to lead in the wrong direction or into error of thought or action: “My manhood, long misled by wandering fires,/Followed false lights” (John Dryden). Beguile suggests deceiving or misleading by means of pleasant or alluring methods: They beguiled unwary investors with tales of overnight fortunes. To delude is to mislead to the point where a person is unable to tell truth from falsehood or to form sound judgments: The government deluded the public about the dangers of low-level radiation. Dupe means to delude by playing upon another’s susceptibilities or naiveté: Gullible shoppers are easily duped by unscrupulous advertisers. Hoodwink refers to deluding by trickery: It is difficult to hoodwink a smart lawyer. Bamboozle less formally means to delude by the use of such tactics as hoaxing, befuddling, or artful persuasion: “Perhaps if I wanted to be understood or to understand I would bamboozle myself into belief, but I am a reporter” (Graham Greene). Double-cross implies the betrayal of a confidence or the willful breaking of a pledge: New members of the party felt they had been double-crossed by the old guard.

de·cel·er·ate (dē-sĕl'ə-rāt') v. de·cel·er·at·ed, de·cel·er·at·ing, de·cel·er·ates. — v. tr. 1. To decrease the velocity of. 2. To slow down the rate of advancement of: measures intended to decelerate the arms buildup. — v. intr. To decrease in velocity. [DE- + (AC)CELERATE.] — de·cel'er-a'tion n.

— de·cel'er-a'tor n.

De·cem·ber (dī-sĕm'bər) n. Abbr. Dec., Dec The 12th month of the year in the Gregorian calendar. See Table at calendar. [Middle English decembre, from Old French, from Latin December, the tenth month of the Roman year, probably from decemmembris*, from decem-mēnsris*: decem, ten; see dek in Appendix + mēnsis, month; see MENSES.]

De·cem·brist (dī-sĕm'brīst) n. A participant in the unsuccessful conspiracy to overthrow Czar Nicholas I of Russia in December 1825.

de·cem·vir (dī-sĕm'vər) n. pl. de·cem·virs or de·cem·vi·ri (-və-rī'). 1. One of a body of ten Roman magistrates, especially a member of one of two such bodies appointed in 451 and 450 B.C. to draw up a code of laws. 2. One of an authoritative body of ten. [Middle English, from Latin, sing. of decemvirī, commission of ten men: decem, ten; see dek in Appendix + virī, pl. of vir, man; see wī-ro- in Appendix.] — de·cem'vi·ral adj. — de·cem'vi·rate (-vər-īt, -və-rāt') n.

de·cen·cy (dĕ'sən-sĕ) n. pl. de·cen·cies. 1. The state or quality of being decent; propriety. 2. Conformity to prevailing standards of propriety or modesty. 3. decencies. a. Social or moral proprieties. b. Surroundings or services deemed necessary for an acceptable standard of living.

de·cen·na·ry (dī-sĕn'ə-rĕ) adj. Of or relating to a ten-year period. — n. pl. de·cen·na·ries. A period of ten years; a decade. [From Latin decennis, lasting for ten years. See DECENNIUM.]

de·cen·ni·a (dī-sĕn'ĕ-ə) n. A plural of decennium.

de·cen·ni·al (dī-sĕn'ĕ-əl) adj. 1. Relating to or lasting for ten years.

2. Occurring every ten years. — n. A tenth anniversary. [From Latin decennium, a period of ten years. See DECENNIUM.] — de·cen'ni·al·ly adv.

de·cen·ni·um (dī-sĕn'ĕ-əm) n. pl. de·cen·ni·ums or de·cen·ni·a (-sĕn'ĕ-ə). A period of ten years; a decade. [Latin, from decennis, lasting for ten years: decem, ten; see dek in Appendix + annus, year; see at- in Appendix.]

de·cent (dĕ'sənt) adj. 1. Characterized by conformity to recognized standards of propriety or morality. 2. Free from indelicacy; modest. 3. Meeting accepted standards; adequate: a decent salary. 4. a. Morally upright; respectable. b. Kind or obliging: very decent of them to lend you money. 5. Informal. Properly or modestly dressed. [Latin decēns, decent- present participle of decēre, to be fitting. See dek- in Appendix.] — de'cent·ly adv. — de'cent·ness n.

de·cen·tral·ize (dĕ-sĕn'trə-līz') v. de·cen·tral·ized, de·cen·tral·iz·ing, de·cen·tral·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To distribute the administrative functions or powers of (a central authority) among several local authorities. 2. a. To bring about the redistribution of (an urban population and industry) to suburban areas. b. To cause to withdraw or disperse from a center of concentration: decentralize a university complex; decentralize a museum. — v. intr. To undergo redistribution or dispersal away from a central location or authority.

—de·cen'tral·i·za'tion (-trə-lī-zā'shən) n. —de·cen'tral·i·za'tion·ist n.

de·cep·tion (dī-sĕp'shən) n. 1. The use of deceit. 2. The fact or state of being deceived. 3. A ruse; a trick. [Middle English decepcioun, from Old French deception, from Late Latin dēceptiō, dēceptiōn-, from Latin dēceptus, past participle of dēcipere, to deceive. See DECEIVE.]

de·cep·tive (dī-sĕp'tiv) adj. Deceptive or tending to deceive. See Synonyms at misleading. —de·cep'tive·ness n.

de·cep·tive·ly (dī-sĕp'tiv-lē) adv. In a deceptive or deceiving manner; so as to deceive.

USAGE NOTE: There appears to be a great deal of confusion about the sense of deceptively when it is used to modify an adjective. Does the sentence The proof is deceptively simple mean that the proof is simpler or more difficult than it appears? The Usage Panel was asked to choose among paraphrases for the sentence The pool is deceptively shallow: 50 percent said that it means “The pool is shallower than it appears”; 32 percent said that it means “The pool is deeper than it appears”; and 18 percent found it ambiguous. Thus the writer who used such a sentence in a warning notice could expect that at least half the public would either misinterpret the message or would be uncertain as to which sense was intended. Where the context does not make the meaning clear, a substitute should be used, as The pool is shallower than it looks or The proof is simple, despite appearances.

de·cer·e·brate (dē-sĕr'ə-brāt') v. tr. de·cer·e·brat·ed, de·cer·e·brat·ing, de·cer·e·brates. To eliminate cerebral brain function in (an animal) by removing the cerebrum, cutting across the brain stem, or severing certain arteries in the brain stem, as for purposes of experimentation. — adj. (also -brīt) 1. Deprived of cerebral function, as by having the cerebrum removed. 2. Resulting from or as if from decerebration: decerebrate rigidity; decerebrate movements. 3. Lacking intelligence or reason. — n. (also -brīt) A decerebrate animal or person.

—de·cer'e·bra'tion n.

de·cer·ti·fy (dē-sûr'tə-fī') v. tr. de·cer·ti·fied, de·cer·ti·fy·ing, de·cer·ti·fies. To revoke the certification of: voted to decertify the union.

—de·cer'ti·fi·ca'tion (dē-sûr'tə-fī-kā'shən, dē'sər-) n.

deci- pref. One tenth (10^{-1}): deciliter. [French déci-, from Latin decimus, tenth, from decem, ten. See dek in Appendix.]

dec·i·are (dĕs'ē-âr', -âr') n. One-tenth (10^{-1}) of an are.

de-ci-bel (dēs'ə-bəl, -bəl') n. Abbr. dB A unit used to express relative difference in power or intensity, usually between two acoustic or electric signals, equal to ten times the common logarithm of the ratio of the two levels. [DECI- + BEL.]

de-cide (dī-sīd') v. de-cid-ed, de-cid-ing, de-cides. — v. tr. 1. To settle conclusively all contention or uncertainty about: decide a case; decided the dispute in favor of the workers. 2. To influence or determine the outcome of: A few votes decided the election. 3. To cause to make or reach a decision. — v. intr. 1. To pronounce a judgment; announce a verdict. 2. To make up one's mind. [Middle English deciden, from Old French decider, from Latin dēcidere, to cut off, decide : dē-, de- + caedere, to cut; see kaə-id- in Appendix.] — de-cid-a-bil/i-ty n. — de-cid'a-ble adj. — de-cid'er n.

SYNONYMS: decide, determine, settle, rule, conclude, resolve. These verbs are compared as they mean to make or cause to make a decision. Decide is the least specific: "If two laws conflict with each other, the courts must decide on the operation of each" (John Marshall). Her parents' pleas decided her against dropping out of college. Determine often involves somewhat narrower issues: A jury will determine whether the charges are true or false. Settle stresses finality of decision: "The lama waved a hand to show that the matter was finally settled in his mind" (Rudyard Kipling). Rule implies that the decision is handed down by someone in authority: The faculty committee ruled that changes in the curriculum should be implemented. Conclude suggests that a decision, opinion, or judgment has been arrived at after careful consideration: She concluded that it would be better to ignore the criticism. Resolve stresses the exercise of choice in making a firm decision: I resolved to lose weight. We resolved that nothing they said could induce us to trust them.

de-cid-ed (dī-sī'did) adj. 1. Without doubt or question; definite: a decided success. 2. Free from hesitation or vacillation; resolute. — de-cid'ed-ly adv.

— de-cid'ed-ness n.

de-cid-ing (dī-sī'diŋ) adj. Determining or able to determine an outcome: the deciding factor; the deciding vote.

de-cid-u-a (dī-sij'ō-ə) n. pl. de-cid-u-as or de-cid-u-ae (-ō-ē'). A mucous membrane lining the uterus, modified during pregnancy and shed at parturition or during menstruation. [New Latin (membrāna) dēcidua, (membrane) that falls off, from Latin dēciduus, falling off. See DECIDUOUS.] — de-cid'u-al adj.

de-cid-u-ate (dī-sij'ō-īt) adj. 1. Characterized by or having a decidua: a deciduate mammal. 2. Characterized by shedding.

de-cid-u-ous (dī-sij'ō-əs) adj. 1. Falling off or shed at a specific season or stage of growth: deciduous antlers; deciduous leaves; deciduous teeth. 2. Shedding or losing foliage at the end of the growing season: deciduous trees. 3. Not lasting; ephemeral. [From Latin dēciduus, from dēcidere, to fall off : dē-, de- + cadere, to fall; see kad- in Appendix.] —de·cid'·u·ous·ly adv. —de·cid'·u·ous·ness n.

dec·i·gram (dēs'ī-grām') n. Abbr. dg A metric unit of mass or weight equal to one-tenth (10^{-1}) of a gram.

dec·ile (dīs'īl', -əl) n. Statistics. 1. Any one of the numbers or values in a series dividing the distribution of the individuals in the series into ten groups of equal frequency. 2. Any one of the ten groups. [DEC(I)- + -ILE².]

dec·i·li·ter (dēs'ə-lē'tər) n. Abbr. dl A metric unit of volume equal to one-tenth (10^{-1}) of a liter.

de·cil·lion (dī-sīl'yən) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 10^{33} . 2. Chiefly British. The cardinal number equal to 10^{60} . [Latin decem, ten; see DECI- + (M)ILLION.] —de·cil'·lion adj. & pron.

de·cil·lionth (dī-sīl'yənθ) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number decillion in a series. 2. One of a decillion equal parts. —de·cil'·lionth adv. & adj.

dec·i·mal (dēs'ə-məl) n. Mathematics. 1. A linear array of integers that represents a fraction, every decimal place indicating a multiple of a negative power of 10. For example, the decimal $0.1 = 10$, $0.12 = 100$, $0.003 = 1000$. Also called decimal fraction 2. A number written using the base 10. — adj. 1. Expressed or expressible as a decimal. 2. a. Based on 10. b. Numbered or ordered by groups of 10. [Medieval Latin decimālis, of tenths or tithes, from Latin decima, a tenth part or tithe, from decem, ten. See dek in Appendix.] —dec'·i·mal·ly adv.

dec·i·mal·ize (dēs'ə-mə-līz') v. tr. dec·i·mal·ized, dec·i·mal·iz·ing, dec·i·mal·iz·es. Mathematics. To change to a decimal system.

—dec'·i·mal·i·za'tion (-mə-lī-zā'shən) n.

decimal place (dēs'ə-məl plās) n. Mathematics. The position of a digit to the right of a decimal point, usually identified by successive ascending ordinal numbers with the digit immediately to the right of the decimal point being first: a figure accurate to the third decimal place.

decimal point (dēs'ə-məl point) n. Mathematics. A dot written in a decimal number to indicate the place where values change from positive to negative powers of 10.

decimal system (dēs'ə-məl sīs'təm) n. Mathematics. 1. A number system based on units of 10. 2. A system of measurement in which all derived units are multiples of 10 of the fundamental units.

dec·i·mate (dēs'ə-māt') v. tr. dec·i·mat·ed, dec·i·mat·ing, dec·i·mates.

1. To destroy or kill a large part of (a group). 2. Usage Problem. a. To inflict great destruction or damage on: The fawns decimated my sister's rose bushes. b. To reduce markedly in amount: a profligate heir who decimated his trust fund. 3. To select by lot and kill one in every ten of. [Latin decimāre, decimāt-, to punish every tenth person, from decimus, tenth, from decem, ten. See dek in Appendix.] —dec'i-ma'tion n.

USAGE NOTE: Decimate originally referred to the killing of every tenth person, a punishment used in the Roman army for mutinous legions. Today this meaning is commonly extended to include the killing of any large proportion of a group. Sixty-six percent of the Usage Panel accepts this extension in the sentence The Jewish population of Germany was decimated by the war, even though it is common knowledge that the number of Jews killed was much greater than a tenth of the original population. However, when the meaning is further extended to include large-scale destruction other than killing, as in The supply of fresh produce was decimated by the accident at Chernobyl, the usage is accepted by only 26 percent of the Panel.

WORD HISTORY: Decimate comes from the Latin word decimāre, which meant “to punish every tenth man chosen by lot, as in a mutinous military unit,” decimāre being derived from decimus, “tenth.” Our word decimate is first recorded in this sense in 1600 in A Treatise of Ireland, written by John Dymmok: “All... were by a martiall courte condemned to dye, which sentence was yet mittigated by the Lord Lieutenants mercy by which they were onely decimated by lott.” Decimate then passed beyond the military context and came to be used rhetorically or loosely with reference to more than a tenth. Charlotte Brontë, for example, stated in a letter of 1848 that “Typhus fever decimated the school periodically,” although typhus fever certainly did not always kill exactly a tenth of the school’s population.

dec-i-me-ter (dēs'ə-mē'tər) n. Abbr. dm A metric unit of length equal to one-tenth (10^{-1}) of a meter.

de-ci-pher (dī-sī'fər) v. tr. de-ci-phered, de-ci-pher-ing, de-ci-pher-s. 1. To read or interpret (ambiguous, obscure, or illegible matter). See Synonyms at solve. 2. To convert from a code or cipher to plain text; decode.

—de-ci'pher-a-ble adj. —de-ci'pher-er n. —de-ci'pher-ment n.

de-ci-sion (dī-sīzh'ən) n. 1. The passing of judgment on an issue under consideration. 2. The act of reaching a conclusion or making up one’s mind. 3. A conclusion or judgment reached or pronounced; a verdict. 4. Firmness of character or action; determination. 5. Sports. A victory in boxing won on points when no knockout has occurred. — v. tr. de-ci-sioned, de-ci-sion-ing, de-ci-sions. Sports. To achieve a victory over, as in boxing: He decisioned his opponent in the third round of the match. [Middle English decisioun, from Old French decision, from Latin dēcīsiō, dēcīsiōn-, curtailment, settlement, from dēcīdere, to cut off, decide. See DECIDE.] —de-ci'sion-al adj.

SYNONYMS: decision, conclusion, determination. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a position, an opinion, or a judgment reached after consideration”: a decision unfavorable to the opposition; came to the conclusion not to proceed; satisfied with the panel’s determination.

de-ci-sion-mak-er (dĭ-sĭzh’ən-mā’kər) n. One that makes decisions, especially one in a position of authority or power.

de-ci-sion-mak-ing (dĭ-sĭzh’ən-mā’kĭŋ) n. The making of decisions, especially by persons in positions of authority or power: “No one can doubt the need for Presidential decision-making when split-second questions of nuclear war or peace may be involved” (New York Times). —de-ci’sion-mak’ing adj.

de-ci-sive (dĭ-sī’sĭv) adj. 1. Having the power to decide; conclusive.

2. Characterized by decision and firmness; resolute. 3. Beyond doubt; unmistakable: a decisive defeat. —de-ci/sive-ly adv. —de-ci/sive-ness n.

SYNONYMS: decisive, conclusive, crucial, definitive, determinative. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “determining or having the power to determine an outcome”: the decisive vote; a conclusive reason; crucial experiments; a definitive verdict; the determinative battle.

ANTONYM: indecisive

De-cius (dē’shəs, -shē-əs), A.D. 201-251. Emperor of Rome (249-251) who was proclaimed emperor by his soldiers against his will. His reign was marked by severe persecution of Christians.

deck¹ (dĕk) n. Abbr. dk. 1. Nautical. A platform extending horizontally from one side of a ship to the other. 2. a. A platform or surface likened to a ship’s deck. b. A roofless, floored area, typically with low sides, that adjoins a house. c. The roadway of a bridge or an elevated freeway. 3. a. A pack of playing cards. b. Computer Science. A group of data processing cards. 4. A tape deck. 5. Slang. A packet of narcotics. — v. tr. decked, deck-ing, decks. 1. To furnish with or as if with a deck. 2. Slang. To knock down with force: He decked his sparring partner. —idioms. clear the deck. Informal. To prepare for action. hit the deck. Slang. 2. To get out of bed. 3. To fall or drop to a prone position. 4. To prepare for action. on deck. 5. On hand; present. 6. Sports. Waiting to take one’s turn, especially as a batter in baseball. [Middle English dekke, from Middle Dutch dec, roof, covering. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

deck² (dĕk) v. tr. decked, deck-ing, decks. 1. To clothe with finery; adorn. Often used with out: We were all decked out for the party. 2. To decorate: decked the halls for the holidays. [Dutch dekken, to cover, from Middle Dutch decken. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

deck chair (dĕk châr) n. A folding chair that usually has arms and a leg rest.

deck·er (dĕk'ər) n. Something having a deck or an indicated number of levels, stories, or tiers. Often used in combination: a three-decker apartment house; double-decker buses.

deck hand (dĕk hænd) n. Nautical. A member of a ship's crew who performs manual labor.

deck·house (dĕk'hous') n. Nautical. A superstructure on the upper deck of a ship.

deck·le (dĕk'əl) n. 1. A frame used in making paper by hand to form paper pulp into sheets of a desired size. 2. A deckle edge. [German Deckel, from Decke, cover, from decken, to cover, from Middle High German, from Old High German decchen. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

deckle edge (dĕk'əl ěj) n. The rough edge of handmade paper formed in a deckle. Also called featheredge —deck'le-edged' (dĕk'əl-ějd') adj.

deck tennis (dĕk tĕn'is) n. Sports. A game in which a small ring is tossed back and forth over a net.

decl. abbr. Declension.

de·claim (dĭ-klām') v. de·claimed, de·claim·ing, de·claims. — v. intr.

1. To deliver a formal recitation, especially as an exercise in rhetoric or elocution.

2. To speak loudly and vehemently; inveigh. — v. tr. To utter or recite with rhetorical effect. [Middle English declamen, from Latin dēclāmāre: dē-, intensive pref.; see DE- + clāmāre, to cry out; see kelə-² in Appendix.] —de·claim'er n.

dec·la·ma·tion (dĕk'lə-mā'shən) n. 1. A recitation delivered as an exercise in rhetoric or elocution. 2. a. Vehement oratory. b. A speech marked by strong feeling; a tirade. [Middle English declamacioun, from Latin dēclāmātiō, dēclāmātiōn-, from dēclāmātus, past participle of dēclāmāre, to declaim. See DECLAIM.]

de·clam·a·to·ry (dĭ-klām'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. 1. Having the quality of a declamation. 2. Pretentiously rhetorical; bombastic.

de·clar·ant (dĭ-klâr'ənt) n. One that makes a declaration, especially a person who has signed a declaration of intent to become a U.S. citizen.

dec·la·ra·tion (dĕk'lə-rā'shən) n. Abbr. dec. 1. An explicit, formal announcement, either oral or written. 2. The act or process of declaring. 3. A statement of taxable goods or of properties subject to duty. 4. Law. a. A formal statement by a plaintiff specifying the facts and circumstances constituting his or her cause of action. b. An unsworn statement of facts that is admissible as evidence. 5. Games. A bid, especially the final bid of a hand in certain card games.

de·clar·a·tive (dĭ-klâr'ə-tĭv, -klâr'-) adj. Serving to declare or state.

—de·clar'a·tive·ly adv.

de·clar·a·to·ry (dĭ-klâr'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. 1. Declarative. 2. Law. a. Setting forth that which is the law. b. Explaining a legal interpretation or right.

de·clare (dī-klâr') v. de·clared, de·clar·ing, de·clares. — v. tr. 1. To make known formally or officially. See Synonyms at announce. 2. To state emphatically or authoritatively; affirm. 3. To reveal or make manifest; show. 4. To make a full statement of (dutiabie goods, for example). 5. Games. To designate (a trump suit or no-trump) with the final bid of a hand in bridge. — v. intr. 1. To make a declaration. 2. To proclaim one's support, choice, opinion, or resolution. See Synonyms at assert. — idiom. declare war. 1. To state formally the intention to carry on armed hostilities against. 2. To state one's intent to suppress or eradicate: declared war on drug dealing in the neighborhood. [Middle English declaren, from Old French declarer, from Latin dēclārāre : dē-, intensive pref.; see DE- + clārāre, to make clear (from clārus, clear); see kelə-² in Appendix.]

—de·clar'a·ble adj. —de·clar'er n.

de·class (dē-klās') v. tr. de·classed, de·class·ing, de·class·es. To lower in class or status.

dé·clas·sé (dā'klā-sā') adj. 1. Lowered in class, rank, or social position.

2. Lacking high station or birth; of inferior social status. [French, past participle of déclasser, to lower in class : dé-, down (from Latin dē-); see DE- + classe, class; see CLASS.]

de·clas·si·fy (dē-klās'ə-fī') v. tr. de·clas·si·fied, de·clas·si·fy·ing, de·clas·si·fies. To remove official security classification from (a document).

—de·clas'si·fi'a·ble adj. —de·clas'si·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

de·claw (dē-klô') v. tr. de·clawed, de·claw·ing, de·claws. 1. To remove the claws from: declaw a cat. 2. To strip of power, potency, or strength; make harmless or less threatening.

de·clen·sion (dī-klĕn'shən) n. Abbr. dec., decl. 1. Linguistics. a. In certain languages, the inflection of nouns, pronouns, and adjectives in categories such as case, number, and gender. b. A class of words of one language with the same or a similar system of inflections, such as the first declension in Latin. 2. A descending slope; a descent. 3. A decline or decrease; deterioration: "States and empires have their periods of declension" (Laurence Sterne). 4. A deviation, as from a standard or practice. [Middle English declenson, from Old French declinaison, from Latin dēclīnātiō, dēclīnātiōn-, grammatical declension, declination. See DECLINATION.] —de·clen'sion·al adj.

dec·li·na·tion (dĕk'lə-nā'shən) n. Abbr. dec. 1. A sloping or bending downward. 2. A falling off, especially from prosperity or vigor; a decline. 3. A deviation, as from a specific direction or standard. 4. A refusal to accept. 5. Magnetic declination. 6. Astronomy. The angular distance to a point on a celestial object, measured north or south from the celestial equator. [Middle English declinacioun, from Old French declination, from Latin dēclīnātiō, dēclīnātiōn-, from dēclīnātus, past participle of dēclīnāre, to turn away. See DECLINE.] —dec'li·na'tion·al adj.

de·cline (dĭ-klĭn') v. de·clined, de·clin·ing, de·clines. — v. intr. 1. To express polite refusal. 2. a. To slope downward; descend. b. To bend downward; droop. 3. To degrade or lower oneself; condescend. 4. To deteriorate gradually; fail. 5. a. To sink, as the setting sun. b. To draw to a gradual close; wane. — v. tr. 1. To refuse politely: I declined their offer of help. See Synonyms at refuse¹. 2. To cause to slope or bend downward. 3. Grammar. To inflect (a noun, a pronoun, or an adjective) for number and case. — n. 1. The process or result of declining, especially a gradual deterioration. 2. A downward movement. 3. The period when something approaches an end. 4. A downward slope; a declivity. 5. A disease that gradually weakens or wastes the body. [Middle English declinen, from Old French decliner, from Latin dēclīnāre, to turn away, bend downward, change the form of a word : dē-, de- + -clīnāre, to lean, bend; see klei- in Appendix.] —de·clin'a·ble adj. —de·clin'er n.

de·cliv·i·tous (dĭ-klĭv'ĭ-təs) adj. Rather steep.

de·cliv·i·ty (dĭ-klĭv'ĭ-tē) n. pl. de·cliv·i·ties. A downward slope, as of a hill. [Latin dēclīvitās, from dēclīvis, sloping down : dē-, de- + clīvus, slope; see klei- in Appendix.]

dec·o (dĕk'ō) n. Art deco.

de·coct (dĭ-kōkt') v. tr. de·coct·ed, de·coct·ing, de·cocts. 1. To extract the flavor of by boiling. 2. To make concentrated; boil down. [Middle English decoctēn, to boil, from Latin dēcoquere, dēcoct-, to boil down or away : dē-, de- + coquere, to boil, to cook; see pek^w- in Appendix.] —de·coc'tion n.

de·code (dē-kōd') v. tr. de·cod·ed, de·cod·ing, de·codes. To convert from code into plain text. —de·cod'er n.

de·col·late¹ (dĭ-kōl'āt') v. tr. de·col·lat·ed, de·col·lat·ing, de·col·lates. To behead. [Latin dēcollāre, dēcollāt- : dē-, de- + collum, neck; see k^wel-¹ in Appendix.] —de'col·la'tion n.

de·col·late² (dĕk'ə-lāt', dē-kōl'-) v. tr. de·col·lat·ed, de·col·lat·ing, de·col·lates. To separate the copies of (a multiple-copy computer printout, for example). —de'col·la'tor n.

de·col·lec·tiv·ize (dē'kə-lĕk'tə-vīz') v. tr. de·col·lec·tiv·ized, de·col·lec·tiv·iz·ing, de·col·lec·tiv·iz·es. To free from collective control. —de'col·lec·ti·vi·za'tion (-vī-zā'shən) n.

dé·colle·tage (dā'kōl-tāzh') n. 1. A low neckline on a woman's garment, especially a dress. 2. A dress with a low neckline in front. [French, from décolleté, having a low neckline. See DÉCOLLETÉ.]

dé·colle·té (dā'kōl-tā') adj. 1. Cut low at the neckline: a décolleté dress. 2. Wearing a garment that is low-cut or strapless. [French, past participle of décolleter, to lower a neckline, uncover the neck : dé-, off (from Latin dē-); see DE- + collet, collar (from Old French, diminutive of col, neck, collar, from Latin collum, neck); see k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

de·col·o·nize (dē-kōl'ə-nīz') v. tr. de·col·o·nized, de·col·o·niz·ing, de·col·o·niz·es. To free (a colony) from dependent status. —de·col'·o·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.

de·col·or·ant (dē-kūl'ər-ənt) n. A bleaching agent.

de·col·or·ize (dē-kūl'ər-īz') v. tr. de·col·or·ized, de·col·or·iz·ing, de·col·or·iz·es. To remove the color from. —de·col'·or·i·za'tion (-kūl'ər-ī-zā'shən) n. —de·col'·or·iz'er n.

de·com·mis·sion (dē'kə-mīsh'ən) v. tr. de·com·mis·sioned, de·com·mis·sion·ing, de·com·mis·sions. To withdraw (a ship, for example) from active service.

de·com·pen·sa·tion (dē'kōm-pən-sā'shən) n. Failure of the heart to maintain adequate blood circulation, marked by labored breathing, engorged blood vessels, and edema. —de·com'pen·sate' v.

de·com·pose (dē'kəm-pōz') v. de·com·posed, de·com·pos·ing, de·com·pos·es. — v. tr. 1. To separate into components or basic elements. 2. To cause to rot. — v. intr. 1. To become broken down into components; disintegrate. 2. To decay; putrefy. See Synonyms at decay. —de'·com·pos'a·bil'i·ty n. —de'·com·pos'a·ble adj.

de·com·pos·er (dē'kəm-pō'zər) n. Ecology. An organism, often a bacterium or fungus, that feeds on and breaks down dead plant or animal matter, thus making organic nutrients available to the ecosystem.

de·com·po·si·tion (dē-kōm'pə-zīsh'ən) n. 1. The act or result of decomposing; disintegration. 2. a. Chemistry. Separation into constituents by chemical reaction. b. Biology. Breakdown or decay of organic materials. —de·com'po·si·tion·al adj.

de·com·pound¹ (dē-kōm'pound', dē'kəm-pound') adj. 1. Compounded or consisting of things or parts that are already compound. 2. Botany. Having or consisting of divisions that are themselves once or several times compound; bipinnate: a decomposed leaf.

de·com·pound² (dē'kəm-pound') v. tr. de·com·pound·ed, de·com·pound·ing, de·com·pounds. To decompose.

de·com·press (dē'kəm-prēs') v. de·com·pressed, de·com·press·ing, de·com·press·es. — v. tr. 1. To relieve of pressure or compression. 2. To bring (a person exposed to conditions of increased pressure) gradually back to normal atmospheric pressure. — v. intr. 1. To adjust to normal atmospheric conditions after being exposed to increased pressure. 2. Informal. To relax: decompressed after 12 hours of driving.

de·com·pres·sion (dē'kəm-prēsh'ən) n. 1. The act or process of decompressing. 2. A surgical procedure used to relieve pressure on an organ or part, such as the abdomen, cranium, or spinal cord.

decompression chamber (dē'kəm-prēsh'ən chām'bər) n. A compartment in which atmospheric pressure can be gradually raised or lowered, used especially in readjusting divers or underwater workers to normal atmospheric pressure or in treating decompression sickness.

decompression sickness (dē'kəm-prēsh'ən sīk'nīs) n. A disorder, seen especially in deep-sea divers or in caisson and tunnel workers, caused by the formation of nitrogen bubbles in the blood following a rapid drop in pressure and characterized by severe pains in the joints and chest, skin irritation, cramps, and paralysis. Also called caisson disease de·con·cen·trate (dē-kŏn'sən-trāt') v. tr. de·con·cen·trat·ed, de·con·cen·trat·ing, de·con·cen·trates. To decentralize. —de'con·cen·tra'tion n.

de·con·di·tion (dē'kən-dīsh'ən) v. de·con·di·tioned, de·con·di·tion·ing, de·con·di·tions. — v. tr. 1. Psychology. To cause (a conditioned response, such as a phobia) to become extinct. 2. To cause to decline from a condition of physical fitness, as through a prolonged period of inactivity or, in astronauts, through weightlessness in space. — v. intr. To lose physical fitness.

de·con·gest (dē'kən-jĕst') v. tr. de·con·gest·ed, de·con·gest·ing, de·con·gests. To relieve the congestion of (sinuses, for example). —de'con·ges'tion (-jĕs'chən) n. —de'con·ges'tive adj.

de·con·ges·tant (dē'kən-jĕs'tənt) n. A medication or treatment that breaks up congestion, as of the sinuses, by reducing swelling. — adj. Capable of relieving congestion.

de·con·se·crate (dē-kŏn'sī-krāt') v. tr. de·con·se·crat·ed, de·con·se·crat·ing, de·con·se·crates. To make (a church, synagogue, or temple, for example) no longer consecrated.

de·con·struct (dē'kən-strŭkt') v. tr. de·con·struct·ed, de·con·struct·ing, de·con·structs. To write about or analyze (a literary text, for example), following the tenets of deconstruction.

de·con·struc·tion (dē'kən-strŭk'shən) n. A philosophical movement and theory of literary criticism that questions traditional assumptions about certainty, identity, and truth, asserts that words can only refer to other words, and attempts to demonstrate how statements about any text subvert their own meanings: "In deconstruction, the critic claims there is no meaning to be found in the actual text, but only in the various, often mutually irreconcilable, 'virtual texts' constructed by readers in their search for meaning" (Rebecca Goldstein). —de'con·struc'tion·ism n. —de'con·struc'tion·ist n. & adj.

de·con·tam·i·nate (dē'kən-tām'ə-nāt') v. tr. de·con·tam·i·nat·ed, de·con·tam·i·nat·ing, de·con·tam·i·nates. 1. To eliminate contamination in. 2. To make safe by eliminating poisonous or otherwise harmful substances, such as noxious chemicals or radioactive material. —de'con·tam'i·nant (-nənt) n.

—de'con·tam'i·na'tion n. —de'con·tam'i·na'tor n.

de·con·trol (dē'kən-trōl') v. tr. de·con·trolled, de·con·trol·ling, de·con·trols. To stop control of, especially by the government: decontrolled oil and natural-gas prices. —de'con·trol' n.

dé·cor or de·cor (dā'kôr', dā-kôr') n. 1. a. Decoration. b. A decorative style or scheme, as of a room. 2. A stage setting; scenery. [French, from décorer, to decorate, from Latin decorāre, to beautify. See DECORATE.]

dec·o·rate (dĕk'ə-rāt') v. tr. dec·o·rat·ed, dec·o·rat·ing, dec·o·rates. 1. To furnish, provide, or adorn with something ornamental; embellish. 2. To confer a medal or other honor on: was decorated for bravery. [From Middle English decorat, made beautiful, from Latin decorātus, past participle of decorāre, to beautify, from decus, decor-, honor, ornament. See dek- in Appendix.]

dec·o·ra·tion (dĕk'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act, process, technique, or art of decorating. 2. Something used to decorate. 3. An emblem of honor, such as a medal or badge.

Dec·o·ra·tion Day (dĕk'ə-rā'shən dā) n. See Memorial Day.

dec·o·ra·tive (dĕk'ər-ə-tīv, -ə-rā'-) adj. Abbr. dec. Serving to decorate or embellish; ornamental. —dec'·o·ra·tive·ly adv. —dec'·o·ra·tive·ness n.

dec·o·ra·tor (dĕk'ə-rā'tər) n. One that decorates, especially an interior decorator. — adj. Appropriate for interior decoration: decorator colors.

dec·o·rous (dĕk'ər-əs, dī-kôr'əs, -kôr'-) adj. Characterized by or exhibiting decorum; proper: decorous behavior. [From Latin decōrus, becoming, handsome, from decor, seemliness, beauty. See dek- in Appendix.] —dec'·o·rous·ly adv. —dec'·o·rous·ness n.

de·cor·ti·cate (dē-kôr'tī-kāt') v. tr. de·cor·ti·cat·ed, de·cor·ti·cat·ing, de·cor·ti·cates. 1. To remove the bark, husk, or outer layer from; peel. 2. To remove the surface layer, membrane, or fibrous cover of (an organ or a structure). [Latin dēcorticāre, dēcorticāt- : dē-, de- + cortex, cortic-, bark, rind; see sker¹ in Appendix.] —de·cor'ti·ca'tion n. —de·cor'ti·ca'tor n.

de·co·rum (dī-kôr'əm, -kôr'-) n. 1. Appropriateness of behavior or conduct; propriety. 2. The conventions of polite behavior. See Synonyms at etiquette. 3. The appropriateness of an element of an artistic or literary work, such as style or tone, to its particular circumstance or to the composition as a whole. [Latin decōrum, from decōrus, becoming, handsome. See DECOROUS.]

de·cou·page also dé·cou·page (dā'kōō-pāzh') n. 1. The technique of decorating a surface with cutouts, as of paper. 2. A creation produced by this technique. [French découpage, from découper, to cut up or out, from Old French descolper : des-, de- + colper, to cut (from colp, stroke); see COUP.] de·cou·ple (dē-küp'əl) v. tr. de·cou·pled, de·cou·pling, de·cou·ples.

1. Electronics. To reduce or eliminate the coupling of (one circuit or part to another). 2. Physics. To decrease or eliminate airborne shock waves from (an explosion) by having it take place underground. 3. To separate or detach: “There’s not the slightest possibility that America would be decoupled from Europe by the pursuit of this vital initiative” (Caspar W. Weinberger). —de·cou·pler n.

de·coy (dē’koi’, dī-koi’) n. 1. a. A living or artificial bird or other animal used to entice game into a trap or within shooting range. b. An enclosed place, such as a pond, into which wildfowl are lured for capture. 2. A means used to mislead or lead into danger. — v. tr. de·coyed, de·coy·ing, de·coys (dī-koi’). To lure or entrap by or as if by a decoy. See Synonyms at lure. [Possibly from Dutch de kooi, the cage : de, the (from Middle Dutch); see to- in Appendix + kooi, cage (from Middle Dutch cōie, from Latin cavea).] —de·coy’er n.

de·crease (dī-krēs’) v. intr. tr. de·creased, de·creas·ing, de·creas·es. To grow or cause to grow gradually less or smaller, as in number, amount, or intensity. — n. (dē’krēs’) Abbr. dec. 1. The act or process of decreasing. 2. The amount by which something decreases. [Middle English decrezen, from Old French decreistre, decreiss-, from Latin dēcrēscere : dē-, de- + crēscere, to grow; see ker-² in Appendix.] —de·creas’ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: decrease, lessen, reduce, dwindle, abate, diminish, subside. These verbs mean to become or cause to become smaller or less. Decrease and lessen, interchangeable in most contexts, refer to steady or gradual diminution: Traffic decreases on holidays. Lack of success decreases confidence. Use your seat belt to lessen the danger of injury in an accident. His appetite lessens as his illness progresses. Reduce emphasizes bringing down, as in size, degree, or intensity: The workers reduced their wage demands. Dwindle suggests decreasing bit by bit to a vanishing point: Their savings dwindled away. Abate stresses a decrease in amount or intensity and suggests a reduction of excess: Toward evening the fire began to abate. Nothing can abate the force of that argument. Diminish implies taking away or removal: An occasional outburst didn’t diminish my respect for her. The warden’s authority diminished after the revolt. Subside implies a falling away to a more normal level: The wild enthusiasm the team’s victory aroused did not subside.

de·cree (dī-krē’) n. 1. An authoritative order having the force of law. 2. Law. The judgment of a court of equity, admiralty, probate, or divorce. 3. Roman Catholic Church. a. A doctrinal or disciplinary act of an ecumenical council. b. An administrative act applying or interpreting articles of canon law. — v. de·creed, de·cree·ing, de·crees. — v. tr. To ordain, establish, or decide by decree. See Synonyms at dictate. — v. intr. To issue a decree. [Middle English decre, from Old French decret, from Latin dēcrētum, principle, decision, from neuter past participle of dēcernere, to decide : dē-, de- + cernere, to sift; see krei- in Appendix.] —de·cree’a·ble adj. —de·cre’er n.

de·cre·ment (děk'rə-mənt) n. 1. The act or process of decreasing or becoming gradually less. 2. The amount lost by gradual diminution or waste.

3. Mathematics. The amount by which a variable is decreased; a negative increment. [Latin dēcrēmentum, from dēcrēscere, to decrease. See DECREASE.]

—de·cre·ment'al (-mĕn'tl) adj.

de·cre·o·li·za·tion (dē-krē'ə-lī-zā'shən) n. The loss of creole features in an original creole language as the result of contact with a major international language that was one of its ancestors.

de·crep·it (dī-krĕp'it) adj. Weakened, worn out, impaired, or broken down by old age, illness, or hard use. See Synonyms at weak. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin dēcrepitus, worn out, feeble : dē-, de- + crepitus, past participle of crepāre, to burst, crack.] —de·crep'it·ly adv.

de·crep·i·tate (dī-krĕp'ī-tāt') v. de·crep·i·tat·ed, de·crep·i·tat·ing, de·crep·i·tates. — v. tr. To roast or calcine (crystals or salts) until they emit a crackling sound or until crackling stops. — v. intr. To make a crackling sound when roasted. [New Latin dēcrepitāre, dēcrepitāt- : Latin dē-, de- + Latin crepitāre, to crackle, frequentative of crepāre, to burst, crack.] —de·crep'i·ta·tion n.

de·crep·i·tude (dī-krĕp'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. The quality or condition of being weakened, worn out, impaired, or broken down by old age, illness, or hard use.

de·cre·scen·do (dā'krə-shĕn'dō, dē'-) Music. adv. & adj. Abbr. dec. With gradually diminishing force or loudness. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl.

de·cre·scen·dos. Abbr. dec. 1. A gradual decrease in force or loudness. 2. A decrescendo passage. [Italian, gerund of decrescere, to decrease, from Latin dēcrēscere. See DECREASE.]

de·cres·cent (dī-krĕs'ənt) adj. Becoming gradually less; waning. [Latin dēcrēscēns, dēcrēscēt- present participle of dēcrēscere, to decrease. See DECREASE.]

de·cre·tal (dī-krĕt'l) n. Roman Catholic Church. A decree, especially a papal letter giving a decision on a point or question of canon law. [Middle English, from Old French decretale, from Late Latin dēcrētālis, fixed by decree, from Latin dēcrētum, principle, decision. See DECREE.]

de·cre·tive (dī-krĕ'tiv) adj. Decretory.

de·cre·to·ry (děk'rī-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, dī-krĕ'tō-rē) adj. Of, relating to, or having the force of a decree.

de·crim·i·nal·ize (dē-krīm'ə-nə-līz') v. tr. de·crim·i·nal·ized, de·crim·i·nal·iz·ing, de·crim·i·nal·iz·es. To reduce or abolish criminal penalties for: decriminalize the use of marijuana. —de·crim'i·nal·i·za'tion (-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

de·cry (dī-krī') v. tr. de·cried, de·cry·ing, de·cries. 1. To condemn openly. 2. To depreciate (currency, for example) by official proclamation or by rumor.

[French décrier, from Old French descrier : des-, de- + crier, to cry; see CRY.]

—de·cri'er n.

SYNONYMS: decry, disparage, depreciate, derogate, belittle, minimize, downgrade. These verbs mean to think, write, or speak of as being of little value or importance. Decry implies open denunciation or condemnation: A staunch materialist, he decries economy. Disparage often implies the communication of a low opinion by indirection: Some critics disparage psychoanalysis as being a pseudoscience. To depreciate is to assign a lower than customary value to someone or something: Some musicologists depreciate Liszt's compositions. Derogate implies a detraction that impairs: People often derogate what they don't understand. Belittle and minimize mean to make less important, but minimize strongly implies the minimum level: belittled the child's attempts to draw; trying to minimize the accomplishment. To downgrade is to minimize in importance or estimation: Her rival downgraded the painting, calling it decorative but superficial.

de·crypt (dē-krīpt') v. tr. de·crypt·ed, de·crypt·ing, de·crypts. 1. To decipher. 2. To decode. — n. (dē'krīpt') A deciphered or decoded message. [DE- + -crypt (from CRYPTOGRAM).] —de·crypt'ion n.

de·cu·bi·tus ulcer (dī-kyōō'bī-təs ūl'sər) n. See bedsore. [Medieval Latin dēcubitus, lying down, being bedridden, from past participle of Latin dēcumbere, to lie down. See DECUMBENT.]

de·cum·bent (dī-kūm'bənt) adj. 1. Lying down; reclining. 2. Botany. Lying or growing on the ground but with erect or rising tips: decumbent stems. [Latin dēcumbēns, dēcumbent- present participle of dēcumbere, to lie down : dē-, de- + cumbere, to lie down.] —de·cum'bence (-bəns), de·cum'ben·cy (-bəns-ē) n.

dec·u·ple (dĕk'yə-pəl) adj. 1. Ten times as great; tenfold. 2. In groups of ten. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin decuplus : Latin decem, ten; see dekṃ in Appendix + Latin -plus, -fold; see pel-² in Appendix.]

de·cur·rent (dī-kūr'ənt, -kūr'-) adj. Botany. Having the leaf base extending down the stem below the insertion: decurrent leaves. [Middle English, from Latin dēcurrēns, dēcurrent- present participle of dēcurrere, to run down : dē-, de- + currere, to run; see kers- in Appendix.] —de·cur'rent·ly adv.

de·cus·sate (dī-kūs'āt', dĕk'ə-sāt') v. tr. intr. de·cus·sat·ed, de·cus·sat·ing, de·cus·sates. To cross or become crossed so as to form an X; intersect. — adj. 1. Intersected or crossed in the form of an X. 2. Botany. Arranged on a stem in opposite pairs at right angles to those above or below, resulting in four vertical rows: decussate leaves. [Latin decussāre, decussāt-, from decussis, the number ten, intersection of two lines (from the Romans' use of X for the numeral 10), a ten-as coin : decem, ten; see dekṃ in Appendix + assis, as (coin).] —de·cus'sate'ly adv.

dec·us·sa·tion (dĕk'ə-sā'shən, dĕ'kə-) n. 1. A crossing in the shape of an X.

2. Anatomy. An X-shaped crossing, especially of nerves or bands of nerve fibers, connecting corresponding parts on opposite sides of the brain or spinal cord.

D.Ed. abbr. Doctor of Education.

de·dans (də-dän') n. pl. dedans (-dän', -dänz'). Sports. 1. A screened gallery for spectators at the service end of a court-tennis court. 2. The spectators at a court-tennis match. [French, from dedans, inside, from Old French dedenz : de, of, from (from Latin dē); see DE- + denz, within (from Late Latin deintus, from within : Latin dē + Latin intus, within); see en in Appendix.]

De·de·kind (dā'dī-kīnd', -kīnt'), Julius Wilhelm Richard. 1831-1916. German mathematician best known for his theory of irrational numbers.

Ded·ham (dĕd'əm) A town of eastern Massachusetts, a mainly residential suburb of Boston on the Charles River. Population, 23,782.

ded·i·cate (dĕd'ī-kāt') v. tr. ded·i·cat·ed, ded·i·cat·ing, ded·i·cates. 1. To set apart for a deity or for religious purposes; consecrate. 2. To set apart for a special use: dedicated their money to scientific research. 3. To commit (oneself) to a particular course of thought or action: dedicated ourselves to starting our own business. See Synonyms at devote. 4. To address or inscribe (a literary work, for example) to another as a mark of respect or affection. 5. a. To open (a building, for example) to public use. b. To show to the public for the first time: dedicate a monument. [Middle English dedicaten, from Latin dēdicāre, dēdicāt- : dē-, de- + dicāre, to proclaim; see deik- in Appendix.] —ded'ī·ca'tor n.

ded·i·cat·ed (dĕd'ī-kā'tīd) adj. 1. Wholly committed to a particular course of thought or action; devoted: a dedicated musician. 2. Designed for a particular use or function: "The satellite beams the information down to Earth, where it is sent through dedicated telephone wires to the Space Telescope Science Institute" (Boston Globe). —ded'ī·cat'ed·ly (-kā'tīd-lē) adv.

ded·i·ca·tee (dĕd'ī-kā-tē') n. One to whom something, such as a literary work, is dedicated.

ded·i·ca·tion (dĕd'ī-kā'shən) n. 1. The act of dedicating or the state of being dedicated. 2. A note prefixed to a literary, artistic, or musical composition dedicating it to someone in token of affection or esteem. 3. A rite or ceremony of dedicating. 4. Selfless devotion: served the public with dedication and integrity. —ded'ī·ca'tive, ded'ī·ca·to'ry (-kə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

de·dif·fer·en·ti·a·tion (dĕ'dīf-ə-rĕn'shē-ā'shən) n. Biology. Regression of a specialized cell or tissue to a simpler, more embryonic, unspecialized form. Differentiation may occur before the regeneration of appendages in plants and certain animals and in the development of some cancers. —de'dif·fer·en'ti·ate' v.

de·duce (dī-dōōs', -dyōōs') v. tr. de·duced, de·duc·ing, de·duc·es. 1. To reach (a conclusion) by reasoning. 2. To infer from a general principle; reason deductively. 3. To trace the origin or derivation of. [Middle English deducen, from Latin dēdūcere, to lead away or down : dē-, de- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.] —de·duc'i·ble adj.

de·duct (dī-dŭkt') v. de·duct·ed, de·duct·ing, de·ducts. — v. tr. 1. To take away (a quantity) from another; subtract. 2. To derive by deduction; deduce. — v. intr. To take away a desirable part: Poor plumbing deducts from the value of the house. [Middle English deducten, from Latin dēdūcere, dēduct-, to lead away or down. See DEDUCE.]

de·duct·i·ble (dī-dŭk'tə-bəl) adj. That can be deducted, especially with respect to income taxes: deductible expenses. — n. 1. Something, such as an expense, that can be deducted, as for income-tax purposes. 2. A clause in an insurance policy that exempts the insurer from paying an initial specified amount in the event that the insured sustains a loss. —de·duct'i·bil'i·ty n.

de·duc·tion (dī-dŭk'shən) n. 1. The act of deducting; subtraction. 2. An amount that is or may be deducted: tax deductions. 3. The drawing of a conclusion by reasoning; the act of deducing. 4. Logic. a. The process of reasoning in which a conclusion follows necessarily from the stated premises; inference by reasoning from the general to the specific. b. A conclusion reached by this process.

de·duc·tive (dī-dŭk'tiv) adj. 1. Of or based on deduction. 2. Involving or using deduction in reasoning. —de·duc'tive·ly adv.

dee (dē) n. The letter d.

Dee (dē) 1. A river rising in the Cairngorm Mountains of eastern Scotland and flowing about 145 km (90 mi) eastward to the North Sea through an artificial channel at Aberdeen. It is known for its scenic beauty and salmon fisheries. 2. A river of northern Wales and western England flowing about 113 km (70 mi) partially along the Welsh-English border to the Irish Sea.

Dee (dē), John. 1527-1608. English mathematician, alchemist, and astrologer who was a favorite of Elizabeth I, for whom he did both scientific and astrological studies.

deed (dēd) n. 1. Something that is carried out; an act or action. 2. A usually praiseworthy act; a feat or exploit. 3. Action or performance in general: Deeds, not words, matter most. 4. Law. A document sealed as an instrument of bond, contract, or conveyance, especially relating to property. — v. tr. deed·ed, deed·ing, deeds. To transfer by means of a deed: deeded the property to the children. [Middle English dede, from Old English dǣd. See dhē- in Appendix.]

dee·jay (dē'jā') n. Informal. A disc jockey. [From the abbr. D.J.] deem (dēm) v. deemed, deem·ing, deems. — v. tr. 1. To have as an opinion; judge: deemed it was time for a change. 2. To regard as; consider: deemed the results unsatisfactory. See Usage Note at as¹. — v. intr. To have an opinion; think. See Synonyms at consider. [Middle English demen, from Old English dēman. See dhē- in Appendix.]

de-em·pha·size (dē-ĕm'fə-sīz') v. tr. de-em·pha·sized, de- em·pha·siz·ing, de-em·pha·siz·es. To decrease the emphasis on; minimize the importance of. —de-em'pha·sis (-sīs) n.

deep (dēp) adj. deep·er, deep·est. 1. a. Extending far downward below a surface: a deep hole in the river ice. b. Extending far inward from an outer surface: a deep cut. c. Extending far backward from front to rear: a deep walk-in refrigerator. d. Extending far from side to side from a center: a deep yard surrounding the house. e. Far distant down or in: deep in the woods. f. Coming from or penetrating to a depth: a deep sigh. g. Sports. Located or taking place near the outer boundaries of the area of play: deep left field. 2. Extending a specific distance in a given direction: snow four feet deep. 3. Far distant in time or space: deep in the past. 4. a. Difficult to penetrate or understand; recondite: a deep metaphysical theory. b. Of a mysterious or obscure nature: a deep secret; ancient and deep tribal rites. c. Very learned or intellectual; wise: a deep philosopher. d. Exhibiting great cunning or craft: deep political machinations. 5. a. Of a grave or extreme nature: deep trouble; deepest deceit. b. Very absorbed or involved: deep in thought; deep in financial difficulties. c. Profound in quality or feeling: a deep trance; deep devotion. 6. Rich and intense in shade. Used of a color: a deep red. 7. Low in pitch; resonant: a deep voice. 8. Covered or surrounded to a designated degree. Often used in combination: waist-deep in the water; ankle-deep in snow. 9. Large in quantity or size; big: deep cuts in the budget. — adv. 1. To a great depth; deeply: dig deep; feelings that run deep. 2. Well along in time; late: worked deep into the night. 3. Sports. Close to the outer boundaries of the area of play: played deep for the first three innings; ran deep into their opponents' territory. — n. 1. a. A deep place in land or in a body of water: drowned in the deep of the river. b. A vast, immeasurable extent: the deep of outer space. 2. The extent of encompassing time or space; firmament. 3. The most intense or extreme part: the deep of night. 4. The ocean. 5. Nautical. A distance estimated in fathoms between successive marks on a sounding line. —idioms. deep down. At bottom; basically: Deep down, she was still a rebel. in deep water. In difficulty. [Middle English dep, from Old English dēop. See dheub- in Appendix.] —deep'ly adv. —deep'ness n.

SYNONYMS: deep, abysmal, profound. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “extending far downward or inward from a surface”: a deep lake; falling from a cliff through abysmal space; a profound glacial chasm.

ANTONYM: shallow

deep-dish (dēp'dīsh') adj. Made or used in a deep baking dish: a deep-dish apple pie; deep-dish recipes.

deep-en (dēp'pən) v. tr. intr. deep-ened, deep-en-ing, deep-ens. To make or become deep or deeper.

deep fat (dēp fāt) n. Hot fat or oil for deep-frying food.

deep freeze (dēp frēz) n. A condition of being held in temporary suspension or inactivity.

deep-freeze (dēp'frēz') v. tr. deep--froze (-frōz'), deep--fro-zen (-frō'zən), deep--freez-ing, deep--freez-es. 1. To quick-freeze. 2. To store in a frozen condition. 3. To suspend or defer indefinitely: “American long-term obligations... which have been deep-frozen since the early 1950s” (Paul Kennedy).

Deep-freeze (dēp'frēz') A trademark used for a refrigerator designed to freeze food for long periods.

deep freezer (dēp frē'zər) n. A freezer for the quick-freezing and long-term storage of food.

deep-froze (dēp'frōz') v. Past tense of deep-freeze.

deep-fro-zen (dēp'frō'zən) v. Past participle of deep-freeze.

deep-fry (dēp'frī') v. tr. deep--fried, deep--fry-ing, deep--fries. To fry by immersing in a deep utensil of fat or oil: deep-fry doughnuts; deep-fried the chicken wings.

deep fryer (dēp frī'ər) n. A utensil for deep-frying food.

Dee-ping (dē'pɪŋ), (George) Warwick. 1877-1950. British writer whose most popular novel was Sorrell and Son (1925).

deep pocket (dēp pōk'ɪt) n. A source of substantial wealth or financial support. Often used in the plural: “Japanese investors... have all but pulled out of the market—and there's no deep pocket outside Japan to take their place” (Larry Martz).

Deep River (dēp rīv'ər) A river rising in north-central North Carolina and flowing about 201 km (125 mi) southeast and east to join the Haw River and form the Cape Fear River.

deep-root-ed (dēp'rōō'tɪd, -rōō't'ɪd) adj. Firmly implanted; well-established: deep-rooted prejudices.

deep-sea (dēp'sē') adj. Of, relating to, or taking place in the deeper parts of the sea: deep-sea exploration.

deep-seat-ed (dēp'sē'tɪd) adj. 1. Being so far below the surface as to be unsusceptible to superficial examination, study, or treatment: a deep-seated infection. 2. Deeply rooted; ingrained: deep-seated ideological differences.

deep-set (dēp'sēt') adj. 1. Deeply set or placed: deep-set eyes. 2. Deep-seated: deep-set hatred.

deep six (dēp sɪks) n. Slang. 1. Burial at sea. 2. Disposal or rejection of something: gave all our plans the deep six. [American slang, a grave, referring to the conventional depth of a grave (six feet).]

deep-six (dēp'sīks') v. tr. deep--sixed, deep--six-ing, deep--six-es. Slang.

1. To toss overboard. 2. To toss out; get rid of: deep-sixed the incriminating papers.

Deep South (dēp south) A region of the southeast United States, usually comprising the states of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, and South Carolina.

deep space (dēp spās) n. The regions beyond the gravitational influence of Earth encompassing interplanetary, interstellar, and intergalactic space.

deep structure (dēp strūk'chər) n. Linguistics. An abstract underlying structure that determines the actual form of a sentence.

deep-water (dēp'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) adj. Of, relating to, or carried on in waters of a relatively great depth: a deep-water port; deep-water drilling for oil.

deer (dīr) n. pl. deer. Any of various hoofed ruminant mammals of the family Cervidae, characteristically having deciduous antlers borne chiefly by the males. The deer family also includes the elk, moose, caribou, and reindeer. [Middle English der, beast, from Old English dēor.]

WORD HISTORY: In various Middle English texts one finds a fish, an ant, or a fox called a der, the Middle English ancestor of our word deer. In its Old English form dēor, our word referred to any animal, including members of the deer family, and continued to do so in Middle English, although it took on the specific sense “a deer.” By the end of the Middle English period, around 1500, the general sense had all but disappeared. Deer is a commonly cited example of a semantic process called specialization, by which the range of meaning of a word is narrowed or restricted. When Shakespeare uses the expression “mice and rats, and such small deer” for Edgar’s diet in King Lear, probably written in 1605, we are not sure whether deer has the general or the specific sense.

Deere (dīr), John. 1804-1886. American industrialist who pioneered the manufacture of plows especially suited to working prairie soil.

Deer-field (dīr'fēld') A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 17,327.

Deerfield Beach (dīr'fēld' bēch) A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean north of Fort Lauderdale. It is in a truck-farming area. Population, 46,325.

deer fly or deer-fly (dīr'fli') n. Any of various stout-bodied, blood-sucking flies of the genus Chrysops, closely related to the horseflies but smaller and having spotted or banded wings.

deer grass (dīr grās) n. See meadow beauty.

deer-hound (dīr'hound') n. A dog of an old breed developed in Scotland, related to and resembling the greyhound but taller and larger and having a wiry coat. It was originally bred for hunting deer. Also called Scottish deerhound deer mouse (dîr mous) n. A North American mouse (Peromyscus maniculatus) having white feet and underparts, and a long, bicolored tail.

Deer Park (dîr pârk) 1. An unincorporated community of southeast New York on central Long Island north of Babylon. It is mainly residential. Population, 28,840. 2. A city of southeast Texas east of Houston. It is an industrial center in a truck-farming area. Population, 27,652.

deer-skin (dîr'skîn') n. 1. Leather made from the hide of a deer. 2. A garment made from deerskin.

deer-stalk-er (dîr'stô'kær) n. A tight-fitting hat with visors in the front and back, originally worn by hunters.

deer-yard (dîr'yârd') n. A place where deer gather for wintering.

de-es-ca-late or de-es-ca-late (dē-ēs'kə-lāt') v. de-es-ca-lat-ed, de-es-ca-lat-ing, de-es-ca-lates. — v. tr. To decrease the size, scope, or intensity of (a war, for example). — v. intr. To decrease or diminish in size, scope, or intensity: The birth rate has begun to de-escalate. —de-es'ca-la'tion n. —de-es'ca-la-tor'y (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

deet (dēt) n. A colorless, oily liquid, C₁₂H₁₇NO, that has a mild odor and is used as an insect repellent. [From d.t., abbr. of DIETHYL TOLUAMIDE.]

def. abbr. 1. Defective. 2. Defendant. 3. Defense. 4. Deferred. 5. Grammar. Definite. 6. Definition.

de-face (dī-fās') v. tr. de-faced, de-fac-ing, de-fac-es. 1. To mar or spoil the appearance or surface of; disfigure. 2. To impair the usefulness, value, or influence of. 3. Obsolete. To obliterate; destroy. [Middle English defacen, from Old French desfacier : des-, de- + face, face; see FACE.] —de-face'a-ble adj.

—de-face'ment n. —de-fac'er n.

de facto (dī fāk'tō, dā) adv. In reality or fact; actually. — adj. 1. Actual: de facto segregation. 2. Actually exercising power though not legally or officially established: a de facto government. [Latin : dē, from, according to + factō, ablative of factum, fact.]

de-fal-cate (dī-fāl'kāt', -fôl'-, dĕf'əl-) v. intr. de-fal-cat-ed, de-fal-cat-ing, de-fal-cates. To misuse funds; embezzle. [Medieval Latin dĕfalcāre, dĕfalcāt-, to mow, deduct : Latin dē-, de- + Latin falx, falc-, sickle.] —de'fal-ca'tion (dĕ'fāl-kā'shən, -fôl-, dĕf'əl-) n. —de-fal'ca'tor n.

def-a-ma-tion (dĕf'ə-mā'shən) n. The act of defaming; calumny.

—de-fam'a-to'ry (dī-fām'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

de-fame (dī-fām') v. tr. de-famed, de-fam-ing, de-fames. 1. To damage the reputation, character, or good name of by slander or libel. See Synonyms at malign. 2. Archaic. To disgrace. [Middle English defamen, from Old French defamer, from Medieval Latin dĕfāmāre, alteration of Latin dīffāmāre, to spread news of, slander : dis-, abroad, apart; see DIS- + fāma, rumor, reputation; see bhā-² in Appendix.] —de-fam'er n.

de·fang (dē-fāng′) v. tr. de-fanged, de-fang-ing, de-fangs. 1. To remove the fangs of (a snake, for example). 2. To undermine the strength or power of; make ineffectual: an attempt to defang the opposition.

de-fat (dē-făt′) v. tr. de-fat-ted, de-fat-ting, de-fats. To remove fat from: had to defat the chicken stock.

de-fault (dī-fôlt′) n. 1. Failure to perform a task or fulfill an obligation, especially failure to meet a financial obligation: in default on a loan. 2. Law. Failure to make a required court appearance. 3. The failure of one or more competitors or teams to participate in a contest: won the championship by default.

4. Computer Science. A particular value for a variable that is assigned automatically by an operating system and remains in effect unless canceled or overridden by the operator. — v. de-fault-ed, de-fault-ing, de-faults. — v. intr.

1. a. To fail to do what is required. b. To fail to pay money when it is due.

2. Law. a. To fail to appear in court when summoned. b. To lose a case by not appearing. 3. To fail to take part in or complete a scheduled contest. — v. tr.

1. To fail to perform or pay. 2. Law. To lose (a case) by failing to appear in court.

3. To fail to take part in or complete (a contest, for example). — idiom. in default of. Through the failure, absence, or lack of. [Middle English defaute, from Old French, from past participle of defaillir, to fail, grow weak : de-, intensive pref.; see DE- + faillir; see FAIL.] — de-fault'er n.

de-fea-sance (dī-fē'zəns) n. 1. A rendering void; an annulment. 2. a. The voiding of a contract or deed. b. A clause within a contract or deed providing for annulment. [Middle English defesaunce, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French defesance, from defesant, present participle of desfaire, to destroy. See DEFEAT.] de-fea-si-ble (dī-fē'zə-bəl) adj. Capable of being annulled or invalidated: a defeasible claim to an estate. — de-fea'si-bil'i-ty, de-fea'si-ble-ness n.

de-feat (dī-fēt′) v. tr. de-feat-ed, de-feat-ing, de-feats. 1. To win victory over; beat. 2. To prevent the success of; thwart: Internal strife defeats the purpose of teamwork. 3. Law. To make void; annul. — n. 1. The act of defeating or state of being defeated. 2. Failure to win. 3. A coming to naught; frustration: the defeat of a lifelong dream. 4. Law. The act of making null and void. [Middle English defeten, from defet, disfigured, from Old French desfait, past participle of desfaire, to destroy, from Medieval Latin disfacere, to destroy, mutilate, undo : Latin dis-, dis- + Latin facere, to do; see dhē- in Appendix.] — de-feat'er n.

SYNONYMS: defeat, conquer, vanquish, beat, rout, subdue, subjugate, overcome. These verbs mean to get the better of an adversary. Defeat is the most general: “Whether we defeat the enemy in one battle, or by degrees, the consequences will be the same” (Thomas Paine). Conquer suggests decisive and often wide-scale victory: “A conquering army on the border will not be halted by the power of eloquence” (Otto von Bismarck). Vanquish emphasizes total mastery: The forces of Napoleon were vanquished at Waterloo. Beat, less formal, is often the equivalent of defeat, though beat may convey greater emphasis: “To win battles... you beat the soul... of the enemy man” (George S. Patton). Rout implies complete victory followed by the disorderly flight of the defeated force: An entire division was routed during the first hours of the war. Subdue suggests mastery and control achieved by overpowering: “It cost [the Romans] two great wars, and three great battles, to subdue that little kingdom [Macedonia]” (Adam Smith). Subjugate more strongly implies reducing an opponent to submission: “The last foreigner to subjugate England was a Norman duke in the Middle Ages named William” (Stanley Meisler). To overcome is to prevail over, often by persevering: overcome an enemy; overcome temptation; overcome a physical handicap.

de·feat·ism (dī-fēʹtīzʹəm) n. Acceptance of or resignation to the prospect of defeat. — de·feat·ist adj. & n.

def·e·cate (dĕfʹi-kātʹ) v. def·e·cat·ed, def·e·cat·ing, def·e·cates. — v. intr. To void feces from the bowels. — v. tr. To remove (impurities, as in a chemical solution); clarify. [Latin dēfaecāre, to clean the dregs from : dē-, de- + faex, faec-, dregs.] — defʹe·caʹtion n. — defʹe·caʹtor n.

de·fect (dēʹfĕktʹ, dī-fĕktʹ) n. 1. The lack of something necessary or desirable for completion or perfection; deficiency: a visual defect. 2. An imperfection that causes inadequacy or failure; a shortcoming. See Synonyms at blemish. — v. intr. de·fect·ed, de·fect·ing, de·fects (dī-fĕktʹ). 1. To disown allegiance to one’s country and take up residence in another: a Soviet citizen who defected to Israel. 2. To abandon a position or an association, often to join an opposing group: defected from the party over the issue of free trade. [Middle English, from Latin dēfectus, failure, want, from past participle of dēficere, to desert, be wanting : dē-, de- + facere, to do; see dhē- in Appendix.] — de·fecʹtion n. — de·fecʹtor n.

de·fec·tive (dī-fĕkʹtīv) adj. Abbr. def. 1. a. Having a defect; faulty: a defective appliance. b. Marked by subnormal structure, function, intelligence, or behavior: defective speech. 2. Grammar. Lacking one or more of the inflected forms normal for a particular category of word, as the verb may in English. — n. Offensive. One that is physically or mentally deficient. — de·fecʹtive·ly adv. — de·fecʹtive·ness n.

de·fem·i·nize (dē-fĕmʹi-nīzʹ) v. tr. de·fem·i·nized, de·fem·i·niz·ing, de·fem·i·niz·es. To divest of feminine traits, qualities, or characteristics.

de·fence (dī-fĕnsʹ) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of defense.

de·fend (dī-fĕndʹ) v. de·fend·ed, de·fend·ing, de·fends. — v. tr. 1. To make or keep safe from danger, attack, or harm. 2. To support or maintain, as by argument or action; justify. 3. Law. a. To represent (a defendant) in a civil or criminal action. b. To attempt to disprove or invalidate (an action or a claim).

— v. intr. To make a defense. [Middle English defenden, from Old French defendre, from Latin dēfendere, to ward off. See g^when- in Appendix.]

—de·fend/a·ble adj. —de·fend'er n.

SYNONYMS: defend, protect, guard, preserve, shield, safeguard. These verbs mean to make or keep safe from danger, attack, or harm. Defend implies the taking of measures to repel an attack: defending the island against invasion; tried to defend his reputation. Protect often suggests providing a cover to repel discomfort, injury, or attack: bought a dog to protect the children from unfriendly strangers; wore sunglasses to protect my eyes; has to learn to protect herself. Guard suggests keeping watch: police guarding the entrance to the embassy; guarded the house against intruders. To preserve is to take measures to maintain something in safety: fighting to preserve freedom; ecologists working to preserve our natural resources. Shield suggests protection likened to a piece of defensive armor interposed between the threat and the threatened: His lawyers tried to shield him from the angry reporters. Safeguard stresses protection against potential or less imminent danger and often implies preventive action: The Bill of Rights safeguards our individual liberties.

de·fen·dant (dī-fĕn'dənt) n. Abbr. def., dft. Law. The party against which an action is brought.

de·fen·es·trate (dē-fĕn'ī-strāt') v. tr. de·fen·es·trat·ed, de·fen·es·trat·ing, de·fen·es·trates. To throw out of a window. [Back-formation from DEFENESTRATION.]

de·fen·es·tra·tion (dē-fĕn'ī-strā'shən) n. An act of throwing someone or something out of a window. [From DE- + Latin fenestra, window.]

de·fense (dī-fĕns') n. Abbr. def. 1. The act of defending against attack, danger, or injury. 2. A means or method of defending or protecting. 3. An argument in support or justification of something. See Synonyms at apology.

4. Law. a. The action of the defendant in opposition to complaints against him or her. b. The defendant and his or her legal counsel. 5. The science or art of defending oneself; self-defense. 6. Sports. The team or those players on the team attempting to stop the opposition from scoring. 7. The military, governmental, and industrial complex, especially as it authorizes and manages weaponry production. — v. tr. de·fensed, de·fens·ing, de·fens·es. Sports. To attempt to stop (the opposition) from scoring. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin dēfēnsa, from feminine past participle of dēfendere, to ward off. See DEFEND.] —de·fense/less adj. —de·fense/less·ly adv. —de·fense/less·ness n.

de·fense·man (dī-fĕns'mən, -mān') n. Sports. A team member, as in hockey, who plays a defensive zone or position.

defense mechanism (dī-fěns' mēk'ə-nīz'əm) n. 1. Biology. A physiological reaction of an organism used in self-protection, as against infection.

2. Psychology. Any of a variety of mental devices, usually unconscious, that an individual may use to protect the ego from shame, anxiety, conflict, loss of self-esteem, or other unacceptable feelings or thoughts. Defense mechanisms, commonly used in coping with problems, include behaviors such as repression, projection, denial, and rationalization.

de-fen-si-ble (dī-fě'n'sə-bəl) adj. Capable of being defended, protected, or justified: defensible arguments. —de-fen'si-bil'i-ty, de-fen'si-ble-ness n. —de-fen'si-bly adv.

de-fen-sive (dī-fě'n'siv) adj. 1. Intended or appropriate for defending; protective. 2. a. Intended to withstand or deter aggression or attack: a defensive weapons system; defensive behavior. b. Sports. Of or relating to the effort to prevent an opponent from gaining points in a game or an athletic contest. 3. Of or relating to defense. 4. Psychology. Constantly protecting oneself from criticism, exposure of one's shortcomings, or other real or perceived threats to the ego. — n. 1. A means of defense. 2. An attitude or position of defense. —idiom. on the defensive. Prepared to withstand or counter aggression or attack. —de-fen'sive-ly adv. —de-fen'sive-ness n.

de-fer¹ (dī-fûr') v. de-ferred, de-fer-ring, de-fers. — v. tr. 1. To put off; postpone. 2. To postpone the induction of (one eligible for the military draft). — v. intr. To procrastinate. [Middle English differren, to postpone, differ. See DIFFER.] —de-fer'ra-ble adj. —de-fer'rer n.

SYNONYMS: defer, postpone, shelve, stay, suspend. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to put off until a later time": deferred paying the bills; postponing our trip; shelved the issue; stay an execution; suspending train service.

de-fer² (dī-fûr') v. de-ferred, de-fer-ring, de-fers. — v. intr. To submit to the opinion, wishes, or decision of another through respect or in recognition of his or her authority, knowledge, or judgment. See Synonyms at yield. — v. tr. To commit or entrust to another. [Middle English deferen, from Old French deferer, from Latin dēferre, to carry away, refer to : dē-, de- + ferre, to carry; see bher¹ in Appendix.] —de-fer'rer n.

de-fer-ence (dĕf'ər-əns, dĕf'rəns) n. 1. Submission or courteous yielding to the opinion, wishes, or judgment of another. 2. Courteous respect. See Synonyms at honor.

de-fer-ent¹ (dĕf'ər-ənt, dĕf'rənt) adj. Showing deference; deferential.

de-fer-ent² (dĕf'ər-ənt, dĕf'rənt) adj. 1. Anatomy. Carrying down or away. Used of a duct or vessel. 2. Serving or adapted to carry or transport. [Middle English defferent, from Latin dēferēns, dēferent- present participle of dēferre, to carry away. See DEFER².]

de·fer·en·tial (dĕf'ə-rĕn'shəl) adj. Marked by or exhibiting deference.

—de·fer·en·tial·ly adv.

de·fer·ment (dī-fūr'mənt) n. 1. The act or an instance of delaying or putting off. 2. Officially sanctioned postponement of compulsory military service.

de·fer·ral (dī-fūr'əl) n. Deferment.

de·ferred (dī-fūr'd') adj. Abbr. def. 1. Postponed or delayed: deferred gratification; deferred military draft. 2. Withheld until a future date: deferred benefits; a deferred payment.

de·fer·ves·cence (dē'fər-vĕs'əns) n. Medicine. Abatement of a fever. [From Latin dēfervĕscĕns, dēfervĕscent- present participle of dēfervĕscere, to stop boiling, cool off : dē-, de- + fervĕscere, to grow hot, inchoative of fervĕre, to be hot, boil; see bhreu- in Appendix.] —de·fer·vesce' (-vĕs') v. —de·fer·ves·cent adj.

Def·fand (dī-fān'), Marquise du Title of Marie de Vichy-Chamrond. 1697-1780. French literary patron noted for her correspondence with Voltaire, Montesquieu, and Horace Walpole.

de·fi·ance (dī-fī'əns) n. 1. The act or an example of defying; bold resistance to an opposing force or authority. 2. Intentionally contemptuous behavior or attitude; readiness to contend or resist. —idiom. in defiance of. In spite of; contrary to: went on strike in defiance of union policy. [Middle English defiaunce, from Old French desfiance, from desfier, to defy. See DEFY.]

De·fi·ance (dī-fī'əns) A city of northwest Ohio southwest of Toledo. Fort Defiance was built on the site by Anthony Wayne in 1794. Population, 16,768.

de·fi·ant (dī-fī'ənt) adj. Marked by defiance; boldly resisting. —de·fi·ant·ly adv.

de·fib·ril·late (dē-fīb'rə-lāt', -fī'brə-) v. tr. de·fib·ril·lat·ed, de·fib·ril·lat·ing, de·fib·ril·lates. To stop the fibrillation of (a heart) and restore normal contractions through the use of drugs or an electric shock.

—de·fib·ril·la'tion n. —de·fib·ril·la'tive adj. —de·fib·ril·la-to'ry (-lə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

de·fib·ril·la·tor (dē-fīb'rə-lā'tər, -fī'brə-) n. An electrical device used to counteract fibrillation of the heart muscle and restore normal heartbeat by applying a brief electric shock.

de·fi·cien·cy (dī-fīsh'ən-sē) n. pl. de·fi·cien·cies. 1. The quality or condition of being deficient; incompleteness or inadequacy. 2. A lack or shortage, especially of something essential to health; an insufficiency: a nutritional deficiency.

deficiency disease (dī-fīsh'ən-sē dī-zēz') n. A disease, such as rickets or scurvy, that is caused by a dietary deficiency of specific nutrients, especially a vitamin or mineral. The disease may stem from insufficient intake, digestion, absorption, or utilization of a nutrient.

de-fi-cient (dī-fish'ənt) adj. 1. Lacking an essential quality or element: deficient in common sense. 2. Inadequate in amount or degree; insufficient: a deficient education. [Latin dēficiēns, dēficiēt- present participle of dēficere, to fail, be wanting. See DEFECT.] —de-fi'cient n. —de-fi'cient-ly adv.

def-i-cit (dĕf'i-sīt) n. 1. a. Inadequacy or insufficiency: a deficit in grain production. b. A deficiency or impairment in mental or physical functioning. c. An unfavorable condition or position; a disadvantage: rallied from a three-game deficit to win the playoffs. 2. a. The amount by which a sum of money falls short of the required or expected amount; a shortage: large budget deficits. b. A business loss. [French déficit, from Latin dēficit, it is lacking, third person sing. present tense of dēficere, to fail, be lacking. See DEFECT.]

deficit spending (dĕf'i-sīt spĕn'dīng) n. The spending of public funds obtained by borrowing rather than by taxation.

de-fi-er (dī-fī'ər) n. One that defies: a staunch defier of tradition.

def-i-lade (dĕf'ə-lād', -lād') v. tr. def-i-lad-ed, def-i-lad-ing, def-i-lades. To arrange (fortifications) in such a way as to give protection from enfilading and other fire. — n. 1. The act or procedure of defilading. 2. A fortified position offering protection from enfilading and other fire. [DE- + (EN)FILADE.]

de-file¹ (dī-fīl') v. tr. de-filed, de-fil-ing, de-files. 1. To make filthy or dirty; pollute: defile a river with sewage. 2. To debase the pureness or excellence of; corrupt: a country landscape that was defiled by urban sprawl. 3. To profane or sully (a good name, for example). 4. To make unclean or unfit for ceremonial use; desecrate: defile a temple. 5. To violate the chastity of. [Middle English defilen, alteration (influenced by filen, from Old English fylan); see pŭ- in Appendix, of defoulen, to trample on, abuse, pollute, from Old French defouler, to trample, full cloth : de-, de- + fouler, to trample, beat down; see FULL².] —de-file'ment n. —de-fil'er n. —de-fil'ing-ly adv.

de-file² (dī-fīl') v. intr. de-filed, de-fil-ing, de-files. To march in single file or in files or columns. — n. 1. A narrow gorge or pass that restricts lateral movement, as of troops. 2. A march in a line. [French défiler : dé-, away, off (from Old French de-); see DE- + file, line, file (from Old French filer, to spin thread, march in line); see FILE¹. N., from French défilé, from past participle of défiler.]

de-fine (dī-fīn') v. de-fined, de-fin-ing, de-fines. — v. tr. 1. a. To state the precise meaning of (a word or sense of a word, for example). b. To describe the nature or basic qualities of; explain: define the properties of a new drug; a study that defines people according to their median incomes. 2. a. To delineate the outline or form of: gentle hills that were defined against the sky. b. To specify distinctly: define the weapons to be used in limited warfare. 3. To serve to distinguish; characterize: “portraits that defined the style of an epoch” (Gloria Vanderbilt). — v. intr. To make or write a definition. [Middle English definēn, diffinen, from Old French definir, diffiner, from Latin dēfinīre, to limit, determine

: dē-, intensive pref.; see DE- + fīnis, boundary, limit.] —de-fin'a-bil'i-ty n.
—de-fin'a-ble adj. —de-fin'a-bly adv. —de-fine'ment n. —de-fin'er n.
de-fin-i-en-dum (dī-fīn'ē-ĕn'dəm) n. pl. de-fin-i-en-da (-də). A word or expression that is being defined. [Latin dēfīniendum, neuter gerundive of dēfī- nīre, to define. See DEFINE.]

de-fin-i-ens (dī-fīn'ē-ĕnz') n. pl. de-fin-i-en-ti-a (-ĕn'shē-ə, -shə). The word or words serving to define another word or expression, as in a dictionary entry.
[Latin dēfīniēns, present participle of dēfīnīre, to define. See DEFINE.]

def-i-nite (děf'ə-nīt) adj. 1. Having distinct limits: definite restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages. 2. Indisputable; certain: a definite victory. 3. Clearly defined; explicitly precise: a definite statement of the terms of the will. See Synonyms at explicit. 4. Abbr. def. Grammar. Limiting or particularizing.
5. Botany. a. Of a specified number not exceeding 20, as certain floral organs, especially stamens. b. Cymose; determinate. [Middle English diffinite, defined, from Latin dēfīnītus, past participle of dēfīnīre, to define. See DEFINE.]
—def'i-nite-ly adv. —def'i-nite-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Definite and definitive both apply to what is precisely defined or explicitly set forth. But definitive generally refers specifically to a judgment or description that serves as a standard or reference point for others, as in the defini- tive decision of the court (which sets forth a final resolution of a judicial matter) or the definitive biography of Nelson (i.e., the biography that sets the standard against which all other accounts of Nelson's life must be measured).

definite article (děf'ə-nīt ăr'tī-kəl) n. Grammar. A member of the class of determiners that restrict or particularize a noun. In English, the is the definite article.

definite integral (děf'ə-nīt ĩn'tī-grəl) n. Mathematics. An integral that is calculated between two specified limits, usually expressed in the form $\int [b2a] f(x) dx$.
The result of performing the integral is a number that represents the area under the curve of $f(x)$ between the limits and the x -axis.

def-i-ni-tion (děf'ə-nīsh'ən) n. Abbr. def. 1. a. A statement conveying fundamental character. b. A statement of the meaning of a word, phrase, or term, as in a dictionary entry. 2. The act or process of stating a precise meaning or significance; formulation of a meaning. 3. a. The act of making clear and distinct: a definition of one's intentions. b. The state of being closely outlined or determined:
“With the drizzle, the trees in the little clearing had lost definition” (Anthony Hyde).
c. A determination of outline, extent, or limits: the definition of a President's authority. 4. a. The clarity of detail in an optically produced image, such as a photograph, effected by a combination of resolution and contrast. b. The degree of clarity with which a televised image or broadcast signal is received. [Middle de-fin-i-tive (dĭ-fĭn'ĭ-tĭv) adj. 1. Precisely defined or explicit. 2. Supplying or being a final settlement or decision; conclusive. See Synonyms at decisive.

English diffinicioun, from Old French definition, from Latin dēfīnitiō-, dēfīnitiōn-, from dēfīnītus, past participle of dēfīnīre, to define. See DEFINE.] —def'i-ni-tion-al adj.

3. Authoritative and complete: a definitive biography. See Usage Note at definite. 4. Biology. Fully formed or developed, as an organ or structure. — n.

Grammar. A word that defines or limits, such as the definite article or a demonstrative pronoun. —de-fin'i-tive-ly adv. —de-fin'i-tive-ness n.

definitive host (dĭ-fĭn'ĭ-tĭv hōst) n. The host organism in or on which a parasite reaches reproductive maturity.

de-fin-i-tude (dĭ-fĭn'ĭ-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. The quality of being definite or exact; precision.

def-la-grate (dĕf'lə-grāt') v. intr. tr. def-la-grat-ed, def-la-grat-ing, def-la-grates. To burn or cause to burn with great heat and intense light. [Latin dēflagrāre, dēflagrāt- : dē-, intensive pref.; see DE- + flagrāre, to blaze; see bhel-1 in Appendix.] —def'la-gra'tion n.

de-flate (dĭ-flāt') v. de-flat-ed, de-flat-ing, de-flates. — v. tr. 1. a. To release contained air or gas from. b. To collapse by releasing contained air or gas. 2. To reduce or lessen the size or importance of: Losing the contest deflated my ego. 3. Economics. a. To reduce the amount or availability of (currency or credit), effecting a decline in prices. b. To produce deflation in (an economy). — v. intr. To be or become deflated: The balloon deflated slowly. [DE- + (IN)FLATE.]

—de-fla'tor n.

de-fla-tion (dĭ-flā'shən) n. 1. The act of deflating or the condition of being deflated. 2. Economics. A persistent decrease in the level of consumer prices or a persistent increase in the purchasing power of money because of a reduction in available currency and credit. —de-fla'tion-ar'y (-shə-nĕr'ē) adj. —de-fla-tion-ist n.

de-flect (dĭ-flĕkt') v. intr. tr. de-flect-ed, de-flect-ing, de-flects. To turn aside or cause to turn aside; bend or deviate. [Latin dēflectere : dē-, de- + flectere, to bend.] —de-flect'a-ble adj. —de-flec'tive adj. —de-flec'tor n.

de-flec-tion (dĭ-flĕk'shən) n. 1. The act of deflecting or the condition of being deflected. 2. Deviation or a specified amount of deviation. 3. The deviation of an indicator of a measuring instrument from zero or from its normal position.

4. The movement of a structure or structural part as a result of stress.

de-flexed (dĭ-flĕkst', dĕ'flĕkst') adj. Botany. Bent or turned abruptly downward at a sharp angle: deflexed petals. [From Latin dēflexus, past participle of dēflectere, to bend. See DEFLECT.]

de-flex-ion (dĭ-flĕk'shən) n. Chiefly British. Variant of deflection.

de·flo·ra·tion (dĕf'lə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act of deflowering. 2. Rupture of the hymen, typically in sexual intercourse. [Middle English defloracioun, from Late Latin dēflōrātiō, dēflōrātiōn-, from dēflōrātus, past participle of dēflōrāre, to deflower. See DEFLOWER.]

de·flow·er (dē-flou'ər) v. tr. de·flow·ered, de·flow·er·ing, de·flow·ers.

1. To take away the virginity of (a woman). 2. To destroy the innocence, integrity, or beauty of; ravage. [Middle English defflouren, from Old French defflourer, from Late Latin dēflōrāre: Latin dē-, de- + Latin flōs, flōr-, flower; see bhel³ in Appendix.] —de·flow'er·er n.

de·foam (dē-fōm') v. tr. de·foamed, de·foam·ing, de·foams. 1. To remove foam from. 2. To prevent the formation of foam on.

de·fo·cus (dē-fō'kəs) v. tr. de·fo·cused or de·fo·cussed, de·fo·cus·ing or de·fo·cus·sing, de·fo·cus·es or de·fo·cus·ses. To cause (a beam or a lens) to deviate from accurate focus. — n. The act or result of causing a lens to deviate from accurate focus.

De·foe (dī-fō'), Daniel. 1660-1731. British writer whose most famous novel, Robinson Crusoe (1719), was inspired by the exploits of a Scottish sailor and castaway, Alexander Selkirk. He also wrote Moll Flanders and A Journal of the Plague Year (both 1722).

de·fog (dē-fōg', -fōg') v. tr. de·fogged, de·fog·ging, de·fogs. To remove condensed water vapor from: defog a windshield. —de·fog'ger n.

de·fo·li·ant (dē-fō'lē-ənt) n. A chemical sprayed or dusted on plants to cause the leaves to fall off.

de·fo·li·ate (dē-fō'lē-āt') v. de·fo·li·at·ed, de·fo·li·at·ing, de·fo·li·ates. — v. tr. 1. To deprive (a plant, tree, or forest) of leaves. 2. To cause the leaves of (a plant, tree, or forest) to fall off, especially by the use of chemicals. — v. intr. To lose foliage. [Late Latin dēfoliāre, dēfoliāt-: Latin dē-, de- + Latin folium, leaf; see bhel³ in Appendix.] —de·fo'li·ate (-ĭt) adj. —de·fo'li·a'tion n. —de·fo'li·a'tor n.

de·force (dē-fōrs', -fōrs') v. tr. de·forced, de·forc·ing, de·forc·es. Law. To withhold (something) by force from the rightful owner. [Middle English deforcen, from Anglo-Norman deforcer, from Old French desforcier: des-, de- + forcier, to force (from Vulgar Latin fortiāre*, from Latin fortis, strong); see bhergh² in Appendix.] —de·force'ment n.

de·for·est (dē-fōr'ĭst, -fōr'-) v. tr. de·for·est·ed, de·for·est·ing, de·for·ests. To cut down and clear away the trees or forests from.

—de·for'es·ta'tion (-ĭ-stā'shən) n. —de·for'est·er n.

De For·est (dī fōr'ĭst, fōr'-), Lee. Known as “the Father of Radio.” 1873-1961. American electrical engineer who patented the triode electron tube (1907) that made possible the amplification and detection of radio waves. He originated radio news broadcasts in 1916.

de·form (dī-fôrm') v. de·formed, de·form·ing, de·forms. — v. tr. 1. To spoil the natural form of; misshape: a body that had been deformed by disease. 2. To spoil the beauty or appearance of; disfigure. 3. Physics. To alter the shape of by pressure or stress. — v. intr. To become deformed. See Synonyms at dis·tort. [Middle English deformen, from Old French deformer, from Latin dēformāre : dē-, de- + forma, form.] — de·form'a·bil'i·ty n. — de·form'a·ble adj.

de·for·ma·tion (dē'fôr-mā'shən, dĕf'ər-) n. 1. a. The act or process of deforming. b. The condition of being deformed. 2. An alteration of form for the worse. 3. Physics. a. An alteration of shape by pressure or stress. b. The shape that results from such an alteration.

de·formed (dī-fôrmd') adj. Distorted in form; misshapen.

de·for·mi·ty (dī-fôr'mī-tē) n. pl. de·for·mi·ties. 1. The state of being deformed. 2. A bodily malformation, distortion, or disfigurement. 3. A deformed person or thing. 4. Gross ugliness or distortion.

de·fraud (dī-frôd') v. tr. de·fraud·ed, de·fraud·ing, de·frauds. To take something from by fraud; swindle: defrauded the immigrants by selling them worthless land deeds. [Middle English defrauden, from Old French defrauder, from Latin dēfraudāre : dē-, de- + fraudāre, to cheat (from fraus, fraud-, fraud).] — de'fraud'a'tion (dē'frô-dā'shən) n. — de·fraud'er n.

de·fray (dī-frā') v. tr. de·frayed, de·fray·ing, de·frays. To undertake the payment of (costs or expenses); pay. [French défrayer, from Old French desfrayer : des-, de- + frāi*, expense (from Latin frāctum, from neuter past participle of frangere, to break); see bhreg- in Appendix.] — de·fray'a·ble adj. — de·fray'al n.

de·frock (dē-frôk') v. tr. de·frocked, de·frock·ing, de·frocks. To unfrock.

de·frost (dē-frôst', -frôst') v. de·frost·ed, de·frost·ing, de·frosts. — v. tr. 1. To remove ice or frost from. 2. To cause to thaw. — v. intr. To become thawed.

de·frost·er (dē-frô'stər, -frôs'tər) n. 1. A heating device designed to remove frost or prevent its formation. 2. A device designed to thaw frozen goods.

deft (dĕft) adj. deft·er, deft·est. Quick and skillful; adroit. See Synonyms at dexterous. [Middle English, gentle, humble, variant of dafte, foolish. See DAFT.] — deft'ly adv. — deft'ness n.

de·fu·el (dē-fyōō'əl) v. tr. de·fu·eled also de·fu·elled, de·fu·el·ing also de·fu·el·ling, de·fu·els also de·fu·els. To remove the fuel from: defuel a rocket.

de·funct (dī-fŭngkt') adj. Having ceased to exist or live: a defunct political organization. [Latin dēfunctus, past participle of dēfungĭ, to finish : dē-, de- + fungĭ, to perform.] — de·func'tive adj. — de·funct'ness n.

de·fund (dē-fündʹ) v. tr. de·fund·ed, de·fund·ing, de·funds. To stop the flow of funds to: defund a federal program.

de·fuse (dē-fyōōzʹ) v. tr. de·fused, de·fus·ing, de·fus·es. 1. To remove the fuse from (an explosive device). 2. To make less dangerous, tense, or hostile: a diplomatic move that defused the international crisis.

de·fy (dī-fīʹ) v. tr. de·fied, de·fy·ing, de·fies. 1. a. To oppose or resist with boldness and assurance: defied the blockade by sailing straight through it. b. To refuse to submit to or cooperate with: defied the court order by leaving the country; played his trumpet past midnight, defying the neighbors. 2. To be unaffected by; resist or withstand: “So the plague defied all medicines” (Daniel Defoe). 3. To challenge or dare (someone) to do something: She defied her accusers to prove their charges. [Middle English defien, from Old French desfier, from Vulgar Latin disfīdāre*: Latin dis-, dis- + Latin fīdus, faithful; see bheidh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: defy, beard, brave, challenge, dare, face, front. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to confront boldly and courageously”: an innovator defying tradition; bearded the power of the king; braving all criticism; challenged the opposition to produce proof; daring him to deny the statement; faced her accusers; front death with dignity.

deg or deg. abbr. Degree.

dé·ga·gé (dā'gā-zhāʹ) adj. Free and relaxed in manner; casual. [French, past participle of dégager, to disengage, from Old French desgagier: des-, de- + gage, pledge (of Germanic origin).]

de·gas (dē-gāsʹ) v. tr. de·gassed, de·gas·sing, de·gas·ses or de·gas·es. To remove gas from.

De·gas (də-gäʹ), (Hilaire Germain) Edgar. 1834-1917. French painter and sculptor noted especially for his fluid studies of ballet dancers.

de Gaulle (də gōlʹ, gōlʹ), (Charles André Joseph Marie. 1890-1970. French general and politician. During World War II he gained enormous popularity as the leader of Free French forces in exile. Later, after years of self-imposed retirement, he emerged as the first president (1959-1969) of the Fifth Republic and led the country through its turbulent withdrawal from Algeria.

de·gauss (dē-gousʹ) v. tr. de·gaussed, de·gauss·ing, de·gauss·es. 1. To neutralize the magnetic field of (a ship, for example). 2. To erase information from (a magnetic disk or other storage device). [DE- + GAUSS.] —de·gauss'er n.

de·gen·er·a·cy (dī-jĕnʹər-ə-sē) n. pl. de·gen·er·a·cies. 1. The process of degenerating. 2. The state of being degenerate. 3. Corrupt, vulgar, vicious behavior, especially sexual perversion. 4. Genetics. The presence in a genetic code of multiple codons for the same amino acid.

de·gen·er·ate (dī-jěn'ər-īt) adj. 1. Having declined, as in function or nature, from a former or original state: a degenerate form of an ancient folk art.

2. Having fallen to an inferior or undesirable state, especially in mental or moral qualities. 3. Physics. Taking on several discrete values or existing in two or more quantum states: degenerate energy levels. 4. Physics. Characterized by great density and consisting of atoms stripped of electrons: degenerate matter.

5. Medicine. Characterized by degeneration, as of tissue, a cell, or an organ.

6. Biology. Having lost one or more highly developed functions, characteristics, or structures through evolution: a degenerate life form. 7. Genetics. a. Coding for the same amino acid as another codon. b. Having more than one codon specify the same amino acid. Used of a genetic code. — n. 1. A depraved, corrupt, or vicious person. 2. A person lacking or having progressively lost normative biological or psychological characteristics. — v. intr. de·gen·er·at·ed, de·gen·er·at·ing, de·gen·er·ates (-ə-rāt'). 1. To fall below a normal or desirable state, especially functionally or morally; deteriorate: old water pipes that are degenerating with age; a dispute that degenerated into a brawl. 2. To decline in quality: The quality of his writing degenerated as he continued to drink. 3. To undergo degeneration. [Latin dēgenerātus, past participle of dēgenerāre, to depart from one's own kind, deteriorate : dē-, de- + genus, gener-, race; see genə- in Appendix.] — de·gen'er·ate·ly adv. — de·gen'er·ate·ness n.

de·gen·er·a·tion (dī-jěn'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The process of degenerating.

2. The state of being degenerate. 3. Medicine. Gradual deterioration of specific tissues, cells, or organs with corresponding impairment or loss of function, caused by injury, disease, or aging. 4. Biology. The evolutionary decline or loss of a function, characteristic, or structure in an organism or a species. 5. Electronics. Loss of or gain in power in an amplifier caused by unintentional negative feedback.

de·gen·er·a·tive (dī-jěn'ər-ə-tīv) adj. Of, relating to, causing, or characterized by degeneration: a degenerative disease.

degenerative joint disease (dī-jěn'ər-ə-tīv joint dī-zēz') n. See osteoarthritis.

de·glam·or·ize (dē-glām'ə-rīz') v. tr. de·glam·or·ized, de·glam·or·iz·ing, de·glam·or·iz·es. To make less glamorous: "pressing the entertainment industry to deglamorize the treatment of drugs in films" (Larry Martz).

de·glaze (dē-glāz') v. tr. de·glazed, de·glaz·ing, de·glaz·es. 1. To remove the glaze from (pottery, for example). 2. To dissolve the remaining bits of sautéed or roasted food in (a pan or pot) by adding a liquid and heating.

de·glu·ti·nate (dī-glōōt'n-āt') v. tr. de·glu·ti·nat·ed, de·glu·ti·nat·ing, de·glu·ti·nates. To extract the gluten from (wheat flour, for example). [Latin dēglutināre, dēglutināt- : dē-, de- + glūten, glutin-, glue.] — de·glu'ti·na'tion n.

de·glu·ti·tion (dē'glōō-tīsh'ən) n. The act or process of swallowing. [French déglutition, from déglutir, to swallow, from Latin dēglūtīre: dē-, de- + glūtīre, to gulp.] —de·glu'ti-to'ry (-tī-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

de·grad·a·ble (dī-grā'də-bəl) adj. That can be chemically degraded: degradable plastic wastes; degradable paper products. —de·grad'a·bil'i·ty n.

deg·ra·da·tion (dĕg'rə-dā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of degrading.

2. The state of being degraded; degeneration. 3. A decline to a lower condition, quality, or level. 4. Geology. A general lowering of the earth's surface by erosion or weathering. 5. Chemistry. Decomposition of a compound by stages, exhibiting well-defined intermediate products. 6. Computer Science. The state in which a computer operates when some of its memory or peripherals are not available.

de·grade (dī-grād') v. tr. de·grad·ed, de·grad·ing, de·grades. 1. To reduce in grade, rank, or status; demote. 2. To lower in dignity; dishonor or disgrace: a scandal that degraded the participants. 3. To lower in moral or intellectual character; debase. 4. To reduce in worth or value: degrade a currency. 5. To impair in physical structure or function. 6. Geology. To lower or wear by erosion or weathering. 7. To cause (an organic compound) to undergo degradation.

[Middle English degraden, from Old French degrader, from Late Latin dēgradāre: Latin dē-, de- + Latin gradus, step; see ghredh- in Appendix.] —de·grad'er n.

SYNONYMS: degrade, abase, debase, demean, humble, humiliate. These verbs mean to deprive of self-esteem or self-worth. Degrade implies reduction to a state of shame or disgrace: "Charity degrades those who receive it and hardens those who dispense it" (George Sand). Abase refers principally to loss of rank or prestige: refused to abase herself by asking for an invitation. Debase implies reduction in quality or value: "debasing the moral currency" (George Eliot). Demean suggests lowering in social position: "It puts him where he can make the advances without demeaning himself" (William Dean Howells). Humble can refer to lowering in rank or, more often, to driving out undue pride: He dreamed of humbling his opponent. To humiliate is to subject to loss of self-respect or dignity: a defeat that humiliated both army and nation. See also Synonyms at demote de·grad·ed (dī-grā'dīd) adj. 1. Reduced in rank, dignity, or esteem. 2. Having been corrupted or depraved. 3. Having been reduced in quality or value.

—de·grad'ed·ly adv. —de·grad'ed·ness n.

de·grad·ing (dī-grā'dīng) adj. Tending or intended to degrade: "There is nothing so degrading as the constant anxiety about one's means of livelihood" (W. Somerset Maugham). —de·grad'ing·ly adv.

de·gran·u·la·tion (dē-grăn'yə-lā'shən) n. The process of losing granules.

de-grease (dē-grēs', -grēz') v. tr. de-greased, de-greas-ing, de-greas-es.

To remove grease from: degrease machinery; degrease chicken stock.

—de-greas'er n.

de-gree (dī-grē') n. 1. One of a series of steps in a process, course, or progression; a stage: rose by degrees from clerk to manager of the store. 2. A step in a direct hereditary line of descent or ascent: First cousins are two degrees from their common ancestor. 3. Relative social or official rank, dignity, or position. 4. Relative intensity or amount, as of a quality or an attribute: a high degree of accuracy.

5. The extent or measure of a state of being, an action, or a relation: modernized their facilities to a large degree. 6. Abbr. deg, deg. A unit division of a temperature scale. 7. Mathematics. A planar unit of angular measure equal in magnitude to 360 of a complete revolution. 8. A unit of latitude or longitude, equal to 360 of a great circle. 9. Mathematics. a. The greatest sum of the exponents of the variables in a term of a polynomial or polynomial equation. b. The exponent of the derivative of highest order in a differential equation in standard form.

10. a. An academic title given by a college or university to a student who has completed a course of study: received the Bachelor of Arts degree at commencement. b. A similar title conferred as an honorary distinction. 11. Law. A division or classification of a specific crime according to its seriousness: murder in the second degree. 12. A classification of the severity of an injury, especially a burn: a third-degree burn. 13. Grammar. One of the forms used in the comparison of adjectives and adverbs. For example, sweet is the positive degree, sweeter the comparative degree, and sweetest the superlative degree of the adjective sweet.

14. Music. a. One of the seven notes of a diatonic scale. b. A space or line of the staff. —idioms. by degrees. Little by little; gradually. to a degree. To a small extent; in a limited way. [Middle English degre, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin dēgradus*: Latin dē-, de- + Latin gradus, step; see ghredh- in Appendix.]

de-greed (dī-grēd') adj. Having or requiring an academic degree: a degreed biologist; a degreed profession.

de-gree-day (dī-grē'dā') n. A unit of measurement equal to a difference of one degree between the mean outdoor temperature on a certain day and a reference temperature, used in estimating the energy needs for heating or cooling a building.

degree of freedom (dī-grē' ūv frē'dəm) n. pl. degrees of freedom.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

1. Statistics. Any of the unrestricted, independent random variables that constitute a statistic. 2. Physics. a. Any of the minimum number of coordinates required to specify completely the motion of a mechanical system. b. Any of the independent thermodynamic variables, such as pressure, temperature, or composition, required to specify a system with a given number of phases and components.

de·gres·sion (dī-grěsh'ən, dē-) n. A descent by stages or steps. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin dēgressiō, dēgressiōn-, descent, from Latin dēgressus, past participle of dēgredī, to step down : dē-, de- + gradī, to step; see ghredh- in Appendix.] —de·gres'sive adj.

de·gust (dī-güst', dē-) v. tr. de·gust·ed, de·gust·ing, de·gusts. To taste with relish; savor. [Latin dēgustāre : dē-, de- + gustāre, to taste; see geus- in Appendix.] —de'gus-ta'tion (dē'gū-stā'shən) n.

de Ha·vil·land (də həv'ə-lənd), Olivia. Born 1916. British-born American actress who portrayed Melanie in Gone With the Wind (1939) and won an Academy Award for To Each His Own (1946) and The Heiress (1949).

de·hire (dē-hīr') v. tr. de·hired, de·hir·ing, de·hires. Slang. To lay off or otherwise terminate (an employee): “[When] top executives... are dehired, headhunters get nervous. It's not the way they like to see new business develop” (Forbes).

de·hisce (dī-hīs') v. intr. de·hisced, de·hisce·ing, de·hisce·es. 1. Botany. To open at definite places, discharging seeds, pollen, or other contents, as the ripe capsules or pods of some plants. 2. Medicine. To rupture or break open, as a surgical wound. [Latin dehīscere : dē-, de- + hīscere, to split, inchoative of hiāre, to be open.]

de·his·cence (dē-hīs'əns) n. 1. Botany. An opening at definite places at maturity to release or expose the contents, such as seeds from a fruit or pollen from an anther. 2. Medicine. A splitting open or a rupture, as of a surgical wound or of an organ or a structure to discharge its contents. —de·his'cent adj.

de·horn (dē-hôrn') v. tr. de·horned, de·horn·ing, de·horns. 1. To remove the horns from. 2. To prevent growth in the horns of (cattle, for example), as by cauterization.

Deh·ra Dun (də'rə dōn') A city of northern India north-northeast of Delhi. It is a trade center and has a forestry college. Population, 211,416.

de·hu·man·ize (dē-hyōō'mə-nīz') v. tr. de·hu·man·ized, de·hu·man·iz·ing, de·hu·man·iz·es. 1. To deprive of human qualities such as individuality, compassion, or civility: slaves who had been dehumanized by their abysmal condition. 2. To render mechanical and routine. —de·hu'man-i-za'tion (-mə-nī-zā'shən) n.

de·hu·mid·i·fy (dē'hyōō-mīd'ə-fī') v. tr. de·hu·mid·i·fied, de·hu·mid·i·fy·ing, de·hu·mid·i·fies. To remove atmospheric moisture from. —de'hu·mid'i·fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —de'hu·mid'i·fi'er n.

de·hy·dra·tase (dē-hī'drə-tās', -tāz') n. Biochemistry. An enzyme that catalyzes the removal of oxygen and hydrogen from organic compounds in the form of water.

de·hy·drate (dē-hī'drāt') v. de·hy·drat·ed, de·hy·drat·ing, de·hy·drates. — v. tr. 1. To remove water from; make anhydrous. 2. To preserve by removing water from (vegetables, for example). See Synonyms at dry. — v. intr. To lose water or moisture; become dry. —de-hy'dra'tor n.

de-hy-dra-tion (dē'hī-drā'shən) n. 1. The process of removing water from a substance or compound. 2. Excessive loss of water from the body or from an organ or a body part, as from illness or fluid deprivation.

de-hy-dra-tor (dē-hī'drā'tər) n. 1. A substance, such as sulfuric acid, that removes water. 2. A container or an engineered system designed to remove water from substances such as absorbents or food.

de-hy-dro-chlo-rin-ase (dē-hī'drə-klôr'ə-nās', -nāz', -klôr'-) n. Biochemistry. An enzyme that catalyzes the removal of hydrogen and chlorine from a chlorinated hydrocarbon.

de-hy-dro-chlo-rin-ate (dē-hī'drə-klôr'ə-nāt', -klôr'-) v. tr.

de-hy-dro-chlo-rin-at-ed, de-hy-dro-chlo-rin-at-ing, de-hy-dro-chlo-rin-ates. Biochemistry. To remove hydrogen and chlorine or hydrogen chloride from (a compound). —de-hy'dro-chlo'ri-na'tion n.

de-hy-dro-gen-ase (dē'hī-drōj'ə-nās', -nāz', dē-hī'drə-jə-) n. Biochemistry. An enzyme that catalyzes the removal and transfer of hydrogen from a substrate in an oxidation-reduction reaction.

de-hy-dro-gen-ate (dē'hī-drōj'ə-nāt', dē-hī'drə-jə-) v. tr.

de-hy-dro-gen-at-ed, de-hy-dro-gen-at-ing, de-hy-dro-gen-ates. Chemistry. To remove hydrogen from. —de-hy'dro-gen-a'tion n.

de-hy-dro-gen-ize (dē'hī-drōj'ə-nīz', dē-hī'drə-jə-) v. tr.

de-hy-dro-gen-ized, de-hy-dro-gen-iz-ing, de-hy-dro-gen-iz-es. Chemistry. To dehydrogenate. —de-hy'dro-gen-i-za'tion (-ə-nī-zā'shən) n.

de-hyp-no-tize (dē-hīp'nə-tīz') v. tr. de-hyp-no-tized, de-hyp-no-tiz-ing, de-hyp-no-tiz-es. To arouse from a hypnotic state.

de-ice (dē-īs') v. tr. de-iced, de-ic-ing, de-ic-es. To make or keep free of ice; melt ice from: deiced the plane's wings before takeoff.

de-ic-er (dē-ī'sər) n. 1. A device used on an aircraft to keep the wings and propeller free from ice or to remove ice after it has formed. 2. A compound, such as ethylene glycol, used to prevent the formation of ice, as on windshields.

deic-tic (dik'tik) adj. 1. Logic. Directly proving by argument. 2. Linguistics. Serving to point out or specify, as the demonstrative pronoun this. [Greek deiktikos, from deiktos, able to show directly, from deiknunai, to show. See deik- in Appendix.] —deic'ti-cal-ly adv.

de-if-ic (dē-īf'ik) adj. 1. Making or tending to make divine. 2. Of or characterized by divine or godlike nature. [Late Latin deificus: Latin deus, god; see deiw- in Appendix + Latin -ficus, -fic.]

de-i-fi-ca-tion (dē'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of deifying.

b. The condition of being deified. 2. One that embodies the qualities of a god.

de·i·fy (dē'ə-fī') v. tr. dei·fied, dei·fy·ing, dei·fies. 1. To make a god of; raise to the condition of a god. 2. To worship or revere as a god: deify a leader. 3. To idealize; exalt: deifying success. [Middle English deifien, from Old French deifier, from Late Latin deificāre, from deificus, deific. See DEIFIC.] —de·i·fi'er n.

deign (dān) v. deigned, deign·ing, deigns. — v. intr. To think it appropriate to one's dignity; condescend: wouldn't deign to greet the servant who opened the door. See Synonyms at stoop¹. — v. tr. To condescend to give or grant; vouchsafe. "Nor would we deign him burial of his men" (Shakespeare). [Middle English deinen, from Old French deignier, to regard as worthy, from Latin dignāri, from dignus, worthy. See dek- in Appendix.]

deil (dēl) n. Scots. 1. The devil; Satan. 2. A mischievous person; an imp. [Scots, from Middle English dele, variant of devel. See DEVIL.]

Dei-mos (dē'mōs, dā'-, dī'mōs) n. The satellite of Mars that is second in distance from the planet. [Greek, one of the sons of Ares, from deimos, fear, terror.]

de·in·dus·tri·al·ize (dē'in-dūs'trē-ə-līz') v. de·in·dus·tri·al·ized, de·in·dus·tri·al·iz·ing, de·in·dus·tri·al·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To cause (a nation or an area) to lose industrial capability or strength: felt that America was being deindustrialized by foreign competition. 2. To deprive (a defeated country) of its industrial infrastructure and potential: After World War I the Allies attempted to deindustrialize Germany. — v. intr. To undergo or suffer loss of industrial infrastructure and potential. —de'in·dus'tri·al·i·za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

de·in·sti·tu·tion·al·ize (dē'in'stī-tōō'shə-nə-līz', -tyōō'-) v. tr.

de·in·sti·tu·tion·al·ized, de·in·sti·tu·tion·al·iz·ing, de·in·sti·tu·tion·al·iz·es. 1. To remove the status of an institution from. 2. To release (a mental health patient, for example) from an institution for placement and care in the community. —de·in'stī·tu'tion·al·i·za'tion (-shə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

de·i·on·ize (dē-ī'ə-nīz') v. tr. de·i·on·ized, de·i·on·iz·ing, de·i·on·iz·es. To remove ions from (a solution) using an ion-exchange process. —de·i'·on·iz'er n.

Deir-dre (dīr'drə, -drē) n. A legendary princess of Ulster who eloped with her lover, Naoise, to escape marriage to King Conchobar. After the king murdered Naoise, she killed herself.

Dei-sen·hof·er (dī'sən-hō'fər), Johann. Born 1943. German chemist. He shared a 1988 Nobel Prize for determining the structure of complex proteins that are essential to photosynthesis.

de·ism (dē'iz'əm) n. The belief, based solely on reason, in a God who created the universe and then abandoned it, assuming no control over life, exerting no influence on natural phenomena, and giving no supernatural revelation. [French déisme, from Latin deus, god. See deiw- in Appendix.] —de'ist n. —de·is'tic adj. —de·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

de·i·ty (dē'ī-tē) n. pl. de·i·ties. 1. A god or goddess. 2. a. The essential nature or condition of being a god; divinity. b. Deity. God. Used with the. [Middle English deite, from Old French, from Late Latin deitās, divine nature, from Latin deus, god. See deiw- in Appendix.]

dé·jà vu (dā'zhä vü') n. 1. Psychology. The illusion of having already experienced something actually being experienced for the first time. 2. a. An impression of having seen or experienced something before: Old-timers watched the stock-market crash with a distinct sense of déjà vu. b. Dull familiarity; monotony: the déjà vu of the tabloid headlines. [French : déjà, already + vu, seen.]

de·ject (dī-jĕkt') v. tr. de·ject·ed, de·ject·ing, de·jects. To lower the spirits of; dishearten. [Middle English dejecten, from Latin dēicere, dēiect-, to cast down : dē-, de- + iacere, to throw; see yē- in Appendix.]

de·ject·ed (dī-jĕkt'ĭd) adj. Being in low spirits; depressed. See Synonyms at depressed. —de·ject'ed·ly adv. —de·ject'ed·ness n.

de·jec·tion (dī-jĕkt'shən) n. 1. The state of being dejected; low spirits.

2. Medicine. a. Evacuation of the bowels; defecation. b. Excrement.

de ju·re (dē jŏör'ē, dā yŏör'ā) adv. & adj. Law. According to law; by right. [Latin dē iūre : dē, from + iūre, ablative of iūs, law.]

dek- or deka- pref. Variants of deca-.

dek·a·gram (dĕk'ə-grām') n. Abbr. dkg Variant of decagram.

De Kalb (dī kälb') A city of northern Illinois south-southeast of Rockford. It is a manufacturing center in a farming region. Population, 34,925.

dek·a·li·ter (dĕk'ə-lē'tər) n. Abbr. dkl Variant of decaliter.

dek·a·me·ter (dĕk'ə-mē'tər) n. Abbr. dkm Variant of decameter.

deke (dĕk) Sports. v. tr. deked, dek·ing, dekes. To deceive (an opponent) in ice hockey by a fake: deked the goalie with a move from left to right. — n. A fake, intended to deceive a member of an opposing team. [Short for DECOY.]

Dek·ker (dĕk'ər), Thomas. 1572-1632. English playwright whose comedy The Shoemaker's Holiday (1600) is notable for its vivid portrayal of daily life in London.

de Klerk (də klŭrk'), Frederik Wilhelm. Born 1936. South African politician. As president of South Africa (1989-1994), he ended the ban on the African National Congress and released Nelson Mandela from prison (1990). He shared the 1993 Nobel Peace Prize with Nelson Mandela.

de Koo·ning (dī kōō'nĭng), Willem. Born 1904. Dutch-born American painter and leader of the abstract expressionist school. In the 1950's he produced a monumental series entitled Woman, characterized by unrestrained color and a violent treatment of subject matter. His wife, Elaine Fried de Kooning (1920-1989), painted in a variety of styles, often devoting numerous works to a single theme, as in her drawings and portraits of John F. Kennedy.

De Ko-ven (dī kō'vən), (Henry Louis) Reginald. 1859-1920. American composer, especially of light operas, whose most famous work is the song "O Promise Me" (1890).

del. abbr. 1. Delegate; delegation. 2. Delete.

Del. abbr. Delaware.

De-la-croix (də-lä-krwä'), (Ferdinand Victor) Eugène. 1798-1863. French romantic painter known for his vast, dramatic canvases and exuberant use of color, as in The Massacre of Chios (1824) and Liberty Leading the People (1831).

Del-a-go-a Bay (děl'ə-gō'ə bā) An inlet of the Indian Ocean in southern Mozambique. The bay was discovered by the Portuguese in 1502 and explored after 1544. Portugal's claim to the area was upheld in 1875 after a dispute with Great Britain.

de la Mare (də lə mâr', dël'ə-mâr'), Walter John. 1873-1956. British writer whose delight in the fantasy world of childhood is reflected in his poems and novels, such as Early One Morning (1935).

De-la-mat-er (də-läm'ə-tər), Cornelius Henry. 1821-1889. American mechanical engineer whose foundry in New York City built the ironclad Monitor (1862) and the first successful submarine (1881).

de-lam-i-nate (dē-läm'ə-nāt') v. intr. de-lam-i-nat-ed, de-lam-i-nat-ing, de-lam-i-nates. To split into thin layers.

de-lam-i-na-tion (dē-läm'ə-nā'shən) n. 1. The act of splitting or separating a laminate into layers. 2. Embryology. The splitting of the blastoderm into two layers of cells to form a gastrula.

De Lan-cey (də län'sē), James. 1703-1760. American colonial official who served on the provincial supreme court of New York (1731-1760).

De-land (də-länd'), Margaret. 1857-1945. American writer whose works, many of them set in her native Pennsylvania, include The Awakening of Helen Richie (1906) and its sequel, The Iron Woman (1911).

De Land (dī länd') A city of northeast Florida west-southwest of Daytona Beach. It is a winter resort. Population, 16,491.

De-la-ney (də-lā'nē), Shelagh. Born 1930. British playwright best known for A Taste of Honey (1958).

De-la-no (də-lā'nō) A city of south-central California in the San Joaquin Valley north-northwest of Bakersfield. It is a processing and shipping center. Population, 22,762.

De-lan-y (də-lā'nē), Martin Robinson. 1812-1885. American physician and social reformer who founded and edited the North Star (1847-1849) with Frederick Douglass.

de la Roche (də lə rōch', rôsh'), Mazo. 1885-1961. Canadian writer known for her series of 16 novels, including Jalna (1927), featuring the Whiteoak family of Ontario.

De-la-roche (də-lä-rōsh', -rōsh'), Hippolyte Paul. 1797-1856. French portrait and mural painter whose eclectic works combined elements of the classical and romantic schools.

de la Rue (də'l'ə-rōō', dəl'ə-rōō'), Warren. 1815-1889. British astronomer who was a pioneer of celestial photography and invented the photoheliograph (1858), a telescope capable of photographing the sun.

De-lau-nay (də-lô-nā'), Robert. 1885-1941. French painter who founded a school of painting that relied solely on color to show shape and depth.

De Lau-ren-tiis (dē lô-rĕn'tis), Dino. Born 1919. Italian filmmaker whose productions include Europe '51 (1952) and War and Peace (1956).

De-la-vigne (də-lä-vĕn'yə), (Jean François) Casimir. 1793-1843. French writer known for his dramas and for his satiric elegies Les Messéniennes (1818).

Del-a-ware¹ (də'l'ə-wâr') n. pl. Delaware or Del-a-wares. 1. a. A group of closely related Native American peoples formerly inhabiting the Delaware and Hudson river valleys and the area between, with present-day populations in Oklahoma, Kansas, Wisconsin, and Ontario. The Delaware formed a variety of political alliances in their westward migration after losing their lands to white settlement in the 17th and 18th centuries. b. A member of a Delaware people. Also called Lenape, Lenni Lenape. 2. One or both of the Algonquian languages of the Delaware. —Del'a-war'e-an adj.

Del-a-ware² (də'l'ə-wâr') 1. Abbr. DE, Del. A state of the eastern United States on the Atlantic Ocean. It was admitted as the first of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1787. Settled by the Dutch in 1631 and by Swedes in 1638, the region passed to England in 1664. It was part of William Penn's Pennsylvania grant from 1682 until 1776. Dover is the capital and Wilmington the largest city. Population, 668,696. 2. A city of central Ohio north of Columbus. Rutherford B. Hayes was born here. Population, 20,030.

Del-a-ware³ (də'l'ə-wâr') n. A variety of grape having sweet, light red fruit. [After Delaware².]

Delaware Bay (də'l'ə-wâr' bā) An estuary of the Delaware River emptying into the Atlantic Ocean between eastern Delaware and southern New Jersey.

Delaware River (də'l'ə-wâr' rĭv'ər) A river rising in the Catskill Mountains of southeast New York and flowing about 451 km (280 mi) generally southward along the New York-Pennsylvania border and the Pennsylvania-New Jersey border to northern Delaware, where it enters Delaware Bay. The Dutch explorers named it the South River to distinguish it from the North River, an estuary of the Hudson River.

De La Warr (də'l'ə wâr', wər), Baron Title of Thomas West. 1577-1618.

English-born American colonial administrator chosen as the first governor of the Virginia Company colony. He arrived at Jamestown in 1610 in time to prevent the colonists from deserting the settlement.

de·lay (dĭ-lā') v. de·layed, de·lay·ing, de·lays. — v. tr. 1. To postpone until a later time; defer. 2. To cause to be later or slower than expected or desired: Heavy traffic delayed us. — v. intr. To act or move slowly; put off an action or a decision. — n. 1. The act of delaying; postponement: responded without delay. 2. The condition of being delayed; detainment. 3. The period of time during which one is delayed. 4. The interval of time between two events. [Middle English delaien, from Anglo-Norman delaiier, from Old French deslaier: des-, de- + laier, to leave of Germanic origin. See leip- in Appendix.] —de·lay'er n.

SYNONYMS: delay, slow, retard, detain. These verbs mean to cause to be later or slower than expected or desired. To delay is to cause to be behind schedule: The bus was delayed by a cloudburst. Slow implies a decrease in speed, often deliberate: A sprained ankle slowed my pace. The driver slowed the car before coming to a full stop. To retard is to slow and delay or impede progress, action, or accomplishment: “the increasing hatred, which retarded the execution of his great designs” (Edward Gibbon). Detain stresses being held back and prevented from proceeding: She was detained by an unexpected visitor.

Del·brück (dĕl'brōök', -brük'), Max. 1906-1981. German-born American biologist. He shared a 1969 Nobel Prize for investigating the mechanism of viral infection in living cells.

Del City (dĕl sĭt'ē) A city of central Oklahoma, a residential suburb of Oklahoma City. Population, 23,928.

de·le (dē'lē) Printing. n. A sign indicating that something is to be removed from typeset matter. — v. tr. de·led, de·le·ing, de·les. 1. To remove, especially from written or typeset matter; delete. 2. To mark with a sign indicating deletion. [Latin dēle, third person sing. imperative of dēlēre, to delete.]

de·lec·ta·ble (dĭ-lĕk'tā-bəl) adj. 1. Greatly pleasing; delightful. 2. Greatly pleasing to the taste; delicious. See Synonyms at delicious. — n. Something delightful or delicious: a feast of home-cooked delectables. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin dēlectābilis, from dēlectāre, to please. See DELIGHT.]

—de·lec'ta·bil'i·ty, de·lec'ta·ble·ness n. —de·lec'ta·bly adv.

de·lec·ta·tion (dē'lĕk-tā'shən) n. 1. Delight. 2. Enjoyment; pleasure. See Synonyms at pleasure. [Middle English delectacioun, from Old French, from Latin dēlectātiō, dēlectātiōn-, from dēlectus, past participle of dēlectāre, to please. See DELIGHT.]

De·led·da (dĕ-lĕd'dā), Grazia. 1875-1936. Italian writer many of whose novels and short stories reflect her Sardinian background. She won the 1926 Nobel Prize for literature.

del·e·ga·cy (děl'ĩ-gə-sē) n. pl. del·e·ga·cies. 1. The act of delegating or state of being delegated. 2. The authority, office, or position of a delegate. 3. A body of delegates; a delegation.

de·le·gal·ize (dē-lē'gə-līz') v. tr. de·le·gal·ized, de·le·gal·iz·ing, de·le·gal·iz·es. To revoke the legality of: After two years the state legislature delegatized gambling. —de·le'gal·i·za'tion (-gə-lī-zā'shən) n.

del·e·gate (děl'ĩ-gāt', -gīt) n. Abbr. del. 1. A person authorized to act as representative for another; a deputy or an agent. 2. A representative to a conference or convention. 3. A member of a House of Delegates, the lower house of the Maryland, Virginia, or West Virginia legislature. 4. An elected or appointed representative of a U.S. territory in the House of Representatives who is entitled to speak but not vote. — v. tr. del·e·gat·ed, del·e·gat·ing, del·e·gates (-gāt'). 1. To authorize and send (another person) as one's representative. 2. To commit or entrust to another: delegate a task to a subordinate. 3. Law. To appoint (one's debtor) as a debtor to one's creditor in place of oneself. [Middle English delegat, from Medieval Latin dēlēgātus, from past participle of dēlēgāre, to dispatch : dē-, de- + lēgāre, to send; see leg- in Appendix.] —del'e·ga'tor n.

del·e·ga·tion (děl'ĩ-gā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of delegating. b. The condition of being delegated. 2. Abbr. del. A person or group of persons officially elected or appointed to represent another or others.

de·le·git·i·mize (dē'lə-jīt'ə-mīz') v. tr. de·le·git·i·mized, de·le·git·i·miz·ing, de·le·git·i·miz·es. To revoke the legal or legitimate status of: an attempt to delegitimize the Vichy government; delegitimized the dictator in the eyes of the world. —de'le·git'i·mi·za'tion (-mī-zā'shən) n.

de Les·seps (də lēs'əps, lē-sēps'), Vicomte Ferdinand Marie. See Ferdinand Marie de Lesseps.

de·lete (dī-lēt') v. tr. de·let·ed, de·let·ing, de·letes. Abbr. del. To remove by striking out or canceling: deleted some unnecessary words in the first draft. See Synonyms at erase. [Latin dēlēre, dēlēt-, to wipe out.]

del·e·te·ri·ous (děl'ĩ-tīr'ē-əs) adj. Having a harmful effect; injurious. [From Greek dēlēterios, from dēlētēr, destroyer, from dēleisthai, to harm.] —del'e·te'ri·ous·ly adv. —del'e·te'ri·ous·ness n.

de·le·tion (dī-lē'shən) n. 1. The act of deleting; removal by striking out. 2. Material, such as a word or passage, that has been removed from a body of written or printed matter. 3. Genetics. The loss, as through mutation, of one or more nucleotides from a chromosome.

delft (dělft) n. 1. A style of glazed earthenware, usually blue and white, originally made in Delft, Netherlands. 2. Pottery made in this style.

Delft (dělft) A city of southwest Netherlands southeast of The Hague. Fine pottery has been produced here since the 16th century. Population, 86,733.

Del·hi (dĕl'ē) A city of north-central India on the Jumna River. Important since ancient times, the old city was rebuilt by Shah Jahan in the 17th century with high stone walls enclosing the Red Fort that contained the imperial Mogul palace. The new part of Delhi became the capital of British India in 1912 and of independent India in 1947. Population, 4,884,234.

del·i (dĕl'ē) n. pl. del·is. Informal. A delicatessen. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: deli food; a deli restaurant.

de·lib·er·ate (dĭ-lĭb'ər-ĭt) adj. 1. Done with or marked by full consciousness of the nature and effects; intentional: mistook the oversight for a deliberate insult.

2. Arising from or marked by careful consideration: a deliberate decision. See Synonyms at voluntary. 3. Unhurried in action, movement, or manner, as if trying to avoid error: moved at a deliberate pace. See Synonyms at slow. — v.

de·lib·er·at·ed, de·lib·er·at·ing, de·lib·er·ates (-ə-rāt'). — v. intr. 1. To think carefully and often slowly, as about a choice to be made. 2. To consult with another or others in a process of reaching a decision. — v. tr. To consider (a matter) carefully and often slowly, as by weighing alternatives. See Synonyms at ponder. [Latin dēlibērātus, past participle of dēlibērāre, to consider, weigh : dē-, de- + librāre, to balance (from libra, a balance, scales).] — de·lib'er·ate·ly adv.

— de·lib'er·ate·ness n.

de·lib·er·a·tion (dĭ-lĭb'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of deliberating. 2. deliberations. Discussion and consideration of all sides of an issue: the deliberations of a jury. 3. Thoughtfulness in decision or action. 4. Leisureliness in motion or manner: The girl stacked the blocks with deliberation.

de·lib·er·a·tive (dĭ-lĭb'ə-rā'tĭv, -ər-ə-tĭv) adj. 1. Assembled or organized for deliberation or debate: a deliberative legislature. 2. Characterized by or for use in deliberation or debate. — de·lib'er·a'tive·ly adv. — de·lib'er·a'tive·ness n.

De·libes (də-lĕb'), (Clément Philibert) Léo. 1836-1891. French composer of melodic orchestral works, such as the ballets Coppélia (1870) and Sylvia (1876).

del·i·ca·cy (dĕl'ĭ-kə-sē) n. pl. del·i·ca·cies. 1. The quality of being delicate. 2. Something pleasing and appealing, especially a choice food. 3. Fineness of appearance, construction, or execution; elegance: brushwork of great delicacy.

4. Frailty of bodily constitution or health. 5. Sensitivity of perception, discrimination, or taste; refinement. 6. a. Sensitivity to the feelings of others; tact: phrased the apology with delicacy. b. Sensitivity to what is proper; propriety. c. Undue sensitivity to or concern with what may be considered offensive or improper; squeamishness: scenes that might offend a viewer's delicacy. 7. The need for tact in treatment or handling: a topic of some delicacy. 8. Sensitivity to very small changes; precision: the delicacy of a set of scales. [Middle English delicacie, from delicat, delicate. See DELICATE.]

del·i·cate (dĕl'ĭ-kĭt) adj. 1. Pleasing to the senses, especially in a subtle way: a delicate flavor; a delicate violin passage. 2. Exquisitely fine or dainty: delicate china. 3. Frail in constitution or health. 4. Easily broken or damaged: a kite too delicate to fly. 5. Marked by sensitivity of discrimination: a critic's delicate perception. 6. a. Considerate of the feelings of others. b. Concerned with propriety. c. Squeamish or fastidious. 7. Requiring tactful treatment: a delicate situation. 8. Fine or soft in touch or skill: a surgeon's delicate touch. 9. Measuring, indicating, or responding to very small changes; precise: a delicate set of scales. 10. Very subtle in difference or distinction. [Middle English delicat, and French délicat both from Latin dēlicātus, pleasing.] —del/i·cate·ly adv. —del/i·cate·ness n.

SYNONYMS: delicate, choice, dainty, elegant, exquisite, fine. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “appealing to refined taste”: a delicate flavor; choice exotic flowers; a dainty dish; elegant handwriting; an exquisite wine; the finest embroidery. See also Synonyms at fragile del·i·ca·tes·sen (dĕl'ī-kə-tĕs'ən) n. 1. A shop that sells cooked or prepared foods ready for serving. 2. Ready-to-serve foods such as cheeses, cold cooked meats, and salads. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: delicatessen food; delicatessen counters. [German Delikatessen, from pl. of Delikatesse, delicacy, from French délicatesse, from Italian delicatezza, from delicato, delicate, dainty, from Latin dēlicātus, pleasing.]

de·li·cious (dĭ-lĭsh'əs) adj. 1. Highly pleasing or agreeable to the senses, especially of taste or smell. 2. Very pleasant; delightful: a delicious revenge. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Late Latin dēliciōsus, pleasing, from Latin dēlicia, pleasure, from dēlicere, to allure. See DELIGHT.] —de·li'cious·ly adv. —de·li'cious·ness n.

SYNONYMS: delicious, ambrosial, delectable, luscious, scrumptious, toothsome, yummy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “extremely pleasing to the sense of taste”: a delicious pâté; ambrosial smoked salmon; delectable raspberries; luscious chocolate bonbons; a scrumptious peach; a toothsome apple; yummy fudge.

De·li·cious (dĭ-lĭsh'əs) n. A variety of sweet apple whose flesh is often streaked with yellow and red.

de·lict (dĭ-lĭkt') n. Law. A legal offense; a misdemeanor. [Latin dēlictum, from neuter past participle of dēlinquere, to offend. See DELINQUENT.]

de·light (dĭ-līt') n. 1. Great pleasure; joy. See Synonyms at pleasure.

2. Something that gives great pleasure or enjoyment. — v. de·light·ed, de·light·ing, de·lights. — v. intr. 1. To take great pleasure or joy: delights in taking long walks. 2. To give great pleasure or joy: an old movie that still delights.

— v. tr. To please greatly. See Synonyms at please. [Middle English delit, from Old French, a pleasure, from delitier, to please, charm, from Latin dēlectāre, frequentative of dēlicere, to allure : dē-, de- + lacere, to entice.]

de·light·ed (dī-lī'tīd) adj. 1. Filled with delight. 2. Obsolete. Delightful.

—de·light'ed·ly adv. —de·light'ed·ness n.

de·light·ful (dī-līt'fəl) adj. Greatly pleasing. —de·light'ful·ly adv.

—de·light'ful·ness n.

de·light·some (dī-līt'səm) adj. Delightful. —de·light'some·ly adv.

—de·light'some·ness n.

De·li·lah (də-lī'lə) In the Old Testament, a mistress of Samson who betrayed him to the Philistines by having his hair shorn while he slept, thus depriving him of his strength.

de·lim·it (dī-līm'īt) also de·lim·i·tate (-ī-tāt') v. tr. de·lim·it·ed also de·lim·i·tat·ed, de·lim·it·ing also de·lim·i·tat·ing, de·lim·its also de·lim·i·tates. To establish the limits or boundaries of; demarcate. [French délimiter, from Latin dēlimitāre: dē-, de- + līmitāre, to limit (from līmes, līmit-, boundary line).] —de·lim'i·ta'tion n. —de·lim'i·ta'tive adj.

de·lim·it·er (dī-līm'ī-tər) n. Computer Science. A character marking the beginning or end of a unit of data.

de·lin·e·ate (dī-līn'ē-āt') v. tr. de·lin·e·at·ed, de·lin·e·at·ing, de·lin·e·ates. 1. To draw or trace the outline of; sketch out. 2. To represent pictorially; depict. 3. To depict in words or gestures; describe. See Synonyms at represent. [Latin dēlineāre, dēlineāt-: dē-, de- + līnea, line, thread; see LINE¹.]

—de·lin'e·a'tion n. —de·lin'e·a'tive adj. —de·lin'e·a'tor n.

de·lin·quen·cy (dī-līng'kwən-sē, -līn'-) n. pl. de·lin·quen·cies. 1. Juvenile delinquency. 2. Failure to do what law or duty requires. 3. An offense or a misdemeanor; a misdeed. 4. A debt or other financial obligation on which payment is overdue. — adj. Of or relating to juvenile delinquency: delinquency problems.

de·lin·quent (dī-līng'kwənt, -līn'-) adj. 1. Failing to do what law or duty requires. 2. Overdue in payment: a delinquent account. — n. 1. A juvenile delinquent. 2. A person who neglects or fails to do what law or duty requires. [Latin dēlinquēns, dēlinquent- present participle of dēlinquere, to offend: dē-, de- + linquere, to leave, abandon; see leik^w- in Appendix.] —de·lin'quent·ly adv.

del·i·quesce (dēl'ī-kwēs') v. intr. del·i·quesced, del·i·quesc·ing, del·i·quesc·es. 1. a. To melt away. b. To disappear as if by melting.

2. Chemistry. To dissolve and become liquid by absorbing moisture from the air. See Synonyms at melt. 3. Botany. a. To branch out into numerous subdivisions that lack a main axis, as the stem of an elm. b. To become fluid or soft on maturing, as certain fungi. [Latin dēliquēscere: dē-, de- + liquēscere, to melt, inchoative of liquēre, to be liquid.] —del'i·ques'cence n. —del'i·ques'cent adj.

de·lir·i·a (dī-līr'ē-ə) n. A plural of delirium.

de·lir·i·ous (dī-līr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Of, suffering from, or characteristic of delirium. 2. Marked by uncontrolled excitement or emotion; ecstatic: delirious joy; a crowd of delirious baseball fans. —de·lir'i·ous·ly adv. —de·lir'i·ous·ness n.

de·lir·i·um (dī-līr'ē-əm) n. pl. de·lir·i·ums or de·lir·i·a (-ē-ə). 1. A temporary state of mental confusion and clouded consciousness resulting from high fever, intoxication, shock, or other causes. It is characterized by anxiety, disorientation, hallucinations, delusions, trembling, and incoherent speech. 2. A state of uncontrolled excitement or emotion: sports fans in delirium after their team's victory. [Latin dēlīrium, from dēlīrāre, to be deranged : dē-, de- + līra, furrow; see leis¹ in Appendix.] —de·lir·i·ant adj.

delirium tremens (dī-līr'ē-əm trēm'ənz) n. An acute, sometimes fatal episode of delirium usually caused by withdrawal or abstinence from alcohol following habitual, excessive drinking. It also may occur during an episode of heavy alcohol consumption. [New Latin dēlīrium tremēns : Latin dēlīrium, delirium + Latin tremēns, trembling.]

de·list (dē-līst') v. tr. de·list·ed, de·list·ing, de·lists. To remove from a list, especially from a list of securities that may be traded on a stock exchange: delisted the stock.

De·lius (dē'lē-əs, dēl'yəs), Frederick. 1862-1934. British composer who spent most of his life in France. His work, influenced by Edvard Grieg, combines romanticism and impressionism.

de·liv·er (dī-līv'ər) v. de·liv·ered, de·liv·er·ing, de·liv·ers. — v. tr. 1. To bring or transport to the proper place or recipient; distribute: deliver groceries; deliver the mail. 2. To surrender (someone or something) to another; hand over: delivered the criminal to the police. 3. To secure (something promised or desired), as for a candidate or political party: campaign workers who delivered the ward for the mayor. 4. To throw or hurl: The pitcher delivered the ball. 5. To strike (a blow). 6. To express in words; declare or utter: deliver a lecture. 7. a. To give birth to: She delivered a baby boy this morning. b. To assist (a woman) in giving birth: The doctor delivered her of twins. c. To assist or aid in the birth of: The midwife delivered the baby. 8. To give forth or produce: The oil well delivered only 50 barrels a day. 9. To set free, as from misery, peril, or evil: deliver a captive from slavery. See Synonyms at save¹. — v. intr. 1. To produce or achieve what is desired or expected; make good: The senator delivered on her pledge. He is a manager who just can't seem to deliver. 2. To give birth: She expects to deliver in late August. —idiom. deliver (oneself) of. To pronounce; utter: Before leaving I delivered myself of a few choice comments. [Middle English deliveren, from Old French delivrer, from Late Latin dēlīberāre : Latin dē-, de- + līberāre, to free (from līber, free); see leudh- in Appendix.] —de·liv·er·a·bil·i·ty n.

—de·liv·er·a·ble adj. —de·liv·er·er n.

de·liv·er·ance (dī-līv'ər-ənz, -līv'rənz) n. 1. The act of delivering or the condition of being delivered. 2. Rescue from bondage or danger. 3. A publicly expressed opinion or judgment, such as the verdict of a jury.

de·liv·er·y (dĭ-lĭv'ə-rē, -lĭv'rē) n. pl. de·liv·er·ies. Abbr. dely., dlvy., dy.

1. a. The act of conveying or delivering. b. Something delivered, as a shipment or package. 2. a. The act of transferring to another. b. Law. A formal act of transferring ownership of property to another: delivery of a deed. 3. The act of giving up; surrender. 4. The act or manner of throwing or discharging. 5. The act of giving birth; parturition. 6. a. Utterance or enunciation: The historic speech required but two minutes in delivery. b. The act or manner of speaking or singing: a folk singer's casual delivery. 7. The act of releasing or rescuing.

delivery room (dĭ-lĭv'ə-rē rōōm) n. 1. A room or an area in a hospital that is equipped for delivering babies. 2. A room or an area set aside for making or receiving deliveries, as for circulating books in a library.

delivery system (dĭ-lĭv'ə-rē sĭs'təm) n. 1. A means or procedure for providing a product or service to the public: the health care delivery system. 2. A means, technology, or device for administering drugs to a patient. 3. The technology for conveying nuclear weapons to their targets.

dell (dĕl) n. A small, secluded, wooded valley. [Middle English del, from Old English dell.]

Dell (dĕl), Floyd. 1887-1969. American writer whose novel Moon Calf (1920) typified the disillusionment and bohemianism among a generation of post-World War I Americans.

del·la Rob·bia (dĕl'ə rō'bē-ə, dĕl'lā rōb'byä), Luca. 1400?-1482. Italian sculptor noted for his works of enameled terra cotta, for which he perfected a special glazing made of tin, antimony, and other substances. His nephew Andrea (1435-1525) and Andrea's son Giovanni (1469-1529) successively took over his workshop, one of the most important of the Florentine Renaissance.

dells (dĕlz) pl.n. The rapids of a river. [Alteration (influenced by DELL), of DALLES.]

Del-mar·va Peninsula (dĕl-mär'və pə-nĭn'syə-lə) A peninsula of the eastern United States separating Chesapeake Bay from Delaware Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. It includes all of Delaware and parts of eastern Maryland and Virginia.

Del-men·horst (dĕl'mĭn-hōrst') A city of northwest Germany, an industrial suburb of Bremen. Population, 70,671.

Del-mon·i·co (dĕl-mōn'i-kō'), Lorenzo. 1813-1881. Swiss-born American restaurateur who popularized European cuisine in New York City and is largely credited with establishing the restaurant as an institution in American cities.

Delmonico steak (dĕl-mōn'i-kō' stāk) n. A small, often boned steak from the front section of the short loin of beef. Also called club steak [After Lorenzo DELMONICO.]

de·lo·cal·ize (dē-lō'kə-līz') v. tr. de·lo·cal·ized, de·lo·cal·iz·ing, de·lo·cal·iz·es. 1. To remove from a native or usual locality. 2. To broaden the range or scope of. —de·lo'cal·i·za'tion (-kə-lī-zā'shən) n.

De Long (də lɒŋɡ', lɒŋɡ'), George Washington. 1844-1881. American explorer who died of starvation while attempting to reach the North Pole by way of the Bering Strait.

De-lorme or de l'Orme (də-lôrm'), Philibert. 1515?-1570. French royal architect who directed the construction at Fontainebleau and built the Tuileries for Catherine de Médicis.

De-los (də'lɒs', də'lɔs) An island of southeast Greece in the southern Aegean Sea. It is the smallest of the Cyclades Islands and was traditionally considered sacred to Apollo.

de-louse (dē-lusɪ') v. tr. de-loused, de-lous-ing, de-lous-es. To rid (a person or an animal) of lice by physical or chemical means.

Del-phi (də'l'fɪ') An ancient town of central Greece near Mount Parnassus. Dating to at least the seventh century B.C., it was the seat of a famous oracle of Apollo.

Del-phic (də'l'fɪk) also Del-phi-an (-fē-ən) adj. 1. Greek Mythology. Of or relating to Delphi or to the oracle of Apollo at Delphi. 2. Obscurely prophetic; oracular: made a great deal of Delphic pronouncements. —Del'phi-cal-ly adv.

del-phin-i-um (dəl-fɪn'ē-əm) n. A plant of the genus Delphinium, especially any of several tall cultivated varieties having palmate leaves and long racemes of showy, variously colored spurred flowers. Also called larkspur [New Latin Delphinium, genus name, from Greek delphinion, larkspur, diminutive of delphis, delphin-, dolphin (from the shape of the nectary).]

Del-phi-nus (dəl-fɪ'nəs) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Pegasus and Aquila. [Latin delphīnus, dolphin. See DOLPHIN.]

Del-ray Beach (dəl'rā' bēch) A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean north of Boca Raton. Settled in 1901, it is a tourist resort. Population, 47,181.

Del Ri-o (dəl rē'ō) A city of southwest Texas on the Rio Grande west of San Antonio. Founded in 1868, it is a market and shipping center in an agricultural region. Population, 30,705.

del-ta (dəl'tə) n. 1. The fourth letter of the Greek alphabet. 2. An object shaped like a triangle. 3. a. A usually triangular alluvial deposit at the mouth of a river. b. A similar deposit at the mouth of a tidal inlet, caused by tidal currents. 4. Mathematics. A finite increment in a variable. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek; akin to Hebrew delet, door, from Phoenician dalt.] —del-ta'ic (-tā'ɪk), del'tic (-tɪk) adj.

WORD HISTORY: A Δ sits at the mouth of many rivers. The Greeks, noticing the resemblance between the island formed by sediment at the mouth of a river such as the Nile and the triangular shape of their letter delta, gave the name delta to such an island. English borrowed this sense from Greek, although the word delta appeared first in English as the name of the letter, in a work written possibly around 1200. The sense “alluvial deposit” is not recorded until 1555, when delta is used with reference to the Nile River delta.

delta ray (dĕl'tə rā) n. An electron ejected from matter by ionizing radiation.

delta wave (dĕl'tə wāv) n. A slow brain wave, having a frequency of fewer than six cycles per second, that emanates from the forward portion of the brain and is associated with deep sleep in normal adults. Also called delta rhythm delta wing (dĕl'tə wıŋg) n. An aircraft with swept-back wings that give it the appearance of an isosceles triangle.

del·ti·ol·o·gy (dĕl'tē-ŏl'ə-jē) n. The collection and study of postcards. [From Greek deltion, diminutive of deltos, writing tablet, letter.]

del·toid (dĕl'toid') n. A thick, triangular muscle covering the shoulder joint, used to raise the arm from the side. — adj. 1. Triangular. 2. Of or relating to the deltoid. [New Latin deltoīdēs, from Greek deltoeidēs, triangular : delta, delta; see DELTA + -oidēs, -oid.]

de·lude (dī-lōōd') v. tr. de·lud·ed, de·lud·ing, de·ludes. 1. To deceive the mind or judgment of: fraudulent ads that delude consumers into sending in money. See Synonyms at deceive. 2. Obsolete. To elude or evade. 3. Obsolete. To frustrate the hopes or plans of. [Middle English deluden, from Latin dēlūdere : dē-, de- + lūdere, to play; see leid- in Appendix.] — de·lud'er n. — de·lud'ing·ly adv.

del·uge (dĕl'yōōj) n. 1. a. A great flood. b. A heavy downpour. 2. Something that overwhelms as if by a great flood: a deluge of fan mail. 3. Deluge. Bible. In the Old Testament, the great flood that occurred in the time of Noah. — v. tr.

del·uged, del·ug·ing, del·ug·es. 1. To overrun with water; inundate. 2. To overwhelm with a large number or amount; swamp: The press secretary was deluged with requests for information. [From Middle English, flood, from Old French, from Latin diluvium, from dīluere, to wash away : dis-, apart; see DIS- + luere, to wash; see leu(ə)- in Appendix.]

de·lu·sion (dī-lōō'zhən) n. 1. a. The act or process of deluding. b. The state of being deluded. 2. A false belief or opinion: labored under the delusion that success was at hand. 3. Psychiatry. A false belief strongly held in spite of invalidating evidence, especially as a symptom of mental illness: delusions of persecution. [Middle English delusioun, from Latin dēlūsiō, dēlūsiōn-, from dēlūsus, past participle of dēlūdere, to delude. See DELUDE.] — de·lu'sion·al adj.

de·lu·sive (dī-lōō'siv) adj. 1. Tending to delude. See Synonyms at misleading. 2. Having the nature of a delusion; false: a delusive faith in a wonder drug. — de·lu'sive·ly adv. — de·lu'sive·ness n.

de·lu·so·ry (dī-lōō'sə-rē, -zə-) adj. Tending to deceive; delusive. See Synonyms at misleading.

de luxe also de-luxe (dī-lŭks', -lŏoks') adj. Particularly elegant and luxurious; sumptuous: a de luxe automobile; deluxe accommodations. — adv. In an elegant and luxurious manner; sumptuously: traveling de luxe. [French : de, of + luxe, luxury.]

delve (dĕlv) v. delved, delv-ing, delves. — v. intr. 1. To search deeply and laboriously: delved into the court records. 2. To dig the ground, as with a spade. — v. tr. Archaic. To dig (ground) with a spade. [Middle English delven, to dig, from Old English delfan.] — delv'er n.

dely. abbr. Delivery.

dem. abbr. 1. Grammar. Demonstrative. 2. Demurrage.

Dem. abbr. Democrat; Democratic.

de-mag-net-ize (dē-măg'nĭ-tīz') v. tr. de-mag-net-ized, de-mag-net-iz-ing, de-mag-net-iz-es. a. To remove magnetic properties from. b. To erase (a magnetic storage device). — de-mag'net-i-za'tion (-nĭ-tī-zā'shən) n. — de-mag'net-iz'er n.

dem-a-gog-ic (dĕm'ə-gŏj'ĭk, -gŏg'-, -gŏj'ĭk) also dem-a-gog-i-cal (-gŏj'ĭ-kəl, -gŏg'-, -gŏj'ĭ-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a demagogue.

— dem'a-gog'i-cal-ly adv.

dem-a-gog-ism (dĕm'ə-gŏ'gĭz-əm, -gŏg'ĭz-) n. Demagoguery.

dem-a-gogue (dĕm'ə-gŏg', -gŏg') n. 1. A leader who obtains power by means of impassioned appeals to the emotions and prejudices of the populace.

2. A leader of the common people in ancient times. [Greek dēmagōgos, popular leader : dēmos, people; see dā- in Appendix + agōgos, leading (from agein, to lead); see ag- in Appendix.]

dem-a-gogu-er-y (dĕm'ə-gŏ'gə-rē, -gŏg'ə-) n. The practices or rhetoric of a demagogue.

dem-a-gog-y (dĕm'ə-gŏj'ē, -gŏj'ē, -gŏg'ē, -gŏj'ē) n. The character or practices of a demagogue; demagoguery.

de-mand (dī-mănd') v. de-mand-ed, de-mand-ing, de-mands. — v. tr.

1. To ask for urgently or peremptorily: demand an investigation into the murder; demanding that he leave immediately; demanded to speak to the manager. 2. To claim as just or due: demand repayment of a loan. 3. To ask to be informed of: I demand a reason for this interruption. 4. To require as useful, just, proper, or necessary; call for: a gem that demands a fine setting. 5. Law. a. To summon to court. b. To claim formally; lay legal claim to. — v. intr. To make a demand.

— n. 1. The act of demanding. 2. Something demanded: granted the employees' demands. 3. An urgent requirement or need: the heavy demands of her job; the emotional demands of his marriage; an increased oxygen demand. 4. The state of being sought after: in great demand as a speaker. 5. Economics. a. The desire to possess a commodity or make use of a service, combined with the ability to purchase it. b. The amount of a commodity or service that people are ready to buy for a given price: Supply should rise to meet demand. 6. Computer Science. A coding technique in which a command to read or write is initiated as the need for a new block of data occurs, thus eliminating the need to store data. 7. Law. A formal claim. 8. Archaic. An emphatic question or inquiry. —idiom. on demand. 1. When presented for payment: a note payable on demand. 2. When needed or asked for: fed the baby on demand. [Middle English demanden, from Old French demandere, to charge with doing,, and from Medieval Latin dēmandāre, to demand both from Latin, to entrust : dē-, de- + mandāre, to entrust; see man-² in Appendix.] —de-mand/a-ble adj. —de-mand'er n.

SYNONYMS: demand, claim, exact, require. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to ask for urgently or insistently”: demanding better working conditions; claiming repayment of a debt; exacted obedience from the child; tax payments required by law.

de-mand-ant (dī-măn'dənt) n. Archaic. A plaintiff.

demand deposit (dī-mănd' dī-pöz'it) n. A bank deposit that can be withdrawn without advance notice.

demand draft (dī-mănd' drăft) n. Abbr. D.D. See sight draft.

de-mand-ing (dī-măn'ding) adj. Requiring much effort or attention: exhausted by a demanding job. See Synonyms at burdensome.

—de-mand/ing-ly adv.

demand loan (dī-mănd' lōn) n. Abbr. D/L See call loan.

demand note (dī-mănd' nōt) n. A bill or draft payable in lawful money upon presentation or demand.

de-mand-pull (dī-mănd'pōol') n. Increased demand for a limited supply of goods and services, tending to cause consumer prices to increase. —de-mand/-pull' adj.

de-man-toid (dī-măn'toid') n. A transparent, green variety of garnet used as a gem. [German, from Demant, diamond, from Middle High German diemant, from Old French diamant. See DIAMOND.] de-mar-cate (dī-mär'kāt', dē'mär-kāt') v. tr. de-mar-cat-ed, de-mar-cat-ing, de-mar-cates. 1. To set the boundaries of; delimit. 2. To separate clearly as if by boundaries; distinguish: demarcate categories. [Back-formation from DEMARICATION.] —de-mar/ca'tor n.

de-mar-ca-tion also de-mar-ka-tion (dē'mär-kā'shən) n. 1. The setting or marking of boundaries or limits. 2. A separation; a distinction: a line of demarcation between two rock strata. [Spanish demarcación, from demarcar, to mark boundaries : de-, off (from Latin dē-); see DE- + marcar, to mark (from Italian marcare, from Old Italian, of Germanic origin); see merg- in Appendix.]

dé·marche (dā-märsh') n. 1. A course of action; a maneuver. 2. A diplomatic representation or protest. 3. A statement or protest addressed by citizens to public authorities. [French, from Old French demarche, gait, from demarchier, to march : de-, de- + marchier, to march (probably of Germanic origin); see MARCH¹.]

de·mar·ka·tion (dē'mär-kā'shən) n. Variant of demarcation.

de·ma·te·ri·al·ize (dē'mə-tîr'ē-ə-lîz') v. tr. intr. de·ma·te·ri·al·ized, de·ma·te·ri·al·iz·ing, de·ma·te·ri·al·iz·es. To deprive of or lose apparent physical substance; make or become immaterial: Mirrors have the effect of dematerializing a wall. The dry ice seemed to dematerialize as it sublimated.

—de'ma·te'ri-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lî-zā'shən) n.

Dem·a·vend (dēm'ə-vënd') See Damavand.

deme (dēm) n. 1. One of the townships of ancient Attica. 2. Ecology. A local, usually stable population of interbreeding organisms of the same kind or species. [Greek dēmos, people, land. See dā- in Appendix.]

de·mean¹ (dī-mēn') v. tr. de·meaned, de·mean·ing, de·means. To conduct or behave (oneself) in a particular manner: demeaned themselves well in class. [Middle English demeinen, to govern, from Old French demener : de-, de- + mener, to conduct (from Latin mināre, to drive (animals), from minārī, to threaten, from minae, threats); see men-² in Appendix.]

de·mean² (dī-mēn') v. tr. de·meaned, de·mean·ing, de·means. 1. To debase, as in dignity or social standing: professionals who feel demeaned by unskilled work. 2. To humble (oneself). See Synonyms at degrade. [DE- + MEAN².] —de·mean'ing·ly adv.

de·mean·or (dī-mē'nər) n. The way in which a person behaves; deportment. See Synonyms at bearing.

de·ment (dī-měnt') v. tr. de·ment·ed, de·ment·ing, de·ments. To make insane. [Late Latin dēmentāre, from Latin dēmēns, dēment-, senseless : dē-, de- + mēns, mind; see men-¹ in Appendix.]

de·ment·ed (dī-měn'tid) adj. 1. Mentally ill; insane. 2. Suffering from dementia. —de·ment'ed·ly adv. —de·ment'ed·ness n.

de·men·tia (dī-měn'shə) n. 1. Deterioration of intellectual faculties, such as memory, concentration, and judgment, resulting from an organic disease or a disorder of the brain. It is often accompanied by emotional disturbance and personality changes. 2. Madness; insanity. See Synonyms at insanity. [Latin dēmentia, madness, from dēmēns, dēment-, senseless. See DEMENT.] —de·men'tial adj.

dementia prae·cox (dī-měn'shə prē'kōks') n. Schizophrenia. No longer in scientific use. [New Latin : dēmentia, dementia + Latin praecox, premature.]

de·mer·it (dī-měr'it) n. 1. a. A quality or characteristic deserving of blame or censure; a fault. b. Absence of merit. 2. A mark made against one's record for a fault or for misconduct. [Middle English demerite, offense, from Old French desmerite, from Latin dēmeritum, from neuter past participle of dēmerēre, to deserve : dē-, de- + merēre, to earn; see MERIT.] —de·mer'·i·to'ri·ous (-tôr'ē-əs, -tôr'-) adj. —de·mer'·i·to'ri·ous·ly adv.

Dem·er·ol (dēm'ə-rôl', -rôl', -rôl') A trademark used for a medicinal preparation of meperidine.

de·mer·sal (dī-mûr'səl) adj. 1. Dwelling at or near the bottom of a body of water: a demersal fish. 2. Sinking to or deposited near the bottom of a body of water: demersal fish eggs. [From Latin dēmersus, past participle of dēmergere, to sink : dē-, de- + mergere, to sink.]

de·mesne (dī-mān', -mēn') n. 1. Law. Possession and use of one's own land. 2. Manorial land retained for the private use of a feudal lord. 3. The grounds belonging to a mansion or country house. 4. An extensive piece of landed property; an estate. 5. A district; a territory. 6. A realm; a domain. [Middle English demeine, ·demesne, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French demaine. See DOMAIN.]

De·me·ter (dī-mē'tər) n. Greek Mythology. The goddess of the harvest, daughter of Rhea and Cronus and mother of Persephone. [Greek Dēmētēr. See māter-in Appendix.]

dem·e·ton (dēm'ī-tŏn') n. Either of two pale-yellow, highly toxic organophosphorous liquids, $C_6H_{15}O_3PS_2$ or $C_6H_{15}O_4PS_2$, used as systemic insecticides. [Blend of diethyl, containing two ethyls (DI⁻¹ + ETHYL), MERCAPTAN, and thionate, salt or ester of a thionic acid (THION- + *-ATE*²).]

demi- pref. 1. Half: demirelief. 2. To some degree; part; partly: demigod. [Middle English demi, a half of a measure or unit, from Old French, from Medieval Latin dīmedius, from Latin dīmīdius, divided in half : dis-, dis- + medius, half; see MEDIUM.]

dem·i·god (dēm'ē-gŏd') n. 1. Mythology. a. A male being, often the offspring of a god and a mortal, who has some but not all of the powers of a god. b. An inferior deity; a minor god. c. A deified man. 2. A person who is highly honored or revered.

dem·i·god·dess (dēm'ē-gŏd'īs) n. 1. A female being, often the offspring of a god and a mortal, who has some but not all of the powers of a goddess. 2. A deified woman.

dem·i·john (dēm'ē-jŏn') n. A large, narrow-necked bottle made of glass or earthenware, usually encased in wickerwork. [Probably alteration of French dame-Jeanne : dame, lady; see DAME + Jeanne, personal name.]

de·mil·i·ta·rize (dē-mīl'ī-tə-rīz') v. tr. de·mil·i·ta·rized, de·mil·i·ta·riz·ing, de·mil·i·ta·riz·es. 1. To eliminate the military character of. 2. To prohibit military forces or installations in: demilitarize a buffer zone between hostile countries.

3. To replace military control of with civilian control. —de·mil'·i·ta·ri·za'tion (-tər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

de·mil·i·ta·rized zone (dē-mīl'ĭ-tə-rīzd' zōn) n. Abbr. DMZ An area from which military forces, operations, and installations are prohibited.

De Mille (də mīl'), Agnes George. 1905?-1993. American choreographer who introduced innovative dance to a wide public audience with her choreography for Oklahoma! (1943), Carousel (1945), and other musicals.

De Mille (də mīl'), Cecil Blount. 1881-1959. American filmmaker known for his spectacular epic productions, including The Ten Commandments (1923 and 1956) and The Greatest Show on Earth (1952).

dem·i·mon·daine (dēm'ē-mōn-dān', -mōn'dān') n. A woman belonging to the demimonde. [French, from demi-monde, demimonde. See DEMIMONDE.]

dem·i·mon·de (dēm'ē-mōnd') n. 1. a. A class of women kept by wealthy lovers or protectors. b. Women prostitutes considered as a group. 2. A group whose respectability is dubious or whose success is marginal: the literary demi-monde of ghost writers, hacks, and publicists. In this sense, also called demiworld [French : demi-, demi- + monde, world (from Latin mundus).]

de·min·er·al·i·za·tion (dē-mĭn'ər-ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of removing minerals or mineral salts from a liquid, such as water. 2. The loss, deprivation, or removal of minerals or mineral salts from the body, especially through disease, as the loss of calcium from bones or teeth.

de·min·er·al·ize (dē-mĭn'ər-ə-lĭz') v. tr. de·min·er·al·ized, de·min·er·al·iz·ing, de·min·er·al·iz·es. To remove minerals or mineral salts from (a liquid). —de·min'er·al'iz'er n.

dem·i·re·lie·f (dēm'ē-rĭ-lēf') n. See half relief.

dem·i·rep (dēm'ē-rĕp') n. A person of doubtful reputation or respectability. [DEMI- + REP(UTATION).]

de·mise (dĭ-mĭz') n. 1. a. Death. b. The end of existence or activity; termination: the demise of the streetcar. 2. Law. Transfer of an estate by lease or will.

3. The transfer of a ruler's authority by death or abdication. — v. de·mised, de·mis·ing, de·mis·es. — v. tr. 1. Law. To transfer (an estate) by will or lease.

2. To transfer (sovereignty) by abdication or will. — v. intr. 1. Law. To be transferred by will or descent: The land demised to a charitable institution. 2. To die. [Middle English, transfer of property, from Old French dimis, past participle of demettre, to release. See DEMIT.] —de·mis'a·ble adj.

dem·i·sem·i·qua·ver (dēm'ē-sēm'ē-kwā'vər) n. Chiefly British. A thirty-second note.

de·mis·sion (dĭ-mĭsh'ən) n. Relinquishment of an office or function. [Middle English dimissioun, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin dīmissiō, dīmissiōn-, dismissal, from dīmissus, past participle of dīmittere, to release. See DEMIT.]

de·mit (dī-mīt') v. de·mit·ted, de·mit·ting, de·mits. — v. tr. 1. To relinquish (an office or function). 2. Archaic. To dismiss. — v. intr. To give up an office or position; resign. [Middle English dimitten, to release, from Old French demettre, from Latin dīmittere : dis-, away; see DIS- + mittere, to send.]

dem·i·tasse (dēm'ē-tās', -tās') n. 1. A small cup of strong black coffee or espresso. 2. The small cup used to serve this drink. [French : demi-, demi- + tasse, cup (from Old French, from Arabic tašt, basin, from Persian).]

dem·i·urge (dēm'ē-ûrj') n. 1. A powerful creative force or personality. 2. A public magistrate in some ancient Greek states. 3. Demiurge. A deity in Gnosticism, Manicheism, and other religions who creates the material world and is sometimes viewed as the originator of evil. 4. Demiurge. A Platonic deity who orders or fashions the material world out of chaos. [Late Latin dēmiurgus, from Greek dēmiourgos, artisan : dēmios, public (from dēmos, people); see dā- in Appendix + ergos, worker (from ergon, work); see werg- in Appendix.]

—dem'i-ur'geous (-ûr'jəs), dem'i-ur'gic (-jĭk) , dem'i-ur'gi-cal (-jĭ-kəl) adj. —dem'i-ur'gi-cal-ly adv.

dem·i·world (dēm'ē-wûrld') n. See demimonde (n., sense 2).

dem·o (dēm'ō) n. pl. dem·os. Informal. 1. a. A demonstration, as of a product or service. b. A brief tape or recording used to illustrate the qualities of a musician or other performer. 2. A product, such as an automobile, used for demonstration and often sold later at a discount. —dem'ō v.

de·mob (dē-mōb') Chiefly British. v. tr. de·mobbed, de·mob·bing, de·mobs. To demobilize (armed forces). — n. Demobilization of armed forces.

de·mo·bil·ize (dē-mō'bə-līz') v. tr. de·mo·bil·ized, de·mo·bil·iz·ing, de·mo·bil·iz·es. 1. To discharge from military service or use. 2. To disband (troops). —de·mo'bil·i·za'tion (-bə-lī-zā'shən) n.

de·moc·ra·cy (dī-mōk'rə-sē) n. pl. de·moc·ra·cies. 1. Government by the people, exercised either directly or through elected representatives. 2. A political or social unit that has such a government. 3. The common people, considered as the primary source of political power. 4. Majority rule. 5. The principles of social equality and respect for the individual within a community. [French démocratie, from Late Latin dēmocratia, from Greek dēmokratia : dēmos, people; see dā- in Appendix + -kratia, -cracy.]

dem·o·crat (dēm'ə-krăt') n. 1. An advocate of democracy. 2. Democrat. Abbr. Dem., D, D. A member of the Democratic Party. [French démocrate, back-formation from démocratie, democracy. See DEMOCRACY.]

Democrat, Mount. A peak, 4,315.1 m (14,148 ft) high, of central Colorado in the Park Range of the Rocky Mountains.

dem·o·crat·ic (dēm'ə-krăt'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, characterized by, or advocating democracy: democratic government; a democratic union. 2. Of or for the people in general; popular: a democratic movement; democratic art forms. 3. Believing in or practicing social equality: “a proper democratic scorn for bloated dukes and lords” (George du Maurier). 4. Democratic. Abbr. Dem., D, D. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the Democratic Party. —dem’o·crat’i·cal·ly adv.

Democratic Party (dēm’ə-krăt’ĭk pār’tē) n. One of the two major political parties in the United States, owing its origin to a split in the Democratic-Republican Party under Andrew Jackson in 1828.

Dem·o·crat·ic·Re·pub·li·can Party (dēm’ə-krăt’ĭk-rĭ-pŭb’lĭ-kən pār’tē) n. A political party in the United States that was opposed to the Federalist Party and was founded by Thomas Jefferson in 1792 and dissolved in 1828.

de·moc·ra·tize (dĭ-mŏk’rə-tīz’) v. tr. de·moc·ra·tized, de·moc·ra·tiz·ing, de·moc·ra·tiz·es. To make democratic. —de·moc’ra·ti·za’tion (-tĭ-zā’shən) n.

De·moc·ri·tus (dĭ-mŏk’rĭ-təs), Known as “the Laughing Philosopher.” 460?-370? B.C. Greek philosopher who developed an atomist theory of the universe and espoused the doctrine that pleasure, along with self-control, is the goal of human life.

dé·mo·dé (dā’mō-dā’) adj. No longer in fashion; outmoded. [French, past participle of démoder, to outmode : dé-, out (from Old French de-); see DE- + mode, fashion; see MODE.]

de·mod·u·late (dē-mŏj’ə-lāt’, -mŏd’yə-) v. tr. de·mod·u·lat·ed, de·mod·u·lat·ing, de·mod·u·lates. To extract (information) from a modulated carrier wave. —de·mod’u·la’tor n.

de·mod·u·la·tion (dē-mŏj’ə-lā’shən) n. The conversion of a modulated carrier wave into a current equivalent to the original signal. Also called detection dem·o·graph·ic (dēm’ə-grăf’ĭk, dē’mə-) also dem·o·graph·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. Of or relating to demography. —dem’o·graph’i·cal·ly adv.

De·mo·gor·gon (dē’mə-gŏr’gən, dē’mə-gŏr’-) n. Mythology. A terrifying ancient deity or demon of the underworld.

dem·o·graph·ics (dēm’ə-grăf’ĭks, dē’mə-) n. (used with a pl. verb). The characteristics of human populations and population segments, especially when used to identify consumer markets: The demographics of the Southwest indicate a growing population of older consumers.

de·mog·ra·phy (dĭ-mŏg’rə-fē) n. The study of the characteristics of human populations, such as size, growth, density, distribution, and vital statistics. [French démographie : Greek dēmos, people; see dā- in Appendix + French -graphie, writing (from Greek -graphia, -graphy).] —de·mog’ra·pher n.

dem·oi·selle (dēm’wə-zēl’) n. 1. A young woman. 2. A demoiselle crane. 3. See damsel. 4. See damsel. [French, damsel, from Old French dameisele. See DAMSEL.]

demoiselle crane (dēm'wə-zēl'krān) n. A small crane (Anthropoides virgo) of Asia, northern Africa, and Europe, having gray and black plumage, long black breast feathers, and white plumes at the side of the head.

de·mol·ish (dī-mōl'ish) v. tr. de·mol·ished, de·mol·ish·ing, de·mol·ish·es. 1. To tear down completely; raze. 2. To do away with completely; put an end to. 3. To damage (someone's reputation, for example) severely. See Synonyms at ruin. [French démolir, démoliss-, from Latin dēmōlīrī: dē-, de- + mōlīrī, to build (from mōlēs, mass).]

dem·o·li·tion (dēm'ə-līsh'ən, dē'mə-) n. 1. The act or process of wrecking or destroying, especially destruction by explosives. 2. demolitions. Explosives, especially when designed or used as weapons. [French démolition, from Latin dēmōlītiō, dēmōlītiōn-, from dēmōlīrī, to demolish. See DEMOLISH.] —dem'·o·li·tion·ist n.

demolition derby (dēm'ə-līsh'ən dūr'bē) n. Sports. A contest in which drivers crash old cars into each other until only one is left running.

de·mon (dē'mən) n. 1. An evil supernatural being; a devil. 2. A persistently tormenting person, force, or passion: the demon of drug addiction. 3. One who is extremely zealous, skillful, or diligent: worked away like a demon; a real demon at math. 4. Also dae·mon or dai·mon (dī'mōn'). Greek Mythology. An inferior deity, such as a deified hero. 5. Also dae·mon or dai·mon (dī'mōn'). An attendant spirit; a genius. [Middle English, from Late Latin daemōn, from Latin, spirit, from Greek daimōn, divine power. See dā- in Appendix.]

demon. abbr. Grammar. Demonstrative.

de·mon·e·tize (dē-mōn'ī-tīz', -mūn'-) v. tr. de·mon·i·tized, de·mon·i·tiz·ing, de·mon·i·tiz·es. 1. To divest (a coin, for example) of monetary value. 2. To stop using (a metal) as a monetary standard. [French démonétiser: dé-, away from (from Old French de-); see DE- + Latin monēta, coin; see MONEY.] —de·mon'·e·ti·za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

de·mo·ni·ac (dī-mō'nē-āk') also de·mo·ni·a·cal (dē'mə-nī'ə-kəl) adj.

1. Possessed, produced, or influenced by a demon: demonic creatures. 2. Of, resembling, or suggestive of a devil; fiendish: demonic energy; a demoniacal fit. — n. One who is or seems to be possessed by a demon. [Middle English demoniak, from Late Latin daemoniacus, from Greek daimoniakos*, from daimonios, of a spirit, from daimōn, divine power. See DEMON.] —de'mo·ni'a·cal·ly adv.

de·mon·ic also dae·mon·ic (dī-mōn'ik) adj. 1. Befitting a demon; fiendish.

2. Motivated by a spiritual force or genius; inspired. —de·mon'i·cal·ly adv.

de·mon·ize (dē'mə-nīz') v. tr. de·mon·ized, de·mon·iz·ing, de·mon·iz·es.

1. To turn into or as if into a demon. 2. To possess by or as if by a demon. 3. To represent as evil or diabolic: wartime propaganda that demonizes the enemy.

—de'mon·i·za'tion (-mə-nī-zā'shən) n.

de·mon·ol·o·gy (dē'mə-nŏl'ə-jē) n. 1. The study of demons. 2. Belief in or worship of demons. 3. A list or catalog of one's enemies: "As the years passed [the magazine's] demonology expanded to include Bolsheviks, radicals, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the New Deal, Government work programs or aid programs of any kind" (Maggie Nichols). —de'mon·o·log'ic (-ə-lŏj'ik), de'mon·o·log'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —de'mon·ol'·o·gist n.

de·mon·stra·ble (dī-mŏn'strə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being demonstrated or proved: demonstrable truths. 2. Obvious or apparent: demonstrable lies. —de·mon'stra·bil'i·ty, de·mon'stra·ble·ness n. —de·mon'stra·bly adv.

dem·on·strate (dĕm'ən-strāt') v. dem·on·strat·ed, dem·on·strat·ing, dem·on·strates. — v. tr. 1. To show clearly and deliberately; manifest: demonstrated her skill as a gymnast; demonstrate affection by hugging. 2. To show to be true by reasoning or adducing evidence; prove: demonstrate a proposition. 3. To present by experiments, examples, or practical application; explain and illustrate: demonstrated the laws of physics with laboratory equipment. 4. To show the use of (an article) to a prospective buyer: The salesperson plugged in and demonstrated the vacuum cleaner. — v. intr. 1. To give a demonstration: described the dance step, then took a partner and demonstrated. 2. To participate in a public display of opinion: demonstrated against tax hikes. [Latin dēmōnstrāre, dēmōnstrāt- : dē-, completely; see DE- + mōnstrāre, to show (from mōnstrum, divine portent, from monēre, to warn); see men-¹ in Appendix.]

dem·on·stra·tion (dĕm'ən-strā'shən) n. 1. The act of showing or making evident. 2. Conclusive evidence; proof. 3. An illustration or explanation, as of a theory or product, by exemplification or practical application. 4. A manifestation, as of one's feelings. 5. A public display of group opinion, as by a rally or march: peace demonstrations.

de·mon·stra·tive (dī-mŏn'strə-tiv) adj. 1. Serving to manifest or prove. 2. Involving or characterized by demonstration. 3. Given to or marked by the open expression of emotion: an affectionate and demonstrative family. 4. Abbr. demon., dem. Grammar. Specifying or singling out the person or thing referred to: the demonstrative pronouns these and that. — n. Abbr. demon., dem. Grammar. A demonstrative pronoun or adjective. —de·mon'stra·tive·ly adv. —de·mon'stra·tive·ness n.

dem·on·stra·tor (dĕm'ən-strā'tər) n. 1. One that demonstrates, such as a participant in a public display of opinion. 2. An article or product used in a demonstration.

de·mor·al·ize (dī-mŏr'ə-līz', -mŏr'-) v. tr. de·mor·al·ized, de·mor·al·iz·ing, de·mor·al·iz·es. 1. To undermine the confidence or morale of; dishearten: an inconsistent policy that demoralized the staff. 2. To put into disorder; confuse. 3. To debase the morals of; corrupt. —de·mor'al·i·za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. —de·mor'al·iz'er n.

De Mor-gan (dĭ mōr'gən), Augustus. 1806-1871. British mathematician and logician who wrote important works on calculus and with George Boole laid the foundation for modern symbolic logic.

De Mor-gan (dĭ mōr'gən), William Frend. 1839-1917. British artist and writer best known for his work with glazed ceramics and stained glass.

de-mos (dē'mōs') n. 1. The common people; the populace. 2. The common people of an ancient Greek state. [Greek dēmos, district, people. See dā- in Appendix.]

De-mos-the-nes (dĭ-mōs'thə-nēz'), 384-322 B.C. Greek orator whose reputation is based mainly on his Philippics, a series of orations exhorting the citizens of Athens to rise up against Philip II of Macedon.

de-mote (dĭ-mōt') v. tr. de-mot-ed, de-mot-ing, de-motes. To reduce in grade, rank, or status. [DE- + (PRO)MOTE.] —de-mo'tion n.

SYNONYMS: demote, break, bust, degrade, downgrade, reduce. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to lower in grade, rank, or status”: was demoted from captain to lieutenant; a noncommissioned officer broken to the ranks; a detective who was busted to uniformed traffic patrol for insubordination; a supervisor degraded to an assistant; a popular author downgraded by critical opinion to a genre writer; a captain who was reduced from command of a battleship to administrative duty ashore.

ANTONYM: promote

de-mot-ic (dĭ-mōt'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to the common people; popular: demotic speech; demotic entertainments. 2. Of, relating to, or written in the simplified form of ancient Egyptian hieratic writing. 3. Demotic. Of or relating to a form of modern Greek based on colloquial use. — n. Demotic Greek. [Greek dēmotikos, from dēmotēs, a commoner, from dēmos, people. See dā- in Appendix.]

de-mount (dē-mount') v. tr. de-mount-ed, de-mount-ing, de-mounts. To remove (a motor, for example) from a position on a mounting or other support. —de-mount/a-ble adj.

Demp-sey (dĕmp'sē), William Harrison. Known as “Jack.” Called “the Manassa Mauler.” 1895-1983. American prizefighter who won the world heavyweight title in 1919 but lost it to Gene Tunney in 1926. He brought new popularity to the sport of boxing in the United States.

de-mul-cent (dĭ-mŭl'sənt) adj. Serving to soothe or soften. — n. A soothing, usually mucilaginous or oily substance, such as glycerin or lanolin, used especially to relieve pain in inflamed or irritated mucous membranes. [Latin dēmulcēns, dēmulcent- present participle of dēmulcēre, to soften : dē-, de- + mulcēre, to stroke.]

de·mur (dĭ-mŭr') v. intr. de·murred, de·mur·ring, de·murs. 1. To voice opposition; object: demurred at the suggestion. See Synonyms at object. 2. Law. To enter a demurrer. 3. To delay. — n. 1. The act of demurring. 2. An objection. 3. A delay. [Middle English demuren, to delay, from Anglo-Norman demurer, from Latin dēmorārī: dē-, de- + morārī, to delay (from mora, delay).] —de·mur'ra·ble adj.

de·mure (dĭ-myŭr') adj. de·mur·er, de·mur·est. 1. Modest and reserved in manner or behavior. 2. Affectedly shy, modest, or reserved. See Synonyms at shy¹. [Middle English, probably from Anglo-Norman demure (influenced by Old French mur, meur, mature, serious, from Latin mātūrus); see MATURE, past participle of demurer, to delay, wait. See DEMUR.] —de·mure'ly adv. —de·mure'ness n.

de·mur·rage (dĭ-mŭr'ĭj, -mŭr'-) n. Abbr. dem. 1. Detention of a ship, freight car, or other cargo conveyance during loading or unloading beyond the scheduled time of departure. 2. Compensation paid for such detention.

de·mur·ral (dĭ-mŭr'əl, -mŭr'-) n. The act of demurring, especially a mild, polite, or considered expression of opposition.

de·mur·rer (dĭ-mŭr'ər, -mŭr'-) n. 1. One that demurs; an objector. 2. An objection. 3. Law. A method of objecting that admits the facts of the opponent's argument but denies that they sustain the pleading based upon them.

De·muth (dĭ-mŭth'), Charles. 1883-1935. American painter known for his still-life watercolors. He was one of the first artists to use the geometric shapes of modern technology in his work.

de·my (dĭ-mī') n. pl. de·mies. Any of several standard sizes of paper, especially paper measuring 16 by 21 inches. [Alteration of DEMI-.]

de·my·e·lin·ate (dē-mī'ə-lə-nāt') v. tr. de·my·e·lin·at·ed, de·my·e·lin·at·ing, de·my·e·lin·ates. To destroy or remove the myelin sheath of (a nerve fiber), as through disease. —de·my'e·lin·a'tion n.

de·mys·ti·fy (dē-mĭs'tə-fī') v. tr. de·mys·ti·fied, de·mys·ti·fy·ing, de·mys·ti·fies. To make less mysterious; clarify: an autobiography that demystified the career of an eminent physician. —de·mys'ti·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ-kā'shən) n. —de·mys'ti·fi'er n.

de·my·thol·o·gize (dē'mĭ-thŏl'ə-jĭz') *v. tr. de·my·thol·o·gized, de·my·thol·o·giz·ing, de·my·thol·o·giz·es. 1. To rid of mythological elements in order to discover the underlying meaning: demythologize biblical legends. 2. To remove the mysterious or mythical aspects from: "providing an antiheroic age with heroes suitably demythologized, yet also grand" (John Simon). —de'my·thol'o·gi·za'tion (-jĭ-zā'shən) n. —de'my·thol'o·giz'er *n.

den (dĕn) n. 1. The shelter or retreat of a wild animal; a lair. 2. A cave or hollow used as a refuge or hiding place. 3. A hidden or squalid dwelling place: a den of thieves. 4. A secluded room for study or relaxation. 5. A unit of about eight to ten Cub Scouts. — v. intr. denned, den-ning, dens. To inhabit or hide in a den. [Middle English, from Old English denn.]

Den. abbr. Denmark.

De-na-li (də-nā'lē) See Mount McKinley.

de-nar-i-us (dī-nâr'ē-əs) n. pl. de-nar-i-i (-ē-ī'). 1. An ancient Roman silver coin. 2. An ancient Roman gold coin valued at 25 silver denarii. [Middle English, from Latin dēnārius. See DENARY.]

den-a-ry (dĕn'ə-rē) adj. 1. Tenfold. 2. Divided or counted by tens; decimal. [Latin dēnārius, from dēnī, by tens. See dek in Appendix.]

de-na-tion-al-ize (dē-nāsh'ə-nə-līz') v. tr. de-na-tion-al-ized, de-na-tion-al-iz-ing, de-na-tion-al-iz-es. 1. To deprive of national rights or characteristics. 2. To transfer (an industry, for example) from governmental to private ownership. — de-na'tion-al-i-za'tion (-shə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

de-nat-u-ral-ize (dē-nāch'ər-ə-līz') v. tr. de-nat-u-ral-ized, de-nat-u-ral-iz-ing, de-nat-u-ral-iz-es. 1. To make unnatural. 2. To deprive of the rights of citizenship. — de-nat'u-ral-i-za'tion (-ər-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

de-na-ture (dē-nā'chər) v. tr. de-na-tured, de-na-tur-ing, de-na-tures. 1. To change the nature or natural qualities of. 2. To render unfit to eat or drink without destroying usefulness in other applications, especially to add methanol to (ethyl alcohol). 3. Biochemistry. To alter the structure of (a protein), as with heat, alkali, or acid, so that some of its original properties, especially its biological activity, are diminished or eliminated. 4. Physics. To add nonfissionable matter to (fissionable material) so as to prevent use in an atomic weapon. — de-na'-tur-ant n. — de-na'tur-a'tion n.

de-na-tured alcohol (dē-nā'chərd əl'kə-hōl') n. Ethyl alcohol to which a poisonous substance, such as acetone or methanol, has been added to make it unfit for consumption.

dendr- or dendri- pref. Variants of dendro-.

den-dri-form (dĕn'drə-fōrm') adj. Shaped like or having the form of a tree.

den-drite (dĕn'drīt') n. 1. a. A mineral crystallizing in another mineral in the form of a branching or treelike mark. b. A rock or mineral bearing such a mark or marks. 2. A branched protoplasmic extension of a nerve cell that conducts impulses from adjacent cells inward toward the cell body. A single nerve may possess many dendrites. In this sense, also called dendron den-drit-ic (dĕn-drīt'ik) also den-drit-i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a dendrite. 2. Dendriform. — den-drit'i-cal-ly adv.

dendro- or dendri- or dendr- pref. Tree; treelike: dendrochronology. [From Greek dendron, tree. See deru- in Appendix.]

den-dro-bi-um (dĕn-drō'bē-əm) n. Any of numerous species of the orchid genus Dendrobium native to tropical or subtropical Asia, Australia, and the islands of the Pacific Ocean. [New Latin, genus name : DENDRO- + Greek bios, life; see g^wei- in Appendix.]

den·dro·chro·nol·o·gy (dĕn'drō-krə-nŏl'ə-jē) n. The study of climate changes and past events by comparing the successive annual growth rings of trees or old timber. —den'dro·chro·nol'og'i·cal (-krŏn'ə-lŏj'i-kəl) adj.

—den'dro·chro·nol'og'i·cal·ly adv. —den'dro·chro·nol'o·gist n.

den·droid (dĕn'droid') also den·droid·al (dĕn-droid'l) adj. Shaped like a tree.

den·drol·o·gy (dĕn-drŏl'ə-jē) n. The botanical study of trees and other woody plants. —den'dro·log'ic (-drə-lŏj'ik), den'dro·log'i·cal adj.

—den·drol'o·gist n.

den·dron (dĕn'drŏn') n. See dendrite (n., sense 2). [Greek, tree. See deru- in Appendix.]

dene (dĕn) n. Chiefly British. A sandy tract or dune by the seashore. [Possibly East Frisian düne, a sand dune; akin to akin to DUNE.]

De·neb (dĕn'ĕb') n. The brightest star in the constellation Cygnus, approximately 1,630 light-years from Earth. [Arabic danab, tail.]

De·neb·o·la (də-nĕb'ə-lə) n. A star in the constellation Leo, approximately 43 light-years from Earth. [From Arabic danab al-'asad, tail of the lion.]

den·e·ga·tion (dĕn'i-gā'shən) n. A denial. [French dénégation, from Latin dēnegātiō, dēnegātiōn-, from dēnegātus, past participle of dēnegāre, to deny. See DENY.]

de·ner·vate (dē-nŭr'vāt) v. tr. de·ner·va·ted, de·ner·va·ting, de·ner·vates. Medicine. To deprive (an organ or body part) of a nerve supply, as by surgically removing or cutting a nerve or by blocking a nerve connection with drugs. —de'ner·va'tion n.

den·gue (dĕng'gē, -gā) n. An acute, infectious tropical disease caused by an arbovirus transmitted by mosquitoes, and characterized by high fever, rash, headache, and severe muscle and joint pain. Also called breakbone fever, dandy fever, dengue fever. [Spanish, alteration (influenced by dengue, affectation), of Swahili ki-dinga.]

Deng Xiao·ping (dŭng' shou'pĭng', doeng' shyou'pĭng') also Teng Hsiao·ping (tŭng' shyou'pĭng', dœng'), Born 1904. Chinese Communist leader who was twice purged from the Communist Party (1967 and 1976) and twice rehabilitated (1973 and 1977) before gaining supreme power in China. He officially retired as head of state in November 1989.

Den·ham (dĕn'əm), Sir John. 1615-1669. English poet best known for his topographical poem Cooper's Hill (1642), in which he combined scenic descriptions with moral, historical, and political reflections.

Den Hel·der (dæn hĕl'dər) A city of northwest Netherlands on the North Sea. It is the country's most important naval base. Population, 63,826.

de·ni·a·ble (dī-nī'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Possible to contradict or declare untrue: deniable accusations. 2. Being such that plausible disavowal or disclaimer is possible: "Covert action was deniable; a Pentagon program would not be" (Bob Woodward). —de·ni·a·bil·i·ty n. —de·ni·a·bly adv.

de·ni·al (dī-nī'əl) n. 1. A refusal to comply with or satisfy a request. 2. a. A refusal to grant the truth of a statement or allegation; a contradiction. b. Law. The opposing by a defendant of an allegation of the plaintiff. 3. a. A refusal to accept or believe something, such as a doctrine or belief. b. Psychology. An unconscious defense mechanism characterized by refusal to acknowledge painful realities, thoughts, or feelings. 4. The act of disowning or disavowing; repudiation. 5. Abstinance; self-denial. [From DENY.] de·ni·er¹ (dī-nī'ər) n. One that denies: a denier of harsh realities.

den·ier² (də-n'ya') n. 1. (also dən'yər) A unit of fineness for rayon, nylon, and silk fibers, based on a standard mass per length of 1 gram per 9,000 meters of yarn. 2. (also də-nīr') a. A small coin of varying composition and value current in western Europe from the eighth century until the French Revolution. b. Archaic. A small, trifling sum. [Middle English denere, a coin, from Old French dener, from Latin dēnārius. See DENARIUS.]

den·i·grate (də-n'ī-grāt') v. tr. den·i·grat·ed, den·i·grat·ing, den·i·grates.

1. To attack the character or reputation of; speak ill of; defame. 2. To disparage; belittle: The critics have denigrated our efforts. [Latin dēnigrāre, dēnigrāt-, to blacken, defame : dē-, de- + niger, nigr-, black.] —den'·i·gra'tion n.

—den'·i·gra'tor n.

De·ni·ker (də-nē-kēr'), Joseph. 1852-1918. French anthropologist who proposed the ethnological classification of Europeans according to stature, cranial index, and color of hair.

den·im (də-n'ım) n. 1. a. A coarse twilled cloth, usually cotton, used for jeans, overalls, and work uniforms. b. denims. Trousers or another garment made of this cloth. 2. A similar but finer fabric used in draperies and upholstery.

[French (serge) de Nîmes, (serge) of Nîmes, after Nîmes, France.]

De·nis or De·nys (də-n'is, də-nē'), Saint. Third century A.D. Patron saint of France. Sent to minister to the Gauls as the first bishop of Paris, he suffered martyrdom by decapitation.

Den·i·son (də-n'ī-sən) A city of northern Texas near the Oklahoma border north-northeast of Dallas. It was founded as a railroad junction on the site of a stagecoach station. Population, 21,505.

de·ni·tri·fy (də-nī'trə-fī') v. tr. de·ni·tri·fied, de·ni·tri·fy·ing, de·ni·tri·fies.

1. To remove nitrogen or nitrogen groups from (a compound). 2. To reduce (nitrates or nitrites) to nitrogen-containing gases, as by bacterial action on soil.

—de·ni'tri·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

den·i·zen (dĕn'ĩ-zən) n. 1. An inhabitant; a resident: denizens of Monte Carlo. 2. One that frequents a particular place: a bar and its denizens. 3. Ecology. An animal or a plant naturalized in a region. 4. Chiefly British. A foreigner who is granted rights of residence and sometimes of citizenship. — v. tr.

den-i-zened, den-i-zen-ing, den-i-zens. Chiefly British. To make a denizen of; grant rights of residence to. [Middle English denisein, from Anglo-Norman denzein, from deinz, within, from Late Latin dēintus, from within. See DEDANS.]

—den'i-zen-a'tion n.

Den·mark (dĕn'märk') Abbr. Den. A country of northern Europe on Jutland and adjacent islands. It was unified in the 10th century by the Viking king Harold Bluetooth (died 985), who converted the people to Christianity. Denmark controlled England briefly in the 11th century and was united with Sweden until 1523 and with Norway until 1814. Copenhagen is the capital and the largest city. Population, 5,112,130.

Denmark Strait (dĕn'märk' strāt) A channel between Greenland and Iceland connecting the Arctic Ocean with the northern Atlantic Ocean.

den mother (dĕn mŭth'ər) n. A woman who supervises a den of Cub Scouts.

denom. abbr. Denomination.

de·nom·i·nate (dī-nŏm'ə-nāt') v. tr. de·nom·i·nat·ed, de·nom·i·nat·ing, de·nom·i·nates. 1. To issue or express in terms of a given monetary unit: securities that are denominated in dollars or yen. 2. To give a name to; designate. — adj. (-ə-nīt) Of or relating to a quantity as a multiple of a unit: 12 in 12 pounds is denominate. [Latin dēnōmināre, dēnōmināt- : dē-, de- + nōmināre, to name (from nōmen, name); see nŏ-men- in Appendix.] —de·nom'i·na·ble (-nə-bəl) adj.

de·nom·i·na·tion (dī-nŏm'ə-nā'shən) n. Abbr. denom. 1. A large group of religious congregations united under a common faith and name and organized under a single administrative and legal hierarchy. 2. One of a series of kinds, values, or sizes, as in a system of currency or weights: Cash registers have compartments for bills of different denominations. The stamps come in 25¢ and 45¢ denominations. 3. A name or designation, especially for a class or group. See Synonyms at name. —de·nom'i·na'tion·al adj. —de·nom'i·na'tion·al·ly adv.

de·nom·i·na·tion·al·ism (dī-nŏm'ə-nā'shə-nə-līz'əm) n. 1. The tendency to separate into religious denominations. 2. Advocacy of separation into religious denominations. 3. Strict adherence to a denomination; sectarianism.

—de·nom'i·na'tion·al·ist n.

de·nom·i·na·tive (dī-nŏm'ə-nā'tīv, -nə-tīv) adj. 1. Giving or constituting a name; naming. 2. Formed from a noun or an adjective. — n. A word, especially a verb, that is derived from a noun or an adjective.

de·nom·i·na·tor (dĭ-nŏm'ə-nā'tər) n. 1. Mathematics. The expression written below the line in a common fraction that indicates the number of parts into which one whole is divided. 2. A common trait or characteristic. 3. An average level or standard: The success of the film demonstrates the denominator of public taste.

de·no·ta·tion (dē'nō-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of denoting; indication. 2. Something, such as a sign or symbol, that denotes. 3. Something signified or referred to; a particular meaning of a symbol. 4. The most specific or direct meaning of a word, in contrast to its figurative or associated meanings.

de·no·ta·tive (dĭ-nō'tə-tĭv, dē'nō-tā'-) adj. 1. Denoting or naming; designative. 2. Specific or direct: denotative and connotative meanings.

—de·no'ta·tive·ly adv.

de·note (dĭ-nōt') v. tr. de·not·ed, de·not·ing, de·notes. 1. To mark; indicate: a frown that denoted increasing impatience. 2. To serve as a symbol or name for the meaning of; signify: A flashing yellow light denotes caution. 3. To signify directly; refer to specifically: See Synonyms at mean¹. [French dénoter, from Latin dēnotāre: dē-, de- + notāre, to mark; see CONNOTE.] —de·not'a·ble adj.

—de·no'tive adj.

USAGE NOTE: Denote means “to mark” or “to signify directly”; connote means “to suggest or convey to the mind what is not explicit.” In speaking of words or expressions, denote describes the relation between the expression and the thing it conventionally names, whereas connote describes the relation between the word and the images or associations it evokes. Thus, the word Christmas denotes the holiday celebrated on December 25 and connotes turkey, mistletoe, and chestnuts roasting on an open fire.

de·noue·ment also dé·noue·ment (dā'nōō-män') n. 1. a. The final resolution or clarification of a dramatic or narrative plot. b. The events following the climax of a drama or novel in which such a resolution or clarification takes place.

2. The outcome of a sequence of events; the end result. [French dénouement, from Old French desnouement, an untying, from desnouer, to undo: des-, de- + nouer, to tie (from Latin nōdāre, from nōdus, knot); see ned- in Appendix.]

de·nounce (dĭ-nouns') v. tr. de·nounced, de·nounc·ing, de·nounc·es.

1. To condemn openly as being evil or reprehensible. See Synonyms at criticize.

2. To accuse formally. 3. To give formal announcement of the ending of (a treaty). [Middle English denouncen, to proclaim, from Anglo-Norman denuncier, and Medieval Latin dēnūntiāre both from Latin: dē-, de- + nūntiāre, to announce (from nūntius, messenger); see neu- in Appendix.] —de·nounce'/ment n. —de·nounc'er n.

dense (dĕns) adj. dens-er, dens-est. 1. a. Having relatively high density. b. Crowded closely together; compact: a dense population. 2. Hard to penetrate; thick: a dense jungle. 3. a. Permitting little light to pass through, because of compactness of matter: dense glass; a dense fog. b. Opaque, with good contrast between light and dark areas. Used of a photographic negative. 4. Difficult to understand because of complexity or obscurity: a dense novel. 5. Slow to apprehend; thickheaded. See Synonyms at stupid. [Latin dĕnsus.] —dense/ly adv. —dense/ness n.

den-sim-e-ter (dĕn-sĭm'ĭ-tĕr) n. An instrument used to measure density or specific gravity. Also called densitometer [Latin dĕnsus, dense + -METER.] —den'si-met'ric (-sə-mĕt'rĭk) adj.

den-si-tom-e-ter (dĕn'sĭ-tŏm'ĭ-tĕr) n. 1. An apparatus for measuring the optical density of a material, such as a photographic negative. 2. See densimeter. [DENSIT(Y) + -METER.] —den'si-tom'e-try (-ĭ-trĕ) n.

den-si-ty (dĕn'sĭ-tĕ) n. pl. den-si-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being dense. 2. a. The quantity of something per unit measure, especially per unit length, area, or volume. b. The mass per unit volume of a substance under specified conditions of pressure and temperature. 3. Computer Science. The number of units of useful information contained within a linear dimension. 4. The number of individuals, such as inhabitants or housing units, per unit of area. 5. The degree of optical opacity of a medium or material, as of a photographic negative. 6. Thickness of consistency; impenetrability. 7. Complexity of structure or content. 8. Stupidity; dullness.

dent¹ (dĕnt) n. 1. A depression in a surface made by pressure or a blow: a dent in the side of a car. 2. Informal. A significant, usually diminishing effect or impression: The loss put a dent in the team's confidence. 3. Informal. Meaningful progress; headway: at least made a dent in the work. — v. dent-ed, dent-ing, dents. — v. tr. To make a dent in. — v. intr. To become dented: a fender that dents easily. [Middle English dent, variant of dint, blow, from Old English dynt.] dent² (dĕnt) n. See tooth (n., sense 3). [French. See DENTIST.]

dent. abbr. Dental; dentist; dentistry.

dent- pref. Variant of denti-.

den-tal (dĕn'tl) adj. 1. Abbr. dent. Of, relating to, or for the teeth: dental caps. 2. Abbr. dent. Of, relating to, or intended for dentistry: dental work; dental bills. 3. Linguistics. Articulated with the tip of the tongue near or against the upper front teeth: the English dental consonants t and d. — n. Linguistics. A dental consonant. [New Latin dentālis, from Latin dĕns, dent-, tooth. See dent- in Appendix.]

dental caries (dĕn'tl kâr'ĕz) n. The formation of cavities in the teeth by the action of bacteria; tooth decay.

dental floss (dĕn'tl flōs) n. A waxed or unwaxed thread used to remove food particles and plaque from the teeth.

dental hygiene (dĕn'tl hī'jĕn') n. 1. The practice of keeping the mouth, teeth, and gums clean and healthy to prevent disease, as by regular brushing and flossing and visits to a dentist. 2. The state of one's oral health, resulting from this practice or its neglect. Also called oral hygiene dental hygienist (dĕn'tl hī-jĕ'nĭst) n. A person trained and licensed to provide preventive dental services, such as cleaning the teeth and taking x-rays, usually in conjunction with a dentist.

den·ta·li·a (dĕn-tā'lĕ-ə) n. A plural of dentalium.

dental implant (dĕn'tl ĭm-plānt') n. A tooth, usually artificial, that is anchored in the gums or jawbone to replace a missing tooth.

den·ta·li·um (dĕn-tā'lĕ-əm) n. pl. den·ta·li·a (-lĕ-ə) or den·ta·li·ums. Any of various tooth shells of the genus Dentalium. [New Latin Dentālium, genus name, from dentālis, toothy. See DENTAL.] dental plate (dĕn'tl plāt) n. See denture (n., sense 1).

dental technician (dĕn'tl tĕk-nĭsh'ən) n. One who makes dental appliances and restorative devices, such as bridges or dentures, to the specifications of a dentist.

den·tate (dĕn'tāt') adj. Edged with toothlike projections; toothed: dentate leaves. [Latin dentātus, from dĕns, dent-, tooth. See dent- in Appendix.]

—den'tate'ly adv.

den·ta·tion (dĕn-tā'shən) n. 1. The condition of being dentate. 2. A toothlike part or projection.

dent corn (dĕnt kōrn) n. A tall-growing variety of corn (Zea mays var. indentata) having yellow or white kernels that are indented at the tip.

denti- or dent- pref. 1. Tooth: dentoid. 2. Dental: dentilabial. [From Latin dĕns, dent-, tooth. See dent- in Appendix.]

den·ti·cle (dĕn'tĭ-kəl) n. A small tooth or toothlike projection. [Middle English, from Latin denticulus, diminutive of dĕns, dent-, tooth. See dent- in Appendix.] —den·tic'u·lar adj.

den·tic·u·late (dĕn-tĭk'yə-lĭt) also den·tic·u·lat·ed (-lā'tĭd) adj. 1. Finely toothed or notched; minutely dentate: denticulate leaves; denticulate fish scales. 2. Architecture. Having dentils. [Latin denticulātus, from denticulus, denticle. See DENTICLE.] —den·tic'u·late·ly adv. —den·tic'u·la'tion n.

den·ti·form (dĕn'tə-fōrm') adj. Shaped like a tooth: dentiform crystals.

den·ti·frice (dĕn'tə-frĭs') n. A substance, such as a paste or powder, for cleaning the teeth. [French, from Old French, from Latin dentifricium: denti-, denti- + fricāre, to rub.]

den·tig·er·ous (dĕn-tĭj'ər-əs) adj. Having or furnished with teeth. [DENTI- + Latin gerere, to bear.]

den·til (dĕn'tĭl) n. Architecture. One of a series of small rectangular blocks forming a molding or projecting beneath a cornice. [Obsolete French dentille, from Old French, diminutive of dent, tooth. See DENTIST.]

den·tin (dĕn'tĭn) or den·tine (-tĕn') n. The main, calcareous part of a tooth, beneath the enamel and surrounding the pulp chamber and root canals.

—den·tin'al (dĕn-tĕ'nəl, dĕn'tə-) adj.

den·tist (dĕn'tĭst) n. Abbr. dent. A person who is trained and licensed to practice dentistry. [French dentiste, from dent, tooth, from Old French, from Latin dĕns, dent-. See dent- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: “Dentist figures [appears] now in our newspapers, and may do well enough for a French puffer [a writer of inflated advertisements]; but we fancy Rutter is content with being called a tooth-drawer.” In this quotation from the September 15, 1759, issue of the Edinburgh Chronicle we see dentist in its infancy as an English word, trailing evidence of its French origin. If we had formed a word in English like dentist, which comes from the French word dent, “tooth,” we would have toothist, a word that does not exist. But toothist and tooth-drawer lack the elegance of the French borrowing dentist, an elegance that is shared by other borrowings from French during the past four centuries, such as ballet, champagne, coquette, coterie, and negligee.

den·tist·ry (dĕn'tĭ-strĕ) n. Abbr. dent. The science concerned with the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of diseases of the teeth, gums, and related structures of the mouth and including the repair or replacement of defective teeth.

den·ti·tion (dĕn-tĭsh'ən) n. 1. Zoology. The type, number, and arrangement of a set of teeth. 2. The process of growing new teeth; teething. [Latin dentitiō, dentitiōn-, from dentītus, past participle of dentĭre, to teethe, from dĕns, dent-, tooth. See DENTIST.]

den·toid (dĕn'toid') adj. Having the form of a tooth; toothlike.

Den·ton (dĕn'tən) A city of northeast Texas north-northwest of Dallas. It is a trade and agricultural center. Population, 66,270.

den·tu·lous (dĕn'chə-ləs) adj. Possessing teeth; toothed. [Back-formation from EDENTULOUS, toothless.]

den·ture (dĕn'chər) n. 1. A partial or complete set of artificial teeth for either the upper or lower jaw. Also called dental plate 2. Often dentures. A complete set of removable artificial teeth for both jaws. [French, from Old French, from dent, tooth. See DENTIST.]

den·tur·ist (dĕn'chər-ĭst) n. A dental technician specializing in making and fitting dentures as a direct service to the public rather than through a licensed dentist.

de·nu·cle·ar·ize (dē-nōō'klē-ə-rīz', -nyōō'-) v. de·nu·cle·ar·ized, de·nu·cle·ar·iz·ing, de·nu·cle·ar·iz·es. — v. tr. To remove or ban nuclear weapons from: a proposal to denuclearize Europe. — v. intr. To reduce or eliminate a store of nuclear weapons. — de·nu·cle·ar·i·za'tion (-ər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.
de·nu·date (dĭ-nōō'dāt', -nyōō'-) v. tr. de·nu·dat·ed, de·nu·dat·ing, de·nu·dates. To denude. — adj. Bare; denuded. [Latin dēnūdāre, dēnūdāt-. See DENUDE.]

de·nude (dĭ-nōōd', -nyōōd') v. tr. de·nud·ed, de·nud·ing, de·nudes. 1. To divest of covering; make bare. See Synonyms at strip¹. 2. Geology. To expose (rock strata) by erosion. [Latin dēnūdāre: dē-, de- + nūdāre, to make bare (from nūdus, nude); see nogw- in Appendix.] — de·nu·da'tion (dē'nōō-dā'shən, -nyōō-, dĕn'yōō-) n.

de·nu·mer·a·ble (dĭ-nōō'mər-ə-bəl, -nyōō'-) adj. Capable of being put into one-to-one correspondence with the positive integers; countable. [From denu-merate, to count, from Late Latin dēnumerāre, dēnumerāt-, alteration of Latin dīnumerāre: dī-, dis-, dis- + numerāre, to number; see NUMERATE.]
— de·nu·mer·a·bil'i·ty n. — de·nu·mer·a·bly adv.

de·nun·ci·a·tion (dĭ-nŭn'sē-ā'shən, -shē-) n. 1. The act or an instance of denouncing, especially a public condemnation or censure. 2. The act of accusing another of a crime before a public prosecutor. [Middle English denunciacioun, from Latin dēnuntiātiō, dēnuntiātiōn-, from dēnuntiātus, past participle of dēnuntiāre, to announce. See DENOUNCE.] — de·nun·ci·a'tive (-ā'tĭv, -ə-tĭv), de·nun·ci·a·to'ry (-ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

Den·ver (dĕn'vər) The capital and largest city of Colorado, in the north-central part of the state on the South Platte River. It was settled by gold prospectors in 1858 and became territorial capital in 1867. Population, 467,610.

Denver boot (dĕn'vər bōōt) n. A device locked to the wheel of a parked vehicle to keep it from being driven, used especially to force settlement of outstanding traffic violations. [After Denver, one of the first cities to use it.]

de·ny (dĭ-nī') v. tr. de·nied, de·ny·ing, de·nies. 1. To declare untrue; contradict. 2. To refuse to believe; reject. 3. To refuse to recognize or acknowledge; disavow. 4. a. To decline to grant or allow; refuse: deny the student's request; denied the prisoner food or water. b. To give a refusal to; turn down or away: The protesters were determined not to be denied. c. To restrain (oneself) especially from indulgence in pleasures. [Middle English denien, from Old French denier, from Latin dēnegāre: dē-, de- + negāre, to say no; see ne in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: deny, contradict, contravene, disaffirm, gainsay, negate, negative, traverse. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to refuse to admit the existence, truth, or value of”: denied the rumor; contradicted the statement; contravene a conclusion; disaffirm a suggestion; trying to gainsay the evidence; negate re- ality; negated the allegations; traverse an indictment.

ANTONYM: affirm

De·nys (dĕn'is, də-nĕ'), Saint. See Saint. Denis.

de·o·dar (dĕ'ə-där') or de·o·dar·a (-där'ə) n. A tall cedar (Cedrus deodara) native to the Himalaya Mountains and having drooping branches and dark bluish-green leaves. It is an important timber tree in India. [Hindi deodār, from Sanskrit devadāru : deva-, divine; see deiw- in Appendix + dāru, wood; see deru- in Appendix.]

de·o·dor·ant (dĕ-ō'dər-ənt) n. 1. A substance applied to the skin to mask or suppress body odors. 2. A substance released into the air to counteract unwanted odors. — adj. Capable of masking or neutralizing odors.

de·o·dor·ize (dĕ-ō'də-rīz') v. tr. de·o·dor·ized, de·o·dor·iz·ing, de·o·dor·iz·es. 1. To mask or neutralize the odor of. 2. To make more acceptable, as by elimination or suppression of an offensive aspect: “Tighter regulation and the entrance of big developers... have helped deodorize the industry, but it is still plagued by undercapitalized and even fraudulent developers” (Forbes).

—de·o'dor·i·za'tion (-dər-ī-zā'shən) n. —de·o'dor·iz'er n.

de·on·tol·o·gy (dĕ'ŏn-tōl'ə-jĕ) n. The theory or study of moral obligation; ethics. [Greek deon, deont-, obligation, necessity (from neuter present participle of dein, to need, lack); see deu-¹ in Appendix + -LOGY.] —de·on'to·log'i·cal (-tə-lŏj'ī-kəl) adj. —de'on·tol'o·gist n.

de·or·bit (dĕ-ôr'bit) v. intr. tr. de·or·bit·ed, de·or·bit·ing, de·or·bits. To go or cause to go out of orbit. — n. The act or process of going out of orbit.

de·ox·i·dize (dĕ-ŏk'sī-dīz') v. tr. de·ox·i·dized, de·ox·i·diz·ing, de·ox·i·diz·es. To remove oxygen from (a compound); reduce.

—de·ox'i·di·za'tion (-dī-zā'shən) n. —de·ox'i·diz'er n.

deoxy- pref. Denoting a molecule containing less oxygen than another to which it is closely related: deoxycorticosterone.

de·ox·y·cor·ti·cos·ter·one (dĕ-ŏk'sē-kôr'tī-kŏs'tə-rŏn') n. A steroid hormone, $C_{21}H_{30}O_3$, secreted by the adrenal cortex or produced synthetically and used to treat adrenal insufficiency.

de·ox·y·gen·ate (dĕ-ŏk'sə-jə-nāt') v. tr. de·ox·y·gen·at·ed, de·ox·y·gen·at·ing, de·ox·y·gen·ates. To remove dissolved oxygen from (a liquid, such as water). —de·ox'y·gen·a'tion n.

de·ox·y·ri·bo·nu·cle·ase (dĕ-ŏk'sē-rī'bō-nŏŏ'klĕ-ās', āz', -nyŏŏ'-) n. DNase.

de·ox·y·ri·bo·nu·cle·ic acid (dĕ-ŏk'sē-rī'bō-nŏŏ-klĕ'ik əs'īd, -klā'-, -nyŏŏ-) n. DNA.

de·ox·y·ri·bo·nu·cle·o·tide (dē-ōk'sē-rī'bō-nōō'klē-ə-tīd', -nyōō'-) n. A nucleotide containing deoxyribose that is a constituent of DNA. [DEOXYRIBO(SE) + NUCLEOTIDE.]

de·ox·y·ri·bose (dē-ōk'sē-rī'bōs') n. A sugar, C₅H₁₀O₄, that is a constituent of DNA.

dep. abbr. 1. Department. 2. Departure. 3. Dependency. 4. Deponent. 5. Deposed. 6. Deposit. 7. Depot. 8. Deputy.

de·part (dī-pärt') v. de·part·ed, de·part·ing, de·parts. — v. intr. 1. To go away; leave. 2. To die. 3. To vary, as from a regular course; deviate: depart from custom. See Synonyms at swerve. — v. tr. To go away from; leave. [Middle English departen, from Old French departir, to split, divide : de-, de- + partir, to divide (from Latin partīre, from pars, part-, part); see PART.] de·part·ed (dī-pärt'tīd) adj. 1. Bygone; past: relics from a departed era.

2. Dead. See Synonyms at dead. — n. 1. A dead person, especially one who has died recently: The family of the departed remained after the funeral service.

2. Dead persons considered as a group; the dead.

de·part·ment (dī-pärt'mənt) n. Abbr. dept., dpt., dep., D. 1. A distinct, usually specialized division of a large organization, especially: a. A principal administrative division of a government: the fire department; the department of public works. b. A division of a business specializing in a particular product or service: the personnel department. c. A division of a school or college dealing with a particular field of knowledge: the physics department. 2. Department. One of the principal executive divisions of the federal government of the United States, headed by a cabinet officer. 3. A section of a department store selling a particular line of merchandise: the home furnishings department. 4. An administrative district in France. 5. Informal. An area of particular knowledge or responsibility; a specialty: Getting the kids to bed is my department. [French département, from Old French, separation, from departir, to divide. See DEPART.] de·part·men·tal·ize (dē'pärt-měn'tl-īz') v. tr. de·part·men·tal·ized, de·part·men·tal·iz·ing, de·part·men·tal·iz·es. To organize into departments.

—de'part·men'tal (dē'pärt-měn'tl) adj. —de'part·men'tal·ly adv.

—de'part·men'tal·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

department store (dī-pärt'mənt stôr) n. A large retail store offering a variety of merchandise and services and organized in separate departments.

de·par·ture (dī-pär'chər) n. Abbr. dep. 1. The act of leaving. 2. A starting out, as on a trip or a new course of action. 3. A divergence or deviation, as from an established rule, plan, or procedure: ordered curry as a departure from his usual bland diet. 4. Nautical. The distance sailed due east or west by a ship on its course. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a departure lounge; departure dates.

de·pau·pe·rate (də-pô'pər-ĭt) adj. 1. Arrested in growth or development; stunted. 2. Severely diminished; impoverished: "But there were no pleasures in Australia. How could my friend admire so paleontologically depauperate a place?" (Jake Page). [Middle English depauperat, from Medieval Latin dēpauperātus, past participle of dēpauperāre, to make poor : Latin dē-, de- + pauper, poor; see PAUPER.] —de·pau·pe·ra'tion (-pə-rā'shən) n.

de·pend (dī-pënd') v. intr. de·pend·ed, de·pend·ing, de·pends. 1. To rely, especially for support or maintenance: Children must depend on their parents. 2. To place trust or confidence: You can depend on his honesty. See Synonyms at rely. 3. To be determined, conditioned, or contingent: a grade depending on the results of the final exam. 4. To have a dependence: began to depend more and more on drugs. 5. To be pending or undecided, as in a court or legislature. 6. To hang down: "And ever-living Lamps depend in Rows" (Alexander Pope). [Middle English dependen, to hang down, from Old French dependre, from Latin dēpendēre : dē-, de- + pendēre, to hang; see (s)pen- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Depend, indicating condition or contingency, is always followed by on or upon, as in It depends on who is in charge. Omission of the preposition is typical of casual speech.

de·pend·a·ble (dī-pĕn'də-bəl) adj. Trustworthy. See Synonyms at reliable. —de·pend'a·bil'i·ty, de·pend'a·ble·ness n. —de·pend'a·bly adv.

de·pend·ance (dī-pĕn'dəns) n. Variant of dependence.

de·pend·an·cy (dī-pĕn'dən-sē) n. Variant of dependency.

de·pend·ant (dī-pĕn'dənt) n. Variant of dependent.

de·pend·ence also de·pend·ance (dī-pĕn'dəns) n. 1. The state of being dependent, as for support. 2. a. Subordination to someone or something needed or greatly desired. b. Trust; reliance. See Synonyms at trust. 3. The state of being determined, influenced, or controlled by something else. 4. A compulsive or chronic need; an addiction: an alcohol dependence.

de·pend·en·cy also de·pend·an·cy (dī-pĕn'dən-sē) n. pl. de·pend·en·cies.

1. Dependence. 2. Something dependent or subordinate. 3. Abbr. dep. A territory under the jurisdiction of a state of which it does not form an integral part.

de·pend·ent (dī-pĕn'dənt) adj. 1. Contingent on another. 2. Subordinate. 3. Relying on or requiring the aid of another for support: dependent children. 4. Hanging down. — n. also de·pend·ant. One who relies on another especially for financial support. —de·pend'ent·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: dependent, conditional, contingent, relative, subject. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "determined or to be determined by something else": a water supply dependent on adequate rainfall; conditional acceptance of the apology; assistance contingent on continuing need; the importance of a discovery as relative to its usefulness; promotion subject to merit.

ANTONYM: independent dependent clause (dĭ-pĕn'dənt klôz) n. Grammar. A clause that cannot stand alone as a full sentence and functions as a noun, adjective, or adverb within a sentence. Also called subordinate clause dependent variable (dĭ-pĕn'dənt vârf'ē-ə-bəl) n. 1. Mathematics. A mathematical variable whose value is determined by the value assumed by an independent variable. 2. Statistics. The observed variable in an experiment or study whose changes are determined by the presence or degree of one or more independent variables.

de·per·son·al·i·za·tion (dē-pûr'sə-nə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of depersonalizing. b. The state of being depersonalized. 2. Psychology. A state in which the normal sense of personal identity and reality is lost, characterized by feelings that one's actions and speech cannot be controlled.

de·per·son·al·ize (dē-pûr'sə-nə-lĭz') v. tr. de·per·son·al·ized, de·per·son·al·iz·ing, de·per·son·al·iz·es. 1. To deprive of individual character or a sense of personal identity: a large corporation that depersonalizes its employees. 2. To render impersonal: depersonalize an interview.

De·pew (dĭ-pyōō') A village of western New York, an industrial suburb of Buffalo. Population, 17,673.

De·pew (dĭ-pyōō'), Chauncey Mitchell. 1834-1928. American lawyer, railroad executive, and politician renowned for his wit and charm as an after-dinner speaker.

de·pict (dĭ-pĭkt') v. tr. de·pict·ed, de·pict·ing, de·picts. 1. To represent in a picture or sculpture. 2. To represent in words; describe. See Synonyms at represent. [Middle English depicten, from Latin dēpingere, dēpict- : dē-, de- + pingere, to picture; see peig- in Appendix.] —de·pic'tion n.

de·pig·men·ta·tion (dē-pĭg'mən-tā'shən, -mĕn-) n. Loss or removal of normal pigmentation.

dep·i·late (dĕp'ə-lāt') v. tr. dep·i·lat·ed, dep·i·lat·ing, dep·i·lates. To remove hair from (the body). [Latin dēpilāre, dēpilāt- : dē-, de- + pilāre, to deprive of hair (from pilus, hair).] —dep'i·la'tion n. —dep'i·la'tor n.

de·pil·a·to·ry (dĭ-pĭl'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. Having the capability to remove hair. — n. pl. de·pil·a·to·ries. A preparation in the form of a liquid or cream that is used to remove unwanted hair from the body.

de·plane (dē-plān') v. intr. de·plan·ed, de·plan·ing, de·planes. To disembark from an airplane.

de·plete (dī-plēt') v. tr. de·plet·ed, de·plet·ing, de·pletes. To decrease the fullness of; use up or empty out. [Latin dēplēre, dēplēt-, to empty : dē-, de- + plēre, to fill; see pel-¹ in Appendix.] —de·plet'·a·ble adj.

SYNONYMS: deplete, drain, exhaust, impoverish, enervate. These verbs all mean to weaken severely by removing something essential. Deplete refers to using up gradually and only hints at harmful consequences: I always replenish my food supply before it is depleted. Drain suggests reduction by gradual drawing off and is stronger in implying harm: War often drains a nation's economy. Exhaust stresses reduction to a point of no further usefulness: "The resources of civilization are not yet exhausted" (William Ewart Gladstone). Impoverish refers to severe reduction of resources or qualities essential to adequate functioning: "His death has eclipsed the gaiety of nations, and impoverished the public stock of harmless pleasure" (Samuel Johnson). Enervate refers to weakening or destruction of vitality or strength: Idleness enervates the will to succeed.

de·ple·tion (dī-plē'shən) n. 1. The act or process of depleting. 2. The state of being depleted; exhaustion. 3. The gradual use or consumption of a resource, especially a natural resource.

de·plor·a·ble (dī-plōr'ə-bəl, -plōr'-) adj. 1. Worthy of severe condemnation or reproach: a deplorable act of violence. 2. Lamentable; woeful: My finances were in a deplorable state of neglect. 3. Wretched; bad: deplorable housing conditions in the inner city. —de·plor'·a·ble·ness, de·plor'·a·bil'i·ty n.
—de·plor'·a·bly adv.

de·plore (dī-plōr', -plōr') v. tr. de·plored, de·plor·ing, de·plores. 1. To feel or express strong disapproval of; condemn: "Somehow we had to master events, not simply deplore them" (Henry A. Kissinger). 2. To express sorrow or grief over. 3. To regret; bemoan. [French déplorer, lament, regret, from Latin dēplōrāre : dē-, de- + plōrāre, to wail.]

de·ploy (dī-ploi') v. de·ployed, de·ploy·ing, de·ploys. — v. tr. 1. a. To position (troops) in readiness for combat, as along a front or line. b. To bring (forces or material) into action. c. To base (a weapons system) in the field. 2. To distribute (persons or forces) systematically or strategically. 3. To put into use or action: "Samuel Beckett's friends suspected that he was a genius, yet no one knew... how his abilities would be deployed" (Richard Ellmann). — v. intr. To be or become deployed. [French déployer, from Old French despleier, from Latin displicāre, to scatter : dis-, dis- + plicāre, to fold; see plek- in Appendix.]
—de·ploy'·a·bil'i·ty n. —de·ploy'·a·ble adj. —de·ploy'er n. —de·ploy'·ment n.

de·plume (dē-plōm') v. tr. de·plumed, de·plum·ing, de·plumes. To pluck the feathers from. [Middle English deplumen, from Old French deplumer, from Medieval Latin dēplūmāre : Latin dē-, de- + Latin plūma, feather.] —de'-plu-ma'tion n.

de·po·lar·ize (dē-pō'lə-rīz') v. tr. de·po·lar·ized, de·po·lar·iz·ing, de·po·lar·iz·es. 1. To partially or completely eliminate or counteract the polarization of. 2. To demagnetize. —de·po'lar·i·za'tion (-lə-r-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

de·po·lit·i·cize (dē'pə-līt'ĭ-sīz') v. tr. de·po·lit·i·cized, de·po·lit·i·ciz·ing, de·po·lit·i·ciz·es. To remove the political aspect from; remove from political influence or control: depoliticize the administration of justice.
—de'po·lit'·i·ci·za'tion (-sĭ-zā'shən) n.

de·pol·lute (dē'pə-lōōt') v. tr. de·pol·lut·ed, de·pol·lut·ing, de·pol·lutes. To remove the pollution from: depollute a river.

de·pone (dĭ-pōn') v. de·poned, de·pon·ing, de·pones. Law. — v. tr. To testify or declare under oath. — v. intr. To give testimony. [Middle English deponen, from Medieval Latin dēpōnere, from Latin, to put down : dē-, de- + pōnere, to put; see apo- in Appendix.]

de·po·nent (dĭ-pō'nənt) adj. Abbr. dep., dpt. Grammar. Being a verb of active meaning but passive or middle form, as certain Latin and Greek verbs. — n. Abbr. dep., dpt. 1. Grammar. A deponent verb. 2. Law. One who testifies under oath, especially in writing. [Middle English, from Latin dēpōnēns, dēpōnent- present participle of dēpōnere, to put down. See DEPONE.] de·pop·u·late (dē-pŏp'yə-lāt') v. tr. de·pop·u·lat·ed, de·pop·u·lat·ing, de·pop·u·lates. To reduce sharply the population of, as by disease, war, or forcible relocation. [Latin dēpopulāri, dēpopulāt-, to lay waste : dē-, de- + populāri, to ravage (from populus, people, throng).] —de·pop'u·la'tion n.

—de·pop'u·la'tor n.

de·port (dĭ-pŏrt', -pŏrt') v. tr. de·port·ed, de·port·ing, de·ports. 1. To expel from a country. See Synonyms at banish. 2. To behave or conduct (oneself) in a given manner; comport. [French déporter, to banish, from Latin dēportāre, to carry away : dē-, de- + portāre, to carry; see per-² in Appendix. Sense 2, Middle English from Old French deporter, to behave, from Latin dēportāre.] de·port·a·ble (dĭ-pŏr'tə-bəl, -pŏr'-) adj. 1. Subject to deportation: a deportable alien. 2. Punishable by deportation: a deportable offense.

de·por·ta·tion (dē'pŏr-tā'shən, -pŏr-) n. 1. The act or an instance of deporting. 2. Expulsion of an undesirable alien from a country.

de·port·ee (dē'pŏr-tē', -pŏr-) n. A deported person.

de·port·ment (dĭ-pŏrt'mənt, -pŏrt'-) n. A manner of personal conduct; behavior. See Synonyms at behavior.

de·pos·al (dĭ-pŏz'əl) n. The act or an instance of deposing from office.

de·pose (dĭ-pŏz') v. de·posed, de·pos·ing, de·pos·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove from office or power. b. To dethrone. 2. Law. a. To state or affirm in a deposition or by affidavit. b. To take a deposition from: Investigators will depose the witness behind closed doors. 3. To put or lay down; deposit. — v. intr. Law. To give a deposition; testify. [Middle English deposen, from Old French deposer, alteration (influenced by poser, to put); see POSE¹, of Latin dēpōnere, to put down. See DEPONE.] —de·pos'a·ble adj.

de·pos·it (dī-pōz'it) v. de·pos·it·ed, de·pos·it·ing, de·pos·its. — v. tr.

1. To put or set down; place. 2. To lay down or leave behind by a natural process: layers of sediment that were deposited on the ocean floor; glaciers that deposited their debris as they melted. 3. a. To give over or entrust for safekeeping. b. To put (money) in a bank or financial account. 4. To give as partial payment or security. — v. intr. To become deposited; settle. — n. Abbr. dep. 1. Something, such as money, that is entrusted for safekeeping, as in a bank. 2. The condition of being deposited: funds on deposit with a broker. 3. A partial or initial payment of a cost or debt: left a $100 deposit toward the purchase of a stereo system. 4. A sum of money given as security for an item acquired for temporary use. 5. A depository. 6. Something deposited, especially by a natural process, as: a. Geology. A concentration of mineral matter or sediment in a layer, vein, or pocket: iron ore deposits; rich deposits of oil and natural gas. b. Physiology. An accumulation of organic or inorganic material, such as a lipid or mineral, in a body tissue, structure, or fluid. c. A sediment or precipitate that has settled out of a solution. 7. A coating or crust left on a surface, as by evaporation or electrolysis. [Latin dēpōnere, dēpōsit-: dē-, de- + pōnere, to put; see apo- in Appendix.] —de·pos'i·tor n.

de·pos·i·tar·y (dī-pōz'ī-tēr'ē) n. de·pos·i·tar·ies. 1. One entrusted with something for preservation or safekeeping. 2. A depository.

dep·o·si·tion (dĕp'ə-zīsh'ən) n. 1. The act of depositing, as from high office. 2. The act of depositing, especially the laying down of matter by a natural process. 3. Something deposited; a deposit. 4. Law. Testimony under oath, especially a statement by a witness that is written down or recorded for use in court at a later date. 5. Deposition. The removal of Jesus from the cross. —dep'·o·si·tion·al adj.

de·pos·i·to·ry (dī-pōz'ī-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) n. pl. de·pos·i·to·ries. 1. A place where something is deposited, as for storage or safekeeping; a repository. 2. A trustee; a depository.

de·pot (dĕ'pō, dĕp'ō) n. Abbr. dep. 1. A railroad or bus station. 2. A warehouse or storehouse. 3. a. A storage installation for military equipment and supplies. b. A station for assembling military recruits and forwarding them to active units. [French dépôt, from Old French depost, from Latin dēpositum, something deposited, from neuter past participle of dēpōnere, to put down, deposit. See DEPOSIT.]

de·prave (dĭ-prāv') v. tr. de·praved, de·prav·ing, de·praves. To debase, especially morally; corrupt. See Synonyms at corrupt. [Middle English depraven, to corrupt, from Old French depraver, from Latin dēprāvāre : dē-, de- + prāvus, crooked.] —dep'ra·va'tion (dĕp'rə-vā'shən) n. —de·prav'er n.

de·praved (dĭ-prāv'd') adj. Morally corrupt; perverted. —de·prav'ed·ly (-prā'vĭd-lē, -prāv'd'lē) adv.

de·prav·i·ty (dĭ-prāv'i-tē) n. pl. de·prav·i·ties. 1. Moral corruption or degradation. 2. A depraved act or condition.

dep·re·cate (dĕp'rĭ-kāt') v. tr. de·pre·cat·ed, de·pre·cat·ing, de·pre·cates. 1. To express disapproval of; deplore. 2. To belittle; depreciate. [Latin dēprecārī, dēprecāt-, to ward off by prayer : dē-, de- + precārī, to pray; see prek- in Appendix.] —dep're·cat'ing·ly adv. —dep're·ca'tion n. —dep're·ca'tor n.

USAGE NOTE: The first and fully accepted meaning of deprecate is “to express disapproval of.” But the word has steadily encroached on the meaning of depreciate. It is now used, almost to the exclusion of depreciate, in the sense “to belittle or mildly disparage,” as in He deprecated his own contribution. In an earlier survey, this newer sense was approved by a majority of the Usage Panel.

dep·re·ca·to·ry (dĕp'rĭ-kə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) also dep·re·ca·tive (-kā'tĭv) adj.
1. Expressing disapproval or criticism. 2. Mildly disparaging or uncomplimentary, especially of oneself. —dep're·ca·to'ri·ly adv.

de·pre·cia·ble (dĭ-prē'shə-bəl) adj. That can be depreciated in value: depreciable assets.

de·pre·ci·ate (dĭ-prē'shē-āt') v. de·pre·ci·at·ed, de·pre·ci·at·ing, de·pre·ci·ates. — v. tr. 1. To lessen the price or value of. 2. To think or speak of as being of little worth; belittle. See Synonyms at decry. See Usage Note at deprecate. — v. intr. To diminish in price or value. [Medieval Latin dēpreciāre, dēpreciāt-, alteration of Latin dēpretiāre : dē-, de- + pretium, price; see per⁵ in Appendix.] —de·pre'ci·a'tor n.

de·pre·ci·a·tion (dĭ-prē'shē-ā'shən) n. 1. A decrease or loss in value, as because of age, wear, or market conditions. 2. Accounting. An allowance made for a loss in value of property. 3. Reduction in the purchasing value of money. 4. An instance of disparaging or belittlement.

de·pre·cia·to·ry (dĭ-prē'shə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) also de·pre·cia·tive (-shə-tĭv, -shē-ā'tĭv) adj. 1. Diminishing in value. 2. Disparaging; belittling.

dep·re·date (dĕp'rĭ-dāt') v. dep·re·dat·ed, dep·re·dat·ing, dep·re·dates. — v. tr. To ransack; plunder. — v. intr. To engage in plundering. [Late Latin dēpraedārī, dēpraedāt- : Latin dē-, de- + Latin praedārī, to plunder (from praeda, booty); see ghend- in Appendix.] —dep're-da'tor n. —de-pred'a-to'ry (dī-prĕd'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, dĕp'rĭ-də-) adj.

dep-re-da-tion (dĕp'rĭ-dā'shən) n. 1. A predatory attack; a raid. 2. Damage or loss; ravage: “[Carnegie Hall has] withstood the wear and tear of enthusiastic music lovers and the normal depredations of time” (Mechanical Engineering).

de-press (dĭ-prĕs') v. tr. de-pressed, de-press-ing, de-press-es. 1. To lower in spirits; deject. 2. a. To cause to drop or sink; lower: The drought depressed the water level in the reservoirs. b. To press down: Depress the space bar on a typewriter. 3. To lessen the activity or force of; weaken: feared that rising inflation would further depress the economy. 4. To lower prices in (a stock market). [Middle English depressen, to push down, from Old French depresser, from Latin dēprimere, dēpress- : dē-, de- + primere, to press; see per-⁴ in Appendix.]

—de-press'i-ble adj.

de-pres-sant (dĭ-prĕs'ənt) adj. Tending to lower the rate of vital physiological activities. — n. An agent, especially a drug, that decreases the rate of vital physiological activities.

de-pressed (dĭ-prĕst') adj. 1. Low in spirits; dejected. 2. Suffering from psychological depression. 3. Sunk below the surrounding region: the depressed center of a crater. 4. Lower in amount, degree, or position: Oil reserves were at depressed levels because of increasing industrial demands. 5. a. Sluggish in growth or activity: a depressed sector of the economy. b. Suffering from social and economic hardship: a depressed region. 6. Botany. Flattened downward, as if pressed from above. 7. Zoology. Flattened along the dorsal and ventral surfaces.

SYNONYMS: depressed, blue, dejected, dispirited, downcast, downhearted. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “affected or marked by low spirits”: depressed by the loss of his job; lonely and blue in a strange city; is dejected but trying to look cheerful; a dispirited and resigned expression on her face; looked downcast after his defeat; a card welcomed by the downhearted patient.

de-press-ing (dĭ-prĕs'ɪŋ) adj. 1. Causing especially emotional depression. 2. Dismal; dreary: a week of rainy, depressing weather. —de-press'ing-ly adv.

de-pres-sion (dĭ-prĕsh'ən) n. 1. a. The act of depressing. b. The condition of being depressed. 2. An area that is sunk below its surroundings; a hollow. 3. The condition of feeling sad or despondent. 4. Psychology. A psychotic or neurotic condition characterized by an inability to concentrate, insomnia, and feelings of extreme sadness, dejection, and hopelessness. 5. a. A reduction in activity or force. b. A reduction in physiological vigor or activity: a depression in respiration. c. A lowering in amount, degree, or position. 6. Economics. A period of drastic decline in a national or international economy, characterized by decreasing business activity, falling prices, and unemployment. 7. Meteorology. A region of low barometric pressure. 8. The angular distance below the horizontal plane through the point of observation. 9. Astronomy. The angular distance of a celestial body below the horizon.

De-pres-sion glass (dī-prěsh'ən glās) n. Glassware of many colors and patterns produced in large quantities during the 1920's and 1930's. [After the Great Depression, a period of severe economic hardship during the 1930's.]

de-pres-sive (dī-prěs'iv) adj. 1. Tending to depress or lower. 2. Depressing; gloomy: "Americans entertained the depressive thought that they had ceased to be themselves" (Lance Morrow). 3. Of or relating to psychological depression. — n. A person suffering from psychological depression. —de-pres'sive-ly adv. —de-pres'sive-ness n.

de-pres-sor (dī-prěs'ər) n. 1. Something that depresses or is used to depress. 2. An instrument used to depress a part: a tongue depressor. 3. Any of various muscles that serve to draw down a part of the body.

depressor nerve (dī-prěs'ər nūrv) n. A nerve that when stimulated acts to lower arterial blood pressure.

de-pres-sur-ize (dē-prěsh'ə-rīz') v. tr. de-pres-sur-ized, de-pres-sur-iz-ing, de-pres-sur-iz-es. To reduce the pressure of air or gas within (a chamber or vehicle, for example). —de-pres'sur-i-za'tion (-prěs-h'ər-ī-zā'shən) n.

de-priv-al (dī-prī'vəl) n. Deprivation.

dep-ri-va-tion (děp'rə-vā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of depriving; loss. b. The condition of being deprived; privation. 2. A removal of rank or office.

de-priv-e (dī-prīv') v. tr. de-priv-ed, de-priv-ing, de-priv-es. 1. To take something away from: The court ruling deprived us of any share in the inheritance.

2. To keep from possessing or enjoying; deny: They were deprived of a normal childhood by the war. 3. To remove from office. [Middle English depriven, from Old French depriver, from Medieval Latin dēprīvāre: Latin dē-, de- + Latin prīvāre, to rob (from prīvus, alone, without); see per¹ in Appendix.]

—de-priv'a-ble adj.

de-priv-ed (dī-prīvd') adj. 1. Marked by deprivation, especially of economic or social necessities. 2. Lacking in advantage, opportunity, or experience: "Preschool is designed to give children from educationally deprived households an early boost" (Jeff Brody).

de-pro-gram (dē-prō'grām', -grəm) v. tr. de-pro-gram-med or de-pro-gram-ed, de-pro-gram-ming or de-pro-gram-ing, de-pro-grams or de-pro-grams. To counteract or try to counteract the effect of an indoctrination, especially a religious or cult indoctrination. —de-pro'gram'mer n.

dept. abbr. 1. Department. 2. Deputy.

depth (dĕpth) n. 1. The condition or quality of being deep. 2. a. The extent, measurement, or dimension downward, backward, or inward: dove to a depth of 30 feet; shelves with enough depth to store the large boxes. b. The measurement or sense of distance from an observation point, such as linear perspective in painting. 3. Often depths. A deep part or place: the ocean depths; in the depths of the forest. 4. a. The most profound or intense part or stage: the depth of despair; an experience that touched the depths of tragedy. b. Intensity; force: had not realized the depth of their feelings for one another. 5. The severest or worst part: in the depth of an economic depression. 6. A low point, level, or degree: Production has fallen to new depths. 7. Intellectual complexity or penetration; profundity: a novel of great depth. 8. The range of one's understanding or competence: I am out of my depth when it comes to cooking. 9. Strength held in reserve, especially a supply of skilled or capable replacements: a team with depth at every position. 10. The degree of richness or intensity: depth of color. 11. Lowness in pitch. 12. Complete detail; thoroughness: the depth of her research; an interview conducted in great depth. [Middle English depthe, from dep, deep. See DEEP.]

depth charge (dĕpth chārij) n. A charge designed for detonation at a preset depth under water, used especially against submarines. Also called depth bomb depth finder (dĕpth fīn'dər) n. An instrument used to measure the depth of water, especially by radar or ultrasound.

depth perception (dĕpth pər-sĕp'shən) n. The ability to perceive spatial relationships, especially distances between objects, in three dimensions.

depth psychology (dĕpth sī-kōl'ə-jĕ) n. 1. Psychology of the unconscious mind. 2. Psychoanalysis.

depth sounder (dĕpth soun'dər) n. An ultrasonic instrument used to measure the depth of water under a ship.

dep·u·rate (dĕp'yə-rāt') v. tr. intr. dep·u·rat·ed, dep·u·rat·ing, dep·u·rates. To cleanse or purify or become cleansed or purified. [Medieval Latin dēpurāre, dēpurāt- : Latin dē-, de- + pūrus, pure; see peu- in Appendix.]
—dep'·u·ra'tion n. —dep'·u·ra'tor n.

dep·u·ta·tion (dĕp'yə-tā'shən) n. 1. A person or group appointed to represent another or others; a delegation. 2. a. The act of deputing. b. The state of being deputed.

de·pute (dī-pyōot') v. tr. de·put·ed, de·put·ing, de·putes. 1. To appoint or authorize as an agent or a representative. 2. To assign (authority or duties) to another; delegate. [Middle English deputen, from Old French deputer, from Late Latin dēputāre, to allot, from Latin, to consider : dē-, de- + putāre, to ponder; see peu- in Appendix.]

dep·u·tize (dĕp'yə-tīz') v. tr. intr. dep·u·tized, dep·u·tiz·ing, dep·u·tiz·es. To appoint or serve as a deputy. —dep'·u·ti·za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

dep·u·ty (dĕp'yə-tē) n. pl. dep·u·ties. Abbr. dep., dept., d., D. 1. A person appointed or empowered to act for another. 2. An assistant exercising full authority in the absence of his or her superior and equal authority in emergencies: a deputy to the sheriff. 3. A representative in a legislative body in certain countries. [Middle English depute, from Old French, from past participle of deputer, to depute. See DEPUTE.]

De Quin·cey (dī kwĭn'sē, -zē), Thomas. 1785-1859. British writer best known for his autobiographical Confessions of an English Opium Eater (1821).

der. abbr. 1. Derivation. 2. Derivative.

de·rac·i·nate (də-rās'ə-nāt') v. tr. de·rac·i·nat·ed, de·rac·i·nat·ing, de·rac·i·nates. 1. To pull out by the roots; uproot. 2. To displace from one's native or accustomed environment. [From French déraciner, from Old French desraciner: des-, de- + racine, root (from Late Latin rādīcina, from Latin rādīx); see wrād- in Appendix.] —de·rac'·i·na'tion n.

de·rail (dē-rāl') v. intr. tr. de·railed, de·rail·ing, de·rails. 1. To run or cause to run off the rails. 2. To come or bring to a sudden halt: a campaign derailed by lack of funds; a policy that derailed under the new administration. [French dérailer: dé-, off (from Old French de-); see DE- + rail, rail (from English); see RAIL¹.] —de·rail'ment n.

de·rail·leur (dī-rāl'lər) n. A device for shifting gears on a bicycle by moving the chain between sprocket wheels of different sizes. [French dérailleur, from dérailer, to derail. See DERAILE.]

De·rain (də-rān'), André. 1880-1954. French artist who was one of the original fauvists but eventually adopted a more conservative style.

de·range (dī-rānj') v. tr. de·rang·ed, de·rang·ing, de·rang·es. 1. To disturb the order or arrangement of. 2. To upset the normal condition or functioning of. 3. To disturb mentally; make insane. [French déranger, from Old French desrengier: des-, de- + reng, line (of Germanic origin); see sker-² in Appendix.] —de·range'ment n.

der·by (dâr'bē; British dār'bē) n. pl. der·bies. 1. Sports. Any of various annual horseraces, especially for three-year-olds. 2. Sports. A formal race usually having an open field of contestants: a motorcycle derby. 3. A stiff felt hat with a round crown and a narrow, curved brim. [After Edward Stanley, 12th Earl of Derby (1752-1834), founder of the English Derby.]

Der·by (dâr'bē) A city of central England west of Nottingham. Settled by the Romans, it is a trade and manufacturing center with a pottery industry dating from the 18th century. Population, 216,500.

de·rec·og·nize (dē-rĕk'əg-nīz') v. tr. de·rec·og·nized, de·rec·og·niz·ing, de·rec·og·niz·es. To rescind formal, especially diplomatic recognition of: a proposal to derecognize the outlaw terrorist state. —de·rec'og·ni'tion (-nīsh'ən) n.

- de-reg·u·late (dē-rĕg'yə-lāt') v. tr. de-reg·u·lat·ed, de-reg·u·lat·ing, de-reg·u·lates. To free from regulation, especially to remove government regulations from: deregulate the airline industry. —de-reg'·u·la'tion n. —de-reg'·u·la'tor n. —de-reg'·u·la-to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.
- der·e·lict (dĕr'ə-lĭkt') adj. 1. Deserted by an owner or keeper; abandoned. 2. Run-down; dilapidated. 3. Neglectful of duty or obligation; remiss. See Synonyms at negligent. — n. 1. Abandoned property, especially a ship abandoned at sea. 2. A homeless or jobless person; a vagrant. 3. Law. Land left dry by a permanent recession of the water line. [Latin dĕrelictus, past participle of dĕrelinquere, to abandon : dĕ-, de- + relinquere, to leave behind; see RELINQUISH.]
- der·e·lic·tion (dĕr'ə-lĭk'shən) n. 1. Willful neglect, as of duty or principle. 2. a. The act of abandoning; abandonment. b. A state of abandonment or neglect. 3. Law. a. A gaining of land by the permanent recession of the water line. b. The land so gained.
- de-re·press (dē'rĭ-prĕs') v. tr. de-re·press·ed, de-re·press·ing, de-re·press·es. To induce the operation of (a gene) by deactivating the repressor. —de're·pres'sion (-prĕsh'ən) n.
- de-rib (dē-rĭb') v. tr. de-rib·ed, de-rib·ing, de-ribs. To remove the ribs from before preparing as part of a meal: deribbed the green peppers.
- de-ride (dĭ-rĭd') v. tr. de-rid·ed, de-rid·ing, de-rides. To speak of or treat with contemptuous mirth. See Synonyms at ridicule. [Latin dĕrĭdĕre : dĕ-, de- + rĭdĕre, to laugh at.] —de-rid'er n. —de-rid'ing·ly adv.
- de ri·gueur (də rĕ-gœr') adj. Required by the current fashion or custom; socially obligatory. [French : de, of + rigueur, rigor, strictness.]
- de-ri·sion (dĭ-rĭzh'ən) n. 1. a. Contemptuous or jeering laughter; ridicule. b. A state of being derided: The proposal was held in derision by members of the board. 2. An object of ridicule; a laughingstock. [Middle English derisioun, from Anglo-Norman, from Late Latin dĕrĭsiō, dĕrĭsiōn-, from Latin dĕrĭsus, past participle of dĕrĭdĕre, to deride. See DERIDE.]
- de-ri·sive (dĭ-rĭ'sĭv, -zĭv, -rĭs'ĭv, -rĭz'-) adj. Mocking; jeering. —de-ri'sive·ly adv. —de-ri'sive·ness n.
- de-ri·so·ry (dĭ-rĭ'sə-rĕ, -zə-) adj. 1. Expressing derision; derisive. 2. Laughable; ridiculous: a contribution so small as to be derisory.
- deriv. abbr. 1. Derivation. 2. Derivative.
- der·i·vate (dĕr'ə-vāt') adj. Derivative.
- der·i·va·tion (dĕr'ə-vā'shən) n. Abbr. der., deriv. 1. The act or process of deriving. 2. The state or fact of being derived; originating: a custom of recent derivation. 3. Something derived; a derivative. 4. The form or source from which something is derived; an origin. 5. The historical origin and development of a word; an etymology. 6. Linguistics. a. The process by which words are formed from existing words or bases by adding affixes, as singer from sing or undo from

do, by changing the shape of the word or base, as song from sing, or by adding an affix and changing the pronunciation of the word or base, as electricity from electric. b. A linguistic description of the process of word formation. 7. Logic & Mathematics. A logical or mathematical process indicating through a sequence of statements that a result such as a theorem or a formula necessarily follows from the initial assumptions. —der'i-va'tion-al adj.

de-ri-v-a-tive (dĭ-rĭv'ə-tĭv) adj. 1. Resulting from or employing derivation: a derivative word; a derivative process. 2. Copied or adapted from others: a highly derivative prose style. — n. Abbr. deriv., der. 1. Something derived.

2. Linguistics. A word formed from another by derivation, such as electricity from electric. 3. Mathematics. a. The limiting value of the ratio of the change in a function to the corresponding change in its independent variable. b. The instantaneous rate of change of a function with respect to its variable. c. The slope of a graph of an equation at a given point. Also called differential coefficient, fluxion.

4. Chemistry. A compound derived or obtained from another and containing essential elements of the parent substance. 5. Business. An investment that derives its value from another more fundamental investment, as a commitment to buy a bond for a certain sum on a certain date. —de-ri-v'a-tive-ly adv.

—de-ri-v'a-tive-ness n.

de-ri-ve (dĭ-rĭv') v. de-ri-ved, de-ri-ving, de-ri-ves. — v. tr. 1. To obtain or receive from a source. 2. To arrive at by reasoning; deduce or infer: derive a conclusion from facts. 3. To trace the origin or development of (a word).

4. Chemistry. To produce or obtain (a compound) from another substance by chemical reaction. — v. intr. To issue from a source; originate. See Synonyms at stem¹. [Middle English deriven, to be derived from, from Old French deriver, from Latin dērīvāre, to derive, draw off : dē-, de- + rīvus, stream; see rei- in Appendix.] —de-ri-v'a-ble adj. —de-ri-v'er n.

derm- pref. Variant of derma-.

-derm suff. Skin; covering: blastoderm. [From Greek derma, skin (possibly influenced by French -derme),. See der- in Appendix.]

der-ma¹ (dŭr'mə) n. See dermis. [Greek, skin. See der- in Appendix.]

der-ma² (dŭr'mə) n. Beef casing stuffed with a seasoned mixture of matzo meal or flour, onion, and suet, prepared by boiling, then roasting. Also called kishke, stuffed derma. [Possibly Yiddish gederem, intestines, from Middle High German darm, intestine, from Old High German. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

derma- or derm- or dermo- pref. Skin: dermal. [From Greek derma, skin. See DERMA¹.]

-derma suff. Skin; skin disease: scleroderma. [New Latin, from Greek derma, skin. See der- in Appendix.]

der·ma·bra·sion (dûr'mə-brā'zhən) n. A surgical procedure designed to remove skin imperfections, such as scars, by abrading the surface of the skin with fine sandpaper or wire brushes.

der·mal (dûr'məl) also der·mic (-mĭk) adj. Of or relating to the skin or dermis.

der·map·ter·an (dər-măp'tər-ən) n. Any of various insects of the order Dermaptera, including the earwigs, having an elongated, flattened body equipped with a pair of pincerlike appendages at the posterior end. — adj. Of or belonging to the order Dermaptera. [From New Latin Dermaptera, order name : Greek derma-, derma- + Greek ptera, pl. of pteron, wing; see -PTER.]

dermat- pref. Variant of dermato-.

der·ma·ti·tis (dûr'mə-tī'tis) n. Inflammation of the skin.

dermato- or dermat- pref. Skin: dermatophyte. [Greek derma, dermat-, skin. See der- in Appendix.]

der·mat·o·gen (dûr-măt'ə-jən) n. Botany. The outer layer of apical meristem, from which the epidermis is formed. Also called protoderm der·ma·toid (dûr'mə-toid') also der·moid (-moid') adj. Resembling skin; skinlike.

der·ma·tol·o·gy (dûr'mə-tŏl'ə-jē) n. The branch of medicine that is concerned with the physiology and pathology of the skin. — der'ma-to-log'i-cal (-tə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl), der'ma-to-log'ic adj. — der'ma-tol'o-gist n.

der·ma·tome (dûr'mə-tŏm') n. 1. Anatomy. An area of skin innervated by sensory fibers from a single spinal nerve. 2. Medicine. An instrument used in cutting thin slices of the skin, as for skin grafts. 3. Embryology. The part of a mesodermal somite from which the dermis develops. [DERMA¹ + -TOME.]

der·mat·o·phyte (dûr-măt'ə-fit', dûr'mə-tə-) n. Any of various fungi that can cause parasitic skin infections. — der·mat'o·phyt'ic (-fit'ĭk) adj.

der·ma·to·phy·to·sis (dûr'mə-tŏ'fĭ-tŏ'sĭs) n. A fungal infection of the skin, especially athlete's foot.

der·ma·to·plas·ty (dûr'mə-tŏ-plăs'tē) n. The use of skin grafts in plastic surgery to correct defects or replace skin destroyed by injury or disease.

der·ma·to·sis (dûr'mə-tŏ'sĭs) n. pl. der·ma·to·ses (-sēz). Pathology. A skin disease, especially one that is not accompanied by inflammation.

-dermatous suff. Having a specified kind of skin: sclerodermatous. [Greek derma, dermat-, skin; see DERMATO- + -OUS.]

der·mic (dûr'mĭk) adj. Variant of dermal.

der·mis (dûr'mĭs) n. The sensitive connective tissue layer of the skin located below the epidermis, containing nerve endings, sweat and sebaceous glands, and blood and lymph vessels. Also called corium, cutis, *derma*¹. [New Latin, back-formation from epidermis. See EPIDERMIS.]

dermo- pref. Variant of derma-.

der·moid (dûr'moid') adj. Variant of dermatoid.

der-nier cri (dĕr'nyā krē') n. The latest thing; the newest fashion. [French : dernier, last, latest + cri, cry.]

der-o-gate (dĕr'ə-gāt') v. der-o-gat-ed, der-o-gat-ing, der-o-gates. — v. intr. 1. To take away; detract: an error that will derogate from your reputation.

2. To deviate from a standard or expectation; go astray. — v. tr. To disparage; belittle. See Synonyms at decry. [Middle English derogaten, from Latin dērogāre, dērogāt- : dē-, de- + rogāre, to ask; see reg- in Appendix.] — der'o-ga'tion n.

de-rog-a-tive (dī-rŏg'ə-tĭv, dĕr'ə-gā'-) adj. 1. Tending to derogate; detractive.

2. Disparaging; derogatory. — de-rog'a-tive-ly adv.

de-rog-a-to-ry (dī-rŏg'ə-tŏr'ē, -tŏr'ē) adj. 1. Disparaging; belittling: a derogatory comment. 2. Tending to detract or diminish. — de-rog'a-to'ri-ly adv.

— de-rog'a-to'ri-ness n.

der-rick (dĕr'ŷĭk) n. 1. A machine for hoisting and moving heavy objects, consisting of a movable boom equipped with cables and pulleys and connected to the base of an upright stationary beam. 2. A tall framework over a drilled hole, especially an oil well, used to support boring equipment or hoist and lower lengths of pipe. [Obsolete derick, hangman, gallows, after Derick, 16th-century English hangman.]

der-ri-ère also der-ri-ere (dĕr'ē-âr') n. The buttocks; the rear. [French, behind, from Old French deriere, in back of, from Vulgar Latin dē retrō* : Latin dē, from, of; see DE- + Latin retrō, back; see RETRO-.]

der-ring-do (dĕr'ŷŋg-dŏŏ') n. Daring or reckless action. [Middle English, from durring don, daring to do : durring, present participle of durren, to dare (from Old English durran); see DARE + don, to do; see DO¹.] der-rin-ger (dĕr'ŷŋ-jər) n. A short-barreled pistol that has a large bore and is small enough to be carried in a pocket. [After Henry Deringer (1786-1868), American gunsmith.]

der-ris (dĕr'ŷis) n. Any of various usually woody vines of the genus Derris of tropical Asia, whose roots yield the insecticide rotenone. [New Latin, genus name, from Greek, covering. See der- in Appendix.]

Der-ry (dĕr'ē) See Londonderry.

der-vish (dûr'vĭsh) n. 1. A member of any of various Muslim ascetic orders, some of which perform whirling dances and vigorous chanting as acts of ecstatic devotion. 2. One that possesses abundant, often frenzied energy: “[She] is a der-vish of unfocused energy, an accident about to happen” (Jane Gross). [Turkish der-viŝ, mendicant, from Persian darvĕsh.]

WORD HISTORY: The word dervish calls to mind the phrases howling dervish and whirling dervish. Certainly there are dervishes whose religious exercises include making loud howling noises or whirling rapidly so as to bring about a dizzy, mystical state. But a dervish is really the Muslim equivalent of a monk or friar, the Persian word darvēsh, the ultimate source of dervish, meaning “religious mendicant.” The word is first recorded in English in 1585.

Der·zha·vin (dēr-zhă/vĭn, dyĭr-), Gavriil Romanovich. 1743-1816. Russian lyric poet regarded as the greatest national poet before Pushkin. He served as poet laureate and minister of justice to Catherine II.

DES (dē/ĕ-ĕsʹ) n. A synthetic nonsteroidal substance, C₁₈H₂₀O₂, having estrogenic properties and once used to treat menstrual disorders. It is no longer prescribed because of the incidence of certain vaginal cancers in the daughters of women so treated. [D(I)E(THYL)S(TILBESTROL).]

de·sa·cral·ize (dē-sā/krə-līzʹ, -săk/rə-) v. tr. de·sa·cral·ized, de·sa·cral·iz·ing, de·sa·cral·iz·es. To divest of sacred or religious significance.

De·saix de Vey·goux (də-sāʹ də vā-gōōʹ, də-zĕʹ), Louis Charles Antoine. 1768-1800. French general who led the conquest of Upper Egypt in 1799. He was killed during the Battle of Marengo.

de·sal·i·nate (dē-sălʹə-nātʹ) v. tr. de·sal·i·nat·ed, de·sal·i·nat·ing, de·sal·i·nates. To desalinate. —de·salʹi·naʹtion n. —de·salʹi·naʹtor n.

de·sal·i·nize (dē-sălʹə-nīzʹ) v. tr. de·sal·i·nized, de·sal·i·niz·ing, de·sal·i·niz·es. To remove salts and other chemicals from (sea water or soil, for example). —de·salʹi·ni·zaʹtion (-nĭ-zāʹshən) n.

de·salt (dē-sôltʹ) v. tr. de·salt·ed, de·salt·ing, de·salts. To desalinate.

De·sargues (dā-zărgʹ), Gérard. 1591-1661. French army officer and mathematician regarded as one of the founders of modern geometry.

des·cant (dĕsʹkăntʹ) n. 1. Also dis·cant (dĭsʹ-). Music. a. An ornamental melody or counterpoint sung or played above a theme. b. The highest part sung in part music. 2. A discussion or discourse on a theme. — v. intr.

des·cant·ed, des·cant·ing, des·cants (dĕsʹkăntʹ, dĕ-skăntʹ). 1. To comment at length; discourse: “He used to descant critically on the dishes which had been at table” (James Boswell). 2. Also dis·cant (dĭsʹkăntʹ, dĭ-skăntʹ). Music. a. To sing or play a descant. b. To sing melodiously. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman descaunt, from Medieval Latin discantus, a refrain : Latin dis-, dis- + Latin cantus, song from past participle of canere, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.]

—desʹcantʹer n.

Des·cartes (dā-kărtʹ), René. 1596-1650. French mathematician and philosopher. Considered the father of analytic geometry, he formulated the Cartesian system of coordinates. His philosophy is based on the rationalistic premise “I think, therefore I am.”

de·scend (dĭ-sĕndʹ) v. de·scend·ed, de·scend·ing, de·scends. — v. intr. 1. To move from a higher to a lower place; come or go down. 2. To slope, extend, or incline downward: “A rough path descended like a steep stair into the plain” (J.R.R. Tolkien). 3. a. To come from an ancestor or ancestry: She was descended from a pioneer family. b. To come down from a source; derive: a tradition descending from colonial days. c. To pass by inheritance: The house has descended through four generations. 4. To lower oneself; stoop: “She, the conqueror, had descended to the level of the conquered” (James Bryce). 5. To proceed or progress downward, as in rank, pitch, or scale: titles listed in descending order of importance; notes that descended to the lower register. 6. To arrive or attack in a sudden or an overwhelming manner: summer tourists descending on the seashore village. — v. tr. 1. a. To move from a higher to a lower part of; go down. b. To get down from: “People descended the minibus that shuttled guests to the nearby... beach” (Howard Kaplan). 2. To extend or proceed downward along: a road that descended the mountain in sharp curves. [Middle English descenden, from Old French descendre, from Latin dēscendere : dē-, de- + scandere, to climb; see skand- in Appendix.] — de-scend/i-ble, de-scend/a-ble adj.

de-scen-dant (dī-sĕn/dənt) n. 1. A person, an animal, or a plant whose descent can be traced to a particular individual or group. 2. Something derived from a prototype or earlier form: Today’s bicycles are descendants of the earlier velocipede. — adj. Variant of descendent.

de-scen-dent also de-scen-dant (dī-sĕn/dənt) adj. 1. Moving downward; descending. 2. Proceeding by descent from an ancestor.

de-scend-er (dī-sĕn/dər) n. 1. One that descends. 2. Printing. a. The part of the lowercase letters, such as g, p, and q, that extends below the other lowercase letters. b. A letter with such a part.

de-scent (dī-sĕnt/) n. 1. The act or an instance of descending. 2. A way down. 3. A downward incline or passage; a slope. 4. a. Hereditary derivation; lineage: a person of African descent. b. One generation of a specific lineage. 5. a. The fact or process of coming down or being derived from a source: a paper tracing the descent of the novel from old picaresque tales. b. Development in form or structure during transmission from an original source. 6. Law. Transference of property by inheritance. 7. A lowering or decline, as in status or level: Her career went into a rapid descent after the charges of misconduct. 8. A sudden visit or attack; an onslaught. [Middle English, from Old French, from descendre, to descend. See DESCEND.]

Des-chutes (dā-shōōt/, də-shōōts/) A river rising in the Cascade Range of west-central Oregon and flowing about 402 km (250 mi) generally north to the Columbia River near The Dalles.

de-scram-ble (dē-skrām/bəl) v. tr. de-scram-bled, de-scram-bling, de-scram-bles. To unscramble (a coded message or signal, for example).

de-scram-bler (dē-skrām/blər) n. An electronic device that decodes a scrambled transmission into a signal that is intelligible to the receiving apparatus.

de-scribe (dī-skrīb/) v. tr. de-scribed, de-scrib-ing, de-scribes. 1. To give an account of in speech or writing. 2. To convey an idea or impression of; characterize: She described her childhood as a time of wonder and discovery. 3. To represent pictorially; depict: Goya's etchings describe the horrors of war in grotesque detail. 4. To trace the form or outline of: describe a circle with a compass. [Middle English describen, from Latin dēscribere, to write down : dē-, de- + scrībere, to write; see skribh- in Appendix.] —de-scrib'a-ble adj. —de-scrib'er n.

SYNONYMS: describe, narrate, recite, recount, rehearse, relate, report. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to tell the facts, details, or particulars of something verbally or in writing”: described the accident; narrated their experiences in the Far East; an explorer reciting her adventures; a mercenary recounting his exploits; parents rehearsing the dangers the children faced; related the day's events; came back and reported what she had seen.

de-scrip-tion (dī-skrīp'shən) n. 1. The act, process, or technique of describing. 2. A statement or an account describing something: published a description of her travels; gave a vivid description of the game. 3. A pictorial representation: Monet's ethereal descriptions of haystacks and water lilies. 4. A kind or sort: cars of every size and description. [Middle English descripcioun, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin dēscriptiō, dēscriptiōn-, from dēscriptus, past participle of dēscribere, to write down. See DESCRIBE.]

de-scrip-tive (dī-skrīp'tiv) adj. 1. Involving or characterized by description; serving to describe. 2. Concerned with classification or description: a descriptive science. 3. Grammar. a. Expressing an attribute of the modified noun, as green in green grass. Used of an adjective or adjectival clause. b. Nonrestrictive.

—de-scrip'tive-ly adv. —de-scrip'tive-ness n.

descriptive clause (dī-skrīp'tiv klōz) n. Grammar. A nonrestrictive clause.

descriptive linguistics (dī-skrīp'tiv līng-gwīs'tiks) n. The study of a language or languages at a specific stage of development, with emphasis on constructing a complete grammar rather than on historical development or comparison with other languages.

de-scrip-tor (dī-skrīp'tər) n. Computer Science. A word, a phrase, or an alphanumeric character used to identify an item in an information storage and retrieval system. [Late Latin, describer, from Latin dēscribere, dēscript-, to describe. See DESCRIBE.]

de-scry (dī-skrī') v. tr. de-scried, de-scry-ing, de-scries. 1. To catch sight of (something difficult to discern). See Synonyms at see¹. 2. To discover by careful observation or scrutiny; detect: descried a message of hope in her words. [Middle English descrien, from Old French descrier, to call, cry out. See DECRY.]

—de-scri'er n.

des·e·crate (dēs'ī-krāt') v. tr. des·e·crat·ed, des·e·crat·ing, des·e·crates.

To violate the sacredness of; profane. [DE- + (CON)SECRATE.] —des'e-crat'er, des'e-cra'tor n. —des'e-cra'tion n.

de·seg·re·gate (dē-sĕg'rĭ-gāt') v. de·seg·re·gat·ed, de·seg·re·gat·ing, de·seg·re·gates. — v. tr. 1. To abolish or eliminate segregation in. 2. To open (a school or workplace, for example) to members of all races or ethnic groups, especially by force of law. — v. intr. To become open to members of all races or ethnic groups. —de·seg're-ga'tion n. —de·seg're-ga'tion·ist n.

de·sen·si·tize (dē-sĕn'sĭ-tĭz') v. tr. de·sen·si·tized, de·sen·si·tiz·ing, de·sen·si·tiz·es. 1. To render insensitive or less sensitive. 2. Immunology. To make (an individual) nonreactive or insensitive to an antigen. 3. To make emotionally insensitive or unresponsive, as by long exposure or repeated shocks: “The successive assassinations and attempts, not just on Presidential figures but on Martin Luther King Jr. and others, have desensitized us” (Anthony Lewis). 4. To make (a photographic film or substance) less sensitive to light. —de·sen'si-ti-za'tion (-tĭ-zā'shən) n. —de·sen'si-tiz'er n.

Des·er·et (dĕz'ə-rĕt') An area proposed by the Mormons in 1849 as an independent state or a state of the Union. Deseret would have included much of the southwest United States, with a capital at Salt Lake City. Congress refused to recognize the provisional state and created the Utah Territory in 1850.

des·ert¹ (dĕz'ərt) n. 1. A barren or desolate area, especially: a. A dry, often sandy region of little rainfall, extreme temperatures, and sparse vegetation. b. A region of permanent cold that is largely or entirely devoid of life. c. An apparently lifeless area of water. 2. An empty or forsaken place; a wasteland: a cultural desert. 3. Archaic. A wild, uncultivated, and uninhabited region. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, characteristic of, or inhabiting a desert: desert fauna. 2. Barren and uninhabited; desolate: a desert island. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin dĕsertum, from neuter past participle of dĕserere, to desert. See DESERT³.]

de·sert² (dĭ-zûrt') n. 1. Often deserts. Something that is deserved or merited, especially a punishment: They got their just deserts when the scheme was finally uncovered. 2. The state or fact of deserving reward or punishment. [Middle English, from Old French deserte, from feminine past participle of deservir, to deserve. See DESERVE.]

WORD HISTORY: When Shakespeare says in Sonnet 72, “Unless you would devise some virtuous lie,/To do more for me than mine own desert,” he is using the word desert in the sense of “worthiness; deserving,” a word that is perhaps most familiar to us in the plural, meaning “something that is deserved,” as in the phrase just deserts. This word goes back to the Latin word dĕservĭre, “to devote oneself to the service of,” which in Vulgar Latin came to mean “to merit by service.” Dēservīre is made up of dē-, meaning “thoroughly,” and servīre, “to serve.” Knowing this, we can distinguish this desert from desert, “a wasteland,” and desert, “to abandon,” both of which go back to Latin dēserere, “to forsake, leave uninhabited,” which is made up of dē-, expressing the notion of undoing, and the verb serere, “to link together.” We can also distinguish all three deserts from dessert, “a sweet course at the end of a meal,” which is from the French word desservir, “to clear the table.” Desservir is made up of des-, expressing the notion of reversal, and servir (from Latin servīre), “to serve,” hence, “to unserve” or “to clear the table.”

de·sert³ (dī-zûrtʹ) v. de·sert·ed, de·sert·ing, de·serts. — v. tr. 1. To leave empty or alone; abandon. 2. To withdraw from, especially in spite of a responsibility or duty; forsake: deserted her friend in a time of need. 3. To abandon (a military post, for example) in violation of orders or an oath. — v. intr. To forsake one’s duty or post, especially to be absent without leave from the armed forces with no intention of returning. [French désérer, from Late Latin dēsertāre, from Latin dēserere, dēsert-, to abandon : dē-, de- + serere, to join; see ser² in Appendix.] —de·sert’er n.

de·sert·i·fi·ca·tion (dī-zûrʹtə-fī-kāʹshən) n. The transformation of arable or habitable land to desert, as by a change in climate or destructive land use.

de·ser·tion (dī-zûrʹshən) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of deserting. b. The state of being deserted. 2. Law. Willful abandonment of one’s spouse or children or both without their consent and with the intention of forsaking all legal obligations to them.

de·serve (dī-zûrvʹ) v. de·served, de·serv·ing, de·serves. — v. tr. To be worthy of; merit. See Synonyms at earn¹. — v. intr. To be worthy or deserving. [Middle English deserven, from Old French deservir, from Latin dēservīre, to serve zealously : dē-, intensive pref.; see DE- + servīre, to serve; see SERVE.]

de·served (dī-zûrvdʹ) adj. Merited or earned: a richly deserved punishment. —de·serv’ed·ly (-zûrʹvīd-lē) adv. —de·serv’ed·ness n.

de·serv·ing (dī-zûrʹvīŋ) adj. Worthy, as of reward, praise, or aid. — n. Merit; worthiness. —de·serv’ing·ly adv.

de Se·ver·sky (də sə-ˈvērʹskē), Alexander Procofieff. 1894-1974. Russian-born American aeronautical engineer who invented various airplane devices, including a bombsight used by the U.S. military.

de·sex (dē-sěksʹ) v. tr. de·sexed, de·sex·ing, de·sex·es. To remove part or all of the reproductive organs of; neuter.

de·sex·u·al·ize (dē-sěkʹshōō-ə-līzʹ) v. tr. de·sex·u·al·ized, de·sex·u·al·iz·ing, de·sex·u·al·iz·es. 1. To take away the sexual quality of. 2. To desex. —de·sex’u·al·i·za’tion (-ə-lī-zāʹshən) n.

des·ha·bille (dēsʹə-bēlʹ, -bēʹ) n. Variant of dishabile.

De Si-ca (də sē'kə), Vittorio. 1901-1974. Italian filmmaker whose Bicycle Thief (1948) and Umberto D (1952) are considered classics of postwar realism.

des-ic-cant (dēs'ī-kənt) n. A substance, such as calcium oxide or silica gel, that has a high affinity for water and is used as a drying agent. [From Latin dēsiccāns, dēsiccant- present participle of dēsiccāre, to desiccate. See DESICCATE.]

—des'ic-cant adj.

des-ic-cate (dēs'ī-kāt') v. des-ic-cat-ed, des-ic-cat-ing, des-ic-cates. — v. tr. 1. To dry out thoroughly. 2. To preserve (foods) by removing the moisture. See Synonyms at dry. 3. To make dry, dull, or lifeless. — v. intr. To become dry; dry out. — adj. (also -kīt) Lacking spirit or animation; arid: "There was only the sun-bruised and desiccate feeling in his mind" (J.R. Salamanca). [Latin dēsiccāre, dēsiccāt- : dē-, de- + siccāre, to dry up (from siccus, dry).] —des'ic-ca'-tion n. —des'ic-ca'tive adj. —des'ic-ca'tor n.

de-sid-er-a-ta (dī-sīd'ə-rā'tə, -rā'-) n. Plural of desideratum.

de-sid-er-ate (dī-sīd'ə-rāt') v. tr. de-sid-er-at-ed, de-sid-er-at-ing, de-sid-er-ates. To wish to have or see happen. [Latin dēsīderāre, dēsīderāt-, to desire. See DESIRE.] —de-sid'er-a'tion n.

de-sid-er-a-tive (dī-sīd'ər-ə-tiv, -ə-rā'-, -zīd'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or expressing desire. 2. Grammar. Designating a clause, a sentence, or in some languages an inflected verb form that expresses desire.

de-sid-er-a-tum (dī-sīd'ə-rā'təm, -rā'-) n. pl. de-sid-er-a-ta (-tə). Something considered necessary or highly desirable: "The point is not that the artist has 'penetrated the character' of his sitter, that commonplace desideratum of portraiture" (Robert Hughes). [Latin dēsīderātum, from neuter past participle of dēsīderāre, to desire. See DESIRE.]

de-sign (dī-zīn') v. de-signed, de-sign-ing, de-signs. — v. tr. 1. a. To conceive or fashion in the mind; invent: design a good excuse for not attending the conference. b. To formulate a plan for; devise: designed a marketing strategy for the new product. 2. To plan out in systematic, usually graphic form: design a building; design a computer program. 3. To create or contrive for a particular purpose or effect: a game designed to appeal to all ages. 4. To have as a goal or purpose; intend. 5. To create or execute in an artistic or highly skilled manner. — v. intr. 1. To make or execute plans. 2. To have a goal or purpose in mind. 3. To create designs. — n. 1. a. A drawing or sketch. b. A graphic representation, especially a detailed plan for construction or manufacture. 2. The purposeful or inventive arrangement of parts or details: the aerodynamic design of an automobile; furniture of simple but elegant design. 3. The art or practice of designing or making designs. 4. Something designed, especially a decorative or an artistic work. 5. An ornamental pattern. See Synonyms at figure. 6. A basic scheme or pattern that affects and controls function or development: the overall design of an epic poem. 7. A plan; a project. See Synonyms at plan. 8. a. A reasoned purpose; an intent: It was her design to set up practice on her own as soon as she was qualified. b. Deliberate intention: He became a photographer more by accident than by design. 9. Often designs. A secretive plot or scheme: He has designs on my job. [Middle English designen, from Latin dēsīgnāre, to designate. See DESIGNATE.] —de·sign/a·ble adj.

des·ig·nate (dĕz'ĭg-nāt') v. tr. des·ig·nat·ed, des·ig·nat·ing, des·ig·nates.

1. To indicate or specify; point out. 2. To give a name or title to; characterize. 3. To select and set aside for a duty, an office, or a purpose. See Synonyms at allocate. See Synonyms at appoint. — adj. (-nĭt) Appointed but not yet installed in office: the commissioner designate. [Latin dēsīgnāre, dēsīgnāt- : dē-, de- + signāre, to mark (from signum, sign); see sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

—des'ig-na'tive, des'ig-na-to'ry (-nə-tōt'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. —des'ig-na'tor n.

des·ig·nat·ed hitter (dĕz'ĭg-nā'tĭd hĭt'ər) n. Abbr. DH, dh Baseball. A player designated at the start of a game to bat instead of the pitcher in the lineup.

des·ig·na·tion (dĕz'ĭg-nā'shən) n. 1. The act of designating; a marking or pointing out. 2. Nomination or appointment. 3. A distinguishing name or title. See Synonyms at name.

des·ig·nee (dĕz'ĭg-nē') n. A person who has been designated.

de·sign·er (dĭ-zī'nər) n. One that produces designs: a book designer; a dress designer. — adj. 1. Bearing the name, signature, or identifying pattern of a specific designer: designer luggage; designer clothing. 2. Conceived or created by a designer.

designer drug (dĭ-zī'nər drŭg) n. A drug with properties and effects similar to a known hallucinogen or narcotic but having a slightly altered chemical structure, especially such a drug created in order to evade restrictions against illegal substances.

de·sign·ing (dĭ-zī'nĭng) adj. 1. Conniving; crafty. 2. Showing or exercising forethought. —de·sign'ing·ly adv.

de·si·pra·mine (dĭ-zĭp'rə-mĕn, dĕz'ə-prəm'ĭn) n. A tricyclic antidepressant, C₁₈H₂₂N₂, used in the treatment of psychological depression. [desmethyl (des- variant of DE- + METHYL) + (IM)IPRAMINE.]

de·sir·a·ble (dĭ-zīr'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Worth having or seeking, as by being useful, advantageous, or pleasing: a desirable job in the film industry; a home computer with many desirable features. 2. Worth doing or achieving; advisable: a desirable reform; a desirable outcome. 3. Arousing desire, especially sexual desire. — n. A desirable person or thing. —de·sir'a·bil'i·ty, de·sir'a·ble·ness n.

—de·sir'a·bly adv.

de·sire (dĭ-zīr') v. tr. de·sired, de·sir·ing, de·sires. 1. To wish or long for; want. 2. To express a wish for; request. — n. 1. A wish or longing. 2. A request or petition. 3. The object of longing: My greatest desire is to go back home. 4. Sexual appetite; passion. [Middle English desiren, from Old French desirer, from Latin dēsīderāre : dē-, de- + sīdus, sīder-, star.] —de-sir'er n.

SYNONYMS: desire, covet, crave, want, wish. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to have a strong longing for”: desire peace; coveted the new convertible; craving fame and fortune; wanted a drink of water; got all she wished.

de-sir-ous (dī-zīr'əs) adj. Having or expressing desire; desiring: Both sides were desirous of finding a quick solution to the problem. —de-sir'ous-ly adv.
—de-sir'ous-ness n.

de-sist (dī-sīst', -zīst') v. intr. de-sist-ed, de-sist-ing, de-sists. To cease doing something; forbear. See Synonyms at stop. [Middle English desisten, from Old French desister, from Latin dēsistere : dē-, de- + sistere, to bring to a standstill; see stā- in Appendix.]

desk (děsk) n. 1. A piece of furniture typically having a flat or sloping top for writing and often drawers or compartments. 2. A table, counter, or booth at which specified services or functions are performed: an information desk; a reception desk. 3. A department of a large organization in charge of a specified operation: a newspaper's city desk. 4. A lectern. 5. Music. A music stand in an orchestra. [Middle English deske, from Medieval Latin desca, table, from Old Italian desco, from Latin discus, quoit. See DISK.]

de-skill (dē-skīl') v. tr. de-skilled, de-skill-ing, de-skills. 1. To eliminate the need for skilled labor in (an industry), especially by the introduction of high technology. 2. To downgrade (a job or an occupation) from a skilled to a semi-skilled or unskilled position.

desk-man (děsk'män', -mən) n. A man who works at a desk, especially a newspaper writer.

desk-top (děsk'töp') n. The top of a desk. — adj. 1. Designed for use on a desk or table: a desktop telephone. 2. Small enough to fit conveniently in an individual workspace: a desktop computer.

desktop publishing (děsk'töp' püb'li-shīng) n. Computer Science. The design and production of publications, such as newsletters, trade journals, or brochures, using microcomputers with graphics capability.

des-man (dēs'mən) n. pl. des-mans. Either of two aquatic, insectivorous, molelike mammals, Desmana moschata of eastern Europe and western Asia or Galemys pyrenaicus of southwest Europe, having dense, brownish fur, a long snout, and a flattened, scaly tail. [Short for Swedish desmanrätta, muskrat : des-man, musk (from Middle Low German desem, from Medieval Latin bisamum, of Semitic origin; akin to Hebrew bešem, odor) + rätta, rat (; akin to Old English ræt).]

De Smet (də smět'), Pierre Jean. 1801-1873. Belgian-born missionary in America who built mission stations in the Columbia River valley during the 1840's and later succeeded in arranging a temporary truce with the Sioux in the Bighorn River valley (1868).

des·mid (dēs'mīd) n. Any of various green, unicellular freshwater algae of the family Desmidiaceae, often forming chainlike colonies. [From New Latin Desmidiaceae, family name, from Desmidium, type genus, from Greek desmos, bond, from dein, to bind.]

Des Moines (dī moin') The capital and largest city of Iowa, in the south-central part of the state on the Des Moines River. Fort Des Moines was built on the site in 1843, and the surrounding settlement became a city in 1851. It was chosen as state capital in 1857. Population, 193,187.

Des Moines River (dī moin' rīv'ər) A river rising in southwest Minnesota and flowing about 861 km (535 mi) southeastward across Iowa to the Mississippi River.

Des·mou·lins (dā-mōō-lăn'), (Lucie Simplicé) Camille (Benoît). 1760-1794. French journalist and revolutionary who along with Danton urged moderation during the Reign of Terror. He was arrested and guillotined after a mock trial.

Des·na (də-snä', dyə-) A river rising east of Smolensk in western Russia and flowing about 885 km (550 mi) generally south to the Dnieper River north of Kiev in the Ukraine.

des·o·late (dēs'ə-līt, děž'-) adj. 1. a. Devoid of inhabitants; deserted: "streets which were usually so thronged now grown desolate" (Daniel Defoe). b. Barren; lifeless: the rocky, desolate surface of the moon. 2. Rendered unfit for habitation or use: the desolate cities of war-torn Europe. 3. Dreary; dismal. 4. Bereft of friends or hope; sad and forlorn. See Synonyms at sad. — v. tr. des·o·lat·ed, des·o·lat·ing, des·o·lates (-lāt'). 1. To rid or deprive of inhabitants. 2. To lay waste; devastate: "Here we have no wars to desolate our fields" (Michel Guillaume Jean de Crèvecoeur). 3. To forsake; abandon. 4. To make lonely, forlorn, or wretched. [Middle English, from Latin dēsōlātus, past participle of dēsōlāre, to abandon : dē-, de- + sōlus, alone; see s(w)e- in Appendix.] —des'·o·late·ly adv. —des'·o·late·ness n. —des'·o·lat'er, des'·o·la'tor n.

des·o·la·tion (dēs'ə-lā'shən, děž'-) n. 1. The act or an instance of desolating. 2. The state of being desolate. 3. Devastation; ruin: a drought that brought desolation to the region. 4. a. The state of being abandoned or forsaken; loneliness: a sense of utter desolation following the death of his parents. b. Wretchedness; misery.

de·sorb (dē-sôrb', -zôrb') v. tr. de·sorbed, de·sorb·ing, de·sorbs. To remove (an absorbed or adsorbed substance) from. —de·sorp'tion (-sôrp-p'shən, -zôrp'-) n.

de So-to (dĭ sō'tō, dē sō'tō), Hernando or Fernando. 1496?-1542. Spanish explorer who landed in Florida in 1539 with 600 men and set out to search for the fabled riches of the north. For the next three years he explored much of southern North America, discovering and crossing the Mississippi River in 1541.

De So-to (dĭ sō'tō) A city of northeast Texas, a suburb of Dallas. Population, 30,544.

de-spair (dĭ-spâr') v. intr. de-spaired, de-spair-ing, de-spairs. 1. To lose all hope: despaired of reaching shore safely. 2. To be overcome by a sense of futility or defeat. — n. 1. Complete loss of hope. 2. One despaired of or causing despair: unmotivated students that are the despair of their teachers. [Middle English despeiren, from Old French desperer, from Latin dĕspĕrāre: dĕ-, de- + spĕrāre, to hope; see spĕ- in Appendix. N., from Middle English despeir from Anglo-Norman, from Old French desperer, to despair.]

SYNONYMS: despair, hopelessness, desperation, despondency, discouragement. These nouns denote loss of hope. Despair and hopelessness stress the utter absence of hope and often imply a sense of powerlessness or resignation: When the bank repossessed the house, their depression turned to despair. A spirit of hopelessness pervaded the refugee camp. Desperation is despair that drives a person to take risky, often reckless action: "The mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation" (Henry David Thoreau). Despondency emphasizes depression of spirit resulting from cessation of hope and a belief that continued efforts will fail: Her despondency arises from her inability to find employment. Discouragement denotes loss of confidence or courage in the face of obstacles but is the weakest of these terms: The farmer experienced moments of discouragement over the failure of his crops.

de-spair-ing (dĭ-spâr'ing) adj. Characterized by or resulting from despair; hopeless. See Synonyms at despondent. —de-spair'ing-ly adv.

des-patch (dĭ-späch') v. & n. Variant of dispatch.

des-per-a-do (dĕs'pə-rä'dō, -rā'-) n. pl. des-per-a-does or des-per-a-dos. A bold or desperate outlaw, especially of the American frontier. [Probably from Spanish desperado, desesperado, desperate person, from past participle of desesperar, to despair, from Latin dĕspĕrāre. See DESPAIR.]

des-per-ate (dĕs'pər-īt) adj. 1. Having lost all hope; despairing. 2. Marked by, arising from, or showing despair: the desperate look of hunger; a desperate cry for help. 3. Reckless or violent because of despair: a desperate criminal.

4. Undertaken out of extreme urgency or as a last resort: a desperate attempt to save the family business. 5. Nearly hopeless; critical: a desperate illness; a desperate situation. 6. Suffering or driven by great need or distress: desperate for recognition. 7. Extremely intense: felt a desperate urge to tell the truth. [Middle English desperat, from Latin dēspērātus, past participle of dēspērāre, to despair. See DESPAIR.] —des/per-ate-ly adv. —des/per-ate-ness n.

des-per-a-tion (dēs'pə-rā'shən) n. 1. The condition of being desperate. See Synonyms at despair. 2. Recklessness arising from despair.

des-pi-ca-ble (dēs'pī-kə-bəl, dī-spīk'ə-) adj. Deserving of contempt or scorn; vile. [Late Latin dēspicābilis, from Latin dēspicārī, to despise. See spek- in Appendix.] —des/pi-ca-ble-ness n. —des/pi-ca-bly adv.

de-spise (dī-spīz') v. tr. de-spised, de-spis-ing, de-spis-es. 1. To regard with contempt or scorn: despised all cowards and flatterers. 2. To dislike intensely; loathe: despised the frigid weather in January. 3. To regard as unworthy of one's interest or concern: despised any thought of their own safety. [Middle English despisen, from Old French despire, despis-, from Latin dēspicere: dē-, de- + specere, to look; see spek- in Appendix.] —de-spis'al (-spī'zəl) n. —de-spis'er n.

SYNONYMS: despise, contemn, disdain, scorn, scout. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to regard with utter contempt”: despises incompetence; contemned the actions of the dictator; disdained my suggestion; scorns sentimentality; scouted simplistic explanations.

ANTONYM: esteem

de-spite (dī-spīt') prep. In spite of; notwithstanding: won the game despite overwhelming odds. — n. 1. Contemptuous defiance or disregard. 2. Spite; malice: “He died soon after... of pure despite and vexation” (Sir Walter Scott). [Short for in despite of, from Middle English despit, spite, from Old French, from Latin dēspēctus, from past participle of dēspicere, to despise. See DESPISE.]

de-spite-ful (dī-spīt'fəl) adj. Full of malice; spiteful. —de-spite/ful-ly adv. —de-spite/ful-ness n.

de-spit-e-ous (dī-spīt'ē-əs) adj. Archaic. Despiteful. —de-spit/e-ous-ly adv.

Des Plaines (dēs plānz') A city of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago on the Des Plaines River. Population, 53,223.

Des Plaines River (dī plānz' rīv'ər) A river rising in southeast Wisconsin and flowing about 241 km (150 mi) generally southward to the Kankakee River in northeast Illinois.

de-spoil (dī-spoil') v. tr. de-spoiled, de-spoil-ing, de-spoils. 1. To sack; plunder. 2. To deprive of something valuable by force; rob: a region despoiled of its scenic beauty by unchecked development. [Middle English despoilen, from Old French despoillier, from Latin dēspoliāre: dē-, de- + spoliāre, to plunder (from spolium, booty).] —de-spoil'er n. —de-spoil/ment n.

de·spo·li·a·tion (dī-spō'lē-ā'shən) n. The act of despoiling or the condition of being despoiled. [Late Latin dēspoliātiō, dēspoliātiōn-, from Latin dēspoliātus, past participle of dēspoliāre, to despoil. See DESPOIL.]

de·spend (dī-spōnd') v. intr. de·spend·ed, de·spend·ing, de·spends. To become disheartened or discouraged. — n. Despondency: “The outward show of fight masked a spreading inner despond at the White House” (Newsweek). [Latin dēspondēre, to give up : dē-, de- + spondēre, to promise; see spend- in Appendix.] —de·spend·ing·ly adv.

de·spon·dence (dī-spōn'dəns) n. Despondency.

de·spon·den·cy (dī-spōn'dən-sē) n. Depression of spirits from loss of hope, confidence, or courage; dejection. See Synonyms at despair.

de·spon·dent (dī-spōn'dənt) adj. Feeling or expressing despondency; dejected. —de·spon·dent·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: despondent, despairing, forlorn, hopeless. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “being without or almost without hope”: despondent about the failure of the enterprise; took a despairing view of world politics; a forlorn cause; a hopeless case.

ANTONYM: hopeful

des·pot (dēs'pət) n. 1. A ruler with absolute power. 2. A person who wields power oppressively; a tyrant. 3. a. A Byzantine emperor or prince. b. An Eastern Orthodox bishop or patriarch. [French despote, from Medieval Latin despota, from Greek despotēs, master. See dem- in Appendix.] —des·pot·ic (dī-spōt'ik) adj. —des·pot·i·cal·ly adv.

des·pot·ism (dēs'pə-tīz'əm) n. 1. Rule by or as if by a despot; absolute power or authority. 2. The actions of a despot; tyranny. 3. a. A government or political system in which the ruler exercises absolute power: “Kerensky has a place in history, of a brief interlude between despotisms” (William Safire). b. A state so ruled.

des·qua·mate (dēs'kwə-māt') v. intr. des·qua·mat·ed, des·qua·mat·ing, des·qua·mates. To shed, peel, or come off in scales. Used of skin. [Latin dēsquāmāre, dēsquāmāt- : dē-, de- + squāma, scale.] —des·qua·ma·tion n.

Des·sa·lines (dĕ-sā-lēn'), Jean Jacques. 1758?-1806. African-born emperor of Haiti (1804-1806) who defeated the French (1803) to gain the island's independence. His despotic rule led to his assassination.

Des·sau (dēs'ou) A city of east-central Germany north of Leipzig. It was the site of the Bauhaus school headed by Walter Gropius from 1925 to 1932. Population, 103,738.

des·sert (dī-zûrt') n. 1. A usually sweet course or dish, as of fruit, ice cream, or pastry, served at the end of a meal. 2. Chiefly British. Fresh fruit, nuts, or sweetmeats served after the sweet course of a dinner. [French, from Old French desservir, to clear the table : des-, de- + servir, to serve; see SERVE.]

des-sert-spoon (dī-zûrt' spōon') n. A spoon intermediate in size between a tablespoon and a teaspoon, used for eating dessert. —des-sert/spoon/ful (-fōol) n.

dessert wine (dī-zûrt' wīn) n. A usually sweet wine, such as Sauternes, served with or after dessert.

de-sta-bi-lize (dē-stā'bā-līz') v. tr. de-sta-bi-lized, de-sta-bi-liz-ing, de-sta-bi-liz-es. 1. To upset the stability or smooth functioning of: a policy that threatens to destabilize the economy; a new weapon that threatens to destabilize nuclear deterrence. 2. To undermine the power of (a government or leader) by subversive or terrorist acts. —de-sta'bi-li-za'tion (-lī-zā'shən) n.

de-stain (dē-stān') v. tr. de-stained, de-stain-ing, de-stains. To remove stain from (a specimen) to aid in microscopic study.

de-sta-lin-i-za-tion (dē-stā'li-nī-zā'shən) n. The process of discrediting and eliminating the political policies, methods, and personal image of Joseph Stalin.

de-ster-i-lize (dē-stēr'ə-līz') v. tr. de-ster-i-lized, de-ster-i-liz-ing, de-ster-i-liz-es. To release (gold) from an inactive status and return it to use as a backing for credit and new currency.

de Stijl (də stīl', stāl') n. A school of art originating in the Netherlands in 1917 and characterized by the use of rectangular shapes and primary colors. [Dutch : de, the + stijl, style.]

des-ti-na-tion (dēs'tə-nā'shən) n. 1. The place to which one is going or directed. 2. The ultimate purpose for which something is created or intended. 3. Archaic. An act of appointing or setting aside for a specific purpose.

des-tine (dēs'tīn) v. tr. des-tined, des-tin-ing, des-tines. 1. To determine beforehand; preordain: a foolish scheme destined to fail; a film destined to become a classic. 2. To assign for a specific end, use, or purpose: money destined to pay for their child's education. 3. To direct toward a given destination: a flight destined for Tokyo. [Middle English destinen, from Old French destiner, from Latin dēstināre, to determine. See stā- in Appendix.]

des-ti-ny (dēs'tī-nē) n. pl. des-ti-nies. 1. The inevitable or necessary fate to which a particular person or thing is destined; one's lot. See Synonyms at fate. 2. A predetermined course of events considered as something beyond human power or control: "Marriage and hanging go by destiny" (Robert Burton). 3. The power or agency thought to predetermine events; fate: Destiny brought them together. [Middle English destine, from Old French destinee, from feminine past participle of destiner, to destine. See DESTINE.]

des-ti-tute (dēs'tī-tōot', -tyōot') adj. 1. Utterly lacking; devoid: Young recruits destitute of any experience. 2. Lacking resources or the means of subsistence; completely impoverished. See Synonyms at poor. [Middle English, from Latin dēstitūtus, past participle of dēstituere, to abandon : dē-, de- + statuere, to set; see stā- in Appendix.] — des'ti-tute'ness n.

des-ti-tu-tion (dēs'tī-tōō'shən, -tyōō'-) n. 1. Extreme want of resources or the means of subsistence; complete poverty. 2. A deprivation or lack; a deficiency.

des-tri-er (dēs'trē-ər, dī-strîr') n. Archaic. A war horse. [Middle English destrer, from Anglo-Norman, from Vulgar Latin dextrārius*, right-hand, from Latin dexter, right.]

de-destroy (dī-stroi') v. de-destroyed, de-destroy-ing, de-destroys. — v. tr. 1. To ruin completely; spoil: The ancient manuscripts were destroyed by fire. 2. To tear down or break up; demolish. See Synonyms at ruin. 3. To do away with; put an end to: "In crowded populations, poverty destroys the possibility of cleanliness" (George Bernard Shaw). 4. To kill: destroy a rabid dog. 5. To subdue or defeat completely; crush: The rebel forces were destroyed in battle. 6. To render useless or ineffective: destroyed the testimony of the prosecution's chief witness. — v. intr. To be destructive; cause destruction: "Too much money destroys as surely as too little" (John Simon). [Middle English destroien, from Old French destruire, from Vulgar Latin dēstrūgere*, from Latin dēstruere : dē-, de- + struere, to pile up; see ster-² in Appendix.]

de-destroy-er (dī-stroi'ər) n. 1. One that destroys: a destroyer of family unity; a destroyer of our environment. 2. A small, fast, highly maneuverable warship armed with guns, torpedoes, depth charges, and guided missiles.

destroyer escort (dī-stroi'ər ēs'kôrt') n. A warship, usually smaller than a destroyer, used in antisubmarine action.

de-destroy-ing angel (dī-stroi'ing ān'jəl) n. Any of several poisonous mushrooms of the genus Amanita.

de-struct (dī-strūkt', dē'strūkt') n. The intentional, usually remote-controlled destruction of a space vehicle, rocket, or missile after launching, as for defective performance or reasons of safety. — v. de-struct-ed, de-struct-ing, de-structs. — v. tr. To destroy intentionally (a rocket or missile) after launch. — v. intr. To self-destruct. [Back-formation from DESTRUCTION.]

de-struct-i-ble (dī-strūkt'tə-bəl) adj. Breakable or easily destroyed: destructible glassware. — de-struct'ti-bil'i-ty, de-struct'ti-ble-ness n.

de-struction (dī-strūkt'shən) n. 1. a. The act of destroying. b. The condition of having been destroyed. 2. The cause or means of destroying: weapons that could prove to be the destruction of humankind. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin dēstructiō, dēstructiōn-, from dēstructus, past participle of dēstruere, to destroy. See DESTROY.]

de-struction-ist (dī-strūkt'shə-nīst) n. One who believes in or advocates destruction, especially of existing social institutions.

de-struc-tive (dī-strūk'tív) adj. 1. Causing or wreaking destruction; ruinous: a destructive act; a policy that is destructive to the economy. 2. Designed or tending to disprove or discredit: destructive criticism. —de-struc'tive-ly adv.

—de-struc'tive-ness, de'struc-tiv'i-ty (dē'strūk-tív'ī-tē) n.

destructive distillation (dī-strūk'tív dīs'tə-lā'shən) n. A process by which organic substances such as wood, coal, and oil shale are decomposed by heat in the absence of air and distilled to produce useful products such as coke, charcoal, oils, and gases.

de-struc-tor (dī-strūk'tər) n. 1. An incinerator for refuse. 2. An explosive, usually remote-controlled device for effecting a destruct.

des-ue-tude (dēs'wī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. A state of disuse or inactivity. [French désuétude, from Latin dēsuetūdō, from dēsuetus, past participle of dēsuescere, to put out of use : dē-, de- + suēscere, to become accustomed; see s(w)e- in Appendix.]

de-sul-fur-ize (dē-sūl'fə-rīz') v. tr. de-sul-fur-ized, de-sul-fur-iz-ing, de-sul-fur-iz-es. To eliminate sulfur from (petroleum, for example).

—de-sul'fur-i-za'tion (-fər-ī-zā'shən) n.

des-ul-to-ry (dēs'əl-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, dēz'-) adj. 1. Moving or jumping from one thing to another; disconnected: a desultory speech. 2. Occurring haphazardly; random. See Synonyms at chance. [Latin dēsultōrius, leaping, from dēsultor, a leaper, from dēsilīre, dēsult-, to leap down : dē-, de- + salīre, to jump; see sel- in Appendix.] —des'ul-to'ri-ly adv. —des'ul-to'ri-ness n.

det. abbr. 1. Detachment. 2. Detail.

de-tach (dī-täch') v. tr. de-tached, de-tach-ing, de-tach-es. 1. To separate or unfasten; disconnect: detach a check from the checkbook; detach burs from one's coat. 2. To remove from association or union with something: detach a calf from its mother; detached herself from the group. 3. To send (troops or ships, for example) on a special mission. [French détacher, from Old French destachier : des-, de- + attachier, to attach; see ATTACH.] —de-tach'a-bil'i-ty n. —de-tach'a-ble adj. —de-tach'a-bly adv.

de-tached (dī-täch't') adj. 1. Separated; disconnected: a detached part; a detached plug. 2. Standing apart from others; separate: a house with a detached garage. 3. Marked by an absence of emotional involvement and an aloof, impersonal objectivity. See Synonyms at cool. See Synonyms at indifferent.

—de-tach'ed-ly (-täch'īd-lē, -täch't'lē) adv. —de-tach'ed-ness n.

de-tach-ment (dī-täch'mənt) n. 1. The act or process of disconnecting or detaching; separation. 2. The state of being separate or detached. 3. Indifference to or remoteness from the concerns of others; aloofness: preserved a chilly detachment in his relations with the family. 4. Absence of prejudice or bias; disinterest: strove to maintain her professional detachment in the case. 5. a. The dispatch of a military unit, such as troops or ships, from a larger body for a special duty or mission. b. Abbr. det. The unit so dispatched. c. Abbr. det. A permanent unit, usually smaller than a platoon, organized for special duties.

de·tail (dī-tāl', dē'tāl') n. Abbr. det. 1. An individual part or item; a particular. See Synonyms at item. 2. Particulars considered individually and in relation to a whole: careful attention to detail. 3. A minor or an inconsequential item or aspect; a minutia: skipped the details to get to the main point. 4. A minute or thorough treatment or account: went into detail about his travels. 5. a. A discrete part or portion of a work, such as a painting, building, or decorative object, especially when considered in isolation. b. A representation of such a part or portion: a detail of a Rembrandt portrait illustrating the technique of chiaroscuro. 6. a. A small elaborated element of a work of art, craft, or design. b. Such elements considered together: the intricate detail of a rococo altarpiece. c. The rendering of artistic detail: the fine detail of the painter's brushwork. 7. a. The selection of one or more troops for a particular duty, usually a fatigue duty. b. The personnel so selected. c. The duty assigned: garbage detail. — v. tr. de-tailed, de-tail-ing, de-tails (dī-tāl'). 1. To report or relate minutely or in particulars. 2. To name or state explicitly: detailed the charges against the defendant. 3. To provide with artistic or decorative detail: detailed the quilt with colorful appliqué. 4. To select and dispatch for a particular duty. — idiom. in detail. With attention to particulars; thoroughly or meticulously: explained her proposal in detail. [French détail, from Old French detail, a piece cut off, from detaillir, to cut up : de-, de- + tailler, to cut; see TAILOR.] — de-tail'er n.

de-tailed (dī-tāld', dē'tāld') adj. Characterized by abundant use of detail or thoroughness of treatment: a detailed report on the state of the economy.

SYNONYMS: detailed, circumstantial, minute, particular. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “marked by attention to detail”: a detailed account of the trip; a circumstantial narrative; an exact and minute report; a faithful and particular description.

De·taille (dī-tī'), (Jean Baptiste) Édouard. 1848-1912. French painter known especially for his battle scenes.

detail man (dī-tāl' mǎn) n. A representative of a manufacturer of drugs or medical supplies who calls on doctors, pharmacists, and other professional distributors to promote new drugs and supplies.

de-tain (dī-tān') v. tr. de-tained, de-tain-ing, de-tains. 1. To keep from proceeding; delay or retard. See Synonyms at delay. 2. To keep in custody or temporary confinement: The police detained several suspects for questioning. The disruptive students were detained after school until their parents had been notified. 3. Obsolete. To retain or withhold (payment or property, for example). [Middle English deteinen, from Old French detenir, from Vulgar Latin dētenire*, from de·tain·ee (dē'tā-nē', dī-tā'-) n. A person held in custody or confinement: a political detainee.

Latin dētinēre : dē-, de- + tenēre, to hold; see ten- in Appendix.] —de·tain'·ment n.

de·tain·er (dī-tā'nər) n. Law. 1. A withholding from the rightful owner of property that has lawfully come into the possession of the current holder. 2. The detention of a person, especially in custody. 3. A writ authorizing the further detention of a person in custody, pending further action.

de·tect (dī-tĕkt') v. tr. de·tect·ed, de·tect·ing, de·tects. 1. To discover or ascertain the existence, presence, or fact of. 2. To discern the true nature or character of: detected malice behind the smile. 3. Electronics. To demodulate. [Middle English detecten, from Latin dētegere, dētect-, to uncover : dē-, de- + tegere, to cover; see (s)teg- in Appendix.] —de·tect'·a·ble, de·tect'·i·ble adj.

—de·tect'er n.

de·tec·tion (dī-tĕk'shən) n. 1. The act or process of detecting; discovery: detection of a crime; detection of radiation from a distant galaxy. 2. See demodulation.

de·tec·tive (dī-tĕk'tiv) n. A person, usually a member of a police force, who investigates crimes and obtains evidence or information. — adj. 1. Of or relating to detectives or their work: detective novels. 2. Suited for or used in detection.

WORD HISTORY: The first detective may have come into existence before the word itself. C. Auguste Dupin, Edgar Allan Poe's hero in "The Murders in the Rue Morgue," which is considered the world's first real detective story, was introduced to the world in 1841. Nine years later we find the first recorded instance of the word detective, although the phrases detective police and detective policeman, from which it was shortened, are recorded first in 1843. Hence, Dupin precedes all recorded instances of detective, just as he precedes all other detectives.

de·tec·tor (dī-tĕk'tər) n. One that detects, especially a mechanical, electrical, or chemical device that automatically identifies and records or registers a stimulus, such as an environmental change in pressure or temperature, an electric signal, or radiation from a radioactive material.

de·tent (dī-tĕnt') n. A catch or lever that locks the movement of one part of a mechanism. [French détente, a loosening, from Old French destente, from feminine past participle of destendre, to release : des-, de- + tendre, to stretch (from Latin tendere); see ten- in Appendix.]

dé·tente (dā-tānt', -tānt') n. 1. A relaxing or easing, as of tension between rivals. 2. A policy toward a rival nation or bloc characterized by increased diplomatic, commercial, and cultural contact and a desire to reduce tensions, as through negotiation or talks. [French. See DETENT.] —dé·tent'ist n.

de·ten·tion (dī-tĕn'shən) n. 1. a. The act of detaining. b. The state of being detained, especially a period of temporary custody while awaiting trial. 2. A forced or punitive delay. [Middle English detencioun, act of withholding, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin dētentiō, dētentiōn-, from dētentus, past participle of dētīnĕre, to detain. See DETAIN.]

detention home (dī-tĕn'shən hōm) n. A place where juvenile offenders are held in custody, especially for a temporary period while awaiting court action on their cases.

de·ter (dī-tūr') v. de·tered, de·ter·ring, de·ters. — v. tr. To prevent or discourage from acting, as by means of fear or doubt: “Does negotiated disarmament deter war?” (Edward Teller). See Synonyms at dissuade. — v. intr. To prevent or discourage the occurrence of an action, as by means of fear or doubt: “It's this edge that gives nuclear weapons their power to deter” (Thomas Powers). [Latin dēterrĕre: dē-, de- + terrĕre, to frighten.] — de·ter'ment n.

—de·ter'ra·ble adj. —de·ter'rer n.

de·terge (dī-tūrj') v. tr. de·terged, de·terg·ing, de·terg·es. To wash or wipe off (a wound, for example); cleanse. [French déterger, from Latin dētergĕre: dē-, de- + tergĕre, to wipe.]

de·ter·gence (dītūr'jəns) n. Detergency.

de·ter·gen·cy (dī-tūr'jən-sē) n. The power or quality of cleansing.

de·ter·gent (dī-tūr'jənt) n. A cleansing substance that acts similarly to soap but is made from chemical compounds rather than fats and lye. — adj. Having cleansing power.

de·te·ri·o·rate (dī-tūr'ē-ə-rāt') v. de·te·ri·o·rat·ed, de·te·ri·o·rat·ing, de·te·ri·o·rates. — v. tr. To diminish or impair in quality, character, or value: Time and neglect had deteriorated the property. — v. intr. 1. To grow worse; degenerate: The weather deteriorated overnight. His health had deteriorated while he was in prison. 2. To weaken or disintegrate; decay: The nation's highways are deteriorating at a rapid pace. [Late Latin dēteriōrāre, dēteriōrāt-, from Latin dēterior, worse. See de- in Appendix.] — de·te'ri·o·ra'tion n. — de·te'ri·o·ra'tive adj.

de·ter·min·a·ble (dī-tūr'mə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being determined, limited, or fixed: determinable velocities. 2. Law. Capable of being settled or decided: matters determinable by common law. — de·ter'min·a·ble·ness n. — de·ter'min·a·bly adv.

de·ter·mi·na·cy (dī-tūr'mə-nə-sē) n. 1. The quality or condition of being determinate. 2. The condition of being determined or characterized.

de·ter·mi·nant (dī-tūr'mə-nənt) adj. Determinative. — n. 1. An influencing or determining element or factor: “Education is the second most important determinant of recreational participation” (John P. Robinson). 2. Mathematics. A square matrix of numbers or other elements having a value determined by a rule of combination for the elements and used especially in solving certain classes of simultaneous equations. 3. Immunology. The portion of an immunogenic molecule with which an antibody or lymphocyte reacts.

de·ter·mi·nate (dĭ-tŭr'mə-nĭt) adj. 1. Precisely limited or defined; definite: a determinate number; a determinate distance. 2. Conclusively settled; final.

3. Firm in purpose; resolute. 4. Botany. a. Terminating in a flower and blooming in a sequence beginning with the uppermost or central flower; cymose: a determinate inflorescence. b. Not continuing indefinitely at the tip of an axis: determinate growth. [Middle English, from Latin dēterminātus, past participle of dētermināre, to determine. See DETERMINE.] —de·ter'mi·nate·ly adv.

